We see some Canadian writers, in attempting to reproduce, verbatim, the language of farmers, in relating a story, fall into the error of making the Canadian farmer talk in a "lingo," like that ascribed to a "Down East" rural Yankee. This is not true to life. Take the average Canadian farmer, and he will be found to be as well read, as intelligent and with as good a use of the English language as the average city dweller outside professional ranks. The reason is that the average Ontario farmer is a reading man, and, as a rule, a prosperous man, which leaves him leisure for mental improvement.

THE PREMIER'S PARLIAMENTARY CAREER

It is not often that a statesman in a democratic community is permitted to represent in a popular chamber a single city constituency without interruption for thirty years. For this long period Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been member for Quebec East in the Canadian House of Commons. A child born in the year of his first election might have been voting for him at the last two elections, if there had been any opposition to him. A youth who was twenty-one at his first election, is now more than half a century old. A generation has arisen in the memory of which the name "Laurier" is a household word. There must be merit of a high order, along with personal magnetism, to draw men and hold them as Sir Wilfrid does.

The Premier's entrance into politi-cal life took place as far back as 1871, when he was chosen to represent the constituency of Drummond and Arthabasca in the Quebec Legislative Assembly. After a three year term he resigned to become a candidate for the same great district in the House of Commons. Aided by the "Pacific Scandal" cry he was elected, but in 1878 he went down with many other Liberals in the overthrow of the Mackenzie Government in which he held a portfolio. He was immediately elected by Quebec East, which has stayed firmly by him ever since. There is now little likelihood of his ever losing his hold of that district.

It may be worth while to enumerate some of the personal characteristics that make him popular with a kind of constituency that is often fitful in its allegiance to its representatives in Parliament. It is not pretended by his admirers that he is an intellectual giant, though he is undoubtedly a man of real ability; if he were not so he would not succeed in retaining the loyal cooperation of able men. Many men abler than he would have failed where he has succeeded, because of lack of what may be called statesmanlike imagination and breadth of outlook. He sees quickly and grasps firmly the strong points in any case that may be presented to him, and he sees just as clearly and exposes promptly its weak points.

Sir Wilfrid is an orator, but not a fluent speaker. He talks deliberately, chooses his words well, puts his thoughts into classic form, and enunciates his words with a very attractive resonance. His oratory is of the kind that never palls, and as he does not make himself too cheap, he wears well. His chief strength after all is in his personality. He is thoroughly considerate of other people and is sympathetic when the occasion calls for sympathy. Yet he is stern withal. He defers as long as possible the unpleasant task of getting rid of an obnoxious colleague, but he gets rid of him when the psychological moment comes. We shall not soon look on his like again.—Guelph Mercury.

NATURE WORKS THE CURE

If you try to doctor an overworked stomach and a clogged liver you often add to your troubles. The stomach that has been living on rich foods needs a rest, not drugs. Diet yourself and leave drugs alone. To get the stomach and liver back into shape you must eat moderately, skip a meal occasionally, eat your food slowly, take lots of exercise and beware of strong cathartic pills. The bowels may be gotten into working order by the use of the following prescription: one ounce sweet spirits of nitre, four ounces syrup of rhubarb and one ounce compound vimosa. Take a dessertspoonful in water after meals and at bedtime.—10.

CHEESE REPORTS ARE SATISFACTORY

But Makers Have Not Cleared Enough Money to Repay Them

PATRONS ARE SATISFIED

The closing meetings of the various cheese factories throughout the county are now nearly over and every day for more than a week meetings have been held at which the reports show that the dairy business is one of the best the farmer now gives his attention to.

On Monday the Pine Grove factory held a meeting with the president of the factory in charge. There was only a fair attendance; the report was as follows:—

Amount of milk received, 1,149,612 lbs.
Cheese made, 104,336 lbs.
Gross receipts, $12,165.95.
Amount paid patrons, $10,977.41.
Patrons, 54.

Mr. R H Little is going to have a new curing room ready for next season built on cool curing plan. The reports of the cow testing association were received and were very satisfactory.

Monday evening the meeting of the Selwyn factory was held but no report of the proceedings was received.

Westwood Meeting

On Tuesday afternoon an enthusiastic meeting of the Westwood factory was held in the town hall with a very large attendance. There are 72 patrons of this factory and they have had a most successful season. The report proves this, as follows:—

Amount of milk, 1,913,598 lbs.
Amount of cheese, 167,711 lbs.
Money received, $19,673.49.
Received for whey, $382.71.
Interest, $93.94.
Gross receipts, $20,149.94.
Average number of lbs of milk to one lb cheese, 11.40.
Average price of cheese, 11.73 cts.
Gross value per standard, $31.59.
Net value per standard to patrons, $26.87.
Four largest patrons were:
F Warner, 92,275 lbs.
Thos. Lynch, 59,266 lbs.
J C Breckenridge, 56,751 lbs.
M J Haley, 50,200. lbs.
Average for 72 patrons was 26,577 lbs.

Ormonde Meeting

The Ormonde meeting on Tuesday night was another winner. A pleasant time was enjoyed and the following report was satisfactory to all:

Amount of milk, 2,122,386 lbs.
Amount of cheese, 191,836 lbs.
Amount of money, $22,509.72.
Interest, $24.44.
Gross Receipts, $22,534.16.
Average price of cheese per lb., 11.71 cents.
Net price to patrons per standard, $26.94.

The following meetings are still to be held:—

Central Smith, Wednesday afternoon.
Keene, Wednesday night,
Benefort, Thursday afternoon.
East Emily, Friday afternoon.

A feature of the meetings was the acknowledgment that the makers throughout the county have practically made nothing this season on their work and in many cases it was decided to increase the allowance that is given the makers.

HERE'S A WAY TO SAVE DOCTOR BILLS

Physicians Give Free Advice by Which Parents May Profit

It was an association of gentlemen, professionally physicians and chemists, all of whom were born in the drug trade, so to speak, and who have been connected with it all their lives, who first gave to the world Castoria, which as every one knows is a pleasant and effective remedy for the ailments of infants and children. It has always been recognized as a meritorious preparation, and its reward has been the greatest popularity ever enjoyed by any remedy ever put upon the market, attained, not by flamboyant advertising or appeals to ignorant or vulgar prejudice, but by inherent merit. All physicians recommend it, and many, very many, prescribe it.

Many parents call in the family physician. Many other parents take take advantage of what the physician told them when he was first called in consultation. All good family physicians say: "Give the children Castoria." Healthy parents know this remedy of old, for they took it themselves as children. It was more than thirty years ago that Castoria made a place for itself in the household. It bore the signature of Charles H. Fletcher then, as it does to-day. The signature is its guarantee, which is accepted in thousands of homes where there are children.

Much is printed nowadays about big families. Dr. William J. McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., is the father of one of these much-read-about families. Here is what he says:

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have, in my years of practice, found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Charles H Fletcher has received hundreds of letters from prominent physicians who have the same esteem for Castoria that Dr. McCrann has. Not only do these physicians say they use Castoria in their own families, but they prescribe it for their patients. First of all it is vegetable preparation which assimilates the food and regulates the stomach and bowels. After eating comes sleeping, and Castoria looks out for that too. It allays feverishness and prevents loss of sleep, and this absolutely without the use of opium, morphine or other baneful narcotic.

Medical journals are reluctant to discuss proprietary medicines. Hall's Journal of Health, however, says: "Our duty is to expose fraud and record the means for advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health by regulating the system, not by stupefying it, and our readers are entitled to the information."

A VERY ENTERPRISING MERCHANT

The Examiner has received from Mr. Thomas Howard, proprietor of the well-known Hastings department store, a neat booklet which indicates that that gentleman has the enterprise that goes to make up success in business. The leaflet is very tastefully gotten up and gives the public a good idea of the goods carried and the prices prevailing in the biggest and brightest store in Hastings. "Right prices, right qualities, and right service" is the motto adopted by Mr. Howard, and the success of his business indicates that these things are being appreciated by the people of Hastings.

Well Known Lakefield Man Dies In Toronto

Former Resident Passed Away in the Queen City — Cavendish Lumber Co's Mills Have Closed Down for the Season.

WAS A GOOD SEASON

Examiner Special.

Lakefield, Dec. 3.—The district convention of the Epworth Leagues and Sunday school was held in the Methodist church on Monday, December 2. A very successful and profitable meeting was held, there being many visitors present from outside points.

Miss Birdie Nicholls who has been visiting Miss Florence Simpson returned to her home near Buckhorn last Wednesday.

Mr. Chas. Cumberland of the Sovereign Bank of Toronto is the guest of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Cumberland.

Miss Mabel Bettes of Peterborough spent a few days last week in the village visiting friends.

News was received on Monday of the death of Mr. W P Band, which took place Saturday last at his family residence in Toronto, in his 73rd year. Mr. Band was for some years a resident of Lakefield, having come out when only 17 years of age as an agricultural pupil to the late Col. Strickland. After leaving Lakefield he entered the Ontario civil service with which he was connected for 37 years, and from 1878 until 1904 was bursar of the Penetanguishene reformatory. He leaves four sons and three daughters to mourn his loss.

The Cavendish Lumber Company closed down Saturday last after a very successful season, having cut over 17,000,000 feet of lumber.

Mrs. W J Atkinson of Montreal is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W F Trulls.

Miss Zimmerman of Toronto who had been spending the past six months in Lakefield returns home on Friday next.

Rev. S T Bartlett a former pastor of the Methodist church here was in the village on Monday last attending the Epworth League convention.

Miss McKibbon and Miss Mabel Walker who have been visiting with friends in Campbellford returned home last Saturday.

Mrs. Lewin of Toronto arrived in Lakefield Tuesday to visit Mrs. McKenzie at the Grove.

The Grove football supper, one of the great events of the year, takes place Thursday evening. The prizes won in the various sporting events will be presented on this occasion.

Mr. R O Beat of the G.T.R. staff spent a few days at his home in Uxbridge last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallichan of Jersey who have been living in Mr. LeFevre's cottage for some time leave Tuesday for the West where Mr. Gallichan has secured a position on Mr. Grieve's ranch at Vernon, B.C.

Mr. H J LeFevre left Monday for Toronto to attend the funeral of the late W. P. Band.

Dr. Brown who has sold out his practice here to Dr. Graham of Toronto leaves this week for New York.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church will hold a sale of work in Mr. D'Arcy's store on Thursday, December 12.

Mrs. T McBrien of Peterborough spent a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Watson.

Miss Rose Montgomery of New York is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. Hayes.

Mrs. R F Davidson and little Margaret left Monday last to visit with friends in Toronto.

How can you Test the Blood

Paleness of the lips, gums and the insides of the eye-lids tell of weak, watery blood, while other indications are languid, worn out and despondent feelings, headaches, nervous troubles and weakness of the bodily organs. To say that the blood is thin and weak is to say that it lacks iron and the other elements of which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed. There is no greater blood builder.

A MESSAGE FROM CHINA HALL

China Hall's Stock is now complete, and the present is a good time to make selections for Christmas. The stock is the heaviest and most varied it has ever been, and taken as a whole would do credit to the largest city in the Dominion. The Store will be open evenings until after Xmas, and this is opening week, during which the public are invited to inspect the Two Show Rooms and view the newest productions in Pottery. Our Dinner Ware Show Room (just completed) is well worth a visit.

COTE SWINDLER TRACED.

Lillian Hamilton Arrested In Buffalo For Robbing Banker.

St. Catharines, Dec. 5.—After baffling the authorities for three weeks, Lillian Hamilton, who so easily induced Leonard H. Collard, private banker, to part with $200 upon a note, to which the name of B. C. Fairfield had been forged, is now in the county jail awaiting trial, which has been fixed for Monday next.

It seems the woman attempted to work some similar swindle upon the bank at Bridgeburg, but the scheme was detected and she was traced to Buffalo, where her arrest was made yesterday morning by Chief Mains of the provincial police force. The woman at once acknowledged the crime and returned with Chief Mains to the Falls, waiving all extradition proceedings.

Chief Parnell brought the woman from the Falls, and at 4 o'clock she was taken before Police Magistrate Comfort and elected to be tried by him. She explained that her name was formerly Warner, but that she had been brought up by the late James McKelvey of this city, and had been known as Ida McKelvey. She claims to have been married to a man named Hamilton, and says she left two small children in Buffalo when arrested. The woman asked for a few days' remand to enable her to get sufficient money to repay Collard, as she told the magistrate she thought that ought to have a tendency to reduce the sentence accordingly. She looks to be about 35 years of age, and since telling who she is, has been recognised by the officials.

WRECKED MEN RETURN.

Vancouver, Dec. 5.—Three timber cruisers, whose schooner was wrecked on Calvert Island on Oct. 3, and who were unable for fifty-eight days to get away from the island, arrived at Vancouver yesterday on the steamer Venture.

The men, W. Wylder, S. Burdette and W. Campbell, all of Vancouver, sailing north in a small schooner on a timber cruising expedition, were caught by gales off Smith's Inlet, the boat's steering gear was carried away, and they drifted towards Calvert Island, where an anchor was let go but would not hold.

The schooner was driven ashore in a heavy surf, and wrecked on Oct. 3. Fortunately, it was a sandy beach, and most of the provisions, guns and ammunition were saved. Ducks, geese and deer being plentiful, the ship-wrecked party were in no danger of starvation. Finally, as no help came, a punt was made out of lumber whipsawed from the solid logs, and the seams of the craft were caulked with canvas from the torn sails of the schooner. In this roughly made craft the men put out and intercepted the American steamer Alaskan, which took them on board and carried the party down to a point near Alert Bay, where there punt was launched and they came into port here.

The strangely made craft in which they arrived is being kept as a curiosity at Alert Bay.

Gave Mate Their Skin.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—A remarkable operation was performed yesterday by Dr. Kidd. Eugene Herbert Reynolds, who was injured in the Plantaganet wreck on Sept. 11, has lain in the hospital ever since, and there has been doubt that one of the legs, from which most of the flesh and skin had been burned off, could be saved. However, it was stated by Dr. Kidd that if the skin of a healthy man could be procured and grafted Reynolds would have more than a fighting chance. Hearing of this, 14 railway men at once volunteered to help their mate, and from the arms of ten of them little pieces of skin were removed and attached to Reynolds' limb. The operation was most successful.

Young Girl Killed.

Windsor, Dec. 5.—Blanche Latourneau, the 12-year-old daughter of a farmer of that name residing a few miles east of this city, was struck by the eastbound fast train on the Grand Trunk at Tecumseh Railway crossing at noon yesterday, and instantly killed. Her body was thrown forty feet and horribly mangled and the neck broken. An inquest was held last night, and the verdict was that death was due to the girl's own negligence in not observing the approaching train.

Chinaman Hanged.

Kamloops, B. C., Dec. 5.—Sam Lock, Chinaman, was executed yesterday morning. Groaning and very nervous the aged Chinaman walked to the gallows.

Lock, who was a cook in Caribou last April killed a countryman who had stolen his savings.

This murderer had been forty years in British Columbia.

Arrested on a Serious Charge.

Boston, Dec. 5.—Provincial Detective Reburn made an important arrest of Robert Thomas Christian of Adjala, who is charged with having committed an assault upon Margaret Ethel Clark, eight years of age, on the public highway.

Christian gave the little girl's parents $200 to not enter criminal proceedings.

Canon to Be Unopposed.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—Ottawa Conservatives in convention last night decided, in view of the near approach of the general elections, not to contest the seat rendered vacant by the appointment of N. A. Belcourt to the Senate. This means the election of Caron, the Liberal candidate, by acclamation.

Japan Likes the Speech.

Tokio, Dec. 5.—The Ashi publishes a 1,000 word special cable on President Roosevelt's message, and comments on it, expressing gratification at its general friendly tone toward Japan. It says that the naval and military programs guarantees the peace of the world.

Burglar's Busy Night.

Chatham, Dec. 5.—Nine houses were burglarised on Victoria avenue Tuesday night, including that of Police Magistrate Houston. The houses entered were those of M. Houston, loss, plum pudding; John Walker, K. C., loss, $13; Frank Laurie, loss, $6, S. T. Martin, loss, $2; J. S. Black, William Ball, W. J. Moore, small loss, and J. C. Fleming.

Mown Men Ground to Pieces.

Glasgow, Dec. 5.—A gang of nine platelayers was run down yesterday by a locomotive on the Glasgow-Paisley line.

Seven of the men were killed outright.

They were so terribly mutilated that their bodies had to be gathered up in sacks.

Arrested For Murder.

Salisbury, N. B., Dec. 5.—Christopher A. Horseman, husband of the woman who lost her life in the well back of her home three days ago, was arrested last night on a charge of murdering her. He was taken to jail, leaving eight children all under 14 years of age in the house alone, crying and afraid.

Gave Life For Brother.

Rexton, N. B., Dec. 5.—Two children, Willie and Grace Orr, nine and seven years old, were drowned at Jardinville at noon yesterday while en route home from school. The boy went out on some ice and the girl trying to save him fell in. The bodies were found in five feet of water.

Milton's Family Bible.

New York, Dec. 5.—The Milton family Bible, printed in 1666 and with the autograph of the Poet John Milton, dated Feb. 24, 1654, on a slip of paper pasted on the inside cover, brought $1,225 at an auction sale.

An Arrest at London.

London, Dec. 5.—William Stubley was arrested last night on a charge of horse-stealing.

AMENDMENT OF THE GAME LAWS

Mr. Wm. Snowden Has Drawn Up a Petition to Amend the Game Laws

"That each hunter shall only shoot one deer, and that the hunting season be changed from the present time, November 1st to 15th, to Oct. 15th to Nov. 1st."

This is the petition which Mr. Wm. Snowden has drawn up, and after it has been signed by those in favour, will be sent to Ottawa. In talking to the Examiner to-day, Mr. Snowden said the season was too late. The hunters are usually snowed in every year, but this season was an exception. The woods at the beginning of November are full of men and dogs and the deer are chased away. He also said that the laws prohibiting cruelty to animals were entirely ignored. When a hunter goes into the woods, he fires at a deer; it is shot in the leg, runs to some unknown part of the forest, and lies there for two or three days suffering unknown agonies, and at last is carried away by the wolves.

Mr. Snowden is little enamoured over game law conditions, and he thinks one deer is enough for any man. He believed that the fleet-footed kings of the forest were gradually becoming extinct.

MR. F. J. MOORE LEAVES FOR TORONTO

Local Photographer Leaves to Manage Toronto Firm

The many friends of Mr. F. J. Moore will learn with regret that he has severed his connection with Peterborough, but will be glad to hear he has accepted a position as manager of a large photo studio in Toronto.

Mr. Moore since his arrival in Peterborough has been employed as photographer with Broom & Bryan, Hunter street. He had, before coming to Peterborough, been employed with F. Turner, of London, Eng., photographer to His Maejsty the King. During the South African war Mr. Moore was mentioned in despatches to England for bravery.

Serving of refreshments closed the enjoyable event.

HELLO GIRLS FORBIDDEN TO MARRY

Parisian Authorities Desire Absolute Secrecy in the Discharge of Telephone Duties

There is a storm in the telephone teacup in Paris, France, owing to the circular which has been sent out to the young women operators. The circular states that telephone employees in future will have to get the permission of the Postmaster-General before they can marry. Until this permission is granted no date for the ceremony may be fixed.

Such employees are not allowed to marry foreigners, members of the police force, detectives, Mayors, Mayor's clerks or cashiers.

The reason given for this peculiar rule is "the safeguarding of the secrets of the public."

DOCTORS THOUGHT BABY WAS CONSUMPTIVE

A LETTER TO ANXIOUS MOTHERS is written by Mrs. F. W. Kittle, of Kirkdale, P. Q., who says: "My little four-year-old boy suffered since he was 18 months old, from a bad leg. I tried many salves and had doctors attend him, but none did him any good. The doctors told me it was in the blood, and he was in consumption. I only wish now I had had more faith in Zam-Buk, for it immediately healed the boy's leg. He is now nearly four years old and looks far from being consumptive. He is now a strong, healthy boy, thanks to Zam-Buk. I hope this letter will help a good many anxious mothers."

Mothers, Take Heart. Don't be discouraged because everything has failed to heal your child, until you have tried Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is Nature's Healing Balm, and quickly overcomes and removes all skin diseases. It is equally good for young and old.

MR. D. W. DUMBLE

EXAMINATION OF THE N. C. O. CLASS

Non-Coms Acquit Themselves Well Last Night

The Non-Commissioned Officers' Class that has been undergoing a course of instructions from Sergt.-Major Brittain at the drill shed was concluded last night by the regular closing examinations. The examiners were Major Clegg, Captian Bennet and Lieutenant Hodgens.

The class this year had eighteen Non Com. officers and men on roll including Sergt.-Major Jos. Duffus and Sergt. M. Duffus of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons. Both these latter men have displayed unusual enthusiasm in the work and are exceptions in that they are cavalry men taking up the infantry drill.

The class underwent a severe examination, perhaps one of the most exacting that a class has ever been put through. However, the members acquitted themselves splendidly and showed the effects of a thorough course of lessons. The examining officers were more than satisfied with the work of the class and took occasion to congratulate the Non-Coms and their instructor, Sergt.-Major Brittain, on the efficiency they had attained during the last two months. They praised the class on the regularity of their attendance and were pleased to see such enthusiasm in the military work.

The results will not be known for a week or so when the officers in charge will give out the report.

TRIBUTE TO JOHN'S TEA

A delightful blend of John's tea is the refreshing beverage served by the ladies at All Saints' Bazaar and Sale now being held in the old opera house. This fine, delicately flavoured tea is capturing the tea drinkers all over this city and district. It possesses good quality with strength and flavour. It is a rich, moderately stimulating drink, that satisfies. John's tea is a tea that goes a long way, and is, therefore, economical, as well as being good. You can get your supplies in attractive air-tight packages, from Mr. John, whose office and warerooms are in the Grand Opera House block, next to J. J. Turner & Sons. If you take the trouble to ask for a sample you will be able to judge for yourself. Have John's tea for Christmas.

PLEA FOR CAUSE OF TEMPERANCE

SOME EVILS SET FORTH

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Some days ago a letter appeared in your columns over the signature of "M. L." which interested me very much, and I have been hoping that some thoughtful man or woman would have taken up the subject to which it referred and have given some expression of appreciation for the sentiments conveyed by it. I refer to the letter suggesting that a Gospel Temperance League be formed in our city. The writer speaks of the great good that has been accomplished through this organization in the city of Toronto, and I would like to bear testimony to this fact also, having attended several of the Sunday afternoon meetings in Massey Hall, and I can bear witness that numbers signed the pledge at each meeting. Is drunkenness on the increase in our city? I fear it is, judging from the number of intoxicated men one meets on our streets. A prominent gentleman who has recently moved to the city from Toronto said to the writer that he was amazed at the number of drunken men to be seen any day on our streets, more, he said, than he had ever seen in Toronto. If it is on the increase, what is the reason? Are Christian people doing all that they might to counteract the influence of the saloon and hotel? We have fourteen or fifteen Protestant evangelical places of worship in the city in addition to a flourishing Y.M.C.A., and yet we are compelled to the conclusion that very little active, aggressive work is undertaken to save the young men in and out of our churches from this fearful drink habit. The T.A.S. is doing a grand work for the Catholic young men of the city, with its membership of several hundred pledged abstainers, its reading and club rooms, and every true Christian rejoices in its success. In addition to the T. A. S., there is one temperance society, the Royal Templars, struggling along against great odds, trying to save some, but outside of these there is no united, organized, aggressive, moral movement to reach the men who are going down through this fearful habit, unless some helping hand is held out to them. Some one may say, "There are the churches, and there is the Y.M.C.A. These people can get help if they wish to be helped." To such I would answer that the church must get hope to reach the great masses who need her help the most unless she is prepared to reach them in the way her Master reached mankind. He left His high abode and came down to this sinful world, and we quote His own words as to the object of His coming: "The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." St. Luke 19, 10. The pulpit of the city is faithfully proclaiming the message, but if our fellow citizens are to be rescued and restored, the men who sit in the pews must unite together in a strong effort to seek and save them.

"This is the way the Master went; Should not the servant tread it still?"

Yours faithfully,

E. K.

Annual Meeting Of The Sand Stone Brick Company

Concern Has Had a Most Successful Season—Dividend of 6 Per Cent. Has Been Declared on all the Stock of the Company.

MANY ORDERS TO FILL

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Peterborough Sandstone Brick Company, Limited, was held at the Company's office, Water street, Peterborough, yesterday morning.

A large number of the shareholders was present including Mr. Walter Alford, Belleville; John Carter, Wm. Hoar, J J English and L F Clarry, Hastings; George Dunean, C S Diamond, C Fagan, Wm. Harstone, R A Elliott, E S Clarry, R Harstone, D Fleming and J J Hartley, Peterborough. There was also a large number of the shareholders represented by proxy.

A highly satisfactory report was laid before the meeting, showing that this company had a very successful year. All of the company's products were sold during the past year and a large quantity of bricks on hand now at the company's yard, is sold, to be delivered just as soon as building operations commences in the spring. Several large orders were taken during the past season, including those from the contractors for the Government armouries in Belleville and also in the City of Peterborough. There are between 175 and 200 buildings erected of sand lime brick in Peterborough and in the neighbouring towns. These buildings include a number of very handsome residences. The prospects for next year's business are very bright and the company has all the orders that it can at present fill. A dividend of 6 per cent. for the past year was declared on all the stock of the company.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors the following officers were elected:—

President—J J English.
Vice-President—J J Hartley.
Secretary—E S Clarry.
Manager—William Harstone.

Operations Of Ice Men In Havelock Described

Interesting Despatch From Railway Centre Tells of Important Industry — Many Refrigerator Cars Are Packed There.

HOW THE WORK IS DONE

Examiner Special

Havelock, Dec. 3.—Operations at Swift & Company"s ice house here, which Mr. J W Bryans, of town, is manager, are about at an end for this season, as the cars do not need icing now, the weather being cold enough to keep the meats and other articles without icing them. This has been a very busy season at the ice house on account of the great heat and also an increase in the number of cars sent over this line that need icing. In the middle of the summer as high as 250 cars were iced in a week or an average of 36 cars per day. Considering that these cars take from 6 to 15 cakes of ice each, according to the lowness of the ice in the tanks, it can be seen that a large amount of that congealed moisture called ice, is consumed at this icing station in one season. Although once in a while during the winter months special cars have to be iced, the regular season commences about March or April and finishes in November.

The icing season does not stop abruptly, but from the last of September until the last of November the number of cars iced per day is less as some of the meats and fruits do not need to be kept very cold.

Although Swift & Co., ship most of the cars that pass through here, there are several other companies which have icing done here, among them the following: The Armour Packing Co., Chicago and Kansas city; Nelson Morris, Kansas City; Cudahy Packing Co., Omaha and Kansas City; National Packing Co., Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City; Cold Blast Transportation Co., Chicago and Kansas City; American Refrigerator Transportation Co.; John Morell, Otomwa; the C.P.R. Refrigerator Co., and several other smaller companies whose shipping points are in the United States.

Some of the cars only go as far as Montreal where the contents are transferred to the steamboats by which they are shipped to foreign countries. Other cars go down into the New England States and others to Providence where they are transfered to the steamers and shipped to other countries.

When the cars leave Chicago, they are iced at Windsor, Ont., then at Havelock, sometimes at Montreal and then at Providence or Newport. The icemen have considerable trouble in judging the time they must commence to prepare the ice for the cars. The cakes which are packed in close together are frozen to one another and these have to be loosened up and separated. The ice is then hoisted to the platform which is the same height as the cars and here it is broken by hand into pieces about the size of a man's fist. Considerable judgment is necessary for the ice must not be gotten out too soon or it will melt, or too late as it will delay the train. A report is first received by mail that certain cars have left the shipping point and the next report is received from Windsor by wire when the cars leave there and it is then that the men begin to loosen up the cakes in the rooms. A report is also received when the cars leave Toronto and again when the cars arrive in Myrtle or Burketon and then they commence to pull the ice up, which work is done by means of a horse. Generally, if they start to pull up when the cars leave Myrtle they have the ice fully prepared for the cars when they arrive at Havelock. But sometimes the train is delayed by some cause or other and a large amount of the ice is melted before the cars reach here.

When the cars arrive the tops, which are placed on each end are, opened and the ice already in the cars pounded down and the water in them allowed to run out. Rock salt is then placed on the old ice in the tanks and ice placed on top of that up to the top, when another layer of salt is placed on top of that. Some of the cars which go only as far as Montreal and are then transhipped to the steamboats and are called export shipments are merely filled with the large cakes of ice without being broken up. Sometimes a shipment of cars which is sent out from the shipping point is divided on the way and comes in on two different trains and thus makes it necessary to pull up twice.

The regular shipment of provision cars generally comes in on train No. 52, due at Havelock at 12.30 p.m. but cars come in on all trains and sometimes during the night. For night purposes ice is kept in a room level with the platform, already loosened up which can be pulled on to the platform without the use of a horse. The men who are called out for an hour or so during the night do not have to get around as early as the others in the morning.

A large amount of rock salt is used in icing the cars and it is stored in a large room and drawn to the platform and placed in large salt boxes as it is needed.

The walls of the ice house are about two feet thick and are filled with very fine saw dust which is tightly packed in. When a room is completely filled with ice it is covered over with marsh hay. The roof of the building is flat and covered with a coat of tar with small stones and gravel on top of that. There are several large boxes built on the roof where air may go down to the rooms below. The platform is placed on the north side of the building, and has a covering over it to keep the sun from melting the ice when it is on the platform. Electric lights are also installed for night work. The ice is broken into pieces by large wooden mallets and is shovelled into the cars and packed down by hand.

They begin to fill the ice house in the winter as soon as the ice has reached the thickness of 12 inches. The ice has been got from Norwood during the past few years, but at one time it was shipped from Peterborough. The work of loading the ice into the cars to ship is a very interesting operation. If there is any snow on the ice it has to be scraped off before commencing operations. The ice is cut into cakes about 20 inches thick. This is done by first cutting the ice to a depth of about six inches by means of a very sharp ice plough, and then it can be easily broken into cakes by striking forcibly with an iron bar made for the purpose. The ice is then run on a skid from the water on to large sleighs which carry it to the cars. Each sleigh will carry about two dozen cakes. At the car the sleigh is drawn up on a bridge level with the car so that the cakes will run easily into the car, where they are placed two feet deep.

When the ice reaches Havelock the cars are spotted at a platform where five cakes at a time are run up an inclined skid, from which the cakes will be easily run around the galleries to the back of the rooms, where they are run in on a skid and placed side by side, in which position they freeze together. As the rooms are filled higher the ice is run on a higher gallery until they are filled to the top, when the ice is covered with marsh hay and the doorways with sawdust, and the ice is packed so that it will keep until needed in the summer.

It requires 20 or 30 men to load the ice at Norwood and they must be hardy, too, accustomed to stand the coldest weather, for they have to stand on the ice where the wind gets a good sweep at them and where the temperature is not unlike that at the Arctic regions, for four or five hours at a time, holding in their hands an iron bar or tongs, or some like instrument. It also requires four or five teams of horses to load the ice on the sleighs and convey it to the cars.

At Havelock during the storing of ice it generally takes 30 or 35 men according to whether the ice runs easy or not on the skids, and also according to the number of cars loaded, as it is necessary to unload the ice as quickly as possible or it will freeze to the bottom of the car, or the cakes will freeze together. It also takes two or three teams to pull the ice up the skid so that it will run around to the back. It also requires an engine to spot cars, which has to be done about every 15 or 20 minutes, which is the length of time it takes to unload a car of ice. It generally takes about 325 cars of ice to fill the ice house, but the number is increasing each year, accordingly as the amount used increases.

BOWLING CLUB HELD A SMOKER.

Pleasing Event Last Night at the Rink

The last duties of the Peterborough Bowling Club, were concluded last night at a jolly smoker held in the assembly room at the curling rink.

The occasion was the presentation of the prizes won in the various competitions at the Brookside Lawn during the summer, and a pleasant time was enjoyed.

The senior Scotch doubles were won by Messrs. W. Thompson and J. E. A. Fitzgerald; the junior doubles by Messrs. M. Kirn and R. Matchett. Dr. Halloway won the senior singles and Mr. J. J. Cunningham, the junior singles. The successful rink was skipped by Mr. R. M. Waddell. The other members of it were Messrs. W. Pratt, T. Brightman and C. E. Frost. This rink won the Frost trophy, a beautiful souvenir of the summer games. Sets of bowls were presented as the other prizes by Messrs. W. G. Ferguson, D. H. Moore, A. H. Stratton and J. E. A. Fitzgerald.

Dr. Greer, the president of the club, called upon Mr. D. H. Moore to make the presentations, and the latter efficiently performed the necessary duties.

DEED TRANSFERRED TO KNOX CHURCH

an Interesting Congregational Social At Knox Church Last Night

The congregational social held at Knox church, was an interesting event in many particulars. An excellent programme was rendered; gratifying reports were presented by representatives of the various church organizations; the deed was received from St. Paul's transferring the Knox church property over to the trustees of Knox church, and, to cap the climax, refreshments were served.

The programme was as follows:
Piano solo, Miss Chiles.
Vocal solo, Master Harold Hatcher.
Vocal solo, Miss Carr.
Reading, Mr. Donald McLean.
Vocal Solo, Mr. Duncan Campbell.

Brief verbal reports on the progress of the various organizations in the church were then presented. The Home Mission Society was represented by Miss MacPherson; the Sunday school by Sheriff Hall; the Y P S C E by Mr. Duncan Campbell; the prayer meeting by Rev. H. J. Keith, and the Ladies' Aid by Mrs. Pollock.

The deed of the church was then received and was signed, in the presence of the congregation.

On motion of Mr. J. Smith and W. C. Galley, a resolution was passed expressing the gratitude of the congregation to St. Paul's for all that that church had done for Knox church, and this was signed by the trustees and forwarded to the congregation of St. Paul's.

The singing of the doxology closed the meeting.

CHURCH CEMENTED TO THE WORLD

So Fears "Puritan," Who Refers to It as Place of Dry Bones

Editor Examiner.

I am pleased to know and see that at least one or more of our city churches has taken the initiative step to advance the cause of pure and undefiled religion by showing to the world that the place of worship is not a market square to hold bazaars and entertainments in. I believe in entertainments being held in their proper place. I know some will assert that God will meet with a person anywhere under reasonable conditions. I admit that to be true. But what about a building that was have dedicated to the Lord for holy worship? I only wish to refer to Christ's dealing with the money changers. It is no wonder that our churches have become a place of dry bones. I fear that the church to-day has become somewhat cemented to the world. Her wings of spiritual power are clipped so that she is not able to fly above the world.

"PURITAN."

WILL GO TO JAIL FOR WINTER

Andy Fawcet After Getting Out of Jail Desires Six Months More

About ten minutes after ten this morning the bent form of Andrew Fawcett appeared in the police station. The old man told the police that he had just come from the jail and wanted to go back for six months. The police, of course, were powerless, but sent the old gentleman to Mr. Dumble's office to see about it.

He soon returned with a smile on his face and told the police that his request had been granted and he will likely go up on the hill to-day.

He told the Examiner that life in the jail was not so bad. All he had to do was to attend to one stove and keep wood in it. Another prisoner had to bring the wood and place it beside the stove.

EUCHRE TOURNAMENT AT THE CLUB

Young Conservatives Had a Good Time Last Night

Last night a progressive euchre tournament was held in the Conservative Club rooms. The President, Mr. W. Butler, and the Vice-President, Mr. W Gibbs, chose sides and victory fell to the cohorts of the former by nearly 200 points. There were in all 12 tables and some close games are reported.

On Thursday evening of next week Mr. J H Burnham ex-President of the Club will be down from Toronto and deliver an address before the club.

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR MOTHERS' GUILD

In Future Will Be Called "St. Luke's Ladies' Aid Society"

The annual meeting of St. Luke's Mothers' Guild was held yesterday afternoon. Mrs. T H G Denne, the President, was in the chair; the Rector opened the meeting with devotional exercises. After the transaction of business a discussion arose regarding the name of the society. It was decided to change the name to "St. Lukes' Ladies' Aid Society." The object of its work is to help the finances of the church, by taking in sewing and giving entertainments. The following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. R B Rogers.
Vice-President—Mrs. E C Hubbs.
Secretary—Mrs. W Gibbs.
Treasurer—Mrs. T H G Denne.
Visiting Committee — Mesdames Hubbs, Waterman, Strain and Denne.

The next meeting will be held at the call of the President in January.

WHO USES HYOMEI?

The Best People in Peterborough Says Wm. Madill—Guaranteed in Catarrhal Troubles

No other remedy or treatment for catarrh has ever been so popular, or made so many remarkable cures in Peterborough as Hyomei.

The best people attest its curative virtues, says Mr. Madill, who is the local agent. The fair way in which Hyomei was sold, to refund the cash unless it gave satisfaction, was the best proof when it was introduced, that it possessed unusual curative powers. Mr. Madill took all the risk of the treatment giving satisfaction, and left it to the purchaser to be the judge.

Later when Hyomei was used and recommended by our well-known physicians and business men and their wives as a treatment that absolutely cured catarrh no matter how serious or long standing, the sales rapidly grew and to-day there is no remedy in Mr. Madill's stock that has such a large and staple sale.

Try Hyomei to-day on Mr. Madill's offer to refund the money if the treatment does not give you satisfaction.

Local Runners Mentioned For Canadian Olympic Team

BURNS IS SUGGESTED

The Toronto Star, in referring to the personnel of the Canadian team for the Olympic games in England next year, after saying that Longboat, Caley, Tait and Adams are certainties, continues as follows:

There are four, now, who should certainly go, and knocking on the door with a great chance to make the team, if there is enough money to send a big team over for the Marathon race, should be:

W. B. Goldsboro of Central Y.M.C.A.

Hilton Green, Irish-Canadian Athletic Club.

Percy Sellen, Irish-Canadian Athletic Club.

Tom Shipmen, Gordon Harriers, Montreal.

Hans Hemer, Halifax Harriers.

Harry Petch, North End Athletic Club, Toronto.

Art Burns, Calgary, Alta.

Chandler, Vancouver, B.C.

Gordon Wells, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

That about lets out Canadian good distance men, and at that there are a couple there who might drop back to the five-mile distances. In fact, every one is a fair to good five-miler, and for the five-mile contingent we should give Ernie Wilson of Peterborough more than a passing thought. Cote of Montreal is in the same class as Wilson. He has won races, but neither has yet had a real try out. Brodie Galbraith of Central Y.M.C.A. seems to be a good man from two to five miles—don't obarlook him.

INTERMEDIATE O. H. A. TEAM FOR PETERBOROUGH THIS WINTER

Peterborough is to have an O.H.A. team this year after all, and will be represented in the intermediate series. This will be welcome news to the thousands of fans in this city who have been in despair over the thought of no senior hockey this winter. However, as some of the faithful, who have always been to the front in hockey matters, have sized up the situation and Secretary Graham has sent Peterborough's entry to Secretary Hewitt, of the O.H.A., and has been gladly received by the O.H.A. body, who are delighted to have Peterborough back into line again this season. It will be remembered that the club withdrew from the O.H.A. at the end of last winter after the dispute over the schedule in this district.

This year Peterborough will be grouped with Lindsay, Port Hope and Cobourg, in the intermediate series, and there is no reason why a good team, fast enough to take care cheap of these clubs could not be got together in this city. It is hoped that the City League will co-operate in the matter and will change the constitution of the League in such a way that the City League men who may be drafted will still be eligible to play in the City League. It is probable that the team will be made up for the greater part of City League players. If the City League would issue special permits for City League men, who may catch a place on the intermediate team, they would be doing a great deal for the game in this city.

The organization meeting will be held in a few days.

FRED M'GRATH MAY GO TO TORONTO

Has a Good Offer But Declines to Make Statement

In regard to a statement made in the Toronto News last night that Fred McGrath intended to move to Toronto in the near future to enter actively into the sports of the I.C.A.C., of which he is a member, when seen by the Examiner to-day was very non-committal, and declined to say anything about his intentions. He has received a good offer to go to Toronto to live, but as to whether he was going to accept it or not he was unwilling to stand anything of a definite nature to the press, at least for the present.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

The Emmetts, of the City League, had an offer to turn out with the Ottawas this winter as a practice team, but decided to continue as an independent club as in the past. The Ottawa Us will continue to practice with the seniors.

Emmetts will have a very strong line up this year. Billy Hague will be eligible to play and will occupy his old position in goal. Vince Brandstad will be point and Archie Atkinson, the old Primrose player, at cover. The line will be made up of Joe Dennison and Pete McIlravick on right and left wing respectively, Nick Ewart at centre, and Tommy Westwick, rover. Pete McIlravick had an offer to play with Pittsburg Pirates but prefers to remain in Ottawa.—Ottawa Free Press.

For the first time in years the well-known blue and white of Peterborough will not be seen in the O.H.A. this winter, and the famous old breeding place of hockey players will have to be content with a city league and memories of ancient battles in the days when the Armstrongs, Eddie Howell, Whiteroft, and other famous war horses were in the limelight.—Toronto News.

The record of Burns, the pugilist, is:—Born June 17, 1881, at Hanover, Ont.; height, 5 feet 7 inches, weight 175; Canadian.

Began ring career at Detroit, 1900. Since that time he won two fights in 1900, five in 1901, four in 1903, with his first loss to Mike Schreck in ten rounds; won nine and drew one in 1903, the latter with Billy Moore; won eight, drew six and lost two in 1904, the losses being to Jack O'Brien and "Twin" Sullivan.

In 1906 he captured the world's championship which Jeffries had turned over to Marvin Hart. The bout went twenty rounds at Los Angeles. Since then he beat Jim O'Brien, Jim Walker, Jim Flynn, drew with Jack O'Brien, beat Bill Squires, the Australian champion. He knocked out 57 men in his 65 fights.

Fred McGrath is confined to his home with a very sore ankle, as a result of the accident he met with on Tuesday night at the athletic meet. The tendons of his right foot are badly strained and it is expected that he will not be around for a week or ten days. He received the injury in the finish of the fifty yards dash.

Harold White, who played cover-point for the Strathcona last winter is reported as having been asked to turn out with the newly organized St. George's of Toronto.

At a meeting held last night in the Y.M.C.A. the Capital hockey team was organized with the following officers:

Hon. Pres.—Mr. Edwards.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mr. S. Crea.
Manager—S. Craig.
Capt.—Vernon Hayes.
Sec.-Treas.—Jas. O'Brien.
Executive Committee—Messrs. Minorgan, Giroux, Hickey.

The team will be as follows:
Goal—Hamilton Giroux.
Point—Harold Hickey.
Cover—Harry Leahy.
Centre—James O'Brien.
Rover—Vernon Hayes.
L. Wing—S. Healey.
R. Wing—G. Minorgan.

Bruce Ridpath, the canoe expert, who made such a hit in Germany with his marvellous stunts, may be home shortly. In a letter he inquires anxiously about the "pro." hockey situation in Canada, and remarks that his season in Germany may close at any time. Bruce got some great press notices in Berlin. One reads: "A water-acrobat in the strongest drawing card at the Circus Busch. Mr. Ridpath, a Canadian, bobbles around in his pitching canoe in the water of the manege of 4 m depth in such a way that one could desire him to teach all water sportsmen etc., this art. All accidents on the water would then be considerably decreased. But Mr. Ridpath's act is only one of the many changes which the Pantomime "Auf der Hallig" gives, and in quite a charming way. Hundreds of people wait at the closed box-office every night."

The members of the Peterborough rugby team brought back with them from Montreal not only a profound respect for the football prowess of the M.A.A.A. football team, but also a deep admiration for the Association itself and the players are agreed that such an Association could be formed in Peterborough with profit and success. The Montreal Association started in a small way but kept on enlarging until their membership at present is 3,500 and every branch of sport is represented. The Association has a magnificent club house on Peel street in which there are facilities for every kind of sport.

The Peterborough men who made the eastern trip are confident that a similar Association would be a great thing for athletics in Peterborough. A club house with dressing rooms, ect., could be erected as a starter and the club will gradually take in charge the various games just as the Montreal Association has done until all the important sports in the city will be under the government of the P.A.A.A. Secretary McDonough of the Rugby club brought back with him an elaborately illustrated book giving the history of the Montreal Association and he is one of the most ardent supporters of the scheme which is worth the consideration of the sport-loving citizens of Peterborough.

Company Gets Charter With Big Capital Stock

Fort William Secures Cohourn That Peterborough Was After—The Provisional Directors

WIDE POWERS ARE GIVEN

Examiner Special

Toronto, Dec. 5.—Fort William has succeeded in taking from Peterborough the car works, which it was at one time hoped the Electric City would secure. A charter, with Dominion privileges will be granted to Harry Ernest Bornadelle, John Herbert Ridpath, Joseph A. Mackay, Frank Harold Lewis and Wilfrid Bovey, all of Montreal, constituting those named, and such other persons as may afterwards acquire stock, the Fort William Car Company, limited, with a capital stock of $1,500,000, divided into fifteen thousand shares at $100 each. The works and chief place of business of the company will be at Fort William, Ont., where cart asteries giving employment to several hundred men will be erected in the near future.

Wide powers are given the company in the charter, and from the recital of the objects for which the company is incorporated it is evident that business one large scale will be carried on. Amalgamation with other similar concerns, on a profit-sharing basis, or the purchase outright of such concerns is among the powers granted in the charter. Wharves may also be built, and steamships constructed and operated.

The persons named are provisional directors.

AGENTS DO NOT MISLEAD EMIGRANTS

So Says President Roundup Owner, Andrew A. Allan

Toronto, December 4. — Mr. Andrew A. Allan, of the Allan Steamship Company, who is at the King Edward to-day, said that he did not believe that steamship booking agents were guilty of the misrepresentation charged against them by immigrants who arrived in Canada, and who were disappointed in not finding it a land of milk and honey, as they claim they were led to believe by the agents.

"None of our agents in the old country have used deceit or misrepresentation to induce people to come to Canada, as far as I am aware," he said. "If they had done so we probably would have had letters from disappointed immigrants, but we have never had any.

"I do not know of any misrepresentation on the part of any other steamship agents in Great Britain or Ireland. I cannot speak as well of agents on the continent.

"Our agents use only such advertising matter or literature as is sent out from the head office, and I do not think that they exaggerate things when speaking to the prospective immigrant about conditions in Canada.

"What do you think is the cause of the lay of misrepresentation?" was asked of Mr. Allan.

"I put it down to ignorance on the part of some of the immigrants themselves, and the inability of others to earn a decent living in this or any other country.

"I know from thousands of cases that have come under my observation that any man who has the right qualities of industry and perseverance can make a good living and prosper in Canada, though he may have practically nothing when he comes here."

WELL KNOWN MAN DIES IN YONKERS

Was Born in Sherbrooke, Que.—Lived Here for Ten Years

Word was received here to-day of the sad death of Mr. Miles Frostes, who died yesterday in Yonkers, N.Y. Mr. Frostes was well-known in Peterborough, having lived here for ten years.

The deceased was born in Sherbrooke, Que., and after leaving school went to Montreal and learned the cutting trade with his brother-in-law, Mr. Anderson, who is a leading tailor in that city. He was married in Montreal, and shortly afterwards moved to Peterborough to work for H. LeBrun and Company, in whose employe he remained for ten years. During this time his wife passed away and Mr. Frostes' health began to fail. He then moved to Yonkers, N.Y., seven years ago, for the improvement of his health, but it did not improve, and yesterday he passed away, leaving behind him two daughters, Marguerite and Louise.

The funeral will take place upon the arrival of the 5.38 G.T.R. train, and the remains will be taken to the Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

St. Paul's Third Pastor In Seventy-Three Years

Rev. Robt. Pogue Inducted to the Pastorate of St. Paul's Church by the Peterborough Presbytery A Large Attendance.

A VERY SOLEMN SERVICE

The induction of Rev. Robt. Pogue, late assistant of the Bethany Tabernacle, Philadelphia, as pastor of St. Paul's church was one of the most important events in religious circles in this city in some time. Especially does it mark an important epoch in the annals of St. Paul's church. Rev. Mr. Pogue comes to Peterborough highly recommended as an able preacher, an earnest worker and a zealous minister of the Gospel.

The church with its many improvements appeared fresh and bright to receive its new pastor. There was large attendance and all the people remained throughout the interesting ceremony.

The Third Pastor

Rev. Robert Pogue is the third pastor of the congregation of St. Paul's, which was established in 1834. The first pastor was the late Rev. J. M. Roger, father of Mr. G M Roger, and he occupied that relation for the long span of 43 years. He was succeeded by Rev. Dr. Torrance, who filled the pastorate for 31 years. According to precedent and the evident loyalty of St. Paul's to their pastors, the new minister, who seems to possess all the qualities that conduce to successful ministration, it his life is spared, is promised a long and happy pastorate.

Rev. Dr. Marsh interim moderator of the Presbytery presided and conducted the induction services. He outlined the steps that had been taken by the committee appointed by the Board of Management and the session to provide for supply ministers and the obtaining of a new pastor.

Induction Sermon

Rev. D. A. Thompson, of Hastings, in a forcible and striking manner delivered the induction sermon, basing his remarks on the words found in part of the 16th verse of the first chapter of St. Paul's epistle to the Romans, "For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ."

"St. Paul's great desire was to magnify man and he took great delight in preaching," said the speaker. He thought it a great necessity and considered it was his debt to man to give them the Gospel. The Apostle had to face many difficulties. Jesus Christ, the author of the Gospel was not received by His own people. The first teachers of it were humble fishermen. The Gospel was also at variance with the Jewish teachings. Notwithstanding these obstacles, St. Paul goes to Rome. He knows that he has a superior message to Roman religious systems. It was of divine origin and it was a glorious story of salvation. Humanity was designed for happiness, the speaker said, and he believed that it was only obtainable through the Gospel which removed all sin. Religion elevates man and it is the power of God.

The reverend gentleman referred to two evidences of the force of religion, was manifested by the fact that men forsake evil and live righteous lives. Looking around us, we see monuments of Christianity in our hospitals, Homes and other charitable institutions.

The Gospel is within the reach of everyone, said, the reverend gentleman. It is the gift of God, and is nothing to be ashamed of. It is the story of salvation that your minister will preach to you, said Mr. Thompson and from Philadelphia comes the report that he is an evangelist and his past work has been productive of much good. The speaker concluded by hoping that the same co-operation would be given the new minister as has been accorded him heretofore.

Pastor Received

Rev. Dr. Marsh then conducted the regular induction services, finishing with extending the right hand of fellowship to Rev. Mr. Pogue and the other members of the Presbytery did likewise.

Sermon to Minister

Rev. Wm. Johnston preached the sermon to the minister. He said that he appreciated the honour the Presbytery had conferred upon him and he had accepted the duty because of this long friendship with Rev. Mr. Pogue.

In his early remarks he stated he would not give a lecture but would merely converse with Rev. Mr. Pogue as to what should be his position and his duty towards his new congregation. He said the people of St. Paul's church expected great things of Mr. Pogue. We can only expect success, he said, when we follow in the footsteps of Jesus. Men who have been successful had ability but were also tender and compassionate, ready to stoop to the relief of the lowliest manners.

Rev. Mr. Johnston said that Rev. Pogue would have to study a great deal to accomplish much for God. He urged him to be honest and earnest and to carefully look to the spiritual welfare of the people who come under his charge.

On behalf of the Presbytery he wished him every success and was confident that God would see fit to bless his efforts in his new fold.

Address to People

Rev. Dr. Tulling had been appointed to the duty of delivering the address to the people and thereby spoke for the last time to the congregation over which he has had charge for some months. His remarks were of a very practical nature and could be taken to heart by every member of the congregation. He introduced his address by stating that the responsibilities of the new pastor were not entirely separate from those of the people. "He was brought here to help bear your burdens," said Dr. Tulling and the people should give him every assistance.

Rev. Dr. Tulling thanked the Presbytery for the honour they had conferred upon him by inviting him to assist in the induction ceremonies and especially to deliver the address to the people.

His first advice was not to expect too much of the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Pogue. "Do not expect him to recognize you all in a few weeks," he continued, and stated that such pettishness should never be allowed to enter the minds of the people. He asked them to give the pastor every assistance in performing his pastorial duties, and not to expect him to know by intuition where there was illness in the parish, but to kindly tell him, as it is impossible that he should know everything that is taking place. By many other references Rev. Dr. Tulling emphasized his statement that the congregation must not expect too much of their new pastor.

His two other statements were, first, "Do not cripple the pastors work by unguarded criticisms" and, second, "co-operate with him for the advancement of the cause which you you have in common with him. In regard to the first Rev. Dr. Tulling remarked that the people cannot be too careful and unfounded criticisms frequently do great harm. If the interest of the pastor is injured in this way, the interests of the church suffer to a corresponding extent. The people he said should encourage the minister by regular attendance at church and at prayer meeting. "Prayer is power," he said, and the more earnest the prayers the greater the power of the church. His concluding words were "May the Lord crown you and your new pastor with an abundance of success."

Rev. Mr. Pogue pronounced the benediction and is now the regular pastor of St. Paul's church.

PROTECTION FROM IMPURE FOODS

Retail Merchants of Quebec and Ontario Pass Resolutions—Some Legislation Endorsed

NO SPECIAL PRIVILEGES

Examiner Special

Montreal, Dec. 6.—At a meeting of the Quebec and Ontario members of the Retail Merchants' Association yesterday a resolution was passed urging the Dominion Government to enact and enforce a rigourous law to protect the public from impure and harmful foods and drugs, and to punish those guilty of putting such on the market.

The association will take every means to prevent co-operative societies being granted special privileges.

Other resolution were passed in favour of the following principles: That the Railway Commission see that the railways charge exact weight on freight bills; that the present tariff on British packings and wrappings be removed; that railways be changed demurrage when they detain cars of coal from dealers; that information concerning extent and importance of retail trade be forwarded to the Federal Trade and Commerce Department; that efforts to keep the trade of local branches in their own locality be authorized; that the Dominion Government's purpose to readjust civil employees' salaries be viewed with pleasure; that growth of the principle of government control of natural forces and commodities be appreciated, and that this principle should also be applied to mines and water powers; that co-operative efforts to enforce the local fruit marks be endorsed, and that the act relating to inspection of canned goods should also regulate goods offered for home consumption.

WEDDING BELLS.

EAST-THOMPSON

A very pretty house wedding was celebrated at 7.30 o'clock last evening when Mr. George W. East of London, England, and Miss Marguerite Thompson Main were united in marriage by Rev. A. H. Brace of the Park street Baptist church in the presence of several guests at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Wm. Main, 49 Sophia street.

The room in which the ceremony took place was prettily decorated with ferns and flowers. The bride wore a white silk dress and carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid was Miss Hazel Edgar, who wore a white silk dress and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Mr Ernest Thurston supported the groom.

After the ceremony a sumptuous supper was served, after which the company enjoyed themselves with games and amusements until the wee hours of the morning.

LEARN TO EAT

Few People in Peterborough Really Know How

Slow eating will solve one half the problems of ill-health. Those who suffer already with indigestion and weak stomach can, with care and the use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, restore their stomach to a healthy condition so that they can eat what they want at any time without fear of distress or suffering.

After a few days' use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, the headache, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, distress after eating—all these symptoms of a weak stomach—will disappear, and perfect digestion and a good skin will show that the vital machinery is once more running smoothly.

Take a little Mi-o-na Tablet before each meal so that it will stimulate the digestive juices and give strength to the stomach, and then it will take care of the food that is eaten, without indigestion, and the unpleasant full feeling which so many suffer after meals.

Mr Madill has so much confidence in the powers of Mi-o-na to cure indigestion and all stomach ills, that he gives a guarantee with every 50 cent box to refund the money if the remedy fails to give satisfaction.

THE INTERCOLONIAL OFFICIALS PLEASED

Fast Time Made in Service From Liverpool via Halifax

(St. John Sun, Nov. 28, 1907.)

Montreal, Nov. 28.—The Intercolonial freight officials are greatly pleased at the results which have been attained as a result of their efforts to ensure the fastest possible service between Liverpool and Montreal via Halifax. That freight should be delivered in the city within twelve days after leaving Liverpool is certainly a record of which both the shipping and railway men should be proud.

The Allan Line steamer Tunisian left Liverpool on her first winter trip on Thursday evening, November 14, arriving at Halifax on Friday, 22nd. She landed a large lot of freight at that port, seventeen cars of which were delivered to the Intercolonial for Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Brockville, Kingston, Toronto, London and points further west. These cars were sent out on a special fast freight which left Halifax on Saturday, 23rd, and arrived in Montreal on Monday morning, the 25th, at 10 o'clock, only forty-eight hours from Halifax. From the time this freight was put on board the Tunisian at Liverpool until it was delivered at Montreal it took less than twelve days, a remarkably quick dispatch, both on the part of the Tunisian and the I. C. Railway. It is the claim of the Intercolonial officials that import freight can be handled by the Halifax route and delivered as promptly as by any other route, either through Canada or the United States. And they point to this latest record as proof that the Intercolonial is as efficient in freight carrying as in catering to passenger business.

which shows that skin diseases heretofore considered hopeless can be cured.

Since childhood, Leo Corrigan had been tortured with the burning agony and itching of Eczema. His parents had spent a great deal of money in consulting physicians and buying medicines—but all to no purpose.

As he grew older he sought other doctors—some of them specialists. He was eleven weeks in a Toronto hospital—eight weeks in bed. At times the irritation and pain caused by the Eczema were so severe, life was a burden. He would get so bad he could not walk. Several winters he could do no work.

He wrote, on February 20, 1906:

"In November, 1905, I had another attack, and was advised to use Mira Ointment. (I thought this would be like the other remedies I had tried, and of no use to me). But, to my great delight, a few hours after the first application, I felt great relief.

I have used it, now, two and a-half months, and unhesitatingly state that it is the best remedy I ever used. It has worked wonders for me. Since using Mira Ointment I have been able to work every day—without irritation or pain—no stiffness of the limbs or soreness. I feel a new person.

"From a state of great irritation and sometimes excruciating pains to freedom from all such, being capable of doing hard work every day, is a marvelous change. Mira Ointment has effected it.

"I strongly recommend any person afflicted with this terrible complaint—Eczema—to use Mira Ointment."

What this wonderfully effective Ointment has done in this extreme chronic case, it can do in other seemingly incurable conditions. If you suffer from any form of skin-disease, don't delay. Certain relief and cure is waiting you in Mira Ointment. Get a box to-day. 50c. —6 for $2.50. At drug-stores—or from The Chemists' Co. of Canada, Ltd., Hamilton—Toronto. 15

A Rock In the Baltic

By ROBERT BARR,

Author of

"The Triumphs of Eugene Valmont," "Tekla," "In the Midst of Alarms," "Speculations of John Steele," "The Victors," Etc.

The captain raised his right hand and waved it, but made no attempt to cover the distance with his voice. Jack ran pellmell down the steps, and Drummond followed in more leisurely fashion. The boat swung around to the landing, and Captain Kempt cried cordially:

"Hello, prince! How are you? And that's Lieutenant Drummond, isn't it? Last time I had the pleasure of seeing you, Drummond, was that night of the ball."

"Yes," said Drummond. "I was very glad to see you then, but a hundred times happier to see you today."

"I was just cruising around these waters in my yacht, and I thought I'd take a look at this rock you tried to obliterate. I don't see any perceptible damage done, but what can you expect from British marksmanship?"

"I struck the rock on the other side, captain. I think your remark is unkind, especially as I've just been praising the watermanship of your men."

"Now, are you boys tired of this summer resort?" asked Captain Kempt. "Is your baggage checked, and are you ready to go? Most seaside places are deserted this time of year."

"We'll be ready in a moment, captain," cried his future son-in-law. "I must run up and get the governor. We've put a number of men in prison here, and they'll starve if not released. The governor's a good old chap, though he played it low down on me a few days ago," and with that Jack disappeared up the stairway once more.

"Had a jail delivery here?" asked the captain.

"Well, something by way of that. The prince drilled a hole in the rock, and we got out. We've put the garrison in pawn, so to speak, but I've been mighty anxious these last few days because the sailboat they had here and two of the garrison escaped to the mainland with the news. We were anxiously watching your yacht, fearing it was Russian. Jack thought it was the czar's yacht. How came you by such a craft, captain? Splendid looking boat that."

"Oh, yes, I bought her a few days before I left New York. One likes to travel comfortably, you know. Very well fitted up she is."

Jack shouted from the doorway:

"Drummond, come up here and fling overboard these loaded rifles. We can't take any more chances. I'm going to lock up the ammunition room and take the key with me as a souvenir."

"Excuse me, captain," said Drummond, who followed his friend, and presently bundles of rifles came clattering down the side of the precipice, plunging into the sea. The two then descended the steps, Jack in front, Drummond following, with the governor between them.

"Now, governor," said Jack, "for the second time I am to bid you farewell. Here are the keys. If you accept them, you must give me your word of honor that the boat will not be fired upon. If you do not promise that, I'll drop the bunch into the sea, and on your gray head be the consequences."

"I give you my word of honor that you shall not be fired upon."

"Very well, governor. Here are the keys, and goodby."

In the flurry of excitement over the yacht's appearance both Jack and Drummond had temporarily forgotten the existence of the tramp steamer the former had seen beating toward the rock.

Now Lamont suddenly recalled it.

"By the way, governor," he said, "the relief boat you so thoughtfully sent for is on her way here. She should reach the rock at almost any minute now. In fact, I fancy we've little time to waste if we want to avoid a brush. It would be a pity to be nabbed now at the eleventh hour. Goodby once more."

But the governor had stepped between him and the boat.

"I—I am an old man," he said, speaking with manifest embarrassment. "I was sent to take charge of this prison as punishment for refusing to join a Jew massacre plot. Governorship here means no more or less than a life imprisonment. My wife and children are on a little estate of mine in Sweden. It is twelve years since I have seen them. I"—

"If this story is a ruse to detain us"—

"No! No!" protested the governor, and there was no mistaking his pathetic, eager sincerity. "But—but I shall be shot or locked in one of the cells and the water turned on for letting you escape. Won't you take me with you? I will work my passage. Take me as far as Stockholm. I shall be free there—free to join my wife and to live forever out of reach of the grand dukes. Take me"—

"Jump in!" ordered Jack, coming to a sudden resolution. "Heaven knows I would not condemn my worst enemy to a perpetual life on this rock. And you've been pretty decent to us, according to your lights. Jump aboard, we've no time to waste."

Nor did the governor waste time in obeying. The others followed, and the boat shoved off. But scarcely had the oars caught the water when around the promontory came a large man-o'-war's launch, a rapid fire gun mounted on her bows. She was manned by about twenty men in Russian police uniform.

"From the 'tramp'," commented Alan excitedly. "And her gun is trained on us."

"Get down to work!" shouted Jack to the straining oarsmen.

"No use!" groaned Kempt. "She'll cross within a hundred yards of us.

"Won't you take me with you?"

There's no missing at such close range and on such a quiet sea. What a fool I was to"—

The launch was indeed bearing down on them despite the rowers' best efforts and most unquestionably cut them off before they could reach the yacht.

The launch was now within hailing distance, and every man aboard her was glaring at the helpless little yacht pig.

"Wait!"

It was the governor who spoke.

Rising from his seat in the stern, he hailed the officer who was sighting the rapid fire gun.

"Lieutenant Tcherasky!" he called.

At sight of the old man's lean, uniformed figure rising from among the rest there was visible excitement and surprise aboard the launch. The officer saluted and ordered the engine stopped that he might hear more plainly.

"Lieutenant," repeated the governor, "I am summoned aboard his highness the Grand Duke Vladimir's yacht. You will proceed to the harbor and await my return to the rock. There has been a mutiny among the garrison, but I have quelled it."

The officer saluted again, gave an order, and the launch's nose pointed for the rock.

"Governor," observed Lamont as the old man sank again into his seat, "you've earned your passage to Stockholm. You need not work for it."

CHAPTER XXI.

THE girls on the yacht had no expectation that Captain Kempt would come back with the two young men, but when through their powerful binoculars the girls became aware that Drummond and the prince were in the small boat they both fled to the chief saloon and sat there holding one another's hands. Even the exuberant Kate for once had nothing to say. She heard the voice of her father on deck, giving command to the mate.

"Make for Stockholm, Johnson. Take my men-o'-war's men—see that no one else touches the ammunition—and fling the shells overboard. Heave the gun after them and then clear out the rifles and ammunition the same way. When we reach Stockholm tomorrow morning there must not be a gun on board this ship, and the ridiculous rumor that got abroad among your men that we were going to attack something or other you will see is entirely unfounded. You impress that on them, Johnson."

"I tell you what it is, captain," sounded the confident voice of the prince. "This vessel is a beauty. You have done yourself fine. I had no idea you were such a sybarite. Why, I've been aboard the czar's yacht, and I tell you it's nothing— Great heavens, Katherine!" he shouted in a voice that made the ceiling ring.

She was now standing up and advanced toward him with both hands held out, a welcoming smile on her pretty lips, but he swooped down on her, flung his arms round her like a cabman beating warmth into his hands, kissed her on the brow, the two cheeks and the lips, swaying her back and forward as if about to fling her upstairs.

"Stop, stop!" she cried. "Aren't you ashamed of yourself? Before my father too! You great Russian bear!"

"Don't bother about me, Kate," said her father. "That's nothing to the way we acted when I was young. Come on, boys, to the smoking room, and I'll mix you something good—real Kentucky, twenty-seven years in barrel—and I've got all the other materials for a Manhattan."

"Jack, I am glad to see you," panted Katherine, all in disarray, which she endeavored to set right by an agitated touch here and there. "Now, Jack, I'm going to take you to the smoking room, but you'll have to behave yourself as you walk along the deck. I won't be made a spectacle of before the crew."

"Come along, Drummond," said the captain, "and bring Miss Dorothy with you."

But Drummond stood in front of Dorothy Amhurst and held out his hand.

"You haven't forgotten me, Miss Amhurst, I hope?"

"Oh, no," she replied, with a very faint smile, taking his hand.

"It seems incredible that you are here," he began. "What a lucky man I am. Captain Kempt takes his yacht to rescue his son-in-law that is to be and incidentally rescues me as well, and then to find you here! I suppose you came because your friend Miss Kempt was aboard?"

"Yes, we are all but inseparable."

"I wrote you a letter, Miss Amhurst, the last night I was in St. Petersburg in the summer."

"Yes, I received it."

"No, not this one. It was the night I was captured, and I never got a chance to post it. It was an important letter—for me."

"I thought it important—for me," replied Dorothy, now smiling quite openly. "The nihilists got it, searching your room after you had been arrested. It was sent on to New York and given to me."

"Is that possible? How did they know it was for you?"

"I had been making inquiries through the nihilists."

"I wrote you a proposal of marriage, Dorothy."

"It certainly read like it; but, you see, it wasn't signed, and you can't be held to it."

He reached across the table and grasped her two hands.

"Dorothy, Dorothy," he cried, "do you mean you would have cabled 'Yes?'"

"No."

"You would not?"

"Of course not. I should have cabled 'Undecided.' One gets more for one's money in sending a long word. Then I should have written"— she paused, and he cried eagerly:

"What?"

"What do you think?" she asked.

"Well, do you know, Dorothy, I am beginning to think my incredible luck will hold and that you'd have written 'Yes.'"

"I don't know about the luck. That would have been the answer."

He sprang up, bent over her, and she quite unaffectedly raised her face to his.

"Oh, Dorothy!" he cried.

"Oh, Alan," she replied, with quivering voice, "I never thought to see you again! You cannot imagine the long agony of this voyage and not knowing what had happened."

"It's a blessing, Dorothy, you had learned nothing about the Trogzmondoff."

"Ah, but I did. That's what frightened me. We have a man on board who was flung for dead from that dreadful rock. The Baltic saved him; his mother, he calls it."

Drummond picked her up in his arms and carried her to the luxurious divan

"Do you mean you would have cabled 'Yes?'" which ran along the side of the large room. There they sat down together, out of sight of the stairway.

"Did you get all of my letters?"

"I think so."

"You know I am a poor man?"

"I know you said so."

"Don't you consider my position poverty? I thought every one over there had a contempt for an income that didn't run into tens of thousands."

"I told you, Alan, I had been unused to money, and so your income appears to me quite sufficient."

"Then you are not afraid to trust in my future?"

"Not the least. I believe in God."

"Oh, you dear girl! If you knew how sweet that sounds! Then I may tell you. When I was in London last I ran down to Dartmouth, in Devonshire. I shall be stationed there. You see, I have finished my foreign cruising, and Dartmouth is, for a time at least, to be my home. There's a fine harbor there, green hills and a beautiful river running between them, and I found such a lovely old house—not grand at all, you know, but so cosy and comfortable, standing on the heights overlooking the harbor in an old garden filled with roses, shrubs and every kind of flower; vines clambering about the ancient house. Two servants would keep it going like a shot. Dorothy, what do you say?"

Dorothy laughed quietly and wholeheartedly.

"It reads like a bit from an old English romance. I'd just love to see such a house."

"You don't care for this sort of thing, do you?" he asked, glancing round about him.

"What sort of thing?"

"This yacht, these silk panelings, these gorgeous pictures, the carving, the gilt, the horribly expensive carpet."

"You mean should I feel it necessary to be surrounded by such luxury?" I answer most emphatically, no. I like your ivy covered house at Dartmouth much better."

For a moment neither said anything. Lips cannot speak when pressed together.

"Now, Dorothy, I want you to elope with me. We will be in Stockholm long before daylight tomorrow at the rate this boat is going. I'll get ashore as soon as practicable and make all inquiries at the consulate about being married. I don't know what the regulations are, but if it is possible to be married quietly, say in the afternoon, will you consent to that and then write a letter to Captain Kempt thanking him for the trip on the yacht, and I'll write thanking him for all he has done for me, and after that we'll make for England together. I've got a letter of credit in my pocket which luckily the Russians did not take from me. I shall find all the money we need at Stockholm, then we'll cross the Swedish country, sail to Denmark, make our way through Germany to Paris, if you like, or to London. We shan't travel all the time, but just take nice little day trips, stopping at some quaint old town every afternoon and evening."

"You mean to let Captain Kempt, Katherine and the prince go to America alone?"

"Of course. Why not? They don't want us, and I'm quite sure we—well, Dorothy, we'd be delighted to have them, to be sure—but still I've knocked a good deal about Europe, and there are some delightful old towns I'd like to show you, and I hate traveling with a party."

"Yes, I'll do that," she said at last. And they did.

THE END.

Fooled the Doctors and Got Well

GIN PILLS CURE RHEUMATISM

They certainly were a surprised lot of doctors out Tyneside way. They had been treating Mrs. Harris for years. Gave her about everything that was ever heard of for Rheumatism—and then told her the disease was chronic.

A friend told Mrs. Harris about GIN PILLS. Just to oblige her friend, Mrs. Harris took a box. When that was gone, she dismissed the doctors and bought another box of GIN PILLS. By the time these were gone, she was so much better that she bought the third box and laughed every time she saw a doctor.

Tyneside P. O., Aug. 5, 1907.

I received your sample box of Gin Pills, but as there was only enough for a trial I got a box from our druggist, and now I am taking the third box. The pain across my back and kidneys has almost entirely gone, and I am better than I have been for years. I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism, but it has all left me. MRS. T. HARRIS.

The doctors can't explain it. They don't try to. They said Mrs. Harris could not be cured. GIN PILLS cured her. Proof beats explanation all to pieces. Do YOU want proof? Write, mentioning this paper, for a free sample of Gin Pills and try them yourself. Then you will see what Gin Pills will do for YOU. Write now to the Bole Drug Co., Winnipeg, for a free sample.

Sold by dealers everywhere. 50c a box—6 for $2.50. 50

Custard.

Concerning custard, or "custad," as it was formerly called, it was a common joke at civic feasts in the olden time to place an enormous custard in the middle of the table, into which at some stage of the proceedings the clown unexpectedly jumped. Ben Jonson uses the term "custard leap jack" of one who "in tail of a sheriff's dinner" took "his almain leap into a custard" to "make my lady mayoress and her sisters laugh all their hoods over their shoulders."—Blackwood's Magazine.

Voting Terms.

"Ballot," as generally used, has wandered far from its original meaning of "little ball." Even "blackballing" is no longer necessarily literal. Language has several fossil relics of primitive methods of voting. Most famous is "ostracism," which perpetuates the memory of the "ostrakon," the potsherd or shell upon which the Athenian citizen voted for the banishment of a too prominent personage. Another instance is "spondulicks," the slang word for money. A "spondulos," properly a vertebra of the spine, came to mean any round thing and in particular the voting pebble or its metal equivalent.

A Wife in Bondage.

He is that rare and greatly to be admired person, a real live duke, and he holds sway over many workers. To give him his due, he is a good master, and for the most part his kindness is greatly appreciated by his retainers.

But Bob Willet is a laborer with democratic proclivities and marked distaste for work, and recently his ducal master determined that the one thing to do with Bob was to dismiss him, whereupon he did so, and Bob came to the conclusion that the time had now arrived when the pride of the peerage should be humbled. The difficulty was to think of something sufficiently biting, for the duke was a good master, as has been remarked. Then an inspiration flashed on Bob. The duke's duchess had been appointed a lady in waiting to the queen, and this was Bob's opportunity.

"All right, yer grace," he said, "I'll go, but I'll take heart to say this: Though I'm a poor man I've never had to send my missus out to service, and that's more'n some people can say."—London Chronicle.

CHUMS WITH THE KING

KING EDWARD'S TRAINER HAS A FINE ESTABLISHMENT.

His Majesty at the Races — Where the King's Horses Are Prepared For Their Successes—Many Valuable Prizes Secured by the Royal Stable — Souvenir of Coxcomb's Victory at Doncaster.

King Edward can boast of quite a number of successes on the turf this year, the most recent of these having been gained with his horse, Coxcomb, which won the much prized Welter handicap at Doncaster from a strong field. The result of this race, which the King witnessed, is known to have pleased His Majesty greatly, and a day or two afterward he sent for his trainer, Richard Marsh, and congratulated him warmly on the satisfactory showing made by the royal stables.

"It is no use giving you any more pins," said the King, and, placing a small package in the trainer's hand, he added, "therefore I ask you to accept this as a little souvenir for your wife." The "little souvenir" was a handsome enameled brooch, studded with diamonds, and representing a racehorse at full gallop with a jockey wearing the royal colors.

Not only is Marsh the trainer of the King's horses but, since the silken jacket of purple and gold flashed first past the post in all the most important races of the first year of this century, he has been known in England as the "King of Horse Trainers." For purple and gold are the royal racing colors, and Diamond Jubilee, the greatest winner among racehorses in any one year, was trained for King Edward VII. by Marsh.

"Dick" Marsh the great trainer is familiarly called. He owns the most palatial training establishment in the world. Over it—Egerton House, Newmarket—blaze the royal arms. There

Egerton House is an expensive establishment. There is a small army of employes, from stable boys to typewriters, in the office. The training quarters make up a small village, with its own shops, and school, and chapel, which has a surpliced choir of stable lads. There are long lines of model stables and inclosures where are quartered troops of thoroughbreds from unraced 2-year-olds to veterans. And there is also a model farm with many prize cattle and a stud farm.

The King's trainer looks the typical British gentleman farmer or breeder. He is a big, robust man of 55, weighing close on 200 pounds, clean shaven, and always faultlessly dressed. He has a cheery manner, a hearty hand grasp, and is one of the most popular men on the British turf. He is treated as a friend rather than as an employe by the King and the many othed noble and wealthy patrons of racing His is a familiar figure at the big races, and he always has a place in the royal inclosure and at the royal luncheon table.

That Marsh has a peculiar aptitude for pleasing his patrons is shown by a little trick he turned last summer. The King had bred a slashing filly at Sandringham, she was the favorite of the royal princesses, and was christened by Princess Victoria after herself. Victoria was entered in an important stake at Sandown on May 31. When Marsh found out that also was to be the wedding day of the Queen of Spain, he devoted the most particular pains to getting the filly Victoria in shape. She won the race in a canter, the first race of the season for the King, and at the hour that his niece became Queen Victoria of Spain. The victory, being such a happy augury, pleased the royal family immensely, and also the public.

Horses trained by Marsh have time and time again captured practically all the important races in different seasons, but it was not until 1896 that he won the blue ribbon of the turf, the Derby. This also was the first Derby that the King won, and so it was doubly a triumph. Marsh had first scored that year for the King with the filly Thais in the One Thousand Guineas. Persimmon, his candidate for the Derby, had previously been beaten by Leopold de Rothschild's St. Frusquin, and there was the greatest rivalry between the two horses. St. Frusquin was the favorite, and Persimmon second in favor. The King's horse was the bigger, and Marsh declared his longer stride in the long race would mean his victory. He was right, for, though St. Frusquin led all the way to the stretch. Persimmon's longer stride wore him down, and in a tremendous finish the King's horse won by a short neck. The scene that ensued was one of unparalleled excitement. The King himself led the winner through the cheering crowd to the paddock. Persimmon later won the St. Leger and the Gold Cup at Ascot, among the big events, for his royal owner.

NEW TERRITORIAL ARMY.

King Edward Appeals to Lords Lieutenant For New Scheme.

A truly memorable scene was recently enacted at Buckingham Palace, where His Majesty received the Lords Lieutenant of England, Scotland and Wales to make an appeal—an appeal which is a command!—with regard to the New Territorial Army Scheme. With the main features of that scheme our readers are familiar. It makes Lords Lieutenant and county associations responsible for the upkeep and administration of volunteers and yeomanry. And His Majesty's speech was intended to inaugurate, in the most ceremonious manner, their assumption of their new responsibilities —responsibilities which belonged to their predecessors in office in other days belonging to no very remote period in our history. The King's speech was, indeed, not only a patriotic call to his lieutenants to do their duty, but was, moreover, an appeal to all his loyal subjects to aid his deputies in fulfilling their obligation to the crown. The Lords Lieutenant, who were in uniform, were marshalled in one of the palace state rooms, the King's marshal men being on duty to lend due pageantry to the occasion. At one o'clock precisely the King entered, accompanied by a brilliantly-uniformed circle of gentlemen. His Majesty wore field marshal's uniform, as did the Duke of Connaught, and in attendance upon the sovereign was Mr. Haldane, Minister of War.

Formal presentations having been made, the King said:

My Lords and Gentlemen,—I have summoned you, the Lieutenants of England, Scotland and Wales, to acquaint you with the new duties and responsibilities which will now devolve upon you. I gave my consent by a statute on the second of August for the formation of a new Territorial Army, and the success which will, I trust, result will depend mainly upon your efforts. Henceforth my yeomanry and my volunteers are to form that territorial army, over the destinies of which you and your county associations are to watch. To you are now delegated the duties of raising, equipping, and maintaining that portion of this force—the Imperial army of the second line—which now lies within the shores of this kingdom. The command and training of this force will be entrusted to the generals in command and to the generals and other officers serving under them, so that the force may enjoy in the fullest degree, in common with the regular army, those advantages which accrue from being instructed in the highest and most developed school of military thought. It is further intended that the territorial army shall receive that complete military organization, without which no army is competent to take the field. To accomplish this, much will have to be done. Changes will have to be made in some corps which at present exist, and other corps which do not yet exist will have to be created. In this performance of this difficult task I have instructed the military authorities to render all the help that it is in their power to give. But the ultimate success must depend upon the good-will and public spirit of my loyal subjects, inspired and guided by you and your county associations. Your duties will not be confined to raising in your respective counties the forces which the military authorities may require of you under the scheme which will hereafter be communicated to your associations. You will be required to hand over these forces to the military authorities in a fit condition to take the field, whether for training or for war. It will also rest with you to provide and maintain rifle ranges, drill halls, and such accommodation as is necessary for the safe custody of arms and equipment. Funds will be placed at your disposal by the Army Council for these and similar purposes. I look to you, my lords and gentlemen, through the instrumentality of your associations, to protect the interests of reservists and old soldiers who have worthily served their country in all parts of the world; and I ask you to enlist the sympathies of the owners and cultivators of the soil to facilitate the provision of areas for the training of my troops. My lords and gentlemen, the important duties and responsibilities which were formerly yours are being restored to you, and when you return home to undertake this great and honorable task, I look to you to foster and direct by your precept and example the spirit of patriotism and voluntary effort which has for so long distinguished my loyal subjects. I hope that you will call to your aid all men who have at heart the interests of their country, and that a generous emulation will stimulate the efforts which you will make in your several counties. I have called you here to-day in order to express to you my confidence that you will employ your best endeavors to carry out the work with which you are entrusted. I have faith that the united effort of my people will enable you to achieve success.

The Duke of Norfolk, speaking on behalf of the Lords Lieutenant, returned thanks to the King for His Majesty's speech to them, and promised that they would do their utmost to carry out the scheme. The speechmaking over, the entire company proceeded to the state dining room, where His Majesty entertained his guests at luncheon. The meal was served at half a dozen large round tables, all of which were tastefully decorated with flowers, and His Majesty and all the members of his suite lunched with the guests, who, exclusive of the members of the court, numbered about 80. Some of the Lords Lieutenant were unable to obey His Majesty's summons.

New to Stirrups.

An eight-year-old, who has spent all his short life in the city and numbered roller skates, tricycles and toy autos among his accustomed playthings, passed a Sunday on a farm a short distance away. During the afternoon a small saddle was hunted up and one of the horses pressed into service. The boy was enjoying his first horseback ride, and after he had been walked up and down the barnyard a few times he asked his father, who was leading the horse, to make him run a bit. The father complied. Suddenly the boy called out:

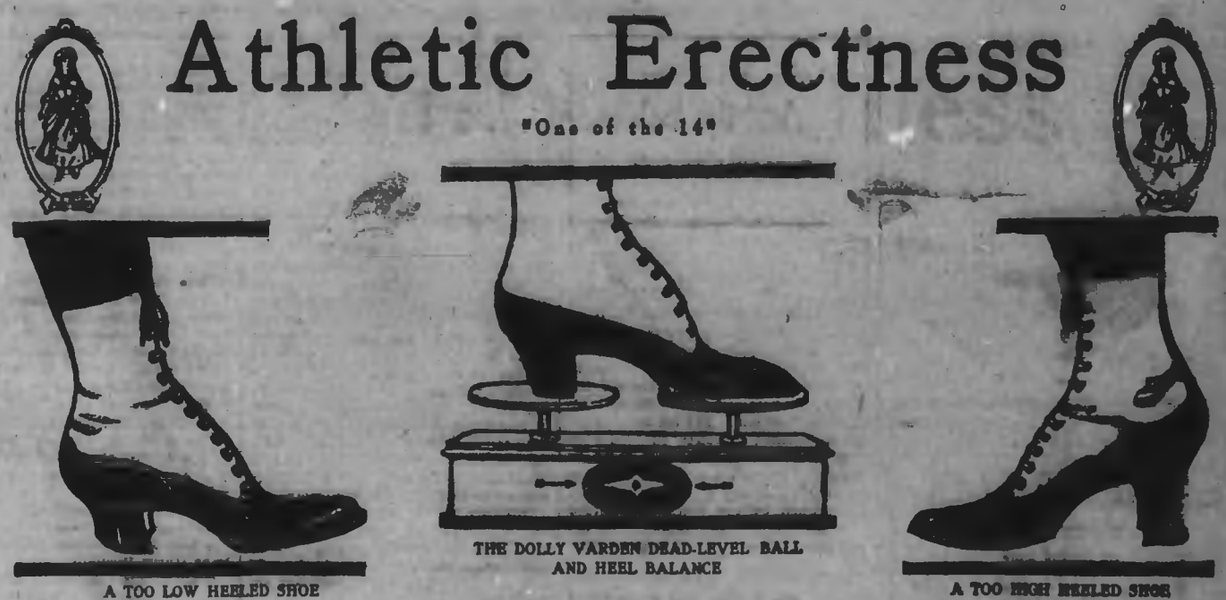
Athletic Erectness

"One of the 14"



A TOO LOW HEELED SHOE

THE DOLLY VARDEN DEAD-LEVEL BALL AND HEEL BALANCE

A TOO HIGH HEELED SHOE

If you build a house with the foundation higher in the back than in the front, the house will lean forward. If the base is lower in the back, the house will lean backward.

Shoes are the foundation of a woman's poise. If the heels are too high, she'll stoop forward. If too low, she'll incline to the back. In either case the poise is unpleasing.

Of course to build a shoe which will give the body an erect poise is the thing, but a mighty hard thing to do, because the natural ball of the foot is lower than the natural heel. That's why the market is crowded with too high or too low heel shoes.

But after years of scientific experiment with thousands of feminine feet we have solved this difficulty.

We have balanced the heel and ball of the Dolly Varden Shoe to such delicate nicety that it actually gives the poise a foundation as level as a chemist's scales, and unless the wearer is already stooped by wearing the too high or too low heel foundation, or by the weight of many winters, she can with Dolly Varden assistance and a little effort, acquire enviable athletic erectness.

BRANT CELEBRATION.

November 24, as near as can be learned, will be the centenary of the death of the most powerful and noted of Indian chiefs.

The history of Canada and that of Great Britain's colonies as they were constituted in the earlier and troublesome times is replete with an account of the part the Indians played. As a people they were identified with struggles which were for or against the prestige of the British crown. With them, as it is with all other nations of the world, war in all its horrors, destruction and waste provided that stepping stone to fame for men who participated in it and who succeeded by heroic conduct or leadership in winning distinction as soldiers. Even in the wars of one Indian nation against another valorious conduct found its reward by elevation to places in the councils of the nation.

In the pages of history are to be found the names of Indian patriots who were foremost as leaders, who led their people in war in defence of their principles or in defence of a government and people they chose to protect by their fealty and allegiance. Among the most warlike tribes of America in the seventeenth century were the Mohawks of the Iroquois.

Thayendanaga, or Joseph Brant, his Anglicized name, was a full-blooded Mohawk warrior, who came into prominence when differences between the king and his colonists became acute in 1776. Possessing exceptional educational qualifications he soon forged into prominence as the leader of a very large proportion of the Five Nations, who followed him in arms in the cause of his king and of England. During that war and up to the cessation of hostilities, he was closely identified with the commander of the forces, Gen. Johnson. They became close friends. Displaying marked ability in the field as a leader of the Iroquois, he rose to the rank of captain. Bound by ties of affection and long association with the English he became an ardent loyalist. It can be said of him that he was a cool, sagacious and able warrior, and a loyal and patriotic ally of the government with which he and his followers identified themselves. The extreme clannishness of his Indian nature has suggested charges against him of ferocity. What has been judged his treachery was in reality his barbaric faith in kinship and allegiance, which could not be eradicated from his nature. This is in marked contrast with the Indian knowledge of him which is handed down to generations that during the war he was known to give timely warning to the defenceless enemies to flee for their lives.

Brant at this time was looked upon by his followers as their king. They were prepared to go with him wherever he went. The unswerving confidence reposed in him was pure and lasting. As a proof of this, when, after peace had been restored and Gen. Washington had proclaimed to all Indians who desired to remain his subjects, that every protection and care would be accorded to them, Brant and his following did not remain. They abandoned their homes and their native land to come to Canada—a land where they could retain their connection and allegiance to the crown for which they so recently fought. Surrounded by hardships and among strangers, they roamed for a time until some settled in Thayendanaga Township in Hastings County, and the greater part of them on the Grand River, Brant County. In 1789 the British Government set apart and deeded to the Five Nations and their posterity forever a tract of land three miles deep on each side of the Grand River, from the source to the mouth. The territory contained about 600,000 acres.

Capt. Joseph Brant, during his lifetime, retained his place as warrior and chief of the Six Nations. Beloved by his people, he was equally esteemed and honored by his king, as, perhaps, no other subject has been before or since. The exact year is not known when he visited England. On that occasion he was the guest of King George IV. He was feted and entertained at court in a manner becoming the dignity of a king. Indeed, he was looked upon as such even by the people of England.

The intellectual attainments of the noted chieftain fitted him to transact much of the important business of the Indians when they came to Canada. The confidence that was reposed in him by the chiefs and people was so marked that what he counseled them to do seems to have been fully endorsed. Various surrenders to the crown of the territory held by the Six Nations have been transferred by his signature. There is an unexplained reason why he had not made his residence on the Grand River reserve. He made his home at Wellington Square, near Hamilton, where he died. The fact that he lived apart had no tendency to detract from his ardency to further the interests, progress and welfare of the Six Nations. In their Christianization and education he was a leading spirit and influence. He erected the church known as the Mohawk Church on the bank of the Grand River, near Brantford. It is beside this church a tomb marks his resting place. The church is among the oldest and most historic of Canada.

As an Indian, soldier, statesman and patriot, his name holds a place in history worthy of the man. His influences for all that pertained for the best in the cause of his race are a lasting memorial to his memory. His personal magnetism won admirers on all sides. He wielded an influence among his people no less powerful than that of a potentate, having the confidence of his subjects.

His conduct as a soldier of the king and country has instilled in the hearts and minds of his people a spirit of devotion and loyal attachment to the crown that could hardly be alienated. This can happily be applied with equal emphasis to the various tribes of Indians in Canada.

"Don't you wisht you was a queen, Maggie, an' had a throne to sit on?'

"Goodness, no! I have so much trouble gettin' in this chair that I don't see how I could ever climb into a throne?"—New York World.

To Suffer From Headaches Makes Life Miserable. . .

It takes a person that has had and is subject to headaches to describe the suffering which attends them.

The majority of cases are caused by constipation and dyspepsia. The dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on, purely indicates that there is something the matter with the stomach or bowels. To the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters reaches every part of the system is due its success in relieving and permanently curing headache. It has proven a specific for the malady in all its forms.

Mr. Wm. R. Gilchrist, New Mills, N.B., writes: "I was troubled for years with constipation and headaches, but after using four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I am completely cured."

Mr. John T. Kidner, Red Deer, Alta., writes: "I was troubled for several years with headache. I tried a number of remedies but they did me no good. I tried a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and it cured me completely."

Boss Dorsey And the Babies.

By EDWIN J. WEBSTER.

Copyright by Edwin J. Webster

BROWN-EYED Johnnie O'Neil, better known to his family and immediate friends as the "fat baby," had wandered to the long avenue skirting the river front.

Harry Wendell, a young lawyer who was rapidly becoming prominent in politics, was hurrying to the meeting of the City Reform club. He did not notice the perspiring toddler and almost ran into him. The fat baby made a frantic effort to dodge, collided with another pedestrian and fell to the sidewalk. It was not a hard fall, but the fat baby's ordinary optimism had been undermined by the weather. Instead of scrambling to his feet he lay on the pavement and sobbed in helpless misery.

Harry Wendell picked up the small sufferer and handed him a carnation he had been wearing. As the babe's feelings changed from sorrow to wonder and then to delight his sobs grew fainter.

"Sure, and these hot days are hard on the babies, with never a breeze stirring except along the river and the trucks and wagons keeping them away from there."

Harry Wendell looked around and saw Tom McMannis, the ward leader and one of the strongest supporters of Richard Dorsey, the boss whom the City Reform club was working hard to overthrow.

"It's a pity they can't get a recreation pier for this district," observed Harry, looking at the river front, which had been the coveted Canaan of the fat baby. "It would be a wonderful comfort for the children as well as for older people."

"It would that," assented McMannis. "I was telling Dorsey the same only yesterday. But he didn't seem to look at it that way."

And McMannis, after giving the now cheered fat baby some pennies and telling him to "run and get a bit of candy," strolled into the saloon which was his political headquarters, while Wendell hastened up the street.

On his way to the meeting Harry Wendell's thoughts reverted to the ward leader from whom he had just parted. McMannis was uneducated, unprincipled in both public and personal life, a machine politician of the worst type—and not a bit ashamed of the fact. Yet McMannis was the absolute ruler of the crowded Tenth ward.

However corrupt local politics might be, the fact must be faced that the organization, led by Dorsey, was strong, well disciplined and could put up a hard fight. And, while it would be for their own good, the big foreign element and the poorer classes generally did not care for reform. Again and again the City Reform club had led campaigns against the machine and each time either had been defeated at the polls or after what seemed victory found that Dorsey had again worked his way back into power, aided by the indifference of the good citizens who had voted for reform. But if a break could be made in the machine ranks, if McMannis, whose sway in his own ward was indisputed, could be arrayed against the boss, then indeed something might be effected. And as he pondered the matter Harry Wendell saw through a glass darkly a plan whereby a break might possibly be made in the compact forces of the machine.

"It's playing machine politics on my own account," he soliloquized, "but McMannis is a good deal better man at heart than Dorsey, and a recreation pier would be a good thing for the babies in those big Tenth ward tenements, however it is obtained."

The next day while Tom McMannis, seated in a little room back of his bar, was talking over the details of the coming campaign with a few of his favored henchmen a bartender entered and in the confidential whisper assumed by all practical politicians and their followers announced that Harry Wendell would like to speak to the ward leader. McMannis nodded to his retainers, who filed out of the room. When Harry entered, McMannis looked at him with complacent hostility.

"I was at the meeting of the City Reform club yesterday," began Harry.

"I heard there was to be one," murmured McMannis, "but I couldn't get the time to go."

McMannis and Wendell, while political opponents, were personally friendly enough. The young lawyer laughed.

"I have been thinking of what you said yesterday afternoon about a recreation pier. It would be a godsend to the babies this hot weather. Now, can't we combine on this point even if we fight each other on other matters?"

The leader of the Tenth ward leaned back in his chair, his hands in his pockets, and looked hard at Wendell. For reformers in general McMannis had a deep rooted dislike. But the recreation pier for his ward had been one of McMannis' heartfelt desires for the last two years.

"What you say is right," replied McMannis after a moment's thought. "I certainly do want the pier, and, what is more important, so do my people, but I didn't expect help from the City Reform club."

"It isn't necessarily a political matter," answered Harry, "and perhaps if both crowds combined we could force the board of aldermen to appropriate the money."

"We could," assented McMannis, "and mighty glad would I be to see the pier here whether the reformers or the devil himself helped me to get it. I've been after Dorsey about it, but he says the city needs the money for something else. It makes me angry to think," added McMannis naively, "that just because we're not the Tenth ward so that it is safe they insist all the money ought to be spent in other wards. It's coming election time, though, and Dorsey won't want to make any enemies."

"It's worth trying anyhow," answered Harry. "I'll hustle around and bring all the pressure on the part of the people I know to bear on him."

"If the other reformers were like that boy," declared McMannis impressively to one of his lieutenants, "it's more they would do in this world."

A week later Richard Dorsey, the head of the organization, the recognized ruler of city politics, was sitting in his private office, a frown on his face. For days the Express, the reform mouthpiece, had been printing stories about the sufferings of the children on the crowded east side during the hot weather and insisting that a recreation pier was more needed than the new pavements in the outside districts. But Dorsey and several of his political adherents were financially interested in the paving contracts.

"Stirring up all this trouble about a lot of babies and women who don't vote," thought the boss angrily. "Why can't people mind their own business?" And just then Tom McMannis was announced.

McMannis had called to talk over the political situation in the Tenth ward. As usual, this ward, the largest in the city in point of population, was solidly for the machine. Dorsey's face brightened up at the first part of his lieutenant's discourse. Then it clouded when McMannis said positively:

"But it seems to me that we ought to have that recreation pier anyway. This hot weather is mighty hard on the people."

"What can I do?" replied Dorsey impatiently. "If the city appropriates money for the pier it will run over the debt limit. You know the people at Albany, and the reformers are just looking to catch us up on that very point."

"You might let some of those new pavements go or have them put in for half what it is going to cost," answered McMannis bluntly.

Dorsey looked disgusted.

"What's the use of talking that way?" he grumbled. "You know where the money for that deal is going. A man has to live, and so must his friends. Seems to me that I didn't hear any howl from you when we put down the east side sewer. And you know what that cost and who got the money. Most of it went right over to the Tenth ward."

This unvarnished statement of city finances was somewhat of a facer for McMannis.

"Well, as long as every one was getting a bit of the coin I didn't see why I shouldn't myself. But it's the truth I would give up my share to get that pier. Sure, if you lived in the ward and saw the hot kids and the tired women you would feel the same way about it."

"Maybe we can do something about it next year," replied Dorsey, "but just now it's up to you to do some hard work for the organization before election. You're not going to let this turn you against the party, are you?"

"Of course not," answered McMannis almost indignantly. "You ought to know better than that. It will be many a long day from now before Tom McMannis votes against the party. But I think it is a shame about the pier," he added obstinately as he left the room.

Dorsey had not recovered from the annoyance caused by the discussion of the recreation pier when Rev. Alfred Mann was ushered into the office. If there was any person in the city for whom Richard Dorsey had a cordial dislike, it was Mr. Mann. The feeling was reciprocated. While well meaning, Mr. Mann was far from tactful. His advocacy of the claims of the east side children in the matter of a recreation pier was such as to leave the political boss in a hot perspiration of rage. In the end, with stronger language than was due the sanctity of the cloth, Dorsey requested the clergyman to leave the room and added that nobody but meddling fools wanted the pier. Neither Mr. Mann nor Boss Dorsey appreciated that Harry Wendell had foreseen the interview would probably end this way.

Following Rev. Mr. Mann several business and professional men prominent in the community, but declared opponents of Dorsey, called on the political leader and advocated the claims of the Tenth warders to the recreation pier. The result of these maneuvers was that the generally silent and self contained boss was exasperated to such a pitch of irritation that a man-tion of the recreation pier had the soothing effect upon him that the waving of a red flag has upon a bull. Then Harry Wendell himself was shown into the boss' private office, and with Wendell, unobtrusive, but keenly alert to every detail, came Jack Whitney, one of the reporters for the Express.

"I came to see you about the recreation pier that seems so much needed in the Tenth ward," began Harry suavely. "I think"—

But the patience of the exasperated boss at last gave way.

"You think!" he thundered. "Well, I think there has been too much fuss made about that pier. It won't be built. The babies need it! D—n the babies anyway! They can't vote!"

"All right," replied Harry cheerfully. "If that's the way you feel about it, there's no need of saying any more."

Accompanied by the reporter, he hurried out of the office, for he had obtained exactly the statement he wanted. Any modification of it would only weaken his position.

The Express was one of the bitterest opponents of the rule of Dorsey. In the hall Jack Whitney looked gleefully at Harry Wendell.

"'D—n the babies! They can't vote!'" murmured the newspaper man. "What a headline! Oh, but in a little while Mr. Dorsey will be sorry he spoke that way. The Express will have an extra on the street in half an hour. Won't that 'D—n the babies!' please the Tenth ward, where there are about a hundred to each tenement?"

"That's all right as far as it goes," replied Wendell, "but we want to put Dorsey in a position where he can't deny having said it. I'll draw up an affidavit corroborating it. Then we can get affidavits from Mr. Mann and others who talked with Dorsey this morning. If the Express will publish these, it will make our case stronger."

"If the Express will publish them," answered the newspaper man. "If I know how Mr. Rogers feels about Dorsey, I think they will be double leaded, with three column headlines. You get the affidavits, and I'll hurry back to the office and be writing the story."

"We'll get out an extra," said the managing editor to Whitney, "but we might as well wait and get the affidavits, too, so as to have a complete story. You were the only reporter present? Then none of the other papers can come out ahead of us."

"And I'll send a man over to see McMannis," broke in the city editor. "Jones, run down to McMannis' place and ask him if Dorsey is going to do anything about the recreation pier. Don't tell him we have other interviews on the subject. Just get him to state, if you can, in the strongest terms possible that Dorsey says they can't have the pier. Telephone in what he says, for we want it for an extra."

By the time Whitney had finished writing his account of the Dorsey interview the affidavits had arrived at the Express office, and Jones had telephoned in the interview with McMannis. That worthy, ignorant of the steps which were being taken to disturb Mr. Dorsey's peace of mind, had spoken in strenuous terms. Not that McMannis had any intention of breaking from the organization, but his heart had been set on getting the recreation pier, and he had brooded over the refusal of the morning. The city editor read the account that Whitney had written and after marking it "double lead" sent it to the composing room.

"It looks sensational," observed the city editor, "but it is a big story. I guess when the copies of the paper begin to come into the Tenth ward there really will be a sensation."

A few minutes later the newsboys were calling out:

"Extra! Extra! All about Boss Dorsey an' de babies!"

"Better send a lot of copies over to the Tenth ward," said the managing editor. "I wouldn't wonder if they would interest McMannis."

And the paper did interest McMannis. He was sitting in his little back room when Tim Collins, his most trusted lieutenant, entered. Tim was excited.

"Have you seen the Express?" he cried, thrusting a copy of the paper at McMannis. "Why, Dorsey must have been crazy to say such a thing. And I see you are quoted there too. Are you going to break from the party?"

"What do you mean?" retorted McMannis angrily. "What's Dorsey been saying, and what rot are you talking about my breaking with the party? There'll be something else broken if you don't take that back."

But Tim Collins stood undaunted.

"Look for yourself," he replied. "It's all over the ward. The women are wild about it. I'd have thought it a fake put up by the reformers if it hadn't been for your name and those affidavits. Dorsey's killed himself in this ward."

McMannis was eagerly scanning the paper.

"They've got what I said to that reporter about right, although I didn't think I put it so strong. And I didn't know they had those other interviews and affidavits. It's a trick of that young Wendell to down Dorsey and to make a break in the Tenth ward if he can."

"He's done it all right, all right," asserted Tim Collins. "'D—n the babies!' There isn't a woman in the ward who will give her husband any peace until he's promised to vote against Dorsey. He's gone up, and so are we unless"—

"Unless what?" inquired McMannis sharply.

"Break from the party? I never thought to hear you say any such a thing.

"Young Wendell must have put up the job to get Dorsey in a hole," declared McMannis angrily. "And he's put Tom McMannis and Tim Collins in just as bad a one."

"I'll stand by you, whatever you do," said Tim loyally. "But as Dorsey men neither of us can get a job on a city wagon in the Tenth ward. There's too many babies."

The extra edition of the Express had been issued shortly after noon, and by 3 o'clock it seemed as if most of the men and every woman in the ward had seen a copy of the paper.

"To think of him saying that about the babies," said Mrs. O'Neil, the mother of the fat Johnnie. "And the poor darlints almost perished with the heat. 'D—n the babies,' because they can't vote, is it? Oh, but I wish the women had a vote. We'd show Mr. Dorsey what it meant."

And the sentiments of Mrs. O'Neil were forcibly echoed by all the women present.

All that afternoon the local henchmen of McMannis visited his saloon. Each gloomily condemned the imprudence of Dorsey, and each, at first timidly and then more boldly, suggested to McMannis that it was absolutely necessary for the Tenth ward to rebel against the rule of the boss. But McMannis, bound by years of allegiance to the organization, hesitated to declare against it. Early that evening while he was discussing the situation with Tim Collins a message came stating that Dorsey desired to see both of them at the organization headquarters. The message was a little peremptory and did not add to McMannis' good humor. Still he and his lieutenant prepared to obey. A few yards from the saloon the Tenth ward politicians met Mrs. O'Neil, accompanied by pretty Mollie Grady, for whom Tim Collins had more than a faint affection.

"And did you see what Dorsey said about the babies?" asked Mrs. O'Neil, stopping McMannis. "You're a good man, Mr. McMannis, and we all like you and know you've done what you could to get the recreation pier and other things for the people in this ward, but good man that you are there are few votes you can control in the Tenth as long as you stick by that Dorsey."

"Well, Mrs. O'Neil," replied McMannis, trying to placate the offended mother, "I'm loyal to my party, but you will find me looking out for the Tenth, my own ward, first."

A moment later he was rejoined by Tim Collins, who had stopped to speak to brown eyed Mollie.

"I asked her if she would go to the picnic with me," observed Tim gloomily, "and she said, 'Are you a Dorsey man?' And I says, 'I suppose I am.' Says she, 'I'll go to no picnics with a fellow who backs up a man that curses little babies and says they can die of the heat.'"

The ward leader and his lieutenant looked doubtfully at each other. Then each understood. McMannis called to Dorsey's messenger, who had been waiting across the street.

"You tell Mr. Dorsey," said McMannis tersely, "that Tim and I are too busy to come now. After election we'll have more time."

Dorsey and his adherents were not men to sit quietly in the face of impending defeat. They worked desperately; the whole influence of the police and of city employees was thrown in favor of the organization. Yet each day it was evident the once invincible boss was losing ground. The defection of McMannis and the formerly solid organization of the Tenth ward proved a heavy blow.

On election night the result was practically certain long before the totals were known. The uptown districts, as had been expected, voted against Dorsey. Then came scattering districts slightly in his favor. Then the result in the Tenth ward was announced. It was solidly against the boss. But when the districts in which the organization was strongest were counted Dorsey and his adherents gave up hope. Instead of an almost straight organization vote the returns in these districts showed small majorities which would fall far short of overcoming the vote in the antiorganization districts and the Tenth ward. Then Dorsey and his lieutenants gave up the fight and, leaving the organization headquarters, sought a place where they could drown their grief and make plans for the future. Near headquarters Dorsey met Harry Wendell. The defeated leader looked at the young lawyer with a scowl.

"You think you beat me, don't you," growled the ex-boss—"you and your reformers? Well, you didn't. I can down your crowd every time. It was the babies that beat me."

The Following Letter Speaks For Itself

Peterborough, Nov. 1st, 1907.

W. G. Morrow, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1907 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,
J. R. STRATTON.

Any person contemplating taking out Life Insurance will find it to his advantage to secure our rates before placing the risk.

ODD NAMES OF MINES

WHIMS OF PIONEER MINERS.

Many of the Early Prospectors Selected the Names of Wives or Sweethearts, Which Stand Now as Reminders of Romances of Bygone Days.

Behind the names of many of the mining claims and mines of every mining district in the west there lies a wealth of romance and history, both pathetic and ludicrous. The Black Hills furnish as many and as good examples of the peculiar circumstances under which many claims are named as any locality in the country.

One of the best known mines in the southern hills is the Holy Terror. Back in the early days this claim was located by an old miner who had worked some years without success. The claim was a hard one to work. When the man went home in the evening after locating his claim his wife asked him what he named it. He smiled and told her, "For you, my dear," and her further inquiry drew forth the fact that he had called it Holy Terror. Another man once named his claim Gentle Annie for his wife, while still a third perpetuated the memory of his wife, who was a noted clubwoman, by naming his claim Silent Julia.

The hills are dotted with the names of claims recalling romances of bygone days. Many a young, ambitious man came here when the mining boom of the eighties was at its height, lured with hope of a fortune, and all that remains to tell the tale is the name of Katie W. or Mabel E. or Lulu J. Many a sweetheart or wife in the faraway east was honored in the naming of a claim that its owner hoped would prove a bonanza. Some few made good. Witness the Annie Fraction and the Josie, both of which were named for the eastern wives of their owners. They are in the Bald mountain district and have produced thousands of dollars for the locators.

In the Galena district there is a small abandoned claim known as the Widow, with which there goes a story. Years ago a youth named Hanley appeared from somewhere with a few thousand and with zeal commenced to sink his money in a hole in the ground in the hope of a vast fortune. Back in the old home a little widow waited in vain for the golden wealth he said was sure to come and the wedding day that would celebrate it. It took but a short time for the youth's small savings to dwindle away with his inexperience, and, chagrined and disheartened, he put a bullet through his brain on the site of his blasted hopes.

One prospector who worked diligently on a claim which was staked by an outsider and had difficulty in even getting his living expenses secured his revenge by naming his claim Old Persimmon.

Men of patriotic turn of mind have chosen names of those famous in history, as Washington, Lincoln, etc. Each of the presidents has been remembered, famous generals, all of the states, seafaring heroes and heroes of the Philippines, as Dewey and Funston. Indian names by the score are found, as Hiawatha, Minnekahta and Nanoma. Those of sporting proclivities chose race horses, as Nancy Hanks, Salvator, Maud S., Red Wilkes, Joe Patchen. Favorite authors have been remembered, as Longfellow, Burns and Dickens. One student named his group Miltiades, Mark Anthony, Attila and Cleopatra.

An odd case was known in the name of the Hoodlebug claim, which was located by a German and an Irishman and intended by the former to be called Heidelberg. When the Irishman reached town to record the location he had forgotten his partner's selection of a name and said it was something like Hoodlebug, which, for convenience, was the name recorded.

The Prodigal Son lived up to its name by bankrupting its locator, who returned to Iowa at the behest of the father who had put up the funds for the venture. Among the names that doubtless conceal stories never known are Old Whiskers, She Devil, Crack Brain and Crank.

Some of the gulches have names that refer to incidents. Two Bit was named because a placer miner declared his first panful would yield about two bits. Then there are Poor Man's Gulch, Sheeptail, Blacktail, Whitetail, Crooked Arm, Poverty and Prosperity.

A School Coinage.

It is not a generally known fact that the Bluecoat school (Christ's hospital) once possessed a coinage of its own. At that time the coin of the realm could not be used at the hospital. Before he could buy anything in the "tuck shop" a new boy had to get one of the beadles, who were the school money changers, to change his shillings and pence into "house money," as it was called. This was made of copper, the coins being octagonal in shape, with their value stamped on them. These curious coins are now very rare, and numismatists possessing any are fortunate.—London Captain.

Itching Eczema's Cause and Cure

THIS DREADFULLY TORTURING AND OBSTINATE DISEASE IS ENTIRELY OVERCOME BY

Eczema is common to rich and poor, old and young, and is neither contagious nor an indication of uncleanness, as some suppose.

Teething, improper food, indigestion, vaccination, poisoning by clothing or from ivy, etc., are named among the causes.

There is inflammation, redness, heat, swelling, discharge, formation of crust and all the time annoying, troublesome itching and burning, which often becomes so torturing as to be almost unendurable.

This ever present itching is what makes eczema so dreaded, and it is this feature to which Dr. Chase's Ointment gives relief from almost the first application.

Dr. Chase's Ointment is not only delightfully soothing, but is a wonder as a means of healing the skin. It is not long before the raw, itching sores are thoroughly cleansed, the itching subdued and the process of healing begun. Persistent treatment will then bring about a thorough cure.

This great ointment is always beneficial to the skin, making it soft, smooth and velvety, and, besides being the most effective treatment known for the cure of eczema, is useful in every home in a score of ways.

Mr. Hiram Frey, Norwood, Ont., states: "I was troubled for ten years with eczema on one leg. The itching was terrible, and when scratched the blood would come. The doctors could not cure me. Fortunately I heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment and its persistent use has completely cured me. There is now no trace of the disease left.

'My little daughter two years old has also been cured of eczema by Dr. Chase's Ointment. Her face was a mass of sores and we had to bandage her hands to keep her from scratching it. To-day her face is clear of even the scars which the ugly sores made, and she is thoroughly cured. I am glad of an opportunity to let people know what a blessing Dr. Chase's Ointment has proved itself to be."

A LONG DRIVE.

The Expert Lumbermen of the Canadian Rivers.

One of the most interesting sights the new arrival in Canada can strike is to witness a log drive on one of the rivers there, especially should there be several rapids to navigate.

The expert river man is a clever athlete—clever and nervy as any circus rider, his steeds probably cutting more antics than any horse could think of. He will jump from one log to another quickly as they swirl around until he reaches the one he wants; then he will make for the center and stand perfectly upright and still, balancing himself with a long pike or peavy, sometimes running down stream miles without landing.

He also guides other logs into the channel in passing, at times jumping from one to another in marvelous fashion, although the logs are twisting and turning in every direction.

Probably the cleverest piece of work one could observe out here is when the logs get jammed in passing the rapids. Then you see the expert at his best. He is here, there and everywhere until he gets things as he wants them, when he will calmly stand and ride down among the heaving, grinding mass as though there were no danger at hand. This scene, so full of excitement, once witnessed could never be forgotten.—London Tit-Bits.

THE WATERMELON.

In the old days, when the world was much better than it is now, there were good watermelons.

As we remember them, the watermelons of twenty-five or thirty or thirty-five years ago were huge affairs. They were none of your overgrown cucumber effects of today, but were great big round fellows, and the outside was a dark green. It was the same shade of green as the reflection of the trees in a swimming hole.

And when you sunk the knife into it the rind ripped and cracked for two inches ahead of the blade, and the melon just laughed itself open.

Hold on! You didn't use a knife. You lifted the melon above your head and dropped it to the ground, and it burst open, as red as a rose and a hundred times as sweet. And you ate nothing but the heart—just the chunky red heart.

Nowadays the marketman shows you an oblong affair done in pale green and greenery-yallery stripes, with a white blotch on the underside, that he calls a watermelon. And you cut it into slices like bologna sausage and eat it with a fork, like pie.

And you have forgotten whether a watermelon goes plink-plink or plunk-plunk when it is ripe, because it doesn't make any difference now.—Wilbur D. Nesbit in Chicago Post.

Ready For Anything.

"She used to say she would never marry until the ideal man proposed."

"Yes?"

"Yes. But she's dropped the 'ideal' now."—Philadelphia Press.

Then He Was Mad.

"Why don't you give the devil his due?" he snapped.

"I can't, dear," replied his wife. "You're in such fine health now he may have to wait awhile."

Remarkable.

"She's the most remarkable elderly woman I ever saw."

"Doesn't show her age?"

"Not that. Doesn't seem to regret it."

One wise counsel is better than the strength of many.—Euripides.

LIGHTNING GUN PLAY

One Time When Wild Bill Hickok Was Too Rapid.

HE KILLED HIS BEST FRIEND.

The Plucky Marshal Had Settled the Leader of the Desperadoes Who Had Started to Shoot Up the Town When He Made the Fatal Mistake.

In September, 1874, the good people of Dickinson county, Kan., had reached the definite conclusion that it was a farming country and proceeded to emphasize this opinion by giving an old fashioned county fair at Abilene. Six hundred thousand longhorns came up from Texas that year, but their owners took the hint and understood that there would be no room for their stock on the prairies of that country the following season. They had sold their cattle and were ready to depart. Abilene was to be their stamping ground no more.

It was in order to celebrate the occasion in the old time way, and it was generally understood that the ceremonies of the evening were to conclude by killing the town marshal, Wild Bill Hickok, and metaphorically taking his scalp back to Texas. A few of them drew lots as to which should have that dangerous honor, and Phillip Coe got the short straw.

It was a beautiful autumn day, and the county fair was a great success. As the sun went down Pat McGonigal and his brother, tied their bronchos in front of the drovers' cottage, strolled down Texas street, met their cowboy friends, and the fun began. A dozen cowmen picked up Jake Karatosky, the merchant, carried him down to the Applejack and had him set up the drinks. A score of more or less prominent citizens and cattlemen were used in the same manner and in quick succession.

The crowd increased, and the liquor and excitement spread. The cowboys were giving Abilene her last Roman holiday. Wild Bill was dining at Mrs. Smith's restaurant, and the roisterers went to drag him to the bar. Bill said they might go to the Novelty bar and get a drink on him, but pointedly declined to accompany them and called particular attention to the ordinance against shooting in the city limits.

By 10 o'clock at night the mob surged from one end of Texas street to the other in reckless abandon. Everybody who claimed to be civilized hunted cover. Marshal Hickok and Policeman Williams were watching at the Novelty, where generally the most friction occurred.

It was about this time that big Phil Coe, keeping faith with his comrades, but with no eager avidity, leisurely walked up in front of the Alamo, then packed with excited men, and fired his gun at a dog, as he claimed. Wild Bill told Williams to stay at the Novelty, ran swiftly across to the rear door and sprang into the crowded Alamo, roughly inquiring as to who was doing the shooting.

Coe stood at the well curb outside and said that he had fired the shot. Immediately he fired another, which grazed Wild Bill's side as he stood at the bar. With that wonderful swiftness which stood him in good stead so many times, Bill threw two guns on Coe and shot him twice in the abdomen, exclaiming, "I've shot too low!"

At the same instant he turned and fired twice at another man who came running down the dark sidewalk and burst on the scene, shoving two guns in front of him. Coe fired one more shot and fell across the well curb. A hundred guns clicked as Wild Bill fired his first shot, but before the fourth the place was cleared and not one bad man was left to stand by Coe.

The stranger, with two bullets within an inch of his heart, threw both hands in the air, dropped his guns to the floor and pitched forward stone dead. It was Mike Williams, the deputy, a brave fellow, who, despite his chief's instructions to remain at the Novelty, could not keep away from the fight.

Wild Bill cried out that he had killed his best friend, gathered the little man in his arms, and, with eyes full of tears, laid him across a poker table. The fury that burned in his veins when he whipped the McKandlas gang sprang to life again at this accident, and he proceeded to hold the Texas men responsible. That night the desperate heroes of border strife hid in cellars and sunflower patches or on swift ponies found their way to their cattle camps, for they had made a fizzle by trying to shoot up the wrong town.—Denver Field and Farm.

First Aid in Accidents.

A country boy knows that the fine dust of brown fungi he calls puffballs will stop bleeding. When he cuts himself he hunts for one of these if the cut is not serious. If the cut is deep it is wise to bathe it in warm water with carbolic in it or a tablet of chloride of mercury dissolved in the water. Carefully remove all foreign matter in the washing and then, pinching the lips of the cut together, put on strips of adhesive plaster. Be sure to leave little spaces for pus to run out. This running of pus is a natural process and is not alarming unless persistent and the pus comes in unreasonable quantities. Sometimes the blood flows so rapidly that you cannot close the wound with plaster. If so tie a bandage tightly above the wound before you attend to the wound itself. This will stop the flow of blood, and, nature having formed her clot, you can do your part with plaster.—Harper's.

BRAVE RIDER OF '85.

Messenger Who Carried Despatches In the Rebellion.

A plainsman who for eighteen years has let the lure of cities pass him by, spent a day recently in a strange search for old landmarks, says The Winnipeg Free Press. That the gate only of old Fort Garry should be standing was a disappointment, even though the fact had long been known. J. H. Storer, of Battleford, is the man in question, at one time and for long a member of "Canada's Own"—the Northwest Mounted Police. As a lad of 21 he rode with James Baird, a half-breed guide, to carry news of a possible ambush to Col. Otter's camp at Swift Current. The information that came to the fort at Battleford, before the lines were cut, was that Col. Otter was on the way and that meant that he must be met and warned before he passed "Sixty Mile Bush." Provisioned only for that distance, therefore the two men mounted on the pick of the ponies at the fort, left at 11 o'clock in the morning, bearing the despatches. A delay of some hours took place at the South Branch river, as the leisurely ferry did not appear on the scene till six o'clock. They rode light with just a blanket and their provisions consisted only of biscuits and water. "Sixty Mile Bush" was reached safely, but there was no trace of the advancing column, so that meant that the full distance of 180 miles must be traversed.

They might have found this pretty hard going had it not been for a fortunate occurrence. They met Frank Smart (who was shortly afterwards killed), with his outfit, and he provided Indian ponies and plenty of provisions. Here an Indian encampment was seen and the three men took widely diverging routes, meeting later on the trail. It was well that they did so, for four Indians were keen on their tracks. However, they lost so much time and were so baffled by the manoeuvre that they gave up the hunt.

Thirty miles before reaching Swift Current the two riders saw a number of men in the distance and thinking they were half-breeds on the way to join the Indians they rode half-breed fashion and left ends of their blankets hanging raggedly from their saddles. To their surprise the figures vanished behind the hill. With revolvers drawn, they turned after, expecting an ambush, but when they arrived on the scene they saw only a lot of frightened women huddled round a wagon, the men having hidden in the bush to act as sharpshooters. Great was the relief on both sides when it was discovered that they were all Battleford people, the first party having left for the east with the earliest rumor of trouble. After that there was no more excitement and at Swift Current Col. Otter was found awaiting orders from Gen. Middleton. The ride of the messengers took sixteen days.

STARTLING TRAGEDY AT BOSTON

Two Labor Leaders Shot in State House Ante-Room.

ONE OF THE VICTIMS MAY DIE

Boston, Dec. 6.—John A. Steele, an insane man of Everett, walked into the ante-room of the executive chamber of the State House yesterday afternoon, and finding Governor Guild's door closed, turned on three prominent labor leaders and fired three shots at them, probably fatally wounded Edward Cohen of Lynn, president of the state branch of the American Federation of Labor; seriously wounding Dennis D. Driscoll of Boston, secretary of the same board, and painfully injuring with the muzzle of his revolver, Arthur M. Huddel of Boston, former president of the Central Labor Union of this city. Steele was overpowered by Secretary Charles S. Groves and Gen. J. H. Whitney, chief of the State Bureau.

Steele was released on parole last month from the Danvers Insane Asylum. He was 37 years old.

Governor In His Office.

Governor Guild was in his office only a few feet away when the shooting occurred, and, rushing out, assisted in subduing Steele, and subsequently directed the removal of the wounded men to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Cohen was shot twice through the head and is in a critical condition. The third bullet struck Driscoll a glancing blow on the side of the forehead and rendered him unconscious. He recovered consciousness half an hour later. Huddell's wound was not serious.

The three labor leaders came to the State House to meet the governor in regard to a pardon. They found that the governor was busy at the time and were asked to wait in one of the ante-rooms.

All three were standing beside a long table conversing pleasantly, while at the further end of the room Secretary Groves was dictating a letter to a stenographer.

Grappled With Steele.

Suddenly Steele appeared at the door of the room from the hallway, and without announcing his mission, walked by the doorkeeper and a messenger and glanced toward Governor Guild's room, about ten feet away. The door was closed. Steele then drew a revolver and fired at Cohen, who was about six feet away. Cohen's back was turned and the bullet struck the back of the head, passed directly through and coming out at the forehead, drove a great splash of blood on the opposite wall beside the picture of Abraham Lincoln. The wounded man turned, only to receive another bullet in the head, which also passed completely through. Cohen sank unconscious to the floor. Steele then swung around and fired at Driscoll, who fell unconscious. Huddell, in attempting to close in on the man, was struck on the cheek by the muzzle of the revolver and knocked down. Steele made no attempt to fire again.

By this time Private Secretary Groves had leaped over a table and grappled with Steele, and almost at the same moment Gen. Whitney, who had been summoned to the Kennedy hearing, came through the door and rushed to the assistance of Mr. Groves.

Huddell also jumped up and wrenched the revolver away, while one of the messengers dashed into the governor's office and said: "They are murdering people in the lobby."

Word was sent for assistance to the office of the state police in the basement of the building, and a force of officers quickly reached the scene and handcuffed Steele.

In the meantime Governor Guild had knelt by Cohen's side and was wiping his face with a handkerchief and towel. In response to a call for medical assistance, Dr. Owen Copp, chairman of the State Board of Insanity, was the first to reach the executive department. He immediately recognized Steele, having had him under observation for more than five years in various state insane institutions. Other doctors soon appeared and aided in the removal of the wounded men to the hospital.

Firemen Overcome by Gas.

New York, Dec. 6.—Mrs. Annie Linahan, aged 76, was burned to death in a five-storey brick tenement in East Seventeenth street yesterday. Thirty others were rescued from windows.

Illuminating gas nearly proved the death of seven firemen in William street when a gas pipe burst.

Five Years For Wife-Beater.

New York, Dec. 6.—Five years in prison and a fine of $1,000 is the penalty John Nahan must pay for wife-beating. The sentence, the maximum provided by the law, was imposed yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Dowling. It appears from the testimony that Nahan assaulted his wife with a shovel.

Baby Burned.

Brantford, Dec. 6.—While Albert Blasdell of Linden was away at work and his wife out of the house assisting her son to look for some money which had been lost on the road, the building caught fire and a two-year-old boy was cremated.

Fined the Cock-Fighters.

Chatham, Dec. 6.—Charged with cock-baiting, the following young men pleaded guilty before Judge Houston yesterday and were each fined $8.72, costs and fine: Albert Vanduzen, J. Arnold, Henry Labombard, James Rice, William Skinner, David Skinner, James Etches, Frank Hallinan, Percy Moss and Edward Rickman. The young men were caught red-handed.

Made Base Coin.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 6.—Ernest R. Workman of Winnipeg, indicted by the Federal grand jury on a charge of having violated the Federal law regarding counterfeiting, pleaded guilty and sentence was deferred until Monday.

Workman came to Winnipeg from Ontario about four years ago, and was married only a year and a half ago.

Mosquito Fever, Not Malaria.

Mexico City, Dec. 6.—Hereafter the world will know it as "mosquito fever," instead of malaria. Such is decided by delegates to the third international Sanitary Congress, so that the public may know the real cause of the disease.

Big Action Against G. T. R.

St. Catharines, Dec. 6.—For the loss of race-horses in the wreck at Trenton, Norman B. Sutherland is suing the G. T. R. for $16,000.

Run Over by Train.

Quebec, Dec. 6.—A Levis man named Lessard was killed yesterday morning at Daviluyville Station, a train running over him.

Protected the Secretary.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 6.—William H. Taft, the United States Secretary of War, left yesterday for Berlin.

The request of a group of students to send a deputation to welcome Secretary Taft upon his arrival was denied by the authorities, as it was feared that this deputation was merely a cover for a revolutionary demonstration.

Half-Million Dollar Fire.

Boston, Dec. 6.—The East Cambridge machine shops and roundhouse of the Boston & Maine Railroad were burned last night. The loss is estimated at $500,000.

GOVERNMENT HAS A MAJORITY

Mr. Cockshutt's Amendment to the Address Lost by 39.

DEBATE WAS CONTINUED

Touching Reference to Death of Mr. Lovell—Cost of the Insurance Commission—Mr. Monk Curious About Loans From Banks — Export Duty on Pulpwood—Comment on the Shortage of Cars.

Ottawa, Dec. 6.—A beautiful wreath on the draped desk of Mr. Lovell, member for Stanstead, was solemn evidence in the chamber yesterday that death had again invaded the Liberal ranks. The tributes of the Prime Minister and leader of the Opposition to the departed member were simple but feeling, and fittingly expressed the high regard in which Mr. Lovell was held by members on both sides of the House. The unusually large attendance in the early part of the session indicated that a division was at hand, and just before the six o'clock adjournment a vote was taken on Mr. Cockshutt's amendment, which was defeated by 95 to 56. Some comment was caused by the fact that Mr. Cockshutt was not in his seat when the division was taken, but inquiry elicited the information that the member for Brant had paired with a member of the Government. After the vote the discussion on the address was resumed by Dr. Barr, who put in a plea for an export duty on pulpwood, and a few other speakers.

Mr. Claude Macdonell enquired what had been done in the case of the Bulgarians stranded in Toronto. The Minister of the Interior replied that Mr. Blake Robertson, one of the officers of his Department, had gone to Toronto the night before and had met the derelicts refered to. Lacking an interpreter, however, had had found some difficulty in communicating with the Bulgarians, but an interpreter will be sent to the scene at once.

The Finance Minister informed the House that the total cost of the Insurance Commission was $85,842.

Judge McTavish of Ottawa was paid $4,650, and $947 transportation and living expenses; Mr. Kent $4,290 and $1,067; Mr. Langmuir $4,470 and $768; Mr. Shepley $25,000, and Mr. Tilley $12,300.

Mr. Monk enquired as to the total amount of Government temporary loans, and from what banks such were obtained, since July 1.

The Finance Minister replied that the information was not yet obtainable, an answer which Mr. Monk declared to be most unsatisfactory.

Mr. Fielding's answer was, however, ruled by the Speaker to be unquestionable.

The Minister of Interior, replying to Mr. Ames, said that application had been made by Messrs. Belcourt and Ritchie, in 1907, for grazing leases on behalf of J. W. Woods, A. W. Fleck and D. M. Finnie of Ottawa. No leases were granted, but Messrs Finnie and Fleck transferred their applications to John R. Craig, who was granted two ranches comprising 43,800 acres, subject to cancellation. No action was taken on the application of Mr. Woods.

The Debate Resumed.

E. N. Lewis of West Huron resumed the debate on the address. He paid considerable attention to the criminal law, pointing out serious discrepencies in its provisions. He advocated making it a criminal offence for a man to shoot a fellow man in mistake for a deer, a class of casualty becoming, he said, altogether too frequent. Mr. Lewis also urged that a law be passed to prepare for the inspection of locomotive as well as stationary boilers. He did not agree with Mr. Cockshutt or anybody else who talked of hard times. There were no hard times or at all events not in West Huron. The banks were shortening sail and curtailing credit, but this precaution was not unreasonable in view of conditions in other countries. But with all his admiration for the Canadian banking system and Canadian banks, Mr. Lewis did think that when the banks increased their rate of interest from six to seven per cent. they should be obliged to increase from three to four per cent. allowed on savings deposits. In this connection he remarked that in the village of Exeter there were two millions of money in the savings banks.

Transportation Facilities.

On the need of better transportation facilities the member from West Huron spoke impressively. He told of instances where manufacturing firms were obliged to restrict their output for lack of cars and asked the pertinent question why it was that railways from seven ports on Georgian Bay were unable to handle the business brought by two lines of railway to Fort William and Port Arthur? One result of this was, he said, that twelve million bushels of Canadian wheat was shipped by way of Buffalo.

Mr. Lewis also made a strong plea for an export duty on pulp wood. American industries were buying Canadian pulpwood at $8 per cord and selling at $30 in the finished product.

The debate upon the address was continued by Messrs. Clarke (Essex), Roche (Halifax), Barr (Dufferin), Lalor (Haldimand), Chisholm (Huron), and Elson (Middlesex). Dr. Chisholm attacked the French treaty, and claimed that it would not increase the trade between France and Canada, and Mr. Elson pleaded for rural delivery. The amendment to the address, moved by Mr. Cockshutt (Brantford), caused the first division this season. It was a party vote, and the Government was sustained by a majority of 39. The debate may continue for some days.

Judge's Sudden Death.

Butte, Mon., Dec. 6.—Judge E. W. Harney, aged 46 years, died suddenly Wednesday night of ceberal hemorrhage. He occupied the district bench during the Heinz-Amalgamated Copper Co. litigation, and it was upon an allegation that he had been unduly influenced that the Amalgamated Company attorneys obtained a new trial.

UNIQUE RAILWAY INCIDENT.

Engineer Operated Upon For Dropsy While Train Waited.

London, Dec. 6.—An example of the manner in which the rules of the Grand Trunk are strictly carried out is demonstrated in an incident of resent occurrence on the London, Huron and Bruce at Wingham.

Engineer Matthew Brown, one of the best known men on the road, was suffering from an attack of dropsy, and just before he came to Wingham he was seised suddenly and found it impossible to go any further.

Under the rules of the company when an engineer dies or is taken sick on his engine, the train must be placed into a siding until another engine is secured. The fireman, no matter how capable a man, is not permitted to take charge of the engine.

A physician was summoned in this case and he immediately set about to perform an operation, to "tap" the engineer.

This was successfully done, and when the engineer had recovered, an hour and a half later, he again took charge of his engine and brought it to the city. Another engineer had not been available.

Railroad men say that Engineer Brown's case is without a parallel in the history of railroads.

He has now completely recovered, and has his run on the Bruce, but hopes for no more such unique experiences.

SHROUDED IN MYSTERY.

Toronto Agent Dies In Detroit Resort Under Suspicious Circumstances.

Windsor, Dec. 6.—John Christie, agent of a Toronto building supplies firm, and whose home is in that city, died suddenly in a Brush street resort in Detroit at an early hour yesterday morning under circumstances which are considered highly suspicious.

Christie, who was a fine appearing man, about 50 years old, reached Detroit Wednesday on his way to Ohio. Missing his train at this point he decided to remain over and to pass away the evening he visited several places of amusement, finally winding up at the home of Mrs. Harvey on Brush street, shortly after four o'clock yesterday morning. Within a few minutes after his arrival there he was taken ill and died before medical assistance could be called.

The inmates of the house say that Christie had taken several drinks while there, but nothing stronger than wine was offered. The coroner, however, has ordered the body removed to the county morgue, and a post-mortem will be held to determine the exact cause of death.

In the pockets of the dead man was found several hundred dollars in Canadian currency, as well as letters which served to establish his identity.

IN THE FIELD AGAIN

Mr. W. H. Hill Announces He Will Stand for Re-election to Water Commission

THREE YEAR TERM IS UP

The retiring Water Commissioner this year is Mr. W H Hill, who at the end of the year completes his third year in that capacity. Mr. Hill, however, announced to-day his intention of entering the field for re-election next January. As far as is known at present there are no aspirants for the position but there is a possibility of a contest.

The retiring commissioner last year was Mr. W H Moore but, he again entered the field and was re-elected. The commissioners are elected for three years, one retiring at the end of each year. Mr. T H Matthews will retire next.

ARMOURIES CONTRACTOR IN THE CITY

Mr. Geo. A. Proctor Here on a Short Visit

Mr. Geo. A. Proctor of Sarnia is registered at the National Hotel today. Mr. Proctor is here on a business trip to look after the last week before winter on the new Armouries, of which he has the contract. A number of stonecutters are at present employed, but the actual building operations have been suspended. The work will be continued in the spring with the return of the warm weather.

WILL SPEND CHRISTMAS IN JAIL

John Doig Cannot Pay Fine and Will Go to Jail for 20 Days

"I can't pay my fine," remarked John Doig this morning in the police court. "You can't take blood out of a turnip, and I am going to go up on the hill instead of paying my fine. A fellow can't make 25 cents a day at my business."

It will be remembered that John Doig was the individual who bought brass pastings from small boys on Sunday, November 17, and was fined and given ten day in which to pay the fine. He was also fined and given the same conditions on another charge.

He returned to the court this morning, having been notified that his time to pay the fine was up.

WORK OF THE BOYS AT THE Y. M. C. A.

A Banquet to Be Tendered to Intermediate Class of Employed Boys

The Boys' Committee and Boys' Executive of the Y.M.C.A. met last night and after a great deal of study of the work of the junior department, decided to lay their plans before the boys for their approval and co-operation. The committee decided to tender the intermediate class of employed boys a banquet on Monday, Dec. 9th, at 4.30, when plans of the work in their department will be proposed and discussed. The Social Committee composed of twenty-one members meets to-night to prepare plans for the New Year's reception.

SKATING EXCELLENT ON THE LAKE

Many Young People Enjoyed the Pastime Last Evening

The cold snap of the last few days has given the young people of the city their first taste of skating, and they have been making the most of the opportunity. Little Lake is firmly frozen over and the skating is excellent. Last night a very large number were on hand and thoroughly enjoyed a couple of hours on the steel blades. The milder weather of to-day is not looked on with favour by the young people who are apprehensive that under its influence the ice will be spoiled.

THE WEATHER.

Much milder conditions now prevail which will likely continue for some days, as no cold weather is at present in sight. Lowest temperature last night, 19 degrees above zero; at noon, 32 degrees in the shade.

A ONE-TIME TELLER IN LOCAL BANK SHOOTS HIMSELF IN LONELY SHACK IN WINNIPEG

HAD BRAIN TROUBLE

The tragic death of Stanley Burton a former teller of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Montreal was reported in the city last night from Winnipeg, where the young man committed suicide in a lonely shack in the suburbs of the western metropolis. Burton was a son of Edward Burton of Port Hope, collector of Customs, and worked in Peterborough about five years ago just previous to the time he left for Winnipeg.

The dead youth was well and favourably known in this city. He occupied a high standing in society among the young people, and his parents have many sympathising friends here.

The news of his suicide reached Port Hope yesterday afternoon. His father there had just received a letter from him on Wednesday, when he apparently was in good spirits, and the shock was keenly felt by the parents. A despatch received from Winnipeg gives the following tragic details of the suicide:

"A promising career was terminated in a tragic manner here last night, when Stanley Burton, a clerk in the Bank of Montreal, shot himself while suffering from melancholia, the result of an abscess on the brain. The deed was committed in an unoccupied shack on Fonseca avenue, where the body was found by some boys about 9 o'clock this morning. A revolver was lying by his side, and the fatal shot had passed completely through his brain. Burton was a grandson of a former judge of Ontario, and his parents reside in Port Hope, where his father is collector of Customs. He was a young man of most exemplary habits, and his books at the bank are in faultless condition. So satisfactory had been his services that only the day previous to his rash deed he had been given a substantial bonus as a testimony of appreciation of his work. He had been quite prominent formerly in athletic circles, but of late had been in delicate health, suffering agony at times from the affliction in the head, which affected his brain. No inquest will be held.

HARTLEY REFUSED MONEY TO BRING HONOUR TO PETERBORO'

David Hartley is disgusted over the controversy about the fund which has been talked over by the City Council and so many others, and he wishes it positively understood that he is not seeking for any money and desires none from any individual or corporation.

"There has been too much of this talk about starting a fund," said Hartley, "for my benefit, and I don't want any cheap notoriety from that source."

Hartley wants the public to understand that he is not a pauper and can look after himself. He therefore asks for no money from any one, and desires no one to contribute to any fund for his benefit. He believes he has performed his duty to Peterborough and is satisfied.

Honest and Fair

David states that in all his walking he has acted the honourable part. While in Toronto he could have been bribed to lose the twelve-hour race and made plenty of money, but he felt that the honour of his native city, as well as his own honour, was at stake. He refused the offers and remained loyal to Peterborough without even yielding to temptation for an instant.

Hartley has had plenty of offers to go to Toronto and make money, and he desires to inform the public that he is not dependant upon the Council or any fund for his maintenance. It is quite possible that Hartley will leave Peterborough and go under some management in Toronto.

Some time ago an article appeared in the Examiner to the effect that the lumbering season this year would be a poor one, and the cut would be small, owing to the price of feed, and the high wages demanded by the men.

A prominent lumberman from Northern Ontario, who is in town to-day, threw further light on the lumbering question, during a conversation with an Examiner representative.

He said that the high wages demanded by the men, with the high price of feed, might have something to do with the small cut, but that was not the main cause. The lumber companies of Canada are all well supplied with lumber, and have more than the necessary amount to meet present demands. The lumber people are trying to keep the price up, and not let it go down, and therefore they do not want to have too much lumber on their hands.

This, he said, was the main reason for the small cut this winter, and the drain on the lumber yards will be so great next summer that when the lumbering season opens again next winter lumber will be pretty scarce.

"Well, don't you think that some lumberman will lower his price so as to make a big sale?" asked the scribe.

"No; I do not think so. Some of the small fry might do that sort of thing, but the big companies will not and they are the people who control the lumber market. You people do not know anything about these big concerns; they form themselves into a combine and control the whole situation."

The gentleman is down here visiting the different light and telephone companies, selling poles. Speaking of matters up north he said everything was quiet, only that the Canadian Northern Railway had begun to build their line between Kinmount and Pefferlaw, a distance of about 40 miles.

NOMINATIONS WILL TAKE PLACE ON DECEMBER 30th THIS YEAR

Although so far there has been little campaign talk or interest in municipal elections, nevertheless nomination day is not very far away. On Monday, December 30, just three weeks from next Monday, the candidates for the different offices of Water Commissioners, Board of Education, City Council and for the mayoralty will be nominated, and the following Monday, if there is need of an election, polling will take place. It seems hard to realize, in view of the quietness of municipal politics just now, that it is only a matter of a few weeks until the servants of the public will be compelled to give an account of their stewardship at the polls. From this time forward it is expected that the interest in the municipal campaign will begin, although at present there is little talk of the approaching contests.

A NEW PRINCIPAL FOR NORWOOD SCHOOL

At a meeting of the school board held on Saturday evening in the office of the chairman, Mr. J. L. Squire, it was resolved to offer the position of High School principalship to Mr. Goldwin V. Maclean, M.A., at the present time head of the Department of Physics in the London Collegiate Institute. A telegram from Maclean on Monday announced his acceptance of the position.

The Muskrats Leave Home

Muskrats are doing some peculiar "stunts" these days, and possibly some old timer may foretell a mild or severe winter when he hears of their actions. This morning a representative of the furry tribe found its way into Mr. H. Cyril Hill's orchard at Auburn, only to meet death by the teeth of Mr. Hill's collie dog. The rat was two or three hundred yards away from the water, and why it travelled so far is unexplained, as it is not customary for such animals to be seen at such a distance from their native element.

1,000 MEN ENTOMBED IN A MINE

Special to J. E. Heintz & Co.

Fairmont, W. Va., Dec. 6.—An explosion at Mines 6 and 8 of the Fairmont Coal Company at Monongahela, six miles from here, is reported. It is said that 1,000 men are in the two mines. It is impossible to get into the mines, and the number of dead and injured cannot be told until an entrance is effected. Over 100 men are known to have escaped.

FIFTY-THREE YEARS IN MINISTRY

Presbytery Met Last Night For The Induction Service.

The Presbytery of Peterborough met at 7 o'clock last night in St Paul's Church guild room. Rev. J. G. Potter was elected Moderator pro tem. Those present were Revs. Dr. Marsh, D. A. Thompson, Wm. Johnston, J. A. G. Stirling, Wm. Beattie, Jas Shane, D. D. McDonald, S. S. Burns, ministers, and Messrs Wm. Fowler, J. C. Shook, W. G. Sandy, J. McIntosh, F. Sanderson, Wm. Watt, elders.

The first item was the reception of all papers in connection with the transfer of the Rev Robert Pogue from the Presbytery of Philadelphia, U.S.A., and arrangements were, in consequence, perfected for the public service of induction.

The Jubilee services in connection with the fifty years' ministry of the Rev Wm. Duncan of Colborne were arranged for Monday, December 30th. The Presbytery will meet at 1.30. The public services will be held at night, when the Synods of Toronto and Kingston will join with the Presbytery in doing honour to Rev. Mr. Duncan.

ANOTHER YANKEE BANK GOES UNDER

Fort Pitt National Bank Failed to Open Doors To-day

(J. R. Heintz & Co. Special.)

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 6.—The Fort Pitt National Bank failed to open its doors this morning. State Bank Examiner Cunningham has taken charge. The bank has a capital of $1,000,000 and its deposits approximate $4,000,000. In its report to the Comptroller of the Currency giving its condition on Dec. 3rd the Pitt National Bank showed loans and discounts $5,761,607; capital stock, $1,000,000; surplus funds, $1,000,000; deposits subject to check, $1,927,615 and clearing house certificates received $168,000. Its liabilities were $5,527,143. The bank was established in 1885.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 6.—At the Treasury Department it was stated that the Fort Pitt National Bank of Pittsburg was not closed by orders of the Comptroller of the Currency, but that the directors at a meeting held last night decided to close. A statement will be issued by the Comptroller in regard to the institution.

LIVE STOCK MARKET IS BRACING AGAIN

Hogs Expected to Increase in Price—Cattle Shippings

The market men this week have been particularly busy and are now shipping to the city markets. Messrs Morris and Brown, Ruth and Thornton, are shipping to-day four carloads of good cattle. They do not report any difficulty in getting the cattle they want and the price being paid is a fair one, about four cents being the highest. Mr. W. A. Stabler states that he believes the price of hogs is about at its lowest, and an increase may be expected at any time.

A BANQUET AND CHRISTMAS TREE TO BE ARRANGED FOR POOR CHILDREN OF THE CITY

Children's Aid Society Taking the Matter in Hand—Public Meeting to be Called.

CO-OPERATION IS ASKED

The Children's Aid Society are inaugurating a new scheme for the entertainment of the children of the poorer families of the city, which will no doubt prove a successful and a popular one. Their idea is to hold a public dinner and provide an entertainment and Christmas tree in some public place, and invite the poorer children to attend.

Their reason for doing this, instead of delivering toys and food to the various houses, as in the past, is on account of the great increase of population during the past few years and making it almost impossible for all poor families to be visited. The co-operation of the various religious denominations is solicited by the Society in the work, and an organization meeting will be held next Tuesday in the council chmaber. The following letter from the secretary of the Society explains the case in detail:

Dear Sir,—The approaching Christmas reminds us of the many poor children and families in the city, who are not in a position to enjoy the happiness of the festive season.

It has been the practice of the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough in past years to distribute baskets filled with food and toys to a large number of families. With the large increase in population during the past two years it has been found impossible by our officers to distribute Christmas cheer to the large number of deserving families.

This year it has been suggested that the society hold a public dinner and provide an entertainment and a Christmas tree in some public place, to which all the poor families in the city will be invited. In order to insure the best results it is desirable that all religious bodies in the city be represented and help in the carrying out of the scheme.

An organization meeting will be held on Tuesday evening next, the 10th of December, at 7.30 o'clock, in the council chamber, to which we are inviting representatives from all religious denominations and public bodies interested in charity. Will you kindly endeavour to be present on that occasion as one of the representatives of your church?

Yours truly,
E. L. GOODWILL,
Sec. C.A.S.

NINETEEN PRISONERS SENT TO KINGSTON FROM THE WEST

A traveller in the city to-day had but shortly returned from a trip in Western Canada and was telling of conditions as he had found them. Owing to the scarcity of work there, he said that a class of the people are being driven to desperate means to secure money. On the train by which he returned from Fort William there were just 19 prisoners on their way to the reformatory at Kingston.

The travellers on the trains are almost afraid to get off at the stations as is usually done on the long trips to relieve the painful monotony of mile after mile in a car. Cases are reported of men being waylaid and relieved of their money by the class of men mentioned above. The story is not told here in the strong details he mentioned, but he substantiated his statements by his remarks about the prisoners being brought down by a squad of guards; the chief crimes were robberies and hold-ups.

PRICE OF LUMBER NEXT SPRING WILL BE HIGH, SAYS LOCAL FIRM

An Examiner representative in conversation with a lumberman this morning, from Northern Ontario, learned something about the lumber situation, after which the reporter visited a local lumber company to get its opinion on the subject.

The scribe explained to the manager what the visitor told him.

"That is all bosh," was the manager's reply. "I can't understand any man acquainted with the lumber situation at all, saying what he has said. It is true that there will be a small amount of lumber to meet the demands net summer, but the prices will go up in the spring, higher than ever before. The idea of prices coming down at the present time is ridiculous."

"Well, why don't the lumber companies sent back more men and cut more wood?"

"Why, my good fellow, we haven't the wood to cut. If we had the timber limits this year, we had years ago, why, then, there would be some chance of lumber having a standard price, but, mark my words, next year the price of lumber will take a big jump. Read this letter that we received the other day from Mickle, Dyment & Son, Barrie."

The letter read as follows:—

"Dear Sir,—As a valued customer of ours, we feel that we should advise you that there will be a large curtailment this winter in the output of logs, which in turn will reduce the available supply of lumber next summer very considerably, which may have the effect of increasing prices of lumber much higher than they are at present.

"We are not advising you to buy, although we think it wise to let you know the present conditions in the bush, than, after full consideration, if you decided to buy, we feel that you will not be making much of a mistake.

"Trusting to favoured with further patronage, we remain."

After reading the letter the scribe asked the manager about the combine. He said he knew nothing of any combine in Ontario, but was aware that a combine existed in British Columbia, but the lumber situation there did not effect Ontario.

NEW FIRM COMMENCES BUSINESS

Will Manufacture All Kinds of Electrical Specialties

A new electrical firm has commenced business in Peterborough under the name of the Collier-Cunningham Company, two well known Peterborough business men. They will manufacture all kinds of electrical specialties such as electric irons, heaters, etc. The office and plant is located at 214 Hunter street, next door to the Micks Stove Company.

They have a large number of orders on hand, and sufficient work to keep them busy all winter.

Mr. W. Grase, the well known lacrosse player, has accepted a position as traveller, for this firm, and is now out on the road. Mr. Grase has had a large experience as traveller for electrical goods, and holds good connections throughout the Canadian North West.

A BENEFIT CONCERT FOR HARTLEY

Question to be Discussed at a Citizen's Meeting To-night

There will be a meeting this evening of a number of the citizens in the Council Chambers to consider the proposition of arranging a benefit concert for David Hartley. The men in charge are hopeful of obtaining the best possible musical talent in the city and also the services of the 57th Regiment Band. The details of time and place will be arranged this evening at the meeting.

DEAL FALLS THROUGH

The Big National Hotel Scheme Will Not Be Consummated—Dropped This Week

AS IT WAS BEFORE

It was learned to-day on good authority that the proposed scheme of enlarging the National Hotel had been dropped but as yet that success have not been learned. The company which was taking the matter in hand was the North American Investment Company with Mr. W. Young Kinley-sides as the general manager.

It was only a short time ago since an architect was here looking over the proposed site and drawing up plans but there will probably be nothing further done with the building.

The amount of stock to be subscribed was placed at $200,000 and of amount about one-quarter had been secured.

GROOM BEGINS TO ECONOMIZE

Friends Have a Little Fun With Mr. Newlywed

The stringency of the money market is exhibiting itself in divers ways just at present and many of them have a very humourous side. The bridegroom in a recent wedding curtailed expenses as much as possible to the amusement of his friends who witnessed the ceremony. He began by refusing to buy a bouquet of flowers for the bridesmaid, saying that was a dollar extra and was really not needed. Then he walked to his love's home refusing to hire a cab as that was an unnecessary expenditure. The climax came, however when the minister who performed the marriage had to walk from his residence to the bride's home and then back again.

A young husband who starts out to economize in a systematic manner should not have to work when his 20th anniversary comes around.

JUSTICE IS SWIFT IN POWASSAN

Mayor Arrested a Man and Fined Him on the Spot at Midnight

To act as both constable and magistrate—to arrest a man and then proceed to fine him for his offence, was the rather unique experience of Mayor James McArthur, of the town of Powassan, Parry Sound, on Tuesday.

Hugo Ewers, of the neighbouring village of Trout Creek, and John Stuart, a Powassan citizen, got into a quarrel at the New Windsor Hotel, and proceeded to make the night resound with their brawling.

Hotelkeeper Purdon, fearing serious trouble, ran to the other end of the town to summon the mayor to the scene of the fray. Mayor McArthur hurried back with him, and, ascertaining from the spectators that Ewers was most to blame, arrested the Trout Creek man. The mayor fined Ewers on the spot and warned him to be good in future.

RETURN THANKS FOR ASSISTANCE

Mrs. J. H. McClellan, supervisor of All Saints' Industrial Sale, desires on behalf of the ladies of the Guilds, to take this opportunity of thanking the following merchants, who so kindly contributed materials: A W Creasman & Co, J C Turnbull & Co, R Fair & Co, Mr Dickson, M Adams, Richard Hall & Co, W H Hamilton, E Dutton, E F Mason, A Graham, Stroud Tea Co, McDermid & Jury, McFarlane Wilson and Hutchinson & Sturgeon.

Thanks are also due to Mr. Koen of A. W. Creasman's store, who arranged so artistically the scheme of decorations in the various booths. Mrs McClellan wishes to thank Mr. John, proprietor of John's tea, who supplied the tea, cream and sugar for the tea room, and also the ladies of the different booths who put forth every effort to make the sale the success it proved to be, not forgetting the men who gave their services.

PEDDLER REFUSES TO PAY MARKET TOLL

The market clerk has laid an information against Robert Colen, for having sold goods to a party on the other side of Water street, and refused to pay market tolls. The young man says that he sold the goods on Saturday and delivered them to-day and can't see how he can be compelled to pay market toll. The policeman who was in the office this afternoon told him that any person selling within 200 feet of the market must pay toll.

IN THE FIELD AGAIN

Mr. W. H. Hill Announces He Will Stand for Re-election to Water Commission

THREE YEAR TERM IS UP

The retiring Water Commissioner this year is Mr. W H Hill, who at the end of the year completes his third year in that capacity. Mr. Hill, however, announced to-day his intention of entering the field for re-election next January. As far as is known at present there are no aspirants for the position but there is a possibility of a contest.

The retiring commissioner last year was Mr. W H Moore but, he again entered the field and was re-elected. The commissioners are elected for three years, one retiring at the end of each year. Mr. T. F. Matthews will retire next.

ARMOURIES CONTRACTOR IN THE CITY

Mr. Geo. A. Proctor Here on a Short Visit

Mr. Geo. A. Proctor of Sarnia is registered at the National Hotel to-day. Mr. Proctor is here on a business trip to look after the last work before winter on the new Armouries, of which he has the contract. A number of stonecutters are at present employed, but the actual building operations have been suspended. The work will be continued in the spring with the return of the warm weather.

WILL SPEND CHRISTMAS IN JAIL

John Doig Cannot Pay Fine and Will Go to Jail for 20 Days

"I can't pay my fine," remarked John Doig this morning in the police court. "You can't take blood out of a turnip, and I am going to go up on the Hill instead of paying my fine. A fellow can't make 25 cents a day at my business."

It will be remembered that John Doig was the individual who bought brass castings from small boys on Sunday, November 17, and was fined and given ten day in which to pay the fine. He was also fined and given the same conditions on another charge.

He returned to the court this morning, having been notified that his time to pay the fine was up.

WORK OF THE BOYS AT THE Y. M. C. A.

A Banquet to Be Tendered to Intermediate Class of Employed Boys

The Boys' Committee and Boys' Executive of the Y.M.C.A. met last night and after a great deal of study of the work of the junior department, decided to lay their plans before the boys for their approval and co-operation. The committee decided to tender the intermediate class of employed boys a banquet on Monday, Dec. 9th, at 4.30, when plans of the work in their department will be proposed and discussed. The Social Committee composed of twenty-one members meets to-night to prepare plans for the New Year's reception.

SKATING EXCELLENT ON THE LAKE

Many Young People Enjoyed the Pastime Last Evening

The cold snap of the last few days has given the young people of the city their first taste of skating, and they have been making the most of the opportunity. Little Lake is firmly frozen over and the skating is excellent. Last night a very large number were on hand and thoroughly enjoyed a couple of hours on the steel blades. The milder weather of to-day is not looked on with favour by the young people who are apprehensive that under its influence the ice will be spoiled.

THE WEATHER.

Much milder conditions now prevail which will likely continue for some days, as no cold weather is at present in sight. Lowest temperature last night, 18 degrees above zero; at noon, 32 degrees in the shade.

A ONE-TIME TELLER IN LOCAL BANK SHOOTS HIMSELF IN LONELY SHACK IN WINNIPEG

HAD BRAIN TROUBLE

The tragic death of Stanley Burton a former teller of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Montreal was reported in the city last night from Winnipeg, where the young man committed suicide in a lonely shack in the suburbs of the western metropolis. Burton was a son of Edward Burton of Port Hope, collector of Customs, and worked in Peterborough about five years ago just previous to the time he left for Winnipeg.

The dead youth was well and favourably known in this city. He occupied a high standing in society among the young people, and his parents have many sympathizing friends here.

The news of his suicide reached Port Hope yesterday afternoon. His father there had just received a letter from him on Wednesday, when he apparently was in good spirits, and the shock was keenly felt by the parents. A despatch received from Winnipeg gives the following tragic details of the suicide:

"A promising career was terminated in a tragic manner here last night, when Stanley Burton, a clerk in the Bank of Montreal, shot himself while suffering from melancholia, the result of an abscess on the brain. The deed was committed in an unoccupied shack on Fonseca avenue, where the body was found by some boys about 9 o'clock this morning. A revolver was lying by his side, and the fatal shot had passed completely through his brain. Burton was a grandson of a former judge of Ontario, and his parents reside in Port Hope, where his father is collector of Customs. He was a young man of most exemplary habits, and his books at the bank are in faultless condition. So satisfactory had been his services that only the day previous to his rash deed he had been given a substantial bonus as a testimony of appreciation of his work. He had been quite prominent formerly in athletic circles, but of late had been in delicate health, suffering agony at times from the affliction in the head, which affected his brain. No inquest will be held.

THE WELCOMING OF THE THIRD PASTOR TO ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

REV. ROBERT POGUE

whose induction was held last night

HARTLEY REFUSED MONEY TO BRING HONOUR TO PETERBORO'

David Hartley is disgusted over the controversy about the fund which has been talked over by the City Council and so many others, and he wishes it positively understood that he is not seeking for any money and desires none from any individual or corporation.

"There has been too much of this talk about starting a fund," said Hartley, "for my benefit, and I don't want any cheap notoriety from that source."

Hartley wants the public to understand that he is not a pauper and can look after himself. He therefore asks for no money from any one, and desires no one to contribute to any fund for his benefit. He believes he has performed his duty to Peterborough and is satisfied.

Honest and Fair

David states that in all his walking he has acted the honourable part. While in Toronto he could have been bribed to lose the twelve-hour race and made plenty of money, but he felt that the honour of his native city, as well as his own honour, was at stake. He refused the offers and remained loyal to Peterborough without even yielding to temptation for an instant.

Hartley has had plenty of offers to go to Toronto and make money, and he desires to inform the public that he is not dependent upon the Council or any fund for his maintenance. It is quite possible that Hartley will leave Peterborough and go under some management in Toronto.

Some time ago an article appeared in the Examiner to the effect that the lumbering season this year would be a poor one, and the cut would be small, owing to the price of feed, and the high wages demanded by the men.

He said that the high wages demanded by the men, with the high price of feed, might have something to do with the small cut, but that was not the main cause. The lumber companies of Canada are all well supplied with lumber, and have more than the necessary amount to meet present demands. The lumber people are trying to keep the price up, and not let it go down, and therefore they do not want to have too much lumber on their hands.

This, he said, was the main reason for the small cut this winter, and the drain on the lumber yards will be so great next summer that when the lumbering season opens again next winter lumber will be pretty scarce.

"Well, don't you think that some lumberman will lower his price so as to make a big sale?" asked the scribe.

"No; I do not think so. Some of the small fry might do that sort of thing, but the big companies will not and they are the people who control the lumber market. You people do not know anything about these big concerns; they form themselves into a combine and control the whole situation."

The gentleman is down here visiting the different light and telephone companies, selling poles. Speaking of matters up north he said everything was quiet, only that the Canadian Northern Railway had begun to build their line between Kinmount and Pefferlaw, a distance of about 40 miles.

NOMINATIONS WILL TAKE PLACE ON DECEMBER 30th THIS YEAR

Although so far there has been little campaign talk or interest in municipal elections, nevertheless nomination day is not very far away. On Monday, December 30, just three weeks from next Monday, the candidates for the different offices of Water Commissioners, Board of Education, City Council and for the mayoralty will be nominated, and the following Monday, if there is need of an election, polling will take place. It seems hard to realize, in view of the quietness of municipal politics just now, that it is only a matter of a few weeks until the servants of the public will be compelled to give an account of their stewardship at the polls. From this time forward it is expected that the interest in the municipal campaign will begin, although at present there is little talk of the approaching contests.

A NEW PRINCIPAL FOR NORWOOD SCHOOL

At a meeting of the school board held on Saturday evening in the office of the chairman, Mr. J. L. Squire, it was resolved to offer the position of High School principalship to Mr. Goldwin V. Maclean, M.A., at the present time head of the Department of Physics in the London Collegiate Institute. A telegram from Maclean on Monday announced his acceptance of the position.

The Muskrats Leave Home

Muskrats are doing some peculiar "stunts" these days, and possibly some old timer may foretell a mild or severe winter when he hears of their actions. This morning a representative of the furry tribe found its way into Mr. H. Cyril Hill's orchard at Auburn, only to meet death by the teeth of Mr. Hill's collie dog. The rat was two or three hundred yards away from the water, and why it travelled so far is unexplained, as it is not customary for such animals to be seen at such a distance from their native element.

1,000 MEN ENTOMBED IN A MINE

Special to J. E. Bowes & Co.

Fairmont, W. Va., Dec. 6.—An explosion at Mines 6 and 8 of the Fairmont Coal Company at Monongaheta, six miles from here, is reported. It is said that 1,000 men are in the two mines. It is impossible to get into the mines, and the number of dead and injured cannot be told until an entrance is effected. Over 100 men are known to have escaped.

FIFTY-THREE YEARS IN MINISTRY

Presbytery Met Last Night For The Induction Service.

The Presbytery of Peterborough met at 7 o'clock last night in St. Paul's Church guild room. Rev. J. G. Potter was elected Moderator pro tem. Those present were Revs. Dr. Marsh, D. A. Thompson, Wm. Johnston, J. A. G. Stirling, Wm. Beattie, Jas. Shene, D. D. McDonald, S. S. Burns, ministers; and Messrs. Wm. Fowler, J. C. Shook, W. G. Sandy, J. McIntosh, F. Sanderson, Wm. Watt, elders.

The first item was the reception of all papers in connection with the transfer of the Rev. Robert Pogue from the Presbytery of Philadelphia, U.S.A., and arrangements were, in consequence, perfected for the public service of induction.

The Jubilee services in connection with the fifty years' ministry of the Rev. Wm. Duncan of Colborne were arranged for Monday, December 30th. The Presbytery will meet at 1.30. The public services will be held at night, when the Synods of Toronto and Kingston will join with the Presbytery in doing honour to Rev. Mr. Duncan.

ANOTHER YANKEE BANK GOES UNDER

Fort Pitt National Bank Failed to Open Doors To-day

(J. R. Heintz & Co. Special.)

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 6.—The Fort Pitt National Bank failed to open its doors this morning. State Bank Examiner Cunningham has taken charge. The bank has a capital of $1,000,000 and its deposits approximate $4,000,000. In its report to the Comptroller of the Currency giving its condition on Dec. 3rd the Pitt National Bank showed loans and discounts $4,761,807; capital stock, $1,000,000; surplus funds, $1,000,000; deposits subject to check, $1,967,615 and clearing house certificates received $100,000. Its liabilities were $5,127,145. The bank was established in 1855.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 6.—At the Treasury Department it was stated that the Fort Pitt National Bank of Pittsburg was not closed by orders of the Comptroller of the Currency, but that the directors at a meeting held last night decided to close. A statement will be issued by the Comptroller in regard to the institution.

LIVE STOCK MARKET IS BRACING AGAIN

Hogs Expected to Increase in Price—Cattle Shipping

The market men this week have been particularly busy and are now shipping to the city markets. Messrs. Morris and Brown, Rush and Thornton, are shipping to-day four carloads of good cattle. They do not report any difficulty in getting the cattle they want and the price being paid is a fair one, about four cents being the highest. Mr. W. A. Stabler states that he believes the price of hogs is about at its lowest, and an increase may be expected at any time.

A BANQUET AND CHRISTMAS TREE TO BE ARRANGED FOR POOR CHILDREN OF THE CITY

Children's Aid Society Taking the Matter in Hand—Public Meeting to be Called.

CO-OPERATION IS ASKED

The Children's Aid Society are inaugurating a new scheme for the entertainment of the children of the poorer families of the city, which will no doubt prove a successful and a popular one. Their idea is to hold a public dinner and provide an entertainment and Christmas tree in some public place, and invite the poorer children to attend.

Their reason for doing this, instead of delivering toys and food to the various houses, as in the past, is on account of the great increase of population during the past few years and making it almost impossible for all poor families to be visited. The co-operation of the various religious denominations is solicited by the Society in the work, and an organization meeting will be held next Tuesday in the council chmaber. The following letter from the secretary of the Society explains the case in detail:

Dear Sir,—The approaching Christmas reminds us of the many poor children and families in the city, who are not in a position to enjoy the happiness of the festive season.

It has been the practice of the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough in past years to distribute baskets filled with food and toys to a large number of families. With the large increase in population during the past two years it has been found impossible by our officers to distribute Christmas cheer to the large number of deserving families.

This year it has been suggested that the society hold a public dinner and provide an entertainment and a Christmas tree in some public place, to which all the poor families in the city will be invited. In order to insure the best results it is desirable that all religious bodies in the city be represented and help in the carrying out of the scheme.

An organization meeting will be held on Tuesday evening next, the 10th of December, at 7.30 o'clock, in the council chamber, to which we are inviting representatives from all religious denominations and public bodies interested in charity. Will you kindly endeavour to be present on that occasion as one of the representatives of your church?

Yours truly,
E. L. GOODWILL,
Sec. C.A.S.

A traveller in the city to-day had but shortly returned from a trip in Western Canada and was telling of conditions as he had found them. Owing to the scarcity of work, there, he said that a class of the people are being driven to desperate means to secure money. On the train by which he returned from Fort William there were just 19 prisoners on their way to the reformatory at Kingston.

The travellers on the trains are almost afraid to get off at the stations as is usually done on the long trips to relieve the painful monotony of mile after mile in a car. Cases are reported of men being waylaid and relieved of their money by the class of men mentioned above. The story is not told here in the strong details he mentioned, but he substantiated his statements by his remarks about the prisoners being brought down by a squad of guards; the chief crimes were robberies and hold-ups.

PRICE OF LUMBER NEXT SPRING WILL BE HIGH, SAYS LOCAL FIRM

An Examiner representative in conversation with a lumberman this morning, from Northern Ontario, learned something about the lumber situation, after which the reporter visited a local lumber company to get its opinion on the subject.

The scribe explained to the manager what the visitor told him.

"That is all bosh," was the manager's reply. "I can't understand any man acquainted with the lumber situation at all, saying what he has said. It is true that there will be a small amount of lumber to meet the demands net summer, but the prices will go up in the spring, higher than ever before. The idea of prices coming down at the present time is ridiculous."

"Well, why don't the lumber companies send back more men and cut more wood?"

"Why, my good fellow, we haven't the wood to cut. If we had the timber limits this year, we had years ago, why, then, there would be some chance of lumber having a standard price, but, mark my words, next year the price of lumber will take a big jump. Read this letter that we received the other day from Meikle, Dymond & Son, Barrie."

The letter read as follows:—

"Dear Sir,—As a valued customer of ours, we feel that we should advise you that there will be a large curtailment this winter in the output of logs, which in turn will reduce the available supply of lumber next summer very considerably, which may have the effect of increasing prices of lumber much higher than they are at present.

"We are not advising you to buy, although we think it wise to let you know the present conditions in the bush, then, after full consideration, if you decided to buy, we feel that you will not be making much of a mistake.

"Trusting to favoured with further patronage, we remain."

After reading the letter the scribe asked the manager about the combine. He said he knew nothing of any combine in Ontario, but was aware that a combine existed in British Columbia, but the lumber situation there did not effect Ontario.

NEW FIRM COMMENCES BUSINESS

Will Manufacture All Kinds of Electrical Specialties

A new electrical firm has commenced business in Peterborough under the name of the Collier-Cunningham Company, two well known Peterborough business men. They will manufacture all kinds of electrical specialties such as electric irons, heaters, etc. The office and plant is located at 214 Hunter street, next door to the Micka Stove Company.

They have a large number of orders on hand, and sufficient work to keep them busy all winter.

Mr. W. Grace, the well known lacrosse player, has accepted a position as traveller, for this firm, and is now out on the road. Mr. Grace has had a large experience as traveller for electrical goods, and holds good connections throughout the Canadian North West.

A BENEFIT CONCERT FOR HARTLEY

Question to be Discussed at a Citizen's Meeting To-night

There will be a meeting this evening of a number of the citizens in the Council Chambers to consider the proposition of arranging a benefit concert for David Hartley. The men in charge are hopeful of obtaining the best possible musical talent in the city and also the services of the 57th Regiment Band. The details of time and place will be arranged this evening at the meeting.

DEAL FALLS THROUGH

The Big National Hotel Scheme Will Not Be Consummated—Dropped This Week

AS IT WAS BEFORE

It was learned to-day on good authority that the proposed scheme of enlarging the National Hotel had been dropped but as yet the reasons have not been learned. The company which was taking the matter in hand was the North American Investment Company with Mr. W. Young Kinleyside as the general manager.

It was only a short time ago since an architect was here looking over the proposed site and drawing up plans but there will probably be nothing further done with the building.

The amount of stock to be subscribed was placed at $200,000 and of amount about one-quarter had been secured.

GROOM BEGINS TO ECONOMIZE

The stringency of the money market is exhibiting itself in divers ways just at present and many of them have a very humourous side. The bridegroom in a recent wedding curtailed expenses up much as possible to the amusement of his friends who witnessed the ceremony. He began by refusing to buy a bouquet of flowers for the bridesmaid, saying that was a dollar extra and was really not needed. Then he walked to his love's home refusing to hire a cab as that was an unnecessary expenditure. The climax came, however when the minister who performed the marriage had to walk from his residence to the bride's home and then back again.

A young husband who starts out to economize in a systematic manner should not have to work when his 50th anniversary comes around.

JUSTICE IS SWIFT IN POWASSAN

Mayor Arrested a Man and Fined Him on the Spot at Midnight

To act as both constable and magistrate—to arrest a man and then proceed to fine him for his offence, was the rather unique experience of Mayor James McArthur, of the town of Powassan, Parry Sound, on Tuesday.

Hugo Evers, of the neighbouring village of Trout Creek, and John Stuart, a Powassan citizen, got into a quarrel at the New Windsor Hotel, and proceeded to make the night resound with their brawling.

Hotelkeeper Purdon, fearing serious trouble, ran to the other end of the town to summon the mayor to the scene of the fray. Mayor McArthur hurried back with him, and, ascertaining from the spectators that Evers was most to blame, arrested the Trout Creek man. The mayor fined Evers on the spot and warned him to be good in future.

RETURN THANKS FOR ASSISTANCE

Mrs. J. H. McClellan, supervisor of All Saints' Industrial Sale, desires on behalf of the ladies of the Guilds, to take this opportunity of thanking the following merchants, who so kindly contributed materials: A W Cressman & Co, J C Turnbull & Co, R Fair & Co, Mr Dickson, M Adams, Richard Hall & Co, W H Hamilton, R Dutton, E F Mason, A Graham, Stroud Tea Co, McDermid & Jury, McFarlane Wilson and Hutchinson & Sturgeon.

Thanks are also due to Mr. Kean of A. W. Cressman's store, who arranged so artistically the scheme of decorations in the various booths. Mrs McClellan wishes to thank Mr. John, proprietor of John's tea, who supplied the tea, cream and sugar for the tea room, and also the ladies of the different booths who put forth every effort to make the sale the success it proved to be, not forgetting the men who gave their services.

REFUSING THE CONTEST

Mr. Bourassa assumes to be optimistic regarding the results of the coming general elections. His hopefulness seems to be very like whistling to keep up courage in view of the failure of his party to make a good beginning in the bye-elections. The party let St. John's, N.B., go by acclamation, and now Ottawa, with two members, is, by the resolve not to nominate a candidate, presented to the Government. It is to be admitted that St. John's did not present a very promising field. Though in '67, '74, and '91, the riding returned Conservatives, in 1896, 1900 and 1904 Mr. Tucker, Liberal, was returned—in 1904, by a majority of 776, which, singularly enough, was identically the same majority he scored in the elections of 1900. In Ottawa, in 1904, two Liberal members were elected by four-figure majorities — Mr. Belcourt, 1457, and Mr. Stewart, 1053. This, however, should not represent a hopeless proposition for Conservative redemption of the riding, especially if, as is claimed and disclaimed, the Liberal Government has completely and exhaustively forfeited public confidence. In the election of 1900 a Liberal and a Conservative were elected, the latter winning by a majority of only 17. Wednesday evening, the Conservatives of Ottawa, in convention assembled, decided not to contest the bye-election to fill the vacancy created by the elevation of the sitting member, Mr. Belcourt, to the Senate. A little more courage will be necessary if the Conservative cohorts are to be marshalled to victory at the next Dominion elections.

INTELLIGENCE LIGHTLY HELD

The Mail and Empire has this mendaciously misleading statement:

In 1896 the "Tories" took $5 per head from the people for the expenses of government and the construction of the huge public works then under way. In 1907 the grafters took $11 per head. And the grafters now say that they have not raised the taxes.

If, by magnanimous surrender of party right, the organ means by "grafters," the Liberal Government, it seeks to mislead the people. The Mail and Empire knows, as everybody else should know, that both the 'Tories" of 1896, and the Liberals of a later period, only took from the people what the people were willing to give them, or, better perhaps, what the people were able to give. In 1896, under Conservative rule, the people were poor; times were dull, wages low, and the popular capacity for purchasing what they wished to buy, was at its lowest flow. In the succeeding years, under Liberal rule, prosperity came, high wages were earned and paid, the purchasing capacity of the people was increased, and the people bought largely, because they could afford to do so. In 1896, the people bought little, therefore, merchants imported less of the goods upon which a tariff bears, the revenue was less per head, and the taxation seemed lower per head. Under Liberal rule, the same people, a comparatively similar population, enjoyed great prosperity, and bought largely. Therefore, merchants imported more largely of the goods upon which a tariff bears, and the revenue was greatly increased per head. The contention of the Mail and Empire is not only maliciously misleading, but childishly absurd. In 1907, the people contributed to the revenue resulting from tariff taxation, three or four times more than was contributed in 1896, for the simple reason that more goods subject to duty were imported and sold. This latter was done, not by an increased, but decreased, rate of duty, the average tariff rate under Conservative rule, in 1896 being 16.31 per cent., and under the Liberals 15.81. The import and purchase of dutiable goods in 1907, was so much greater, than in 1896, that the resulting revenue was nearly three times greater.

To show the absurdity and crookedness of the Mail and Empire's reasoning it is only necessary to take Peterborough as an illustration. In 1896, the taxpayers of Peterborough paid taxes to the amount of $74,777.98, and in 1907 they paid $136,411.26, an increase of $61,633.28. According to the reasoning of the party-mad journal, the people of Peterborough were much more heavily taxed in 1907 than in 1896. Were they? Not to any great extent. The rate of taxation in 1896 was 17 mills on the dollar, and in 1907 it was 17 1-2 mills. It was not the rate that accounted for an increase of nearly $62,000. In 1896, the assessment of Peterborough was $4,311,655, and in 1907, it was $7,067,231. Yet this year, with an increase of rate of only one-half a mill, the taxes paid were nearly double those paid in 1896, simply because the assessment was nearly double that of 1896. The property of the ratepayers had increased in value, and new values had been created. On the same principle the revenue of Canada was in 1907, nearly three times greater than that of 1896, because the people were nearly three times more prosperous, bought nearly three times more imported goods, and the importers consequently paid more duties. The excess of business and prosperity of 1907 was sufficient to produce a customs revenue three times greater than in 1896, on a lower average rate of tariff taxation. The Mail and Empire must hold the intelligence of its readers in light esteem.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY INSPECTION

Peterborough Considering Erection of Carnegie Library

Mr T. H. Leavitt, Inspector of Public Libraries, attended the opening of the new Carnegie Library at Walkerburg, which is, he says, one of the most complete small institutions of its kind in the Province. The counties of Kent and Victoria make annual grant to all the libraries within their boundaries. Consequently they secure the best of equipments and books. Peterborough is considering the advisability of applying to Mr Andrew Carnegie for aid in the erection of an elaborate library, for the maintenance of which it has a large income from the Nicholls estate. Dresden, too, is commencing to build an $8,000 library.—Mail and Empire.

A song service each night at 6.45.

SEVEN SHOTS TO SILENCE THE BEAR

Thomas Puffer, a few days after the deer hunting season was over, killed a very large black bear near Koshamogagog Lake. It measured seven feet from lip and the fur was in an excellent condition. He fired seven shots at it. It fell each time and he thought that he had it killed, after it had lain quiet for some time, it was prepared to spring at him, when he went up to it. Another shot was required to silence Mr. Bruin.

AND THE MUSTARD WAS GOING FAST

The following from the Journal, of Yellow Grass, Sask., gives an account of a peculiar burglary of a store in that town owned by Mr F. B. Elliott, a nephew of Mr R. A. Elliott, real estate man, Water street, Peterborough:

An attempt was made to burglarize F B. Elliot and Company's store on Friday evening last. At about 12.30 C Denham, porter at the Maple Leaf Hotel, noticed a man in the store busily engaged in removing a quantity of goods, and promptly notified Mr Elliott and proceeded to arouse the constable, who proved to be out of town. Failing to find the constable, Denham proceeded to call Magistrate Urquhart, who was shortly on the scene.

Meanwhile Mr Elliott had with all speed gone to the store, and on his arrival found a man throwing a varied assortment of merchandise out through one of the front windows on to the sidewalk. Mr. Elliott shouted to the man and asked him what he was doing and received the reply, "You had better get some of this mustard, there won't be any here in the morning; there is a wagon coming for this stuff in a few minutes."

On the arrival of Mr Urquhart, the burglar was arrested and lodged in jail. Saturday he was arraigned before Magistrates Urquhart and Orton and gave his name as William Benning. He was committed for trial and taken to Regina by a mounted policeman from Weyburn.

SIMPLE BUT EFFECTIVE

Ask your druggist if the following simple recipe will not give relief to those suffering with Kidney trouble. Here it is: One ounce sweet spirits of nitre, four ounces syrup of rhubarb, one ounce compound vimosa. He will mix it for you at a small cost. Directions are a dessertspoonful in water after meals and at bedtime. At this time of the year it is advisable to wear warm clothing about the kidneys. Boiled water is preferable to drink as it absorbs any poison in the blood. Don't use stimulants and eat well cooked food. 11

Cases That Will Be Heard At County Court Sessions

On Tuesday, December 10, the regular sessions of the County Court will be opened by His Honour Judge Weller with two cases on the docket.

Macpherson vs. Pappas

The plaintiffs, F. R. J. MacPherson and Company, claim they did certain work and supplied certain goods to the defendant. A final statement of their account with the defendant was sent him, and $57.28 was found to be due the plaintiffs. One hundred and fifty dollars was paid the plaintiffs, and $197.28 is still unpaid. The plaintiffs claim this amount with interest from date of issue of said writ.

The defendant claims that if the plaintiffs did perform the work and supply the goods mentioned, the work was negligently and unskilfully done and the goods and materials were defective. The defendant says he incurred much expense in having the same put in a proper order and suitable condition. Defendant also claims $100 damages with costs.

Collier vs. Donohue

The plaintiff, Mr. W. H. Collier, claims that on May 23, 1903, the defendant, T. J. Donohue of Montreal, made a promissory note now overdue whereby he promised to pay the plaintiff on his order $500. The note became due on May 20, 1903. It was presented for payment and dishonoured. Plaintiff demands $598.00, principal and interest, and his costs of the action. Hall, Madd & Davidson for plaintiff.

The defendant denies the allegations of the plaintiff's statement of claim, and says that the note was delivered to the plaintiff for the purpose of gaming, wagering and illegal gambling in stock transactions, and is void upon the ground that it was given for illegal wagering and gambling transactions. The defendant alleges in the alternative that the note has been paid in full. O'Connell and Gordon for defendant.

A writ was also issued to-day against Mr. Robt. H. Leary, Mr. H. A. McCollum claiming the sum of $500 damages for breach of covenant in an agreement in which the defendant agreed for a term of twenty years not to directly or indirectly engage in a cab or livery business in Peterborough, and the plaintiff asks for an injunction restraining defendant from engaging in that business for a period of twenty years, extending from February 21, 1905. O'Connell and Gordon for plaintiff. Statement of defendant has not yet been filed.

Harriers' Prizes Will Be Presented In Gym. To-night

To-night in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, the prizes won in the recent indoor meet in the Brock street rink will be presented to the local winners by Mr. Vincent Eastwood, Hon. Vice-President of the Harriers' Club, and the public is cordially invited to be present for the event. In addition to the presentation there will be two lively games of basketball between the Y.M.C.A. League teams.

The following are the prize winners. The prizes will consist of gold medals for the winners, and silver medals for the second and third men.

50 yards handicap — 1st prize, Fred McGrath, Peterborough; second prize, Norman Darling, Y. M. C. A. Harriers.

880 yards handicap — First prize, Len Dobson, Y.M.C.A. Harriers; second prize, Norman Darling, Y. M. C. A. Harriers.

One mile open race — First prize, A. W. Haddleton, Irish Canadians; second prize, Fred Simpson, Y. M. C. A. Harriers; third prize, Ray Best, Y.M.C.A. Harriers.

Three mile special race — First prize, Jack Tait, West End Y. M. C. A., Toronto; second prize, Ernie Wilson, Y. M. C. A. Harriers.

The Harriers and Tigers will meet in the first basketball game and the Arrows and Alerts in the second. The presentation will take place in the intermission.

LOCAL Y.M.C.A. WANTED IN THE GAMES

C. A. A. U. Organizing a Championship Series in Basketball

Mr. Charles James, physical director of the Y.M.C.A. has received a communication from Mr. Ernest Wilkins, the secretary of the Athletic Department of the Young Men's Christian Associations of Toronto, asking for a Peterborough senior basket ball team in a union to be formed by the C. A. A. U. If the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. enters a team in such a league the first games, which will be home and home games, will be in Peterborough, Kingston and Toronto. The entrance fee will be placed at four dollars per team to defray expenses for medals, etc.

The matter will be taken up by the local basketball men, possibly this evening, and is is probable that this city will contribute a team.

JAPANESE AGENTS ARE ANGRY

Foreign Minister Says Emigration Will Be Closely Limited.

VISCOUNT HAYASHI IS FIRM

Hon. Mr. Lemieux Receives Assurances—Details to Be Given Later—Commissioner Ishii Presents Report—Says Objection Is to Laborers—Agriculturists Do Well —Tyranny of Labor Unions.

Tokio, Dec. 6.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, the Canadian Minister of Labor, held a lengthy conference yesterday with Viscount Hayashi, Minister of Foreign Affairs, at the Foreign Office, and received verbal assurances of the limitation of Japanese emigration, and that he will be given later full details of plans on foot for its control.

A committee from the emigration agencies here has held a conference with Minister Hayashi, who announced that the plan of the Japanese Government was closely to limit all emigration to the United States and Canada. Some members of the committee angrily announced their opposition to this course, but Minister Hayashi remained firm and dismissed the committee without changing his attitude or making any compromise.

Kiki Yiro Ishii, chief of the Japanese Bureau of Commerce, who a few days ago returned from his visit to the United States and Canada, where he was sent to investigate the emigration problem, gathered representatives of the Tokio newspapers around him at the Foreign Office last evening and discussed his mission abroad. He said that there were two classes of Japanese in America, day laborers, of whom there were 15,000, and a few agriculturists. It was against the emigration of the former that objection was raised. He found that many of this class were desired by employers, but others said their methods of living were objectionable. The Japanese agriculturists generally were successful.

Baron Ishii described the existing economic conditions in America, and explained the method of state self-government in the United States. He said that between the trusts and the labor unions the middle class of Americans and foreign laborers suffered, declaring that union labor was largely controlled by unreasoning persons, their attitude being almost that of tyrants, and they were liable to destroy anything standing in their way.

"Japanese engaged in agriculture as land owners or leasers," said Baron Ishii, "require a few of the best class of their countrymen as laborers, but the Government of Japan has been limiting the emigration of this class."

FIRE IN GUELPH HOTEL.

Domestics Rescued After Exciting Time—Cut Off by Smoke.

Guelph, Dec. 6.—Fire broke out yesterday in a storeroom in the basement of the Royal Hotel, and before it was put out some damage was done to the basement of the building. Volumes of smoke spread throughout the whole hotel, and the escape of several of the domestics was cut off. Two of them were taken from the upper storeys by the firemen and carried in safety to the ground, none the worse except for the fright they got. The damage amounts to only about $2,000. The hotel proper will continue in working order, as the ground floor and the upper portion of it is untouched.

NEGRO HAS SLAYING FIT.

Runs Amuck and Shoots Seven White Men, Then Is Killed.

Augusta, Ark., Dec. 6.—Crazed by cocaine, Wash Muscay, negro, ran amuck here yesterday, shooting seven white persons, two of whom were women. The negro was finally corralled in the railroad yard and shot to death by a posse, fighting until he fell, literally riddled with bullets. One of Muscay's victims will die.

FAMOUS ACTRESS SUICIDES.

Mrs. Bloodgood Sends Bullet Through Roof of Her Mouth.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 6.—Mrs. Clara Bloodgood, the actress, committed suicide by shooting in her room at the Hotel Stafford here last evening.

Mrs. Bloodgood's body was found lying on the bed with a bullet-hole through the roof of her mouth. Nearby lay a book entitled, "How to Shoot Straight," and a 38-calibre revolver with three chambers empty. She attended a matinee performance at Albaugh's Theatre in the afternoon, and returned to her hotel about four o'clock, seemingly in the best of spirits.

Later, when it was time for the curtain to raise for her own show at the Academy of Music, where she was appearing in "The Truth," she had not put in an appearance. Word was sent to the Stafford Hotel and a bellboy was sent up to her room. Just as he approached the door he heard a pistol shot. Hurrying back to the office, he notified the clerks of what he had heard. An investigation was made, and Mrs. Bloodgood was found stretched on the bed as described.

The only motive he can ascribe is that Mrs. Bloodgood feared an attack of nervous prostration. She had been working very hard, he said, and she feared a breakdown.

Mrs. Bloodgood left a note addressed to her husband, who is said to be on his way to this city.

The audience at the Academy of Music was dismissed with the announcement that there would be no performance owing to a sudden indisposition of Mrs. Bloodgood.

STRIKE TO SHOW SYMPATHY.

Fifty Thousand Mill Hands Walk Out In Russian Town.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 6.—Fifty thousand mill hands employed in St. Petersburg walked out yesterday on a one-day strike as a mark of sympathy with the thirty-seven Social-Democratic members of the second Douma, who were yesterday arraigned on a charge of high treason.

Seventeen soldiers and civilians are also being tried, charged with the same offences.

In addition the students of the University of St. Petersburg tried to hold a big demonstration.

Several thousand young men and women listened to revolutionary speeches, but they were rapidly dispersed by troops and police.

ACCUSED OF BIGAMY.

Police Arrest Charles Shaw While Holding a Bridal Reception.

Kingston, Dec. 6.—A man from Hamilton, Charles Shaw, a motorman, was married on Tuesday night, and Wednesday night he was an inmate of the police cells, accused of bigamy. He was taken from the home of the bride while receiving congratulations.

He is accused of deserting a wife and two babies, one four weeks' old, living on Montreal street, and within a few blocks away from Miss Ethel Watkins, whom he had just married.

The young woman fainted when she learned she had been deceived, so did the first wife, who was formerly Miss M. Gascoign of this city.

Old Man Rescued.

Brockville, Dec. 6.—Rescued just in the nick of time, as his house was burning down, was the experience of Thomas Miller, a farmer, living alone about 15 miles from Brockville.

It was just before daybreak yesterday morning that the attention of neighbors was directed to the scene by the reflection of the blaze. Miller, who is very old, deaf and an odd character generally, had come outside and was about to re-enter for some valuable papers he had forgotten, when he was restrained by force. The house collapsed a few minutes later, destroying the entire contents.

Man's Nose Cut Off.

St. Thomas, Dec. 6.—Mr. Oscar Little met with a strange accident at Union, where the Bell Telephone Co. is doing some work. Mr. Little is foreman of an erecting gang, and had gone up a high pole to make a fastening. The wire was at high tension and as he approached it broke, coming down across his face in such a manner that it made a clean cut of his nose. The organ was left hanging, and the unfortunate man held it back in place and immediately visited Dr. Jackson, who stitched it on.

Royal Couple Seasick.

Brest, France, Dec. 6.—There was a very heavy sea in the channel Wednesday night, and H. M. battleship Renown was tossed about so violently that the royal couple were sea-sick, and the Renown made for this harbor.

To-day they will go by train to Bordeaux, where the King will be examined by a specialist in connection with the recent operation on his throat.

H. J. Clark New Inspector.

Belleville, Dec. 6.—Johnston Johnston, for 35 years school inspector for South Hastings, resigned yesterday, and his resignation was accepted by the county council, now in session. H. J. Clarke, a teacher in the high school here, was appointed in Mr. Johnston's stead.

Four Heads Decorate the Gates.

Tangier, Dec. 6.—Mogador, the Anflous tribesman, has won a decisive victory over the troops of Mulai Hafid, the so-called Sultan of the south.

The tribesmen took many prisoners, and the heads of four of Hafid's leaders are now exposed on the gates of Mogador.

Revolver Duel With Burglars.

Montreal, Dec. 6.—An attempt to rob the east end branch of the Bank of Hochelaga was frustrated yesterday morning by the courage of the night watchman, who, after a lively revolver duel with the burglars, succeeded in frightening them away.

Bank Manager Gone, Also $4,000.

Butler, Pa., Dec. 6.—Milan Urich, manager of the International Exchange Bank at Lynder, near here, has been missing since last week.

Yesterday when an expert locksmith opened the bank vault it was discovered $4,000 was gone.

Bank Clerk Shoots Himself.

Burford, Dec. 6.—Utterly without explanation is the suicide of R. R. Dawson, teller of the Crown Bank, here yesterday. He shot himself with a pistol at 10.30, and was dead a few minutes later.

The manager, R. H. Forneri, heard the shot in Dawson's room above the bank, and, rushing upstairs, he found the young man dead with a revolver beside him.

He was of an exceptionally buoyant disposition and enjoyed himself the night before at a dance at Harley, returning at 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

He complained of being ill shortly before taking his life.

An inquest was considered unnecessary, and the body was sent to his home in Orangeville for burial.

Fire at Rodney.

Rodney, Dec. 6.—A fire occurred in the village yesterday morning which destroyed the home of William Sprague. Considerable furniture was saved. The house, which was owned by Mr. Richard Johnston, carried no insurance.

Twenty Below Zero.

Utica, N. Y., Dec. 6.—In the Mohawk Valley and throughout Adirondack points Wednesday night, the mercury was from zero to 5 below, while Moorehouseville reports 20 below, and Big Moose 24 below.

Two Trainmen Killed.

Johnstown, Pa., Dec. 5.—Two trainmen were killed and one received probably fatal injuries yesterday with a freight train on the B. & O. Railroad, which failed to pass over a switch at Adams, near here.

Liverpool Grain and Produce.

Bacon, long clear middles, light, steady, 55s 6d; long clear middles, heavy, firm, 55s; short clear backs, steady, 50s; clear bellies, steady, 53s. Shoulders, square, steady, 35s. Turpentine spirits, dull, 35s 9d.

New York Dairy Market.

Cheese, steady, unchanged; receipts, 1423.

Eggs—Firm; receipts, 4997. State, Pennsylvania and nearby brown and mixed first to extra firsts, 31c to 34c; western and southern firsts, 30c to 32c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—London cables are firmer at 12c to 12¾c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Dec. 5.—Receipts of live stock at the city market were large for Wednesday and Thursday, over 120 loads, but not being able to get the G. T. R. returns, we cannot give a definite account of the numbers in each class.

Exporters.

There was one load of exporters that weighed 1450 lbs. that were bought for butcher purposes at $4.75 per cwt. There were no buyers for export cattle.

Butchers.

Geo. Rowntree bought for the Harris Abattoir Company, 18 car loads of cattle and quoted prices as follows: A few good loads at $4.15 to $4.50; good cows and medium steers, $3.25 to $3.80; common cows, and light steers and heifers, $2 to $3; canner bulls, at 75c to $2 per cwt. Also one load of cattle (exporters), from Maybee & McDonald, 1440 lbs. each, at $4.75 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report the best class of heavy feeders as being scarce, and a trifle firmer, while the common grades of feeders and stockers barely hold their own. Messrs Murby handled over 400 cattle during the week, and quote prices as follows: Best feeders, 1000 to 1100 lbs., at $3.50 to $3.90 per cwt.; best feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $3.20 to $3.50; best stockers, 800 to 900 lbs., at $2.85 to $3.15; best stockers, 600 to 800 lbs., at $2.40 to $2.75; common stockers, unchanged, at $1.50 to $1.75.

Milkers and Springers.

Deliveries of milkers and springers were large this week, but the quality generally was not as good as on some previous weeks, as will be seen reflected in the average prices of loads sold by the dealers, altho there were some few choice quality cows. Prices ranged from $25 to $62.50 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts not very large and quality generally not first-class. Prices steady at $5 to $6 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The run of sheep and lambs was large and prices were lower. Export ewes sold at $3.75 to $4; lambs, $4.25 to $5.25 per cwt.; calves, at $3 to $5 per cwt. Cull sheep, $2.75 to $3 per cwt.

Hogs.

Deliveries light and prices unchanged. Mr. Harris quotes selects at $5; lights, $4.75; stores, $4.50.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

Veals—Receipts, 250 head; active and 25c lower, $5 to $9.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 5100 head; fairly active; pigs, steady; others, 5c to 10c lower; heavy mixed and yorkers, $5.30 to $5.35; mostly $5.30; roughs, $4.75 to $4.90; stags, $3.00 to $4.25; dairies, $5.50 to $5.55.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 10,600 head; slow and lower; lambs, $5 to $6.50; yearlings and wethers, $5 to $5.25; ewes, $4.50 to $5; sheep, mixed, $2.50 to $5.10; Canada lambs, $6 to $6.40.

New York Live Stock.

Calves—Receipts, 400; veals slow, but steady; barnyard calves and westerns, in fair demand and weak. Ordinary to fair veals sold at $7 to $8.50; No sales of barnyards or western calves.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 7051; sheep, dull and 25c lower; lambs, slow to 75c lower. Sheep sold at $4.25 to $5; lambs, at $4 to $6.90.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Cattle—Receipts, estimated at about 7000; market steady to strong; steers, $3.75 to $6.60; cows, $2 to $5.35; heifers, $3.50 to $5; bulls, $2.60 to $4.85; calves, $3 to $6.50; stockers and feeders, $3 to $4.50.

Hogs—Receipts, estimated at about 30,000; market, steady; choice heavy and shipping, $5.10 to $5.20; light butchers', $5.10 to $5.20; light mixed, $4.95 to $5.05; packers, $4.95 to $5; pigs, $4.85 to $4.90; bulk of sales, $4.90 to $5.10.

Sheep—Receipts, estimated at about 12,000; market, dull; sheep, $3 to $5; lambs, $5.25 to $6.25; yearlings, $4.75 to $5.85.

Mauretania Breaks Record.

Queenstown, Dec. 6.—The arrival of the Mauretania off Daunt's Rock (Queenstown) at 5.49 p. m. means that she has covered the distance from Sandy Hook lightship in 4 days 22 hours and 28 minutes. The previous record of 4 days 22 hours and 50 minutes was made by the Lusitania, sister ship of the Mauretania. Consequently the Mauretania has beaten the Lusitania by 22 minutes.

The Mauretania cleared Sandy Hook lightship Nov. 30, at 2.21 p. m.

A MESSAGE FROM CHINA HALL

China Hall's Stock is now complete, and the present is a good time to make selections for Christmas. The stock is the heaviest and most varied it has ever been, and taken as a whole would do credit to the largest city in the Dominion. The Store will be open evenings until after Xmas, and this is opening week, during which the public are invited to inspect the Two Show Rooms and view the newest productions in Pottery. Our Dinner Ware Show Room (just completed) is well worth a visit.

ACCIDENT FAKIRS.

Men Who Are Able to Swindle the Insurance Companies.

"Accident insurance companies are very suspicious of all accidents involving injury to the knee, for it is on his knee that the accident fakir mainly relies."

The speaker, a surgeon, frowned and went on:

"There are men who make a living out of fake accidents. They travel from city to city; they insure in every company that issues accident policies; then, with a fake injury, they proceed to collect dues.

"An accident fakir—for so we call these men—has usually a knee that he can slip out at will. He purposely stumbles over an open trap or some hard, sharp obstacle, puts his knee out deftly, raises a big holler so as to secure a lot of witnesses and then hobbles home.

"He doesn't notify his insurance companies till the next day. By then his knee is so swollen that an accurate examination of it is impossible. We cannot tell whether it is one of those fake, self slipping knees or not. So we pay the man his money, and he seeks new pastures.

"There was one man—he is in jail now—who in nine years collected over $11,000 in accident policies with the help of a knee that he could slip out as easily as I slip my hand out of my glove."

HOW TO WIN BATTLES.

Other things being equal, good shooting is the determining factor in war. Poorly drilled and hastily organized bodies of men can give a good account of themselves if they know how to shoot and hit what they shoot at.

In our war for independence, says Army and Navy Life, the colonists were woodsmen. They carried and used their arms to supply their homes with food and to protect them from the savage. As marksmen they vastly outclassed the British, and that more than anything else gave Washington the final victory.

Again, in our great civil war mark the effect of a general knowledge of firearms. In the south were sporting people. They were fond of riding and hunting. Shooting at target and at game entered into their sports and pastimes. The north was commercial.

Its men knew little or nothing of firearms save the flintlocks of their grandfathers, objects of curiosity in their shops or homes, except in the far west, where the life of 1776 was still being lived. The result was that in the east the southern troops were generally victorious for a couple of years until the northern troops learned to shoot. What little success the north had was in the west, where they were little better than a standoff.

A Case of Bluff.

"Talking about bluffing," said the horseman, "there was a chap who thought blacksmithing looked simple and easy, and so, being out of work, he decided to have a try at it. He went to a smith and asked for a job.

"'Well,' said the smith, 'you are a strong, likely looking young fellow. What experience have you had?'

"'Eleven years,' was the prompt answer.

"'All right. I'll try you,' said the blacksmith. 'Shoe that mare while I go home to dinner.'

"The smith on his return from dinner frowned and said to the new hand:

"'What! Haven't you got that mare shod yet?'

"The bluffer bit his lip, flushed and replied:

"'I can't get her confounded foot in the vise.'"—Exchange.

CANADA SHOULD REACH OUT.

Time Now to Establish a Foreign Trade.

"Canadians should not be lulled into a false sense of security by the present good times. The lean years are bound to come, and Canadian manufacturers should pay some attention to foreign trade."

These were the words of A. W. Donly to the Board of Trade at Toronto. Mr. Donly is the commercial agent of the Dominion Government in Mexico, and he has completed a tour of Canada for the purpose of awakening to a sense of the possibilities of trade with Mexico the business men of Canada.

He presented Mexico as a progressive and prosperous country, instancing that failures there were 24 per cent. less than in Canada.

Seventy per cent. of the foreign trade of the country was now in the hands of the Americans, while cheap European products practically do not enter into the Mexican trade. Canadians have $60,000,000 well invested in Mexico and a strong feeling in favor of Canadians was manifest.

"Advertiser, get a good local agent, and send a traveller down regularly," was Mr. Donly's advice to those manufacturers who decide on making a venture.

A Gentleman Unafraid.

The editor of the St. John Sun pays an earnest tribute to the late Minister of Education for Manitoba who, from his deathbed, the other week, sent a message to the people of Brandon, his constituents and fellow citizens, which, with pride that the city of St. John bred such a man, is published in the columns of his old home journal.

The editor continues: "Dr. McInnis was only 42 years old. A week before, he stood, full of bodily and mental vigor, just over the threshold of a brilliant and useful public career. He sent this message with the full knowledge that his work was done, that in a few hours he must leave this world and its activities—a world which had been good to him and in which he had taken keen delight. And he never whimpered, never gave a sign of self-pity or fear. With the long shadow creeping over his face, his thought was for the good of his people and of the town he loved. Knowing that all his share of Brandon's future would be six feet of grass mound, he still could calmly advise those who would participate in its progress and partake of its prosperity how best to build—to improve their hospitals, to provide schools for the children of the new peoples, to leave room for beauty and to guard its public utilities.

"No man could make a better end. There is more than courage shining through that message. To many it is given to face death bravely, but to few to show in their supreme moment such clear and splendid unselfishness. The town of Brandon, even in its mourning, is to be envied. The memory of this man should prove for it particularly, and for all Canadians, a high inspiration."

To Build Artificial Island.

The war department has determined upon plans for the building of an artificial island at the entrance to Chesapeake bay. This island will be built up from a submerged ledge and will be made sufficiently large to contain, besides a battery to command the approach to the bay's entrance, quarters and barracks for men and a parade ground for drill, together with suitable storehouses for provisions and ammunition which would be required for a protracted period. A part of the programme is the construction of an artificial harbor to accommodate the supply of boats and submarines, the latter to form an adjunct of the coast defense system.—Harper's Weekly.

Cobesa di Vaca explored the Gila river country in 1535 and reported that the natives were dressed in cotton garments.

GETS $100 BY WALKING THE TIGHT ROPE

This is What Citizen Considers David Hartley Has To Do

Editor, Examiner.

The way our Mayor and aldermen do business seems a poor one to me I refer to the way they got out of giving the grant to David Hartley who has fought and gained so many hard fought battles We all remember, in Central Park, with what glowing words our Mayor spoke of the feats our noble little walker has performed He wanted to do something substantial But after the excitement had died out he and the aldermen began to fear some one would kick Elections are coming on and they probably want to show the public how careful they are One gentleman opposed it because he opposed the grant to the bowlers

This same gentleman has taken several outings in trying to get in connection with some volcano to beat the city Here is a man born and brought up in our city who has done more to advertise it than any other His feats are in all the papers of America, and our city fathers will make a grant of $100 on condition that someone walks over Niagara Falls on a tight rope Now let me tell those gentlemen that this will not gain them votes

Number of lbs milk to lb. cheese —11 10.
Average price per lb of cheese—11 70c.

THE TWO INVINCIBLES

Cod Liver Oil and Iron

Cod Liver oild and iron in some form or other are prescribed by physicians the world over, more than any other two remedies the world has ever known, for anaemia or poor blood, weakness, convalescence and all wasting and pulmonary diseases

Iron, because it is the basis of the blood and without a sufficient amount the blood is impoverished, watery, pale and impure

Cod Liver Oil, because it contains curative and reconstructive qualities greater than that possessed by any other one medicinal agent

In Vinol, modern science has given to the world a combination of these two world-famed tonics — Cod Liver Oil and Iron, but shorn of all useless oil or disagreeable features

Vinol is made by a scientific, extractive and concentrative process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate-of-iron all the medicinal, healing, body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil

As a body-builder and strength-creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, after sickness, and for Chronic Coughs Colds, Bronchitis, and all throat and lung troubles, Vinol is unexcelled

We ask Peterborough people to give Vinol a trial It won't cost anything unless it gives satisfaction. McDermid & Jury, Druggists, Peterborough, Ont. Also the Market Drug Store.

Presentations Made To Two Past Preceptors Of The Knights

Sir Knights Batten and Armstrong Were Honoured By Their Fellow Knights Last Night at the Regular Meeting.

OFFICERS WERE ELECTED

At the regular meeting of the Royal Black Preceptory, No 261, Knights of Ireland, held last night in the Orange Hall, Simcoe street, the election of officers for the ensuing year took place, and the occasion was marked by presentations to two members of the Preceptory who have given most faithful service to the Order for many years, Wor Sir Knight W. H. G. Armstrong and Rt Wor. Sir Knight Jos. Batten, both of whom were presented with a handsome Past Preceptor's jewel as a mark of the esteem in which they are regarded by their fellow members of the Preceptory

The presentation to Sir Knight Knight Batten was made by Sir Knight Armstrong on behalf of the Order, while the following address was read by Sir Knight E G. Clarke:

Peterborough Royal Black Preceptory, No 261.
December, 5, 1907.

To Right Worshipful Sir Knight, Joseph Batten,
Past Preceptor of R B.P. No. 261.
Peterborough, Ont

Dear Sir Knight and Brother,—

It is with extreme pleasure that we, your fellow Sir Knights gathered in regular open preceptory, take this opportunity of expressing to you in some small degree our appreciation of your esteemed services for so many years past in this preceptory Having obtained all the degrees that the institution is capable of conferring upon you, there was at once a manifestation on your part of a devoted interest in the work of the Chapter

Your good counsel ever tended for peace and harmony in our meetings, your regular attendance while Worshipful Preceptor of this Preceptory showed your willingness to devote your abilities and time towards advancing the interests of our most glorious institution During the many occasions on which you attended the meetings of the grand Black Chapter you have always upheld the prestige of the Order and this local preceptory As you advance in years we deem it a duty as well as a golden opportunity to express to you our great regard for your untiring labours We beg of you to accept this Past Preceptor's jewel as a small memento of the great esteem and regard in which you are held by your fellow Sir Knights and upon the many occasions which we hope it may adorn your breast may it serve to remind you of the good feelings for you of a united brotherhood

The following address was read by Sir Knight E G. Clarke to Sir Knight Armstrong, while Sir Knight Robt Juby made the presentation of the handsome jewel:

Peterborough Royal Black Preceptory, No 261,
December, 5, 1907

To Worshipful Sir Knight,
W H. G. Armstrong,
Past Preceptor of R B.P. No. 261.
Peterborough, Ont

Dear Sir Knight and Brother,—

It is with great pleasure that we take this opportunity of expressing to you our high esteem and tender gratitude for the very able services you have rendered this Preceptory and your fellow Sir Knights during your late term of office You have not only devoted much time and talent on your work as a Preceptor, but you have given every encouragement and assistance possible to the several fellow officers of this Royal Black Preceptory

Since your entrance to office your noble bearing and splendid ritualistic work has inspired all of us to attain to the highest degree and become more attentive and interested in the aims and objects of this noble Order.

Time is too short, space does not permit, and words are incapable of expressing to you our heartfelt gratitude and kind regard for your untiring labours, undaunted courage and persistent efforts towards the furtherance of those principles which tend to better citizenship among your fellow Sir Knights

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are only local, for, as a matter of fact they sap the vitality of mind and body, and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, burning, and stinging sensations of piles, and is a thorough and positive cure for every form of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes, stubborn disease.

SUNSET OF "GLAD HAND" BANKERS

Chicago Bankers Say It Now Belongs to The Past

Mr. George E Allen, a banker, is quoted as saying at Chicago that the day of "gland hand banking" has passed.

It is to be hoped that this is true. Certainly it has received a very severe setback from which it will take some time to recover, but doubtless as times grow better it will again make its appearance.

Shredded Wheat Concert Closed Successful Bazaar

The Cereal, in Its Various Forms, Was Served to a Large Number Last Night.

A FINANCIAL SUCCESS

The big sale of Christmas presents under the auspices of the ladies of All Saints' church, was brought to a successful close yesterday evening in Bradburn's opera house, with a Shredded Wheat banquet. The occasion was an enjoyable one, on account of the excellent supper provided by the Shredded Wheat Company, and the alacrity with which it was served by the several young lady waitresses.

Early in the evening the banquet guests began to arrive, and before 6.30 o'clock, the three lengthy tables were filled. Altogether there were about 250 persons who sat down before the excellent spread. The menu consisted almost entirely of the products of the Shredded Wheat Company, and in even the chocolate candy could be found the shreds of the wheat, and where it was least expected.

The superintendent of the tables was Mrs. McClellan, who looked looked after the supervision of the supply of eatables perfectly. She was assisted by Mrs. Lundy, Mrs Metheral, Mrs. Bonus and Mrs. Wolstenholm.

The ladies who looked after the tables so successfully were complimented on their work. They were Misses Florence Corcoran, Minnie Pearse, Aggie Sabin, Beatrice Harris, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs .Blondin, Miss Dunford, Miss Arthurs, Miss Lilian Rush, Miss Wells, and Miss Lily Lightheart.

Needless to say the bazaar was a very successful one and the ladies of All Saints' deserve to be complimented for their business ability. The receipts have not yet been totalled but the sum will be a substantial one and will go towards the building fund of the new church.

A great deal of credit for the decorations at the bazaar are due to Mr. Koen, of the A. W. Cressman store where they were secured.

NEWSBOYS' BANQUET ON NEW YEAR'S

Boys Will Have No Papers to Carry on That Evening

The newsboys' supper to be given by the workshops of the Gospel Hall has been arranged for New Years night. This was decided on in view of the fact that on that night there will be no local or Toronto papers so that all the boys will be able to attend.

RECEPTION TO REV. ROBT. POGUE

Will Be Held on Monday Evening at St. Paul's Church

On Monday evening between the hours of 7 and 8 o'clock a reception will be held in St. Paul's church to Rev. Robt. Pogue, the new pastor. The reception will probably be held in the Sunday School room and afterwards in the church the congregation will bid a formal farewell to Rev. Dr. Tailing who has been in charge of St. Paul's while the arrangements for obtaining a new pastor were pending.

Rev. Dr. Tailing during his stay in Peterborough has made many friends, especially among the congregation of St. Paul's, and although highly pleased with having obtained a permanent pastor there is a general regret that Rev. Dr. Tailing is leaving the city. A large number is expected to be present on Monday night.

ONTARIO BANK VERSUS OLD DIRECTORS

Claims Amount to $444,000 for Wrongful Dividends Paid

Particulars of the claim of the Ontario Bank against Messrs. G. R. R. Cockburn, Donald McKay, R. D. Perry, Richard Harcourt, Rulift Grass, Thomas Walmsley and John Flett directors of the bank at the time of liquidation, have been filed at Osgoode Hall.

The statement alleges that the bank had to suspend payment by the misfeasance and negligence of the defendants, who, at the time of the suspension, representing to the shareholders that they had a rest account o f$700,000 over and above the capital account, besides a sum of $66,-861.62 to the credit of the profit and loss account.

The plaintiffs allege that defendants only took a perfunctory interest in the affairs of the bank, and did not take care to protect their interests or to prevent the payment of dividends out of capital.

The dividends improperly paid were: 1901, $34,670.68; June 1902, $41,963.25; December, 1902, $45,000; June, 1903, $45,000; December, 1903, $45,000; June, 1904, $45,000; December, 1904, $45,000; June, 1905 $45-000; December, 1905, $45,000; June, 1906, $52,500.

All the defendants are held to be responsible for the $187,500.

All the defendants but John Flett are held to be responsible for $90,000.

All the defendants but the defendants Walmsley and Flett are held to be responsible for $166,823.93.

ST. PAUL'S NEW PASTOR

The Examiner wishes to extend to Rev. Robert Pogue, the newly-inducted pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, a most cordial welcome, to which will be added, that of the citizens generally. The advent of a new pastor to a church with the history, and with the influence and standing of St. Paul's, in the community, is a matter of very important moment. For three score and thirteen years, St. Paul's has done great work in moulding the characters and lives, not only of its congregation, but of the whole of its field of influence. Rev. Mr. Pogue comes to his work with every encouragement. The fidelity of St. Paul's to its pastors, is shown by the fact that in the long span of seventy-three years, there were, up to yesterday, only two pastors, one of 43 years' term of service, and one of 31 years. With his gifts of learning, eloquence and devotion to duty, his pastorate promises to be equally harmonious, and, with the divine permission, as lengthy. The occasion suggests three-fold congratulations: The new minister is to be congratulated upon being placed over such a congregation at St. Paul's; St. Paul's upon securing such a pastor, and the city generally upon conditions that promise so hopefully, to promote the moral interests and strengthen the moral fibre of the community. That righteousness exalteth, is as true of a community, as of a nation. Rev. Robert Pogue is warmly welcomed to Peterborough, and he enters upon his pastorate, with the most devout prayers, and hearty wishes, for a successful pastorate.

THE FUNERAL OF MAJOR HOWDEN

Peterborough Men Among the Bearers—The Passing of a Respected Personage

The funeral of Major Howden, who passed away in Port Hope on Tuesday was held yesterday from the station at Millbrook to St. John's Cemetery, North Cavan. The deceased was an old and respected resident of Millbrook for many years so that there were many friends present to see his remains laid in their last resting place. The pall bearers were N. G. Dingman, Kingston; Major Winslow, J C Kells and Chas. Needler, of Millbrook, Robt. Fair, and Dr. King, of Peterborough.

Many beautiful floral tributes decorated the grave of the deceased, showing that he had many friends in Millbrook and surrounding country. The services at the grave were conducted by the Rev. W G Allen, of Millbrook.

REHEARSAL HELD LAST NIGHT

The Girls' Guild, of St. John's Church, Will Present "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party."

The second rehearsal of the two-act comedy, "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party," which will be given by the Girls' Guild of St John's Church, was held last night at the home of Miss Gladys Roy, Hunter street.

The rehearsal was a decided success and under the able direction of Miss Wilson the different players are mastering their lines. The leading roles will be taken by Miss Maude Rush and Mr Donald Denham, who are supported by an excellent company.

The drama will be presented some time after Christmas. An excellent programme will also be arranged for the evening, and it is believed that this concert will surpass anything ever attempted before.

Chas. Thorpe Nearly Won The Three Mile Handicap Race

Was Only a Few Feet Behind Indians and Not a Lap in the Rear as Stated—Scorers Made a Mistake for the Moment and Corrected it Afterwards.

MADE A GREAT FIGHT

The Examiner has received the letter given below concerning the 3-mile open handicap race at the Harriers' meeting on Tuesday night. "Eye-Witness" is perfectly right in this matter, and the Examiner is glad to correct the mistake, which was, of course, unintentionally made. The writer of the report was one fo the scorers, and was counting the laps on Hilton Greene, and of course could not keep tab on the others. The other scorers stated that Thorpe had been lapped during the race, but rectified this afterwards. Thorpe in reality only lost the race by a few feet, and not a lap, as was stated. The letlet is as follows:—

: Sir, — In reference to your report of the three mile open handicap race held in the Brock street rink on Tuesday evening, I should like to draw your attention to what I think, is an error:

: Your report says that Charles Thorpe was beaten by a lap, while to my, and others', estimation, he was beaten by a few yards, and held the lead for over forty laps. He received 1 1-2 laps start, and he was only passed by Grease and Howard just over a lap from home, so it seems impossible for him to have been beaten by that distance. I am writing this because I am very much interested in athletic sports.

City League Should Look On The Hockey Situation Broadly

Should Co-operate in the Effort to Establish Intermediate O. H. A. Team in Peterborough—Players Should Not be Barred.

HAVE OUTSIDERS POWER?

It is understood that the City League will not cooperate with those who are seeking to form an Intermediate O. H. A. team in Peterborough by amending the City League constitution, preventing members of the Peterborough team from playing, so as to allow City League men who may be drafted by the Intermediates this year to still participate in the League. The League will gain nothing by refusing to do this because if they succeed in preventing these men from being drafted they will still have them playing in the City League.

The City League should look at this matter in a broad light, and refrain from exhibiting a selfish spirit, that will destroy all chances of having an Intermediate team. The people of this city want hockey, and they will not be satisfied with what they obtain from the City League. It is understood that the outside clubs will practically control the balance of power in the City League this year as from all indications they will be in the majority as far as votes are concerned. Surely the City League will not allow outside villages to dictate to them in a matter that is of vital importance to the future of hockey in this city.

Lindsay Roller Hockey Team Beat Peterborough

Exciting Game Won by the Scugogites—Score Was 5 to 0 in Favour of the Lindsay Seven—Harvey Staunton's Plunge Into Nets.

A HARD FOUGHT CONTEST

A team representing the Charlotte street roller rink went up to Lindsay on Tuesday night and were defeated after a good game of hockey. The team returned yesterday morning delighted with the trip. The Post has the following to say of the game:—

A large crowd patronized the roller rink last night to enjoy a skate and to witness the first roller hockey match ever played in Lindsay. The temperature in the rink was ideal for skating but a little cool for standing around, and no doubt many would have enjoyed the match a good deal more if they had not been so chilled.

The game was fast and clean and pleased everybody immensely. Both the Peterborough and Lindsay teams showed themselves good sports, and there was no rough play. The first goal was scored by Seymour of the Lindsay team in five minutes. Another LLindsay goal was scored by Elliott half a minute later. There were only two goals scored in the first half, although both teams made strenuous efforts to do so. Elliott and Cotton each got one minute penalty for body checking. Lindsay got three more in the last half.

One of the funniest incidents of the game happened when Staunton came tearing down the floor and was unable to check our in time to avoid the goalkeeper's net. He fell and plunged his feet in the net and was securely caught like a spider in a web. He struggled alone till the goalkeeper had to extricate him.

President W. J. Sims of the Victoria Rugby Club has been nominated for the position of president of the Ontario Rugby Union. The election of officers will take place a week from Saturday at the annual meeting, and nominations close on Saturday of this week.

The Victoria Club, in nominating Mr Sims, who is at present vice-president of the union, feels that a practical football man should be at the head of the union, and that the office should not be occupied by a mere figurehead whose chief qualification is the possession in large quantities of the contents of a football.

Mr Sims is a thorough rugby man, who has had years of experience in the game, and understands the football situation throughout the Province better than most people. He is richly deserving of the honour, with many years' service on the Executive, and will likely receive the support of the majority of the clubs.—Toronto Star.

KERR WILL HAVE TO DOFF HIS HAT

To Fred. McGrath, Says the Toronto Star, in Speaking of Local Sprinter

Fred McGrath who has done such good work while running under the colours of the Y.M.C.A. and other Peterborough organizations in the past is going to get into the sprinting game once more and the Toronto papers are waxing enthusiastic over the clever local boy he seems he is supposed to be going to run against Irish Canadian colours. Fred intends to get in shape for next season and the probabilities are that when the time comes to get out on the cinder path again that he will be found wearing the blue and white of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers. The Star last night pays him the following tribute:

"So Freddie McGrath of Peterborough, is in running togs again. Well, if Freddie gets a-going like he did in the old days, Bobby Kerr will have to take off his hat in the quarter and there will be doings in the hundred and two-twenty. It takes the Irish to dig 'em out."

History Of The Druce Mystery Baffling British Law Courts

Evidence Showing the Dual Life of the Central Figure in One of the Greatest Known Cases.

BURIAL WAS A SHAM

As One Person He Was Married But Enjoyed Single Life in His Other Role—A Remarkable Case

George Hollamby Druce, claimant to the title and estates of the Duke of Portland, has, after several years spent in gathering fresh evidence in his support, revived his case in the English courts, and the stories told by his new witnesses are of so sensational a nature that the keenest public interest has again been aroused over one of the most amazing mysteries the law has ever been called upon to unravel.

The dual life of the fifth Duke of Portland, as pieced together by the claimant, is as remarkable a romance as was ever met with between the covers of a book. The grounds upon which the claimant builds his case are as follows: He alleges that William John, fifth Duke of Portland, and Thomas Charles Druce were one and the same person; that the duke adopted, for reasons of his own, the name of Druce, and led a dual existence, and that in 1864 he arranged for a burial of "Druce" and resumed his life as the duke.

The Druce claim is that the burial was a sham; that the coffin did not contain a body, and that there are direct descendants of the fifth duke living, inasmuch as he was married in the name of Druce and had children. When the duke died in 1879 he was buried as a bachelor and the title and a portion of the estates accordingly passed into the possession of his cousin, the present duke.

The first claimant was the late Anna Maria Druce, widow of Walter Thomas Druce, who is stated to have been the only legitimate son of Thomas Charles Druce. George Hollamby Druce, the present claimant, has evidence proving beyond doubt that Thomas C. Druce was twice married and that he is a grandson of Druce by the latter's first marriage to Elizabeth Crickmer, which took place in 1816 at Bury St Edmunds.

Vast Estates Involved

The Druce claim does not concern the title and estates of the Duke of Portland alone, but also the vast London estate now held by Lord Howard de Walden from his mother, the late Dowager Lady Howard de Walden. The late dowager inherited the estate from her brother, the fifth Duke of Portland, who died without heirs, and thereupon the estate, according to the will of the fourth duke, went to the fifth duke's sister. This London estate has a rent roll of half a million sterling a year and covers some of the best revenue-producing parts of central London.

Motives for the Masquerade

Among the theories offered as to the motives of the fifth duke in adopting an alias, there is one to the effect that when young he was an object of aversion to his father on account of the skin disease from which he suffered, and therefore left home early in life with the determination of mapping out a career for himself under another name. At about the age of 16 he met Elizabeth Crickmer, a girl little older than himself, who attended a boarding school at Bury St Edmunds.

A boy and girl flirtation soon ended in a marriage, which could only be brought about by subterfuges on account of their extreme youth. In order to secure the marriage license they both declared themselves to be of age.

It is urged that Druce must have realized the necessity of concealing his real identity, otherwise the authorities would have communicated with his father, whose active opposition to the wedding would have been assured. If this was so, Druce not only deceived the authorities, but also his wife, who knew him only as Druce.

Alternation of Duke and Druce

In 1824 Druce abandoned his wife and children, and the coincidence is noted that it was in the same year that Lord John Bentinck, as the future duke was then known, succeeded his elder brother as the Marquis of Titchfield. Until 1824 there is no record of the movements of Lord John. From 1824 to 1835 there is no trace of Druce, but abundant record of the doings of the new Marquis of Titchfield.

During these eleven years Druce's wife, left destitute, had a long and hard struggle with poverty. In 1835 she discovered her husband carrying on a furnishing business at the Baker Street Bazaar in the name of Thomas C. Druce. He recognized her as his wife, but refused to live with her again. She compelled him to allow her a weekly sum for maintenance and he aided their children, one of whom he took under his own charge.

From 1835 until 1864, the date of his "burial," Druce was in almost daily attendance at the Baker Street Bazaar. When Druce occupied the stage it is alleged that the duke was mysteriously absent, and when the duke was in evidence there was no Mr Druce about.

Those who maintain that the duke and Druce were different individuals point to one great contrast in their natures. The duke was a bachelor and posed, it is stated, as a woman hater. He is described as a man who could not endure the opposite sex, who never formed an attachment to any woman, and in whose life no love episode found a place.

On the other hand Druce was known always to be partial to the society of women and all through his career he seems never to have been free from several attachments at the same time. During the lifetime of his first wife he was living with Annie May, whom he afterwards married.

In order to reconcile these two conflicting characteristics it has been suggested that the Duke in his proper station found it impossible to enjoy the mode of life he wished to lead, but secured the opportunity when passing as an ordinary citizen of no great importance.

Underground Passages

The evidence offered in support of the claimant's case volunteered by many people, if true, would seem to prove conclusively that the Duke and Druce were one. People in the employ of Druce tell of the mysterious entrances and exits at the Baker street Bazaar, and how he would suddenly appear among them, emerging through trap doors leading from the many underground passages, which undermined the premises. Having transacted his business he would depart by the same means.

It is stated that one of these passages connected the shop with Cavendish House, the town residence of the Duke of Portland, and servants in the employ of the Duke tell similar stories of their master's appearances and disappearances through the various trap doors.

For years an immense army of masons and others were employed at Welbeck in altering the whole place and length of the subterranean passages and building the tunnels. At one time more than fifteen hundred were employed; besides the usual estate staff. The total has been estimated at fifteen miles, and cost more than ten million dollars.

Many other points of similarity between the fifth Duke of Portland and Druce are put forward by the claimant, such as similarity of features, gathered from a comparison of photographs; peculiarities of dress, peculiarities of diet, a physical infirmity, both Druce and the Duke being known to have suffered from a hereditary skin disease, apparent in the face which presented a jaundiced appearance, together with a sort of marking and peculiar habits of secretiveness.

Said to Have Killed Brother

Notwithstanding the statement that the Duke posed as a woman hater the story is told that both he and his younger brother Lord George Bentinck, at one time paid considerable attention to the same young lady. This young lady was none other than the Annie May who eventually became the second wife of Druce. Upon this coincidence the claimant lays much stress.

Annie May was a natural daughter of the fifth Earl of Berkeley. For generations the Berkeleys and the Portlands were on terms of the most intimate relations, marrying and intermarrying. The affection of the two brothers for Annie May is reported to have been indirectly the cause of the untimely death of Lord George.

For some reason Lord George was intensely indignant over his brother's attachment to the girl. Assuming that Druce and the Duke were the same person, it is regarded as probable that Lord George may have known of his brother's marriage to Elizabeth Crickmer, and objected to his conduct, when he was not in a position to make Annie May his lawful wife.

Words between the two brothers are stated to have ended in an exchange of blows. The younger brother is stated to have been the aggressor, and to have struck the Duke again and again with a stick, calling him opprobrious names and among other things taunting him with being a leper.

In self defence, it is urged, the Duke, or as the Marquis of Titchfield, as he was then, at last struck back, hitting Lord George in the chest. Lord George fell, expiring in a few minutes.

Such is the outline of a story which is vehemently affirmed and as vehemently denied. In the same year that Lord George died, Annie May gave birth to a child.

The Alleged Burial

Regarding the alleged sham burial of Druce in 1864 there are several witnesses ready to come forward and swear that they saw Druce alive after that date, that they spoke to him and even had business dealings with him. Mrs. Hamilton one of the witnesses in the case now before the courts, knew Druce well, and she affirms that she saw him and conversed with him after the supposed burial.

Some facts within her experience were produced by her before Sir Francis Jeune in the former Druce proceedings, and as a result of her evidence Sir Francis Jeune stated that a prima facie case for opening the Druce grave in Highgate Cemetery had been made out. In an affidavit Mrs. Hamilton has stated:

Before December, 1864, "Druce" be-

NATURE SPARES

The Stricken Rose From Grief

What a fortunate provision of nature it is that deprives the rose of mental suffering; for how poignant would be its grief to discover, in the height of its blooming glory, that a canker fed at its heart and that its beauty and fragrance were doomed forever. Nature always spares the suffering; she is a veritable storehouse of pleasing rewards for those who seek her aid. In the years gone by falling hair and grayness have cast a gloom over the lives of thousands of young women, but thanks to the investigations of scientists, the true cause of hair destruction is now known to be a germ or parasite that burrows into the hair follicles. Newbro's Herpicide absolutely destroys this germ, thus permitting the hair to grow as nature intended. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. HOW GAMES ARE FAKED

TRICKS OF CARD SHARPERS EXPOSED BY AN EX-GAMBLER.

Mr. Quin Shows How the Thing Is Done — Professional Sharks Unmasked—Made a Fortune by Gambling—Flat Has No Chance — Apparatus Under Control of the Manipulator—Good "Sport."

When the three-card sharps and the thimble-riggers of England learned what was going on the other afternoon at the Cannon street hotel, under the deft fingers of Mr. John P. Quin, and before an audience that was amused and amazed by turns, there were some bitter things said. Some of them may even have to earn an honest living now; for to use Mr. Quin's words, he has "taken down their shutters for them." Mr. Quin, when he was young, must have been a calamity to the innocent. He is an American ex-gambler, and founder of the International Anti-Gambling Association. His association claims, by his aid, to have so unmasked the professional "sharks" of America that they have fled the small towns there, and are now trying this country and the Continent. Mr. Quin is here to explain their little game to us before we get too interested in them. He is a slight, elderly man, clean shaven, white-haired, and sometimes he beams so benevolently through his spectacles that he looks, in his own descriptive phrase, like a "sucker"; and sometimes so preternaturally cunning that you step back involuntarily. He has made a fortune by gambling—and lost it. He has become the friend of the "fists," and is here to conduct a crusade against "sharps." For Mr. Quin made gambling an exact science while he was about it. He conclusively proved that in the game of chance there is no chance but only a dead certainty for the professional gambler. He showed the Strike game. This is a little wooden apparatus modelled like the try-your-strength machines which are struck by hammers at fairs. The gambler's confederate strikes this innocent-looking machine with his fist, the index flies to a number (certain numbers are marked for "wins"), and the confederate wins. The flats step up briskly, pay a dollar entrance, and lose every time, unless the gambler chooses one shall win, just to lure him further into the net. That machine, simple, as it looks, devoid of everything but the appearance of open honesty, is quite under the control of the operator. Many of the interested audience called for the explanation of the little game. Mr. Quin smiled sadly, and passed on to the next. "I show these tricks," he said quietly; "I don't explain them." The next was the Drop Case. You post a little wooden ball in a slot, and it trickles down a slope of needles, seemingly at hazard, into a lettered exit. Each letter is marked for a prize or otherwise. The trickle of the ball seems like pure chance. But, says Mr. Quin (and it was so), "Every time the mug drops his dollar he don't pick it up." The performance had the glamor of magic. The lecturer took a plain deal board, partly covered with American cloth, with the usual revolving arrow attached to a pivot, which stops over a prise, when it is spun, or else a blank. It is invariably "blank" with Mr. Quin's board. The spindle is quite under his control. He could even let you win if he liked. He treated "poker" in the same disrespectful way. Roulette was ridiculed with quaint illustrations. Rouge et Noir was introduced to show that the little box from which the cards are drawn deals bankruptcy impartially and remorselessly to the innocent. "This one box," said Mr. Quin, holding it aloft, "is enough to bankrupt a city." Dice danced like live things under Mr. Quin's fingers, showing always the face he wished. The thimble trick when he played it, caused shouts of laughter, the pea seemed so instinct with subtle fun at that game of hide and seek. "The moral of this exhibition is," said the ex-gambler, "Don't ever think you can beat a clever man at his own game. And don't be good 'sport' and call these tricks 'games of chance.' There is no chance in them. They're sure things—for the gambler."

No Ability To Digest Food

NERVOUS SYSTEM SO EXHAUSTED THAT THE VITAL ORGANS ARE FEEBLE IN ACTION

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The digestive system is a wonderful piece of machinery, but power is necessary to make it effective.

In this case the power is the nerve force contained in the body, and if the nerve force is lacking the digestive system becomes crippled and there is suffering from indigestion nervous headaches, neuralgic pains, dizzy spells, weakness and discouragement.

Strength cannot be regained from the food you eat so long as digestion is so imperfect, but you can be restored by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which contains in condensed pill form the very elements of nature which go to form new nerve force.

Overwork, worry, anxiety and excessive mental effort exhaust the nervous system at a tremendous rate, and repair must be made before come dreadful form of nervous disease sets in. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food invigorates the nerves which control the digestive fluids, sharpens the appetite, is slightly laxative, so as to encourage the action of the bowels and strengthens every organ of the body.

You can use this treatment feeling certain that every dose is doing you at least some good, and can prove it by noting your increase in weight.

Mrs. M A Sharp, 346 Dublin street, Peterborough, Ont., states: "For some years I was troubled with indigestion which developed into nervous dyspepsia and besides suffering from nervousness, dizzy spells would come over me. Hearing of the good results obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I decided to try it. After a pretty thorough test of this medicine I can say that I never used anything that did me so much good. It seemed to be the very treatment that I needed, and as a result of the use I am quite restored to health."

Make-Believe Mascots.

Gamblers are notoriously superstitious, as all who have visited Monte Carlo know. There you will find a parasitic class who live on the superstition of the frequenters of the tables. They are hunchbacks, and the gamblers imagine that they are certain to have a run of luck after touching the humps of these unhappy wretches.

Accordingly, one finds at each entrance to the Casino a row of waiting hunchbacks ready to bring luck to anyone who will pay them. Each has his own list of patrons, and a very comfortable income some of them earn.

Not a few of them are normal in every respect, their humps being simply padding and framework strapped upon their shoulders. One such was recently exposed and punished summarily. A rumor had spread amongst the gaming fraternity that he was a fraud, so one of his patrons, instead of patting him gently on the back as usual, gave him a resounding thwack, which effectually dislodged the bogus hump.

Having thus effected a record quick cure, the gamesters determined that their patient must also take the waters in the lake of the Casino gardens in case he should have a relapse. After a lengthy dip, he was so thoroughly cured that he left Monte Carlo never to return. But there are still bogus mascots at the doors of the gaming-hall, and there always will be till the foolish superstition dies out.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

There are no products of human skill on which a greater degree of care is expended than the standards of weight and measure in use among the civilized nations of the globe. Two things in particular have to be considered, accuracy and durability. Nature does not furnish any single metal or mineral which exactly answers the requirements for a standard of measure or weight that shall be as nearly as possible unalterable.

The best substance yet produced for this purpose is an alloy of 90 per cent of platinum with 10 per cent of iridium. This is called iridio platinum and is the substance of which the metric standards prepared by the international committee on weights and measures is composed. It is hard, is less affected by heat than any pure metal, is practically nonoxidizable and can be finely engraved. In fact, the lines on the standard meters are hardly visible to the naked eye, yet they are smooth, sharp and accurate.

If our civilization should ever be lost and relics of it should be discovered in some brighter age in the remote future there is nothing that would bear higher testimony to its character than these standard measures of iridio platinum, for the protection and preservation of which the science of this day has done its very best.

An Obedient Patient.

An old doctor whose memory was beginning to fail him called in to see a young man who was ill. On arriving at the home he found his patient in bed with nothing the matter but a slight cold. After prescribing the usual remedies he said:

"Now, my dear sir, you must stay in bed till I come again."

He went away and forgot all about his patient. The time flew by. One day the M. D. came across the young man's mother in the street. The sight of Mrs. Jones brought his patient to his mind, and, with a start, he said:

"By the bye, how is your son getting on?"

To his amazement Mrs. Jones replied that he was still in bed, obedient to the doctor's commands. He had been there three weeks.

The Art of Pickling Nuts.

"The Chinese are the only people in the world who know the art of pickling all kinds of nuts," said a San Francisco man. "You take, for instance, the pickled Chinese walnut. This is the most delightful of all the relish family. The big nut is pickled and has the finest kind of flavor. It is rich, and an order of them costs $1. Then there is the Chinese butternut. This, too, is pickled and is palate tickling. The Chinese are the only folk who can really make fine nut butter. In fact, the Chinese have more accomplishments than the average American ever dreamed of."

Home.

Home! How deep a spell that little word contains! It is the circle in which our purest, best affections move and consecrate themselves, the hive in which, like the industrious bee, youth garners the sweets and memories of life for age to meditate and feed upon! It is childhood's temple and manhood's shrine—the ark of the past and the future.—Uhland.

White and Black Lies.

"What," queried the young man, "is the difference between white lies and black lies?"

"White lies," answered the home grown philosopher, "are the kind we tell. Black lies are the kind we hear."

The Obligate.

"I went to the opera last night."

"What did you hear?"

"That Mr. Browning is going to get a divorce, Mrs. Biggs has the dearest dog and a new baby, and the Huttons are going to live in India."—Harper's Bazar.

TOLD HIS WIFE ABOUT IT.

And Then Accused Her of Having No Sense of Humor.

Englishmen are often accused of being unable to grasp the point of the American pun, and sometimes they may think they see the point of a joke when perhaps they do not. An Englishman named Morley was walking along the sidewalk one day with an American friend when the latter inadvertently slipped and fell down.

"Ah, my deah boy, I hope you are not hurt! How did it happen?"

To which the friend replied:

"It happened notwithstanding."

They both laughed over the pun, and Morley said it was so good he was going to tell his wife about it. At dinner that evening he remarked that he had such a good joke on his friend Brown, and by way of preliminary, leading up to the point of his story, he proceeded to tell all about who Brown was, his associations and business connections, how he came to get acquainted with him, commercial relations he had had with him, etc., until he forgot about the story, but was reminded of it by the wife, who said impatiently:

"But what about the story?"

"Oh, yes!" laughing immoderately as the recollection of it struck him. "Why, you see, Brown and I were walking down the street together, and he slipped on a banana peeling and fell down, and when I asked him how it happened he said, 'Nevertheless.'"

And he was sore at her all evening and declared she had no sense of humor because she said she didn't see anything funny to that.—Judge's Library.

Not His Place to Laugh.

Milly is a sweet young lady, usually very sedate and self possessed. But today she was suffering under the stress of suppressed emotion.

"Calm yourself, my dear," urged a sympathetic friend, "and tell me all about it."

"Well, you see," began Milly, wiping her eyes, "papa caught a wicked cold, and mother persuaded him to coddle himself to get rid of it. So he sat, dressed in pajamas, on his folding bed in front of a blazing fire in his bedroom. He had a steaming bowl of gruel on his knee, and his feet were in a pail of mustard and water.

"Presently we heard a terrific noise overhead, and we all rushed upstairs to see what had happened to poor papa. We found that the folding bed had collapsed in the middle, and there he was stuck in the angle, scalding gruel in his lap and pouring all over him, while ma was sitting in a pool of mustard and water on the floor, laughing herself into hysterics. And, oh, the things he said because she didn't go and pull him out! That's why I'm overcome, my dear!"—London Answers.

A Bundle of Blunders.

Don't say that "cleanliness is next to godliness," a statement which would be untrue if it were not unmeaning. If you must gauge the value of this excellent quality quote the original correctly and say that cleanliness is next to goodliness, meaning thereby that, where this is lacking, a clean and well kept person has an attraction and a comeliness only second to actual beauty.

Never talk of "the worst coming to the worst," an impossible occurrence, since it is already there. The worse may come to the worst, as, alas, it often does, but when the worst has come there is no more to be said.

Please do not speak of your "mutual friend." If A is a friend of B and C, A is not a mutual but a common friend.

But, above all, if you would be blameless never talk of "common sense," as though it were or could be an exceptional or rare possession of a favored few. Common sense is the sense common to all, which long may we all enjoy.

Shakespeare Versus Burns.

At the close of a lecture to the members of a certain literary society the following dialogue between a Scotchman and the lecturer was overheard:

"Ye think a fine lot o' Shakespeare, doctor?"

"I do, sir," was the emphatic reply.

"An' ye think he was mair clever than Robbie Burns?"

"Why, there's no comparison between them!"

"Maybe no, but ye tell us the nicht it was Shakespeare who wrote 'Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown.' Now, Robbie would never have written sic nonsense as that."

"Nonsense, sir!" thundered the indignant doctor.

"Aye, just nonsense. Robbie would hae kent fine that a king, or a queen either, disna gang to bed wi the crown on his head. They hang it ower the back o' a chair." The doctor's face dropped, for he realized that his lecture had been given in vain.—Scottish Nights.

Gold Is Everywhere.

Gold can most profitably be extracted from certain mines where the ore is rich and not too difficult to work, but should these deposits ever peter out there is no fear that the world would suffer for lack of a gold supply, for there are many other sources which are as yet untouched, but for working which profitable methods would be devised if need were. Granite, for example, contains an appreciable quantity of gold, and if it were not under present conditions too expensive a matter to extract it we should find Scotland and Cornwall rivaling the Transvaal and the Klondike. The sea also contains gold in solution, and the man who invents a cheap method of getting it out will make himself richer than all the millionaires that ever lived. Gold is also constantly falling all over the surface of the world, blown to us in minute quantities along with cosmic dust, which comes from interstellar space.—Black and White.

Toothblacks.

"As we have bootblacks so they've got toothblacks in the Sunda islands," said a traveling man.

"What is a toothblack?"

"Don't you know? A toothblack is an old woman with a pot of black paint, a gold leaf book and a set of vegetable brushes. From hut to hut she passes, and for a small fee—a yam, a bunch of bananas, three cocoanuts—she paints the Sunda islander's teeth a glistening black—all but the two front teeth. These she gilds. And the Sunda islander thereafter goes about with a self conscious smile revealing a truly knock-me-down dental display, a black and gold symphony. It is a common trick among the semicivilized to color the teeth. In Macassar dark brown is the popular hue, and in Japan among the unenlightened classes the teeth of wives are always painted black. In such countries the toothblack is an institution. She goes from house to house as full of gossip as a barber."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

His Profession.

In the midst of our tea drinking in the little Parisian restaurant, says Miss Betham-Edwards in an account of "Home Life in France," a gentlemanly individual wearing a tall hat and frock coat entered and, after a short colloquy with the young master, passed out.

"You would never guess that gentleman's errand," Marcel said, smiling, as he reseated himself at the tea table.

"He looked to me like a rather distinguished customer," I replied. "Some government functionary on half pay or an owner of bonds."

Marcel smiled again.

"That well dressed gentleman, then, supplies us with toothpicks, which his wife makes at home. He calls once a month and takes our orders. I dare say he and his wife between them make from $6 to $8 a week and contrive to keep up appearances on that sum. It is an instance of what one calls 'gilded poverty.'"

How a Flea Jumps.

It is said that a flea leaps 200 times its height, and, while it usually does land on its feet, it often falls, especially when it falls on a perfectly smooth surface where the claws can get only a slight hold. A flea has six legs, whose great length and bulk make them so heavy that they must be a great help in keeping their owner right side up when it makes one of these gigantic jumps, and when it lands upside down or in some other way its ability to kick is so great that not more than one wriggle is needed to set things right. A flea's wings are mere scales and of no use; but, small and worthless as they are, they tell the entomologist something about the proper classification of the insect. To the flea itself they have no value.

An Amusing Slip.

A well known temperance lecturer who is an ardent advocate of prohibiting the public sale of liquors was becoming dramatic over the ideal conditions prevailing in a certain prohibition town.

"I am sure all who are present will agree with me," he concluded, sinking his voice to an impressive whisper, "when I tell you that during a stay of over two months I saw but one drunken man—a most refreshing sight!"—Buffalo Times.

Refined It.

A little girl was told by her mother that under no circumstances must she use the word "nigger," as it was offensive to the colored people. The next day at school she was requested to read aloud about a niggardly man, and she astonished the teacher by reading in this wise: "Once upon a time there was a very negrogardly man," etc.

Dodging His Friends.

The following advertisement recently appeared in one of the English colonial newspapers:

"James Saveall begs to notify that he has started business on his own account as an up to date restaurant and hopes that his many friends will jolly well stop away and give him a chance."

Cheap Jag.

"He was intoxicated with her beauty."

"That must have just suited him."

"Yes; it didn't cost any money."—Pittsburg Press.

Makers at BERLIN, CANADA

IT IS a very simple operation to bake on the SOUVENIR RANGE.

The aerated principle of the SOUVENIR provides a constant flow of pure air, heated to the temperature of the oven before it enters it. This ensures a baking of bread or cake from "falling."

If bread, cakes or pies are to be light and wholesome, they must be surrounded by pure air while baking. In no range is this supplied so scientifically as in the SOUVENIR.

The aerated oven of the SOUVENIR places it away ahead of all other kitchen ranges.

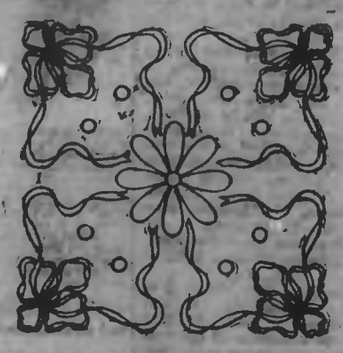
NEEDLEWORK PATTERNS FOR EXAMINER READERS

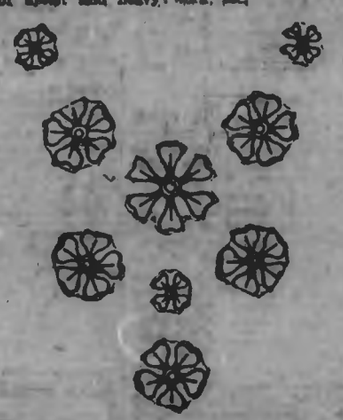


The embroidering of a cushion top becomes a pleasure indeed, when the design combines simplicity of execution and beauty of appearance when finished. The design here shown, that of a bowknot and conventional figures, presents an ideal motif for either shadow work on a lawn cushion, or a heavy outline work on the heavier materials. The prices of this pattern are: Perforated pattern, complete, 15c; stamped on tan ticking, 35c; stamped on fine lawn, 25c; stamped on extra fine tan linen, 50c; materials to work, white or coloured, 25c.

Can a more graceful and still simple design be conceived than the one here shewn? The combination of daisies and bowknots is a most appropriate one, and a most unusually handsome effect is obtained by working the petals of the daisies as eyelets and the balance solid. This pretty design may be had perforated, stamped and with or without materials at the same prices: Perforation, complete, 25c; stamped on 2 1-2 yards of fine sheer lawn, 75c; on heavy white linen, $1.25; materials to work, 35c.

In the selection of waist designs for hand embroidery, a potent factor is the simplicity of motive. The design here shown, that of two sprays gracefully entwined by and tied with a bowknot of ribbon, presents a rich and handsome appearance when finished, and entails no great amount of work. It may be done either in shadow or solid embroidery with the little round dots in the eyelet work. A perforated pattern or stamped material for this waist can be furnished at the following prices: Perforated pattern, complete, 35c; stamped on 2 1-2 yards fine 40 inch lawn, 75c; on heavy linen, $1.25; materials to work, 35c.

With fine embroidered shirtwaists decreed by fashion as an absolutely necessary part of milady's wardrobe for the coming season, it is none too early to secure an assortment of pretty designs to be worked during the winter. The pattern presented shows an attractive combination of eyelet and heavy solid embroidery. The leaves may be worked alternately blind and eyelet. The prices at which the perforation and stamped designs of this number may be had are as follows: Perforated pattern, complete, 75c; stamped on 2 1-2 yards of fine sheer 40 inch lawn, 75c; on heavy linen, $1.25; materials to work, 35c.



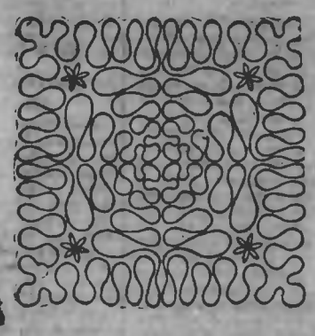
The Wallachian embroidery has grown popular to such an extent that no handwork collection without one or more specimens. Few people can imagine how pretty the accompanying illustrated embroidery doilies is, when finished. Done in a heavy unbleached cotton on a sheer lawn or a fine heavy linen, this pretty pattern is one nobody can be proud of. It may be had in the following prices: Perforation, complete, 75c; stamped on 2 1-2 yards fine sheer lawn, 75c; on heavy linen, $1.25; materials to work, 35c.

A MESSAGE FROM CHINA HALL

China Hall's Stock is now complete, and the present is a good time to make selections for Christmas. Our Dinner Ware Show Room (just completed) is well worth a visit.

China Hall's New Premises, 394 George

A woman's greatest pride, her dressing table and bedroom outfit, may be improved by the addition of a carefully worked pincushion of simple and still expressive design. The pattern shown is of a new model, the double ruffle being composed of the outer and scalloped edge of both the front and the back of the cushion cover. When this article becomes soiled, the ribbon is drawn out, the cover washed and laundered, and the whole outfit looks like new. The embroidery is done in white or in delicate shades of blue and green. If coloured materials are wanted they must be so ordered. The prices of this design, perforated or stamped, are: Perforation, complete, 15c; stamped, front and back, on fine lawn, 75c; material to work, 25c.



Has there ever been any article of needlework that has continued in popularity as has the pillow top? And little wonder, when its useful and ornamental value is taken into consideration, together with the comparatively small amount of work connected with it. To be attractive a piece of handwork need not be complicated nor difficult of execution. Simplicity and grace combine to make a design beautiful. These qualities are strongly represented in the design here shown and therefore make it an ideal pattern for winter work. This number may be had at the following prices: Perforation, complete, 25c; stamped on tan ticking, 75c; on delft blue demi, 35c; on fine tan linen, 50c; material to work, including coronation braid to finish, 50c.

"BUMPING" THE MAYOR

FUN FAST AND FURIOUS IN HISTORIC TOWN OF DUNSTABLE.

Ancient Ceremony of Beating the Bounds—Portly Aldermen Submit to Ordeal—New Way of Wiping Off Old Scores — Policemen Receive Scant Courtesy—Official Ale Taster Gets Busy.

The ceremony of "Mayor bumping" was observed at Dunstable recently, in connection with the ancient customs attending the beating of the boundaries.

Starting from the Town Hall immediately after the mayoral election, a great crowd, headed by two brass bands, and including the mayor, aldermen, and town councillors, with many leading townspeople, proceeded to the nearest point of the boundary. Here a vast concourse of spectators from many miles around had congregated. In the middle of a plowed field a boundary post was set up, and declared truly erected.

The official bellman loudly clanged his ancient bell for order, while the Charter was recited, and then the mayor was seized, and, amid shouts of laughter, soundly bumped on the top of the post, the bumpers performing their task with great zest and relish.

Next the aldermen in priority, according to weight and portliness, were subjected to the same process, and the fun waxed fast and furious when the inspector of police and his sergeant and men, who were present to keep down undue rowdiness, were unceremoniously seized and also soundly bumped, their helmets flying merrily during the process.

More Bumps.

Proceeding around the boundary, this was repeated at each post, the bellman vigorously ringing for order at the commencement of each ceremony. This important official, after very faithfully performing the duties of his office until some distance had been perambulated, was himself seized, his bell taken from him meantime, while he was soundly bumped to fix the occasion indelibly on his memory.

The bumping was to mark the corporation's success in the long incorporation fight recently brought to conclusion before the House of Commons committee, and the boundary beaters had not proceeded far before one of the strongest opponents to enlargement of the borough was espied on the outskirts of the crowd. He was chased over plowed furrows, captured, and dragged to the nearest post, where he also was put through the time-honored rite.

After all the leading personages in the procession had been bumped the beaters laid hands upon whoever came near. All the unpopular characters in the district who could be caught were chased and seized and bumped.

Halfway through the perambulation a halt was called while the beaters and bumpers were regaled with ale and bread and cheese.

Before this, however, another important ceremony connected with this ancient manor had to be observed. The official ale taster, a prominent member of the town council, who had himself been mayor and has been bumped, had to taste the ale and pass it ere the tapstem dared to start on their duty.

Ale Judge Approves.

The beaters and bumpers had now become tired and very thirsty, but they had to wait until the bellman secured order. Then another official produced and read the ale taster's parchment warrant, showing that under seal of the lords of the manor he was appointed to see that all ale sold in the manor was of good quality and assize.

There were tremendous cheers when he solemnly quaffed a tankard and pronounced the beverage good. After this the barrels were quickly emptied, and fortified with much good ale the bumpers renewed their task with great vigor, and no boundary post was passed before it had been the object point of punishment for many victims.

The whole ceremony was, however, taken in good part by all, and there was no regrettable fracas to mar the proceedings.

In the evening the mayor and corporation, with many visitors, dined heartily and well to celebrate the day's successful proceedings.

Dunstable is an ancient manor, dating from the days of Henry I., who gave it its first charter. The charter and mayoralty were "acquired" by the prior and canons of historic Dunstable Priory, and held many years by them. Afterwards the charter lapsed, and the manor reverted to the crown. Next the corporation purchased the manorial rights from the late Queen Victoria, who granted a fresh charter. Thus the mayor and corporation are lords of the manor, and at their last court lest the ale taster was fined for not doing his duty, since when he has been most energetic.

Tied Husband to Bedpost.

Mrs. Mary Griffin, the wife of a colliery laborer at Blackpill, four miles from Swansea, has been arrested on a charge of attempting to poison her husband under extraordinary circumstances.

It is alleged that Griffin, who is only 24, and lives in a cottage near Clyne Wood, complained of feeling unwell. His wife brought him some port wine in a cup, telling him she had put ginger in it, and that it would do him good.

After he had drunk, Griffin accused her of attempting to poison him with carbolic acid. He alleges that he relapsed into unconsciousness after feeling very ill, and that when he recovered he found a muffler and strap round his neck, the strap being fastened to the bedpost.

He had to be removed to Swansea Hospital, where he now lies in a serious condition. That evening his wife was seen in the company of a soldier and was arrested.

An Apt Illustration.

Miss Kinky—What does white folks mean when day talks about paintin' de lily? Mr. Jackson—Dat's about de same as butterin' de po'k chop.—Kansas City Times.

Rely upon it that the man who does not worthily estimate his own dead forefathers will himself do very little to add credit or do honor to his country.—William E. Gladstone.

He Sure Was a Man!

When William Allen rose up in the early seventies and surprised the country by being elected governor of Ohio on the Democratic ticket one of the obstacles he triumphed over was the charge of being an old man. He addressed a great meeting at Mozart hall in Cincinnati the night following the day in which this ill advised charge had been brought against him by a responsible Republican leader. Strong vigorous and well preserved as he was and retaining unbroken that quality of voice which had designated him as "Foghorn Allen" when he was in the senate, he was still politician enough to use it for all it was worth to him. After stating the charge in all its heinousness he straightened himself to his full height of more than six feet and, beginning in a loud voice, asked, "Am I a man?" The next question was in a voice pitched a scale higher and asked, "Do I look like a man?" But the third, in which he put out all of his tremendous vocal power, thundered to shake the roof in roaring, "Do I talk like a man?" The audience was thrilled. Such high physical power in a man of that age appealed to it irresistibly.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Fascination of Burglary.

"My champion burglar," said Mr. Holmes, the police court missionary, "is a bookbinder by trade, who has been in jail on and off for half a century."

Mr. Holmes' ramifications with this chronic breaker of the law constitute an instructive scene from his work. He behaved to the erring bookbinder quite as a brother; the man had the entree of the house and enjoyed the friendship of the family. How was he in the habit of repaying this hospitality? By going out to burgle. Twice Mr. Holmes set him up, but in vain. The only charm that life has for this extraordinary being is the opportunities it vouchsafes for committing burglary.

"Why on earth don't you leave off burglary?" Mr. Holmes asked him once. "Mr. Holmes," was his reply, "there's no fascination in the world to equal it. The silence of the night, the element of danger, the need of keeping every sense on the alert—it's grand."—Cassell's Journal.

Dealing in "Cats and Dogs."

No antiquarian pursues a more profitable or fascinating calling than the dealer in "cats and dogs," as the antiquities of Wall street are dubbed. "Cats and dogs" are the remnants of old stock, bond and note issues of railroad, industrial or mining companies on which payment of interest, dividends or principal has been in default for years. Some of these securities are worthless and obsolete, some of doubtful value, while a few are worth their weight in gold. Only the expert in obsolete securities can detect their worth. Many of these securities can be picked up at the official auction room of Wall street. Many brokers closely scrutinize the securities that are offered at this auction room, and only a few months ago 100,000 shares of stock in a certain mining company were sold for a song, from which the broker hopes to realise a big sum.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Phrases or Handcuffs.

It is customary to remark that modern problems cannot easily be attacked because they are so complex. In many cases, I believe, it is really because they are so simple. Nobody would believe in such simplicity of scoundrelism even if it were pointed out. People would say that the truth was a charge of mere melodramatic villainy, forgetting that nearly all villains really are melodramatic. Thus, for instance, we say that some good measures are frustrated or some bad officials kept in power by the press and confusion of public business, whereas very often the reason is simply healthy human bribery. We waste our fine intellects in finding exquisite phraseology to fit a man when in a well ordered society we ought to be finding handcuffs to fit him.—G. K. Chesterton in Illustrated London News.

May Turn Black.

Professor McMillan Brown, ethnologist, holds that the future Australian people will in all probability be black. The Polynesians, he said in a lecture at Sydney, came originally not from America, as has been supposed, but from Asia. They were whites and changed color, just as the future Australian may do as the centuries go on, at least in the tropical regions of the north. The violet rays of the sun will turn him black in course of time.

Sorry He Spoke.

"Really, Miss Primm, you ought to get married," remarked Wedderly. "You'll soon be in the spinster class if you don't hurry up and catch on."

"Oh, don't worry about me, Mr. Wedderly," replied Miss Primm. "If I were as easy to please as your wife I would have been married long ago."—London Telegraph.

Letter-Eating Lions.

The Livingstone Mail, which is published in the capital of Northwestern Rhodesia, in a issue makes the following remarkable announcement:

It is notified for general information that the mail bag containing ordinary letters for Northwestern Rhodesia, despatched from Livingstone on the 24th ult., has been destroyed by lions near Petauke. This is obviously the fault of the Chartered Company. Well-fed lions will not eat mail bags, love letters, or even the most tasty local newspapers. In order to avoid similar catastrophes, the Government ought to undertake the feeding of these lions.

In view of this bloodthirsty suggestion, it is reassuring to learn from the official circular that the registered letters and parcels despatched on the same date were "duly received at Fort Jameson." Even lions appear to respect registered letters.

About Curtain Poles.

Often when moving into a new house there is the need for an extra long curtain pole, and if one is not in a convenient place to purchase it a substantial one can be made by properly cutting two for the purpose. Take two poles and lay side by side, then with a saw cut diagonally through one end. This leaves both poles with sharpened ends which can be glued and nailed together with fine long wire nails. They can be so cleverly adjusted that the mark is not noticeable.

BRONZE CROSS HERO.

How a Gallant Indian General Won the Coveted V. C.

Gen. William Spottiswoode Trevor, V. C., recently died at his residence, Queen's mansions, Victoria street, London. He was born in India on Oct. 9, 1831, and was the second son of the late Capt. A. S. Trever, of the 3rd Bengal Cavalry, who was killed at Cabul in 1841. He obtained a commission in the Bengal Engineers in 1849, and three years later served in the Burmese War, including the operations in the vicinity and capture of Rangoon, where he was severely wounded, and the attack on the Burmese stockades on March 19, 1853, when he was slightly wounded. For his gallant conduct on these occasions he was mentioned in despatches. Four years afterwards he took part in the operations against the Dacca mutineers. In the Bhotan Expedition of 1865 he headed the assault at the capture of Dewangire, receiving five wounds, and for bravery in this action was awarded the Victoria Cross and the brevet of major. At the attack of Dewangire, a party of the enemy, about 200 in number, had barricaded themselves in a blockhouse, which they continued to defend after the rest of the position had been carried, and the main body was in retreat. The British force had been fighting in a broiling sun on very steep and difficult ground for upwards of three hours. The blockhouse, which was loopholed, was the key of the enemy's position. Seeing no officer of the storming party near, and being anxious that the place should be taken immediately, as any protracted resistance might have caused the main body of the enemy to rally, Gen. Tombs, V. C., who was in command, ordered Capt. Trevor and Lieut. J. Dundas, R. E., (since dead), to show the way into the blockhouse. They had to climb up a wall which was 14 feet high, and then to enter a house occupied by some 200 desparate men, head foremost through an opening not more than two feet wide between the top of the wall and the roof. Major-Gen. Tombs stated that on speaking to the Sikh soldiers around him and telling them to swarm up the wall, none of them responded to the call until these two officers had shown them the way, when they followed with the greatest alacrity. The gallant general was one of the very few remaining survivors of the hostages given to Akbar Khan on the occasion of the retreat from Cabul in 1841, and up to the time of his death retained a clear recollection of the events of his captivity. Gen. Trevor also did excellent service for India in a civil capacity.

CATCHING A LIONESS.

Risky Adventure on an African Farm —Charged Men Twice.

The Advertiser of East Africa gives an account of a risky lion catching feat. Mr. C. Trichardt on Oct. 8 saw four lions on Messrs. Langridge and Taylor's ostrich farm on Athi Plains. He called Mr. Langridge, and the two went together to try to shoot the lions. When the two men approached three of the lions made off, but the fourth, a half-grown lioness, lay down and waited, charging twice when the men came up to within 15 feet. The farm dogs arrived and began to worry the lioness, which crept into a patch of bush and tried to hide behind the projecting roots of a tree. Messrs. Langridge and Trichardt determined to try to capture her alive. They made a loop of raw hide rope, fastened it to a stick, and attempted at close quarters to pass the noose over the lioness's neck. They failed. The dogs were then set on to worry the lioness again, and while the brute defended herself loops were passed round each of her hind legs. The nooses were drawn tight and the lioness held fast until her other limbs were bound. Then a cart was fetched, and the lioness hoisted into it and conveyed to the farm buildings.

Man Tackles Puma.

An exciting scene was witnessed in the Phoenix Park, Dublin, when a puma, one of the vicious tiger tribe, escaped from the Zoological Gardens. It appears that while the keepers were in the act of transferring the animal from its cage to an adjoining one it by some means escaped to the roadway at the rear of the Gardens, and careered along, when it was suddenly halted by the advance of a troop of the 11th Hussars, which had just left the Marlborough Barracks. In retreating the animal came face to face with the pursuing attendants, one of whom, John Kelly courageously tackled and seized it firmly by the throat, not, however, before he was badly bitten in several places. James Kenny, who came to his assistance, was also badly bitten in the forearm. With further help, however, the beast was again safely lodged in its cage. The keepers were obliged to go to Steeven's Hospital, where their injuries were treated.

Indian Army.

The question of the strength of the army in India will soon come under discussion by the Cabinet. The ratification of the treaty with Russia has led to a belief that some further reduction in the land forces is possible, thereby saving another considerable sum on the estimates. It is well known that Lord Kitchener considers that in the new circumstances in India the British garrison should be increased in order that certain districts may be garrisoned without interfering with the scheme of distribution as devised for war. Any proposal from the home authorities towards reduction would, therefore produce a sharp conflict of opinion. At the present moment great difficulty is being experienced in finding the drafts for India to keep the present force at an adequate strength. India is also to be asked to pay £3,000,000 additional towards the cost of the British garrison. It is regarded as in every way likely that the discussion of military measures in India will once more become acute if the Government presses for a reduction in the force, coupled with a demand for increased payments.

THEY WON'T SHUT DOORS.

Travelers returning from England tell of two habits of the people of that country which impressed them. One is the average Englishman's aversion to shutting the door behind him.

"I don't know how it is in the English houses," remarked one who has toured England, "for I was not in one of them. But I stayed in a hotel in London where there were a good many English people, and a dozen times daily I had to get up and shut a door to keep the draft away.

"It didn't make any difference whether it was a servant or a guest who went through, the door was left open. This was in the spring of the year, too, when the weather was chilly. I noticed the same thing in railway coaches and hotels of smaller towns."

The other English peculiarity is a preference for riding backward on trains. The Englishman will make for the seat with its back to the engine every time, plant himself down in it with every evidence of comfort and look wonderingly at anybody who picks out a seat facing the direction the train is going. Not once did one American traveling in England see a native choose a seat facing the front of the train unless there were no other seats.

In the Swim.

A serious accident happened at the supper table. Somebody—it's always "somebody" who is to blame—upset a pitcher of water over the cloth. There was a general scampering and a calling for somebody to remedy the mischief.

"How could you be so careless, Tom?" cried Freddie indignantly.

"Never mind, my boy," replied Tom, in his airy way. "It's all right. We're all in the swim now."

BEAST SWIMS 300 MILES.

Hippopotamus Follows Its Master's Canoe—African Chief's Utensil.

The meeting in Sesheke of Lord Selborne, High Commissioner of South Africa, and Lusnika, paramount chief of Barotseland, was full of quaint incident.

Nothing could be more picturesque than Lusnika's arrival. A fleet of some 250 native dug-out canoes came up the broad Zambesi, led by the chief's own enormous boat, with its crew of thirty paddlers.

There broke from the hundreds of women assembled on the shore the royal song of welcome as Lusnika's craft drew nigh. Dressed in every imaginable brilliant color, black faces shining and black eyes sparkling with excitement, the women marched slowly forward to the rhythmical clapping of hands, chanting as they went, to the river bank, and then, with wild shrieks and peals of laughter, broke their ranks and raced to bathe their hands and faces in the water in which the king's boat swam.

Luanika's eldest son, Letia, immaculately clad in an English shooting suit, was very busy on the bank with a full-plate camera. After a few minutes' pause, Luanika himself stepped ashore, habited, alas! in a gray frock coat., pinkish trousers and a black opera hat.

The High Commissioner, with Lady Selborne and their suite, rode quietly in from the veldt some days after Luanika's coming. Two days later the official meeting of the white and the black rulers took place in a room, open on two sides, built of grass and reeds, and situated in a small courtyard inclosed by a reed fence.

In the evening the paramount chief presented Lord Selborne with a young hippopotamus. This beast, which is perfectly tame and about half-grown, had followed the chief's canoe 300 miles down the river from Lialui, taking no more than a passing interest in the herds of wild "hippos" on the way. It slept peacefully through the greater part of the presentation ceremony, and was finally gallantly mounted and ridden out of the courtyard by a member of the Paris Missionary Society.

SAVED BY CHANCE ROPE.

Shipwrecked Sailors Helped by Relic From a Previous Disaster.

A singular incident has to be recorded in connection with the wreck of the steamer Netherholme, which went on the rock, near Linney Head, a lonely part of the Pembrokeshire coast. The Netherholme, which was bound from Liverpool to Barry Dock, struck on the reef which connects Penyholt Stack with the mainland.

The crew, 14 in number, swam ashore, where there are cliffs rising some 70 feet. The sailors were cowering under the cliffs when one of them noticed a rope hanging from the top. One by one they climbed safely to the top, and to their surprise found no one about save their own party, nor were there any houses in sight. At daybreak the shipwrecked sailors were discovered by coastguards, who took them to Col. Lampton's house, where they were given dry clothing and shelter.

The mystery of the rope is explained by the fact that a year ago the steam trawler Shamrock was wrecked at this particular spot, and the crew were hauled up the cliffs by coastguards. By a lucky chance the rope was not removed, and again proved of service to shipwrecked sailors.

The Netherholme was badly damaged. When the vessel struck the captain was unaware of the new lightship off Linney Head, and mistook it for Lundy, although the latter is many miles to the southward.

Old Jewelry.

In many of the best Parisian gowns is seen a revival of jet, cameo and garnets. The cameo forms a clasp at the front of a low bodice or fastens a cloak or a belt.

Large bracelets and old filigree bracelets are popular. Amethysts are very much to the fore, and a garnet necklace is a coveted heirloom, especially if connected with a slight gold chain.

Star shaped brooches in almost any stones find acceptance, and the old lockets have come back again.

Some of the combs which were worn in empire days fit in beautifully with the present style of hairdressing, especially when set with rubies, amethysts, topaz and garnets.

64,000 MILES CRUISE.

H. M. S. Cambrian's "Showing the Flag" Record.

The crew of the cruiser Cambrian, which ship was paid off at Colombo last month and re-commissioned with fresh officers and men, are due at Plymouth within a week or so after a remarkable period of service. Their vessel left England two years ago, under the command of Capt. Ernest F. A. Gaunt, an officer of Australian birth, of singular courage and wide experience, who was the first British commissioner at Wei-Hai-Wei after it passed into British possession, and gained the C. M. G. for his work during the Boxer troubles. The Cambrian was commissioned for the Australian station, which is nowadays the region of the world for adventurous incidents, but she has wandered wide, not only amongst South Sea islands, but on the coast of South and Central America. Many remote and little-visited spots have been searched out by the Cambrian, and the British flag has been shown with all due ceremony here, there, and everywhere, and replanted on islands which had forgotten its existence. Her decks have been trod by many lonely British subjects hidden away in the world's recesses, by dusky chiefs, including the King of Tonga, and by the Presidents of the Republics of Nicaragua and Honduras. Her crew had to bring to book some discontented chiefs in the South Seas, and incidentally there was a little fighting. Seemingly every port and island under the Southern Cross has been made a place of call, Cape Horn has been rounded, and the good ship concluded her journeyings at Colombo, after having covered 63,967 miles and expended no less than 14,999 tons of coal.

ABLE TO TAKE IT HOT.

Soldier Who Was Happy Near Ship's Furnaces.

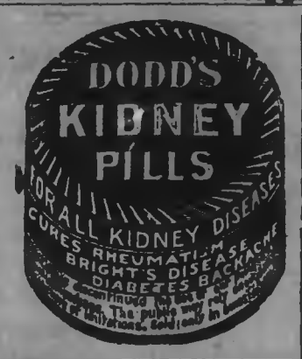
The Liverpool Journal of Commerce tells a remarkable stowaway incident, which it describes as "well authenticated," in connection with a steamer recently arrived from Bombay. It appears that the police of the port notified the officers of the ship that three soldiers had deserted, and would probably hide themselves on that particular vessel. Subsequently the chief officer and chief engineer made a close search among the bunkers and other conceivable hiding places, and at length discovered two of the deserters hidden among the coal. The mystery relating to the third deserter was cleared up 48 hours after leaving Bombay, when he appeared on deck, begrimed from head to foot, limp and ill from want of food, and suffering also from excessive heat. The story of this man's concealment is remarkable, and shows a courage and fortitude that might well be turned to better account. With the assistance of a fireman he had hidden himself in a coal bunker near the furnaces, compared with which the heat of the "Black Hole of Calcutta" is described as of small account. The whole of his body was covered with coal, leaving only his face exposed, and this was besmirched with coal dust so as to make it resemble a "lump." He must have lain there for nearly three days and three nights.

Edward, the Peacemaker.

A man of extraordinary ability is the present King of England, a man whose great capacity was not suspected until long after an age when the world has usually formed and closed its judgment of men. Had the King died when he was stricken down with appendicitis on the eve of his coronation he would have occupied a much smaller place in history than he does now. Up to that time, as the world was able to know him, he was a man who loved life and got out of life all there was in it. He had always been noted for his tact; a marked trait was his desire to make every one around him happy and to play the peacemaker whenever it was possible, but no opportunity had been given him to give proof of statesmanship of the first order.

In a few short years he has shown himself to be the first statesman of Europe.

Summed up, the result of King Edward's diplomacy of the last few years is seen to be as follows: England and France have settled all the questions that formerly kept them apart, and are now working in perfect concord to keep the peace of Europe; England and Russia have reached a working arrangement, and a clash between the two powers either in the far or near east is no longer feared; between England and Italy and England and Austria there is complete sympathy; an English princess sits on the throne of Spain, which is of importance politically because of the interest England has in the Mediterranean; an English princess sits on the throne of Norway, which is of lesser importance, but not without its political value. England, therefore, can command the support of every European power with the sole exception of Germany, whose Emperor rages with impotent fury as he watches the success of his uncle's diplomacy.



Origin of the "Dog Watch."

The "dog watch" on shipboard is either of the short spells from 4 to 6 o'clock in the evening or from 6 to 8 to break the monotony of the regular four-hour watches, so that the same men will not stand watch during the same hours every day. If, however, you should ask the most nautical person of your acquaintance, or, indeed all the nautical people you know, why this is so called, you would probably find them unable to tell you.

The true answer is this: Dog watch is a corruption of dodge watch. The dog watch was introduced to prevent the same men from always keeping watch the same hours of the day, hence on these occasions the sailors are said to dodge the routine, or to be doing dodge watch.

NEW DIAMOND FIELDS.

According to the Cape newspapers, swarms of fortune hunters are reaching the diamond fields which have been opened to alluvial diggers at Pniel, on the Vaal river, not far from the rock diamond mines of Kimberley. A man newly arrived from Canada was lucky enough in his first morning's work (about a month ago) to find a stone of eleven carats, which he sold for $600. In his first week he cleared $1,200, and was able to show nine diamonds obtained as the result of three days' "washing."

Every man spoken to on the diggings was doing well or talked of promising prospects. Several gangs of natives over a hundred strong were busily engaged when the mail left. The scene was one of "great activity."

The diggers include two well-known actors, Messrs. William Haviland and McLeod. The scene around them, as it used to be in the earlier days of these river fields, has been compared variously to "a swarm of bees whose hive is upset," "a bank lined with ant-hill," "a rabbit warren scurried by a fox," and "an insane asylum turned loose upon a beach."

The Pniel estate, which has 30 miles of frontage on the Vaal River, was thrown open to the alluvial diggers on Jan. 21. A Johannesburg company recently acquired the rights in it, and is laying down pipes to convey water for three and a half miles to the Doornlaagte, where many thousands of "claims" have been taken out.

London Smoke.

The smoke nuisance in London is so old that those who work in the metropolis have come to regard it as an unpleasant but inevitable feature of the capital. Even in the thirteenth century agitations were started against the use of coal because of the smoke it made, but we are no nearer a solution to-day than we were then.

The Sanitary Inspectors' Association has been discussing the matter, and pointing out some of the blackest aspects of this black subject. The sulphuric acid which London air contains eats into the stones of the finest buildings, many of which are crumbling away. To preserve Westminster Abbey it is necessary to spend many thousands of pounds each year.

But the destruction of buildings is as nothing compared with the injury done to health. Could an effective method for stopping the smoke nuisance be discovered, Londoners would be healthier, happier, and better able to do their work. Here, then, is an opportunity for our inventive readers. For the man who will devise an effective and cheap method of consuming smoke instead of letting it escape into the atmosphere there must be a fortune waiting, for it is reasonably certain that the use of such an invention would be made compulsory by the authorities.

It is estimated that fifty tons of soot are constantly suspended in London's atmosphere. If this could be caught as it leaves the chimneys it would go far to paying the expenses incurred, for soot is a marketable value.

Kill Off Crocodiles.

Professor Robert Koch, upon whom Emperor William recently conferred the title of Excellency in recognition of his services in discovering the origin and treatment of the African disease known as "sleeping sickness," has set forth in an official report the details of his prolonged investigations in the Victoria Nyanza region. He supplements the general results previously cabled by giving a statistical comparison shewing that only about eight per cent. of the "sleepers" treated with an atoxyl injection died, whereas the untreated "sleepers" who arrived at the mission stations mostly died.

Prof. Koch's investigations showed that the Glossina palpalis fly, which causes the "sleeping sickness," subsists on the blood of reptiles and animals, and cannot live without it for more than three or four days. The microscope showed that the blood sucked by the flies was chiefly that of crocodiles. The professor therefore recommends a bounty on crocodiles' eggs in order to encourage the natives to exterminate them. This, it is added, will be comparatively easy, since the crocodiles have certain well-marked breeding grounds in the Nyanza district, where the eggs can easily be collected.

AUSTRALIA'S LABOR LEADER.

Mr. Andrew Fisher Has Played Great Part In Federation.

Mr. Andrew Fisher, who has been elected the official leader of the Labor party in Australia, in succession to Mr. Watson has already filled that post during the temporary absences of his former popular chief. Mr. Watson was chiefly noted for his tact and common sense, and in these respects Mr. Fisher is sure to follow worthily in his steps.

The late leader, who was Prime Minister of the Commonwealth in 1904, is now only forty years old. His successor is five years his senior, having been born in 1862 in Ayrshire, Scotland. He migrated to Queensland in 1885, and worked in the Burrum and Gympie goldfields until 1893. In that year he was elected senior member for Gympie to the Queensland Parliament, and became vice-president of the Labor party in the House. At that time the Labor members numbered only 17 in a total of 72.

Three years later Mr. Fisher was defeated at the general election, but was again elected in 1899. In that year he became a member of the first Labor Ministry to hold power in Australia, or indeed anywhere. Mr. Fisher's portfolios were those of Minister of Railways and of Public Works. That Ministry, under the leadership of Mr. Dawson, was the briefest, lasting indeed only until Parliament met.

In 1901 Mr. Fisher was elected for Wide Bay by a huge majority, and took his seat in the first Federal Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia. Mr. Fisher was always an earnest advocate of federation, so that it was but natural he should forsake the state for the Federal Parliament.

In 1904 Mr. Watson formed the first Labor Ministry of Federated Australia. The difficult post of Minister of Trade and Customs was given to Mr. Fisher. This position then, as now, required the greatest tact, although the days during which Mr. Kingston had administered the law with iron hand had been to some extent forgotten under the milder rule of Sir William Lyne. Still, Mr. Fisher had plenty of opportunity during his brief tenure of this office to exercise his conciliatory ability. The curious thing was that he himself was a moderate Free Trader, while all his predecessors in office had been thorough-going Protectionists. It is very significant that he should be leading the Labor party at this moment, when the fate of the new temporary tariff hangs in the balance.

Mr. Fisher has played a great part in the federation of Labor throughout Australia. In Parliament he always commands an attentive hearing and enjoys the respect and esteem of all parties. He speaks slowly and with some hesitation even in ordinary conversation, but what he says is always worth listening to. Mr. Fisher visited Great Britain in 1902.

HOW GHOST WAS LAID.

Birmingham Tradesman's Costume Caused Ferment in District.

Much laughter has been created in Warwickshire by the laying of a supposed ghost that haunted the neighborhood of Solihull and Elmdon Heath.

Parties of intrepid youths leagued themselves in desperate brotherhoods "to lay the spectre," and the district was in such a ferment that police emissaries went forth in the hope of penetrating the mystery. The watchers were rewarded by getting to close quarters with the apparition, and then it was discovered that a sedate Birmingham tradesman, who resides in the locality, was the innocent cause of all the excitement. Being deaf, he was afraid lest he should be run down on the road while taking his evening walk, and he hit upon the idea of apparelling himself in a long white cloak, and hat to match, so as to provide a ready mark for the eye of approaching motorists or cyclists.

It was well that the local constabulary had applied themselves to the solution of the mystery, as the unofficial investigators had sworn to sell their lives dearly when they encountered the ghost.

Police Sergeant as Guy.

An extraordinary state of affairs has existed in the Essex village of Wakering, five miles from Southend, a local police sergeant named Mynott being made the November "guy" by the villagers, of whom there are 2,000. Some time ago the constable was transferred from the village, and the inhabitants wished to make him a presentation. He was officially prohibited from receiving it, and the villagers, rightly or wrongly, attributed this to the influence of the sergeant. It was decided to make the sergeant the "guy" for Nov. 5. An effigy of the sergeant was carried through the streets, followed by hundreds of people, and the sergeant himself was followed by crowds and hooted until he took refuge in his house. For some days he remained indoors at night by order, and crowds congregated near by shouting, "Burn him!" About a dozen police officers under Superintendent Pryke, from Southend, patrolled the village for several nights. About 10 o'clock on one night a large box draped with black like a coffin was carried into the street, a man dressed like an undertaker walking before it. A procession was formed, but the police seized the coffin and broke up the procession. For a couple of hours the crowd paraded the village shouting: "Why not burn Mynott?"

An Elephant Story.

A sensational accident, in which an elephant and a circus employe were concerned, occurred recently at Donald, Victoria. After nearly causing the man's death, the elephant made amends in a manner which only an elephant would have thought of. One of the men employed at Wirth's circus, which was then in Donald, took the elephant to drink at the trough in front of Swanston's Cricket Club Hotel. While the elephant was drinking, the attendant struck it with a stick, and it turned upon him, knocking him down. While the man was on the ground the elephant placed its forefoot on his head, and had it not been for the timely appearance of Mr. Swanston, the landlord of the hotel, the attendant's skull would probably have been crushed. Mr. Swanston shouted and waved his arms at the elephant, which removed its foot, thus enabling the man to regain his feet. One of his tusk was not seriously injured. When the elephant saw its keeper on his feet once more its sense of obedience to authority suddenly returned. Extending its trunk, it picked up the man's hat, which had been knocked off, and returned it to him as gravely as if concluding its "turn" in the circus.

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

FREE TO YOU AND EVERY SISTER SUFFERING FROM WOMEN'S AILMENTS.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.
I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from women's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—yes, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for: Leucorrhœa or Whites, discharges, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths, also pains in the head, back and bearing down feelings, nervousness, dizziness, fainting spells, bloating, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weak spine, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete 10 days' treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 10 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer, if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it, and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhœa, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all woman's diseases and makes women well, strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten days' treatment is yours, also the book. Write to-day, as you may not see this offer again. Address:

KING ATTENDS WEDDING

$5,000,000 IN GIFTS AT PRINCESS OF ORLEANS' MARRIAGE.

King Alfonso and Other Royalties Cut Two Hundred Pound Cake at Ceremony Uniting Princes Charles and Princess Louise—Stately Wedding in England—Guests Entertained at $50,000 Banquet.

A glimpse of the manners and customs of the French court of old was presented recently at Wood Norton, where Prince Charles of Bourbon was married to Princess Louise of France with elaborate ceremonies, the picturesqueness and stately magnificence of which could hardly have been exceeded were the Duke of Orleans, the owner of Wood Norton and the bride's brother, the occupant instead of a pretender to the throne of France.

The wedding presents came from all parts of the world and mainly consisted of jewels. The presents, according to estimate, were worth nearly $5,000,000.

PRINCE CHARLES OF BOURBON.

About forty members of royal families, near relatives of the bride and bridegroom, were present, each bearing a name closely mixed up with the history of Europe in by-gone centuries, while among the three hundred to four hundred other guests were diplomats representing most of the nations of the world, including the American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, Whitelaw Reid, and the American Ambassador to France, Henry White, and Mrs. White, and a host of nobles, gathered from all the courts of Europe.

King Sees Ceremony.

The civil marriage was performed by a registrar in St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church at Evesham. Half a dozen members of royal families, including the King of Spain, the Duke of Orleans and other necessary witnesses, together with small suites, were the only spectators at this early ceremony. The religious function was carried out at noon, the Roman Catholic Bishop of Birmingham officiating.

Wood Norton, the scene of the royal wedding, is the seat of the Duke of Orleans, the bride's brother. It is a spacious estate in Warwickshire, on the banks of the historic River Avon. The house stands on a hillside and the lawn where the special buildings were erected for the event overlooks a great panorama, miles of winding river and green wooded country. Hundreds of workmen brought from France had been engaged for several weeks in constructing the temporary chapel for the service and a pavilion for banquetting, as well as smaller houses for the accommodation of guests. The chapel, although built for a day only, is an imposing structure both within and without.

The banquetting hall, to which the wedding party and the royal guests proceeded in procession after the ceremony, is on the opposite side of the house from the chapel, so that the company passed through the halls of the mansion to reach it. This hall is a beautiful apartment, 80 by 40 feet, decorated in Louis XVI. style. Here the royalties assembled not only for the wedding breakfast, but will also gather for other banquets during the four days of festivities which follow the wedding.

PRINCESS LOUISE OF FRANCE.

Two Hundred Pound Wedding Cake.

The other guests, beside royal ones, were served the wedding breakfast in the duke's museum on the grounds and about three hundred sat down to an elaborate banquet, every detail of which the duke himself arranged.

There were several large wedding cakes, and the one on the royal table, which was sent from London the day before the wedding, weighed nearly two hundred pounds.

The cost of the catering is estimated at $50,000, and the amount expended on the buildings and decorations evidently was very great.

Fifty automobiles were employed to bring the guests from the Evesham railway station to Wood Norton.

EGYPTIAN MISERS.

Lord Cromer's Remarkable Speech—Tells of Buried Hoards.

The Earl of Cromer, on being presented with the freedom of the City of London recently, was described by Sir Joseph Dimsdale as the great Pharaoh of Egypt.

Taking up the cue, the ex-dictator of Egypt also made a few compliments. He referred to the King as "that very eminent diplomatist," praised Lord Lansdowne and Sir Edward Grey for their excellent conduct of foreign affairs, and said a good word for Sir Eldon Gorst, his successor.

Those people who criticised the Anglo-Russian Convention because of the internal policy of the Russian Government he reminded that one of the surest methods of achieving success was to pay attention exclusively to one's own business. The English people were rather prone to incur the reputation abroad of offering advice about matters which did not concern them.

Turning to the question of the enormous influx of gold into Egypt of recent years—$65,000,000 more than the exports in the last four years—Lord Cromer said a great deal went into jewelry. Moreover, hoarding was carried on in Egypt to an extent which appeared almost incredible to Europeans. A little while ago an Egyptian died leaving a fortune of $400,000. The whole of that was found in gold coin in the cellar.

Again, a substantial yeoman bought a property for $125,000. Half an hour after the contract had been signed he appeared with a train of donkeys bearing on their backs the whole of that sum in coin, which had been buried in his garden.

There could be no doubt that the practice of hoarding was carried on to an excessive degree. Savings banks, increased circulation of paper money, and additional banking facilities would gradually wean the natives from this uneconomic habit.

The gradual expansion of local government in Egypt had his entire sympathy, but with the Egyptian Nationalists, who existed in Cairo as also in Calcutta and in Dublin, he did not think it was possible to deal. They would not be conciliated save on terms which in India and Ireland spelt political suicide and in Egypt would involve a relapse to the misgovernment and disorder of the past.

He noticed the almost culpable folly of an itinerant M.P., Mr. Keir Hardie, had incited the ill-regulated enthusiasm of a portion, and that certainly by no means the wisest portion, of the community in Bengal. The agitators of India, he did not doubt, would be kept well in hand by the firm sagacity of the Viceroy and the eminent statesman (Mr. Morley) who now presided at the India Office.

Lord Cromer declared in conclusion that the Government should come down with a heavy hand upon the extremists should they overstep the limits of the law, and not be deterred by their presence from adopting such reforms as were calculated to satisfy the aspirations of all moderate and reasonable men.

WHAT HUSBAND WANTS.

When the wife of a workingman named Picken applied at Liverpool for a judicial separation on the ground of cruelty, it was stated that the cruelty—repeated personal violence, threats of murder, etc.—had been going on for several years. The husband wrote to the wife's solicitor: "I submit for your perusal the text of the defence I shall set up in the event of further proceedings, so that you can advise your client accordingly. This is my final communication:

(1) That my wife persistently neglected to carry out my wishes to put the rent away each week, the house being our own. It was her duty to do so.

(2) I have frequently asked her to clear out the kitchen cupboards of all the rubbish of broken toys, etc., and make room for boots and slippers, etc., instead of leaving them all over the kitchen floor for me to tumble over.

(3) Her continually nagging at me on my arrival home, which had been incessant.

(4) Her refusal to allow me to have fresh fruit after dinner on Sundays instead of stewed, which I have a perfect loathing for.

(5) That I am not able to meet my payments through her folly, and that the bills are now in the house unpaid.

(6) Her continually going away on holidays against my wish and without my consent.

(7) That a workingman's wages do not stand blouses at $2, hats at $4.50, and costumes at $9.

(8) That my son can get chops, joints, etc., on arrival home, while I can only get a penn'orth of tripe and a few dry crusts, the remains of my son's bean-feast.

Applicant explained that her absence from home were forced by defendant's ill-treatment, and defendant gave a general denial to the charges.

The magistrates granted a separation order, and gave the wife the custody of a daughter under age.

ADMIRAL IN DISGRACE

SIR PERCY SCOTT REBUKED BY LORD CHARLES BERESFORD.

Made Signal to Ships Which Senior Admiral Regarded as Insubordinate—Was Sarcastic About Paint—Said It Was More Thought of Than Gunnery—Man Who Saved Ladysmith During the Boer War.

Rear-Admiral Sir Percy Scott, commander of the First Cruiser Squadron, who has done more to promote naval gunnery than any other naval officer, is in disgrace.

An order was given by the Admiralty that all the fleet should be painted and made ready for the reception of the German Emperor. The Roxburgh was engaged in gunnery practice at the time, and Admiral Scott seemed to have been rather annoyed that the practice should be interrupted for ceremonial purposes. Unfortunately he conveyed that idea in a signal commanding the Roxburgh to obey the Admiralty's order.

The incident occurred on Nov. 4 at Portland after the conclusion of the manoeuvres. Admiral Scott being senior naval officer in the port. Having received the order to "paint ship" Sir P. Scott made a signal to the Roxburgh, which was outside the breakwater carrying out firing practice.

"Paint work appears to be more in demand than gunnery, so you had better come inside the breakwater in time to paint your ship and look pretty by the 8th.

Signal to Be Expunged.

Some time after this message had been sent to the Roxburgh the Channel fleet, under the command of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, arrived at Portland. Two days later, on Nov. 8, Lord Charles Beresford made a signal to the combined Channel fleet and First Cruiser squadron, in which he detailed how the Admiralty had ordered all the vessels under his command to be put out of routine (no gunnery exercise) and to paint ship after the manoeuvres.

LORD CHARLES BERESFORD.

Lord Charles went on to repeat the signal given by Sir P. Scott to the captain of the Roxburgh, and added: "In regard to my order to the fleet to paint ship, this signal made by the rear-admiral commanding First Cruiser squadron is contemptuous in tone and insubordinate in character.

The rear-admiral is to issue orders to Good Hope and Roxburgh to expunge this signal from their signal logs, and to report to me by signal when my orders have been obeyed."

Admiral Scott received his rebuke in a most dramatic manner, before the signal was published to the whole fleet. Sir Percy was ordered to report himself on board the flagship the King Edward the Seventh in frock coat and sword. Here he found Admirals Custance and Foley, as well as Lord Charles, together with their staffs. The staffs were ordered to fall back out of earshot, and they lined round the aft 12 inch turret.

The three admirals alone walked slowly right aft to the ensign staff and stood there. Before them stood Sir Percy Scott at attention. A dead hush fell over the spectators. Lord Charles Beresford produced a paper. His voice could just faintly be heard above the lap of the waves against the ship's sides. The words could not be distinguished, but it was the famous general signal that was being read.

Admiral Scott's Flagship Boycotted.

The officers of the Good Hope, the flagship of the First Cruiser squadron, contend that, as Sir Percy Scott was senior officer at Portland at the time, he was entitled to make any signal that he chose. One of them asserted that Sir Percy's signal was at the worst merely a case of unfortunate wording.

It is understood that an application will be made by Sir Percy Scott to the Admiralty to order a Court of Inquiry to assemble for the purpose of hearing the circumstances under which the signal was made.

The general signal to the Channel fleet and First Cruiser squadron was decided upon without any previous official investigation by the commander-in-chief of the Channel fleet, and Sir Percy was not called upon in the ordinary way for an explanation of his signal to the Roxburgh.

The inquiry is expected to disclose circumstances which will place a new construction on the rear-admiral's signal.

Rear-Admiral Sir Percy Scott, who is 54 years of age, entered the navy in 1866. After active service in Ashanti, the Congo, and Egypt, he went to South Africa in 1899, where he invented the famous gun-carriages which enabled 6 inch and 4.7 inch guns to be used in the Boer war.

He was in the Chinese fighting in 1900, and then commanded the Terrible. Sir Percy Scott became a rear-admiral and inspector of target practice in 1905, and was appointed to command the First Cruiser squadron last May.

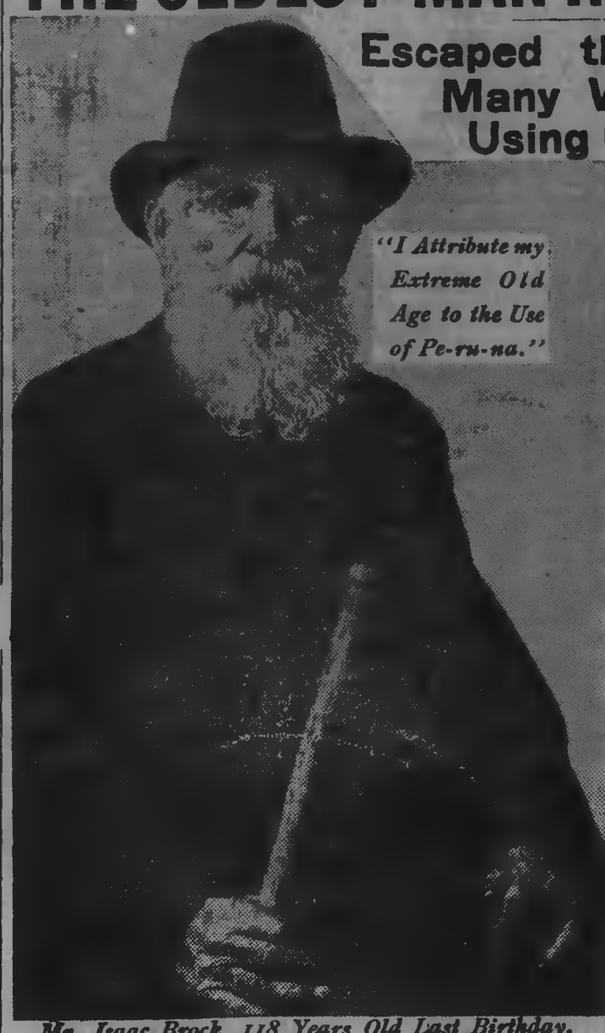
THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters By Using Pe-ru-na.



"I Attribute my Extreme Old Age to the Use of Pe-ru-na."

Mr. Isaac Brock, 118 Years Old Last Birthday.

ISAAC BROCK, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived for 118 years.

For many years he resided at Bosque Falls, eighteen miles west of Waco, but now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

Some time ago, by request, Uncle Isaac came to Waco and sat for his picture, holding in his hand a stick cut from the grave of General Andrew Jackson.

His family Bible is still preserved, and it shows that the date of his birth was written 118 years ago.

Born before the United States were formed.
Saw 22 presidents elected.
Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes.
Veteran of four wars.
Shod a horse when 99 years old.
Always conquered the grip with Pe-ru-na.
Witness in a land suit at the age of 110 years.
Believes Peruna the greatest remedy of the age for catarrhal troubles.

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper thing for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 118 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States.

"I have always been a very healthy man, but, of course, subject to the affections which are due to sudden changes in the climate and temperature.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine.

"When epidemics of la grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease.

"I had several long siages with the grip. At first I did not know that Peruna was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Peruna for la grippe and found it to be just the thing."

In a later letter, Mr. Brock writes:

"I am well and feeling as well as I have for years. I would not be without Peruna."

Yours truly,
Isaac Brock,

A letter dated July 8, 1906, written for Mr. Brock by his wife, Sarah J. Brock, states:

"Last winter I had just gotten up out of a spell of sickness, when I commenced taking Peruna. I think it improved my health very much."

In a postscript, Mrs. Brock adds: "He receives a great many letters inquiring about what Peruna will do. I do not answer them all, as I think they can get a bottle and try it."

MAN WHO AVERTED STRIKE.

Mr. Lloyd-George Says He Is the Happiest Man In England.

The treaty brought about by Mr. Lloyd-George between the great railway companies and their employes, is fit to rank with Lord Rosebery's famous settlement of the coal strike in 1893 and the Brooklands agreement of 1892, which brought peace to the cotton trade.

The President of the Board of Trade first took definite action when the companies, through the Great Eastern's manifesto, finally refused to deal in any way whatever with Mr. R. Bell, the patient leader of the agitation for recognition. Mr. Lloyd-George convened a meeting of railway directors on Oct. 26, when he made a great impression on the sixty railway chiefs assembled. He made a great speech, in which he laid his first proposals before the companies—proposals which were the germ of the present settlement.

MR. LLOYD-GEORGE.

Mr. Lloyd-George's triumph at the first meeting was that he got on to friendly terms with the directors. He chaffed Lord Claud Hamilton, congratulating him on his manifesto—told him that every politician would be envious of it. He implored Sir Frederick Banbury to bring to bear his remarkable and acknowledged powers.

When the meeting was over it broke up with friendly laughter. The last little scene was a humorous petition from the directors that they might escape from the siege of the press, and Mr. Lloyd-George laughingly lent them his key to get out by the Embankment gate.

At the next meeting the sixty directors were represented by six only, and the matter entered upon a grimmer stage. There was nearly a breakdown, but when the day arrived for the final conference at the Board of Trade the hopes of a settlement were general.

Mr. Lloyd-George, after attending a Cabinet meeting, had a meeting with the six representatives of the companies. Then he received Mr. Bell and other representatives of the Amalgamated Society, and after that Mr. Albert Fox, the engine drivers' secretary, who had been especially summoned to London. Mr. Lloyd-George then saw the companies' deputation again, and the agreement was signed.

For over twelve hours he was continuously at work bringing his keen intellect to bear on the directors and men. He snatched hurried meals in his own office, lunch being brought him at 1.30, tea at 5.30, and dinner at 9.30.

In the afternoon he had a strenuous two hours with Mr. Bell and his executive, and at 5.30 he walked into the room he had set apart for pressmen, and had ten minutes' conversation with them. When he left the offices after all was over he was tired out, but was, as he himself confessed, "the happiest man in England."

CLUNG TO THE RIGGING.

A brave attempt at rescue by Mr. Collins, the second officer, and a boat's crew of four men of the London steamer Gafsa, was reported recently on the arrival of the vessel in the Tyne.

At daybreak one morning during the prevalenc of a strong gale, while the Gafsa was loading at Taganrog, the Russian vessel Adriatic was observed some distance away in a sinking condition, having been in collision with another boat. Her crew of twelve men were clinging to the rigging, the masts only being above water. They had been in the rigging all the night. Presently two of the poor fellows went overboard with the topmast, and were drowned.

In face of the gale Mr. Collins and the boat's crew put off to the sinking vessel, and, at great risk, tried to reach it. After several hours hard work they had to give up their attempts, and take refuge in another steamer, where they remained till five o'clock in the evening before they could be taken off. The survivors on the Russian boat were in the end pluckily rescued by a lighter, which succeeded in getting a rope fixed on board.

It is not a question of how much a man knows, but what he can make of what he knows.—Holland.

LETTER LONG DELAYED.

Delivered in Port Hope After Being Posted 25 Years Ago.

Mr. R. L. Borden during one of his campaign speeches in the west, in criticising the mail service given in some parts of the new Provinces, instanced one case where a letter had been delayed eight days in travelling two miles.

Dr. Coulter, Deputy Postmaster-General, could have given him a far more interesting case in point. Two years ago a letter sent to an address in the city of Toronto was delivered twenty-five years after it had been mailed. The facts of the case tell a strange and pathetic story.

Away back in 1880 a citizen of Toronto, who had been absent in Europe for some months, on arriving in New York, wrote to his wife in Toronto that he would be home again in two days' time. The letter expressed in affectionate language the delight with which he looked forward to the home-coming after long separation from the family circle. By some mischance this letter fell into a crevice behind a large letter rack at the Toronto General Post Office. About two years ago, during some alterations in the postoffice, the letter was found and forwarded to headquarters at Ottawa. Dr. Coulter read the letter and instituted inquiries with a view to having it redirected and delivered. In Toronto it was learned that the family had removed some years ago to Barrie. An inquiry addressed to Barrie elicited the information that the daughter of the sender was living at Port Hope. The letter was accordingly forwarded to her there. A few days later Dr. Coulter received a letter from her telling him that her father had been killed in a railway wreck in New York State the day after he wrote the letter. Her mother had since died, and the letter now received after twenty-five years would be kept as a priceless treasure, containing as it did the last message of affection from her father.

STRUGGLE WITH A BEAR.

The story of an exciting tussle for life between a trapper and a large bear in the Lake Shuginish district, 18 miles northeast of Haliburton, is given by Dr. Norman Allan, who has lately returned from a successful deer hunt in that neighborhood.

Richard Craig of Kinmount, a veteran in the not unprofitable business of trapping bears and disposing of their pelts, was the chief figure in an encounter which for thrilling interest can almost beat the story writers.

Andy Waters, who is accounted one of the greatest bear hunters in the neighborhood, and who has during the past few years despatched more than 40 of the animals, had set a trap and left it a short time, when Craig, happening along, found a young bear caught. He shot the animal and was at work releasing it from the trap, when he heard a rustling of the leaves, and, looking up, saw a large she bear charging down the side of a hill upon him. Craig took a shot, but was only able to wound the animal, which closed with him and bore him to the ground. He would almost surely have lost his life had not his hound attacked the bear and kept it busy until the arrival of Waters, who despatched it with a well-directed bullet. Craig was almost unhurt.

It was afterwards discovered that two cubs belonging to her litter were near at hand, and the belief of the trappers was that the mother bear, thinking (if animals do think) that one of her cubs was entrapped, had flown to protect it.

Dr. Allan says that the district fairly abounds in bears, many of them being very large, weighing from 250 to 275 pounds, and very formidable and dangerous is interfered with.

"He says his whole life is a fizzle."
"Is he so pessimistic?"
"Not a bit of it. He's merely the clerk that attends to the soda water drinks."—Baltimore American.

It is for want of application rather than means that men fail of success.—La Rochefoucauld.

HONESTY AS A POLICY.

Rather an original story comes from the criminal prison at Warsaw. A bookkeeper named Schneider was awaiting his trial, being charged with fraud. As his health was bad, his family sent him many little delicacies unknown in the prison fare, delicacies which, no doubt, the head warder shared with him.

One day, among other things, a huge iced cake appeared. The warder's children were fond of cake, and so was his wife. They therefore determined to keep half of it for themselves. Their surprise was great when upon applying a knife to the dainty it stuck just below the icing and refused to go any farther.

"It must be baked to a cinder," said Mrs. Warder. But her good man, suspecting that something worse than careless baking was responsible for the cake's hardness, cut round the sides and was rewarded by finding a revolver and seven cartridges buried in the paste.

When brought up before the authorities Schneider confessed that he had intended to shoot his guardians and escape from prison before his trial. "After all," said the warder pensively when he told his story, "honesty is not always the best policy. If my wife had not cut into that cake I should have been a dead man by now, for I sleep hard."—Pall Mall Gazette.

CRUELTY IN PERSIA.

Queer Things About the People of That Queer Country.

According to the authors of "Queer Things About Persia," cruelty is common there. The executioner cuts throats in a public square, and the spectacle excites little interest. Criminals are sometimes crucified and sometimes walled up alive. Women for certain offenses are cast headlong from a tower. The Persian is a gentleman of surpassing courtesy and politeness, but say these writers: "The same man who drops rose petals under your feet in order to make them avoid the hardness of the road will not hesitate to make you suffer the most cruel tortures. He delights in the murmur of the rivulet in the moonshine, but the sound of blood flowing from an open wound has also for him its fascination. The singing of the nightingale fills him with rapture in the night, but he quivers with pleasure at the cry of pain from a victim." Also they affirm that lying is an institution and no one condemns it. "The Persian does not consider a lie a sin. He thinks that we have a bad opinion of lying because we do not know how to lie, and if he shows an unbounded confidence in everything the Europeans say it is chiefly because he thinks we are totally devoid of the gift."

Sustaining His Reputation.

A story is told of the Prince de Conti, whose reputation for cruelty stood high. He was going to mass with some ladies when his bailiff asked for instructions concerning a poacher who had just been caught on the grounds.

"Give him 100 stripes and imprison him in a dungeon for two years," was the answer.

One lady, horror stricken, went to the bailiff afterward, but he only laughed in her face.

"The prince only said that to keep up his reputation. His royal highness came to me directly after mass and begged me to see that the poor wretch was only sent away from the neighborhood for two months and that his family was well looked after during his absence."

Answered.

"Where shall the weary find rest?" exclaimed Rev. Dr. Fourthly, with dramatic emphasis.

A short snore from the pew occupied by Deacon Hardesty was the only response.—Chicago Tribune.

Minster Abbey Made Famous in the Ingoldsby Legends.

Readers of "Ingoldsby Legends" require no introduction to the historical district of Minster-in-Sheppey. Not only did Sir Robert de Shurland, whose kick would send a man "from June to Jericho," set out from the beach under Minster cliffs for his swim round the Nore on the back of his famous charger, but the body of the bold baron is interred in the ancient abbey. Close by his effigy lies the head of "Grey Dolphin," while the vane of the weathercock over the church, instead of being the usual arrow-feather, consists of the representation of a horse's skull.

Minster Abbey dates back more than twelve hundred years. It was founded as a nunnery by Sexburga, widow of Ercombert, King of Kent, between 664 and 670 A. D., and for about two hundred years the princesses of Kent were educated there. In 855 the pillaging Danes destroyed both church and nunnery, but in 1130 they were restored by William de Corbeuil, Archbishop of Canterbury.

Considering its age and the poverty of the parish, the old church has been maintained in excellent condition, while it abounds in interesting memorials. Besides the tomb of Sir Robert de Shurland, there are monuments of Sir Thomas Cheyne, who died in 1559, and two others, representing departed knights, whose names, unfortunately, are unknown, but which, from the style of the sculpture, are supposed to date from the fifteenth century.

Most famous of all, however, are the two brasses of Sir John de Northwode and Lady Joan de Badlesmere, his wife, which are declared by antiquarians to be without equal in Europe. The date of their execution is 1325 A. D., and the knight is represented as having been twice on crusades to the Holy Land. Antiquarians have traveled from all over the world to see these brasses, which are in an excellent state of preservation.

A rather quaint coincidence resides in the fact that one Sir Julius Caesar owned a large amount of land in the neighborhood in 1604 (the property passed to St. Katherine's hospital in 1643), and that until recently the medical officer of the parish was also named Julius Caesar.

The church was last restored in 1881. It is still lighted by oil lamps and heated by a stove, and the proposal to substitute electric light is likely, on sentimental grounds, to meet with a good deal of opposition. A fine lych-gate was erected to commemorate the coronation of King Edward VII.

AGED A HUNDRED AND TEN.

Death of One of Florence Nightingale's Crimean Nurses.

An interesting old lady, Mrs. Ellen Dunne, whose life has been well colored by romance, drama, and adventure, died recently at the patriarchial age of 110 years, in the quiet little village of Carrick, by the Shannon.

She was the daughter of a wealthy gentleman-farmer, and was scarcely out of her teens when she fell in love with a young soldier named Welsh, whom she married, despite the protestations of her parents. But the runaway match brought her first bereavement. Her soldier husband was killed in a gun accident.

But the widow, still young and pretty, and an admirer of the army, afterwards met and married Sergt. McHugh, who was drafted to Gibraltar in 1829. She joined him there a year later, and while there she bore her husband twins.

In 1854, when the Crimea war broke out, her husband was ordered to the front. In order to be near him, and moved with sympathy for the soldier heroes, she went as nurse under Miss Florence Nightingale. But great was her grief when she reached the front to learn that her husband had fallen before the walls of Sebastopol.

Widowed by war for the second time she devoted herself heroically to the care of the sick and wounded with the famous Nurse Nightingale. Then, when the war was over, she returned to England.

In the old country, as time went on, she was wooed by yet another soldier, Sergt. Dunne, and eventually she married him. About twenty years ago she returned with her husband to Carrick-on-Shannon, where the sergeant started a spirit and grocery business, which became very successful, and in which the old lady took an interest up to the very day of her death.

Tramp Well Provisioned.

A tramp committed to prison from one of the London courts was found to have in a sack he was carrying when arrested: A chicken, half a ham, a lady's blouse, several pipes, cup, saucer and spoon, a teapot, tea and sugar, a tin of condensed milk, some onions and beans, and a cup of dripping, which, when emptied, brought to light four half-sovereigns and a two-shilling piece.

With the odd humor of his class the tramp had asked the officers to take care of his "reticule," as it contained a week's subsistence, and would be useful to him on his release. The man's clothes, owing to his condition, had to be put in the disinfecting chamber, and the precious sack was investigated before it followed them.

Soul Mated.

"She declares they were made for one another."

"How does she make that out?"

"He cares about the monthly amount she'd like to spend."

Indians, Not English.

That some employers are experiencing considerable trouble in securing a good class of laborers is strangely emphasized in a letter received by Mr. J. G. Merrick, Secretary of the Employers' Association, Toronto, from a flax grower in western Ontario. Mr. Merrick had supplied the writer of the letter at his request with some 200 men, but some of them failed to report. Out of the number that went to work he had selected thirty to work for him. This is apparently the writer's first experience with these men. The letter in part was as follows:—"I have found that more than half of the men —English immigrants—are not here to pull flax. They want money without earning it. Thirty of the 200 that came are fairly good men, but the rest are no good, and the best they could do was to pull flax on an average of $11 per acre, and their loafing and cursing is unbearable. I have sent to a reservation near by for Indians who will give no trouble to pull flax. I used to think the white man was good enough for me, but never again —me for the Doukhobor."

Forbids Mixed Marriages.

The fact that the Roman Catholic Church is opposed to mixed marriages between its members and Protestants, and that it allows them only upon special dispensation being obtained, is well known, but the recent announcement that the general rule is to be strictly enforced in Montreal has brought special attention to this important question.

A retreat for young ladies was recently held in the Church of Notre Dame and among other advice given to those attending the religious exercises was a warning to be very prudent in their relations with Protestant young men, and be on their guard against courtship on the part of the latter, as his grace the archbishop was quite decided to refuse all demands of dispensation for mixed marriages between Catholics and Protestants.

This action on the part of the archbishop is in accordance with the well-known desire of the Pope to restrict as much as possible all such alliances, and it is understood that His Grace Mgr. Bruchesi will shortly issue an official document on the subject.

CLOSING CHAPTER OF MRS. NICHOLLS' PETERBOROUGH BENEFACTIONS; RESIDUE FINALLY APPROPRIATED

Mr. Richard Hall, on Behalf of Trustees, Adds the Sum of $115,000 to Nicholls Hospital Endowment Fund, Making it $200,000.

IT IS NOW SELF-SUSTAINING

Details of How This City Has Benefitted by Direct Bequests and by Distribution Faithfully Made by the Trustees Under Her Will.

The residue of the money left by the late Charlotte Jane Nicholls to be expended in conformity with the character of the direct bequests specified in her will, has been devoted by the Trustees to the endowment fund of Nicholls Hospital, increasing it from $85,000 to $200,000, and placing it practically upon a self-sustaining basis. By this action the fount of generosity flowing from the Nicholls estate is exhausted, and the pleasant surprise issuing from it will now cease in fact, if not in beneficent influence.

After the death of the late Mrs. Charlotte Jane Nicholls in 1890, the knowledge of her great wealth provoked no little speculation and curiosity as to the manner of its disposal and when it became known or rumoured that her will provided for large public benefactions, which were from time to time made known, and that a considerable sum was left to be expended at the discretion of the trustees, Messrs Richard Hall and and Charles McGill, public curiosity was again stimulated to an inquiry as to what disposition was being made of the unexpended balance of the estate of the deceased lady.

The Closing Chapter

For obvious business and other legitimate reasons, the public curiosity was not satisfied. But the time has come when the particulars regarding Mrs. Nicholls' public benefactions, of which, in a certain sense, the public is entitled to information, can be communicated. The residue of the estate has been allocated, and so far as the disposition of the public benefactions of Mrs. Nicholls are concerned, the trustees are relieved from the duty which, as the information given below shows, has been performed in the spirit and for the purposes generally indicated in her will.

A Splendid Endowment.

Yesterday afternoon, at a meeting of the Nicholls Hospital Trust Board, held in the Board Room of the Dominion Bank, the following letter from Mr Richard Hall, on behalf of the trustees, was pleasant reading to the members:

Hall's Grant to Hospital

The Board of Trustees Nicholls Hospital Trust.

Gentlemen,—The time having arrived for the final disposition of the residue of the Nicholls Estate a scheme was recently submitted to the Honourable, the Attorney General of Ontario, and approved by him, by which, after making specific donations the executors and trustees proposed that the remainder should be given to the Nicholls Hospital. Among the specific donations is the sum of $30,000 to be expended upon additional building for the hospital. The balance in the hands of the trustees largely consists of United States railway bonds, which, at present have an abnormally low market value; consequently it has been suggested that these should be handed over to the hospital trust to be dealt with by that body. This suggestion has also been approved by the Honourable, the Attorney General.

I, therefore, have great pleasure in apprising you that I am now in a position to place in your hands, in addition to the sum of $30,000 for building, securities, which with the present endowment of $85,000, will give the hospital an endowment of about $200,000—this, with the income from patients and the grant from the government, should make the hospital self-sustaining, a condition of affairs whih will undoubtedly give the board great pleasure.

I am sure that you will rejoice with me that such a large sum is being added to the endowment fund of the hospital, an object which all are aware was so dear to the late Mrs. Nicholls, the benefactress to whom our city owes so much.

I am, gentlemen,

Yours faithfully,

(Sgd.) RICHARD HALL,

Peterborough, Dec. 6th, 1907.

Naturally the board were delighted, and the public will share the pleasure which Mr. Hall's letter is adapted to giving. In view of the stage at which the late Mrs. Nicholls' public and semi-public relations are it may be interesting to indicate in some detailed manner in which, and the extent to which, Mrs. Nicholls' beneficience has been for the good of Peterborough.

Had Hospital at Heart.

A matter which lay very near Mrs. Nicholls' heart was what is involved in the hospital idea—a place where the sick and suffering, especially those of inadequate means could be treated and nursed with trained skill. And she did not wait till death to give partial effect to her ideas upon this subject. In her life time she erected the splendid Nicholls Hospital building. In the autumn of 1884, Mr. Robert Nicholls died and the following summer Mrs. Nicholls offered to present to the then town, as a memorial of her late husband, and for a hospital, the residence on the western borders of the town known as Moira Hall together with an endowment of $15,000. This building soon proving too small for the purposes of an hospital, Mrs. Nicholls caused to be erected at a cost of $35,000 the fine Queen Anne pile known as Nicholls Hospital, and the generous manner in which it has been maintained and endowed will be referred to later in this article. Very shortly after the completion of this hospital and its opening in 1889—in the year 1890—Mrs. Nicholls died and the provisions of her will revealed to what extent she realized her responsibility as the trustee of a large fortune. By the provisions of her will in addition to $750,000, in the form of personal legacies, there was bequeathed for:—

ONE OF THE TRUSTEES AND EXECUTORS OF MRS. CHARLOTTE NICHOLLS' WILL

Churches, and church purposes, including Sunday Schools	$130 000
Nicholls Hospital Endowment	85 000
Protestant Home	20 000
Young Men's Christian Association	20 000
Public Library	10 000
Public Parks	60 000
	$325 000

Supplementary Benefactions

By the terms and condition of the will there was a certain sum left to be expended at the discretion of the executors, but which was, however, to be devoted to the general purposes represented by the specific bequests mentioned. As remarked hospital work was very dear to Mrs. Nicholls and in compliance with her known wishes on this matter the trustees have very carefully followed what was in her mind during her lifetime. In addition to the building and endowment of the Nicholls Hospital, the trustees for the past twelve years have practically maintained the hospital by additional contributions amounting to..... ...$ 35,000

The parks bequest has been increased from $60,000 to $80,000 by a gift of 20,000

Additional to Y.M.C.A.	7,500
Gift to Y.W.C.A.	2,000
P. P. Home	2,000
Knox church	5,000
Children's Aid Society	1,300
Sunday School Libraries	6,000
Free deed of building for Public Library	20,000
St. Andrew's church	3,000
St. Paul's church	3,000
Miscellaneous charities	5,000
Increased endowment fund	115,000
Additional hospital buildings	30,000
Total discretionary distribution by trustees	$249,800
Total devised by will, including Nicholls Hospital	360,000

It is to be stated that the trustees have distributed for various worthy charitable purposes from time to time, many sums, small in themselves, but aggregate a considerable amount which is not included in the above statement. It might be added also, that the amount represented by the late donations exhaust the residue of the estate. The accounts of the trustees have been passed by the Attorney General, and the matter closed.

Here we have a total of much more than half a million as the amount by which the town and city of Peterborough has benefitted by the distribution in the public interests, not to speak of private bequests, of the wealth left behind by Mrs. Nicholls. Of this great sum $235,000 have been distributed by the trustees at their discretion, according to the spirit and intent of Mrs. Nicholls' will. Mrs. Nicholls as mentioned had a deep interest in the hospital and if Mr. Hall had not taken so deep a personal interest in the hospital it would not have had the splendid endowment completed to-day, which exhausts the residence of the Nicholls estate and concludes the connection of the trustees with it. As stated in the letter reproduced above, the proceeds of the securities placed at the disposal of the board will with the grant, and the revenue of patients make the Nicholls Hospital self-sustaining for all time. The board at its meeting yesterday constituted Messrs. R. Hall, John Orame and W. H. Hill a committee to deal with the securities representing the additional endowment. The sum of $115,000 is given as the present value of the securities.

OUR RESPONSIBILITY TO THE JEW

Subject To-morrow Afternoon at the Gospel Hall—Mr. Corney, of Toronto, Here

Mr. H. W. Corney, of the Toronto Jewish missions, is in the city, and at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon will speak in the Gospel Hall on "Our Responsibility to the Jew." The Toronto mission has been in operation for about 16 years. Mr. Corney is one of the council and principal workers. He speaks to the Jews in their own language. Every Christian of whatever name or denomination is invited to hear Mr. Corney, as this work is the privilege of every Christian. The mission is supported by voluntary contributions of churches of Toronto. The meeting to-morrow will commence sharp at 4 o'clock.—Com.

INSTRUCTIVE LECTURE ON DICKENS

Given by Sheriff Hall at St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. Meeting Last Night

An interesting meeting of the A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's church was held last night, with a large attendance of members present. In the absence of the president, Mr. Chas. Crane, the vice-president, occupied the chair. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt opened the meeting with devotional exercises. After the transaction of routine business, the rector called upon Sheriff Hall to give the lecture on "Dickens," which was most instructive and interesting. A hearty vote of thanks moved by Mr. A. Kingsmoto and seconded by Miss Pratley was tendered to Sheriff Hall.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on January 17, 1908, when a debate will be held, in which the following will take part: Miss Mary Pratley, Miss Clara Adams, Mr. Arthur Pakenham and Mr. Guy Quarterman, the subject to be decided by the participants. The meeting closed with the National Anthm.

THE FIRST OFFICIAL GRAIN REPORTS FROM THE WEST ARE ENCOURAGING

Toronto, Dec. 7.—Encouraging news, concerning the marketing and value of the grain crop in Western Canada, has been received in business circles here, and the brighter tone has had the effect of bringing cheer to the hearts of many who were almost prepared to learn that the money in circulation as a result of the season's operations would be less than that in 1906. The last issue of Bradstreets, referring to this important matter said:—

"It has been very generally stated that the value of this year's grain crop to the farmers of Western Canada would be well up to that of last year despite the decreased yield.

"The first definite figures to be issued are those of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which clearly bring out the truth of this contention. According to a statement recently issued the total value of the yield based upon the figures of October 15, is $128,860,988, as compared with $107,772,620 for the output of 1906 on a similar basis.

"Late reports say the farmers were, owing to the late fall, enabled to to get entirely through with their fall ploughing and it is stated that there will be some increase in the area put to seed."

GARDEN HILL MAN LOSES HIS LIFE IN A FATAL RUNAWAY FROM THE GRIST MILL THERE

KNOWN IN PETERBOROUGH

Examiner Special.

Millbrook, Dec. 7. — An unfortunate accident, which resulted fatally, occurred at Garden Hill, ten miles south of here, yesterday afternoon, the victim being John Hunter, a well-known farmer, who resided on on the tenth concession of Hope.

It appears that Mr. Hunter drove to Garden Hill during the afternoon, bringing with him a load of grain to be grown at the village mill. While standing a short distance away from his sleigh at the mill the horses started. Mr. Hunter sprang towards the horses in time to catch the lines, but was unable to get the team under control. The sleigh came against a bridge, Mr. Hunter's body striking the bridge with great force. It was evident that he had received very serious injuries, and he was placed on the afternoon G.T.R. train to be taken to the Nicholls' Hospital at Peterborough. Before reaching Millbrook Mr. Hunter expired. The remains were removed to Mr. W. J. E. Gillott's undertaking establishment here. The deceased was 47 years of age, and unmarried.

The Dan Spence ambulance was instructed to meet the G.T.R. last evening but on arriving there it was found that the unfortunate man had died at Millbrook, and had been taken off the train there.

You think I look so much better; yes, and I feel better. Miller's Compound fron Pills did it. They are sold by W. Madill.

Nine Years For Blackmailing

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—John R. Labatt was sentenced to-day to nine months at hard labour in the Central Prison for blackmailing Hon. H. R. Emmerson. The latter did not wish to prosecute, being satisfied with admission that the disclosures threatened by Labatt existed only in his imagination. Evidence showing that Labatt was mixed up in stock dabbling was also adduced, but the Crown Attorney insisted upon some punishment. The maximum punishment is 14 years.

LEFT ON A VISIT TO SCOTLAND

Mr. Alex. Archibald Going Home After Five Years Here

Mr. Alex. Archibald, the well known local plumber, left this morning, accompanied by Mrs. Archibald, for New York whence they will sail on Monday on the steamer Lusitania for the old land. They will spend two months at Mr. Archibald's former home in New Milnes, Scotland, returning to Canada about February 1st.

This is Mr. Archibald's first visit to Scotland since coming out here five years ago, and he is taking back with him a deep admiration for Canada in general and Peterborough in particular and promises to preach both to his friends in the Land O'cakes. He is a good advertisement of the opportunities Canada offers to young men, inasmuch as he arrived in this country five years ago with very little money, but he has devoted himself to his trade with energy and thrift so that two years ago he was able to go into business for himself and took over the plumbing department of the Best Stove Company.

STORY OF THE FIRST SURVEYS MADE WHEN PETERBOROUGH WAS AN UNPRODUCTIVE WILDERNESS

Historic Information Secured From Plans Almost a Century Old, in Possession of Mr. A. J. Cameron

EMILY'S EARLY SETTLERS

The Peter Robinson Emmigration—Plan of Survey Signed by Papineau, the Prominent Political Agitator.

The people of Peterborough are always interested in historic reference to the early days of this flourishing city, and there are few, if any, who can recollect the situation here of early days as shown by ancient plans now in the possession of Mr. A. J. Cameron, Ontario land surveyor, who has kindly shown them to the Examiner.

The city of Peterborough was partially surveyed in 1825, and a main survey was taken eight years later. Hon. Peter Robinson was then Minister of Crown Lands. The first survey of Peterborough was taken along Park streets and streets running into it from the east and west. The survey of Smith street and streets running north was taken in 1845. On this survey the plans show that Stewart street was spelled "Stwart," Reid was spelled "Reade," and instead of Harvey street, as we now have it, the street was called Henry street. The communication road in Smith is also shown. The plan was drawn by D. P. S. Huston, at a scale of five chains to the inch, and was signed at the Crown Lands Department, in Montreal, 13th December, 1845, by the celebrated patriot, M. Papineau. The creases in the plans are almost worn through, but the writing and drawing are as plain as on the day it was drafted.

On the first survey there were many men whose grandchildren are prominent citizens of Peterborough at the present day, and the documents show the positions these pioneers held, and the wages drawn, as follows:

Isaac English, chainman, 3 and 6 pence per day.

John Clarke, chainman, 2 and 9 pence per day.

Wm. English, chainman, 2 and 6 pence per day.

Robert White, axeman, 2 and 9 pence per day.

Pat Fitzpatrick, axeman, 2 and 6 pence per day.

Thomas Hurley, chainman, 2 and 6 pence per day.

Small Wages

The second survey took place in 1833. The money in those days was much different from that now used. Five shillings were equal to one dollar in provincial currency. Therefore, the men who penetrated the woods in Peterborough to select homes for us and lay out our land received 62 cents at the highest as a daily wage, and had to buy their own rations. These men were under Government control and received their appointment from the Commissioner of Crown Lands, or by Order-in-Council.

At the time of the first survey of Peterborough there were few human beings living here. The country was wild, with a beautiful river running through it. The surveyors had to content themselves with living in tents and making the best of their hardships. Peterborough then was an isolated spot and far from all scenes of active life.

After the survey was made, the Government paid John Gates 3s 6d a hundred for 1000 feet of pine scantling for making posts and paid John Hall, Esq., the same price per hundred for 700 feet.

The different surveys were made as follows: Peterborough 1825, Smith, Emily and Monaghan in 1818. In that year a special Act was passed by the Government to the effect that the single front system of survey should be done away with, and also stated how surveyors should act.

First Act.

In the year 1825, on the 24th of October, the Peter Robinson immigrants, settled in Emily. These settlers received a free grant of land, and were given six days rations free of charge. The descendants of these pioneers are now occupying the same lots as were given to their forefathers in those early days. The list of settlers in Emily is as follows: Wm Flynn, J Flynn, Dan Flynn, Cor Ligne, D Connell, C Connell, I Sheehan, Dan Sheehan, J Sheehan, J Murphy, P Herlihy, P Herlihy, jr., I Sullivan, Tim Dorgan, Dan Dorgan, Dan Fitzpatrick, Owen, Kelly, O McCarthy, F McCarthy, Jas. Rockfort, Pat Shea, J Ahearn, J Callaghan, Jas Flynn, M Doran, Will Doran, Pat Cluney, John Sliney, W Barrett, Geo Mason, O Mason, Geo Miller, Dan Connors John Geary, Will Cotter, Thos Hennessey, W Halloran.

Many of these settled on the same lot, one taking the south and the other the north side of the lot. Every settler named above came from Ireland in the Robinson immigration. Mr. Cameron has several letters in his possession written by these people.

PLEASANT SOCIAL EVENT OF THE SOCIAL SEASON

The Octogon Club Dance in the Conservatory of Music Hall

The Conservatory of Music Hall was again the scene of a brilliant function last evening, the occasion being the annual dance of the Octagon Club. There was a large attendance and of course a delightful evening was spent by the merry company of dancers.

Piano music was provided by Mr. Musgrove, of Toronto, who needs no introduction to Peterborough dancers and the catering was done by Hooper. The patronesses were Mesdames Jas. Hamilton, Roland Deane, A Dickson Hall, Cyril Currier Frederick L. Roy and H. Thompson. The committee in charge of the successful function was composed of Messrs. G. Ross Cameron, E. A. Ford, W. E. Hillhouse, M. Moore, B. Gillespie, C. Barber, F. Sawers, and W. Graham Ferguson.

INTERESTING SUBJECT AT MEN'S CLASS

Discussion Will Centre on a Very Attractive Young Widow

The Young Men's Social Bible Class meets to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock in George street Methodist church, Rev. E. A. Pearson, leader. Part of the lesson plan of discussion will be on a very attractive young widow who renounces her religion with all its exhibition of form worship and ceremonies for simple faith like spiritual worship of Jehovah, a living God. Some of the questions to be answered by some members of the class will be:—

"Does the memory of her deceased husband or the hope of another husband influence her to go home with her mother-in-law?"

"Was it right for Ruth to leave her mother for her mother-in-law?"

"Should friendship be permitted before business?"

"How far is it right to attribute affections to God?"

A CONTRAST

The Conservative party is not in any danger of being hanged for its consistency, if that were made a hanging offence. They would be perfectly innocent. What they claim as a virtue in their days, or on their part, is a mortal sin at the present time, or when performed by a Liberal Government. In all its history, the Conservative party has scored a record of political corruption that easily stands it "up head." With its hands reeking with the warm colour of corruption funds spent in the last Dominion elections on behalf of Conservatives in his native province, Mr Borden has gone from ocean to ocean holding up his clean hands in holy horror, and declaring that the "Grits" are abominable in their political corruption, and that if we could only cleanse them we would have a reign of political purity, the Conservative party being stainless. The Conservative Opposition declares that country is being ruined by the adverse balance of trade—that is, by the excess of imports over exports in the matter of our foreign trade. If that is crime for the "Grits," it was a virtue for the Conservatives. What is the record? In the House of Commons Hon Sydney Fisher dealt with what he called "the bugaboo of the balance of trade," and pointed out that the best political economists did not accept the view that an excess of imports over exports was a bad sign. He cited figures showing that for the five-year period from 1886 to 1890, when the national policy was in operation, the excess of imports over exports amounted to $116,000,000, while for the five-year period from 1896 to 1900, immediately following the advent of the Liberal regime, there was an excess of exports over imports to the amount of twenty-four millions. The fact was that the imports, of which the Opposition make so much complaint, were largely from the United States, and were largely raw material used for industries, which were prospering as they had never prospered before. The balance of trade was against us because the people of Canada wanted more of the good things that were not produced at home. The Liberals are condemned for their lavish expenditure, while the lavish expenditure of the Conservative regime was always and only good. Extravagant expenditure depends on means available. The Conservatives spent more money than they had to spend. They plunged the country into debt—ran behind their income year after year. The contrast in Conservative methods and results with Liberal methods and results is worth submitting. The record shows that, while during eleven years of Conservative administration prior to 1896, surpluses amounted to $9,594,00, and deficits amounted to $12,339,000, or an average deficit of $249,000, the administration of the present Government for the past eleven years showed surpluses amounting to more than ninety-four million dollars, or, deducting one deficit of $519,000, a net surplus for that period of $93,626,000. The Conservative policy of criticism, which destroys the relative moral quality of actions, by making them good or bad, according to those who perform them, compels comparisons of methods, which must necessarily consist of contrasts.

COMIC ECONOMICS

The following sane comment upon Mr Cockshutt's (Brantford) insane amendment to the address in reply, is from the Montreal Witness:

"For wild political economy commend us to the speech of Mr Cockshutt, who may now be looked upon as the protectionist leader in Parliament. During the past year the country bought a hundred and twenty millions more goods than it sold. That, Mr Cockshutt declared, was not his idea of business. The champion's idea of business would appear to be that more should go out than comes in. It is a curious view in itself, and it is strange that one should hold it with such large data as the world now possesses of the relations of the balance of trade to periods of adversity and prosperity. It is not an absolute rule, but for the most part it is the prosperous nations and in their prosperous periods that have this experience of importing more than they export; which is what we would look for. Commodities, including gold and silver, represent, in the long run, the whole of the value of all exchange between countries, and if the incoming commodities are, after paying transportation, etc., worth more than the outgoing ones, the country is by that the richer. We cannot get paid for what we export except in imports. Gold simply acts as counters to cover ultimate balances, and is of no value but for what it will buy. The real return we get for our shipments is what we import. From this, two conclusions follow. One is that the more freely we can import the more we can export; and the second is that if our commerce is profitable we shall import more value than we export. If we do not, we are the losers by the cost of carriage both ways."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The unsavoury Bradley case has ended in Mrs. Bradley's acquittal. She sold her honour to a man, came between him and his wife, and then shot him deliberately when he deserted her. She invoked the unwritten law, and has emerged a heroine. This sort of justice, the London Advertiser thinks, is the real Dementia Americana.

Mr. Elson, the Conservative member for East Middlesex, advocates the levelling up of the Senate in a party sense, and thereafter the appointment of Conservatives and Liberals to the Senate alternately. Mr. Elson does not share the hopefulness of Mr. Borden, as to the power of nominating Senators speedily passing into the hands of the Conservatives.

Mr. Borden accuses the Laurier Government of being the cause of the financial stringency. And he is right, too; prosperity has been so rampant, the business of the country has travelled so fast, that it has overtaken capital.

Hon. George E. Foster, when asked in the House, why he was not selected as leader of the Opposition, joocosely replied that it was a "conundrum." A self-evident fact is not a conundrum.

The financial ingenuity of our southern neighbours, is protean in the shapes it assumes. It is now proposed to put a tax of $1 on each barrel of beer brewed in the United States, to create a fund of fifty millions of dollars annually for the development of the national waterways. This is not the freak proposal of some irresponsible person, but is solemnly proposed by resolution in the United States House of representatives. Watered stock is common across the line, but beered stock is something new. Temperance agitators will look askance at the proposal to float the country's commerce on beer. Such a stimulus to patriotic consumption of beer, cannot promote the cause of temperance. The fund to build waterways through the medium of beer will will come to grief, if the local option wave now surging in the United States, spreads largely, as it threatens.

THE GEORGIAN BAY CANAL

La Presse, Montreal, in the course of an article advocating the Georgian Bay Canal, states that its construction will shorten the distance from Chicago to Montreal 488 miles, as compared with the distance from Chicago to New York of 1,325 miles. It also points out that the Georgian Bay Canal, to be built as proposed at a cost of one hundred millions of dollars, will take vessels of 22 feet draft, that is, ocean capacity, while New York will have to expend one hundred millions to make the Erie Canal available for vessels of 14 feet draft. La Presse contends also that even with the enlargement of the Erie canal, it will cost 4 1-2 cents per bushel to carry wheat from Chicago on Duluth to New York; whereas, by the Georgian Bay Canal the same wheat can be carried to Montreal for 1 1-2 cents per bushel. La Presse also claims as an advantage for the Georgian Bay route that if two vessels were to leave Chicago at the same time, the Georgian Bay vessel will be in Montreal when the other has only reached Buffalo, and that when the latter reaches New York for transhipment of its cargo to an ocean-going vessel (the Erie Canal has only 14 feet draft) the Georgian Bay vessel will have passed, on her way to Europe, the Straits of Belle Isle, about nine hundred miles nearer Liverpool than New York is. La Presse insists that the "beauty" of the Georgian Bay Canal is that on no part of its course can the United States divert a portion of the west-to-east commerce as they do to-day to Buffalo and Oswego. It is evident that the Georgian Bay Canal is a desirable achievement, but the cost seems at present to be the freak in the channel.

ENTERTAINED CHOIR AT THE MANSE

The choir and Sunday School officers were entertained at the Springville manse last evening by Dr. and Mrs. Marsh. The choir is making special efforts to prepare the music for the anniversary of the induction of Rev. Dr. Marsh. The office bearers of the Sunday School gave favourable reports of the summer work and arrangements were made for the Christmas entertainment to be held on Friday, Dec. 27th. After this was concluded the company spent an enjoyable evening in a social manner including refreshments.

Rev. Dr. Marsh will conduct anniversary services to-morrow both at Springville and at Bethany.

WHEAT ALL THE WAY FROM 16 TO 92 CTS.

Mr. Allan Crowe, of Dummer, Home, After Spending Summer in the West

Yesterday Mr. Allan Crowe, of North Dummer, arrived home from the west, where he has spent the past few months in the vicinity of Regina. Mr. Crowe states that, although a large quantity of wheat was frozen there still remains large quantities. He saw some sell as low as 16 cents per bushel and some as high as 92 cents.

He is in love with the west like many other young men who have visited it from Ontario and intends going out again in the spring.

A VERY PROMISING COBALT MINER

One of the most promising mines of Cobalt is that situated about fifteen miles north-east of the town of Cobalt, and known as "The Casey Mountain Cobalt Mining and Developing Company, Limited."

This property consists of ten claims of forty acres each, and is heavily mineralised, having at least twenty-five well defined veins traversing the entire property.

Three shafts have already been sunk, one 112 feet deep, another 40 feet and the other 20 feet. The first is the main shaft and the one in which present operations are confined. At the fifty-foot level a drift has been made into the mountain 90 feet and in this drift a tremendous lode or chimney of ore was encountered, carrying silver in values from 20 to 30 dollars per ton. It was then decided to continue the main shaft, and from the 112 foot level a drift of fifteen feet was made, at which point the big lode was again encountered, only carrying values 50 per cent. richer, and the superintendent estimates that already 50,000 tons of ore are in sight, and taking this block of ore at the low values of 20 dollars per ton would mean a value of $1,000,000, and he further states that the company can depend on this vein going down at least 2,000 feet, and is convinced that values will still further increase with depth.

The company is at present negotiating with a firm regarding the purchase of a concentrating plant, which firm guarantees to instal a plant with a capacity of 100 tons every twenty-four hours for the sum of $15,000, and to save 95 per cent. of silver values, also the Cobalt and nickle, and that only three men are required to operate it. By this process the ore will be reduced from twenty to one, that is every twenty tons of ore put through the concentrator only one ton will have to be shipped to the smelter to reduce the silver, thus making a great saving in freight charges.

The company has a low capitalization, being only $250,000, the shares at present selling at one dolar each, and the directors are confident that they have one of the largest mining propositions in the Cobalt district.

The head office of this company is in Toronto, 210 Manning Chambers, Queen street, west, from which place any further information desired may be obtained.

THE STATEMENTS WERE WINDY

Mr. Allan McCarthy, the Veteran House Mover, Adds to the Controversy

Mr. Editor,—

Dear Sir,—Will you give me space in the columns of your paper to correct a couple of windy articles sent in by some one in regard to the moving of Mr. Laplante's brick house and Mr. Kennedy's store on Aylmer street. I was not forced to employ a foreman to complete my work. As the work had to be completed as soon as possible I employed a man by the name of Olin to help me, as he is a smart, pushing young man, but I myself had the supervision of the work the greater part of the time—the timber was all placed under the brick houses before he came near to help. I am surprised that the other six men, engaged by me, did not have a windy statement of their grand success—then there would have been a huge wind storm to chronicle in Peterborough.

Yours truly,
ALLAN M'CARTHY.
Peterborough, Dec. 6.

THEY ARE RETURNING TO EUROPE

C. P. R. Train in Three Sections to Accommodate the Large Numbers

The exodus of the immigrants continues unabated. Yesterday the noon C.P.R. train going to Montreal went through this city in three sections. One of these sections was composed entirely of immigrants and the other two had a large percentage of the same. The trains yesterday appeared to the observer to have just turned around since the summer, the passengers having the same appearance as when they first arrived here. There was more than one nationality represented but the Italians and English predominated.

It is learned that nearly every train has its quota of foreigners returning to their native climes and some of them run double. Friday was unusually busy in this respect and a larger number than usual were returning. It is not known what opinions they had formed of the country or their reasons for going back, but the mere fact that they were returning home is sufficient to vouch that they were glad they were on their way.

Housekeepers will find it profitable to call on JAMES R. BELL, 161 Hunter Street, for the farmers have him loaded up with Dairy Butter, Fresh Eggs, Apples and Potatoes. Store is open at night. Both Phones.

The Mission Band Bazaar Was Financial Success

All the Articles for Sale at George Street Were Disposed Of—Large Crowds Present During Afternoon and Evening.

VERY ENJOYABLE MUSIC

The bazaar under the auspices of the Mission Band of the George street Methodist church, held in the Sunday school room yesterday afternoon, was an unqualified success. There was a good attendance in the afternoon and a still larger one at night, and everything for sale was disposed off before the close of the evening.

They were in charge of the following:

Handkerchief booth — Miss McGuire, Miss Mabel Chasty.

Fancy Work — Miss Lily Wilson, Miss Hetherington.

Fancy Work Boxes — Miss Ethel Kemp.

Collars Booth — Miss L. Fisher.

Candy Table — Miss Hilda Dobbin, Miss Violet Stevens, Miss Mamie Armstrong, and Miss Lily Packard.

During the evening enjoyable piano music was provided by a number of young ladies, among them the following: Misses Etta Kemp, Lily Packard, Dorothy Dobbin, Winnifred Dobbin, Pearl Ruth and Ethel Regan.

An auction sale was held at the conclusion of the bazaar, Mr. Ed. Mann acting as auctioneer very effectively. Financially the bazaar was a great success.

Mr. Carscallen Honoured By Fellow Lodge Members

ADDRESSES WERE GIVEN

At the regular meeting of the J. Bell Memorial, L. O. L. No. 1175, held in the range Hall, Simcoe sOtreet, last night, the services of Bro. J. E. Carscallen was recognized in a fitting manner by the memberes of the lodge, who presented him with the handsome Past Master's jewell of the order. The presentation was made by Bro. H. T. Everett, while an eulogistic address was read by Bro. R. E. Juby. Bro. Carscallen has been a most faithful member of the lodge and is very popular with his fellow members.

W M—H. T. Everett.
D M—J. E. Carscallen.
Chap—H. Smith.
Rec Sec—R. E. Juby.
Fin Sec—Jas. Garside.
Treas—Geo. Williamson.
D of C—A. McDonald.
1st Lieut—A. E. Bartley.
2nd Lieut—B. McMullen.
1st Com—Wm. Maxwell.
2nd Com—Everett Rombaugh.
3rd Com—U. Hawley.
4th Com—Wm. Butler.
5th Com—Wm. Henry.

The officers were duly installed by Bro. Robson, District Master, and during the evening speeches were made by Bro. W. H. G. Armstrong, County Master, and others present.

NEARLY ALL THE COUNCIL WILL BE IN FIELD AGAIN

From present indications it looks as if the whole council of 1907 will stand for re-election next year, although a couple may drop out at the end of this year. The Mayor will be in the field again and, so far, there has been no mention of any opposition, although, of course, that may develop later.

Of the council, the only doubtful ones, we thought, are Ald. Leary and [illegible]re, both of whom are considering the advisability of retiring from the field. Ald McIntyre, although he has not definitely made up his mind yet, has stated that he has been thinking seriously of dropping out. Ald. Leary when approached by the Examiner to-day on the subject, had nothing to say as to whether he would run or not.

The other aldermen seem to have adopted the same policy of silence in regard to their intentions but, as far as can be gathered at present, it would not be surprising to see the names of nearly all of them on the ballot papers on January 6th. So far no new names have been mentioned in connection with the hunt for aldermanic honours but there is plenty of time yet in which opposition may materialize. It is hardly expected that the council will be elected by acclamation this year.

MAKE HIM HAPPY

ON CHRISTMAS MORNING

LeBrun & Co. Can Help You

What will Santa Claus bring? That's the all-absorbing topic, and it's NOW that the thing should be settled, if you really want to do your best. For Christmas is just round the corner.

THIS is our 35th Christmas Anniversary and the Big Clothing Store is still prospering and growing---thanks to the continued confidence of the public.

Every year more and more people do their Christmas shopping at LeBrun's for two reasons. 1st:--Because they are sure of something out of the ordinary and 2nd, because they are sure of being charged an honest price.

We want to make this Anniversary a record-breaker. We have done our part by providing the right-goods at the right prices. We leave the rest--to you with the request to do it NOW.

We want the Ladies to feel at home at LeBrun's, for this is a Lady's Store at Xmas as well as a Man's. A lady's present to her husband, and a young woman's present to her brother, or some other girl's brother, will have all the good sensible points about it that LeBrun's High-Class Furnishings and Fine Clothing presents. Christmas Handkerchiefs are a leading line at LeBrun's. We show very fine samples for gentlemen in Silk, Linen, Lawn, etc., initialled and plain, and put up in Fancy Boxes.

The City Clothing Store

Has made extensive purchases in SENSIBLE GIFTS for men, young men and boys. Let it be distinctly understood, too, that we are CUTTING PRICES so that even our large stock may be too small for wise, moneysaving fathers mothers, husbands, wives, lovers, brothers and sisters. Look over this list and you'll be sure to find something that he would like to find in his "stocking."

Elements Of Success Dealt With In Literary Address

A MUSICAL PROGRAMME

At the regular meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T. A. S., last evening a large and appreciative audience assembled in the association hall to enjoy the excellent programme presented. The most interesting feature of the evening was, however, the essay on "Some Elements of Success," by Miss Kate McGrath. The subject, though a broad one, was dealt with in a most praiseworthy manner, and from beginning to end proved to be highly interesting and most instructive.

"Success" was very clearly defined as the favourable termination of anything attempted; a termination, in other words, which answers the purpose intended. A commercial success won on conservative lines and maintained by cautious and prudent methods is the success most highly regarded in the business world to-day. The meteor-like commercial flash, so admired by the average young person, seldom has a firm foundation and rarely commands the confidence of successful business men. The truest success is that which is earned slowly but which surely strengthens itself. Ostentation is never typical of true success. Success is simply doing anything to the utmost of one's ability; making as much of one's position as it is possible to make.

The first element of success which was very ably dealt with was aspiration or idealism. The ideal is the continual image that is cast upon the brain; these images are as various as the stars and like them differ from one another in magnitude. It is the quality of the aspiration that determines the true success or failure of a life. As a man's ideal or aspiration, so shall his life be. Aspiration has been likened to a ladder up which hope lifts us step by step; the top of which no eye has ever seen. Though we do not find what hope promised, yet we are stronger for the climbing and we get a broader outlook upon life, which repays the effort. Ambition is but the dull shadow of aspiration. Man is made to be that which he is made most capable of desiring, but he must desire the thing itself and not the shadow. God has not created us with aspirations for heights to which we cannot climb. The unattained still beckons us towards the summit of life's mountains into the atmosphere where great souls live, breathe and have their being.

Life, continued the essayist, is full of opportunities. Every business transaction is an opportunity to be polite, to be honest and to make friends. Every proof of confidence is a great opportunity, every responsibility thrust upon our strength and honour is priceless. Life pulsates with chances. They may not be dramatic or great, but they are important to those who would succeed in the world. It is the idle man who is always complaining that he has no opportunity. Open eyes will discover opportunities everywhere; open ears will never fail to detect the cries of those who are perishing for assistance; open hearts will never want for worthy objects upon which to bestow their gifts; open hands will never lack for noble work to do.

An important factor in a successful life, stated the writer, is a determined will power and the knowledge how to use it. The saddest failures in life are those that come, from not putting forth the power and will to succeed. "As men in a crowd," says Dwight, "instinctively make room for one who would force his way through it," so mankind makes way for one who rushes towards an object beyond him. "Nothing can be done with a man who has invincible purpose in him. Difficulties and opposition do not daunt him. He thrives upon persecution, it only stimulates him to more determined endeavour. No success is worthy of the name unless it is won by honest industry and brave breasting of the waves of fortune.

Luck and labour were then very ably contrasted. "Luck is ever waiting for something to turn up," says Cobden. Labour with keen eyes and strong will will turn up something. Luck relies on chance, labour on character. Luck lies in bed and wishes the postman would bring him news of a legacy, labour turns out at an early hour, with busy pen or ringing hammer lays the foundation of a competence. Luck has never made an ignoramus utter lectures on science, a coward win at Yorktown, Waterloo or Richmond; a careless stone-cutter carve an Apollo, a Minerva or a Greek slave.

Continuing, the writer stated that nothing counts like perseverance. It has put in motion millions of spindles, winged as many flying shuttles, harnessed thousands of iron steeds to as many freighted cars and sent them flying from town to town, from nation to nation, travelled mountains of granite and annihilated space with lightning's speed. It has whitened the waters of the world with the sails of a hundred nations, navigated every sea and explored every land. It has reduced nature in her thousand forms to as many sciences, taught her laws, prophesied her future movements and measured her untrodden spaces. Genius darts and tires but perseverance wears and wins.

Concentration, that gift of which Emmerson speaks of as "the one prudence in life," was then touched upon. The great difference between those who succeed and those who fail consists in the amount of intelligent work done. Many who fail labour at haphazard, building up with one hand only to tear down with the other. It matters not how rich the material we have gleaned from the years of study and toil, if one go out into life with no well-defined idea of one's future work. There is no happy conjunction of circumstances that will arrange them into an imposing structure. Concentration and steadfastness were the main traits of William Pitt's character, Charles Dickens and Carlyle attributed their success to the power of concentration.

In every well-balanced life, concluded the essayist, there is one grand central purpose in which all the lesser powers of the soul are brought to a focus where they will find fit expression. Since the shuttle of creation shot for the first time through chaos, design has marked the course of every golden thread. Every leaf, every flower, every crystal, every atom has a purpose stamped upon it which unmistakably points to the crowning summit of creation—man.

This very able essay was of a decidedly intellectual nature and was presented in a most attractive manner.

The following musical programme, which prefaced the reading of the essay and which was rendered in a faultless manner, was introduced by Miss Eva Langney, who occupied the chair for the evening.

Instrumental duet—Misses B. Picard and E. Gordon.
Vocal solo—Miss Mamie Theobald.
Recitation—Miss Mabel Pringle.
Instrumental duet—Miss M. Trombley and Master S. Sheehy.
Dialogue—"The Old Maid."
Characters—
Miss Flirt—Miss Mary O'Brien.
Miss Jennie Lee—Miss Irene Doris.
Miss Anna Steele—Miss Mabel Tangney.
Dr. Thorntongrove—Mrs Jas. O'Brien.
Deacon White—Mr. Frank Pope.

Special mention must be made of the dialogue, which was presented in a manner that won merited and hearty applause from the enthusiastic audience present. Misses O'Brien, Tangney and Doris performed their parts admirably, while Messrs. Pope and O'Brien could not be surpassed in their clever impersonations of Deacon White and Dr. Thorntongrove.

The accompanyist of the evening was Mr. H. Theobald.

The next meeting of the society will be held on Friday evening, December 20th, when an essay will be read by Miss Milaney.

RECONSTRUCTED ORGAN OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Messrs Breckels and Matthews, who have the contract for rebuilding the organ of St Paul's Presbyterian Church, will be in the city on Monday to assemble the parts and refinish the organ. This work will require eight or nine days, and when it is done St Paul's will be able to boast of one of the best church organs in the Province.

BOIL THE WATER

Lame back and urinary troubles arise from a poison in the system affecting the urinary organs. An old woman's recipe for the driving out of this poison is quite simple and inexpensive. It consists of four ounces syrup of rhubarb, one ounce compound kimona, and one ounce of sweet spirits of nitre. Buy these at any drug store and mix at home. After meals and at bedtime take a dessertspoonful in a little water. Boil all drinking water and drink lots of it. Don't eat any acid products such as raw fruit, pickles, and above all, no liquor must be used.—12,

Good Programme Promised For Hartley Benefit Concert

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

Most of the arrangements were made last night at a public meeting for a benefit concert for David Hartley to be held in the Grand Opera House at some date in the near future. The very best local talent has been promised and the affair should be a success in every particular. At least it will give the citizens an opportunity of materially showing their appreciation of the honour that Hartley brought upon the city, and the favourable advertisement his record was for Peterborough in the eyes of the Dominion.

There was a good attendance at the meeting, which was held in the council chamber, and among the number were noticed, Ald. Phelan, Morgan, McIntyre, and Elliott, and Messrs. R. J. Munroe, A. Moore, and W. McIlroy.

After a general discussion of the affair it was moved by Ald. Morgan, and seconded by Ald. Elliott, that Messrs. John Crane, Wm. McIlroy, George Lynch, W. S. Davidson and R. Gliddon, form a committee to arrange for the programme.

Mr. Charles Mitchell kindly acted as secretary pro tem.

The following committee was appointed to look after the finances, on motion of Ald. Elliott, and Mr. A. Moore: Messrs. H. R. H. Kenner, E. Best, R. M. Glover, Jos. Maher, R. J. Munro and A. Moore.

Mr. McIlroy moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that Mr. W. S. Davidson be the secretary-treasurer.

The concert will be held in the Grand opera house, and it is unnecessary to state that the citizens should be as good as their word and assist in every manner in making the concert a success.

A meeting of the various committees is called for Monday evening at 7 o'clock in the council chamber.

Winners Of The Big Meet Received Their Medals

Presentations Were Made Last Night in the Y.M.C.A. Gynasium —Mr. V. Eastwood in Charge of the Ceremony.

THE BASKETBALL GAMES

An interesting event took place in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last night when the successful competitors in the Y.M.C.A. Harriers' meet in the Brock street rink were presented with the medals given as prizes. A number of the prizes were won by Toronto men, to whom they have been forwarded, but the majority of the local winners were on hand and were loudly applauded when they came forward to be presented with their prizes. A large crowd was in the gallery and seemed to be deeply interested in the affair.

Mr. Vincent Eastwood, Hon. Vice-President of the Association, made the presentations, and in doing so he congratulated the Harriers upon the success of the meet. It had met with the approval of everyone, he stated, and he was sure that the Harriers would receive assistance from the people of the city. The Y.M.C.A. was anxious to encourage the enterprise to the best of its ability, and the directors were elated over the manner in which the boys had taken hold of the work. In conclusion, he thanked the Harriers for the honour they had done him in inviting him to make the presentations.

The prizes were then given for the following: Norman Darling, two silver medals for second prize in the 880 yards and 50 yards; Fred McGrath, gold medal, first in the 50-yards dash; Lou Dobson, gold medal, first in the 880 yards; Ben Howard, silver medal, second in the three-mile handicap; Chas Thorpe, silver medal, third in the three-mile handicap; Fred Simpson, second in the mile race, and Ernie Wilson, second in the three-mile special.

Messrs McGrath, Wilson, Simpson and Howard were unable to be present and they missed a hearty reception.

President E. M. Best of the Harriers was called upon for a speech, and thanked the boys for the interest they had taken in the meet. He referred to the number of runners who had done so well at the meet who were not members of the Y.M.C.A. and whom the Harriers would like very much to have join. Speaking of the reports in the Toronto papers that the Irish-Canadians had scooped all the prizes at the meet, he called attention to the fact that of the fourteen prizes given, ten of them remained in this city.

The ceremony was brought to a close with three hearty cheers for Mr. Eastwood.

CHRISTMAS BUYING

Be wise and do all the Christmas shopping you can this week. Already the stores are very busy.

Only fifteen shopping days to Christmas.

Selecting your Christmas gifts? Say, just get right at it — in the morning, if you can. The stores are going to have a tremendous crowd of eager buyers this Christmas. Wise people are buying now.

Christmas shopping out of town should not be tolerated. Peterborough's stores are the best anywhere. Courtesy, accommodation, largest assortments, best possible values, all prevail here. Call often these dark days and go through the brightest stores. It costs nothing to look.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

The Examiner would be pleased if all their subscribers who have had their street numbers changed would let this office know the new number in order that the address may be altered correctly on the delivery lists.

Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F., At Its Twenty-Fifth Milestone

Resuscitated Dec. 8th, 1882, After 30 Years of Inactivity—The Early Oddfellows of Peterborough.

SOME ANCIENT HISTORY

To-morrow the eighth day of December marks the silver anniversary of the resuscitation of the Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows, No. 13, after 32 years of inactivity. The twenty-fifth mile post of this prominent society will have been passed and in no time since the resuscitation has the standing of the lodge been higher or its membership more than at the present time.

To commemorate the anniversary the I.O.O.F. will hold a re-union of Past Grands on Monday night, Dec. 16th, when a number of addresses will be given by visiting members of the Order. An historic review of the I.O.O.F. No. 13, will, in view of the coming celebration be of interest to many.

Otonabee Lodge No. 13, was instituted on the 13th of March, 1846, and Judge G. B. Hall was the first Noble Grand. The first officers were as follows:—

Noble Grand—Judge G B Hall.
Vice-Grand—Chas. Petry.
Treasurer—Henry Easton.
Secretary—Wm. Cluxton.
Warden—James Scott.
Conductor—Jas Forrest.
Right Hand Supporter—Wm Murray.
Left Hand Supporter—Geo. P. Grover.
Vice Right Hand Supporter—Wm. S Conger.
Right Hand Scene — Dougall McKellar.
Left Hand Scene—F Ferguson.
Inside Guardian—Bro. Tremayne.
Outside Guardian— ——.

In those days the people were generally well to do, there was little sickness to relieve, no poor to take care of, and from sheer lack of objects for the exercise of the cardinal principles of the Order, and the ambitions of members having been satisfied, interest in the Order began to wane. It continued to do so until 1850 and the lodge as such ceased to exist.

Lodge Revived

In the month of December, however, in the year 1882, preliminary steps were taken for the resuscitation of the Lodge by Messrs. G B Sprowle, Dr. Bell, E E Henderson, Jas. McClelland, and the reception committee was composed of Messrs. Jno. McKee, W Cluxton, J Stevenson, Dr. R W Bell and H H Smith, the latter being Mayor of Peterborough at the time.

The instituting officer was Grand Master Robertson, of Collingwood, assisted by Grand Secretary J B King, of Toronto. In the year 1882 the following officers were installed:

N. G.—Wm Cluxton.
V. G.—Jas Stevenson.
R.S.N.G.—Dr. R W Bell
L.S.N.G.—John McKee.
R.S.V.G.—William Ross.
L.S.V.G.—H H Smith.
Sec.—E E Henderson.
Treas.—J B Sprowle.
P. Sec.—Jos McClellan.
R.S.S.—Jno Mathieson.
L.S.S.—Hugh Ross.
I.G.—G J Earley.
O.G.—M Mowry.
Organist—W F Green.

By actual count the only members of Otonabee Lodge, who were initiated at the time of the resuscitation in 1882 are Messrs. W F Green, Water street, and D Belleghem, Hunter street. Those who were charter members at the time and who still belong to the lodge are Messrs. Jas. Stevenson, Jno Mathieson, and M. Mowry.

The present officers of the lodge are:—

P.P.G.—Wm H Roberts.
N.G.—Ernest Poole.
V.G.—G F Cairns.
Rec.-Sec.—W Robinson.
Fin. Sec.—R G Cottrell.
Treas.—W H Meredith.
D.D.G. Master—R J Matchett, Peterborough District.

STRATTON'S FAIRYLAND WAS THRONGED TO-DAY

From Now on the Buying Will be Fast and Everything Favorable to Quick Shopping

The Great Christmas Sale at Stratton's "New Fairyland," No 432 George street, was opened this morning with a briskness that augured well for its success. Many people visited the attractively decorated store formerly occupied by the Automatic Vaudeville, and the transformation made by the new and beautiful stock was a complete surprise to all. The display of new lines of fancy china and glassware, Japanese novelties, leather goods, imported novelties, and rare and artistically unique articles, gave a holiday charm to the stock. But what gave most surprise to the crowd of shoppers was the strikingly low prices for goods of such a well-known character. It was very evident that the stock must have been a very lucky purchase at a very unusual figure. That the "New Fairyland" will become a Mecca for holiday gift-buyers there can be little doubt. About 20 cases more of new goods which did not arrive for the opening to-day will be on sale next week. The store is open every evening.

Building Permits For Year Total Over $760,000

May Has Proved by Far the Busiest Month of the Year—So Far 293 Permits Have Been Issued by City Clerk.

SMALL HOUSES WANTED

Now that the building season is practically at an end, a review of the operations of the past season as revealed in the building permits issued at the City Clerk's office should be of general interest. The custom of issuing permits went into force on the first of May of this year, although a couple were given out in April, and since that time 293 permits, representing an outlay of $767,546, have been issued. This is an amazingly large total for a city of Peterborough's size, and while it is true that there is a number of large buildings in course of erection this year, which is not likely to be the case for some years to come, yet an unusually large number of residences have been erected. Many substantial houses ranging in price from $1,000 to $2,500 have been constructed, which is an indication of the growth and progress the city has been making in the past year.

For some reason or other, not many cheap houses have been built, and the need is still felt of residences for workingman, renting at around $7 and $8 per month. During the past few years a large number of workingmen have made Peterborough their home and have experienced great difficulty in securing residences. It is expected that next year more of this kind may be built.

An examination of the permits shows that May has been by far the busiest month since the system began. During that month no less than 132 permits were issued and the total estimated cost of the buildings involved is $538,035, or about two-thirds of the total for the year. Of course it must be understood that it was in May that the permits for the most of the large buildings now being erected in the city were taken. Among these may be mentioned the Armouries at a cost of $125,190, the Normal School $54,000, and Collegiate Institute $60,000.

October has proved the next best month for building permits, the total outlay represented in 28 permits being $78,643. November is the lowest full month in the list, only eight permits having been issued, while the cost amounts only to $8,325. August has been the next lowest, and while there were 26 permits taken out, the expenditure was but $18,690, a large number of the permits being for improvements and alterations.

April, 2 permits	$ 2,425
May, 132 permits	538,635
June, 42 permits	55,678
July, 24 permits	20,790
August, 20 permits	18,690
September, 33 permits	42,370
October, 28 permits	78,643
November, 8 permits	8,325
December, 4 permits	1,990

MORE MINERAL FOUND NEAR APSLEY

Mr. Geo. Wilson Sends Sample to the Examiner Office

The Examiner is in receipt of some mineral ore sent down from Apsley village, in the north, which is apparently of a good quality. It was received from Mr. George Wilson of that village, and was found on lot 13, concession 2, Chandos township, just six miles east of the village.

Recently there have been a number of mining experts at Apsley, who have viewed the ore, and they claim it is rich. The property belongs to Mr. Wilson, and is located on the main road between Cox hill and Apsley.

The ore is now at the Examiner office and may be seen by anyone who wishes.

Music and Drama

THE WONDERFUL PASSION PLAY OF OBERAMMERGAU, BAVARIA

Thousands of people go many miles each year to witness the beautiful and fascinating Passion Play at Oberammergau, Bavaria. At an expense of nearly $10,000 the Crystal has succeeded in getting an exact reproduction of this famous play. The reproduction consists of almost two miles of film.

The Passion Play is a sacred drama founded on the life of Christ, as portrayed in the New Testament.

In 1663, the peasants in the village of Oberammergau, in Bavaria, were visited by a terrible plague, which devastated the country. On its cessation the entire population made a vow to perform the passion play of our Saviour every tenth year, out of gratitude, and as a means of religious instruction—a vow which has ever since been faithfully and regularly observed. The inhabitants of this secluded village have a rare union of artistic ability and cultivation with perfect simplicity. Their familiarity with religious subjects is even beyond what is usual in the Alpine parts of Germany and the spectacle is looked on with the same feelings with which it originated. What would appear elsewhere as impious, is, to these peasants, devout and edifying.

The impersonator of Christ considers his part an act of worship. He and all the rest of the performers are selected for their holy life, and are consecrated to their work with prayer and fasting. In fact it is the ambition of every child in the village to act a part in this great event of their life, and in order to do so, they must show by their daily life that they are worthy of such an honour. Every village girl has an ambition to portray the part of Mary, the mother of Christ, and they believe that in order to attain this they must not, even in thought, do anything contrary to the virtuous and pure character required for the part of the mother of the Saviour. Not to be considered fit to take any part, however small, in this grand play, is, in Oberammergau, considered to be a great disgrace. To take a part away from an actor is a shame that can hardly be borne and it is on record that once a man to whom this happened, sank into a melancholy, which became madness.

The intention of this company is to give to the public in general as near as exact a reproduction of the famous passion play (as witnessed in Oberammergau) as possible, and we conscientiously assert that there is nothing in this grand performance that will be sacrilegious or irreverent, or any picture presented offensive to any denomination, but, instead, continual scenes and moving pictures illustrating the fascinating Passion Play. Every man, woman and child will not only enjoy this grand performance but will be held spellbound at the sight of this fascinating and sublime, life size moving pictures of our Saviour and the multitude, and the beautiful surrounding scenes.

Every parent and Sunday school teacher should take advantage of this opportunity to vividly impress upon the children these scenes in the life of Christ—impressions that can never be effaced while the lamp of this life holds out to burn. In no other way, short of a personal visit to the village of Oberammergau in Bavaria, at the time of this stupendous enactment, can so lasting a realization of the crucifixion of Christ be made.

The story is divided into three sections. On account of its length the first section will be shown on Monday and Tuesday afternoon and evening; second section on Wednesday and Thursday; and the third section on Friday and Saturday.

Remember the date — one entire week, commencing Monday, Dec. 9th. The Crystal, 498 George street. Admission, ten cents. 1d

CARPENTERS ELECT OFFICERS

Annual Meeting Held Last Night—An Idea of Prominence of the Society

MANY BENEFIT SUMS PAID

The annual meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners, was held last night in the Orange Hall, Simcoe street. The chief item of business was the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President, S J Anglesey,
Treasurer, J Skippen.
Secretary, A Hope, re-elected.
Sick steward, A Sparrow.
Trustees, L V F Warren, W H Carty, G V Lancaster, V W Lancaster, A Sparrow.
Referee, L V F Warren.

The growth of the society during the past 16 years has been rapid. In 1890, there were 501 branches, with 31,495 members, and in 1906 the numbers were 691 and 66,362. The amount of benefits paid out between the years 1860 and 1907, including accident, superannuation, unemployed, tool, sick, funeral and other benefits was $14,109,000, so that the society is a prominent one.

THE SUBJECT AT PARK STREET

"More Precious Than Gold" Will be the Theme

"More Precious than Gold," will be the theme of the Rev. A. H. Brace at the Park street Baptist church to-morrow night being the second number in the December series. Special music will be provided during the month, a fifteen minute song service to precede the sermon.

John Organ, a barber of this city, left his wife, presumably to obtain work in some other city, since which time no word of him has been heard. There was no unpleasantness or trouble of any kind, and no reason can be ascertained why he should not have written to his friends. He was rather a sporty character, and may possibly have got into some trouble or have been injured in some disturbance. His wife is distracted owing to the uncertainty in which she is placed, and I would esteem it a favour if you notify me if you hear of him.

He is 23 years of age, about five feet five inches in height, very dark, rather round face, white complexion, clean shaven, two front teeth in upper jaw are false. Little finger on left hand split at end, next finger bent at first joint.

He is a barber by trade, also understands printing, and used to work for the Spectator, Hamilton. Might probably make for the States. Was dressed in dark striped trousers, blue serge coat and vest, a slouch hat, light, tight-fitting overcoat and calf shoes. Is a Catholic, but for six months has not attended his church.

Thanking you in advance for any information you may be able to give me, I remain,

Yours truly,
WM. HUCKLE,
(Chief Detective.

So far, the local police authorities have not heard of this barber, but if he comes around Peterborough he is sure to be nabbed.

NEXT MEETING OF THE ASTRONOMERS

"What We Know of the Planet Mars" Will Be The Subject

An interesting night is in store for the Peterborough branch of the Royal Astronomical Society on December 13. The meeting will be held in the green parlour of the Y.W.C.A. and will include an illustrated lecture by Rev. Dr. Marsh, the energetic president, on "What We Know of the Planet Mars," with especial reference to the things learned in its recent appearance near the earth. All interested are invited.

"ALL-RED" CRITICIZED.

Dundee Journal Condemns It as Not Being Business-Like.

London, Dec. 7.—"The idea of an 'all-red' route has thoroughly captivated the Canadian imagination," says The Dundee Advertiser, "and Hon. Clifford Sifton, who is at present in this country as its missionary, is evidently engaging much British support as well. In the project of linking up by wire and by means of swift lines of steamers connected with express trains there is nothing that antagonizes and much that charms, but business ends will continue to suggest doubts.

"At present Mr. Sifton, in effect, admits that the 'all-red' route is not a business proposition, for it requires heavy national subsidies from Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, but he thinks that when established it will grow into a business proposition. Will it? The route from Britain to Australia by way of Canada describes two sides of a gigantic triangle.

"When the Panama Canal is opened the third side of the triangle, the long side, but still much shorter than the other two, will be described by an almost straight line from the English Channel to Sydney. Thus the future contains a possibility which may make the route even less of a business proposition than it is to-day."

SECRET OF "ETERNAL FIRE."

Baku, Dec. 7.—A new oil gusher has been opened at Surakhent, ten miles from this city. The new well gives 10,000 barrels a day.

It is located on the site of an ancient temple dedicated at one time to a cult of fire-worshippers, and it has now been learned that the "eternal flames" that burned at the altar of the temple were maintained by natural gas issuing from the ground.

According to geologists this discovery opens up a possibility of tapping an oil strata in a region 40 times larger than the present one.

CREW'S THRILLING ESCAPE.

Fought Fire at Sea But Forced to Take to Boats.

Brest, Dec. 7.—The crew of the 2,834-ton German steamer Milos arrived here yesterday and told a thrilling tale of their escape from the burning vessel at sea. The steamer was bound from Hamburg for Brest, and fire broke out in her hold during the voyage. The crew battled valiantly against the flames until off Ushant Island, 27 miles west of Brest, when realizing that their task was a hopeless one, they took to the boats and were barely able to save themselves.

Unemployed at Vancouver.

Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 7.—A new phase of the immigration question involving whites was only brought to light when 200 unemployed paraded the streets, and appointed a deputation of three to wait on the mayor. The speakers claimed they had been induced to come west by misleading advertisements.

The mayor explained that the city itself was now laying off men. The city had not the money to carry work on now if it wanted to. The speakers emphasized the danger of the men becoming desperate from hunger.

Wreck on the Wabash.

Cayuga, Dec. 7.—A rear-end collision occurred on the Wabash Railroad yesterday, a heavy gravel train crashing into a freight that was standing on the bridge crossing the Grand River, while the engine was taking water down the track. A van was wrecked and three cars. Two cars were burned on the track and one down the bank. One car was loaded with butter and burned for five hours.

It is said that the cause of the wreck was a defective semaphore and the heavy down grade.

Mount Temple Abandoned.

Halifax, Dec. 7.—Capt. Boothby last night abandoned the stranded steamship Mount Temple. A heavy northeast snowstorm swept over the coast of Nova Scotia all day, and there was a tremendous sea.

Capt. Boothby, his officers and those members of the crew who had remained with him left the ship and landed on Iron Bound Island, where they are spending the night. They believed it would not be safe to take chances on the ship and there was nothing aboard.

Labor Men Will Appeal.

Kingston, Dec. 7.—In the case against the two tailors, who last week were fined $100 each by the police magistrate for intimidating non-union workers, the labor unions have agreed to appeal to the Attorney-General of the province against such large fines.

Resolutions are to be passed by all the labor unions of Ontario condemning the judgment.

Insane Man's Victim Dies.

Boston, Dec. 7.—Edward Cohen, president of the state branch of the American Federation of Labor, who was shot Thursday in the State House by an insane man, died yesterday.

Steele is held for the grand jury with $100,000 bail required.

Bandits Attacked Monastery.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 7.—Particulars have just been received here of an attack by 20 Lettish-Kethonian bandits upon a monastery near Pskov. The fighting was fierce and determined. The bandits were finally driven off by the monks, who had six men killed and three wounded in the fray.

The aggressors were then pursued by troops and gendarmes and practically exterminated.

SCORES BURIED IN COAL MINE

Terrific Explosion Entombs Hundreds of Miners.

RESCUERS FIGHT COAL GAS

West Virginia Pits Scene of Worst Disaster of its Kind Known—Little Hope of Saving the Victims—Concussion Was Terrific—Poisonous Fumes Do the Deadly Work —Some Bodies Brought Up.

Monongahela, W. Va., Dec. 7.—Three charred and blackened bodies, lying in the improvised morgue, prepared near the entrance to the mine; four men hovering between life and death from the awful bruises sustained and the deadly gases inhaled, in a temporary hospital, into which one of the company's buildings has been transformed, and 493 men imprisoned by tons of coal and mine debris in the depths of the hills surrounding this mining town, and the chances all against a single one of them being alive, is the most accurate summary obtainable last night of the results of a mine explosion yesterday, which, in all probability, was attended by greater loss of life than any former disaster in the history of the bituminous coal mining industry of America.

The explosion occurred shortly after 10 o'clock, after the full force of 500 men had gone to work in the two mines affected.

These mines are Nos. 6 and 8, of the Consolidated Coal Co., located in opposite sides of the Westfork River, at this place, but merged in their underground workings by a heading, and on the surface by a great steel tipple and bridge.

The finding of the three corpses and the four badly injured men is the only reward for strenuous and uninterrupted work on the part of large rescuing forces that immediately set to work at every possible point.

The living men are unable to give any details regarding the disaster, or to even explain how they reached the surface. They state that, immediately back of them when they began their frantic struggle for liberty, there was a large number of men engaged in a similar struggle, while still further back in the workings there was a larger number, of whom they know nothing.

It is the opinion of the mine owners and others familiar with mine operation that these men had not penetrated the mine as far as had the majority of the day shift when the explosion occurred, and that they headed for and reached the main entry before the heavy cave-in that now blockades the entrance more than a few hundred feet beyond the main opening of mine No. 6.

As to the miners referred to by the rescued men as having been alive when last seen, it is believed that they were caught back of a heavy cave-in of coal and mine roof, and that they could not have survived more than a few minutes in the deadly gases with which the entry filled as soon as the ventilation was interrupted.

There is more hope for those in more remote sections of the mine, as they have reached workings where fresh air is supplied by other openings. But, at best, only the most slender hope is entertained for the survival of any one of the men in the mine until the debris can be cleared away and communication with the outside re-established.

The two mines regularly employ 1,000 men, working in two shifts, 500 during the day and 500 during the night, and the best information obtainable at this time is that the entire day force had gone to work yesterday morning, and that all were caught.

Speculation as to Cause.

There is much speculation as to the cause of the explosion, but the most generally accepted theory is that it resulted from blackdamp, scientifically known as methane.

It is believed that a miner attempted to set off a blast which blew out and ignited the highly inflammable substance found in greater or less quantities in all West Virginia mines.

Pathetic Scenes About Pits.

Along the hills, far back from the main opening of mine No. 8, there are a number of openings in the mine, and to these hundreds of relatives and friends of the entombed men frantically rushed in the vain hope that their loved ones might find escape through these channels, or that they might be more readily reached and released. So far as known, however, not a single man escaped this way, and the would-be rescuers are helpless at these points for at each entry there is pouring a volume of poisonous gas, which no human being can face for more than a few minutes at a time. The scenes around about the entries to the mines and throughout the town are pathetic and heartrending. Wives, mothers and sweethearts, together with children and members of the stronger sex move from place to place, vainly seeking information and making no attempt to conceal their grief. But little news can be given them, and such as they do get is bad. None is encouraged to hope that anyone in the mine has survived the explosion and the suffocating gas that immediately after filled the mine. From time to time there comes word from the searchers in the mine that bodies have been found at one place or another, and in nearly every instance it is also stated that the bodies are either terribly torn and mangled or burned and blackened.

Thirty Drown.

Rio Janeiro, Dec. 7.—The Brazilian coasting steamer Guasca, Capt. Ramos, 550 tons, has gone down off Paranagua, Brazil, as a result of a collision with an unknown vessel.

Thirty persons who were on board the Guasca were drowned.

More Want Divorces.

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—Notice appears in The Canada Gazette of two more applications for divorces from Toronto, nine having already been received from that city. The applicants are Mrs. Annie Bowden and Isaac Moore.

Men and Women of Ontario

This APPEAL ...is for... You

The Great Provincial Charity, The Hospital for Sick Children, Calls On You For Aid.

Remember that this Hospital is not a local institution, but Provincial.

"I LIKE PICTURES"

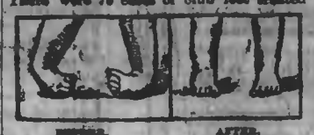
It cares for every sick child in the Province of Ontario whose parents cannot afford to pay for treatment.

Many dollars are better than idle tears. The sympathy that Weeps is good, but the Hospital has to have the sympathy that Works.

Last year there were 1663 patients admitted. Of these 576 came from 284 places outside of Toronto—all were children of poor people who could not afford to pay for treatment of their little ones.

Each child was in the Hospital 47½ days at a cost of $4.31 each per day, or $92.22 for the 47½ days stay.

If your dollar could straighten the feet of a little boy or girl with club feet, you would gladly give it, and your dollar will do that. There were 70 cases of club foot treated last year. Out of the 70, about 50 were from the country.



BEFORE. AFTER.

If you know of any child in your county who is sick or has club feet, and whose parents can not afford to pay, send the name to the Hospital Secretary.

EYE CASES.

The stock books are open. Won't you let the Hospital write your name down for a few shares in Heaven's own work of healing little children?

A great mine of Mercy—the mining stock that always pays dividends—is bought with the money that helps The Hospital for Sick Children to extract the Gold of Life from the Quartz of Death.

Please send contributions to J. Ross Robertson, Chairman, or to Douglas Davidson, Sec.-Treas., of the Hospital for Sick Children, College Street, Toronto.

BUSINESS SECTION BURNED.

Alameda, Sask., Is Swept By Disastrous Fire.

Alameda, Sask., Dec. 7.—This little town was devastated by fire on Thursday night. The loss will be fully $200,000, with insurance probably $125,000. The principal losses are as follows: King Bros., butcher shop, $2,000; Broadfoot's American Hotel, $20,000; Emerson's livery stable, $4,000; B. B. Teed, law office, $1,000; R. T. Gibson's men's store, $14,000; Hopper Bros., general store, $25,000; Crosk & McDowell's implement warehouse, $15,000; Wood & Gibson's general store, $14,000; Brown Lumber & Hardware Co., $25,000; Farmers' Elevator & Trading Co., $50,000; Masonic Hall, $1,000; Crown Lumber & Hardware Co., $20,000; Brighton Hotel, $20,000. The insurance companies principally interested are the Commercial Union, the London, the Liverpool & Globe, and the Western Assurance Co. Several others have small risks. There is not a building left standing on the east side of the business portion of Main street, or on the south side of First avenue, except J. R. Trumpour's warehouse.

Cornwall, Dec. 7.—The tailor shop and dwelling at Lancaster, occupied by Mr. J. B. Lalonde, merchant tailor, were burned to the ground Thursday. Mr. Lalonde lost nearly everything in the shop and house. The building was insured, also the contents. This property is situated on Main street, adjoining the Grand Trunk. It was owned and occupied for nearly a quarter of a century by Mr. E. C. White, who left for the Island of Jersey, a few years ago, after selling out to Moses Smith of Montreal.

Orton, Alberta, Dec. 7.—The store and stock of the Orton Mercantile Co. was burned here yesterday. Loss $4,000, with $1,700 insurance.

Brantford, Dec. 7—The Grand Trunk station at Harrisburg was burned to the ground yesterday morning by the explosion of a lamp. No effort was made to save the building, which was an old landmark. It is said $300 which was in the till was destroyed.

$300 For Child's Life.

Montreal, Dec. 7.—In view of the verdict for $300 damages given in the case of Anderson against the Protestant School Board of Montreal, it is thought that sixteen other cases of the same kind will be settled on that basis. Anderson was the father of one of the children lost in the Hochelaga School fire.

Dunsmuir May Resign.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 7.—According to excellent political authority here, Lieutenant-Governor Dunsmuir will be invited by the Federal Government to resign as a result of the disclosures at the Japanese enquiry recently regarding contracts where Jap laborers were for Dunsmuir's coal mines.

Stole an Indian Boy.

St. Catharines, Dec. 7.—A peculiar case was heard by Police Magistrate Kidd at Grimsby yesterday. Some time ago, Maggie Green, a reservation Indian, visited Mrs. Dockstadder, near Grimsby Park, and took a small child, her brother, Rubbie Green, back to the reservation, and, refusing to return him, was arrested for abduction. At the hearing it transpired that the girl had been given $2 by an Indian named Hill to steal the boy. Both Hill and the girl were committed for trial.

Went Through the Ice.

Port Arthur, Dec. 7.—Rufus Pywell was found drowned in the lake between Wabigoon and Moose Lodge. He had gone to Dinorwic on a business trip, and the ice being considered good, set out to skate the distance of several miles home over the lake.

Word has reached here from Wabigoon that a young Englishman named J. Field, employed at Mather's camp, near Gull River, lost his way returning from his day's work, and died of exposure.

Collision on I. C. R.

Amherst, N. S., Dec. 7.—Yesterday afternoon a west bound freight ran head-on into a shunting engine, which was smashed to pieces. The driver and fireman both jumped and escaped injury.

A carload of machinery from the Robb Engine Co. for Truro was turned over and badly demolished. Two flatcars were broken into kindling wood.

Punishing the Tribesmen.

Paris, Dec. 7.—A report has been received, saying that the first move of the French forces to punish the Benis Nassen tribesmen was made Thursday, when a force of Arabs was routed.

Only two Frenchmen were wounded, the fighting lasting practically all day.

Farmer Swallowed Poison.

Windsor, Dec. 7.—While suffering from a fit of melancholia, Thomas Richardson, a well-to-do retired farmer, living on Howard avenue, ended his life by taking carbolic acid yesterday. Deceased was about 40 years of age, and leaves a young wife.

Engineer Killed.

Buffalo, Dec. 7.—John Bain of St. Thomas, Ont., Wabash locomotive engineer, was fatally scalded Thursday night in a collision between his engine and several runaway cars.

One Year For Shaw.

Kingston, Dec. 7.—Charles Shaw was charged with bigamy in the Police Court yesterday and with a display of tears admitted his crime and asked for immediate sentence. He was given a year in the Central Prison. His victims were not called upon to testify.

ANOTHER BIG WARSHIP ADRIFT

Prince George Battleship Broke From Her Moorings.

COLLIDED WITH A CRUISER

Had a Hole Stove In Her Side—Took In Water Rapidly—In Danger of Sinking—Must Go to Dock for Repairs — Great Excitement in Portsmouth Harbor When the Big Battleship Went Amuck.

Portsmouth, Eng., Dec. 7.—There was an exciting scene in this harbor Thursday night, when the battleship Prince George broke away from her moorings and went adrift.

The Prince George grazed a number of warships anchored in the harbor and then collided with such force with the new cruiser Shannon, which had just arrived in from her trials, that a big hole was pierced in the battleship's side. The Prince George took in water rapidly and by the time she had been secured by a tug and towed to dock, she had a heavy list to starboard.

LOST ARM AND DIED.

Homesteader's Long Journey For a Physician Ends In Death.

Saskatoon, Dec. 7.—Hector Lachapelle, a homesteader, living 85 miles from here, arrived in the city Thursday night in charge of friends and expired a few minutes later in the city hospital. Lachapelle Thursday was working with a threshing machine and got his hand caught in the machinery. The arm was literally torn from the socket. The nearest physician was absent, and as every moment was vital to the homesteader, owing to his bleeding to death, the party hurriedly left for the long drive to Saskatoon.

Steeplejack In Peril.

Cleveland, Dec. 7.—For three hours yesterday, Arthur O'Donnell, a steeplejack of New Rochelle, N. Y., faced death in a swaying seat, suspended from the spire of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, 190 feet above the ground. The rope had caught in a cornice when he started to descend after four hours' work in the air. After all expedients had failed to reach him, firemen burst a hole in the steeple's side and loosened the rope. O'Donnell's hands and face were frozen, and he collapsed as the seat touched the ground before a crowd of a thousand.

Fastest Torpedo Boat.

Portsmouth, Dec. 7.—The British turbine torpedo-boat destroyer Tartar has beaten all records for her class by steamer 35.952 knots an hour against the tide on the Admiralty course between Southampton and Maplin Sands. This record was made early in the week, when the Tartar was being prepared for the official trials. The official trials took place yesterday, and, carrying a greater load than that stipulated in the contract, the Tartar made 34,857 knots as a mean of six runs over the Admiralty measured mile course.

Both Are Recovering.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 7.—Dr. James A Attridge, formerly of Highgate, Ont., is making good progress at Harper Hospital, and hopes are now entertained that he will recover.

Mrs. Florence Griffith, too, is recovering at Grace Hospital. Not until the patients have recovered will the question of a criminal charge be taken up by the authorities in connection with the recent shooting.

Grafts 1,974 Pieces of Skin.

Westboro, Mass., Dec. 7—One of the most remarkable skin-grafting achievements on record was completed yesterday at the farm of J. G. Keatler, when the last of 1,974 pieces of skin was placed on the arm of Mrs. Keatler. All the pieces were taken from the arms and legs of her husband. The operation has lasted more than three months.

Republics to Arbitrate.

Washington, Dec. 7.—A practical agreement on the outlines of an arbitration treaty, with an international court for the arbitration of differences arising between them, it is said authoritatively, has been reached by the delegates to the Central American peace conference, which is in session here.

Triple Tragedy on Street.

Smithville, Texas, Dec. 7.—R. W. Swanson shot and killed his former wife and her husband and then committed suicide in the street yesterday morning.

German Balloon Ran Away.

Berlin, Dec. 7.—While being filled for a match race arranged by the Aeronautical Society of the Lower Rhine the balloon Rambler was torn from its anchorage at Muehlerg yesterday. Nothing has been heard of the balloon since.

Teachers' Pension Scheme Presented.

St. John N. B., Dec. 7.—The Provincial Government yesterday heard a delegation of teachers who presented their scheme for a teachers' pension fund. The Government will take up the matter next Friday.

Franz Joseph In Danger.

Budapest, Dec. 7.—The Nap, a newspaper of this city, publishes a sensational story yesterday to the effect that an anarchist plot upon the lives of Emperor Joseph and Archduke Francis Ferdinand, the heir to the throne, has been discovered.

PROHIBITION PREVAILS.

Hundreds of Saloons Closed In Illinois—Hotelmen Suicide.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—Hundreds of saloons were closed in Illinois yesterday, the local option voted at the last election in 14 counties becoming effective at midnight. Eight counties are now totally "dry," while six allow saloons in only a few precincts.

In addition, a systematic campaign for the Sunday closing of saloons has been undertaken in Chicago and several score of saloonkeepers of the city have been arrested on evidence gathered by agents of the Chicago Law and Order League.

Two Chicago saloonkeepers committed suicide under remarkable circumstances Thursday. The members of their families attribute the deaths solely to worry lest the Sunday closing agitation of the Law and Order League ruin the saloon business here.

Japs Hope For Prohibition.

Tokio, Dec. 7.—A strong movement has developed in an unexpected quarter looking to the prohibition of emigration of all laborers to America and Canada, and it is understood that a number of prominent persons, formerly of the Cabinet, and others, intend to urge the adoption of such a measure.

They will require the Government to undertake the development upon a large scale of Korea and Manchuria in order to give employment to Japanese.

Stole Diamonds For Girl.

New York, Dec. 7.—Diamonds worth $10,000, stolen by an eighteen-year-old bookkeeper from the jewelry firm of Rudolph Noel & Co., No. 37 Maiden lane, furnished the Tenderloin with its latest spectacular spender and put Louis J. Harris in the Tombs prison Thursday.

Harris might still be uncaught if he had not persisted in paying for dinners at Sherry's and for automobiles in diamonds instead of gold.

MEXICO'S HARD WOODS.

Material For the Woodworker of Which Little Use Is Made.

"I was amazed at the almost infinite variety of woods of value to woodworkers that are growing in the forests of tropical Mexico," said a timber expert who recently made a tour of that part of Mexico. "There are several varieties of mahogany, cedar, oak, rosewood, ebony, dyewoods and endless other hard woods with Spanish names, but corresponding to our hickory, cherry and other fine American woods that are now extremely scarce and costly.

"Many of these tropical woods are as strong as iron. While the mahogany, cedar, rosewood and dyewood are well known to us through importations from there, the unknown varieties of woods that are just as valuable are quite as plentiful.

"Among these is one called sapote, which grows to a great size. Although the wood of this tree has peculiarly valuable qualities for lumber, it is seldom used in that way, the tree being valued merely as the producer of chicle, the sap which forms the basis for most chewing gum.

"The wood of the sapote tree is dark red and is easily worked until thoroughly seasoned, when only the finest edged tools will have any effect on it, and a sharp pointed nail is driven into it with difficulty. The fiber of the wood is so dense that the wood sinks in water like iron.

"In prehistoric ruins that abound in these Mexican tropics are timbers and door frames that are as perfect today as when they were first placed in position. The wood takes a magnificent finish, as do nearly all of these Mexican hard woods, and would be a rare article for the cabinetmaker.

"There is an odd wood among these forests known as the gran tree which when tapped yields a black sap which is sent in large quantities to Germany, where it is used in the making of ink and dye. Another tree yields a sap that is a deep red, and Germany also takes largely of it for the manufacture of dyes.

"Besides these that abound in that part of Mexico there are vast areas of pine, a timber that resembles our poplar and different kinds of oak. Much to my surprise, more than 6000 feet above the sea I found a big sawmill in active operation, with a Yankee from Maine at the head of it.

"And he wasn't bothering with such commonplace logs as mahogany, ebony, cedar or rosewood by any means, but was cutting away at the white pine and oak, for these are the woods that the native buyers and users of lumber demand. As a matter of fact, a Mexican lumber dealer would be willing to trade you mahogany for the yellow pine, log for log."—New York Sun.

If 1,000 men were to come in here and each one eat a dollar's worth, I would have just $1,000," said the manager of one of those restaurants where each person helps himself. "On the other hand, if I should feed 1,000 women and allow them to pick out their own checks I might possibly have $500, but I doubt it. Every woman has a natural born cheat. It seems to be a sixth sense in her makeup to try to get ahead of the person who provides her meals."

The woman to whom these horrifying revelations had been made walked away trying to evolve some plan for emancipating her sex from the web of dishonest propensities in which they had become enmeshed. Outside the restaurant she met a man friend.

"I've just been down there for luncheon," he said. "Glorious place; cheap too. If a fellow knows his business it is dead easy to get a fifty cent meal for a quarter. They never watch the men, but I tell you they keep a close eye on you women."

The woman with an ambition to reform her sex looked back into the restaurant.

"One thousand men, $1,000," she said, and smiled wickedly.—New York Times.

Council To Discuss The Fixed Assessments

Heavy Bill of Fare Provided for Monday Night's Meeting—Will Deal With Garbage By-law as Well.

SOME OTHER BUSINESS

There is a pretty substantial bill of fare before the council at its meeting on Monday night, and it looks as if there was enough business to keep the aldermen busy for the night and then run over into another meeting. The council will begin where they left off last week and will pass a number of bylaws that were scheduled to go through last Monday. After that it is expected that the matter of fixed assessment to the Auburn Woollen Company, the Peter Hamilton Company, and the McDonald estate lumber company, will be taken up. An invitation has been extended to representatives of each of these companies to be on hand and present their case.

The garbage bylaw question will also be before the council and if the time permits there will also be a discussion on the subject of the public library.

It is expected that the council will have to hold at least two more meetings before the end of the year.

Club Rooms Proposed For Curlers And Bowlers United

Suggestion Made by Prominent Bowler, Which May be Followed —Would Require Stronger Clubs —Will Take Time.

AS IN THE LARGE CITIES

With the large membership that the curling and bowling clubs of this city have on their lists the suggestion has been made that they combine to certain extent and provide commodious club rooms that could be used all the year round. This plan has been adopted in the larger cities, a common club house serving for both bowling and curling clubs. If a member plays both games he pays a double fee, enjoying all the privileges, but if he desires to follow only one of the games he does not pay the entire fee.

In Peterborough the majority of the lovers of either of these games is found in the ranks of the devotees of the other, so that if both clubs were united the membership would be a large one. The curling club have now full possession of the building where they play their games, but the general opinion is that it could be much improved. Particularly, the assembly rooms could be re-arranged and cozily fitted up to accommodate the sportsmen who make it their headquarters during the bowling season. The club has done very well in securing the rink for themselves and at present no change is expected, but when such a movement takes place or in some other way the finances be increased a radical improvement will surely be made.

A feasible plan that has been thought of by a prominent curler is to build up the front of the rink. On the ground floor several stores could be made with the rooms up stairs. Besides a general assembly room a billiard room and buffet or any other rooms that might be suggested, could be prepared. In this manner a comfortable club would be formed and a greater interest would be taken in both games and a stronger tie would unite the members.

This city boasts of some excellent curlers and bowlers and the two clubs have by no means reached their full strength yet. With well-fitted rooms they would have a club to be proud of and between games a pleasant time could be had with improved accommodations. This is merely mentioned as the suggestion of a gentleman who has always been an ardent curler, and it is hoped that the time will soon come when such a scheme could be carried out and Peterborough possess a sporting club house that it might well be proud of, and which would be appropriate to the strength and numbers of the united curling and bowling clubs.

PETERBOROUGH GROUPED IN DISTRICT 2

With Port Hope, Cobourg, Lindsay and Whitby

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the O.H.A. last night the grouping of the different series was done. Peterborough was grouped in the intermediate ranks with Cobourg, Whitby, Port Hope and Lindsay. O. McMillan of Port Hope is the convenor, and the schedule will be drawn up at a meeting to be held in Port Hope. This year there will be 36 clubs in the intermediate ranks, the new clubs being Orillia, London and Hespeler.

PETERBOROUGH CLUB ANNUAL

Officers Elected at a Well Attended Meeting Last Night

The annual meeting of the Peterborough club was held last night in the club rooms. There was a large attendance of the members, and the following officers were elected:

President, Dr. Boucher.
Vice-President, R. E. Wood.
Sec. Treasurer, W. R. Norris.

THE GRILL ROOM IS TO OPEN

New Feature in Connection With T. H. Hooper's Upper Store

The grill room, the new department in connection with Mr. T. H. Hooper's upper store, which will be opened to-night, when completed promises to be the most modern of its kind in the city. It will be fitted out with the newest and best equipment. Each table will be equipped with handsome individual shaded lights, the effect of which is said to be quite striking. The establishment is now prepared to serve full course dinners, hot and cold drinks of all kinds, or anything else that a modern restaurant should be able to supply. It will be conducted on the European plan and no doubt will receive a large share of patronage.

The grill room will be open to-night for the first time.

High Standards.

The high standard of workmanship demanded by the makers of the New Scale Williams Piano have attracted to them the very best of skilled labor. KING HONORS FAMOUS ACTOR.

Mr. John Hare Receives Knighthood —Is About to Retire.

Mr. John Hare, one of the most polished actors of our time, and a stage favorite on this side of the Atlantic, has just started on a farewell tour in England. He was recently knighted by King Edward on the occasion of his birthday. During recent years he has paid several very successful visits to America, and has also played with financial success in the larger cities of Britain. It was the Bancrofts, who first brought him to the front and gave him his first chance in London, when he was just twenty-one.

The play was Society, the first success scored by Tom Robertson. With the Bancrofts Mr. Hare remained for ten years. His salary was not great, $25 a week for many years, and afterwards $50 a week; small enough when compared with the salaries paid in these days to an actor who wins public favor. Old men's parts have always been Mr. Hare's forte, and he is generally voted the best actor we have in such parts on the stage today. When not acting, Mr. Hare is fond of attending the theatre as one of the audience. Not so long since he sent his groom to a certain theatre to book a couple of stalls. The groom, says Black and White, came back without the tickets and said: "Stalls full up, sir, but they said they would put you in a—er—what's the word?—oh! a loose box, sir."

The news of his approaching retirement has been received with universal regret.

"THE BELLS OF SHANDON."

Ancient Building Which Inspired Famous Irish Song.

Rev. Robert T. Hearn, incumbent of St. Anne, Shandon, Cork, is making an appeal to the public for help to recast one of the famous Shandon bells. The large tenor bell, weighing over 25 cwt., has recently cracked, and it is desired to make the peal good. The bells were originally cast in the year 1750. St. Anne, Shandon —or Sean-dun, signifying "the old fort"—stands on Shandon hill, to the north of Cork, being erected on the site of the old Church of Our Lady, a very ancient edifice destroyed by Marlborough in the siege of Cork in ST. ANNE, SHANDON.

1690. The present church is a plain, roomy edifice, possessing more claim to eccentricity than beauty. The architect had to draw his material for the tower or steeple from that obtained by the destruction of an old fort and an old church. He got over the difficulty of mixed stones in characteristic Irish fashion, making two sides of the steeple, west and south, of limestone, and the other two of redstone. There is this appropriateness in the arrangement, however, that the limestone sides command south Cork, or the limestone district, while the redstone sides command the north, or redstone district.

It was Rev. Francis Mahony, better known as "Father Prout," who wrote the lovely song on "The Bells of Shandon," known wherever the English tongue reaches. His remains lie, appropriately enough, in the churchyard.

HYPNOTIZED HERSELF.

Remarkable Incident at a Dental Hospital.

A remarkable incident happened recently at a London dental hospital. A young women went there to have five teeth extracted. The anaesthetic decided upon by the dental surgeon was ethyl chloride, and this was administered by the usual form of apparatus. An india rubber cap is placed over the patient's mouth and nostrils, and connected with it is a bag into which a sealed capsule of ethyl chloride is introduced. By the turning of a screw from the outside the capsule is broken and the anaesthetic liberated. The screw was turned, the patient went off gradually into the usual condition of insensibility, five teeth extracted, and the patient awakened without feeling any part of the operation. The whole case appeared perfectly normal. Only when the young woman had left the room and the apparatus was being made ready for another patient was it discovered that the capsule of ethyl chloride had by some mischance not been broken at all. The whole condition of insensibility had been brought about by the self-hypnotism of the patient. The idea that an anaesthetic was being administered was so strong in her mind that she had passed into insensibility entirely by hypnotic suggestion. Another case of a similar nature has occurred at the same dental hospital. In this instance ethyl chloride was being sprayed on to the gums in order to freeze them and produce local anaesthesia. It was afterwards found that a "gag" had been so placed in the mouth as to screen the gums from the ethyl chloride, but yet the mere suggestion that it had frozen them was sufficient to prevent the patient feeling any pain when the tooth was being extracted.

Wife For $15.

It is reported that the Lahore police are busy investigating a case of fraud which has its farcical side. An octogenarian Hindu came to Lahore from Multan to get a wife for himself. He arrived in Kana Kaoa district, where a man named Boota told the would-be bridegroom that he had got the very thing for him at the modest sum of Rs48-12 (about $15). The old man being willing, the bride turned up in the person of Boota's son-in-law, appropriately muffled and disguised. The bridegroom carried off his bride by a night train, the lady, of course, having to travel in a women's carriage, and the man in a different part of the train. At a wayside station the bride got out of the train, intending to return home, but the fact that she had not the opportunity to shave for many hours was her undoing. The condition of her chin attracted the attention of the station staff, who ran her in for being in a women's carriage. The would-be bridegroom, knowing nothing of this painful discovery, went on in the train, and as his address was not known it was found impossible to acquaint him with what happened to his bride. Boota, in the meantime, is still at large and in enjoyment of Rs48-12 annas.

PHOTOGRAPHING BABY.

Don't Curl His Hair or Dress Him in an Unnatural Way.

It is a mistake to curl or dress a child's hair in some fashion different from that employed every day, as it will make the picture seem unnatural.

This same idea applies to clothes worn. If a child is in the habit of being dressed in very fancy clothes, well and good, but if only its best clothes are ruffled and betrimmed the mother must decide whether she prefers a good picture of the child or one of the clothes.

Sometimes the best photographs are secured by leaving the baby entirely to the photographer's care. He will often understand, by reason of his larger experience, just how to secure a baby's attention and to catch just the right expression on the little face.

Often this is impossible if he is interfered with by numerous loving aunts and grandparents, in addition to the mother.

The Madonna pose of mother and child may be made very pretty and artistic, but the mother should always be careful to wear something pretty and soft and white to get the real artistic effects of such a pose.

When a child is first able to stand alone a very pretty pose is to get him to stand on a chair of the open wicker variety and allow him to lean over the back, with his arms resting on the back of the chair.

Little baby hands are so often outstretched for various articles that a very pretty picture is the result if baby, when in position, is induced to stretch forth his little right hand naturally by holding out to him some pleasing object.

A NEAT RAZOR CASE.

A Useful Present For the Mere Man's Acceptance.

The difficulty as to the choice of a little present for a man might be solved satisfactorily by making for him a razor case of the kind shown in the accompanying illustration. This neat case is made in art serge, lined with soft leather and bound at the edge with silk ribbon. The dimensions for this useful case are marked on the sketch. The center straps for holding the razors in position should be made of leather, stitched at the extreme edges, and there should also be a small strap of leather and a button to fasten the case when folded.

The Emergency Woman.

The new London invention of "emergency women" will probably have an important bearing on the servant question. It promises to be a new and profitable occupation for capable women.

The function of the emergency woman is to visit any household where there is a sudden need for special services. Let us suppose that the servants in your house have fallen ill or gone off without notice or it may be that a batch of cousins have paid you a surprise visit and you are at your wits' end to cope with the extra work occasioned. You send at once for an emergency woman.

In short, one can think of innumerable domestic crises where the arrival on the scene of an intelligent, capable woman could be of inestimable value to you as helper and adviser. There is plenty of room for such women, but they should be level headed and efficient. And they cannot have too many accomplishments.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Fashionable New Scents.

"Nerve scent" is the newest form of drugging for the smart woman. Her "vanity bag" is furnished with a dainty, innocent looking, gold stoppered scent bottle. It contains essence of Parma violets from Paris, which is heavily charged with ether.

When she is tired a few whiffs of this scent stimulate her flagging energies and keep her bright and alert at a dinner or supper party.

Another favorite "nerve scent" consists of eau de cologne mixed with chloroform and a dash of ammonia. Inhaled, this is a powerful and dangerous pick me up.

Woman's Work.

Marriage is woman's work in the world, not man's. From whatever point it is viewed, physical or spiritual, as a question of civic polity or a question of individual ethics, it is her specific share of the world's work—first, last and always—allotted to her by laws far stronger than she is. And the woman who fails to recognize this and acknowledge it has the germ of divorce in her veins at the outset.—Anna A. Rogers in Atlantic.

THE AEROPLANE.

Keeping It Properly Balanced Is a Difficult Art.

An aeroplane may be defined as a surface propelled horizontally in such a manner that the resulting pressure of air from beneath prevents its falling. A balloon can remain stationary over a given spot in a calm, but an aeroplane must be kept in motion if it is to remain in the air. Such a plane literally runs on the air like a skater gliding over thin ice. The most familiar example of an aeroplane is the kite of our boyhood days. We all remember how we kept it aloft even in a light breeze by running with it against the wind. Substitute the pull of a propeller for the cord and the aeroplane flying machine is created. If this were all, the problem of artificial flight would have been solved long ago. There remains the supremely difficult art of balancing the plane so that it will skate on an even keel. Even birds find it hard to maintain this stability. In the constant effort to steady himself a hawk sways from side to side as he soars, like an acrobat on a tight rope. Occasionally a bird will catch the wind on the top of his wing, with the result that he will capsize and fall some distance be-living aeroplanes of nature find the feat of balancing so difficult, is it any wonder that men have been killed in endeavoring to discover their secret?

If you have ever sailed a canoe you will readily understand what this task of balancing an aeroplane really means. As the pressure of the wind on your sail heels your canoe over you must climb out on the outrigger far enough for your weight to counterbalance the wind pressure, so that you will not be upset. The physicist scientifically explains your achievement by stating that you have succeeded in keeping the center of air pressure and the center of gravity on the same straight line. In a canoe the feat is comparatively easy; in an aeroplane it demands constant and flashlike shifting of the body, because the sudden slight variations of the wind must be immediately opposed. — Waldemar Kaempffest in Cosmopolitan.

A GOOD HAIR TONIC.

In Shampooing Be Careful to Select Pure Soap.

A good tonic for the hair is composed of tincture of nux vomica, one ounce; spirits of rosemary, two ounces; alcohol, two ounces.

This should be applied daily and after applying gently massage the scalp with the tips of the fingers. Singeing is the best plan by which you can have split ends of your hair remedied. Clipping is liable to skip over many of the ends.

Another good hair tonic is: Eau de cologne, eight ounces; tincture of cantharides, three-quarters ounce; oil of lavender, one-half dram; oil of rosemary, one-half dram.

In washing the hair first be careful to select pure soap that contains no free alkali. Then make a heavy suds or lather by rubbing the soap with a brush or the hands in a half bowl of warm water. Hold the head over the bowl and pour the suds on it with a cup, rubbing lightly, but thoroughly. After the hair and scalp are cleansed rinse well with two or three changes of warm water and dry in the usual manner. Once in every two weeks is often enough to wash the hair.

Never use a metallic brush. Instead use a coarse comb and always comb the hair the way it lies. In other words, do not comb it against the grain. If the hair tangles commence combing at the ends and comb out gradually. To commence combing at the head would tangle it worse, and the pulling tends to rupture the hair follicles and break the hair. Do not comb or brush the hair any more than is absolutely necessary. If you use a tonic on your hair it is well to apply it immediately after washing, as the scalp will take the tonic more readily then than at any other time.

WORDS ABOUT WOMEN.

What Men in Many Centuries Have Said About Us.

If Cleopatra's nose had been shorter the face of the world would have been changed.—Pascal.

Their glory is to be least spoken of among men, whether for praise or blame.—Pericles.

Men and women never agree as to the merits of another woman.—La Bruyere.

Natural beauty is not everything. There is an art in being pretty.—Ludovic Halevy.

A person in whom the perfections of both mind and body are found together alone deserves in my judgment the praise of perfect beauty.—Polystratus.

A woman's face ought to be like an April day—susceptible of change and variety.—Lord Byron.

Laughter is the test of beauty. Women that it embellishes are of the divine race.—Rougon.

There is an old saying that in England the wife is the queen, in France the companion, in Germany the housekeeper, in Italy the slave.—London Outlook.

The symbol of woman in general is that of the Apocalypse on the forehead of which was written "Mystery."—Diderot.

Is there any one with whom you converse less than with your wife?—Xenophon.

Leave It to Patients.

Swedish doctors do not send bills for services to their patients, but leave the payment entirely to the generosity of the latter.

SERVANT LORE.

Maxims Which Many Housekeepers Observe.

With so much battling with the servant problem there has sprung up a little code of servant superstitions which many housekeepers observe. "I always shiver when a new cook burns a hole in her apron," says one woman, "for it means that she will not stay with me long. I don't like to have my girls come to me dressed in black either, for it is a sign they won't stay the year out."

Questioned as to some of the other superstitions which influence a housekeeper in dealing with her servants, she said:

"Don't allow your new servant to come just as the old one is departing. It's very unlucky.

"It is unlucky for a maid to reach her place of service so long as there is light enough for her to see to hang up her wraps.

"If you hire a maid on Friday, you may expect smashed china.

"It is unlucky to forbid a servant eating hearty meals the first day she is with you, for if not permitted her appetite will never be satisfied, and she will eat you out of house and home.

"If you praise your servant before breakfast, you will have occasion to scold her before dinner.

"If your new servant has many scars from burns on her hands, it is a sign she will be a good cook. Look for them if you are hiring a cook.

"If a maid has short, stubby fingers, it is a sign she is wasteful and extravagant in the extreme.

"Do not hire a maid with hair of the tight, curling variety, for it's a sign she will not be neat in her work.

"If a servant calls you 'lady' frequently in conversation, beware of her, for she is probably dishonest."

LETTER WRITING.

Post Cards Responsible For Falling Off In Correspondence.

It is a well known fact that nobody writes letters nowadays. It is true we spend a vast deal of time at our writing table, that we consume untold quantities of ink and nibs, while our stationery bill is by no means the most modest item of our ever increasing expenditure. But we neither write nor receive letters. The utmost we do is to "dash off notes" in answer to invitations, to "scribble a few lines" of congratulation or sympathy, as the case may be, with a friend; to express briefly, but forcibly, our dissatisfaction with our dressmaker or our surprise at our milliner's account. As for our absent relations, on the rare occasions when we remember their existence at all we send them our love on a post card with a few details about the weather, ending in "tearing haste" with the hope that they will write soon and tell us all their news. Of course they never do, which is just as well, as, if they did, we should in all probability never have time to wade through their letters.

BEAUTY NOTES.

Regular visits should be paid to the dentist, who will examine your mouth and tell you if there is any decay. It is as well to go to the most expert practitioner your means will allow, as often the work of an unskillful dentist does more harm than good.

If you are troubled with insomnia try drinking a glass of hot milk after getting into bed. Sip it very slowly and as hot as possible. Some people like a pinch of sugar or salt in it. Hot milk has a soothing effect on the nerves and helps to induce sleep.

A simple cooler is a soda bath. It reduces the temperature of the blood and generally cools and rests the body. Four or five ounces of common bicarbonate of soda are added to a bath of cool water and the body soaked for a good quarter of an hour, so as to absorb the soda.

Do not stand in a draft or anywhere to let the cold wind blow into the eyes. In most people this causes, as does any sudden change of temperature or blaze of light, an uncomfortable sensation, bringing tears to the eyes. It is as well to take any feeling of that sort as a warning, for it is sure to mean something injurious to the eyes.

The Difference in Feet.

The French foot is narrow and long, [illegible] small and slightly curved. The Arab's foot is proverbial for its high arch. The Koran says that a stream of water can run under the true Arab's foot without touching it. The foot of the Scotch is high and thick; that of the Irish is flat and square; the English short and fleshy. When Athens was in her zenith the Grecian foot was the most perfectly formed and exactly proportioned of that of any of the human race. Swedes, Norwegians and Germans have the largest feet. Americans the smallest. Russian toes are webbed to the first joint. Tartarian toes are all the same length.

Bath For Rheumatic Sufferers.

Persons who are rheumatic will be benefited by hot baths to which oil or turpentine is added. A good mixture to add to a hot bath is made of fifty grams of green soap and thirty grams of oil of turpentine. These ingredients should be mixed together and shaken well.

Handkerchief Makes Shoe Horn.

If in putting on a slipper a shoe horn is not at hand try putting the corner of your handkerchief in your shoe, then pull it on and pull out handkerchief. You will find this answers as nicely as a horn.

King's First Visit to Ireland.

King Edward looks back over nearly sixty years to his first visit to Ireland. He was a "bonnie, mischievous, yellow-haired laddie" of six when in 1848, he landed with his parents at Queenstown and first won Irish hearts. To this day he recalls how one impulsive Irishwoman snatched him up in her arms, gave him a big hug, and called him "darlint," much to the amusement of his mother, the Queen, and to the dismay of the onlookers.

St. John's

The children of St. John's Sunday school met this morning at ten a.m., to practice the Christmas cantata, "Story of a Star," Mr. R. J. Devey conducting, with Miss Margaret English at the piano. The next rehearsal will be on Tuesday, next, in the school room at 4.15 p.m. The cantata will probably be given on Friday, December 27th, in the school room. The singers in Stainer's Daughter of Jairus will meet on Sunday evening after service in St. John's school.

THE LADIES' AID ELECT OFFICERS

Annual Meeting Held at St. Andrew's Yesterday Afternoon

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid of St Andrew's Church was held yesterday afternoon when the business of the year was reviewed and officers elected. The meeting was largely attended and very successful. The treasurer's report showed that $230 was the receipts of the society during the year, which was used for church purposes.

The following officers were elected:—

Pres.—Mrs. F. L. Robinson.

Vice-Pres. — Mrs. A. MacFarlane

Secretary — Mrs Frank Atkinson

Asst Secretary — Mrs. C. McClelland

Treasurer — Mrs R. J. McWilliams

Organist — Mrs R. W. F. E. Davidson

Don't forget "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" at the Grand next Monday evening. Plan now open.

VARIOUS COMMITTEES WERE STRUCK

The Social Committee of the Y.M.C.A. held a very interesting and profitable meeting last night. There was a good attendance and prospects are good for a big New Year's Day Reception. The following Committees were appointed to prepare for that day's programme:—

Programme Committee—Messrs. D Campbell, W J Coleman, G E Bruce, E M Best and Rev. Canon Davidson.

Decorating Committee—Messrs. C E Gason, J S Knapman, H Mules, H Coote and B T Huston.

Reception Committee—Messrs. (N Perry, H Garrish, G Carter, Geo Martin and H L Bruce.

Refreshments —Messrs. P Redgrave, A E Walker, J H Connal, H Cressman, and Ray P Best.

It was also decided to have one or two members of the Social Committee on duty each evening as a Reception Committee. Messrs. P Redgrave, G E Bruce and C E Coleman were appointed to arrange a schedule for the committee.

Sunday meeting at 4 p.m., an illustrated Gospel talk will be given on "The Life of Joseph," by Mr. N. Howard-Moore. It is expected the Y.M.C.A. Quartette will sing. Men and older boys are invited.

The building will again be opened from 8.30 to 10 p.m. for those who care to come in and sit around a cheerful fire in the grate and sing the old familiar hymns.

A LARGE MARKET THIS MORNING

Fowl Was Plentiful—Sleighing Was Good In the North

There was an exceedingly large market this morning, both inside and out. The market square was completely filled with sleighs. On the outside market the most noticeable feature was the large quantity of beef and pork for sale. The potatoes were the finest ever offered on a Peterborough market. There was plenty of fowl and butter on the inside market and was very quickly snapped up.

GOING HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS

A Number of English People Sail For The Old Land

A number of English people, who have been making Peterborough their home, are returning to the mother land to spend the Christmas holidays at their former homes. Among the number who have left the city this week are Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Archibald, Mr. G A. Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. A. Wright, and Mr. J. Edwards. The first couple embark at New York on Monday on the Luistania, and the remainder sailed yesterday from St. John, on the Victorian.

SIGNS PLEDGE IN POLICE COURT

John Oakley Was Arrested on Vagrancy Charge—Allowed to Go

After spending eight days in gaol on a remand for being drunk, and attempting to commit suicide, a well known bartender appeared in court this morning, and was allowed to go on condition that he would sign the pledge against alcohol in any form.

The next case was that of John Oakley on a charge of vagrancy. John has been sawing wood for a number of different citizens but has only been able to make enough to pay his board and had to come to the police station to sleep. He has been coming so often that last night when he applied for lodgings he was locked up.

This morning he told His Worship that he expected to get a job with some farmers and begged hard to get off. His Worship allowed him to go on the understanding that he would get employment and would keep out of the police statio-

THE TIGERS M MED THE HARRIER FIVE

Basketball Match Proved An Easy Victory For the Former

A lively game of basketball between the Harriers and the Tigers preceded the presentation, and the Tigers won a clean-cut victory by a score of 24 to 10, although the Harriers made them extend themselves. The game was fast and furious from start to finish, the checking being very close and hard, so that combination play was difficult. The half time score was 14-6 in favour of the Tigers and they increased their lead in the second period.

The teams were—

Tigers — Backs, Weatherstone, Loomis and Staunton; forwards, Sutherland and Wallace.

ENGLAND

At the early age of eighteen Mr. Sydney Rosenbloom has been elected to the full professorship of the pianoforte in the Royal Academy of Music, London. Born in Edinburgh of a British father and an Irish mother, the young professor may be said to have begun his musical education when but three years of age, and since he went to London from Edinburgh he has won two scholarships and six medals at the Royal Academy of Music. Mr. Rosenbloom is said to be the youngest holder on record of such a post as that to which he has been appointed. At a recent Academy concert in Queen's Hall he played one of his own compositions with marked success.

The death took place recently at Cheshire, Cheshire of the Rev. W. Rowe Jolley, who had a distinguished record. He was tutor to Prince Alfred 1858-9, tutor to Prince Arthur, 1859-62, deputy clerk of the closet in ordinary to the King, 1901; formerly curate of St. Bridget, Liverpool, 1852-4. He was chaplain in the Royal Navy in 1854-9 and saw active service in 1855. He was chaplain in ordinary to Queen Victoria, 1878-1901, formerly vicar of Come, Gloucestershire, and perpetual curate of St. John's, Birkenhead. Mr. Jolley had been failing for some time, and died somewhat suddenly. He was in his 83rd year.

Major-General William Spottiswood Trevor, V.C., has just died in London. He was born in India on October 2, 1824. In the Bhutan Expedition of 1865 he headed the assault at the capture of Dewangire, receiving five wounds, and for bravery in this action he was awarded the Victoria Cross and the brevet of major. The distinguished general was one of the very few remaining survivors of the massacres given to Akbar Khan on the occasion of the retreat from Cabul in 1841, and up to the time of his death he retained a clear recollection of the events of his captivity.

King Edward has accepted a birthday ode composed by Mrs. Longbottom, a blind poet, aged 15, living in St. Andrew's, Bristol, who is musical and has won prizes for singing in competitions. A reply from Sandringham says that the King thanks Miss Longbottom for her congratulations and good wishes written in Braille, on the occasion of his birthday and also for her photograph, which His Majesty has been pleased to accept.

The story of a peculiar will comes from Ashton-under-Lyne, Lancashire. By the will of the late Mr. Samuel Taylor, £600 pounds is left to "provide annually in the month of October a tea party for bona fide residents of the municipal borough of Ashton-under-Lyne, who have attained the age of 70 years, which tea-party is to be followed immediately by a concert, musical or other entertainment, for the pleasure of the old people.

A novel penalty was imposed by Mr. Montagu Sharpe, the Brentford Middlesex, Magistrate, on a school boy, who had damaged a tree belonging to the Ealing Corporation. He ordered the boy to provide another tree, and to plant it himself, remarking that if the children of England were brought up like those in Germany and Switzerland, and taught to plant trees in the public highways, there would be less of such wanton destruction.

George Hay, the chief groundsman at Lord's Cricket Ground, London, formerly a prominent member of the Derbyshire County Eleven, and a professional to the Keighley Town Club, has established a marriage record. He has just married at the Chesterfield Registry Office the third member of one family. His second wife was half-sister to his first wife, and his third wife is sister to his second.

SCOTLAND

The great Celtic Fete, or Bazaar, held in Glasgow recently proved a wonderful attraction. Each day the attendance was measured only by the capacity of St. Andrew's Halls. The gross earnings of the three days amounted to £8,000. There were quite a number of side shows, such as concerts, Gaelic and English plays, etc., but the leading attraction was the "Clachan," or Highland village, consisting of three typical Highland houses moss-covered and thatched, and a church and shop. There was also an oldour of peat reek, and various Gaelic-speaking workers engaged in such tasks as spinning, weaving, knitting, carding, grinding corn by the hand-mill or quern. There were also exhibited a number of old cruisies, spinning wheels and winding reels. In this typical clachan one heard the Gaelic of the various districts of the Highlands spoken. In connection with the affair, a telegram of loyalty was sent to the King in Gaelic, eliciting the following reply; "The King appreciates your message being sent in Gaelic, but for convenience of reply please send exact equivalent in English. Private Secretary, Sandringham." A translation was immediately sent.

The Mitchell Library of Glasgow has just completed the first thirty years of its existence as a public institution in active operation. The library was opened on November 5, 1877, in temporary rooms at the corner of Ingram street and North Albion street. In 1891 the library was removed to the building formerly occupied by the Water Commissioners in Miller street, and here again the accommodation provided was fully taken advantage of. During the whole period the library has been one of the most largely used of the public reference libraries of the United Kingdom. During the thirty years the total number of volumes issued to readers was 12,402,636, equal to a daily average of 1,418. In addition to the large amount of reading in books noted above, it is estimated that there has been an almost equally large number of references to, or consultations of, the current numbers of the 500 selected reviews, magazines, journals, and other periodicals in the magazine room. The number of volumes in the library when it was opened thirty years ago was 14,432; the number now exceeds 170,000.

A. W. Brown, Muthill, Perthshire, artist, was recently examined in a petition for cessio at Perth. In examination Brown said he had practically no estate. In 1904 he had between sixty and seventy thousand pounds sterling, and if he might say so, he was swindled out of the great part of it. The bulk of the money was lost on horse racing (and the Stock Exchange. For the past few years he had always been very unfortunate, and practically the whole of his money had been lost by keeping race horses. He was accustomed to bet heavily, hoping that things would turn right again, but instead he appeared to sink deeper. In 1906 he found himself in difficulties, but by selling some furniture he was able to pay 20s. on the pound. It was then that he began work as an artist but his earnings fluctuated a good deal, and this year there had been practically no commissions.

The question of cab fares is agitating a considerable section of the citizens. Cab proprietors have become alive to the fact that their services are, in a great many cases, only called upon now when the luggage is greatest in bulk than can conveniently carried gratis to the railway station on the back platform of the cheap and handy electric tram car. The Magistrates have been asked, along with a rearrangement of fares, to sanction a tariff for luggage, according to weight, and for the baby carriage or bicycle, and they are looking into the matter.

IRELAND

An extraordinary discovery of £1,700 in gold secreted in the wall of a public house has been made in County Cavan, and the find has so excited the popular imagination that all the old public houses for miles around are being searched for hidden treasure. The sum of £1,700 in sovereigns and half sovereigns was found some days ago in a cash box concealed in one of the inside walls of a public house in Glangevlin, County Cavan, which had belonged to the late Mr. Thomas Cosgrove, vice-chairman of the Enniskillen Rural District Council, who died somewhat suddenly over a year ago when returning home from Blacklion. A nephew of Mr. Cosgrove named Dolan, who died two weeks ago, was manager of the place during his uncle's lifetime, and for some time subsequently continued in occupation until equity proceedings were instituted. Mr. Tennyson Cosgrove, a brother of the late owner, succeeded in obtaining a transfer of the tenancy, and shortly afterwards young Dolan left and went to the Glen Hotel. It is not known why the search which has proved so fruitful was instituted. It is rumoured that the money had been secreted there for the past fifty years by the late owner, who had the reputation of possessing considerable wealth.

For some time reports of the inefficiency of certain regiments in the Aldershot command have been in circulation in the service clubs, and these have culminated in official censure of the condition of an Irish regiment and the removal of five of the officers, two majors and three captains, to the half-pay list. The report of General French upon the the condition of the regiment both at Aldershot and on manoeuvres, was so indifferent that a special "surprise" inspection was ordered. In these circumstances it has been decided to withdraw the regiment from the expeditionary force. It is many years since an incident of this nature has taken place in the army, and it is stated that other regiments at Aldershot are also under supervision. In military circles it had been known for some time that the 5th Lancers, which last month was removed from Aldershot to York, had revealed a condition of inefficiency which has caused much disquiet to those in authority. Inspections and consultations have been very frequent of late, and with the object of introducing new blood into the ranks of the officers that three majors and two captains have been placed on half-pay.

Matthew Mills, the seventy-year-old newspaper lot Keady, Co. Armagh, who recently inherited £15,000 from a brother and sister in Australia, was found dead in bed the other day. No will has been found, and as Mills was not married the fortune will now go to nieces and nephews in Melbourne.

The largest oil barge in the world has been launched at Belfast. It was built by Harland and Wolff, and in tow will carry 10,000 tons of oil across the Atlantic.

Recently published statistics show that potato acreage in Ireland has decreased from 1,123,004 acres in 1851 to 586,107 in 1906.

BEER* BENEFITS THE WHOLE BODY

(NO OTHER FOOD-BEVERAGE DOES THAT MUCH)

NOT six people in a thousand (and those six have either diabetes or gouty tendencies) can get anything but real good from the use of good beer with their meals. Because that kind of beer (and no other kind is brewed in Ontario) benefits the whole body of the normal adult,—enriches the blood, vitalizes the stomach, makes kidneys and liver active, builds flesh and betters nerves.

Beer Is Not A Mere Tonic

Good beer, drank with meals and at bedtime, is not merely a tonic—for a tonic simply gets one part of the system to work better for a while, by stimulating its activity, while beer, rightly used, does the whole system permanent good.

Beer Builds Up Thin Folks

That is why good beer is such a notable flesh-builder, and why it is so effective in changing the too-white blood of anemic people into the red, strong, healthy blood of the vigorous. It has qualities that are very valuable to women, especially. It is distinctly NOT an intoxicant, nor a hurtful stimulant. Ask your doctor if beer wouldn't be good for you as an item of daily diet.

* BEER is a term which covers lager, ale, porter, and stout; and, in the province of Ontario (where, despite beverages made under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops and pure water. 355

HURTS THE PATENT MEDICINE SALES

Simple Prescription Which Relieves Every Person Who Tries It

A HOME KIDNEY CURE

To make up enough of the "Dandelion treatment" which is claimed to be relieving nearly every sufferer who uses it for backache, kidney complaint, sore weak bladder and rheumatism; get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon and three ounces Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

Those who have tried it claim that it acts gently but thoroughly on the kidneys, relieving backache and bladder trouble and urinary difficulties almost instantly. Many cases of rheumatism are known to have been relieved within a few days, the pain and swelling diminishing with each dose.

A well known local druggist, who is in a position to know, asserts that this prescription, wherever it becomes known, always ruins the sale of the numerous patent medicine rheumatism cures.

MILLBROOK MAN WHO MOVES HOUSES

Claims Credit for Moving Some Buildings in Our City

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to refer to a news item that appeared in your paper some short time ago, re "moving of buildings, etc." in your city.

A mover of buildings in Peterborough takes all the credit for moving buildings that he could not move without assistance, and he (having known that the writer had undertaken very difficult jobs and carried them through successfully) sent for me to come to his aid. I, of course, obliged him and went to his assistance, but not a word of this appeared in his "puff of himself" in the Examiner. Again a couple of weeks ago he was moving another building with which he got "stuck," and he again sent for me, and I went down and helped him out of his difficulty, but "our friend" never even gave me a share of the credit. A few weeks ago "our friend" had a sarcastic notice inserted in a Peterborough paper to the effect that the "Huffman" gang did not pay taxes in Peterborough and should not be allowed to do work there. To this insinuation I might say that my work in your city helps this individual to pay his taxes, and he needn't worry so long as he gets the contracts and can get the "Huffman" gang to help him out when he gets stuck, but perhaps a day might come when the "Huffman" gang may like of assisting him in his troubles. Now, Mr. Editor, I thank you for allowing me this space and wishing your valuable paper every success.

Yours, etc.,
JOHN HUFFMAN.

TRIBUTE TO JOHN'S TEA

A delightful blend of John's tea is the refreshing beverage served by the ladies at All Saints' Bazaar and Sale, now being held in the old opera house. This fine, delicately flavoured tea is capturing the tea drinkers all over this city and district. It possesses good quality with strength and flavour. It is a rich, moderately stimulating drink, that satisfies. John's tea is a tea that goes a long way, and is, therefore, economical as well as being good. You can get your supplies in attractive air-tight packages, from Mr. John, whose office and warerooms are in the Grand Opera House block, next to J. J. Turner & Sons. If you take the trouble to ask for a sample you will be able to judge for yourself. Have John's tea for Christmas. 344w

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, and the glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

THE EARTH'S INTERIOR

Our Planet's Core Is Liquid, Yet It's as Rigid as Steel.

UNDER ENORMOUS PRESSURE

Neither Rock Nor Metal Could Remain There in the State In Which We See It on the Surface—The Lava That Breaks Through the Earth's Crust.

The idea that the interior of the globe is composed of flowing lava has long since been abandoned, but the picture that modern science offers of the inside of the earth is hardly less appalling. All investigations unite to prove that the heat increases as we descend deeper in the terrestrial crust at such a rate that forty or fifty miles down no substance with which we are acquainted could remain unmelted. And yet the same science tells us that the core of the globe is enormously more rigid than the hardest steel. This apparent contradiction is due to the tremendous pressure inside the earth. No rock and no metal can remain there in the state in which we see it on the surface. Its molecules must lose the adherence characteristic of solid bodies in consequence of the heat, but still they are not free to flow like an ordinary liquid, because of the compression to which they are subjected.

The phenomena of earthquakes have given wonderful information about the internal state of the globe. All observations show that the shocks of earthquakes are confined to a thin upper shell. They originate at a depth of only a few miles at the most. But the vibrations which they set going are felt all through the earth, often extending to the antipodes. The great core, held rigid by the pressure, is extremely elastic, and it responds to a shock like a ball of steel or of glass. The density of the earth increases toward the center. It is only in the upper part of the crust that local movements can take place, causing shocks and changes of level at the surface. Deeper down everything is gripped and immovable, except, as already remarked, that the molecules of the rocks and metals there are subject to vibration like those of a bell against which a blow is struck.

But this is not all. Whenever a local release from the pressure is brought about by changes near the surface the potentially liquid but effectually solid core at that point may suddenly become fluid and gush forth through a volcanic throat or other vent. But such effects cannot extend to any great depth. Nothing comes to us from the vast interior mass. That remains a perpetual mystery, far beyond the searching hand of science. Indirectly, however, we may learn much about it. Astronomical considerations throw a great deal of light upon the subject. We see that through the planetary system rotating globes are flattened at the poles. The same thing is true of the earth. Its equator bulges; its polar regions are flattened inward. Mechanical laws assure us that the cause is to be found in the fact that the earth and the other planets have assumed shape under the influence of the centrifugal force of their rotation. That force is necessarily greatest at the equator. Beginning as completely molten bodies, they have commenced to solidify at the surface after having assumed an ellipsoidal form due to their rotation.

Another very significant fact is that the shape of the earth corresponds with that which a globe rotating with its velocity would have if composed of materials arranged to their density—that is to say, growing denser toward the center. The heaviest materials must be deep down in the globe; the lighter materials have remained at the surface. This again corresponds with the facts of observation. We know the total "weight" and the average density of the earth. It "weighs" six sextillions of tons, and its average density is five and a half times that of water. But the substances composing the crust of the earth have an average density of twice that of water. It follows that the heaviest things in the earth, on the average, exist deep within its exterior. For all that we can tell, its inner core may be wholly metallic. At the center there is probably an enormous aggregation of dense metallic substances.

An indication that the inner parts of the earth consist largely if not mainly of iron is to be found in the magnetism of the globe. The earth is a great permanent magnet. If we could learn the facts it might turn out that iron is the most abundant substance in the solar system and perhaps in the whole universe. The majority of the meteorites that fall upon the earth consist of solid iron. Blow the earth to pieces and in the resulting cloud of fragments the rocks that we are familiar with would be almost imperceptible. There would be a rain of iron and other metals descending upon the moon and upon any other attracting body in the vicinity.

This view of the [illegible] of the globe disposes of the notion, so picturesquely developed in one of Jules Verne's romances, of the existence of vast cavernous openings in the interior of the earth. Such void spaces, though on no large scale, may exist in the upper part of the crust, but not at a great depth. The earth is effectively more solid than a common ball, and the movable rocks composing its crust are like a film of rust on the hard metal.—Professor Garrett P. Serviss in New York American.

It is better to become great than to be born great.—Proverb.

A Horse's Jump.

A startling episode occurred some time back at Angers, the capital of the French department of Maine-et-Loire. A cavalry charger was being exercised by a groom in the Rue de Brissac when as it was crossing the railway bridge it was startled by an approaching train car. The animal, which was a great, powerful bay, plunged violently, and then with one tremendous bound it cleared the four foot parapet at the bridge and dropped to the railway line full fifty feet below. The horse kept its feet and the rider his seat, and neither was a penny the worse.—Strand Magazine.

Opening a Shell.

During the recent struggle in Morocco the Moors one day found in their camp at Casablanca an unexploded shell, and, wishing to find out how it "worked," they summoned their most proficient armorer, who, although he knows everything about hand guns, is most ignorant in regard to projectiles. This man thought that the best means of opening the shell was to use a hammer. At the second blow the shell exploded, killing and wounding many of the Moors who were crowded around him.

FIGHT BLACK PLAGUE.

Prof. McCrimmon, Attacks Social Evils In Canada.

An eloquent plea for an intelligent, aggressive campaign, both repressive and educational, against the canker of social disease was made by Prof. A. B. McCrimmon in a recent address. It has been said, observed Dr. McCrimmon, that the problem of society at the present time was the equitable distribution of wealth, but a deeper problem than was the problem of education. To-day they were fighting the white plague of tuberculosis; they needed also to fight the black plague of social disease. The former was fairly well known in its ravages, the latter was covered with the mantle of secrecy. The physical problem had to do with the evils which existed to a limited extent in Canada and to a far greater extent in the older countries of the civilized world. They hoped and believed that Canada was much cleaner than the communities to which he referred, but the evil was here and would continue to increase unless proper measures were taken. Canada was destined to be the home of millions. They could not afford to pay the penalty of egregious indifference when prevention and edutation might mean supremacy. "We have," declared Dr. McCrimmon, "cast the mantle of ignorance too long over what was meant by the Creator as one of the highest functions of life. I plead for an intelligent, aggressive campaign, both repressive against all who would thrust this evil upon a young nation's life and education to the extent of minimizing for our boys and girls the danger of social contamination which must deteriorate the whole life of the people." He urged a constructive educational policy, declaring that he believed it was the idle who were apt to fall victims to their passions and to join the ranks of the vicious. A recognition of the democratic principle that it was the character of the man that dignified the work, and not the character of the work that dignified the man, would lead to a better adjustment in the vocations of life, relieve the so-called learned professions of their misfits, and allow every man the opportunity of doing his very best for the life of their young country.

Colonel Philip Stanley of the Twenty-third United States Infantry is the author of the following "epigrams of the range:" "The ultimate of the soldier's profession is to know when and where and how to pull the trigger;" "Other things being equal, the soldier who can hit with measurable accuracy what he aims at is the best soldier;" "The way to learn how to hit is to find out why you miss;" "Alkali must be mixed with gunpowder;" "Soldiers who are not good shooters are apt to be turned into good scouters;" "Most good shots are made good shots by systematic instruction and practice; there is no royal road to success."

The Dreadnought's Propellers.

While the work of fitting the new experimental steering engine to the Dreadnought is completed the vessel will be docked to have another set of propellers fitted. It will be remembered that after the Dreadnought had completed her steam trials there was a considerable falling off in her speed. It was thought that the deficiency could be met by the provision of a new set of propellers, but when these were fitted the subsequent tests showed that her speed was still less than that attained on the original trials. Now a third set of propellers is to be fitted in the hope of regaining the lost speed.—Engineer.

FRUIT BETTER THAN DRUGS.

MODERN WAY TO CURE DISEASE.

Wonderful Results In Kidney, Liver and Skin Troubles.

Apple juice is the natural liver tonic, and increases the flow of bile. The bile, secreted in the liver, is the only purgative common to the human system. Apple juice also stimulates and strengthens the kidneys. Orange juice beautifies the skin and complexion as nothing else will. Figs and prunes increase the digestive fluids, strengthen the stomach, and build up digestion.

The medicinal part of fruit is much less than one part in a hundred. That is, in one hundred pounds of apples, there would not be a pound of the bitter substance that cures kidney and liver troubles.

An Ottawa physician discovered a method by which he combined the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes in such a way that an additional quantity of the bitter principle was added to the new compound. Then he further added cure tonics and internal antiseptics which greatly assist the intensified fruit juices in curing disease.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the name of this new discovery—and thousands of people owe their good health to its virtues. For Constipation, Biliousness, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels and Skin, it is a certain and speedy cure.

If your druggist does not handle "Fruit-a-tives," refuse substitutes. Enclose price—50c a box; 6 for $2.50—we will send your order postpaid.

SAYS THIS IS BEST

A leading health journal in answering the question, "What is the best prescription to clean and purify the blood?" prints in a recent issue the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion one ounce;
Compound Salatone, one ounce;
Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, four ounces.

Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

This mixture will clean the blood of all impurities. In just a few days the skin begins to clear of sores, boils and pimples. It puts vigor and energy into run-down debilitated men and women. For many years Sarsaparilla alone has been considered a good blood medicine. But while it built up and made new blood, the impurities remained within and the good accomplished was only temporary. Sarsaparilla, however, when used in combination with Compound Salatone and Extract Dandelion, works wonders. This combination puts the kidneys to work to filter and sift out the waste matter, uric acid, and other impurities that cause disease. It makes new blood and relieves rheumatism and lame back and bladder troubles.

spite of the strange word, I understood how he felt.

"Perhaps you should go home and sleep," he suggested tenderly.

"Nay," cried I. "I had a cat nap in the lane; I'm game to see it through."

"Then," he commanded, "you may stay hereabouts and watch that door. For I have some curiosity to know whether he will need to fare forth after the treasure. If he do as I guess he will spend the next hours as you counsel me, making up arrears of sleep, and you'll not see him till a quarter or so before 11. But whenever he comes out follow him. Keep your safe distance and dog him if you can."

"And if I lose him?"

"Come back home. Station yourself now where he won't notice you. That arch there should serve."

We had been standing at the street corner, sheltered by a balcony over our heads from the view of Peyrot's window.

"Monsieur," I said, "I do wish you would bring Vigo back with you."

"Felix," he laughed, "you are the worst courtier I ever saw."

I crossed the street as he told me, glancing up at the third story of the house of the Gilded Shears. No watcher was visible. From the archway, which was entrance to a court of tall houses, I could well command Peyrot's door, myself in deep shadow. M. Etienne nodded to me and walked off whistling.

I would fain have occupied myself as we guessed the knave Peyrot to be doing, and shut mine aching eyes in sleep. But I was sternly determined to be faithful to my trust, and though for my greater comfort—cold enough comfort it was—I sat me down on the paving stones, yet I kept my eyelids propped open, my eyes on Peyrot's door. I was helped in carrying out my virtuous resolve by the fact that the court was populous and my carcass in the entrance much in the way of the busy passers-by, so that full half of them swore at me and the half of that kicked me. The hard part was that I could not fight them because of keeping my eyes on Peyrot's door.

He delayed so long that I feared with shamed misgivings I must have let him slip, when at length, on the very stroke of 11 he sauntered forth. He was yawning prodigiously, but set off past my lair at a smart pace. I followed at goodly distance, but never once did he glance around. He led the way straight to the sign of the Bonne Femme.

I entered two minutes after him, passing from the cabaret, where my men were not, to the dining-room, where, to my relief, they were. At two huge fireplaces savory soups bubbled, juicy rabbits simmered, fat capons roasted; the smell brought the tears to my eyes. A concourse of people was about; gentles and burghers seated at table or passing in and out; waiters running back and forth from the fires, drawers from the cabaret. I paused to scan the throng, jostled by one and another, before I descried my master and my knave. M. Etienne, the prompter at the rendezvous, had, like a philosopher, ordered dinner, but he had deserted it now and stood with Peyrot, their backs to the company, their elbows on the deep window ledge, their heads close together. I came up suddenly to Peyrot's side, making him jump.

"Oh, it's you, my little gentleman!" he exclaimed, smiling to show all his firm teeth, as white and even as a court beauty's. He looked in the best of humors, as was not wonderful considering that he was engaged in fastening up in the breast of his doublet something hard and lumpy. M. Etienne held up a packet for me to see, before Peyrot's shielded body; it was tied with red cord and sealed with a spread falcon over the tiny letters Je reviendrai. In the corner was written very small, St. Q. Smiling, he put it into the breast of his doublet.

"Monsieur," my scamp said to him with close lips that the room might not hear, "you are a gentleman. If there ever comes a day when You-know-who is down and you are up I shall be pleased to serve you as well as I have served him."

"I hanker not for such service as you have given him," M. Etienne answered. Peyrot's eyes twinkled brighter than ever.

"I have said it. I will serve you as vigorously as I have served him. Bear in mind, monsieur."

"Come, Felix," was all my lord's answer.

Peyrot sprang forward to detain us.

"Monsieur, will you not dine with me? Both of you, I beg. I will have every wine the cellar affords."

"No," said M. Etienne carelessly, not deigning to anger; "but there is my dinner for you, an you like. I have paid for it, but I have other business than to eat it."

Bidding a waiter serve M. Peyrot he walked from the room without other glance at him. A slight shade fell over the reckless, scampish face; he was a moment vexed that we scorned him. Merely vexed, I think; shamed not at all; he knew not the feel of it. Even in the brief space I watched him as I passed to the door, his visage cleared, and he sat him down contentedly to finish M. Etienne's veal broth.

My lord paced along rapidly and gladly, on fire to be before monsieur with the packet. But one little cloud, transient as Peyrot's, passed across his lightsome countenance.

"I would that knave were of my rank," he said. "I had not left him without slapping a glove in his face."

That Peyrot had come off scot-free put me out of patience too, but I answered no more,

"I will go back," M. Etienne cried, darting to the door. But monsieur laid forcible hands on him.

"Not you, Etienne. You were hurt yesterday; you have not closed your eyes for twenty-four hours. I don't want a dead son. I blame you not for the failure; not another man of us all would have come so near success."

"Dolt! I should have known he could not deal honestly," M. Etienne cried. "I should have known he would trick me. But I did not think to doubt the crest. I should have opened it there in the inn, but it was Lemaitre's sealed packet. However, Peyrot sat down to my dinner; I can be back before he has finished his three kinds of wine."

"Stop, Etienne," monsieur commanded. "I forbid you. You are gray with fatigue. Vigo shall go."

M. Etienne turned on him in fiery protest; then the blaze in his eyes flickered out and he made obedient salute.

"So be it. Let him go. I am no use; I bungle everything I touch. But he may accomplish something."

He flung himself down on the bench in the corner, burying his face in his hands, weary, chagrined, disheartened. A statue-maker might have copied him for a figure of Defeat.

I obeyed both orders with all alacrity.

I too smarted, but mine was the private's disappointment, not the general's who had planned the campaign. The credit of the rescue was none of mine; no more was the blame of failure. I need not rack myself with questioning. Had I in this or that done differently should I not have triumphed? I had done only what I was told. Yet I was part of the expedition; I could not but share the grief. If I did not wet my pillow with my tears it was because I could not keep awake long enough. Whatever my sorrows, speedily they slipped from me.

I roused with a start from deep, dreamless sleep and then wondered whether, after all, I had waked. Here, to be sure, was Marcel's bed, on which I had lain down; there was the high gable window through which the westering sun now poured. There was the wardrobe open, with Marcel's Sunday suit hanging on the peg; here were the two stools, the little image of the Virgin on the wall. But here was also something else, so out of place in the chamber of a page that I pinched myself to make sure it was real. At my elbow on the pallet lay a box of some fine foreign wood beautifully grained by God and polished by grateful man. It was about as large as my lord's despatch box, bound at the edges with shining brass and having long brass hinges wrought in a design of leaves and flowers. Beside the box were set three shallow trays lined with blue velvet and filled full of goldsmith's work—glittering chains, linked or twisted, bracelets in the form of yellow snakes with green eyes, buckles with ivory teeth, glove clasps thick with pearls, earrings and finger rings with precious stones.

I stared bedazzled from the display to him who stood as showman. This was a handsome lad, seemingly no older than I, though taller, with a shock of black hair, rough and curly and dark, smooth face, very boyish and pleasant. He was dressed well in bourgeois fashion, yet there was about him and his apparel something, I could not tell what, unfamiliar, different from us others.

He, meeting my eye, smiled in the friendliest way like a child and said in Italian:

"Good day to you, my little gentleman."

I had still the uncertain feeling that I must be in a dream, for why did an Italian jeweller be displaying his treasures to me, a penniless page? But the dream was amusing; I was in no haste to wake.

I knew my Italian well enough, for monsieur's confessor, the Father Francesco, who had followed him into exile, was Florentine; and as he always spoke his own tongue to monsieur and I was always at the duke's heels I picked up a deal of it. After monsieur's going the father, already a victim, poor man, to the falling sickness, of which he died, stayed behind with us, and I found a pricking pleasure in talking with him in the speech he loved, of monsieur's Roman journey, of his exploits in the war of the Three Henrys. Therefore the words came easily to my lips to answer the lad from over the Alps:

"I give you good day, friend."

He looked somewhat surprised and more than pleased, breaking at once into voluble speech:

"The best of greetings to you, young sir. Now, what can I sell you this fine day? I have not been half a week in this city of yours, yet already I have but one boxful of trinkets left. They are noble, open-handed customers, these gallants of Paris. I have not to show them my wares twice, I can tell you. They know what key will unlock their fair mistresses' hearts. And now, what can I sell you, my little gentleman, to buy your sweetheart's kisses?"

"Nay, I have no sweetheart," I said, "and if I had she would not wear these gauds."

"She would if she could get them, then," he retorted. "Now, let me give you a bit of advice, my friend, for I see you are but young; buy this gold chain of me, or this ring with this little dove on it—see, how cunningly wrought—and you'll not lack long for a sweetheart."

His words huffed me a bit, for he spoke as if he were vastly my senior.

"I want no sweetheart," I returned with dignity, "to be bought with gold."

"Nay," he replied quickly, "but when your own valor and prowess have inflamed her with passion you should be willing to reward her devotion and set at rest her suspense by a suitable gift."

I looked at him uneasily, for I had a suspicion that he might be making fun of me. But his countenance was as guileless as a kitten's.

"Well, I tell you again I have no sweetheart and I want no sweetheart," I said; "I have no time to bother with girls."

"The messer is very much occupied!" he asked with exceeding deference. "The messer has no leisure for trifling in boudoirs; he is occupied with great matters. Oh, that can I well believe, and I cry the messer's pardon. For when the mind is taken up with affairs of state it is distasteful to listen even for a moment to light talk of maids and jewels."

Again I eyed him challengingly; but he, with face utterly unconscious, was sorting over his treasures. I made up my mind his queer talk was but the outlandish way of a foreigner. He looked at me again, serious and respectful.

"The messer must often be engaged in great risk in perilous encounter. Is it not so? Then he will do well to carry over his heart the sacred image of our Lord."

He held up to my inspection a silver rosary from which depended a crucifix of ivory, the sad image of the dying Christ carved upon it. Even in Monsieur's chapel, even in the church at St. Quentin, was nothing so masterfully wrought as this figurine to be held in the palm of the hand. The tears started in my eyes to look at it, and I crossed myself in reverence. I bethought me how I had trampled on my crucifix; the stranger all unwittingly had struck a bull's-eye. I had committed grave offense against God, but perhaps if, putting geegaws aside, I should give my all for this cross he would call the account even. I knew nothing of the value of a carving such as this, but I remembered I was not moneyless, and I said, albeit somewhat shyly:

"I cannot take the rosary. But I would like well the crucifix. But then I have only ten pistoles."

"Ten pistoles!" he repeated contemptuously. "Corpo di Bacco! The workmanship alone is worth twenty." Then, viewing my fallen visage, he added: "However, I have received fair treatment in this house, beshrew me but I have. I have made good sales to your young count. What sort of master is he, this M. le Comte de Mar?"

"Oh, there's nobody like him," I answered, "except, of course, M. le Duc."

"Ah, then, you have two masters?" he inquired curiously, yet with a certain careless air. It struck me suddenly, overwhelmingly, that he was a spy, come here under the guise of an honest tradesman. But he should gain nothing from me.

"This is the house of the Duke of St. Quentin," I said. "Surely you could not come in at the gate without discovering that?"

"He is a very grand seigneur, then, his duke?"

"Assuredly," I replied cautiously.

"More of a man than the Comte de Mar?"

I would have told him to mind his own business had it not been for my hopes of the crucifix. If he planned to sell it to me cheap, thereby hoping to gain information, marry, I saw no reason why I should not buy it at his price—and withhold the information. So I made civil answer:

"They are both as gallant gentlemen as any living. About this cross, now"——

"Oh, yes," he answered at once, accepting with willingness—well feigned, I thought—the change of topic. You can give me ten pistoles, say you? 'Tis making you a present of the treasure. Yet, since I have received good treatment at the hands of your master, I will e'en give it to you. You shall have your cross."

With suspicions now at point of certainty I drew out my pouch from under my pillow and counted into his hand the ten pieces which were my store. My rosary I drew out likewise; I had broken it when I shattered the cross, but one of the inn maids had tied it together for me with a thread, and it served very well. The Italian unhooked the delicate carving from the silver chain and hung it on my wooden one, which I threw over my neck, vastly pleased with my new possession. Marcel's Virgin was a botch compared with it. I remembered that mademoiselle, who had given me half my wealth, the half that won me the rest, had bidden me buy something in the marts of Paris; and I told myself with pride that she could not fail to hold me high did she know how, passing by all vanities, I had spent my whole store for a holy image. Few boys of my age would be capable of the like. Certes I had done piously and should now take a further pious joy, my purchase safe on my neck, in thwarting the wiles of this serpent. I would play with him awhile, tease and baffle him, before handing him over in triumph to Vigo.

Sure enough, he began as I had expected:

"This M. de Mar downstairs, he is a very good master, I suppose?"

"Yes," I said without enthusiasm.

"He has always treated you well?"

I bethought myself of the trick I had played successfully with the officer of the burgess guard.

"Why, yes, I suppose so. I have only known him two days."

"But you have known him well? You have seen much of him?" he demanded with ill-concealed eagerness.

"But not so very much," I made tepid answer. "I have not been with him all the time of these two days. I have seen really very little of him."

"And you know not whether or no he be a good master?"

"Oh, pretty good. So-so."

He sprang forward to deal me a stinging box on the ear.

I was out of bed at one bound, scattering the trinkets in a golden rain and rushing for him. He retreated before me. It was to save his jewels, but I, fool that I was, thought it pure fear of me. I dashed at him, all headlong confidence; the next I knew he had somehow twisted his foot between mine and tripped me before I could grapple. Never was wight more confounded to find himself on the floor.

I was starting up again unhurt when I saw something that made me forget my purpose. I sat still where I was, with dropped jaw and bulging eyes. For his hair, that had been black, was golden.

"Ventre bleu!" I said.

"And so you know not, you little villain, whether you have a good master or not?"

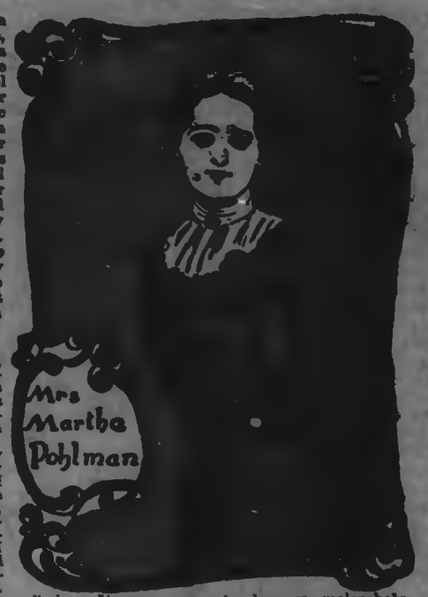
A TRAINED NURSE

After Years of Experience, Advises Women in Regard to Their Health.



Mrs. Martha Pohlman of 55 Chester Avenue, Newark, N. J., who is a graduate Nurse from the Blockley Training School at Philadelphia, and for six years Chief Clinic Nurse at the Philadelphia Hospital, writes the letter printed below. She has the advantage of personal experience, besides her professional education and what she has to say may be absolutely relied upon.

Many other women are afflicted as she was. They can regain health in the same way. It is prudent to heed such advice from such a source.

Mrs. Pohlman writes:

"I am firmly persuaded, after eight years of experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that it is the safest and best medicine for any suffering woman to use.

"Immediately after my marriage I found that my health began to fail me. I became weak and pale, with severe bearing-down pains, fearful backaches and frequent dizzy spells. The doctors prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I would bloat after eating and frequently become nauseated. I had pains down through my limbs so I could hardly walk. It was as bad a case of female trouble as I have ever known. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, however, cured me within four months. Since that time I have had occasion to recommend it to a number of patients suffering from all forms of female difficulties, and I find that while it is considered unprofessional to recommend a patent medicine, I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I have found that it cures female ills, where all other medicine fails. It is a grand medicine for sick women."

Money cannot buy such testimony as this—merit alone can produce such results, and the ablest specialists now agree that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most universally successful remedy for all female diseases known to medicine.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of the female organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

The needless suffering of women from diseases peculiar to their sex is terrible to see. The money which they pay to doctors who do not help them is an enormous waste. The pain is cured and the money is saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is well for women who are ill to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., The present Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, her assistant for many years before her decease, and for twenty-five years since her advice has been freely given to sick women. In her great experience, which covers many years, she has probably had to deal with dozens of cases just like yours. Her advice is strictly confidential.

CARD OF THANKS

November 4th, 1907

MESSRS. DAVIS-THOMPSON COMPANY, Limited,
Agents Royal Insurance Co., City

DEAR SIRS:—

I beg to acknowledge the receipt this morning of cheque covering the amount appraised as our loss in the recent fire in our premises. Although it is practically only one week since the fire occured, we are already in receipt of the cash.

Such prompt settlement does yourselves and Companies represented, the greatest credit. I might state that our loss was settled in a manner most satisfactory to us in every respect, and I appreciate the interest taken by yourselves personally in connection therewith.

Yours truly,

W. G. MORROW, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $2000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $2000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerably more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. B. STRATTON.

HIS OWN JAILER.

Should the Goolds be extradited to Monaco and tried, one wonders what would happen to them in the event of their being found guilty of wilful murder by the Monegasque court, and, in uniformity with the law, sentenced to death, writes Irene Osgood, in The London Daily Mail. Monaco has no guillotine and no executioner, and indeed no arrangements for dealing with criminals.

It is the place to recall the amusing story told by Maupassant about a murderer who was tried, convicted and sentenced to death in Monte Carlo. The authorities asked France to loan them M. Deibler and his little instrument, the "red widow." The French Government consented to oblige for the consideration of $5,000. The prince thought this too dear, and so applied to his brother in Italy. Italy offered to do the thing, all included, for $3,000. This again was found too dear. "The man is not worth it," said the Monegasque authorities.

So the sentence of death was commuted to one of life imprisonment. But there was no prison in Monaco, and a jail had to be created for the express purpose of confiding this murderer, and a jailer had to be appointed. This state of things lasted for some months, and then the jailer died.

The authorities at Monte Carlo, when considering the appointment of his successor, came to the conclusion that the man, the one prisoner, was costing the state a great deal of money. So a commission visited him, and told him that in future he would be required to act as his own jailer. He grumbled a bit at this increase of sentence, but complied. His meals used to be sent down to him from one of the hotels of the town, but one day the scullion who brought him his dinner did not turn up in time, and so the prisoner walked up to the hotel and took his meal there. After that he got into the habit of going up to the hotel for his meals; then, after a stroll on the front, he used to return to his prison and shut himself in.

But again the authorities found that he was costing them too much, and so one day they called him up and told him that they were sick of seeing him about the place and that he must clear out. He emphatically refused to do anything of the kind. "You sentenced me to penal servitude for life," he argued, "and I expect to work out my sentence. I have no means of earning a livelihood since you created all the bother, and it is to you that I look for my sustenance."

To cut a long story short, the Principality of Monaco was obliged to settle an annuity of 600 francs ($120) a year upon the convict before he would consent to accept his freedom and leave the country. As soon as this was arranged he took up his abode in a little cottage just over the Monaco border.

This is a true story, and the document fixing the man's pension, together with details about the payments, may be seen in the Monaco Archives.

The late Prince de Monaco was fond of telling this story in Parisian drawing-rooms, and, if I remember aright, I heard it on the same occasion as did the late Guy de Maupassant.

BEAU AND BURGLAR.

"Raffles" in Real Life Who Made $75,000 a Year.

The most amazing cracksman in Europe, the exact prototype in real life of "Raffles," has been arrested at Munich after a series of burglaries probably unequalled in modern criminal history by one man. He is a Swede, Carlsson by name, who prepared himself for his career as a burglar by serving an apprenticeship as a locksmith. Since then he has posed as a nobleman, an author, a millionaire, and a diplomatist, with consummate skill, living in princely style in Berlin, Munich, Paris, Vienna and other cities under different names and in different disguises. All the time he has lived by the most daring burglaries, usually at hotels, although at times he was not averse from looting the private residence of a millionaire or an art connoisseur. He has changed his role and his address according to necessity, and avoided arrest with great skill, although the best detectives in Europe have been searching for him for months. Carlsson is described as a man of "very gentlemanly" appearance, with refined tastes, and pronounced artistic and literary inclinations. He was a great favorite among women, who were charmed by his exquisite manners. Carlsson was noted for his taste in dress, and while living in Vienna in the guise of a diplomat on leave he is said to have inaugurated a new fashion in neckties. When arrested, Carlsson was staying at the most fashionable hotel in Munich, where he occupied an expensive suite, and posed as a Danish nobleman of great wealth. The police found $7,500 in his possession, in addition to jewelry valued at $15,000. It is estimated says the Berlin correspondent of the "Express," that his annual income from burglaries averaged $75,000 during the past ten years. Carlsson took his arrest philosophically, and threatens to write his memoirs while in prison.

Oratory In Hay Loft.

The Pope has decided a dispute between Right Rev. Dr. Brindle, Roman Catholic Bishop of Nottingham, England, and Rev. Father Meenagh, a priest in his diocese, in favor of the priest.

Some time ago Alfred Wright, of Swanswick Grange, near Alfreton, opened a private oratory in a disused hayloft, and allowed it to be used for public celebration of mass. Father Meenagh protested, as it was injuring the attendance at his church, but the bishop took no notice of his protest, and a few days after held a confirmation service in the hayloft oratory.

The Pope has now decided that the obligation to attend mass on Sunday is not satisfied by attendance at a private oratory.

Thugges In Northwest.

Joseph Pesequan, or "Fiddler," a Cree chief, has just been sentenced to death for the murder of his young kinswoman, Wa-sak-apee-quay, near Sandy Lake, in September, 1906.

"Fiddler" was the head of a band of stranglers who were the priests of the horrible superstition of We-te-go, which teaches the Crees that persons who die while they are delirious or insane return to earth as vampires and fatten on the blood of babes.

Wa-sak-apee-quay was ill of a fever, and her kinsmen—Eyelids the Owl and his brother, and Joseph and Jack Pesequan—carried her from the tribal wigwam to a clump of willows. Eyelids and his brother held the woman's arms while the Pesequans placed a band of linen round her neck and tugged at it until she was dead. Then Eyelids took the body away and buried it in the sand, while the woman's husband sat by in silence.

Both the Pesequans were arrested by two constables of the Northwest Mounted Police, who tracked them for 800 miles to bring them to justice. Only Joseph was tried, however, for

All Druggists; 50c. and $1.00.

Jack Pesequan, against whom there was evidence of twenty murders, strangled himself in the yard of the police barracks at Norway House. He was more than seventy years old.

The jury found "Fiddler" guilty, and when he was asked if he had anything to say, the old man made a very intelligent address, in which he acknowledged his guilt and begged for mercy.

It is probable that the death sentence will be carried out, as it is feared that if a reprieve is granted the hideous cult of We-te-go will continue to flourish.

"I Trust You."

"I owe my salvation to three words you spoke," he wrote. "When all the world was against me you said, 'I trust you.'"

If every boy or girl who has made mistakes and gone astray could have such a friend a great many of them would return to a normal life. The feeling that somebody believes in us, trusts us, no matter what others believe or say, touches the heart. Criminals are sometimes totally reformed through the consciousness that somebody still believes in them, no matter how low they may have fallen. Could we realize how much this trust and confidence would do for a man when everything else has failed we should be more generous of our confidence in our fellows.—Success Magazine.

No Decoration Required.

It was Mr. Hobart's first experience with waffles, and he liked the taste of them. When he had been served twice he called the waiter to him and spoke confidentially.

"I'm from Peterville," he said, "and we're plain folks there. Don't care much for style, but we know good food when we get it. I want another plateful o' those cakes, but you tell the cook she needn't stop to put that fancy printing on 'em; just send 'em along plain."

Terrible Fate.

There is something which will appeal to every American in the horror of a fate invoked upon Henry James, Sr., by his son, the novelist, and recorded in the letters of E. L. Godkin. The young man had been worsted in argument and exclaimed:

"Thou may your mashed potatoes always have lumps in them!"—Youth's Companion.

SELECTING A HUSBAND.

Capture Him While He Is Still Young, Docile and Plastic.

Because it is the duty of every woman to marry some man it by no means follows that she is deprived of the privilege of making acute discrimination. On the contrary, to fulfill her mission as completely as possible she should exercise the greatest care in selecting a mate. Time was when she had no say in the matter, and in some countries she has little or none today, but in this happily civilized land she still possesses and will undoubtedly hold for all time the right first to choose and then ensnare. It is a noble prerogative—one, in our judgment, that should be appreciated and cherished above all others. And yet, as we have observed, it should be exercised with caution. Let nothing be left to chance, as Plato would have had it when he decreed that pairing should be done by lot. While old overmuch, be at least particular in order that the egg chosen may feel honored by the distinction conferred upon him and so be the more readily induced to show his undying gratefulness.

Much that was thought and written years ago on how to choose a wife was good enough for the time, but the recent reversal of the relative attitudes of sexes and sought renders it valueless. Nevertheless, despite the fact that in considering the points to be heeded and the precautions to be observed by womankind we find ourselves in a fallow field, certain general principles may be regarded as established. It is best, for example, to capture a husband while he is still young, docile and plastic. Preferably also he should be in love. He may then be trained after the manner best calculated to serve the convenience of her for whom thenceforth he must and should toil.—George Harvey in North American Review.

NEW IRISH LIGHTHOUSE.

Erected on Fastnet Rock and Has 750,000 Candle Power.

The new lighthouse recently completed on the Fastnet Rock, a small pinnacle off the southeast corner of the coast of Ireland, is not the latest example of lighthouse construction on a wave-washed rock, but the most expensive tower ever erected, having cost no less than $420,000. It has been built by the Irish Lights Board, and is one of the most important beacons on our coasts. The rock lies in the direct route for Atlantic shipping passing the south of Ireland, and is thus a danger which it is of the utmost importance to light adequately.

The plans for the lighthouse were drawn up and the work put in hand by Mr. William Douglass, engineer to the Irish Lights Board. He was forced, however, to retire through ill-health before it was completed, when his first lieutenant, Mr. C. W. Scott, took over the entire responsibility and finished the undertaking.

The new light house displaces the old cast-iron tower. This latter was 91 feet high, and stood on the summit of the rock. It was not long, however, before it was discovered that the cast-iron tower was not stable enough to withstand the severe buffetings of the waves to which the rock is subjected. The Fastnet is exposed to the full fury of the Atlantic during south and northwest gales. The waves often dashed over the top of the lantern, 173 feet above the normal level of the sea. On one occasion a full cup of coffee standing on the table in the top room was thrown to the floor when a heavy wave thundered against the rock and submerged the tower. Under this continual pounding large masses of rock was dislodged from the pinnacle, undermining the tower. From time to time this erosion was repaired, until at last Mr. Douglass decided to replace the structure by a more modern one of stone.

The granite of which the lighthouse is built came from the quarries in Cornwall. Altogether 2,074 stones were worked into the structure, ranging from 1 3-4 to 3 tons apiece in weight, and representing a total weight of 4,360 tons. The entrance door to the tower is 67 feet 9 inches above high-water mark. To keep out the storm the keepers can close the heavy teak door and let down over it a heavy gun-metal casing.

The lantern which caps the masonry tower is of the very latest pattern by Chance, of Birmingham. It is of the dioptric type, and the light is derived from a series of incandescent burners, giving a power of 1,200 candles. The power of the rays thrown from the 1,200 candle-power burners is intensified by the lenses to some 750,0000 candle-power. The light is brilliantly white, closely resembling the beam projected by an electric searchlight. This single flash recurs every five seconds, the duration of the flash being about three-twenty-fifths of a second.

KING AND BELLRINGER.

His Majesty Shows Interest in Veteran's Record.

Mr. Henry Ellis, of Newtown, Huddersfield, has just celebrated his jubilee as a change bellringer at the Huddersfield parish church. This fact and interesting particulars of his remarkable career were forwarded to the King, through the Home Secretary, by Mr. John Morton, chief constable of Huddersfield, who is sidesman at the church.

In reply Mr. Morton had received the following letter:

Sir,—I am directed by the Secretary of State to acquaint you that he has laid before the King your letter of the 16th inst., in regard to the long services of Henry Ellis as bellringer at Huddersfield Parish Church, and to say that His Majesty was interested in learning particulars of Ellis's career.—I am, sir, your obedient servant, W. P. Byrne.

Mr. Ellis is 75 years of age, having been born in Manchester in 1832. He is now almost blind, but still rings, constant use enabling him the judge the position of the ropes. He first entered the tower of Huddersfield Parish Church in 1847, but was not engaged as a paid ringer until 1856, when on ringing his first peal of eight bells he was admitted into the Society of Change-ringers.

Mr. Ellis and his brother William have their names inscribed in Huddersfield parish church tower as having rung 5,000 changes.

Henry has also rung a like number on the fine Lindley peal also at Brighouse and Selby Abbey. He has won first prizes at change-ringing contests at Almondbury, Liversedge, Sowerby-on-the-Hill, and Wakefield Cathedral, and has rung peals in York Minster, Ashton-under-Lyne, Oldham, Blackpool, Grimsby, and other places. As an old change-ringer he won first prizes at Dewsbury, Batley, Milfield, and many other towns in Yorkshire and Lancashire.

Among the remarkable feats he has accomplished are ringing the Christmas hymn on fifty Christmas eves, a peal on fifty birthdays of the late Queen Victoria and on her two Jubilees, and on the birthdays, marriage, and coronation of King Edward.

A Sinister Stone.

Upon the question of repairing a pavement at Swanage, England, being raised it was elicited at a meeting of the Urban Council that one of the stones was used by Judge Jeffreys for the Bloody Assize, several of the condemned prisoners being hanged on the gallows from the stone, which had been taken from its original position and placed in the pavement about 50 years ago. The council readily consented to hand it over to a local gentleman who desired to restore the stone as near as possible to its original position, so that it might be preserved as a memorial, not of Judge Jeffreys, it was explained, but of the "delightful times in which some of our forefathers lived."

If We Could Look at the Heart of a Pale-Faced Person!

Few people ever stop to consider what pallor to the countenance means. In the first place it indicates an absence from the blood of the rich, red, life-giving elements so requisite to health; and in the second place it indicates a weakened heart action. These two things act and re-act. If we could look at the heart of one of these pale-faced people, we would see it flabby, weak and pallid. No wonder they are easily tired, get out of breath quickly, have palpitation, are nervous and downhearted. Their muscles are poor, their stomach disordered, and their lives are seldom free from misery.

Let them take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills; there is no remedy to equal them for making pale faces rosy, weak hearts and shaky nerves strong, flabby muscles firm, and inflowing new hope and ambition into life.

Mr. W. J. Churchill, Lombardy, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for three years with a weak heart and nervousness. I could not sleep and even so little food would distress me. I also had faint and dizzy spells, and doctored with three doctors but was growing worse. After taking three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I feel as well as ever I did. They are the best pills on earth."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Grinding, binding, blistering Insides

Foot-rite Easy Insides

The feet work harder than any part of the body. They must walk long distances behind the plow or on fatiguing city pavements, stand many tedious hours behind counter or before bench, or endure irksome confinements under desk or machine.

Do they deserve kind treatment? Yes! Do they get it? No! Man is kind to horses' feet—cruel to his own. He shoes his horse with skill and care to insure perfect comfort, but shoes himself with any old shoes—shoes that squeeze, pinch, deform and blister his feet.

If you want to be kind to your faithful, burden-bearing, hard-toiling feet, we'll tell you how. Call on the Foot-rite retailer. Don't be timid. You will find his door swinging inward but never outward to find a more welcome store. Let him fit you with a pair of Foot-rites. You'll find something unusual about their insides. You'll find your feet feeling almost as free, unconfined and comfortable as unshod feet. Why? Because Foot-rites are built with Easy Insides.

The Easy Insides are constructed with supple Normal-Calfskin in the uppers to give the feet a soft, soothing covering. With wrinkleless uppers free from hard, stiff creases which rub and grind the foot's top surface with emery-like roughness. With an inside shape that's the precise shape of your foot, due to the Foot-sculptured Last over which the inside was molded. And with a lot of other easy inside devices such as Toe-Freedom Unstallapable Box Toes, Heel-Comforting Counters, Hurtless Instep Seams, Ivory-like Insoles, and "Won't Blister" Hooks and Eyes.

Anywhere in America, Canada or Great Britain—$4.00, $5.00 and $6.00.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST

HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

ALL RUN DOWN

Weak---Nervous---Unstrung.

Thousands get run down and become invalids before they realize anything is wrong. By permitting low vitality to develop, the way is paved for fevers, pneumonia and diphtheria. To put off makes it all the harder to get well. The time to repair the system is right now, before the damage gets any worse. The remedy is Ferrozone; it revitalizes, renews, builds up vitality that outlasts old age.

FERROZONE is a genuine invigorator that banishes weakness, and instils surplus force and vigor into every organ of the body. Ferrozone sharpens the appetite, produces rich nutritious blood, and thereby contributes that sense of buoyancy that adds so enormously to one's pleasure and usefulness in life.

For all forms of debility, weakness, lack of blood or nerve tone, sleeplessness, tiredness and exhaustion, there is no medicine so vitalizing and potent as Ferrozone. Even one trial demonstrates its rapidly and certainty of action.

To restore the energy of youth, to get back your vital stamina and reserve force, there is positively no treatment so certain as Ferrozone. You have only to try Ferrozone to know the enormous benefit it invariably brings to all in poor health.

FERROZONE

Miss Dorothy B. Ladue of Chester gives the following convincing evidence of Ferrozone's power:—"My work compels me to rise early in the morning and work ten hours daily as a caterer. Last Spring I was run down, lost my color, and fell off in weight. I seemed to lack ambition and the life went out of me. A friend recommended Ferrozone, and I took one tablet after meals with wonderful results. Ferrozone brought back my complexion, and has given me new strength and abundance of energy and spirits. I would advise all young ladies to use Ferrozone."

Mrs. H. G. Winter of Dorset says:—"My daughter was not very well last Winter, and lost her strength completely when the Spring came. I gave her Ferrozone, and am glad to say it did wonders. After six boxes were used my daughter was rosy, and looked the picture of health."

Gave New Strength

WARNING—Beware of any substitute for Ferrozone; it alone can cure you. Sold by all druggists and dealers in medicine, only in 50c boxes containing 50 chocolate-coated tablets. By mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

MINERAL POISONS DO NOT CURE

A great deal of harm results from the use of mineral poisons, particularly the mercurial poisons, such as calomel, or pills containing calomel. Many people do not understand the action of these poisons. The fact is that when a person is bilious or constipated, it is an evidence that the cells of the body are enervated or weakened. The taking of calomel stimulates the cells to temporary activity, in the attempt to throw off the poison, just as, even a weak person in great danger, is capable of surprising strength and activity. This is always followed, however by complete exhaustion when the danger is past. So it is with these poisons. The cells while temporarily stimulated, get eventually weakened and the trouble is aggravated. The proper method is to feed the cells, to supply them with nourishment, and this is best accomplished by the vegetable remedies Nature has provided. The most perfect combination of these is found in King Palmetto Compound, composed of Saw Palmetto, Corn Silk, Cascara Sagrada, Couch "Grass, Golden Seal and Senna. No secret, just plain common sense, but scientifically prepared from absolutely pure ingredients. For Constipation, Biliousness, Sick Headache and a generally run down condition, King Palmetto Compound is better for you than pills or the virulent poisons. It purifies the blood and strengthens while it cures. If taken in time, King Palmetto Compound will prevent the development of the incurable diseases arising from impure blood, such as Bright's Disease and Chronic Rheumatism. Price $1.00 per bottle. AN HISTORIC LANDMARK.

Famous Old Church at Longue Pointe Now a Ruin.

Three miles below Montreal the island shore reaches out into the river like a tongue. Longue Pointe it is called, and here many years ago grew up a little village which, after the manner of French Canada, consisted of one long street from which in time a number of smaller streets branched off at right angles and ran down to the high bank of the St. Lawrence. Like the streets of early French-Canadian villages, and like those of their cities too, these streets are narrow and all the buildings huddled together. This, no doubt, was suggested by the safety afforded by proximity in the days when Iroquois ever lurking on the outskirts of Canadian settlements in quest of Frenchmen's scalps.

Down by the river and within a stone's throw of the ship channel, which here runs close to the island shore, there was built in 1720 a little church which, until a few days ago, stood a landmark in the history of this port of Canada. During thirty-one years under the paternal protection of the flag of the Bourbons mass had been celebrated within its walls; and during almost a century and a half it had continued to be the religious centre of the parishioners of Longue Pointe after they had passed from French to British allegiance.

To-day the church is in ruins, fire having destroyed its interior and roof, and left standing only its solid walls of masonry three feet thick. The old church at Longue Pointe is now a thing of the past.

With the exception of the spire, which was a modern innovation, the little church was almost severely plain, but it was not lacking in picturesqueness, almost everything about the building suggesting a bit of the old regime lingering in an eddy close to and yet wholly apart from the current of modern life. From its door the smoke of a great city could be seen a few miles distant, and on every summer day the puffing of ocean steamships on their way to and from the Old World was borne in through its windows and mingled with the chanting and prayers of those who worshipped there. Close to the church is the priest's manse, surrounded by a well-tilled garden in which vegetables and old-fashioned flowers were quaintly mingled.

Longue Pointe has a place in our history, for here came to a sudden and rather ignominious end the first attempt of the Americans to capture Montreal. The guiding spirit of that exploit was Ethan Allen, the hero of Vermont—that heady Yankee, as Mr. Bradley calls him in his life of Lord Dorchester, who during the war of the American Revolution presided over the destines of Canada. Having captured by surprise the little garrison at Fort Ticonderoga, on Lake Champlain, Ethan Allen planned to forestall Gen. Montgomery by "rushing" Montreal. Down Lake Champlain and the Richelieu river he proceeded, and then with a little band marched overland to the south shore of the St. Lawrence.

On the night of the 24th of September, 1775, with about 150 men he crossed to Longue Pointe, from whence he intended on the morrow to march upon and capture Montreal.

In the morning the presence of the invaders was discovered by a habitant, who at once hastened to the city and gave the alarm.

A band of militia, reinforced by 60 regulars of the city garrison, promptly marched down to Longue Pointe, and after a scattering fight in skirmish order the invaders were repulsed and scattered, Allen and 35 of his followers being captured. When that little battle was fought the Longue Pointe church had been standing 46 years.

The church will be rebuilt, but it is quite unlikely that the old structure will be restored. A larger and a wholly modern building will take its place, but the old site will be used, and a larger edifice looking out upon the St. Lawrence will remind incoming sailors that they are approaching the end of their voyage.

The Little Blue Bead.

Nowhere in all West Canada do the waters of romance lie deeper than a generation. So that the imagination of the Westerner, be he farmer, rancher, merchant, or real estate dealer, is never athirst. The farmer breaks a patch of virgin prairie, and the plow turns up a dreadful of white bones; and hard by he sees the "wallow" or shallow depression in which the mighty dead, a lord of the Northern buffalo herd, took his last dust-bath. The rancher, riding towards the foot-hills on a round-up, chances on a place where stones have been laid in a wide circle. Here was, in olden days, a city of the Blackfoot nation; each fragment of rock was once the hearthstone in a tepee thronged with the voices of men, women, and children. These stones are half-sunken in the praire; in another century they will have sunk out of sight. The rancher's keen sunbleached eyes, focused in a frown, discern a point of blue gleaming in the grey-green expanse. He dismounts and picks up a little blue bead about one-quarter of an inch in diameter. To-day his three-year-old daughter wears it in her coral necklace—so that the long day's work of the Indian artificer has not been wasted. Who was the first to wear it? And who shall be the last?—Canada.

AN APPEAL TO CANADA.

Mr. Wilfrid Campbell has written what a Toronto editor calls "a sadly-needed poem calling upon his countrymen to cleanse the land of the political impurity that has been a national reproach. Affection and rebuke unite in this appeal."

O dream in vain your future power,
And build in vain your heart's high tower:
O Canada, my own, my own.
When you have sold the olden truth,
That greatness which inspired thy youth,

O splendid dream of plain and lake,
When will you from this curse awake,
And with new-kindled honor take
Your place with those who guide the helm
Of Britain's mighty people realm?
When will you, raised to that regard
Of self, above the market yard
Of life's low levels hold your share
In Britain's mighty wide-world care?
O Canada, my own, my own!

O wide thy lands and wide thy sky,
Canada, my own, my own,
But wider yet the living lie
That we have lived, my own, my own;
Let us arise from our old graves
Of self and ill, as o'er the waves
God's dawn from night, to that which saves
Canada, my own, my own.
Rise and strike the shackles free,
That bind us lip and heart and knee,
And be what God dreamed we should be,
Canada, my own, my own;
Loved Canada, my own!

WOULD BENEFIT CRIMINALS.

Judge McMahon Favors the Indeterminate Sentence For Prisoners.

A strong plea for the indeterminate sentence was made by Justice MacMahon, in his address to the Grand Jury, at the opening of the recent Criminal Assizes of the High Court at Toronto.

"In 1869, I addressed the June Assizes on the subject of the indeterminate sentence, strongly recommending it," said his lordship. "I have received a letter from Mr. Hartley, from the Central Prison, who has been for 11 years one of the guards. He tells me that his experience has shown him that it is a most valuable measure. It has a most salutory effect on youthful prisoners. A prisoner is sentenced for a maximum period, beyond which he cannot be detained; if he conducts himself properly he may be released before this period is over. Thus, a prisoner's future is made dependent on his own good conduct, and in his fitness to return to society. It fits the punishment to the criminal, not to the crime. Police officers think that so long as prisoners display criminal tendencies it is not safe to allow them to return to society, as must be done when the determinate sentence is imposed.

"Then there is another advantage in the indeterminate sentence; it will prevent much of the overcrowding of our jails. Many times the Toronto jail is crowded to a disgraceful degree, simply because prisoners cannot be transferred from there to the Central Prison, because of the crowding of that institution. Were the undeterminate sentence, with its maximum period, imposed, criminals would be sent to the penitentiary at once. There would not be such a surplus of 18-months and two-year sentences as there are now."

His lordship went on to point out that there were three objects to be attained in sentencing a prisoner. First, there was the punishment of the offender, then there was the reformation of that offender, and lastly the protection of society from the criminal. The dominant idea in sentencing a criminal ought to be that protection thus afforded to society, but a judge should think of how to benefit the criminal as well.

SURROUNDED BY WOLVES.

G. Moren, a Fur-Trader, Had an Eventful Trip Down.

G. Moren, an independent trader from Lesser Slave Lake, has arrived in Edmonton with a pack of furs. His trip down was an eventful one.

"I came down all alone," he said, "and made the whole journey in a wagon over the new Government road. I followed the north side of the river all the way, and the second day noticed signs of wolves. On making camp that night I heard them, and immediately built a great fire to keep them away. It was only a short while till I heard their growls, and, from the restlessness of my horse, knew they were near at hand. The horse I had tied with a strong piece of rope, but it was not strong enough to hold the animal, for he snapped it as if it were a shoestring, and immediately I saw if I did not secure him I would be minus a horse, so I put a chain around his neck and chained him.

"Sitting within the firelight and gazing around in the bushes, I counted nine different pair of eyes that glowed like jewels, so there must have been nearly a dozen wolves. The scarcity of small game this summer has made them ravenous, and they are very brave."

Pays After Thirty Years.

A Woodstock newspaper tells the story of a case in which a woman's conscience awakened after thirty years and she paid into the customs office the duty on a dress which she brought into the country when she came here as a young woman. The dress was worth $30, and the thoughts of defrauding the customs lay heavily on the woman's conscience all these years, she told the customs officials, so she decided to make recompense. She insisted that she be allowed to pay $30, the full value of the dress, but the customs officer would only accept $10.50, which is the amount of the duty according to present rates. The dress was brought here from the old country.

Boo.

Boo, the exclamation used to frighten children, is a corruption of Bob, the name of a famous Gothic general. It has been used as a terror word for many centuries.

"My Hair is Longer and Thicker than Ever Before"

This recent photograph of Miss Bessie Woodruff, of Powell, Pa., is certainly strong proof of the value of

Newbro's Herpicide

Here is Miss Woodruff's letter: "Newbro's Herpicide is a delightful hair dressing, and I find by its continued use that my hair is growing longer and thicker than ever before." (Signed) Bessie Woodruff.

A Toronto Lady writes that she is delighted with the results from Newbro's Herpicide: "I have used Herpicide according to directions and can highly recommend it. It stops falling hair, allays itching and keeps the scalp clean. I am delighted with it and cannot praise it too highly." (Signed) Mrs. A. E. Aylesworth.

It is so easy to learn, by actual experience, the value of Newbro's Herpicide for dandruff, falling hair, itching scalp., etc., that no one in need of it should delay one moment in making the test.

A single application is enough to convey the impression of its worth, while the results of its continued intelligent use will speak for themselves.

Newbro's Herpicide is known as the ORIGINAL remedy that "kills the dandruff germ," and its success, which is constantly increasing, has been phenomenal. Remember that permanent success is not built upon false claims. Get a bottle or send for a sample of Herpicide to-day. There are hundreds of imitations which should be avoided.

GREAT CAVE SYSTEM.

New Canadian Reserve Contains Many Big Limestone Caverns.

The Dominion Government has set apart as a national park the wonderful region at the summit of the Selkirks. It embraces the great glacier which thousands of tourists visit every year, scores of other glaciers and many of the loftiest mountains in the Canadian domain.

A new wonder in this region was discovered in 1904 near the centre of the park. It is a series of limestone caves whose windings have been explored for four thousand feet.

An extensive cave area exists beyond that which has been explored. What is known to-day of the cave region is told in an article by A. O. Wheeler in the annual report of the Surveyor General of Canada.

This cave region is to be opened to tourists. It is only about six miles from Glacier, the nearest station on the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

A good trail has been cut and a road is to be built between Glacier and the caves. In the caves ladders have been placed and paths roped in; plank walks are to be built across rough places and in other ways the visit to the caves is to be made comfortable and convenient.

It is still rough work, for steep climbing is required to reach the region, and none but seasoned pedestrians can explore the caves and make the round trip from Glacier in a day. A camp has been established at the caves in which visitors may comfortably spend the night.

The caves were discovered by C. H. Deutschman in May, 1904, while he was hunting big game and prospecting for minerals. It was a year before anything was done to ascertain their extent and character.

Deutschman has done most of the exploring. Mr. Wheeler calls him a remarkable man, and what he says about the work Deutschman has done without assistance shows that he is devoid of fear.

Time and again he has descended into these caves alone. He has penetrated, depths of blackest darkness, illumined only by the ray of a tallow dip. Added to the darkness in which he often groped his way was the roar of subterranean torrents.

He has crossed huge cracks and made descents in pitch darkness when a misstep would have meant death. Wheeler says that now the ladders are in position and guard ropes set up it is difficult to realize how Deutschman made his pioneer journeys in these caverns.

The best light thus far provided during the surveys and explorations has been from acetylene lamps, which have proved very serviceable.

The caverns occur at this place only because here is a limestone deposit, though this rock is rare in the Selkirks. As one walks along in the valley of Cougar Creek he will discover that the roaring mountain torrent suddenly disappears in the earth and away below he will find the place where it comes to the surface again.

One will find other streams where similar phenomena occur. He will see in the distance a beautiful waterfall, 60 feet high, and as he approaches will be surprised to find that its waters do not flow away, but sink where they fall into a great hole and disappear into the subterranean regions.

These underground waterways are the exception and not the rule in the Selkirks and the main range of the Rockies. Quite large streams of the kind have been found in the main range of the Rocky Mountains.

Another curious phenomenon is observed. No matter how warm the day may be as one wanders among these mountains, he may come to more than one place where a cold shaft of wind strikes him.

If he looks for the cause he will find a crack in the rock through which comes a current of air like that produced by an electric fan, but much stronger. The air comes from somewhere in the interior of the mountain. These air currents gave the first intimation of the existence of the caves.

The streams of water for ages dug into the limestone and wore it away. The floors of some of the caves are now 250 feet below the surface.

Here and there the waters, swinging from side to side for centuries, wore away broad surfaces, so that the caves are wide; then something caused them to flow along a narrow track till they dug out deep beds for themselves, and to-day they roar scores of feet below the general level of the floor.

Scattered here and there over the floor are enormous blocks of rock salt which in the opinion of a mining engineer fell from the roof; Mr. Wheeler is of the opinion that something as potent as an earthquake must be necessary to detach them from the rock wall.

In places the waters have excavated side channels, making connections with other underground passages. Some of these lateral openings are so low that they can be traversed only by crawling.

Nature did not have the comfort of the tourist in mind when she dug these caverns, and a great deal must yet be done before they can be comfortable traversed.

These caverns are very different from the great show caves of the United States. The decorations that make the glory of Luray are wanting. A few stalactites are found, pure white in color, but the largest is only eighteen inches long.

The Milky Way.

The milky appearance of the great belt in the sky known as the Galaxy, or Milky Way, is owing to the blended light of countless multitudes of stars, each doubtless a sun to some planetary system. Sir William Herschell estimated that at one portion of the Milky Way 116,000 stars passed through the field of the telescope in a quarter of an hour and on another occasion 258,000 stars in forty minutes.

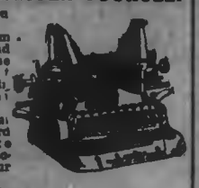
YOU CAN EASILY OPERATE THIS TYPEWRITER YOURSELF



Don't worry your correspondent.

Don't write him anything by hand that takes him time to make out—he may leave him in doubt, that he can't easily read.

And don't fill out legal papers or card memos—or make out accounts or hotel menus in your own hand writing.

It looks bad reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and sometimes ambiguous.

If you can write out your letters—make out an indent—fill in an insurance policy—enter your card memo—make out your accounts, or note memo—or do any kind of writing you need, on any kind, size or thickness of paper, and spaced any way you want on

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer.

For you can easily learn with a little practice to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly as an expert operator on the Oliver. Because the Oliver is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 50% more durable than any other typewriter, because it has about 50% less wearing points than most other typewriters.

50% easier to write with than these other complicated, intricate machines that require "humouring"—much foal knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate.

Than machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance policies, or odd-size documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring expert to operate.

You can adjust the Oliver to any reasonable space—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clear.

For the Oliver is the typewriter for the doctor the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant the hotel proprietor—or any man that does his own writing.

WARSHIPS AT NIGHT.

The routine of life on a battleship at night will interest boys who have a nautical bent.

The "first call" is sounded five minutes before sundown, when the ensign and the jack halyards are manned and a stay light made ready for hoisting to indicate the ship's whereabouts during the night. Then the color call follows at sundown as the flag is lowered and saluted by all as it reaches the deck. The assembly is then sounded for evening quarters and muster, but there is no drill.

As a rule, it is just after sunset when the bugle call is sounded to "Stand by hammocks." That brings all the crew on deck, and they stand in silence close out to the ship's side beside the hammock nettings, in two ranks facing the stern, until the boatswain's mate reports to the officer of the deck, "All up and aft." The latter then orders, "Uncover; pipe down!" and in obedience to this order and the boatswain's whistle the nettings are thrown open and the hammocks are served out and taken below to their proper places. Each hammock has printed on it a number, and that same number is on the hooks below decks where the hammock has to be swung, so that each man sleeps in the same place every night, and that place is called his "billet."

Unless a boat is called away there will be no more bugle calls until five minutes of 9 o'clock. The period is one of complete relaxation and is spent by the sailors in smoking, spinning yarns, singing, playing on musical instruments and dancing. At five minutes of 9 the first call is again sounded as a warning to the crew to prepare to turn into their hammocks and go to sleep. Then at 9 o'clock comes the call known as "Tattoo."

This tattoo is the survival of an old custom. In the "old navy" it used to last fifteen minutes and was performed with drum and fife, playing all manner of airs and quicksteps according to the fancy or ingenuity of the drummer and the fifer. It is even said to have been handed down from a period of superstition, when they used to make a hullabaloo after dark to drive the devils out of the ship. At the last note of tattoo the ship's bell is struck twice for 9 o'clock, and the boatswain's whistle sounds "Pipe down." Every man must then turn into his hammock, whether he is sleepy or not, for an inspection is made by the master at arms to see that all have done so. Then sounds that last long, mournful call, "Taps."

A Universal Word.

One of the first words that a baby says is mamma or mother, and it is not strange, therefore, to find it one of the first and simplest words in every language. There is no word easier for a child to say than "ma" unless it be "pa." In Hebrew and Arabic mother is "em" and "am." It is "mam" in Welsh and "moder" in Anglo-Saxon. In other languages it is slightly different, but near enough like our own word "mother" to make it an almost universal word, so that a child crying in any language could be understood in almost any other language. Here are a few of the names:

Madr in Persian.	Moder in Swedish.
Matr in Sanskrit.	Moder in Danish.
Meter in Greek.	Moeder in Dutch.
Mater in Latin.	Mutter in German.
Madre in Italian.	Mater in Russian.
Mere in French.	Mathair in Celtic.

Odd Use For the Tongue.

The brakeman moaned and sighed, a cinder in his eye.

"I'll tongue it out for you," said the conductor, and he bent over his associate, ran his tongue over the pupil of the man's eye and in a jiffy had out the cinder.

"On railroads, in foundries, in stokeholes," the conductor said afterward, "wherever cinders get continually in the eye, there everybody extracts them in one way—with the tongue. The tongue removes things better than any instrument would do. It sweeps the eye clean as a flood sweeps a river bed. Further, it is painless. Its passage over the eyeball is, indeed, a rather pleasant sensation. As regards the sensations of the owner of the tongue—well!"

A Queer Epitaph.

I may perhaps be allowed an inquiry with regard to a stone said to have been removed from Epworth churchyard within the memory of persons now living, but when or by whom nobody can say. It was to the memory of one Richard Towris, and it bore this inscription:

Who lies here? Who do you think?
Richard Towris, and he liked drink.
Drink? Drink, for why?
Because Richard Towris was always dry.

Obstinate coughs yield to its grateful soothing action, and in the racking, persistent cough, often present in Consumptive cases, it gives prompt and sure relief. In Asthma and Bronchitis it is a successful remedy, rendering breathing easy and natural, enabling the sufferer to enjoy refreshing sleep and often effecting a permanent cure."

Mrs. C. Townsend, Lockport, N.S., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know of my experience with Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I was troubled with a cold and severe cough all the time, and very severe spells of Asthma. The doctors did all they could for me, but could only give me relief for a short time. I happened to see your medicine advertised and purchased three bottles, and it gave me great relief, and I do not cough at all. I do not know how to express my gratitude for what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has done for me."

WOLVES FEAR IRON.

In the early days wolves were comparatively unsuspicious, and it was easy to trap or poison them. Then new knowledge, a better comprehension of the modern dangers, seemed to spread among the wolves. They learned how to detect and defy the traps and poison, and in some way the knowledge was passed from one to another till all wolves were fully possessed of the information. How this is done is not easy to say. It is easier to prove that it is done. Few wolves ever get into a trap, fewer still get into a trap and out again, and thus they learn that a steel trap is a thing to be feared. And yet all wolves have the knowledge, as every trapper knows, and since they could not get it at first hand they must have got it second hand—that is, the information was communicated to them by others of their kind.

It is well known among hunters that a piece of iron is enough to protect any carcass from the wolves. If a deer or antelope has been shot and is to be left out overnight, all that is needed for its protection is an old horseshoe, a spur or even any part of the hunter's dress. No wolf will go near such suspicious looking or human tainted things. They will starve rather than approach the carcass so guarded.

With poison a similar change has come about. Strychnine was considered infallible when first it was introduced. It did vast destruction for a time; then the wolves seemed to discover the danger of that particular smell and would no longer take the poisoned bait, as I know from numberless experiences.

It is thoroughly well known among the cattlemen now that the only chance of poisoning wolves is in the late summer and early autumn, when the young are beginning to run with the mother. She cannot watch over all of them the whole time, and there is a chance of some of them finding the bait and taking it before they have been taught to let that sort of smell thing alone.

The result is that wolves are on the increase. They have been, indeed, since the late eighties. They have returned to many of their old hunting grounds in the cattle countries, and each year they seem to be more numerous and more widely spread, thanks to their mastery of the new problems forced upon them by civilization.—Ernest Thompson Seton in American Magazine.

SELF RELIANCE.

The Lesson That Was Taught to Henry Ward Beecher.

Henry Ward Beecher used to tell this story of the way in which his teacher of mathematics taught him to depend upon himself:

"I was sent to the blackboard and went, uncertain, full of whimpering.

"'That lesson must be learned,' said my teacher in a very quiet tone, but with a terrible intensity. All explanations and excuses he trod underfoot with utter scornfulness. 'I want that problem. I don't want any reasons why you haven't it,' he would say.

"'I did study two hours.'

"'That's nothing to me. I want the lesson. You need not study it at all or you may study it ten hours, just to suit yourself. I want the lesson.'

"It was tough for a green boy, but it seasoned me. In less than a month I had the most intense sense of intellectual independence and courage to defend my recitations.

"One day his cold calm voice fell upon me in the midst of a demonstration, 'No!'

"I hesitated and then went back to the beginning, and on reaching the same point again 'No!' uttered in a tone of conviction, barred my progress.

"'The next!' And I sat down in red confusion.

"He, too, was stopped with 'No!' but went right on, finished, and as he sat down was rewarded with 'Very well!'

"'Why,' whimpered I, 'I recited it just as he did and you said 'No!'

"'Why didn't you say 'Yes' and stick to it? It is not enough to know your lesson—you must know that you know it. You have learned nothing till you are sure. If all the world says 'No!' your business is to say 'Yes' and prove it.'"

Riding Backward.

To be comfortable in summer, always ride with your back toward the engine. Your eyes miss all the smoke and cinders. Insist that the porter make your berth with your pillow toward the engine. This will drive your blood to your feet and keep them warm, winter and summer, and your head cool—which is one of the familiar rules of health, handed down from our forefathers. In case of accident you go in headforemost.

"TELL HER SHE MUST."

The family physician puffed meditatively at his cigar for a few minutes before coming down to business.

"I have been to see your wife, as you requested," he said at last, "and I asked you to come in so that I could tell you what should be done. She's in a pretty bad way."

"Indeed?"

"Yes. No regular sickness, you know, but generally run down and in bad shape. With rest and care she'll come out all right, but you'll have to look after her pretty closely."

"I beg your pardon."

"I say you'll have to look after her pretty closely. You'll have to appoint yourself sort of general overseer or supervisor of everything pertaining to her welfare for a time and be very strict with her too. In the first place, tell her she must"—

"Doctor, are you acquainted with my wife?" interrupted the husband.

"Not intimately at all," replied the astonished physician. "I've been called upon to treat her once or twice, as you know, but that is all."

"Possibly that may be urged as an excuse," said the husband, "but it's not a particularly good one. There are women with whom you are quite well acquainted, are there not?"

"Certainly."

"Married women?"

"Many of them."

"And still you advise me to tell my wife that she must do something or other?"

The physician looked at the husband, and the husband looked at the physician.

"My dear sir," said the physician at last, "it flatters some men to talk to them that way, but I see you are a man of judgment and sense who prefers the truth to all else. Of course what I mean is that you ought to suggest to your wife that if it is in accord with her judgment possibly it might be a good thing to follow the advice that I will now give you. Naturally, being married, I know as well as you that 'must' is a word that ought to be eliminated from the English language or at the most confined to the intercourse of parents with children."—Exchange.

JAPANESE STRATEGY.

Getting Rations Into Korea Before Invading That Country.

When the celebrated Japanese soldier Hideyoshi was making preparations for his invasion of Korea he was approached one day by the veteran Asana Nagamasa, who engaged him in the following colloquy. It is recorded in Walter Deming's "New Life of Toyotomi Hideyoshi:"

Nagamasa—What commissariat arrangements had better be made?

Hideyoshi—Well, you had better get ready 3,000,000 koku of rice.

N.—What is to be done with the rice after it is ready?

H.—Use every transport that is to be had and send it over to Fusan.

N.—After landing it, how are we to protect it?

H.—Don't protect it; let it fare as it will.

N.—If we do that the Koreans will capture it all.

H.—Well, isn't that what we want?

N.—But if we lose our provisions we shall be in trouble.

H.—It is a case of 3,000,000 koku. Such a quantity of rice is not to be carried off in a hurry, nor can it be consumed in a short time.

N.—But the Koreans will carry it inland.

H.—If they do that, nothing could suit us better. To get the enemy to do your transport service for you for the amount of rice that can be consumed on the road is good enough. By adopting this plan our troops will always find provisions waiting for them as they advance.

What Hideyoshi predicted actually did take place, and rice that had been carried off by the Koreans was repeatedly recaptured by the Japanese.

Why He Is a Bachelor.

"I've been very close to matrimony several times," remarked a confirmed old bachelor at an uptown club, "and every time my inclination has been sidetracked by the same sort of incident—the discovery of a trait which appears to be practically universal among the fair sex."

"Drink?" asked the cynic.

"No; the confidence game. Every woman I ever knew intimately was sure to relate to me eventually something in 'strictest confidence,' which later it appeared had been told to her in 'strictest confidence.' I won't tie up with a woman who does that."

"Guess you'll die single, all right," said the cynic.

"I'm sure of it," said the bachelor.

A Bargain.

He—Miss Hunt, I love you, but now I dare not dream of calling you mine. Yesterday I was worth $10,000, but today, by a turn of fortune's wheel, I have but a few paltry hundreds to call my own. I would not ask you to accept me in my reduced state. Farewell forever!

She (eagerly)—Good gracious! Reduced from $10,000 to $100! What a bargain! Of course I'll take you. You might have known I couldn't resist.—Magazine.

Her Expense Account.

MAGIC OF THE BASS.

Memories of the Battle That Linger With the Angler.

"The Indians call it 'Me-da Mon-nuh-she-gan,' which translated means magic bass. He is said to be much like other black bass in appearance. But his peculiar attributes are these:

"He must be caught by casting, with a surface bait, so that you can see him rise to it. He may be taken in running water where the clear current foams over mossy bowlders and through gurgling, sunlit shallows or in the silent pools where the forest hangs darkly over the stream. He may be taken at some still lake's grassy marge, where the water lilies build him a green and white and golden canopy, or in the open places when the west wind's magic turns the glassy surface into silver.

"But wherever you find him you will see that nature rules supreme. And whether in brawling stream or quiet pool, in some peaceful lilied bay or just beneath the rippled broad expanse, where the wild beauty of the spot makes your heart beat faster, here may you find the magic bass.

"And this is his magic: That when you have fought him inch by inch and have looked upon him as he lay exhausted in your landing net you are his forever. For wherever you go and whatever you do there will come to you ever and often a dream of his first leap into the air, of the tugging line and of his body at your feet, and indistinct behind it all lie the sparkling water and the forest and the blue sky.

"In the dead of winter you will of a sudden hear the soft splash of the bass rising to your fly, you will feel the sudden tautness of the line, and the snow outside your window will melt into a summer landscape. When you are busiest there will come to you the song of the reel and the smell of pine and fir and balsam. That is the magic of the Me-da Mon-nuh-she-gan."—Outing Magazine.

Various Kinds of Meteors.

"Meteors" and "meteorologists" have little in common, although their origin is identical. "Meteor" meant a good many more things to Englishmen of a few generations ago than it does now, in accordance with the meaning of the Greek adjective, which signified "up in the air," so that "ta meteora," the things up in the air, meant the heavenly bodies. Winds and whirlwinds were aerial meteors formerly in English, clouds, snow and rain were aqueous meteors, and among luminous meteors were reckoned rainbows and twilight. Meteorology preserves the memory of all this, but the word "meteor" has gone over altogether to the astronomer's sphere.

Infinitesimal Shears.

A clever workman in a cutlery factory in Sheffield, England, made a dozen pairs of shears, each so minute that they altogether weigh less than half a grain. That is about the weight of a postage stamp. Each pair is perfect and will cut if sufficiently delicate material could be found. Lying on a piece of white paper they seem no larger than fleas.

Not In Stock.

Customer (at bookstore)—I'd like to get a cheap edition of Shakespeare's plays. New Salesman (after an extended search)—Sorry, sir, but we hain't got nothing but his works.—Chicago Tribune.

Two Curious Charms.

Signor Mascagni and his wife are the proud owners of two watch charms that have been the objects of much curious inquiry. These twin ornaments are apparently merely ordinary Italian coins, but set in either are three small white objects which are quite different from the stones of everyday settings. In fact, these quaint objects are the first teeth of the two Mascagni children, the mother thus bearing with her charge the milk teeth of her little daughter, while the father cherishes in similar fashion the first trio of teeth cut by his tiny son and heir.

TRAINING IN THE COLT

Dragged across a 20-acre field in double-quick time by a young colt was the exciting experience a few days ago, of Neily Driscoll, the young son of Mr. Florence Driscoll, a well known Ottawa farmer. The escape of the young lad who is only 12 years of age was a miraculous one, and it is not easily explained how he concluded his speedy and unexpected journey with no serious injury.

The boy wanted to train the little colt, which has not yet reached the anniversary of its first birthday, by fastening a halter and shank to its head. This operation was successfully performed in a stable and the colt which had not been loose in the fresh air for over two weeks was naturally feeling frisky.

The halter shank consisted of a lengthy leather line which happened to have a loop on the end. When the spirited little animal began to breathe in the oxygeon it wanted to run. The boy's foot caught in the loop and away the two went across a twenty-acre field to where other horses belonging to Mr. Driscoll were standing.

The little fellow was helpless behind the colt which travelled along at a fast pace and he had to be content with bumping along the frozen ground for several hundred yards. One foot was caught in the loop but the other he held up in the air to prevent it from getting beneath him. Arriving among the other horses the exciting race terminated and the youth released himself to find that his legs and sides were badly skinned but otherwise he was unhurt.

His escape from serious injury or possibly worse was nothing short of miraculous and he does not care to have his swift ride duplicated for some days to come.

PROVINCIAL ELECTION IN JUNE

From Present Appearances This Will Be The Case

Examiner Special.

Toronto, Dec. 9.—It is generally understood in well informed political circles, although it will not be definitely announced until the close of the coming session of the Provincial Parliament, that very shortly after the conclusion of the session Parliament will be dissolved and the Provincial elections will take place early in June. The last session of the present Parliament will be called towards the end of January. It is expected that the session will last about two months. A redistribution will take place during the session, and additional representatives will be added. New constituencies will be created in some of the outlying districts, and additional representation will be given to some of the more important centres, like Toronto. A proclamation calling for the commencement of the preparation of the voters' list in the unorganized portions has been issued. This work will begin in February. It is said that a new seat will be carved out for the Minister of Lands and Mines, as it is said that his policy in the mining districts has made him unpopular and that he is not willing to represent the people in the constituency he now represents.

THE WEATHER.

Very mildd weather for this time of the year has been experienced for several days, and temperatures above freezing point have been daily occurrences. Yesterday's highest was 38 degrees; lowest 28 degrees. The barometer has been falling rapidly since last night, and unsettled, and perhaps stormy, conditions are promised.

JOHN WANNAMAKER SAYS SOMETHING

I Remember that the Examiner is Peterborough's home paper and is daily read in a greater number of homes in Peterborough than any other. John Wannamaker, proprietor of the big department stores in New York and Philadelphia, says that newspaper advertising is the only kind that reaches all the people, because it goes into the homes daily as a fresh, interesting story, and is read by every grown member of the family.

TWO LYNX FOLLOWED A HUNTER

He Noticed Them in Time And One Was Captured

Messrs. Thos. Varcoe, Wm. Cochrane, John Harriet and John Ivey, while hunting in Lake township in the northern part of Hastings county, secured seven deer and a large lynx. The lynx measured 5 ft. 7 in. in length. As one of the party was going to the runway he looked around and perceived a pair of them following him at a distance of about fifty yards. He quickly fired and killed one of them, but the other escaped. It being a native animal of the cat family, the principal of the High School has hinted that he would be pleased to see it placed in the museum of the High School. Mr. Varcoe and the Board of Education will no doubt accede to the wishes of Mr. Sexton.—Campbellford Despatch.

A Better Mail Service Secured For Peterborough

Postal Car With Mail Clerk to Be Added to Day Trains Between Montreal and Toronto

SECURED BY MR. HALL

Through the intervention of Mr. R. R. Hall, the member for West Peterborough, a better mail service has been granted on the C.P.R. day trains between Montreal and Toronto, which will be much appreciated by all using the mails. Authority has been granted for the establishment of a postal car service between the points mentioned above on the train that passes through Peterborough at P11.14 a.m. for the east and on the one that goes through at 4.45 p.m. for the west. This will be put into effect at as early a date as possible, and will greatly improve the mail service all along the route.

It means that a mail clerk will be placed on each of these trains to assort the mail taken at the various points. Peterborough is now the distributing point for smaller places east and west so that the new scheme will remove some of the labour from the local post office. It will also mean an earlier distribution of mail all along the route between Montreal and Toronto.

Mr. Hall is to be complimented for his energy in securing this postal car and the extra mail service which will be beneficial to many thousands of people between the two big cities.

VISITOR FROM INDIA COMING

Mr. F. W. Hall Renewing Acquaintances Before Leaving for Vancouver

After an absence of about eight years, Mr. F. W. Hall, a former Peterborough boy, has returned home from India, where he has for a number of years occupied the position of regimental gymnastic instructor in the 60th Rifles. Mr. Hall is to-day renewing former acquaintances, and to-morrow morning leaves for Vancouver, B.C., where he has secured a position as teacher in gymnastics.

BADLY INJURED BY A FALL

Mr. W. W. Henry Had His Nose Broken This Morning

Mr. W. W. Henry, who is employed in the freight sheds of the C.P.R., was very painfully injured at noon to-day by a fall on the slippery pavement. The unfortunate man was going home from work, and in front of the City Hotel slipped and fell, striking heavily face downward on the pavement, with the result that his nose was broken and his face painfully cut. The force of the blow was enough to practically stun him and he was picked up by a number of spectators of the accident and placed on a chair. He lost a very large quantity of blood, the pavement being deluged with the crimson fluid. The ambulance and a doctor were phoned for, but were slow in arriving, and a number of men helped Mr. Henry to reach his home on Louis street.

HOW THE TAXES HAVE BEEN PAID

It is hardly in the power of mortals to pay taxes willingly. But they must be paid, and the extent to which the municipal taxes in Peterborough have been paid for the past few years, and the comparatively small amounts uncollectable, are a tribute to the prosperity of the citizens and to the energy and persuasiveness of the city collector of taxes.

It will perhaps be interesting to give a statement of the amounts of the tax bills levied in the past six or seven years, the extent to which the people have met them, and the amounts uncollected, or, rather, uncollectable.

In 1901 the tax bill was $83,783.15, all collected except $1,619.87.

In 1903 the tax bill was $94,192.24, and the amount uncollected was $1,456.48.

In 1905 the people were called upon to pay $114,611.27, and paid it all except $1,391.24.

In 1906 the amount of taxes levied was $125,742.68, of which all was collected except $1,737.60.

In 1907 the levy is $136,873.26. Of this amount, it is estimated that $2,000 will be uncollected.

The foregoing figures, representing unpaid taxes, include taxes remitted by the Court of Revision, amounts charged up against lands to be ultimately collected, statute labour taxes imposed on more or less temporary citizens, and taxes on dogs whose owners may have removed, etc., etc. In the seven years included in the foregoing, the amount of uncollected taxes is about 11 per cent. of the total amount to be collected.

AN IMPREGNABLE POSITION

The Conservative journals are determined to put the blame for the financial stringency upon the Liberal Government. The Mail and Empire claims that such large sums have been employed in the construction of public works that there is no money left for the business of the country. This money was taken from, or, rather, given by, the people and spent for public purposes. This was wrong, the organ claims. Those public works should have been build, the organ says, with borrowed money, brought in from abroad, and thus foreign capital would be introduced. The Liberal Government made the mistake of not going into debt. This, of course, was a contravention of the Conservative policy which was to get in debt as deeply as possible. During the Conservative regime there were spent in public works the sum of eighty millions and in the process there was added sixty-two millions to the public debt, and every year nearly two millions of dollars are going out of Canada to pay interest on this sixty-two millions. In the past eleven years the Liberal Government has expended upon public works — improvement of transportation channels, public buildings and necessary public conveniences—the large sum of one hundred and twenty-seven millions. Of this all was paid for out of current receipts on the pay-as-you-go principle except five millions which is the sole addition made to the public debt by the Liberals, and of that sum a considerable amount has been cleared off. The contrast is instructive. For the debt piled up under Conservative rule there has to go out of the country to pay interest nearly two millions a year. Of the addition to the public debt by the Liberals in eleven years only $150,000 has to be sent abroad to pay interest. It is a a mistake to say that the large expenditure made by the Liberal Government is the cause of the financial stringency. Of the one hundred and twenty-seven millions spent in the past eleven years for public purposes, nearly the whole has been spent in Canada. The money went into circulation and was available for commercial and industrial purposes and helped to stimulate commerce and industry, to create the conditions of great prosperity that have marked the eleven years of Liberal Administration. It is also a mistake to assert that the people have been burdened by the payment of an enormous revenue. The people paid as much as they wished to pay and no more. Under the Liberal rule they wanted goods; they could afford to buy them; the merchants supplied them and in order to supply them they had to import them. On those imports a tariff charge was made and paid; and the sum total of these tariff payments constitutes our customs revenue. If the people had not wanted those goods, if they had not had the money—which was the case in the lean years of Conservative rule—they would not have bought the goods and the decreased revnues would have created the deficits that were a rule under the Conservatives. The Conservatives in attacking the financial administrative record of the Liberals are knocking their heads against the strongest portion of the wall. The Liberal position in this regard is impregnable.

CONSUMPTION

Its Cause And Suggested Means of Recovery

Consumption is not always an inherited disease, and a large percentage of cases may be attributed to the following causes:

First, defective digestion. Second, imperfect nutrition as a result of the first. Third, the accumulation of morbid product in the lungs as the result of imperfect nutrition, and this in turn breaks down the function of respiration and consumption is an established disease.

The first step toward a cure is to restore the function of nutrition, and to this end nothing in the world excels Vinol.

It is for this reason we want every person in Peterborough to know about our delicious cod liver preparation. Vinol, which is far superior to old fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions because it is made by a scientific, extractive and concentrated process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate of iron all the medicinal, healing, body building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil.

In pulmonary diseases, it nourishes the body, increases vigor, checks the cough and often mitigates the disease. As a strength-creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run down persons, and after sickness, Vinol is unexcelled.

We ask Peterborough people to try Vinol on our offer to return their money if it does not give satisfaction. McDermid & Jury, druggists, Peterborough, also The Market Drug Store.

JEWISH PEOPLE THE SUBJECT

Lecture Given at Gospel Hall Yesterday By Mr. Corney of Toronto

At the Gospel Hall last night Mr. W. H. Corney of Toronto gave an excellent account of the work of the Jewish mission in Toronto. In doing so he corrected a statement in Saturday's Toronto papers to the effect that the mission was not supported by the churches of Toronto, but by private offerings of the Christians. Speaking of the hatred the Jew has for the name of Jesus, he said he had seen them put their fingers in their ears and spit three times at the mention of it. But a number in Toronto had been converted and were now rejoicing in that name. He said when a Jew accepts Christ his family mourn for him as dead for eight days, and his name would be utterly despised. Mr. Corney went on to Montreal to-day.

A MILD WINTER MUST BE IN STORE

If The Following Wild Game Stories Are True

An open winter we shall surely have! It seems impossible that the severe frosts of last year will visit us again this season in the face of all the signs given below which, according to the old hunters, foretell a balmy winter season. How can it be otherwise? For squarely on top of the signs of a hard winter which have been expressed comes the Kennebec, Me., Journal with the news that muskrats have not even begun to build their winter quarters. Ducks have been slow in migrating. Deer have their thin fall suits on, the beaver have not begun cutting their winter wood supply; the owls have not yet withdrawn to the forest depths; the songbirds have not all sailed southward; toadstools have few or no wrinkles; corn husks are not thick; the 'possum has only one curl in his tail this fall; the wild geese are still sojourning on northern lakes; jackrabbits have not yet begun to drum on hollow logs; there is no thick down under the chicken's feathers, nor any bony growth on hen feet; black cats have no whites under their eyes; the gooseberry is fair and unspotted.

THE PRICE OF MILK IS HIGH

Gentleman Gives an Idea of Profit That is Being Made

A gentleman interested in agriculture and general farm work reverted to the milk business to-day and stated that citizens should not be paying seven cents per quart for their milk. The present price is too high to suit the people, and according to this gentleman, the milkmen and the farmers are making more money than ever before. The farmer gets four cents per quart at his barn and the milkman, of course, pays him. In the city he receives three cents per quart profit, and the citizen pays without any objection.

With conditions as they are at present the people should not be paying a maximum price. This gentleman further stated that during the past few months he has known of four men going into the milk business from the farm, showing that the returns must be most encouraging.

Among the latest reports sent out by the Dominion Department of Agriculture in connection with the Cow Testing Association, Warsaw and Pine Grove are mentioned. The former shows that the milk of 181 cows was tested with an average of 479 lbs. of milk per cow; and average test of 3.8 and butter fat of 18.3 lbs. Pine Grove with 136 cows, showed an average of 479 lbs. of milk also, a test of 3.8 and a yield of 18.2 lbs. of butter fat.

WOMENS' NEGLECT

SUFFERING THE SURE PENALTY

Health Thus Lost is Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many women do you know who are perfectly well and strong? We hear every day the same story over and over again. "I do not feel well; I am so tired all the time!"

More than likely you speak the same words yourself, and no doubt you feel far from well. The cause may be easily traced to some derangement of the female organs which manifests itself in depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere or do anything, backache, bearing-down pains, flatulency, nervousness, sleeplessness or other female weakness.

These symptoms are but warnings that there is danger ahead, and unless heeded a life of suffering or a serious operation is the inevitable result.

The never-failing remedy for all these symptoms is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Miss Clara Beaubien, of Beauport, Quebec, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"For several years I have suffered with a female weakness which proved a serious drain on my vitality, sapping my strength and causing severe headaches, bearing-down pains and a general worn-out feeling, until I really had no desire to live. I tried many medicines, but did not get permanent relief until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In two months I was much better and stronger, and in four months I was well; no more disagreeable discharge, no more pain. So I have every reason to praise the Vegetable Compound, and I consider it without equal for the ills of women."

For twenty-five years Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, has under her direction and since her decease, been advising sick women free of charge. Her advice is free and always helpful. Address, Lynn, Mass.

D & A FORM-TRAINING CORSET

STYLE GRACE ELEGANCE HYGIENE

A distinctive feature of this corset is the horizontal section at the lower part, which women of full development, especially those exhibiting a tendency toward abdominal prominence, have a use in recognizing as the only safe and reliable way of training their forms into lines of symmetry and fashionableness.

It is this section which not only serves to conceal the actual weight of the wearer, but successfully persuades the flesh to the hips, and reduces the abdomen very effectually.

No stout woman has ever yet reduced her abdomen with comfort and safety by the use of any corset except "D & A Form Training" style 575; Price $3.50.

You will find this style and various other "D & A" MODELS in every good store where corsets are sold, ranging in prices from $1.00 to $15.00.

Ennismore Farmers Show Live Interest in Agriculture

Large Attendance at Meetings of Farmer's Institute On Saturday---Splendid Practical Addresses Delivered by Speakers---Musical Programme in The Evening

The regular winter meetings of the West Peterborough Farmer's Institute was opened at Ennismore on Saturday afternoon with only a fairly large audience, owing, perhaps, to the fact that it was market day. However, this was made up by the interest that was taken in the proceedings. The speakers for the occasion were Mr. T. G. Raynor of Ottawa and Mr. E. C. Drury of Crown Hill. The addresses were of a very instructive nature, dealing with subjects of moment to farmers, and at the afternoon session there was a very lively discussion on the questions of most interest. The affair, in fact, was quite informal, which made it all the more successful. Mr. J. N. Telford, president of the Institute, occupied the chair, and Mr. Wm. Collins was also present. Mr. Telford promised the farmers practical advice from the speakers, and urged everyone to join in the discussion, as it would be much more interesting in that event.

Mr. Raynor's Address.

Mr. Raynor of Ottawa was the first speaker introduced. He invited an informal discussion, as by that means the best results in Institute work are accomplished. His subject was, "Noxious Weeds, and Methods of Destroying Them." He said that the farmers do not fully appreciate the loss they sustain by allowing weeds to grow, without proper attempts made to destroy them. The practice of the farmer is generally to buy his clover seed late in the season, and thereby he does not get the best seed. This year, he said, seed would likely be scarce on account of the unfavourable weather. Some seed, however, is available. The price may be a little higher than last year, but it does not take very much to sow an acre, and when it is considered that the clover affords excellent manure the farmers should not neglect this crop next year. If the ground is in good condition, Mr. Raynor said, five or six pounds is a good sowing, but on the average land, eight to ten pounds yield a better crop.

Mr. Raynor advised that the sowing should be studied, as an overabundance of seed produces a bad effect on the crop. If clover had been fed to the cattle during the winter this manure on the field is a great help to the seed, and better results may be expected. Returning to the price of clover seed, Mr. Raynor said that owing to the poor yield this year, of necessity a quantity will have to be imported from Europe and South America. In the seed from Chili, a noxious fungus called "Dodder" is found, which he hoped would not find its way into Canada.

Harm Done by Weeds

Weeds take up as much nourishment from the ground as do the grains, and are even of a hardier nature. They are not desired on the farm and are, in fact, a detriment to a good crop. Mr. Raynor urged the people to get a representative sample of their seed and send it to the department and get the right information as to its quality. The work is done free of charge, and the farmer is in a position to tell the buyer just what grade he has, and will not be taken in by him.

Seed loss every year to ntarios, and should not be held over, Mr. Raynor explained to a questioner.

An annual seed is one which lives through one year. A winter annual is not killed by the winter's cold.

A biennial completes its life in two years. The first year it gathers strength like the mangold, and the next year gives forth its seed.

Weeds can be fought better on a dry land. A good short system of rotation of crops is desired if weeds are to be destroyed. Weeds are peculiar with certain classes of crops. With some they will grow and increase so that something is desired to check them, and rotation of crops answers the purpose. Mr. Raynor the frequent cultivation of the ground after harvest. The best implement for this purpose is the two-furrow gang plow. The wild mustard seed possesses great vitality and is very hard to destroy.

To Kill Wild Oats

Regarding the killing of wild oats, a question was asked, how to get rid of them, and Mr. Raynor said the best way was to "fool" it, by stirring the ground early in the year before seeding. The wild oats will spring up, and they can easily be cleared out. Precautions should be taken to see that there were no wild oats in the seed that is planted.

Mr. Raynor said that a seed competition should be held in every district to encourage enterprise in seed cultivation. Going back to the destruction of wild oats, he said that when they are in young shoots in the spring the ground should be harrowed, and more weeds than the wild oats are turned up. The proper time of the day is about noon, and it should be as dry a day as possible.

Mr. Raynor went on to explain methods of destroying other noxious weeds. The white cockle and the stinky cockle can be killed by not allowing them to run to seed. The bladder campion can be killed by cutting it off below the crown of its root. The speaker explained that rib grass seed is found in clover seed and the farmers should be careful when selecting their seed. The people generally call it wild timothy.

The wild morning glory was also condemned, likewise the sow thistle and daisy. Mr. Raynor advised that it would be a great benefit if the road sides were gone over once or twice a year and the weeds cut down. In this way the seeds will not be allowed to reach the field and the starting of this weed prevented.

The speaker said that some law is required to prevent the careless farmer from allowing the sow thistle and other seeds to run riot in his fields and smother the other crops.

The farmer who gives attention to his land suffers by the indifference of his neighbour to the destruction of weeds and particularly is this true in the case of the sow thistle. Mr. Raynor's plan to kill this weed is to prevent it from growing a leaf. To do this plow the field and as soon as any growth is noticed use a broad shear cultivator and by several applications of the cultivator the sow thistle is destroyed by mere exhaustion as the leaves are not allowed to sprout. The grazing of sheep in a field where sow thistle abounds is another method of killing it as they keep it cropped very close. Mr. Raynor urged the farmers to co-operate as much as possible in destroying weeds. The more that is done in this respect the better will the crops be and the general appearance of the country will be improved.

Mr. Drury

The subject of "Soil, Moisture and how to Control it," was dealt with by Mr. E. C. Drury, of Crown Hill. He introduced his remarks by referring to the past season which was one of the driest experienced in many years. However controlling the moisture by practical methods makes a great difference at harvest time if nature by herself fails. Growing crops require a great deal of moisture. The soil must be in condition to store and to hold water for the crops. Soil like a sponge, holds water in its pores. There is a way to improve the soil and the first method is short rotation of crops. By By frequent cutting of clover the soil is well supplied with humus, in other words decayed vegetable matter.

Mr. Drury said that another way is to properly drain the land. He did not believe in shallow cultivation as often the sub-soil is incapable of holding water. On sandy loam it is just as well to cultivate shallow. Another thing to do is to plough early and thus break up the surface and prepare it to take up the water. Besides being porous the land should possess a "wick quality" doing the same duty as a lamp wick. The soil should be arranged so that it will bring the water up near the surface. Mr. Drury was not in favour of spring ploughing. He ploughed his farm in the fall and as soon as possible in the spring he went over it with a harrow thus saving a great deal of moisture for the plants. The sand does not begin to warm up until it is broken and with this warmth the weed seeds begin to sprout and they can be easily destroyed. A seed to sprout, needs moisture, warmth and air and the best way to secure these conditions is to cultivate the soil just as deeply as the seeds are to be planted. Several inches of loose soil is prepared, and the firm ground is left underneath. Then take a drill and go over it just as deep as it has been cultivated.

Mr. Drury believed that seeding by drill is better than spreading the seed broadcast. To prevent smutting in the grain, he advocated the use of formaldehyde. He thought it was better to treat the grain in this way, spreading it out on the floor, sprinkling the grain with the solution of water and formaldehyde, and shovelling it into a conical heap, and leaving it until the next morning. It is then unnecessary to spread it out again to dry it.

Mr. Drury said the only use he had for the roller was on spring-ploughed ground, before breaking it up again with a cultivator. It may be alright when stones are found on the farm, but otherwise no real advantage is gained. No matter what the crop was, a good yield would be produced by exercising care in making provision for controlling the the moisture. Mr. Drury urged frequent shallow in the early growth of a crop of roots.

Both speakers had held the attention of their listeners, and many questions were asked that cannot be reproduced here. Everyone remained through both lectures, and the farmers of Ennismore showed that they are deeply interested in using the most improved methods in their farm work.

Evening Meeting

At seven o'clock in the evening the hall was filled to its utmost capacity with a representative audience. On the platform were Messrs. Drury and Raynor, Dr. Antlie Backus, who had organized a Woman's Institute in the afternoon, Messrs. J. N. Telford, W. M. Collins, D. Hughes Charles and F. D. Kerr.

The speeches were given between musical numbers provided by the best talent the community afforded and, needless to say, the meeting was a very successful one. The following constituted the programme, which the chairman, Mr. Telford, called out:

Selection by the orchestra.
Miss Aggie Scollard, piano; Ernest Telford, cornet; and John Flood, violin.
Song, Ernest Telford.
Vocal duet, Misses Kennedy and Crough.
Song, Miss Mary Crough.
Song, Mr. Clayton Telford.
Song, Miss Loretta Kennedy.
Vocal solo, Miss Gertrude Maloney.
Miss H. A. Telford, accompanied the singers.

Mr. Drury took for his evening address, "The Social Side of Farming," which, he said, was perhaps the most important concern of the farmer. It was not so much that he should win prizes at exhibitions, or increase his yearly products. It meant far more, Mr. Drury said, that the farm house, and its inhabitants should be ideal. "We are not all we might be," Mr. Drury continued, saying that the farmer lacked some things in home life. It was not necessarily a fine house that makes the home, but the happiness of the people's joying life in the family circle. Mr. Drury said that the first point he wished to emphasize was that not enough time was devoted to the home. Long hours constitute the farmer's ordinary day's work, and the father and mother should see to it that some time is taken out of the day to be devoted to enjoyment or recreation of some kind. Music and reading should be a part of thee family life, and the surroundings should also be beautified, and receive the attention of the farmer.

Should Study

A thorough farmer is not only a labourer, but a thinker. Farm work is dignified, and makes the man as good, if not better, than those who are engaged in other classes of work. Farmers should not despise their calling. If the farmers do so, their sons will learn to despise it, and they are wanted on the farm, and the parents should do all in their power to keep them at home. If farm work is respected in the home, then the young men will grow to esteem it. The farmer's life is surrounded by beautiful things, and he should learn to love it. He is close to nature and the farmer alone has everybody opportunity of enjoying its beauties.

Education

Mr. Drury then called the attention of his audience to the education of the young. The best boys in the past were educated, and the one or two remained on the farm. This, Mr. Drury said, shoul not be the case. Every child should be educated, and those who remain at home to work should be given the same chance as the others. The educational system is not at fault, for the educated boys make the best farmers. The father must make the surroundings of the home enjoyable, and the boys will not wish to leave the farm for other fields of work.

Mr. Drury then pointed out the value that organization was to the farmers. They are practically using in life being different from other classes and not united to meet these classes. The farmers should organize in every line—for education, for better conditions, and to fight the other highly organized classes. Mr. Drury stated that since 1871 the number of farmers in Ontario had appreciably decreased, and this condition could be eliminated by ideal farm conditions.

Dr. Annie Backus, in her address, explained that a Woman's Institute had been organized in the afternoon with the following officers:

President—Mrs. W. J. Sadlard.
Vice-President—Mrs. Dan. Crough.
Secretary—Miss K. Donohue.

The initial meeting will be held on the first Saturday in January, when a large number should be present. Dr. Backus was pleased with the afternoon meeting and told of the benefits to be derived from a Woman's Institute. As the men follow better plans in their work, so the women gain better ideas about the home side of farming in all its branches. As there was a lengthy programme she did not give an address on any subject, leaving that to the gentlemen.

Agricultural Department.

Mr. Raynor, in beginning his remarks, said he was glad to see so many boys and girls present, and gave them a little lecture on destroying weeds. He said there was a great field for study in farm work, and the Institute meetings could not deal with it very fully owing to the very short time appointed. He stated that if a man just woke up now after a sleep of thirty years he would hardly know himself, so great a change has taken place in the conditions. The Industrial College at Guelph has itself worked wonders for the development of agriculture.

To-day the ordinary old-fashioned cow is far out-distanced as a milk-producer, and while 2,000 pounds per season was all that was expected some time ago, now 6,000 and 8,000 pounds are produced. Mr. Raynor then reverted to the pork question and said that it was a mistake to get rid of all the hogs during the present season. The price may be a little low, but it is bound to go up again, and while the farmer may reduce his stock somewhat, he should keep some.

Better Grain

Mr. Raynor then took up the subject of the improvement of seed grain. There is a better method than that of exchanging back after several years sowing it in the same field. The farmer usually buys a new variety and plants it in a different field where there is more nourishment than the old one. Mr. Raynor said the grain should be cleaned early and not left until near planting time. He urged the farmers to sow the large plump seed in place of the small seed. The largest seed is obtained by a very careful fanning. Statistics prove that the larger seeds produce the best crops.

From a chart, he explained how to obtain the best results in grain-growing. The best seed from one harvest is selected and sowed in a different plot the next year, and the best seed from this plot is planted, in another, and so on. Thus, the very best seed is planted, and on good ground, and the harvest gained by this selection of seed is sure to be a good one.

Other Speakers

Mr. Telford called upon Mr. D. Hughes Charles and Mr. Kerr to say a few words, and both made appropriate speeches. Mr. Hughes Charles said that he liked to attend Institute meetings to gain information, because the speakers detailed for the work knew what they were talking about. He considered Mr. Drury's statements regarding organization were well placed. The large organized companies, such as railways, looked out for themselves, said Mr. Charles, by high rates, though traffic has increased. The farmers therefore should organize to meet every company that tries to hold them down or in any way to impose upon their rights.

Mr. Kerr's remarks were of a witty nature and put the crowd in good humour as a fitting close to a most successful meeting.

Mr. Paul Costello moved, seconded by Mr. John Flood, that a vote of thanks be tendered the speakers of the evening. Those who provided the entertainment also received their share of praise.

Mr. Collins received quite a number of subscriptions, and paid close attention to the financial department of the Institute.

SERVICES OF SODALITY AT ST. PETER'S

A Beautiful Ceremony Took Place at Vespers

Yesterday was celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral as the feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary. In the morning at the 8 o'clock mass all the members of the Sodality attended in a body, and occupied the central aisles of the church. During the sermon they sang several hymns and received holy communion. The ceremony was a most impressive one in that there was such a large number of ladies. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor said the mass.

In the evening the members again assembled to receive into the Sodality about fifty or sixty new candidates. These occupied the front rows and during the consecration ceremony held lighted candles. Hymns were sung by the members, the act of consecration for the new members was read by Miss Aileen Sullivan, while Mrs. L. Desmard read the act for the whole society. The ceremony was a beautiful one and a fitting close to the devotions in honour of the patroness of the Sodality.

BANQUET FOR THE BOYS TO-NIGHT

Mr. N. A. Howard Moore Addressed Men's Meeting Yesterday

The banquet for the Intermediate Boys of the Y.M.C.A. will be held at 6.30 p.m., this evening, when the plans for the winter work will be brought up, and decided on.

The afternoon meeting yesterday at four o'clock, was, as usual, interesting. Mr. N. Howard Moore gave a short sketch of the life of Joseph, and drew some good lessons from it. The pictures were excellent. Three of the hymns were illustrated besides the pictures of the life of Joseph.

The Sunday evening song service was as usual much enjoyed by those present.

FORESTERS ATTEND THE FUNERAL

Remains of Late Bro. Miles Froates Interred Yesterday

On Sunday afternoon the members of Court Chemong, No. 530 I. O. F., gathered at two o'clock in the S. O. E. Hall to assist in the last rites of the funeral service of the late Bro. Miles Froates. They formed in a body and walked to Comstock's undertaking rooms, where Rev. Wm. Major conducted the home service. A beautiful wreath in anchor design bore testimony to the esteem in which the deceased man was held by his brethren in the I.O.F.

The funeral procession continued to the Little Lake cemetery, accompanied by the Foresters. The pallbearers were Bros. J. Logan, R. Bradburn, W. Lailey, Geo. W. Spring, H. Baker and A. J. Longland. There were at least 130 members of the society in line, marshalled by Bros. F. C. Rooke, S. R., and Geo. Metcalf, J. B. The Marshalls were complimented on the splendid manner in which the conducted the marsh. The badges worn by the members were suitably draped with black ribbons.

At the grave the regular burial service of the order was performed by Bro. A. Allison, S. P. C. R., assisted by Bros. W. Miles, C. R., and Bro. D. Wallace, P. C. R., and was witnessed by a large number who had accompanied the funeral to the cemetery.

Spiritual Means Should Be Used For Spiritual Ends

This is the Motto Given by Rev. Robt. Pogue, New Pastor of St. Paul's, to his Congregation Yesterday—Two Scholarly Sermons

MADE FINE IMPRESSION

Very large congregations were present at St. Paul's church, to welcome the new pastor, Rev. Robert Pogue, late of Philadelphia, who preached his first sermons yesterday. Rev. Mr. Pogue made a most favourable impression upon his hearers, delivering two scholarly, logical discourses, that went to the heart as well as to the mind. He is an eloquent and fluent speaker, with a pleasing voice, that can be heard, without difficulty, in all parts of the church.

Yesterday morning Rev. Mr. Pogue chose as the subject for his initial sermon, Acts xi, 21, "And the hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number believed and turned unto the Lord."

In beginning his discourse, the speaker pointed out, that, although the men referred to in the passage, from which the text was taken, were scattered abroad, wanderers on the face of the earth, and had suffered the loss of all things, yet they went, with a glad heart, and made known the gospel of Christ. It seemed to him that it was the duty of a Christian to represent his Master wherever he might be. "A Christian should a witness to the Lord in whom he believes, and the Christ in whom he trusts, and if he is illuminated by the touch of Christ, cannot help shining all the time," remarked Rev. Mr. Pogue.

"This fact," he said, continuing, furnishes us with a principle by which we can test the reality of our Christian exeprience." He thought a Christian should be the same abroad as at home, and should always be a witness to the Master.

The theme of the text was that the work of the church was to turn men unto the Lord, and he proposed to deal with the subject in three divisions; first, the work itself; second, the power by which the work is effected; and, third, the conditions upon which one might become a partaker of the power.

The statement that the duty of the Christian church was to turn men unto the Lord, might seem trite and common-place, but the work that had brought Jesus Christ from the skies could not be trite or common-place. Christ had come down to earth to save men, and no greater nor grander gift could be given anywhere than the opportunity to turn men unto the Lord. By saving men was meant the delivery of them from sin in time and eternity, and the putting of new songs in their hearts and on their lips.

The speaker illustrated the point by reading several passages from the teaching of Christ, and with reference to the work of the early church. A Christian in the apostolic days was a witness for Jesus Christ, and the glory of the church in the early years was the soul-saving power.

That should still be the glory of the church, but Rev. Mr. Pogue was afraid that it was being departed from in some cases. "There are churches," he said, "in which it would not be considered polite to mention soul-saving. There are churches in which there is no evangelistic sermon heard, and where evangelistic hymns are not sung, because they are not considered classical enough." If order that souls might be saved, it was necessary that there should be a deep conviction first that souls were lost; second, that they could be saved, and, third, that we are responsible for their being saved.

Speaking of the power by which the work of the church was to be done, Rev. Mr. Pogue pointed out that the hand of the Lord had been with the people in the text. It was only when the hand of the Lord came upon a minister of the Gospel that blessings resulted. The hand of the Lord was sure to be upon people where there was preparation for doing His work. People never put forth an effort for the Master, bit He preceded them in undertaking the work.

Rev. Mr. Pogue pointed out what results had come to the people in the early days, and asked why did not like results come to us to-day. In the first days of the church there was an absolute forsaking of sin, and the people had a holy fear and awe of doing wrong, feeling that sin would not be tolerated. Then, too, the people loved each other, and this the speaker thought, stood in the relationship of cause and effect to the blessings they receive. "Show me a body of believers," he remarked, "in which the spirit of love does not prevail, and I will show you a body who are powerless to reach outsiders." People, he said, should learn that to be successful, they must rely on spiritual means to secure spiritual results, and he asked the congregation of St. Paul's to adopt as their motto, "Spiritual tenth of the congregation.

People in the early days prayed much. For ten days before Pentecost the 120 members of the church had prayed constantly. In these latter days, it was difficult to get an hour's prayer meeting once a week, and to secure the presence of one-tetnh of the congregation.

In conclusion, he urged upon his hearers the need of social prayer, and advised them to make much of the Wednesday night services, promising a bright future for the church if they would do so.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, and the glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

Man Strikes His Wife And Lashes Comrades With a Whip

Cutter Was Badly Smashed in a Ditch—Police Served Summons While he Lay in Bed

WAS FINED THIS MORNING

A charge of being drunk and disorderly was brought against a man named George Williamson this morning in the police court and it is likely that there will be a suit for damages brought against him also.

Williamson did not appear in court this morning, but the case went on just the same. P. C. Adams said he served Williamson with a summons on Saturday, when he was in bed, just getting over a drunk.

There were two witnesses in court to testify against Williamson, but only one witness was heard. He said the trouble occurred over the smash-up between the street car and Williamson's buggy. Mrs. Williamson being left without a conveyance for her goods, asked the witness to get her a cutter and drive her home, stating that he would be fully paid for his trouble. He went down to his father's house to get a cutter, while Williamson, who was intoxicated, went to a near by livery barn to have a sleep. When witness came back with his father's cutter he hitched Williamson's horse to it and also carried the goods from the buggy to his cutter. When everything was ready Mrs. Williamson went after her husband and brought him to the cutter. He asked witness what he was doing around the cutter and told him to get out of it. The witness tried to explain what had happened while he was away, but received a blow in the mouth which knocked him into the road. Mrs. Williamson then tried to explain, but she was struck an ugly blow on the eye and went away crying. A bystander who was acquainted with Williamson tried to quiet him down and to explain, but he wouldn't listen. The witness then went to the horse's head and held the reins, he did not want to see his cutter going away with a stranger. Williamson then went after him with a whip and struck him twice. The bystander remonstrated again and at last they got him quiet and he promised to let both men ride with him if they would let him drive. He drove along Charlotte street and up Aylmer street until he reached London street. There he lashed the horse in a cruel fashion and the animal made a plunge around the corner upsetting the cutter in a ditch, smashing the runners and the dash-board, also throwing the occupants out of the sleigh. Williamson then beat his horse again and finally succeeded in reaching his home.

Here another frenzy began. Williamson refused to allow his comrades inside the yard, but, however, they succeeded in getting in. He then took after them with a horse-whip and a regular melee ensued in the yard. The witness then came out and told the police what had occurred.

His worship after hearing the evidence, fined Williamson $5.00 and costs.

A NEW CHARGE AGAINST WM. M'CREA

The Charge is Somewhat Changed and Will be Heard Next Wednesday

A new charge will be brought against Wm. McCrea, the brakeman who was arrested for the non-support of his wife and child some time

On the evidence brought against McCrea on the last charge, the court could not commit him of non-support, and also urged an agreeable settlement, but it was of no avail.

The charge now brought against McCrea is of a somewhat different nature, and will be heard in the police court on Wednesday next. Mr. G. Gordon will appear for McCrea, while Mr. R. F. McWilliams will appear on behalf of Mrs. McCrea. The case will likely be heard in private court.

WEDDING BELLS.

HICKS-FIFE

A quiet wedding was celebrated at the Hastings parsonage on the afternoon of Wednesday, December 4, when Rev. W. Elliott united in marriage Miss Mary Ellen Hicks, eldest daughter of Mr. B. Hicks, and Mr. Charles Wilbert Fife, son of John H. Fife, Otonabee.

The bride, who was unattended, was dressed in a pretty navy nun suit of vicuna cloth with hat to match. After the ceremony the bridal couple, with a small number of friends, being only the relatives of the contracting parties, assembled at the home of the bride, where a dainty repast awaited them. The bride was the recipient of a number of useful presents, the groom's gift to the bride being a gold watch. Mr. and Mrs. Fife will reside in Otonabee.

LUMBERMEN'S WAGES ARE CUT

At the American House to-day, Mr. Geo. Long, the proprietor, accommodated 23 lumbermen who have just returned from the lumber camps in Parry Sound, claiming that their wages have been cut down $10 or more from what they were led to expect. They went up to Parry Sound a few weeks ago, they state, having been offered $38 per month to work in the woods.

These men are home because their wages were cut down to $26 and $28 per month. It was also reported today tah tthe wages of lumbermen in the north of the county were cut from $35 to $24 and $26, and that many were leaving the camps for home on this account.

PETERBORO' BIRDS FOR GUELPH

Mr. Harry Lush Sends Ten Fine Specimens to Winter Show

Mr. Harry Lush, the well known local poultry fancier to-day, shipped ten splendid birds to the Ontario Poultry show, held in connection with the Fat Stock Show at Guelph.

This is the first time in many years that Peterborough poultry has been shown in Guelph and Mr. Lush is to be commended for his enterprise on this occasion which it is hoped will be rewarded by a number of prizes. His birds include Orpingtons, Hamburgs and Leghorns and are among the best ever shown by him.

Mr. Jas. Baptie, of Springville, also left to-day for Guelph with fifteen birds. He has always taken his share of the prizes and will no doubt do so on this occasion.

Mr. Lush will go to Guelph to-morrow morning and will return on Thursday night.

FRIENDLY HOLD-UP LAST NIGHT

Citizen Supplies Tramps With Tobacco and Money

We often hear the statement made that persons who carry their nerve along with them will always get along, and a striking incident occurred last night which serves to substantiate this statement.

A well-known citizen was passing in front of the Allan Ice Company's office last night when two suspicious looking characters stepped up and asked him for some chewing tobacco. Of course he produced a plug at once and handed it to the strangers, telling them to take a piece. They handed him back a square inch. The citizen smiled and was just complimenting himself upon having got off so lucky, when he was hailed again. This time they asked him for a little smoking tobacco. He handed them a plug which he had just used once, and made off again, not waiting for any of his tobacco back. He heard them say something and again they hailed him, and this time wanted the loan of ten cents. The citizen's pity for these unfortunates was aroused to its highest pitch by this time, and he decided to loan them the required sum of money, and the tramps departed with the compliment to the kind-hearted citizen that he was a "decent head."

The citizen referred to was coming back up George street an hour later and crossed over the C.P.R. bridge in time to see the two men jump on a freight which was moving out of the Peterborough yards on its way east.

THE FATAL FLOWER

A man who has just twnety-four hours to live, without any previous notification, must necessarily be a pretty busy man. If it were possible for you to imagine, to actually realize, that you had just that length of time to stay on this mortal soil, could you light a cigar, order a meal, and enjoy either? If you could you are an exception to mortal man. The chances are that those twenty-four hours would be so crowded full of actions, suggestions, requests, behests and repentance, that you would not find time to pursue the usual tenor of your way. Would the entire time suffice to even "square" yourself with the comparatively few mortals you came in contact with? It would depend greatly on the manner in which you had lived. What you would do under the circumstances, and what someone else would do would likely vary to a marked degree. That ingenious playwright, Howard Hall, has given us a novel pilot. On these lines is his latest offering, "The Fatal Flower," which will be seen at the Grand next Wednesday, December 11th, when the Howard Hall Amusement Company, will present Mr. William Walcott in that intensely dramatic play. Mr. Walcott, late of the Belasco forces, takes the role of a man who unwittingly inhales the odour of a poisonous flower, not knowing at the time that it is the fatal flower. Upon being told by a celebrated toxicologist that this is that rare poisonous flower, which he has long been in search of, actually believes, and in reality is, dying from its poisonous effects. The action of the play takes place during the twenty-four hours that he believes is his allotted time on earth. No more powerful dramatic situation could be conceived, and in the hands of Mr. Walcott it is doubtful if a more intensely interesting piece of acting will be seen here this season.

"SHOOT UP" KENTUCKY CITY

Hopkinsville Held by Large Mob—Unexpected Move In the Tobacco War—Five Hundred Masked Men Terrorize City — Overpowered Police and Firemen—Burned Warehouses Before Leaving.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Dec. 9.—Five hundred "night riders," masked and heavily armed, marched into Hopkinsville early Saturday and destroyed property valued at over $200,000, while citizens, in terror of their lives, feared even to open their windows.

The police, fire department, telephone and telegraph offices, and even the railroad stations, were in possession of a wild mob, shooting right and left, flames from burning buildings meanwhile lighting up the city and surrounding country, until it seemed that the whole town was ablaze.

Only two men were injured, one of them being Lindsay Mitchell, a tobacco buyer, who was severely beaten with switches and clubs, and the other, a brakeman, who was shot in the back while trying to move his train from the path of the flames.

The raid of the "night riders" caught the city unawares, as for some time the depredations resulting from the tobacco war had been of a minor nature, and it was generally thought that in the "dark district" at least the worst was over. The property destroyed was as follows: W. H. Tandy, independent tobacco warehouse building, owned by J. H. Latham; B. M. Woolridge, association warehouse; Tandy & Parleigh, buyers' warehouse.

In addition, the entire glass front of The Hopkinsville Kentuckian, which has been severe in the condemnation of the "night riders," Mayor Meacham's paper, was destroyed, while windows in front of the Commercial Bankings & Savings Co., the First National, the Planters' Trust Co. and the Bank of Hopkinsville were punctured with bullet holes.

A number of other business houses and residences bear the marks of bullets, and it is considered remarkable that no one was killed. The insurance is believed to be about $60,000.

As soon as the "night riders" left town a posse of about 15, headed by Major Bassett of the local militia and Deputy Sheriff Cravens, entered buggies and followed the trail. As soon as the posse could get near enough they opened fire on the fleeing mob and the pursued returned the shots. It is believed none of the "night riders" was hit. The members of the posse escaped injury. They were outdistanced by the mounted men, and after chasing the marauders past Gracey, the officers returned home.

News was later received from all parts of the town indicating the spread of the raid of the riders. There was hardly a house in the business section of the city which did not suffer.

Just why no damage was done by the "night riders" to the Imperial or the American Snuff Co. warehouses is not known. They probably contained more stock than any other house.

Fell Into Boiling Pulp.

Montreal, Dec. 9.—Leslie Williams was admitted to the General Hospital Saturday, having been brought by train from Tupper Lake, N. Y.

Williams is employed in a paper factory, and Saturday morning fell into a large vat of boiling pulp. He was completely covered with the scalding fluid, and was compelled to wade through it for ten feet to the side of the vat. When he reached the side he fell back into the pulp unconscious.

He was rescued by his fellow workmen. The doctors say he will not recover.

Students Wreck Theatre.

Kingston, Dec. 9.—Bijou Moving Picture Theatre, on Princess street, was wrecked by Queen's students on Saturday night. After the Alma Mater Society elections they had their usual street rushes and concluded their performance by invading the Bijou and having a free fight inside as an audience was dispersing. Half a dozen policemen were called to disperse the rioters.

Eczema, Salt Rheum.

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is often called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. It manifests itself in little round blisters, which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to any strong heat, are almost unbearable.

The pre-eminent success which Burdock Blood Bitters has met with in permanently curing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

No other remedy has done, or can do, so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture, as our thousands of signed testimonials can testify to.

Mrs. Jas. B. Keady, Linton, N.B., writes: "I was so troubled with Salt Rheum for eight years, that I could not work my hands were so sore. By using Burdock Blood Bitters my hands were eventually cured."

Mrs. Ira C. Buckner, Eden, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with Eczema for a long time. It came out on my face and between my shoulders. A friend told me about Burdock Blood Bitters. I took two bottles and it helped me so much I cannot recommend it too highly."

ANOTHER KING PASSES AWAY

Sweden Mourns Loss of Her Well Beloved Monarch.

LONG REIGN'S PEACEFUL END

Became Unconscious on Saturday and Sank Slowly—Royal Family Present by Deathbed—Whole Country is Bowed With Grief—King's Last Words Were Those of Thanks Gustaf Succeeds to Throne.

Stockholm, Dec. 9.—Oscar II., King of Sweden, died at 9.10 o'clock yesterday morning in the royal apartment of the palace, surrounded by the members of his family, including the aged Queen, Sophia, Crown Prince Oscar Gustaf, and high Ministers of state. Outside the palace great crowds stood with bowed heads and tearful eyes, long after the announcement came of the death of their well-beloved sovereign.

The whole country is bowed with grief, for Oscar was something more than a ruler of his people, and had endeared himself to them as an intimate and personal friend. When the flag on the palace was dipped to half mast there was a moan of anguish from the assembled multitude and many of them cried, "Our dear old King is dead."

The last hours of the expiring monarch were passed in unconsciousness, and up to the end he gave no sign of recognizing those about him. The Queen was prostrated because she could not bid her farewell.

In the palace courtyard in the dim, cold grey mist of the morning stood a crowd of school boys, being Oscar's most devoted friends. Here they stood for hours, cold and shivering, watching the palace flagstaff. There, also gathered many old men and women in rags, such as the King had always stopped to comfort with mild words and generous alms when he met them in the parks or streets, their faces tear-stained because their beloved King and benefactor was dying. Suddenly the flag was dropped to half-mast, and a wail of misery and sorrow arose. The old folks clasped their hands and prayed and wept.

In a room near the death chamber, the first marshal of the court read to the Cabinet a draft of the new King's proclamation to the Swedish people.

In an ante-chamber high officers and officials discussed the policy of the new King. One by one the ships in the harbor and the buildings throughout the city displayed the flag at half-mast, and the people soon crowded the streets and open places near the palace, but all spoke in whispers, bearing witness to the kindliness of him who had departed and to the love they bore him.

In the death chamber knelt the heart-broken Queen, and gathered about her her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, praying for strength to bear their great affliction. The church bells began to toll, and the minute guns boomed. All Sweden mourned its great loss.

New King Takes Oath.

By succession the throne of Sweden passes to Gustaf, Duke of Vermland, eldest son of the dead monarch, who will reign as King Charles V. He took the oath of office before the Cabinet and court, assembled in the grand gallery yesterday afternoon. Then the princes of the blood swore allegiance to the King, who embraced and kissed them, giving his favorite brother, the giant Carl, a hearty slap on the back.

This ceremony concluded, the Cabinet resigned, but the King begged the Ministers to remain at their posts. They acceded. King Gustaf read his proclamation and announced his intention, "With the people for the fatherland."

The officers of the army and the navy, and the civil officials then took the oath of allegiance.

The new Queen, until now Crown Princess Victoria, will arrive from the Continent to-day. The memorial service in the Lutheran Church, simple and solemn in form, with the singing of psalms and a sympathetic sermon, was held in the palace chapel yesterday afternoon.

The members of the royal family, the diplomatic corps, and the court functionaries attended.

No national mourning will be proclaimed. To-day all the theatres will open again, with the exception of the Royal Opera.

WHOLE CITY MOURNS THE LOSS

Fifty-Three Bodies Recovered From Mine at Monongah.

WEIRD SCENES OF GRIEF

Now Believed That Number of Dead Exceeds Four Hundred—Fire Again Breaks Out In Mine.—Rescue Work Hindered—Spectators In Danger — All Saloons Closed and Work is Suspended.

Monongah, W. Va., Dec. 9.—But 53 bodies had been recovered from Mines Nos. 6 and 8 of the Fairmont Coal Co. when darkness closed last night.

Fifty-six hours had elapsed since the awful explosion, and a majority of the bodies brought to the surface were in a terrible condition, necessitating almost immediate burial.

It is now believed that the number of dead will not be over 400.

A thorough investigation was made by the company yesterday, and it was discovered that many miners believed to have been entombed had escaped because they had not gone to work Friday, after Thursday's holiday.

Shortly after 3 o'clock, fire broke out again in No. 8, and the rescuers were at once ordered to the surface.

Thousands of sightseers from the surrounding towns had gathered about the openings. Through megaphones the crowds were notified of the fire and the danger of another explosion, but they refused to leave, and it was with great difficulty that they were forced to seek places of safety.

Efforts were then directed toward extinguishing the fire, and it is thought it would be subdued within a few hours.

It was said by members of the rescuing party that over 100 bodies have been located in both mines, and that they will be brought to the surface as soon as the fire has been extinguished.

The system of rescue work was almost perfectly organized, and excellent results were obtained. It is now known just how long a man can stay in the foul air of the mines, and relays of fifteen miners have been provided. With clock-like precision the relief appears, and good progress was made all day until halted by the fire.

All day women crowded the sides of the hills overlooking the ill-fated mines and cried aloud. As the day advanced, they became almost crazed through grief and suspense. One woman pulled out her hair, handfuls at a time. Another tore all the skin from both of her cheeks with her finger nails. Some lay down on the frozen ground and cried themselves to sleep. In this condition many were carried to their homes near by, without awakening.

All saloons in Monongah have been closed since the explosion, and the 6,000 miners employed in other mines in the vicinity have suspended work and tendered their assistance to rescuing parties.

The property loss is estimated at $50,000, exclusive of the cost of rescue work.

LASH FOR CRIMINALS.

Should Be Administered While Offence Takes Place.

Kingston, Dec. 9.—Within the past few months, various judges throughout the country have been committing men to the Kingston Penitentiary to be flogged, in addition to their term of years. It is questionable whether this is a most desirable place to do the flogging. The authorities here think not, but rather that the punishment should be inflicted at the place where the crime was committed, thus being a greater punishment than if whipped privately and quietly, as is done in the prison here. The keepers who do the lashing regard it as a perfunctory duty, and therefore, do not wield the cat with the vigor that might be done at the punishment inflicted, take place in the town square, and they think who felt aggrieved over the crime that had been committed.

Captain Arrested For Murder.

Victoria, Dec. 9.—Captain Leach of the steamer Chieftain has been arrested on a charge of attempted murder of Albert Hasting, bartender. Leach fired one shot at close range and the button and watch chain against which the bullet glanced undoubtedly saved Hasting's life.

Trade With Japan.

Ottawa, Dec. 9.—Alexander MacLean, Canadian trade commissioner at Tokio, reports that Canada's total exports to Japan for the nine months ending Sept. 30 were to the value of $114,377, mostly wheat products from Western Canada. During the same period Japan sent Canada raw silks and silk tissues valued at $169,023, as compared with $309,045 for the same period in 1906, and tea to the value of $437,899, as compared with $393,502 in the previous year. The rice crop will be 10 per cent. better than last year, and the tea crop will average about the same, although the Government has prohibited the picking of the fourth crop.

He makes some interesting references to Japanese business morality, and says that the Japanese are commencing to realize that it is better to conform to occidental ideas in doing business with people on this continent. There is a noticeably less tendency now on the part of the Japanese to repudiate bargains which do not promise to be profitable.

Ontario Was Asked.

Toronto, Dec. 9.—Premier Whitney denies that the appointment of an immigration agent-general from Ontario for London, had been considered or discussed by the Cabinet.

"When I was in England the people who are projecting the Strand buildings, expecting the Dominion Government to take offices there, asked me if we would also, which might imply the appointment of an agent-general, but nothing of the kind has been considered," Mr. Whitney declared.

Burglars at Paris.

Paris, Ont., Dec. 9.—Burglars entered five houses yesterday morning. Only an overcoat was taken, and it was thrown away in the road.

The Following Letter Speaks For Itself

Peterborough, Nov. 1st, 1907.

W. G. MORROW, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premiums that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerably more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. R. STRATTON.

Any person contemplating taking out Life Insurance will find it to his advantage to secure our rates before placing the risk.

DEAR SIRS:—

I beg to acknowledge the receipt this morning of cheque covering the amount appraised as our loss in the recent fire in our premises. Although it is practically only one week since the fire occured, we are already in receipt of the cash.

Such prompt settlement does yourselves and Companies represented, the greatest credit. I might state that our loss was settled in a manner most satisfactory to us in every respect, and I appreciate the interest taken by yourselves personally in connection therewith.

Yours truly,

HUNTING FATALITY.

While Attacking Wolf Charge of Gun Exploded, Killing Man.

Sheho, Sask., Dec. 9.—Details have been received of a distressing fatality in the neighborhood of Ebenezer, about fifty miles southeast. A German (name unknown) had come to the district for the purpose of hunting, and went out on horseback, accompanied by his hounds. Having run down a wolf, he alighted and struck it on the head with the barrels of his gun. This broke the barrels, and again he struck the wolf with the stock of the gun, but somehow or other the gun exploded and the full charge entered the man's body in the neighborhood of the heart, killing him instantly. An inquest was considered unnecessary.

ANNUAL MEETING OF HOCKEY CLUB

Arrangements Will be Made for Intermediate O.H.A. Team

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club will be held to-night at 7.30 o'clock in the Oriental Hotel, and all those interested in the grand old winter game are asked to be present. Arrangements will be made for placing an intermediate team in the O.H.A., and it is important that there should be a large attendance of enthusiasts.

It is understood that the team will be taken over by the Strathconas, last year's City League winners, and will play in the O.H.A. series under that name. As the majority of the team will be picked from the City League, and as the Straths seem to have corralled all the available material in the City League, it would be but reasonable to call the team the Strathconas. A very strong team can be placed on the ice, and with Peterborough grouped with Port Hope, Cobourg, Lindsay and Whitby there is no reason why local people should not be able to see a fast brand of hockey this season.

AN APPLICATION FOR ADMISSION

Bridgenorth Desires Admittance to The City Hockey League

Mr. Kelly of Bridgenorth, was in the city on Saturday and desires to enter a team in the City League. He notified President F. A. Clarke and it is altogether probable that the Chemong Lake boys will be admitted. They have a number of good players in their team, including the Kelly Boys, Jopling brothers, the Coons and Cullens, all well known in Association football circles. Bridgenorth will make a valuable addition to the City League, and they will be welcomed into the fold. As far as support is concerned the Bridgenorth people are past masters in the art.

HAVELOCK HOCKEYISTS IN ORDER

Organize With a Favourable Season Before Them

A large and enthusiastic meeting was held in the town hall on Friday night of last week, when the Hockey Club was organized for the coming season and the following officers elected:—

Hon. President—Jas. Thompson.
President—Jas. E. Fowler.
Vice-President—T E Dineen.
Manager—H T Andrews.
Treasurer—I Morris.
Secretary—H Connolly.
Executive Committee—F Brown, W Foster and O Bracken.

The Captain will be elected by the players selected by the Manager and the Executive, and he will control the team during matches.

The secretary was instructed to write the clubs of the surrounding towns with a view towards forming a League, in order to emphasize interest in this form of winter sport.

The Club starts the season in a business-like way, and the officers can be depended upon to make the Club a success. Membership tickets have been issued which may be had from the secretary for the nominal sum of 50c, and anyone wishing to help the Club financially, should make it a point to do so in this way. —Havelock Standard.

Those Horrid Bilious Spells

HAVE BECOME A HABIT—BUT YOU CAN BREAK UP THE HABIT BY USING

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

"It is nothing when you get used to it," is a common expression which many seem to apply to attacks of biliousness.

Year after year they suffer from frequent spells of bilious headache, indigestion, constipation followed by looseness of the bowels, dizziness, despondency and ill-temper, and the habit seems to have become so firmly established that they do not think of breaking the chains of bondage.

Why not make a break for liberty, health and happiness. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills stand ready to help you. They have helped thousands under just such circumstances to know again the joys of healthful living.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure biliousness by reason of their direct and specific action on the liver, causing the bile to be properly filtered from the blood, where it acts as a poison, and passed into the intestines, where it is necessary to aid digestion and regulate the action of the bowels.

By this treatment you not only obtain relief from the attack, but bring about lasting cure, and prevent kidney disease, which is the usual outcome of neglected biliousness.

"I was suffering for years with stomach trouble and terrible headaches, and spent a good many dollars in medicine (without receiving any benefit. Hearing (Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills highly recommended, I determined to give them a trial and did so with most satisfactory results as I was very greatly benefitted, and do not hesitate to recommend this treatment as the best obtainable for such ailments." — Mrs. Thomas Covert, Highland Grove, Peterborough Co., Ont.

COASTERS RAN INTO HORSES

Accident Narrowly Averted on Saturday Afternoon

Nothing short of miraculous was was the escape of four boys who were coasting on Morrow's Hill, Sherbrooke street, west, on Saturday afternoon. A number of boys were out for some good fun on the hill and had single and double sleighs they call "bob" sleighs. The practice is a common one as the boys get a long ride down the street and travel at a high rate of speed. The farmers return from market, many going over the hill and some narrow escapes have been recorded and accidents have also resulted from this dangerous sport.

On Saturday a set of bobs with four boys riding on them, started down the hill and went at a fast clip and when on the second hill a farmer's sleigh approached.

The boys apparently became excited for they ran full into the team of horses and it is reported escaped without any serious injury. A few bruises were received, but otherwise the boys were fortunately unhurt. Total anger of this coasting practice is very evident and the parents should do all in their power to prevent their children from continuing to coast as it is bound to lead to injury.

Music and Drama

A DUTCHMAN'S HONEYMOON

That hilarious farce in three acts, "A Dutchman's Honey-Moon," was presented by Frank L. Whittaker's big company to two appreciative audiences on Saturday at the Grand. The skit if not novell is amusing, and kept the audiences in laughter from start to finish. The plot very closely follows that in "What happened to Jones," in which it will be remembered that a prize fight raided by the police, furnishes the cause of a number of very amusing situations. In "A Dutchman's Honeymoon," the situation is further complicated by the introduction of a love sick Dutchman who has eloped. The action is fast and furious and abundant comedy is furnished. Frank Whittaker as Jack Clinton, a prize fighter who is forced to pose as a minister did the best acting, although all the roles were in capable hands. The specialties were new and good.

MR. CROWLEY GOING TO EDMONTON

Well Known Local Athlete Secured Good Position in the West

Mr. W F Crowley, the well known local hockey, lacrosse and rugby player, will leave the city on Monday next for Edmonton where he has secured a lucrative civic position in connection with the installation of the new municipal telephone system. This will be sorry news to local people who will be exceedingly sorry to learn that the popular athlete is leaving the city. He has thousands of friends here who will regret his departure as he has been one of the most popular and versatile athletes who has ever worn a Peterborough uniform, having played on no less than fifteen championship Peterborough teams and he will be greatly missed in many ways.

Mr. Crowley will form a valuable addition to Fred Whitcroft's Edmonton hockey team: With two Peterborough men on the line-up and another, Mr. Alf. Kemp, acting as secretary, Edmonton should be heard from this season.

Arm Swelled Result Of Poison

Mr. Sam Londry of 92 McDonel street, a driver for the Canadian Express Company, was unable to resume his duties to-day owing to a swelling underneath his arm. Mr. Londry had his wrist cut some time ago and did not have it attended to. Blood poisoning set in and went up the arm. Mr. Londry went over to see Mr. Pratt, another driver for the company, about taking his wagon out to-day. Mr. Pratt has a very sore leg, due to an injury he received in an accident last week, and has since been off duty. The Canadian Express Company is seriously handicapped, and it is hoped that Mr. Londry will be able to resume his duties in a few days.

CLOTHES LINE ROBBED IN SOUTH END

Woman Left Clothes Out to Dry Yesterday Afternoon—Lines Were Bare This Morning

A sure sign of hard times is to see a clothes line robbed. Several complaints have been received from different sources regarding the robbery of clothes lines, and one lady appeared in person at the police station this afternoon to lay a complaint. She said that yesterday afternoon she hung her washing out to dry, and when she went to the yard this morning she found the clothes lines bare, with the exception of a few towels here and there. The marks of a number 10 shoe were discernible in the damp soil and the woman was positive that it was the mark of a man's shoe. The police are going to look into the matter and hope to have the thief in custody in a short time.

Mrs. H. A. Yenney, 532 Weller street, and her daughter, Mrs. Garrard, will receive on Tuesday, December 10, and in future on the second and third Tuesdays of each month.

Should Factories Get a Fixed Assessment?

That is What The City Council Will Have to Settle To-night—Four Factories Will be Represented At Meeting

SOME OTHER BUSINESS

One of the most important questions that will come up to-night at the meeting of the Council is that of fixed assessment for a number of factories which have applied to the city for the same, among them the Auburn Woollen Company, the Peterborough Canoe Company, the McDonald Estate Lumber Company, and the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company. It is a problem that will require much discussion, as before deciding for a fixed low assessment the Council will have to consider whether or not such fixed assessment would be favourably regarded by the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature, before whom it would have to come. The Council could not expect the Legislature to pass a measure that would give local firms an unfair advantage over their competitors. Therefore the question the Council will have to consider before deciding on the problem of fixed assessment is whether the competitors of the local firms are better situated in the matter of assessment than they are. If such is found to be the case it is very likely that the request for fixed assessment will be granted, in which case it is practically certain that other firms in Peterborough in the same lines of business will want that privilege, too.

"Citizen" Advocates a New Carnegie Library

MORE DISCUSSION NEEDED

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—Now that the trustees of the Nicholls Estate have made a very generous donation to the city for Public Library purposes, and have given the city power to sell the Simcoe street property, and, it is understood, have authorized such disposition of the proceeds as the city may see fit, is not this a very opportune time to consider seriously the question of applying to Mr. Carnegie for a library building that will be a credit to this rapidly growing city, and then utilize the grant from the Nicholls Estate as a permanent endowment or maintenance fund? The chief objection heretofore raised to the Carnegie library has been the necessity of providing an annual maintenance outlay amounting to ten per cent. of the cost of the library. This objection, although a very weak one, will now lose much of its force. A city of the size of Peterborough, which will in ten years be over twice its present size, should have a library that costs not less than $50,000, including the necessary new books, and $5,000 a none too large a sum for the city to expend annually in the maintenance of and additions to so useful an institution. We certainly should be ashamed to be found so far behind other enterprising cities of smaller size in so important an adjuret to the educational system. The addition of a new Collegiate Institute and a Normal School to our educational assets indicate that Peterborough citizens are alive to the advantages of such institutions; but our present lamentable deficiency in the matter of an up-to-date library, free to all, bespeaks a strange inconsistency. With the influx and efflux of Normal students into and out of Peterborough, this place will soon acquire an unenviable reputation as providing beautiful buildings, but very inadequate educational facilities, unless the citizens bestir themselves and show some interest in this very important matter. With so little interest manifested in the subject by the citizens, very little blame can be attached to the Council for taking no action.

Let those who appreciate the immeasurable advantages of a good library keep the subject alive by discussion of the subject, but letters to the press, by essays and debates in our schools and societies, and by personal active work, until something tangible is accomplished. It is to be hoped that the press, which exerts so powerful an influence in all matters of public concern, will do its share in keeping this question before the public.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I am,

Yours respectfully,
CITIZEN.

Sleighing For Christmas Is Irl Hicks' Prediction

Stormy Weather This Week, Sleet And Snow Next Followed by Heavy Downfalls of the Beautiful

THE LATEST FORECASTS

For the remainder of the month Prof. Irl Hicks predicts some stormy weather, and especially from to-day until about the 20th of the month. Snow for Christmas, and plenty of it by the end of the year, with cold combined. Prof. Hicks, in his official organ, "Word and Works" says:—

A reactionary storm period is central on the 10th and 11th. This is also an annual period of maximum magnetic unrest. Earth currents, volcanic trouble, "northern lights" and storms over the high seas reach a crisis, or set in for a continued period of winter solstice perturbations about this time. Look for threatening to fitful stormy conditions, with northerly gales, sleet and snow, over the 13th and into the period following.

A regular storm period is at the crisis of winter solstice, and is a time of general and violent atmospheric disturbances. It is central on the 16th, extending from the 14th to the 19th. This period embraces the culmination of the mercury period and the incoming of the Venus period, also the full moon at extreme north declination. Wide and intense barometric depression will appear at this time, and excessive storms of rain, sleet and snow, attended and followed by high, dangerous winter gales, on the seas especially, will result from the 15th to the 20th. These storms will reach all parts of the interior in one or more forms—rain or snow or sleet, perhaps all three in most parts, and a general and severe cold wave will come in behind the storms, touching the whole country in varying degrees from north to south. Ships on the Atlantic Ocean will encounter perilous gales and seas through all this part of December, the suffering and danger all being augmented by burdens of sleet, frozen spray, and piercing cold. Watch reports from vessels reaching port on both sides. Another seismic and volcanic crisis will centre on the 19th, covering three days before and after that date.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 22nd and 23rd, being exactly at the centre of the December solstice. In the nature of the case, disturbed and unsettled weather conditions will prevail through all this part of the month, but increased and decided storm conditions will be noted, passing eastwardly over the country, on and touching the 22nd and and 23rd. The Venus disturbance will be present in growing intensity at this time, and all phenomena of a meteorological character will take on greater intensity and extremes. Heavy snow will be a feature, and by the end of December all northern and central sections will have experienced general and generous snow falls. Extremes of cold will alternate with the storm periods.

A regular storm period runs from the 28th to the end of December. The crisis of this period will fall on the 28th, 29th and 30th. About the 28th look for much warmer, with lightning and thunder southward; but sudden change to blizzardous storms and cold will follow, and the year will go out with a great cold wave coming down from the northwest. The Jupiter and Saturn periods extend into 1908, and these periods will culminate during the first half of next year.

In connection with these forecasts for December, which close up the forecasts for the year 1907, we desire to call attention to the record of seismic shocks, reported from all extremes of the earth during the past two or three months. On September 2 Prof. Milne, director of Wight Observatory, Isle of Wight, reported one of the longest seismic perturbations ever recorded on the seismograph at that observatory, the disturbance lasting about four hours. The same disturbance was recorded by the weather bureau seismograph at Washington, D.C., and in various other parts of the earth. At the same time tornadoes were reported in various parts. These disturbances were continued at other parts of September, all extremes of the globe feeling them in the form of seismic, volcanic and atmospheric perturbations.

WHO USES HYOMEI?

The Best People in Peterboro' Says Wm. Madill—Guaranteed in Catarrhal Troubles

No other remedy or treatment for catarrh has ever been so popular or made so many remarkable cures in Peterborough as Hyomei.

The best people attest its curative virtues, says Mr. Madill, who is the local agent. The fair way in which Hyomei was sold, to refund the cost unless it gave satisfaction, was the best proof, when it was introduced, that it possessed unusual curative powers. Mr. Madill took all the risk of the treatment giving satisfaction, and left it to the purchaser to be the judge.

Later, when Hyomei was used and recommended by our well-known physicians and business men and their wives as a treatment that absolutely cures catarrh, no matter how serious or long standing, the sales rapidly grew, and to-day there is no remedy in Mr. Madill's stock that has such a large and steady sale.

The first breath of Hyomei's healing air kills all catarrhal poison.

Try Hyomei to-day on Mr. Madill's offer to refund the money if the treatment does not give you satisfaction.

THE DATE FOR RURAL SCHOOL MEETINGS

They Will be Held on the Day After Christmas This Year

Annual school meetings in rural schools are usually held on the last Wednesday of December, but as that day this year is Christmas there seems to be some doubt as to the day for the meeting. Having been asked the question by several interested parties, and believing that there may be many others that are in doubt, it is only necessary to quote for their information Section 14 of the Public School's Act, which reads as follows:

"A meeting of the ratepayers of every school section shall be held annually on the last Wednesday of December, or, if such Wednesday be a holiday, then on the next day following."

The school meetings will therefore be held this year on Thursday, December 26.

To the Editor,—

Dear Sir, — On behalf of the expressmen of the city I would like to publicly draw attention to the actions of the mail carrier, who I understand, should not carry baggage with the mail. At many times he solicits baggage, and throws a grip or trunk, and often a good load over the mail bags, delivers them, and then takes the mail to the post office. I do not wish to say anything further but if this is contrary to law I would like to see it stopped.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,

AN EXPRESSMAN.

Loses Watch Jumping Over Fence

It Was a Valuable One And Has Not Yet Been Found

While jumping over the fence that divides the Cavanagh House from Foster's livery barn, Geo. Kearns, the foreman of the stable, lost a handsome gold watch valued at $25, the gift of a dead friend. Mr. Kearns felt the watch jump from his pocket as he leaped to the ground, but he has been unable to find it. This serves to show how easily it is to lose a watch, and every time pleas should be placed in a safe pocket, and securely fastened.

EAST EMILY ANNUAL MEETING

Successful Season in Connection With the Cheese Factory

The annual meeting of East Emily Cheese Factory was held yesterday afternoon and it proved to be a very successful one. The attendance was large and included Messrs. Geo. A. Gillespie, N G Sommerville and D J Cameron, who gave addresses.

The secretary's report showed that the factory had a very successful season even if the season was late in beginning.

Women Suffer Agonies from Kidney Trouble

GIN PILLS CURE THEM

There is Mrs. Ripley, for instance. She suffered terribly with her back. It ached, ached, ached—all the time. Even in bed, it seemed as if she could not get easy. It finally became so bad that housework was impossible.

She certainly was a discouraged woman when she began to take GIN PILLS. And there isn't a happier, healthier woman in the Dominion than this same Mrs. Ripley to-day.

Williamsdale East, May 9th.

I cannot refrain from writing you the benefits I have received from Gin Pills. Before I had taken Gin Pills I suffered dreadfully with my back, and had suffered for twenty years. I have tried almost everything but got no relief until I got "Gin Pills."

I have taken six boxes and now I have not the sign of a pain or an ache in my back. I am now 46 and feel as well as I ever did in my life. There is nothing can hold a place with Gin Pills for pains in the back to which women are subject. Yours truly,

MRS. HANNAH P. RIPLEY.

Mrs. Ripley had serious Kidney Trouble. And the sick kidneys were making her back ache—were giving her those splitting headaches—were sapping her strength—and dragging her down. GIN PILLS really saved her life. GIN PILLS cured her kidneys. She has been well ever since. GIN PILLS are a grand medicine for women.

Try them at our expense. Mention this paper when writing and we will send you a free sample so you can see for yourself just what GIN PILLS will do for you. The Bole Drug Co., Winnipeg, Man. 91

ENTITLED TO PARTICULARS

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;
One ounce Compound Salatone;
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;
Mix, and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

The above prescription has been found invaluable in the treatment of kidney, bladder and urinary troubles, and diseases arising therefrom, such as rheumatism, sciatica, lame back and lumbago, and we feel that the public are entitled to particulars concerning it.

A prominent physician states that the excellent results that have been obtained from the use of the mixture are due to its direct action upon the kidneys, assisting them in their work of filtering all poisonous waste matter and acids from the blood and expelling same in the urine, and at the same time restoring the kidneys to a healthy condition.

He further states that anyone suffering from afflictions of this nature will find it to be very beneficial, and suggests that it be given a trial.

KAISER'S VISIT EXPENSIVE.

Cost King Edward Half Million Dollars to Entertain Emperor.

London, Dec. 9.—Taking all his expenses into consideration, it is probably very safe to estimate that King Edward's hospitality on the occasion of the state visit of the Emperor and Empress of Germany and the several other royalties who were his guests at about the same time, cost the King the tidy fortune of $500,000 out of his own private purse, not to mention what was spent by the Government, the City of London, other officials and private people.

Some of the principal items of expenditure will run about as follows:

Wages to extra court officials, waiters, huntsmen, musicians, interpreters, extra police, detectives, etc.....	$ 50,000
Decorations, repair to Kensington Palace, Windsor Castle, other royal residences used by guests, and sweeping 2,500 royal chimneys	50,000
Street decorations in London, Windsor and Portsmouth..	25,000
State banquets and entertainments	50,000
Reviews of troops, naval displays, etc.	150,000
Total ..., ...	$325,000

A very large item of personal expense to the King and Queen when they entertain many royalties is the wholesale giving of presents, not only to their royal guests, but to each member of the visiting royalties' suites.

CONSPIRATORS TRAPPED.

Desperate Battle With Police In House at St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 9.—A force of police wearing armor raided the headquarters of a branch of the Revolutionist organization at Riga on Saturday.

The conspirators occupied the top rooms of a five-storey house. The door was barricaded, and when the police demanded admission a woman of 57, named Greta Tomson, replied: "We shall not surrender without a fight."

At the same instant a volley was fired through the door by the inmates, the bullets rattling against the armor of the men outside, one of whom was slightly wounded.

The police then entered an adjoining attic, from which the revolutionists could be more readily attacked, and for four hours a continuous fire was directed through the walls.

Gradually the replies of the conspirators became less frequent, and finally ceased. The police then broke into the apartments, and found four dead, including the woman Tomson, lying on the floor.

There were also five men and two girls wounded. The revolutionists, who were armed with a Mauser rifle and three Browning revolvers, had fired about 700 shots.

BOMB FOR KING CARLOS.

Startling Discovery of Plot In Lisbon Opera House.

London, Dec. 9.—According to the Madrid correspondent of The Express, two bombs have been found beneath the royal box at the opera house, Lisbon, where King Carlos will attend the opening of the season of Dec. 18. Electric wires from the bombs led to the rear of the stage.

The chief electrician, a violent Republican, was suspected and committed suicide by shooting himself as the police were about to arrest him.

Other persons who are suspected of being implicated in the plot have been arrested.

YOUNG GIRL MISSING.

Believed to Have Been Kidnapped and Brought to Canada.

Boston, Dec. 9.—James Guriana and his wife are heartbroken over the kidnapping of their daughter, who is very young, and the police of all New England have been notified of the crime, which occurred at Athol, Mass.

The trail leads to Canada, and Chief Beatty has decided opinions that the girl has been taken there. He discovered that the alleged kidnapper, whose name is Salvadore, came from some part of Canada.

The girl is very talented and beautiful. She refused to marry Salvadore, who fell in love with her, and after that she was spirited away.

To Raise Tug Escort.

Port Dalhousie, Dec. 9.—The three tugs, Alert, Augusta ond Euphemia, have just returned after being out all day in search of the lost tug Escort. They report having found her in 78 feet of water. The diver put chains around her, and the three tugs all had a line connected to her, but could not move her. She will have to be raised with a pontoon.

The diver examined the cabin and the inside apartments in search of the bodies, but found none, all the doors being open. They will return again with the necessary tackle to raise her when the weather permits.

TO ARREST ZULU CHIEF.

Dinizulu Must Stand Trial For Treason In Natal Court.

Pietermaritzburg, Natal, Dec. 9.—Magistrate Stuart has been entrusted with a warrant for the arrest of Dinizulu, the Zulu chieftain, whose loyalty has been questioned and whose alleged support of the rebels is declared to be responsible for the threatening situation in Natal arising from the increased boldness of the natives.

Mr. Stuart will proceed at once to Usutu, the Zulu capital. Should Dinizulu refuse to come in and stand trial by a civil court, the military forces already mobilized will take the field immediately.

It is asserted by those who know the situation well that the Zulu uprising is part of a general movement all over the continent below the equator, having for its motto "South Africa for the blacks."

What is known as the Ethiopian movement has taken a firm hold upon the South African natives for years past. Friends of missionary effort resent the charge that this is a political propaganda, but careful investigation shows that under the cloak of religious effort it is really an agitation to drive the whites into the sea.

THEATRE MEN CHARGED.

Rigorous Enforcement of Sunday Law In Kansas City.

Kansas City, Dec. 9.—Drastic measures were taken here yesterday to enforce the Sunday closing law. The grand jury indicted 238 traveling actors and actresses and employes of local theatres charged with violating the Missouri law forbidding labor on Sunday.

Of this number 141 were arrested and gave bail for $200 each, while the others evaded the officers and left the city without being apprehended. Many of the performers went directly from the matinees to the Court House and had not had an opportunity to remove the paint from their faces. About one-third of them were women.

A fight for Sunday closing has been waged by Judge Wallace for several weeks. He recently ordered theatrical managers to close on Sunday. They refused to do so and secured a temporary injunction preventing his interference with their performances. The Federal Court dissolved the injunction, and Judge Wallace sought the indictments to force compliance. It is his intention to have the managers and players indicted each week, and to arrest them and place them under individual bonds.

FEROCIOUS HEAD HUNTERS.

Japanese In Formosa Take Steps to Exterminate Them.

San Francisco, Dec. 9.—The extermination of savage, murderous head-hunters by electrocution is the latest novelty introduced by Japanese in Formosa, according to William Clifton, who has just arrived here from the Orient.

"These head-hunters," said Clifton, "number about one hundred thousand, and infest the entire east coast of the island. All efforts to civilize them have failed. They recently inveigled a party of 300 Chinese and Japanese into an ambush on the pretence of showing some treasure and killed all but three.

"In punishment for this treachery, the Japanese inaugurated a method of electrocution. Large bodies of troops were sent out, and now when a company of head-hunters is located the place is surrounded by a wire fence. The wires are charged with electricity. The soldiers begin to shoot, the savages stampede, and then the deadly wire get those the bullets miss."

TRAIN LEAVES RAILS.

Escaped Falling Over Deep Chasm by Very Narrow Margin.

Vancouver, Dec. 9.—The second section of the Pacific Express on the C. P. R. Saturday afternoon collided with a small rock-slide in the Fraser canyon, near Hope, 90 miles east of Vancouver. Instead of going over the embankment, the engine, baggage and first passenger car were luckily thrown against the rock walls on the side opposite the river when derailed. Engineer Ostrom and Fireman Lusson were slightly injured. No passengers were hurt. The track was cleared in four hours.

Fate of the Dundonald.

Bluff Harbor, New Zealand, Dec. 9.—A terrible tale of suffering was brought here by the New Zealand Government steamer Hinemoa. She had on board 18 survivors of the long missing British bark Dundonald, who were in a distressing state of emaciation as the result of nine months' existence on a totally uninhabited island, whose scant vegetation and shellfish, together with other produce of the sea, were practically their only means of subsistence during that period.

Sunfield Likely to Hang.

Hamilton, Dec. 9.—J. L. Counsell, Jake Sunfield's lawyer, says he has new evidence upon which to base his appeal to the Minister of Justice. He says he can produce witnesses who will refute the evidence of W. Walsh, who claimed that Radzyk told him that Sunfield had done the shooting. Now that the Court of Appeal has confirmed the sentence, Dec. 27, will be the date of the execution unless Mr. Counsell is successful in his appeal to Ottawa.

Troublesome Growth

"Does the child ever keep still a minute?" asked the woman as the youngster sprawled noisily over the couch in a dozen squirming positions at once, it seemed to her.

"No," answered his mother. "They are growing when they do that, they say."

Two Deer With One Shot.

Orono, Me., Dec. 9.—A positively authenticated instance of a hunter killing two deer with one rifle shot occurred one day last week less than two miles from this village.

Edwin Currier and two friends, all living at Basin Mills, were out hunting, when they came upon two deer, a small doe and a large buck. Both were side by side, the buck a few feet from the doe. Mr. Currier fired at the buck, but at the moment he pulled the trigger the doe threw up her head. Great was the hunter's surprise to see, not only the buck fall, but the doe to stagger off as if badly wounded, and fall within a few rods.

Examination showed that the bullet had gone through the doe's neck, cutting the large vein, and had struck the buck fairly in the spine, killing him almost instantly.

Ocean Liner Buffeted.

New York, Dec. 9.—After a stormy passage the White Star liner Celtic arrived yesterday with two of her lifeboats stove in, the lashings of her aftermast funnel wrenched from their fastenings and her superstructure showing visible evidences of constant battling with mountaineous seas, which piled over her bows and tore along her decks. Only on one day during the voyage did the passengers catch a glimpse of the sun.

Carmania Aground.

New York, Dec. 9.—The big Cunard liner Carmania, which became wedged fast on a soft mudbank across the New Ambrose Channel while leaving port yesterday for Europe, was floated into deep water at high tide last night by tugs and returned to quarantine apparently none the worse for her experience.

ENGLISH INN SIGNS.

One That Cast a Reflection on King George III.

One of the last stopping places of the London and Weymouth coach was at a little Dorset village, whose principal hostelry was known as the Ass' Head. So good were the refreshments, so obliging the host and so reasonable the charges that the inn did a thriving trade and was well spoken of throughout the district. In one of George III.'s visits to Weymouth the royal party stayed at this inn and had lunch. This was very gratifying to the loyal host, who immediately took down his original signboard and erected a full length painting of the king in its place. Henceforth the inn should be known as the Royal George. The proprietor of the rival hostelry in the village purchased the Ass' Head sign for a few shillings and had it placed over the door of his house. Now, it so happened that the coachman and guard of the Weymouth coach had been changed on the day this alteration of the signboards took place, and they were both strangers to the district, but their instructions had been to stop at the Ass' Head, and, seeing the sign on the rival house, they pulled up there. This much annoyed the original owner, who, foreseeing that his pocket might suffer for his loyalty, immediately had nailed to the bottom of the painting of King George a board with these words in large letters: "This is the original Ass!"—London P. T. O.

DISCOVERY OF COAL.

So far as known the first mention of the occurrence of coal in the United States is contained in the journal of Father Hennepin, a Jesuit missionary, who in 1679 recorded a "cole mine" on Illinois river near the present city of Ottawa, Ill.

Coal was first mined in the Richmond basin, Virginia, about seventy years after Father Hennepin's discovery in Illinois, but the first records of production from the Virginia mines were for the year 1822, when, according to one authority, 54,000 tons were mined.

Ohio probably ranks second in priority of production, as coal was discovered there in 1755, but the records of production date back only to 1838.

The mining of anthracite in Pennsylvania began about 1700, and it is said that fifty-five tons were shipped to Columbia, Pa., in 1807. Reports of the anthracite coal trade are usually begun with the year 1820, when 365 tons, one for each day of the year, were shipped to Philadelphia from the Lehigh region. Before this, however, in 1814, a shipment of twenty-two tons was made from Carbondale, also to Philadelphia. It is probable that the actual production prior to 1820 was between 2,500 and 3,000 tons.

Why Boys Play Hookey.

A child plays truant either because the school has too little interest for him or else because the parent cannot properly control him. Probably in most cases both circumstances affect his conduct. If the subjects taught and the teachers themselves were in all respects what they should be and if the parents had full control of their children, there would be little heard of truancy or its effects. There are three causes of truancy, therefore, which deserve attention—a narrow curriculum which fails to meet the needs or interests of all the pupils; inefficient teachers who by reason of a lack of skill, tact and sympathy fail to reach some of the pupils; weak or indifferent parents who fail in their duty of keeping their children in school.—"Charities and the Commons."

Brave Bengali Boy.

A brave act by a Bengali boy of eight is reported from Bhatpara. A native had recently sunk a well in the courtyard of his house. His little son was gathering sand close to the well, which was covered with a piece of matting, when his younger sister stepped upon this and it collapsed. The eight year old boy at once climbed down the well with the help of the narrow projections of the earthen rings forming its circumference, and at great risk to his life brought her out safe and sound. The water in the well was more than enough to drown the girl, but fortunately she was supported by the matting, which fell with her.

Had Palpitation of The Heart

EVER SINCE ONE WAS NINE YEARS OLD,

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS EFFECTED A COMPLETE CURE.

If you find your health failing, your food apparently doing you no good, your heart beating irregularly—now slow, now fast—skipping a beat now and then, palpitations or throbbings on the slightest excitement or exertion, pain in the region of the heart, face pale, dizzy and faint spells, these all point to heart weakness, to nerve derangement, to a state of health consequent upon these, which, if not corrected and cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, will surely end in utter prostration and hopeless invalidism.

From the depths many have been raised by this remarkable remedy, as its power is beyond all question most marvellous; but, why wait until you have gone so far? Taking these pills now will turn you from the perilous path of sickness and put you on the highway to health.

Miss Mary Wilson, Toronto, Ont., writes: "It is with the greatest of pleasure that I recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Ever since I was nine years of age I have been afflicted with palpitation of the heart, pain in my side and nervousness. As I grew older it kept increasing. After having tried numerous doctors medicines, but to no avail, I was induced to try your pills, and after using several boxes I began to improve, so kept on taking them for some time until now I can truthfully say I am in perfect health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cts. per box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

METHODIST CHURCH HOUSE.

Magnificent Headquarters to Be Erected Opposite Westminster Abbey.

The site of the old Aquarium at Westminster is now in possession of a small army of workmen, who are engaged in clearing the site for the erection of the great headquarters building of the Wesleyan Church. It will be remembered that the site was purchased at a cost of $1,800,000.

Our picture shows the building that will be erected at a cost of $750,000. In design it will carry out the "Wren" tradition. From the pavement to the top of the turret which will surmount the leaden dome the building will rise 200 feet—as high as the monument—and by reason of its imposing position will be easily visible from Waterloo Bridge or across St. James' Park. Two tall towers will flank either side of the front of the building, the whole of which will be built of Portland stone. The hall on the first floor will accommodate 2,500 people, and will be cruciform in shape. One of the four transepts will be occupied by the famous organ of the old Aquarium.

Londoners Wear Kilts.

It appears that the practice of wearing kilts is increasing in London as well as in Scotland, and, according to statements of one or two of the better known West End tailors, the practice is making considerable headway among the middle upper class of Scotsmen in London. The kilt, however, is not likely to be largely adopted because, even if picturesque, it is expensive. A complete outfit for evening dress costs no less than $150, but the general price ranges from $200 to $250. Above that one may go to almost any price, because brooches, sporrans, and so on may be mounted with very costly jewels. The ordinary outdoor Highland dress is less costly, but even that is a good deal more expensive than the morning or frock suit.

Telling Tales.

The teacher was giving them a practice lesson in the art of conversation, and every little girl was expected to tell of some incident in her recent experience. In the class there was one bashful little girl who finally was induced to tell of an experience she had when the family were out riding:

"We were riding along, having a nice time," she said, "when we saw another horse and buggy coming very fast. And pretty soon the buggy ran into something and was upset, and all the people were thrown out. Then papa said: 'Good enough for them. I never liked those people very well anyhow.'"

There was a burst of laughter in the room, for everybody knew who the people in the accident were.

The Same Old Mother.

"Now, Jamie," said the schoolteacher, "if there were only one pie for dessert and there were five of you children and papa and mamma to divide it among, how large a piece would you get?"

"One-sixth," replied Jamie promptly.

"But there would be seven people there, Jamie. Don't you know how many times seven goes into one?"

"Yes'm, and I know my mother. She'd say she wasn't hungry for pie that day. I'd get one-sixth."

An Invitation.

"I suppose," he ventured, "that you would never speak to me again if I were to kiss you?"

"Oh, George!" she exclaimed. "Why don't you get over the habit of always looking at the worse side of things?"—London Tit-Bits.

Oh, Say.

Englishman—I wouldn't want to hear more than the first line of "The Star Spangled Banner" to know that it was written by an American. American—Why so? Englishman—The first two words tell me that.—Exchange.

Why He Was Smooth.

"That convict I was talking to," said the visitor at the prison, "seems to be a smooth kind of man."

"Doubtless," responded the warden. "You see, he was ironed when he got here."

A USE FOR SPIDERS.

Keep Them in the House and You Will Have No Roaches.

"It is too bad so many people are prejudiced against spiders," said the man who always finds out curious things. "If they could stand it to have spiders around, they would soon get rid of cockroaches. In the spider the cockroach has an enemy that pursues him with more malevolence than does the cleanly housewife. And not only is this hatred more deep rooted; it is more deadly. All things considered, the cockroach shows mighty little respect for the human race. He knows that, although he is small, he is chock full of inventive genius, and he laughingly scorns the futile attempts of men and women to circumvent and destroy him.

"So long has he been battling for life against paris green, fly paper, hot water and wire cages that he has learned to saunter through green lanes of poison and wade rivers of glue without so much as soiling his toes, and when it comes to the scalding bath he swims blithely out and wriggles his whiskers in derision at his would be slayers. But he dares not treat the spider with such disdain. In fact, he doesn't have a chance, for the spider outdoes even the cockroach in cunning and nabs him without the least ceremony.

"Still it would be hardly advisable to recommend raising a crop of spiders as a sure preventive of cockroaches, for in most people's minds the exterminator is more objectionable than his victim."

THE LAST WITNESS.

He Caused a Commotion in a Suit in Chancery.

It was a suit in chancery, and there was a great gathering of deceased's family, quarreling, as relatives will, over the division of the spoils. The lawyers engaged chuckled, for the suit seemed likely to be prolonged and complicated.

There were many lawyers, too, and the judge marveled at the immensity of the deceased man's family as lawyer after lawyer rose in rapid succession, introducing themselves with the usual formula, "And I, my lord, am for the nephews (or nieces or fifteenth cousin removed, as the case may be) of the deceased." The procession seemed interminable, but at last it came to an end. Then a small voice was heard timidly saying from the back of the court, "May I be allowed to speak, my lord?" There was dead silence as his lordship adjusted his spectacles and asked rather dejectedly, "Who are you?"

The answer was, to say the least, unexpected. "I am the deceased, my lord," said the modest voice from the back of the court. That ended the action.

Quite unknown to his relatives the deceased had turned up from the wilds of Rhodesia. Obviously a man of humor, he must have taken a delight in watching how "the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft agley."—English Paper.

A "Cordon Bleu."

A woman cook in France is known as a "cordon bleu," the title having come down from the days of Du Barry and the profligate King Louis. The king and his favorite one day had a discussion as to the relative merits of men and women cooks. The king contended that only a man could cook a dish fit for a king to eat, and Du Barry upheld the skill of her sex. The result was a dinner given by Du Barry, every dish of which had been prepared by a woman. At the conclusion of the meal the king acknowledged he was wrong. He sent for the cook and placed around her neck his own ribbon of the Order of the St. Esprit, known as the cordon bleu. Since then a skillful woman cook in France has been known as a "cordon bleu."—London Times.

The Dangerous Fly.

Although the mosquito specializes on yellow fever and malaria and is universally recognized as an enemy to be fought outright, scientists have come to regard the common house fly as the more dangerous. The mosquito will spread only one or two diseases, but the house fly's only specialty is filth. Typhoid germs, tuberculosis germs and a hundred other germs are all the same to it. It is a scavenger that drops its load of refuse in the butter or the milk.

Couldn't Tell.

"Is marriage a failure?" asked the old bachelor of the young bride.

"I don't know yet," replied the bride innocently. "You know, my husband does not get paid until next Wednesday."

CHAPPED FROM FINGERS TO ELBOW

Henry Walker, of 14 Manufacturer Street, Montreal, works with his shirt sleeves rolled up above his elbow, and passing from a warm room to the biting cold as he is obliged to do, he got the worst case of chapped hands and arms. From his fingers to his elbows was one mass of raw flesh with bad cracks here and there.

He tried several kinds of salve, but nothing relieved him until he tried Zam-Buk. This took away the burning and smarting almost at once. The cracks began to heal and a few applications of the balm cured him. His hands and arms are now smooth and soft.

Died of Morphia Poisoning.

London, Dec. 9.—Count Edouard Sizzo Norris, a member of an exalted Austrian family, who was well known in diplomatic and society circles here, died mysteriously yesterday from morphia poisoning at his London home. He became notorious in 1903 through fighting a duel near Paris with Prince Radziwill, a member of the Russian Embassy in that city, the trouble arising from a dispute over cards.

Orphan Asylum Burned.

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 9.—The House of Providence, an orphan asylum for boys, located just west of the city line, was burned to the ground yesterday morning, involving a property loss of $135,000, on which there is insurance amounting to about $28,000. The 152 inmates, ranging from 4 to 14 years old, escaped without injury, although all their personal effects were destroyed.

Wholesale Grocery Robbed.

Stratford, Dec. 9.—The Wholesale Grocery was burglarized Saturday night, and suspicion strongly points towards a man named Taylor. Chief McCarthy, who was hunting for another criminal in the vicinity of the station, met a burglar carrying a bag full of articles. The man dropped the bag and managed to escape. Taylor was arrested yesterday on suspicion.

SEES WIFE FOR FIRST TIME.

Man Born Blind Receives Sight—Been Married 29 Years.

Denver, Dec. 10.—Almost unable to conceal her joy, Mrs. Gale C. Hoskins of Cleveland made a hurried departure for home. She had received a letter stating that sight had been given to her husband, who had been blind from birth.

The wife, formerly Miss Lottie Hall of Colorado Springs, left Denver, and in the course of three days the husband will see her for the first time, although they have been married 20 years.

Hoskins' life, in spite of his affliction, is said to have been comparatively happy. From 1880 until 1896 he was in Denver, having married Miss Hall in 1887. From 1896 until nine years ago, when they settled in Cleveland, they traveled.

The wife says that until September last Hoskins refused to consult doctors concerning his affliction. Then he consulted the eye specialist who has given him his sight. Mrs. Hoskins was visiting friends here when she learned the great news. Her husband was educated in Chicago, and has done some literary work, she being his amanuensis.

SEVEN SAILORS DROWNED.

Heavy Gales In English Channel—Collision Off Folkestone.

London, Dec. 10.—Heavy gales in the Channel resulted in a disastrous collision off Folkestone, between the Dutch steamer Scheldestrom and the British bark Forfarshire. The Scheldestrom had a big hole stove in her side and ran for Folkestone, where she was beached. The life-savers sent out a boat to the rescue, but before it could reach the steamer the captain of the Scheldestrom, with ten of the crew, entered a small boat, which was driven on the rocks and wrecked. Seven of the men, including the captain, were drowned.

Stratford's Power Bylaw.

Stratford, Dec. 10.—The Niagara power bylaw was given its second reading at the council meeting last night, and will now go to the ratepayers for their endorsement at the January election. The bylaw received little opposition, only one member of the council offering any objection.

Death of Noted Professor.

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Dec. 10—The death is announced of Prof. Morits Schmidt, the well-known laryngogist. He removed a pulypus from the throat of Emperor William several years years ago, and for this service the Emperor conferred upon him the title of Excellency.

Miner's Head Blown Off.

Cobalt, Dec. 10.—Another fatality is recorded from Cobalt, caused by picking into a missed hole. Yesterday afternoon, in the drift from Shaft No. 12, at the Nipissing Mine, Andrien Dubec, a Pole, was mucking when an explosion occurred, blowing his head off.

Crushed by a Log.

Kenora, Dec. 10.—Douglas Orman, aged 19 years, was killed at Gardner's lumber camp. He was engaged building a stable when a log rolled upon him with fatal results.

Took Carbolic.

Guelph, Dec. 10.—Fire in the shipping department of the Taylor-Forbes Co. caused $2,000 damage yesterday.

For Diseases Of The Skin

THERE IS NO TREATMENT SO CERTAIN TO RELIEVE THE ITCHING AND HEAL THE SORES AS

Dr. Chase's Ointment

The one common feature of nearly all skin diseases is itching, annoying and oftentimes almost unendurable itching.

The strong point about Dr. Chase's Ointment is that by reason of its remarkable soothing qualities it relieves itching the moment it is applied.

But Dr. Chase's Ointment does more than this. It is composed of the greatest healing ingredients known to science, and its healing powers are often described as magical.

Allaying the inflammation, relieving the itching and gradually and naturally healing the raw, flaming flesh, Dr. Chase's Ointment is the most effective treatment for eczema and salt rheum that was ever discovered.

There are many kinds of eczema, and nearly all itching skin diseases come under this head. In children it is known as teething eczema, and many a fond mother will tell you heartfelt gratitude of how her little one was rescued from torturing, itching eczema by the use of this great ointment.

Wherever there is itching skin or a sore that refuses to heal Dr. Chase's Ointment will positively prove effective as a relief and cure.

Miss C. Stanley-Jones, professional masseuse and nurse, 283 Simcoe street, Toronto, Ont., writes:—"In my occupation as a nurse I have come across many cases in which Dr. Chase's Ointment has been used with extraordinary results. One case I recall was that of a child of sixteen months who was in a bad way with scaley head. It was a real nasty case causing the child to suffer very much and to be very troublesome. I persuaded the mother to use Dr. Chase's Ointment and in ten days the child was entirely cured.

"Another case was that of a lady who was greatly troubled with eczema on the face. The doctor was dosing her with medicine which was doing no good. In this case cure was effected in seven days with only one box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Both of these cures were lasting."

Dr. Chase's Ointment has an unparalleled record of cures; 60c a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

KIDNAPPED HIS SON.

Chicago Man Gave Police Slip and Carried Off His Child.

North Bay, Dec. 10.—A bold abduction case caused considerable excitement here yesterday and gave the police force a hard day's work.

Some months ago Mrs. Augusta Rotter left her husband, E. D. Rotter, in Chicago, owing to domestic troubles, and disappeared with her 7-year-old son, Arthur, leaving no address. The husband engaged detectives and the chase for his wife and boy began, the continent being scoured without avail for some time. Recently the trail of the fugitives was found and the American sleuths traced mother and son to North Bay. The next act in the drama was the arrival of Rotter in North Bay yesterday morning, and his appearance at police headquarters, where he solicited the assistance of Chief of Police Mitchell in locating the wife and child.

A visit to the public schools was rewarded by the finding of little Arthur Rotter, who seemed far from pleased at the sight of his father and cried bitterly for his mother. A visit to the mother was then suggested by Chief Mitchell, and the two started ostensibly for her apartments, but Rotter gave the policeman the slip on a plausible excuse and disappeared with the boy.

Crown Attorney Browning was notified of the facts of the case and the police were instructed to secure Rotter. It was ascertained that Rotter dragged the boy, crying and struggling, to the suburban station of the T. & N. O. Railway, where they boarded the northbound express. Rotter evidently thought it was the Grand Trunk Toronto train. Telegrams were despatched to northern towns, asking for the arrest of the abductor and the case grew exciting, the mother coming on the scene when she found that her boy had been snatched from her.

Late yesterday afternoon a message was received from New Liskeard, that Rotter had been arrested there on the arrival of the train and would be taken back to North Bay on the first train, with the boy. Mrs. Rotter states that she left her husband in Chicago because he did not use her right, and she demands the custody of the child.

The case will be aired in the Police Court to-day.

KILLED BY WIFE'S LOVER.

Tragic Ending to Carousal — Wife Arrested as Accomplice.

Iola, Kansas, Dec. 10.—William Stewart, proprietor of a restaurant in East Iola, and member of a prominent family in Yates County, Kansas, was murdered near his place of business Sunday. The body bore evidence of several wounds, any one of which would have produced death. The skull had been fractured in four places and the throat cut. Stewart's partner, W. D. Creviston, is under arrest pending an investigation of the murder.

Stewart and Creviston were carousing together at Stewart's home until after midnight. Then someone knocked at a back door. Stewart answered the summons, and announced that he was going out for a short walk. He was not again seen alive by his family.

Creviston, the police say, confessed that he killed Stewart because of his love for Stewart's wife, whom he wanted to marry. Mrs. Stewart was arrested Sunday night, charged with complicity in the murder of her husband.

Death From Asphyxiation.

Kingston, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Felix Farney, York street, whose husband is a bartender in the Randolph Hotel, met death Sunday morning from asphyxiation. When she awoke at 6 o'clock in the morning she felt faint, the house being full of coal gas that had escaped from a stove. She awoke her husband and succeeded in getting him to a window, where he revived. Mrs. Farney lay down again, feeling very sick, while her husband went out for a doctor. When he returned his wife was dead. Mrs. Farney was 25 years of age.

Shot Robbers to Death.

Wenlock, Wash., Dec. 10.—Two men who had attempted to rob the post-office here early yesterday were chased by the posse, surrounded in the woods and shot to death. Their names are not known. Before being surrounded one of the men shot and seriously wounded, T. N. McFadden, a constable.

Mine Employe Disappears.

Port Arthur, Dec. 10.—John Elliott, an employe of the St. Anthony mine at St. Anthony reef, seven miles from Sturgeon Lake, left the mine on Nov. 20 to go to the hotel at Sturgeon Lake, and has not been heard of since. It is feared that he was drowned while crossing the lake over the ice.

Sifton Satisfied.

London, Dec. 10.—"Everything is running along smoothly, and I am very well satisfied," was all Mr. Sifton would say yesterday when asked by the Canadian Associated Press re the "all-red route." Mr. Sifton sails on Saturday per the Mauretania.

MURDERED IN CHURCH.

Harry Webber Shoots His Wife and Turns Weapon on Himself.

Lisbon, O., Dec. 10.—In the sight of twenty horrified churchgoers Harry Webber confronted his bride of four weeks on the threshold of the Disciples' Church just as the choir within was beginning the opening anthem, Sunday morning and shot her down. A minute after the young man fell with a bullet in his own brain, crying: "She chose between her religion and me!"

Mrs. Webber, who was only 20, was devoted to her church, and she and her husband frequently quarreled over her attendance at the Sunday school and religious society meetings.

City Without Water.

St. John, N. B., Dec. 10.—The city is entirely without water owing to the leaking of a water main, and as a consequence most of the manufacturing and industrial plants have been compelled to shut down, throwing thousands out of work. The street railway is stopped, and householders are also without a service.

The break will be repaired to-day.

TORONTO JUNCTION, Dec. 9.—Receipts of live stock at the yards were 90 carloads, composed of 1562 cattle, 7 hogs, 2370 sheep and 48 calves.

Exporters.

Prices ranged at from $4.25 to $5. Bulls sold at $3.50 to $4 per cwt.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots of Christmas cattle sold at from $5.25 to $5.75, and in two or three instances at as high as $6, $7 and even $8 per cwt. was quoted, but only one, two and three-cattle lots brought these high quotations.

Feeders and Stockers.

Good loads of Christmas heifers sold at from $4.75 to $5.25; medium to good, $4.50 to $4.75; common, $3.50 to $4.25; cows, $3.50 to $3.50; canners, $1 to $1.50 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers.

A limited number sold at $35 to $65 each.

Veal Calves.

Prices for veal calves ranged at from $6 to $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Export sheep sold at $3.75 to $4 per cwt.; lambs at $4.50 to $5.25 per cwt.

Hogs.

Gunns, Limited, reported the hog prices 15c per cwt. higher; selects, $6.25, fed and watered, and $5, f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 9.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yard, west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Dec. 7, were 3693 cattle, 3223 sheep and lambs, 2236 hogs and 337 calves. The supply for local consumption this morning consisted of 2000 cattle, 1300 sheep and lambs, 900 hogs, and 400 calves. An easy feeling prevailed in the market for cattle and prices were fully ¼c per lb. lower than a week ago, which was attributed to the returned very unseasonable weather for the season of the year and the fact that supplies were much larger and in excess of the requirements of the trade, as the demand from both local and outside buyers was somewhat lighter on account of the mild weather and the approaching holiday offerings. The percentage of cattle on the market was larger than it has been for some weeks past, but still the supply of rough and inferior grades continues to be excessive, which tends to depress the market for the better stock. Cattle advices from Liverpool on Saturday reported trade in cattle fair, but noted no improvement in prices. The demand from exporters here is very slow, as they are buying all the stock they require for shipment from St. John, N.B., in the west. Choice cattle in this market sold at 4¼c, good at 4c to 4¼c, fair at 3¼c to 3¾c, common at 2¾c to 3¼c, and inferior at 1¼c to 1¾c per lb. There has been no further change in the condition of the market for sheep and lambs since this day week, but the feeling is still easy. The trade in sheep was slow with export stock quoted at 4c, butchers' at 3¼c to 3¾c, and culls at 3c per lb. A fairly active trade continues to be done in calves and prices rule steady, with sales of choice stock at $12 to $15, good at $8 to $10, fair at $5 to $7 and common at $3 to $4 each.

A stronger feeling has developed in the market for hogs and prices since this day week have advanced 25c to 60c per cwt. This is not due to the slight advance in prices for Canadian bacon in the Liverpool and Bristol markets last week, but to the fact that supplies of dressed hogs brought forward have not been sufficient to fill packers' requirements. In order to increase receipts of live stocks they were obliged to bid up for them. A fair trade was done this morning and sales of selected lots were made at $5.75 to $6 per cwt., weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Dec. 9.—Cattle—Receipts, 4700 head; fairly active and steady; Christmas fancy, $8.60 to $8.60; prime steers, $6.50 to $6.75; shipping, $4.75 to $5.40; butchers', $4.25 to $5.25; heifers, $3.25 to $5; cows, $3.50 to $4.25; bulls, $3.75 to $4.50; stockers and feeders, $2.50 to $4.15; stock heifers, $2.25 to $2.75; fresh cows and springers, $2 to $3 lower, $18 to $54.

Hogs—Receipts, 25,500 head; fairly active; pigs, 40c to 50c lower, others 20c to 30c lower; heavy and mixed, $6.75 to $6.85; yorkers, $6.70 to $6.85; pigs, $6.60; roughs, $4.25 to $4.40; stags, $3.50 to $4; dairies, $4.75 to $4.85.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 27,000 head; good lambs active; common lambs and sheep lower; market easier; lambs, $5 to $6.25; yearlings, $4.75 to $5; wethers, $4.50 to $4.75; ewes, $4 to $4.25; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.50; Canada lambs, $5.75 to $6.15.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Cattle—Receipts, estimated at about 22,000; market steady to 10c higher; steers, $3.90 to $6.50; cows, $3.05 to $4.25; heifers, $3.50 to $5; bulls, $3.60 to $4.50; calves, $3 to $7.35; stockers and feeders, $2.40 to $4.35.

MESSRS. DAVIS-THOMPSON COMPANY, Limited, Agents Royal Insurance Co., City

DEAR SIRS:—

I beg to acknowledge the receipt this morning of cheque covering the amount appraised as our loss in the recent fire in our premises. Although it is practically only one week since the fire occured, we are already in receipt of the, cash.

Such prompt settlement does yourselves and Companies represented, the greatest credit. I might state that our loss was settled in a manner most satisfactory to us in every respect, and I appreciate the interest taken by yourselves personally in connection therewith.

Yours truly,

W. G. Morrow, Esq.
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notificatian of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. R. STRATTON.

FOR IMPERIAL DEFENCE.

Hon. L. P. Brodeur Shows That Canada Has Done Much.

The impression that Canada had done nothing for imperial defence is, so Hon. L. P. Brodeur told the Toronto Empire Club recently, a mistaken one.

Canada had done much for the empire, Mr. Brodeur said, by looking after her own naval defences. The position taken by Canada, and later adopted by other colonies, was that a contribution of money would be against the principle of responsible government and control of expenditure. Yet Canada had not only helped in looking after her own defences but in bearing the burden of fisheries protection This latter followed the making of a treaty in 1818 between Great Britain and the United States. allowing United States fishermen to fish in Candaian waters—a treaty which had never been submitted to Canada.

In the protection of fisheries since the Treaty of Washington in 1886 Canada had spent $3,147,990. Last year they spent more than $250,000, and this year they were spending $500,000, which included the construction of a cruiser. The taking over of the naval stations was another assistance. Then the Canadian Government had taken care of the wireless telegraph service, a service which, on the other side of the Atlantic, was looked after by the admiralty. A station had been established on the Atlantic, and another would be established on the Pacific.

A Fine Old French-Canadian.

Charles Bolieu, now in his 98th year, hale and hearty, is one of the most remarkable men of his years, for vigor of mind and body, to be found in Connecticut. He is still seen daily on the streets of Stafford Springs, and recently could have been found at work sewing bays in the Smith and Cooley mill. On account of his long and faithful service in the mill he is allowed to go to work whenever the spirit moves him. His folks prefer to have him stay at home, but the old gentleman says he feels much better at work. There were no immense steamships, railway trains, trolley cars, or electric lights in his boyhood days. The telegraph, telephone, and hundreds of other inventions brought to light by modern science and without which life would now seem hardly worth the living were unknown. Yet he says that the people were just as happy and lived just as long as those of the 20th century will. Mr. Bolieu is a regular attendant at St. Edward's church. He reads fine print without the aid of glasses, and although he carries a cane he can get along well without it. A little over a year ago he met with an accident while leading a cow and had one of his legs broken, and since that time walks with a slight limp. His mind is clear and his wit sharp, and barring accidents the old man will probably continue to be a familiar figure in the borough for several years. He was born in La Point, County of Rouville, Canada, on June 18, 1810.

French-Canadian Birth Rate.

In 1906 the death rate in Montreal was 19.28 per 1,000 of the population being 1.32 less than that of the previous year, according to the annual report of Dr. L. Laberge, medical health officer, which has just been issued. The birth rate of last year is returned at 37.35 per 1,000 of population, or 1.54 per thousand advance on the previous year.

Among French Canadians the birth rate was higher, being 47.66 per 1,000; other Catholics 21.63 per 1,000, and Protestants 21.30 per 1,000. Proportion of marriages among French-Canadians was 10.83 per 1,000.

Judge Martin decided that certain evidence was inadmissible. The attorney took strong exception to the ruling and insisted that it was admissible

"I know, your honor," said he warmly, "that it is proper evidence. Here I have been practicing at the bar for forty years, and now I want to know if I am a fool."

"That," quietly replied the court, "is a question of fact and not of law, so I won't pass any opinion upon it, but will let the jury decide."—Liverpool Mercury.

The Eternal Sea.

Cure That Cough!

YOU CAN DO IT BY USING

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

The Most Perfect Throat and Lung Healer in the World.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup gives prompt relief from that choked up, stuffed up feeling which is so distressing, it loosens the phlegm, checks the rasping and useless cough, and heals and soothes the irritated breathing organs. It is a pleasant preparation to take and is therefore specially adapted to the coughs and colds of children and those who dislike nauseous mixtures.

This is no vain boast, but a fact that can be backed by unimpeachable testimony. One 25 cent bottle, indeed, a trial dose, will prove its merits.

Mr. Frank K. Purdie, Brandon, Man., writes: "I have used your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for some years and have always found it a sure remedy for all colds, coughs, sore throat, hoarseness, etc. I cannot too highly recommend it to anyone suffering from any effect of cold."

POPULAR LITTLE PRINCE.

King Edward's Grandson Is Idolized By the Norwegians.

Little Prince Olaf, the pride and hope of Norway, now in England, continues to delight his adoring countrymen and women by his exploits. The heir to the throne is now four years old.

Recently a very bald guest at the royal summer residence appeared with his scalp covered with scratches, which he had sustained in a fight on the floor with Prince Olaf. On one occasion, when the Queen was receiving and the rooms were beginning to get filled with ladies, Prince Olaf suddenly turned to his mother and said: "No more old ladies, ma."

with the footman crawling on all fours, Prince Olaf holding the reins and whip, and the King and Queen behind, this royal cortege passes through the rooms of the palace. The young prince's outdoor life is chiefly devoted to play and sport. He has had his first riding lessons on the little donkey which King Edward sent him, and in his first winter in Norway he started ski-ing, supported by the King or one of the adjutants.

In the royal park Prince Olaf may often be seen with his little wheelbarrow helping the gardeners in carting away leaves or weeds, or building sand forts and planting the Norwegian flag on top of them.

When he drives through the streets dressed in his sailor suit, with his nurse and his little terrier, all the people stop to greet him. He always returns the salute in the military way, bringing his hand to his cap.

A visitor who two years ago called at Prince Charles' home in Copenhagen some time before the prince's departure to assume the crown of Norway found Prince Olaf marching round the rooms, filled with packing cases, with a Norwegian flag in his hand, of which he was immensely proud and would on no account surrender.

On Independence Day—May 17—after his arrival, a procession of school girls sang a song in which praise of Prince Olaf was set to a popular tune. Since then Prince Olaf's popularity has gone on steadily increasing.

IMPRISONED FOR DEBT.

Judge Hears Pitiful Story and Orders Husband's Release.

In tears, a poor woman applied to Judge Willis, K.C., at the Southwark County Court, London, England, for the release of her husband, who had been arrested and taken to Brixton jail for debt.

She explained that, having six of her seven children ill, she borrowed £2, without the knowledge of her husband, from a money-lender in order to keep a roof over the poor little invalids' heads, and to provide them with a little nourishment. She thought she would be able to repay the debt by easy instalments, but other troubles came, her husband fractured his knee and was in hospital for three months.

She still kept the knowledge of the loan from him, and when he was summoned she attended the court, and was offered 4s. by the money-lender not to appear. Consequently she went home, and the next she heard was that her husband had been arrested. He would lose his work in consequenc. She was told he could only be released on payment of the judgment debt, but she had only five farthings on her.

Judge Willis said the husband must be released, and he instructed the chief clerk to give her a note from the court to take to Brixton Prison and fetch him away. His honor also handed the woman a 1s. from his own pocket to pay the return fares from Brixton.

The woman, still crying, warmly thanked his honor, and left the court with a fervent "God bless you, sir!"

Got Bone From Sheep.

Mr. H. V. Drew, F.R.C.S. (Eng.), of New Zealand, has reported a remarkable case of bone-grafting to the British Medical Journal It appears that he was called upon to treat a sailor who had had his leg severely crushed in an accident, and found that some inches of the large bone of the leg (the tibia) had been crushed and lost. As he did not want to remove the limb, and was unable to get the bone to grow between the broken ends of the tibia, Mr. Drew decided to fill up the gap with a similar piece of bone from a freshly killed sheep. The result was most satisfactory and the man returned to work with a useful leg some three months later.

The Perfect Man.

Lord Rosebery, speaking at Edinburgh, said that the United States was trying an amalgamation of all the races of the world. Would the result be, he asked, the production of the perfect man of the future or would the result be a perfect new type hitherto unknown to anthropologists? That would be a subject for study and interest to the older races of the globe.

When Pride Is Humbled.

MUTINY REPORTED OF THE NATIVES

Situation in Orange Colony is Causing Great Alarm.

TROOPS SENT TO THE SCENE

Diamond Mine Attacked and Plant Wrecked—March on Small Garrison—Ethiopian Movement Causing Serious Trouble—Reinforcements Are Being Hurried to Threatened Town—Zulu Arrested.

London, Dec. 10.—Dinizulu, the Zulu king, who is accused of fomenting trouble among the natives, with the result that murders and outrages have become more and more frequent of late, has surrendered to the Natal authorities, without offering any resistance or rendering necessary the assistance of the troops which were held ready to aid the civil power.

While the trouble in Natal seems to be becoming better owing to Chief Dinizulu's surrender, an unexpected outbreak has occurred in the Orange River Colony. Five hundred natives, who were working at the Vorspood diamond mine, revolted and completely wrecked the plant. They then marched toward Kroonstad, where only 20 police are stationed. Reinforcements are hastening to the town. The situation there is regarded as serious.

There is an end to the threatened rebellion in Zululand which is of considerable importance. It is asserted by those who knew the situation well that the uprising is part of a general movement all over the continent below the equator, having for its its motto "South Africa for the blacks."

What is known as the Ethiopian movement has taken a firm hold hold upon the South African natives for years past. Friends of missionary effort resent the charge that this is a political propaganda, but careful investigation shows that under the cloak of religious effort it is really an agitation to drive the whites into the sea.

The preachers came from America. They went first to Liberia and then spread to the territories south of the Zambesi River. They are described as negroes who have absorbted most of the vices and few of the virtues of the white races. The effect of their work has been that tribal hostilities have almost disappeared, all the tribes uniting in one purpose.

A Double Train Wreck.

Toronto, Dec. 10.—An eastbound G. T. R. freight was wrecked by the breaking of a wheel at midnight on Sunday near the Sunnyside crossing, tearing up the track for about 100 yards. A wrecking train was sent out and crashed into the stalled freight and left the rails. By 11 o'clock Monday morning all the damage to the track was repaired.

Carried Factory Bylaw.

Deseronto, Ont., Dec. 10.—A bylaw granting the Deseronto Furniture Co. a bonus of $20,000 was voted on here yesterday and carried. This means a great deal to the people of Deseronto, as it furnishes work for 75 to 100 men the year round.

STOESSEL IS NOW ON TRIAL

Russian General Faces Court-Martial To-day.

OTHERS ARE ALSO CHARGED

Final Stage to Commence—Accused of Having Surrendered Fortress at Port Arthur—Taking of Evidence In Far East Complicated — His Bitter Enemy Indicted—Counsel to Broaden the Case.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 10.—The final stage of the court-martial of Lieut.-Gen. Mikhailovitch Stoessel will begin in this city to-day. There have been protracted delays in taking the testimony of the witnesses in the Far East, but now all this material is in order and the proceedings will go ahead rapidly.

Gen. Stoessel is accused of having surrendered the fortress of Port Arthur before he had exhausted all the resources of defence. The punishment for this, under the Russian code, is death. He is to be tried also on the charge of lacking in initiative, and with having exceeded his powers. Gen. Fock and Gen. Reiss are co-defendants with him. The first is accused of having conspired the surrender of the fortress, and the second with having executed the order of surrender.

Gen. Smirnoff, Gen. Stoessel's most bitter enemy, is to tried on a minor count.

The basis of the indictment is practically identical with that set forth in the secret report of the defence of Port Arthur, made by Gen. Smirnoff, but counsel for the defence have announced their intention of broadening the scope of the enquiry, to bring in the conduct of the Ministry of War, both prior to and during the war with Japan.

The trial is exciting the most intense interest in army circles. Every ticket to the little auditorium in the Army and Navy Club, where the hearing will be held, has been taken by army officers of high rank.

NEW YORK'S BLUE SUNDAY.

Saloons Replace Theatres and Cause Much Rowdyism.

New York, Dec. 10.—New York had its first taste of a Sunday without any theatrical amusement.

In accordance with Justice O'Gorman's decision of last week, the doors of 500 concert halls and theatres were closed; but the backrooms of 5,000 saloons and all the billiard and pool parlors, together with bowling alleys, were wide open.

Every one of these did the largest business for any Sunday in their history, and never before were so many intoxicated men seen in the streets.

Dancing academies and roller skating rinks were closed tight, while restaurants and beer gardens operating under restaurant licenses were permitted to run without hindrance and with musical accompaniment.

For the first time in December in fifty years no ball was held on Sunday night in Tammany Hall.

THE TIME ONLY BEING WASTED

Debate on the Address Prolonged by the Opposition.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

Mr. Armstrong Urges Claims of Farmers—Sir Wilfrid Laurier Makes Statement Regarding All-Red Line Project—Mr. Fielding Is Ready With His Budget—Another Amendment to Address.

Ottawa, Dec. 10.—It is now quite evident that the Opposition has determined upon prolonging the debate on the address to the utmost limit. Another amendment, this time in respect to rural mail delivery, was moved from their side yesterday; though apart from the mover the other Opposition speakers had little or nothing to say in regard to it. They wandered far afield, apparently content to act as obstacles to the commencement of the real work of the session. Only two Liberals spoke yesterday, Messrs. Hughes (P. E. I.) and Smith (Oxford), the address of the former occupying about fifteen minutes, while four members of the Opposition spoke, all at greater length. Hon. Mr. Fielding is ready to bring down his budget as soon as the debate is ended. An announcement indicating that the all-red line project is receiving the careful consideration of the Government was made by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who stated that certain parties had made the application for subsidies but that no official action had yet been taken.

Yesterday the House listened to a number of speeches, of which the majority were contributed by the Opposition, the Government desiring the end of the debate should come soon. Mr. Armstrong (East Lambton) moved an amendment favoring free rural mail delivery, but the succeeding speakers carefully avoided any reference whatever to this subject.

Rural Mail Delivery.

Mr. Armstrong (East Lambton) argued that there had been no legislation to benefit the farmer. He concluded by moving the following amendment:

"We desire to express our regret that more adequate reference has not been made to matters of public interest alluded to in Your Excellency's gracious speech, and that other matters of grave public concern have altogether escaped mention therein.

"We also desire to express our regret that Your Excellency's speech contains no allusion to the importance of inaugurating a system of rural free mail delivery, under which rural populations may enjoy, as far as Canada's resources will permit, the great advantages in that respect which have been secured to the rural communities of other countries."

Mr. Hughes (P. E. I.) followed. He set out to prove that the prosperity of a country did not depend on the balance of trade being in its favor. A few nights ago the Finance Minister had shown that most of the prosperous countries of Europe had a balance of trade against them.

Dr. Sproule enquired as to the position of the United States, which showed a large excess of exports over imports, amounting in 18 years to ten thousand millions.

But Mr. Hughes was prepared to convince even Dr. Sproule, reasoning that it was quite possible that all nations of earth might trade with each other and imports of all might exceed their exports.

Mr. Staples (Macdonald, Man.) devoted some attention to Mr. Crawford, who spoke on Friday. The latter had deprecated the tendancy of his own province towards the operation by the Government of a telephone system, but Mr. Staples was able to state that Mr. Crawford was one of those Liberals who attended a Liberal convention in Manitoba, at which it was unanimously declared that the Liberals were prepared to go a step further than the Roblin Government in the direction of public ownership of telephones.

Mr. Wright Continues Debate.

At the evening session Mr. Wright took up the discussion of the cause of the financial stress. He believed that the present stringency was due to some extent to the contribution by this country of lambs to be slaughtered to fatten the financial magnates of New York. Another cause was the amount of money that had been put into Cobalt and other mining districts. Some of the press had raised a warning voice against wildcat schemes, but he feared newspaper writers had their arms paralysed while many preachers had voices silenced by the get-rich-quick microbe. The farmers of the United States were in a better position than the farmers of Canada. There they built up large towns by means of industries which manufactdre all their own articles and a large portion for Canada and the rest of the world.

Mr. Wright humorously told of the padding of immigration returns. Every body on westbound trains, whether commercial travelers, people from east going out to visit relatives and peripatetic show people, all are counted in as new citizens. Conditions were not as encouraging as they should be, and the exodus to the United States had not been stopped. The speaker found fault with the class of people assisted to this country. Attention should be paid to quality rather than to quantity.

George Smith (North Oxford) criticized the leader of the Government, defended the Government's version of the balance of trade and almost applauded the Doukhobors. These immigrants, he had been informed, were very much like the Mennonite settlers of Oxford County.

Prince Edward Tunnel.

A. McLean (P. E. I.) declared that Borden was following the lead of Sir John Macdonald in enunciating a policy. This policy had been enthusiastically endorsed by Conservatives everywhere. Mr. McLean spoke of the need of a tunnel, and showed that Prince Edward Island had reason to complain of the mail service.

Ottawa, Dec. 10.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday informed Parliament that nothing was being done with respect to the establishment of an all-red steamship line and that no one had been authorized by the Government to enter into negotiations. He believed that certain parties were forming a company, but the Government was not directly concerned. The statement was given in reply to a question by Mr. Foster.

The matter also came up later when a similar question by Mr. Monk was reached. Mr. Monk desired to know if there was any person in England specially accredited by the Canadian Government in connection with the proposed all-red line to treat with the British Government, and was told by Sir Wilfrid that there was no such ambassador. The early part of the afternoon was taken up with questions and answers.

Mr. Templeman informed Mr. Bergeron that the question of reintroducing the bill of last session concerning drugs and patent medicines during the present session was still under consideration. It is understood that should the bill be reintroduced the Government will absolutely prohibit the sale of cocaine.

Mr. Fisher informed the House that 72 meat, canned fish and vegetable inspectors had been appointed for the whole Dominion, permanent seed inspectors and 9 fruit inspectors.

DEATH REMOVES M. P.

Mr. B. B. Gunn, Member For South Huron Passes Away.

Ottawa, Dec. 10.—Benjamin B. Gunn, Conservative member for South Huron, died in St. Luke's Hospital last night. He was operated on a few days ago for a tumor, and very little hope was entertained for his recovery. Mr. Gunn's family were with him when he died.

This is the second time the House of Commons has been bereaved this session, the first death being that of Henry Lovell, M. P. for Stanstead, Quebec.

At the late general election Mr. Gunn defeated Thomas Fraser, Liberal, by 111 majority. Previous to that, since 1867, the constituency has been Liberal, the majorities ranging as low as 86 and as high as 855, which was rolled up by Mr. McMillan in 1891.

Mr. Gunn was born at Wallacetown about fifty years ago. He was a man of fine appearance, over 6 feet tall, and exceedingly popular in South Huron. Until the time of his election he was a merchant in Seaforth, but sold out on his return to Parliament.

Two sons survive, Gordon, a medical student at the University of Toronto, and John, a lad of 12 years, as well as the widow.

The late member had served in the municipal councils, and in religion was a Methodist.

Kills Two Grandchildren.

Somerville, Mass., Dec. 10.—Announcing that she had killed her two grandchildren, Mrs. Emery Huntley walked into a police station and gave herself up yesterday. The children had been stupified by illuminating gas, and then placed in a bathtub and drowned.

The mother died by suicide shortly after the death of her husband.

PURCHASE OF THE PARK

Council Decides to Accept The Terms of The Board of Education For The Property

AFTER MANY YEAR'S WAIT

At last a south end park is assured. Ald. Morrow some time ago started the ball rolling and has given the scheme his care, gradually working it out until only the last step was necessary. The land that has been selected for park purposes is in the same locality that the Board of Education made available with the assistance of the Council. It is east of the extended portion of Aylmer street and south of Romaine street. It is estimated that there are about four acres in the lot, and considering that the citizens in the south end have waited a long time for a park, the city should not be niggardly in the money spent on it to make it beautiful.

The King Edward School is close by, the new Catholic church will also be near at hand, and there is a probability of another church being erected in the same locality. Thus this part of the city will be equal, benefitted by the park when all the work now projected is carried out.

The report of the special park committee was received at the Council meeting last night and adopted, and after discussing the matter in all its phases, the last step was taken.

Ald. Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that a cheque for $3,000 be made to the Board of Education for the park property. The motion was fully endorsed.

BERT McCOLLUM LEAVES FOR CUBA

Will Manage Business Formerly Conducted by his Brother, Robert

The many friends of Mr. Albert McCollum will learn with regret that he has severed his connections with Peterborough. He left for Cuba this morning on the C.P.R., where he will manage the business formerly conducted by his brother, Robert, who left here last spring.

TO SPEND THE HOLIDAYS IN ENGLAND

This week Mr. P. G. Preen, manager of the Brinton carpet factory, leaves for his home in England to spend Christmas with his parents at Kidderminster. Mr. Preen will sail on Saturday on the fast steamer the "Lusitania," and will spend five weeks in the old land.

Music and Drama

DOROTHY VERNON OF HADDON HALL

Although the play is not a new one to Peterborough and in spite of the disagreeable weather, a large crowd welcomed Miss Bianca West in the romantic story of the days "When Knighthood was in Flower." Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall at the Grand last night. The notion of the play which is a dramatization of Chas. Major's book of the same name, is too well known to require mentioning here. Familiar as the story is, as revealed last night by Miss West and her able support, it was the source of an evening of unmitigated pleasure and for over two hours, the audience lived in the golden age of chivalry, with queens, fair ladies and brave knights.

Miss West in the title role was not long in reaching the hearts of her audience and her work was magnificent. In the standard set by Miss Lauri Hunt in the same play here last year, she was given a thorough test of her ability and it stamped to be the opinion of the audience that Miss West had certainly reached that standard. She can defect with a rather shrill voice which grated on the ear at first, but was soon forgotten in the interests of her portrayal of the quick-tempered, wilful, yet wholly lovable daughter of Sir George. The work of Mr. Joseph Gilloy, as Sir John Manners, compared very favourably with that of Mr. Henry Stanford, who played the role here last year. He made a brave and ardent lover, acting the part with grace and ease. The other roles were well looked after, the supporting company being uniformly good.

The scenery and costumes are historically correct and add to the interest.

The Chest. Pains of Bronchitis

If the cough is dry and hard, if there is pain, soreness and tightness of the chest, if you have difficulty in getting your breath, you have reason to suppose that you have bronchitis. Lest it should become chronic or lead to serious lung trouble, do not delay the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, the most certain cure for bronchitis.

FALLING TREE ALMOST CRUSHES OUT THE LIFE OF AN APSLEY MAN IN A LUMBER CAMP AT JACK'S LAKE

Limb Flies Through The Air And Strikes Him on The Head—Second Casuality in One Family

NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH

Examiner Special

Apsley, Dec. 10.—The old adage that "misfortunes seldom come singly" was well illustrated on Friday when Mr. B. Jones, whose son broke his arm last week, was almost killed by being struck by a tree while at work in Mr. Watson's camp at Jack's Lake. Two men had just felled a large hemlock which, in its descent, struck a dead tree, breaking it off and hurling it through the air to where the men were standing, as they supposed in safety. It struck Jones on the head, crushing him to the ground.

Assistance was at once given, a skidding team secured, and the injured man removed to the camp. Mr. Andy Pattison was sent here for Dr. Bell, but soon after he left camp it was decided better to bring him on, and he was made as comfortable as possible, Mr. Wm. Tucker and Mr. Albert Wilson taking charge of him. The doctor was met on the way and accompanied him home. It was then found that besides the injury to his head, his chest and one ankle were also injured, but the doctor hopes for his recovery if no unforseen complications occur.

POP BOTTLES MAY BE BARRED FROM PARKS

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 10.—(Special.)—Among the important matters to be discussed by the National Baseball Commission in New York to-day at the annual meeting will be the selling of bottled drinks at baseball parks, and the selling of new balls by the pitchers.

President Johnston favours the doing away with the scrubbing of the ball on the dirt by the twirler when he receives it from the umpire, his reason being that it will eliminate delay.

He cites a number of cases where players and spectators were injured by being hit with pop bottles. He is desirous of doing away with such incidents, and declares that the only way to prevent them is by prohibiting the sale of bottled drinks on the grounds.

MR. ALFRED DAWSON SPEAKS HOPEFULLY OF THE GREAT WEST

Mr. Alfred Dawson, formerly of South Monaghan, now of Maple Creek, Alberta, arrived this morning in Peterborough, on a visit to friends. Mr. Dawson left for the West about five years ago, and has been engaged in ranching and farming since that time. Mr. Dawson is well pleased with the country and speaks hopefully of the future. He said the larger ranchers had a pretty bad time of it last winter, but prospects were somewhat better for this winter so far. In his locality the farmers had a good average crop, but he reports that ranching is being very largely discontinued. The farmers are taking the place of the ranchers to a very large extent, the ranchers moving farther back. Mr. Dawson says that there are quite a number of Peterborough people in his locality—the Dicksons, Watsons, Davidsons, and many others. No matter what locality you go to in the West, he says that you will find some Peterborough people. Mr. Dawson himself sold over one half of his cattle before leaving for the East, and is only carrying this year a little over one hundred head. In answer to the question as to how the crops were generally, Mr. Dawson stated it depended largely on the locality. In some localities where they had hail and frosts they had greater difficulties than those localities which did not suffer both. On the whole, he says, he is under the impression, that with the prices obtainable, and the average nature of the crop, that the farmers will not be so badly off as some people are inclined to think. Mr. Dawson looks well and is going to spend a couple of months with his friends in the east before returning. Mr. Dawson has a daughter attending Toronto University, taking the medal last year.

PETERBOROUGH HAS A HUNDRED GROCERY STORES; LINDSAY 28

The approach of Christmas once again brings with it the usual activity in the sale of Christmas goods the gifts that bring gladness to so many homes. Last week the merchants report an excellent sale and the activity is even greater than expected. Plum puddings and Christmas cakes have to be made and one groceryman has stated that it is simply surprising the quantity of raisins and currants and fruits that is daily leaving the larger stores.

The retailers have been purchasing large amounts of goods from the wholesale men and are disposing of them rapidly, and so far the former see no cessation of trade when compared with that of a year ago.

The advent season which is now passing, has been, as usual, productive of an increase in the fish trade. Two wholesale firms in the city have imported a car and a half of Labrador Herrings in addition to cod, salmon trout and whitefish.

It has been estimated by a local traveller for a wholesale grocery concern in Peterborough that there are one hundred grocery and confectionary stores in this city. Comparing this with a population of 16,000 it will be seen that there is an average of 160 persons to each. Lindsay with a population of 8,000 has only about 30 groceries.

THE GARBAGE BY-LAW AS IT WILL BE VOTED ON BY THE ELECTORS

The garbage bylaw will be one of the first questions the next Council will have to deal with, its complete arrangements for presentation being left over. However, a bylaw was passed last night reading thus: "That the votes of the electors of the city of Peterborough qualified to vote at municipal elections shall be taken at the annual municipal elections January 6, 1908, on the following question:

"Are you in favour of the establishment of a system for the collection of garbage?"

Ald. Bradburn moved in amendment that if this bylaw was passed in Council those entitled to vote be only the property owners.

The bylaw was given its regular readings and was passed, the amendment being defeated.

Ald. Elliott was not in favour of the method of taxing the people generally a fixed sum of fifteen cents a month. He considered the proper method was by a certain rate on the assessment, thus the poor man would pay according to his means, and the rich man would do likewise.

A discussion was held as to how the matter should be prepared, but it was brought to an abrupt conclusion by Ald. Morrow moving, seconded by Ald. Phelan, that if carried, next year's Council arrange the rate of payment, and anything else that may come up.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 11TH

"THE FATAL FLOWER."

The Howard Hall Amusement Co. present Mr. William Walcott, supported by Miss Florence Reasland, in the powerful modern play, "The Fatal Flower," by Howard Hall. The most beautiful dramatic production of the season.

Prices—35, 35, 50 and 75c.

THE WEATHER.

Rain came down fast night to almost one inch on the level, or .96 of an inch. The highest temperature yesterday was 40 degrees; lowest 29 degrees. The barometer is now gradually rising, and we will have cooler and more seasonable weather shortly. About this date last year we had a spell of decidedly cold weather, and during several mornings the thermometer was down to 12 and 13 degrees below zero.

TO ABOLISH A COURT

Meeting to be Held to Consider Advisability of Doing Away With 3rd Division Court

A PROCLAMATION ISSUED

A meeting will be held on January 9th at 11 o'clock in the morning in Judge Weller's chambers, to consider the advisability of abolishing the third Division Court at Keene, as it is considered that there is not sufficient business there to warrrant the holding of court. A proclamation to this effect was given out in the County Court room on Tuesday afternoon.

The committee to deal with the proposal will be composed of Judge Weller, Sheriff Hall and Warden McNulty. If the decision to abolish the court is arrived at part of the duties taken up by this third Division Court will be transferred to the second, and the remainder to the first Division Court, and other alterations will be made as may be rendered necessary thereby.

DR. LIVINGSTONE'S LIFE PORTRAYED

At Meeting of Knox Church Young People Last Night

The Young Peoples meeting at Knox church last night was a splendid one. Mr. Campbell gave a paper on the life of Dr. Livingstone until he attained the age of 21 years. Miss Clifford continued on to his call to Africa. His life was finished by a reading by Mr. Parker, who gave a brief account with dates, of the doctor's exploration, his death and burying place, in Westminster Abbey. A collection was taken on behalf of missions, being missionary night.

P. C. MEHARRY ARRESTS TWO MEN

Between the hours of 10 and 11 this morning the residence of Mr. Thos. Brightman, Stewart street, was entered and a quantity of jewellery was stolen. Mr. Brightman was at his office down town, and Mrs. Brightman is visiting with friends in Winnipeg.

The police were communicated with and P. C.'s McGinty and Meharry went out on the search and at 3 o'clock the latter was seen in charge of two men who were handcuffed together on the way to the police station. One was a Toronto man, and the other is said to be a resident of Edinburgh, although the police would not divulge his name.

Mr. Brightman did not knew exactly what was missing at the time of going to press. The men were searched, but nothing of value was found on them.

COMET 1907 A IS OVER PETERBORO'

Has Been Photographed From The Observatory Kiel

The secretary of the Peterborough section of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada has received the following bulletin from Harvard College Observatory, Cambridge:

"A cablegram has been received from the astronomical centre at Kiel stating that comet 1907a was photographed by Prof. Max Wolff on December 4th; right ascension 3 hours, 23 minutes, 49 seconds; declination of plus 50 degrees, 35 minutes; daily motion in right ascension of minus 3 minutes, 16 seconds; daily motion in declination of minus 6 minutes and 34 seconds."

Dr. Marsh, the president of the local society, states to the Examiner that this comet is directly over Peterborough at ten o'clock at night, but that it is not visible to the naked eye.

Superstitious on Skin Diseases

Of all superstitious, the most foolish is the idea that when a rash or sore is healed and cured by means of an external remedy, it will "strike in" and do further harm. No reputable physician will give any countenance to such a notion. Skin diseases of every form, and especially eczema, salt rheum, scald head, etc., are promptly relieved and certainly cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

MURRAY WILL STAND TRIAL FOR ATTEMPTING TO SHOOT POLICE OFFICER AT THE C. P. R. STATION

One of the Criminal Cases Before His Honour Judge Weller at Court Which Opened To-day

FIRST CASE IN PROGRESS

The autumn session of the County Court, and General Sessions of the Peace, opened this afternoon, at 1 o'clock, before His Honour Judge Weller.

The members of the bar present were Messrs. F. D. Kerr, D. O'Connel, G. Gordon, R. E. Wood and T. S. Medd.

The Grand Jury was first empannelled, with Mr. W. E. Conway, as foreman, and consisted of the following: W E Conway, Thos Davidson, A C Denike, William Garbutt, Joseph Green G N Hamilton, W S Johnston, W Kelly, Thos Lillico, A McIntyre, Robert Miller, A R Nicholl, Thomas Nicholl.

In his address to the jury, His Honour stated that he had been handed a calendar from the Sheriff showing why those incarcerated in the gaol were there, and their number. Many of them were serving sentences for vagrancy; four were sentenced for theft. There were two cases from a criminal standpoint to be tried. One was against a man named Murray, who was charged with attempting to shoot Police Officer Newhall at a station some time ago.

The other case was that of theft against a man living in Cavendish, who is charged with stealing goods.

He also advised the jury to visit the gaol, and explained that the vagrants there were not sent to the County House of Refuge in view of the fact that no arrangements could be made between the city and county as regards the cost of maintenance. He would have directed the jury to visit the House of Refuge had it not been for the fact that a Grand Jury visited that institution not very long ago.

The first case that came before His Honour was that of Collier vs. Donohue. Mr. W. H. Collier claims $598, principal and interest, on a promissory note for $500, which is now overdue. Hall, Medd and Davidson for plaintiff; O'Connell & Gordon for defendant.

The MacPherson Co. vs Pappas case was setted out of court, as was the only jury case on the docket, that of McIntyre vs. Nelson.

SEVERAL STITCHES TO CLOSE UP THE CUT

The Examiner is informed that contrary to the report in yesterday's issue that no one was hurt while coasting at Morrow's Hill on Saturday, that one of the boys was so badly cut on the head that a doctor had to be called to put in several stitches. The communication says that the boy remembered nothing of what occurred from the time of the accident until the following morning, and that children should not be allowed to coast on the public highway, as it is too dangerous.

ALD. MORROW ADVOCATES GATES AT TWO DANGEROUS CROSSINGS

Ald. Morrow brought up an important subject at the Council meeting last night when he moved that a petition be made the Railway Commission, asking that the railway companies provide protection gates at the C.P.R. crossing on Aylmer street, and the G.T.R. crossing on Reid street at the Wm. Hamilton Company's shops.

Ald. Morrow referred to the danger that these crossings were to the public and suggested that there was no time like the present for making provision for the general safety of the public at these crossings.

Ald. Leary agreed with this proposal and stated that a week ago Sunday while driving north on Aylmer street he had the most narrow escape of his life. A light engine was shunting and was hidden from view by the coal sheds and Mr. Leary stated that he had only a few feet to make a quick turn and just narrowly escaped, perhaps, a fatality.

Ald. Phelan also agreed that the time was opportune for taking the necessary steps. It was suggested that other streets be also put on the list and gates be asked for. Ald. Stevenson wanted the council to go slow and it be found out what the cost would be to the city. At present the cost is nil and Ald. Stevenson said that it was not desired that an extra cost for several gates be brought upon the city.

Accordingly only the two gates were mentioned and a discussion was held as to what would be necessary to prepare a strong argument to lay before the Commission.

PETERBORO' MAN SHOT IN WOODS NEAR GOODERHAM

A report has reached this city that Alex. Graham, a Peterborough man, has been shot in the woods near Gooderham, where he was employed for a lumbering firm. The news was received by the Examiner just at press time and it was impossible to get any particulars. A phone message to Buckhorn at 3.30 o'clock resulted in confirmation being received that the people at Buckhorn had heard of the accident, but that no particulars were available there. It is not known if the shooting was fatal although it is presumed that it was. Whether it was the result of an accident or not could not be ascertained this afternoon. Further particulars will be given to-morrow.

TRUTH IS STRANGER THAN FICTION

Two Pike Found Inside a 'Lunge—Tin Box Containing Documents Found Inside a Shark

A remarkable fish story is told today by a prominent gentleman who says he received his information from good authority. He also tells a little story about a remarkable fish he caught himself.

The fame of Mr. Bloombe, the local taxidermist, is widely known, and a prominent Belleville sport who enjoys a fishing tour once in a while in the calm waters of the Bay of Quinte, sent an immense lunge, which he caught with an 8-ounce rod, to Mr. Bloombe to be stuffed and asked to have it ready in a week or so as he wished to give it to a friend as a Christmas box and wanted it to look pretty nice.

While preparing this lunge for stuffing, Mr. Bloombe found in its interior two pikes weighing four lbs. This is the most wonderful fish he has ever come across.

The gentleman who tells this story says he went down the Otonabee one boy afternoon for a little pleasure trip and did not expect to catch a fish. He placed a grasshopper on the hook and began to trawl. He was surprised in a few minutes to find he had a bite and pulled in a magnificent bass. Inside this fish was found two craw fish which he says must have been swallowed whole.

He concluded his round of fish stories by telling the following one which he claims his grandfather told him.

At the time of the trouble between the North and South, many slaves used to try and escape from the ban of the Southern States, aided by British ships. These ships were often chased by American gun-boats and sometimes captured, with the papers the slaves signed, on board.

On one occasion a ship was chased and threw the papers overboard, and when caught there were two negros on the ship. There was nothing to identify these men as having escaped, the papers being below the waterline, but the authorities still held the negros in custody.

Two days later while cruising about in the same vicinity the vessel caught a shark and the tin box containing the desired documents was found elected in the shark's interior, and the men were immediately handed over to the State authorities for punishment.

BACK TO MOTHER'S RECIPES

After having tried all the well advertised patent medicines the public are turning to the old household receipts for treatment of incipient diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and urinary organs, which if neglected too long are almost incurable. One old remedy that has come back to popular favour is the following simple prescription: Four ounces syrup of rhubarb, one ounce compound vimosa, one ounce sweet spirits of nitre. Any druggist will fill this at a moderate cost, or you can buy the ingredients separately and mix at home. Take a dessert spoonful in a little water after meals and at bedtime. A few doses will drive out the trouble, and save you endless pain, and money.

WAS KNOWN HERE

Well Deserved Promotion of Major Morris of The Salvation Army, Vancouver

HE VISITED PETERBOROUGH

The Vancouver World says:

Major Morris, who is taking the place of Brigadier Smeeton, at the Vancouver headquarters of the Salvation Army, and who will be introduced on Thursday night, has been an officer for seventeen years, and until recently was in command of the Salvation Army work in Newfoundland. His promotion is well deserved. He was one of their pioneer workers in the Klondyke, during the gold rush, and has behind him a splendid record. In fact he is one of the most promising young officers in the army, and the local officers think he will do excellently out here. He is musical and has a good deal of ability.

(Mr. Morris was in charge of the Staff Band when it visited Peterborough, and has frequently been in the city. He was formerly secretary of the Immigration Department of the Salvation Army work and was associated with Adjt. Jennings in this district.

DATES ARRANGED FOR RACES

The Winter Meet Will be Held on Jan. 21 and 22

At a meeting of the Peterborough Turf Club held yesterday afternoon arrangements were made for the annual winter meet. The dates decided upon were Jan. 21 and 22, and a good programme will be arranged that will no doubt attract a large crowd. Peterborough is on the circuit and a number of the best horses in the country who will go down the eastern line, winding up at Ottawa, will be here for the meet. The first day's racing will include the 2.25 and 2.18 class, and on the second day the bill will consist of the 2.29 and free-for-all. The winter meet has always proved a success but there is good reason to expect that the event this year will break all previous records. At yesterday's meeting Dr. Johnston was elected president and P. J. Clune nan vice-President of the Club.

A TALK ON CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

Some Interesting Information Regarding The Christmas Season

The remark is so often made by shoppers that it is hard to choose suitable Christmas gifts, that a store which lessens this trying task is looked upon with great favour in any community. With this object in view, Soden's Bookstore selected such a stock for its Christmas trade as to practically fill the demands of a buyer who wishes to secure any number of gifts, and for any purpose.

The stock is so varied, so complete, and so artistic, as to commend itself to those who are at all particular about what they give their friends. Our selection of books, leather goods, fancy goods, pictures, games and toys, is so complete as to require no further introduction.

Nothing that any person, whether young or old, would appreciate, that is to be found in an up-to-date book and fancy goods store, is lacking, and an invitation is extended to all Christmas shoppers to make our place of business their headquarters for this season.

SETTLED AT LAST

Ontario did well to get an increased subsidy. A judgment given in the Exchequer Court on Saturday makes quite a hole in provincial revenues, and $12,000 a year in perpetuity. This judgment settles a long-standing dispute between the Dominion and the Province of Ontario regarding the payments of annuities, etc., to the Indians in the northwest corner of the Province of Ontario. The effect of Mr. Justice Burbidge's judgment will be to hand over some $288,000 from the treasury of Ontario to the Dominion of Canada. The latter has been paying since 1873 an annuity of $5 per head to the Indian population of this district, and a sum of $1,500 per annum also towards nets and ammunition for the Indians. The judgment holds Ontario liable for a proportion of both these payments for the last 34 years, and also obliges the Province to continue the payments in perpetuity.

Thirty thousand square miles of the country affected by Indian Treaty No. 6 belongs to the Province of Ontario, and 25,000 square miles to the district of Keewatin, which is under Federal control. The annual payment to the natives from the Provincial and Dominion treasuries will correspond to the area that each controls. That is to say, instead of paying $5 to the Indians per head, as it has been paying since 1873, it will pay hereafter but $2.28 on the annuity account, and a proportion of $1,500. The savings to the Dominion treasury on these two accounts will be between ten and twelve thousand a year.

CANADA FOR CANADIANS

For concentrated and cold bloodedness not to say impudent assurance, commend us to the proposal of President Roosevelt. In his annual message to Congress, corresponding with our Speech from the Throne, he advised that body to abandon protection in the matter of pulp wood products, but suggested that this action should be accompanied, if possible (ay, there's the rub), by an agreement with Canada not to put an export duty on pulp wood or pulp products. Isn't that refreshing? The end of the United States' supply of pulp wood is in sight. To preserve it from complete exhaustion, President Roosevelt proposes to make a raid upon Canadian pulp wood. For years a high duty has been placed on Canadian pulp entering the United States because that represents Canadian labour. By removing this duty, Canadian pulp will be admitted free, and the United States will have all the benefit of Canadian pulp resources. Under such an arrangement it would not take long for Canadian pulp wood forests to be as ruthlessly destroyed as have been those of our southern neighbours. If the United States pulp mills cannot get pulp wood from Canada they will soon have to shut down. Well, let them shut down; they can't have Canadian pulp wood to build up foreign industries, to give employment to foreign labourers, and at the same time slaughter our forests and destroy Canada's most valuable national assets. In trade matters, the United States has always been hostile to us; they have employed every expedient, not always of the fairest, to cripple our commerce and gain for themselves the lion's share of the advantage. Now, in the matter of pulp wood, they are at our mercy; we hold the whip hand. Shall we use it to give Canada the fullest measure of advantage from the possession of the most important areas of pulp wood, commercially available, in the world, or give it away to the United States to be worked up into paper in the United States to the great benefit of her workingmen and industries, and to corresponding disadvantage and loss to Canadian labour interests and Canadian industrial interests?

In dealing with the subject of the cool proposal of the President of the United States, the Toronto Saturday Night says:

There is one thing about these neighbours of ours — they always know what they want, and why they want it. But if a man should be sent from Washington to Ottawa to ask that Canada agree not to put an export duty on pulp, they should select a man with a bronze face for this embassy. The errand will be one calling for an unblushing display of nerve. The envoy will have to say, "In this matter treat us as we have never treated you; treat us as we, if our circumstances were reversed, would not even think of treating you; treat us in this matter as we at present refuse to treat you in any other phase of our commercial relations." In fact, this negotiator, with the countenance of bronze, will have to say to the authorities at Ottawa, "You know our country goes in for high protection; we resort to every device the mind can think of, to build up our own manufactures, and to exclude the products of other nations; we overlook nothing, pause at nothing, in this policy; we barred out your pulp just as long as we could possibly find pulp of our own—but now we are up against a paper famine; we can see it coming; we already feel the pressure of it, and you control the raw material for the paper supply of the continent. Don't do what we would do in your place. Do not soak us. Do not force our paper mills to remove to Canada. Do not draw this vast industry to yourselves. Feed your forests into our mills. Then he will have to conclude with some such fetching offer as this, "I am authorized by President Roosevelt to enter into this this agreement with you: If you will agree to feed our mills we will agree to let you do so. If you will refrain from drawing to yourselves, the vast paper-making industries which your resources of nature entitle you to then, President Roosevelt instructs me to prefer one request, and one only, for he is a proud man, and the chief magistrate of a great people—his only request is that you do not keep us in suspense but enter into an agreement forthwith that you will not now, or at any future time, stop feeding our mills, or show your own mills any preference by putting an export duty on pulp."

The question is plainly presented to Canada—Shall we surrender our pulp forests to the United States to be slashed to extinction? Shall we rob Canadian labour and Canadian industry of the tremendous advantage of manufacturing or having manufactured these products in this country. A cord of Canadian pulp wood in the raw, at the United States border represents $6 in value—material and labour. A cord of pulp wood made into paper in Canada represents about $36 in value—material, labour and industrial operation. Shall our pulp wood be worked into paper in Canada or given to the United States? In concluding its article on this subject Saturday Night says:—

If the dear sylvan glades of our native land are to be chewed up into paper we want to do the chewing, for we like the taste of wood. If our forests ar to go, we shall want some tall smoke-stacks to arrest the eye as it roams over denuded landscapes. Mr Roosevelt of late has been chumming with Mr. Pinchot, the forestry expert of his government. Mr. Pinchot has been carefully calculating the timber supply of the United States, and finds that, at the present rate of going, it will be exhausted in less than thirty years. As regards pulp wood that country is at this moment dependent on Canada. The paper mills of the continent have got to be fed from this side of the border or come to this side of the border to feed. This is the news Mr. Pinchot has given President Roosevelt, and this accounts for the paragraph in his message to Congress.

What is Canada going to do about it? Shall we sell fodder or feed it on the premises? Here is a question for the politicians at Ottawa to consider.

And, in view of the vital interests concerned, in view of the future of this country, no more important matter can engage their attention.

BEER* IS A FOOD

LAGER is a mild appetising product of malt and hops, with less alcohol than sweet cider, which cannot ferment in the stomach. It is specially suited to women as a dinner drink.

ALES as brewed in Ontario are so rich in the food elements of malt that they rank above milk as an item of diet, and are far purer than most milk is when city-dwellers get it.

PORTER differs from ale in that the malt is roasted (like coffee) in the brewing process, and this makes porter so nourishing that it is a real specific for neurasic and run-down people.

STOUT is the richest and most strengthening of malt beers; it contains nearly as much nourishment as eggs, and digests easier. Thin people will find it builds healthy flesh.

BEER*, used with meals and before bedtime, increases digestive power, gets you more good out of the food you eat—and is itself a food.

¶ Beer does not contain enough alcohol to react upon the system — just enough to induce the stomach to do its work better.

¶ Beer is not an intoxicant—it is a beverage with definite value for almost every grown person.

¶ Ask your own doctor whether it wouldn't be good for you and the adults of your household.

*BEER is a term which covers lager, ales, porter, and stout; and, in the practice of Ontario brewers, implies beverages made under local hygienic conditions from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops, and pure water.

A MEMORIAL TO THE GOVERNMENT

Will Ask For Same Price of Post Office Boxes

The increase of the price of the post office boxes at New Years was introduced to the Council by Ald. Phelan last night. He reported that many people did not favour the proposed change and thought something should be done. Accordingly he moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that the clerk be authorized to write the Postmaster-General, asking that the price of the post office boxes be not changed. The motion was generally approved of and was carried.

Alda. Leary stated that about two-thirds of the box holders are farmers and are not affected by the postal delivery. It was pointed out that the change was not wished for and a strong plea will be made that the ordinary boxes be given out at the usual price.

BENEFIT CONCERT BY THE CHURCH

St. Andrew's Church Organizing One—Ye Olde Time Concert Again

ASSISTANCE IS DESIRED

A grand benefit concert will be held on January 7th, for the relief of poor people in distressed circumstances. St Andrew's church has decided to raise a sum of money as near to five hundred dollars as they possibly can, for the purpose of alleviating some of the distress in the city. The managers have been intrusted with the task of raising the money, and are given to January 9 to raise it. When it is raised, or as much as has been gathered together at that time, it will be handed over to a distributing committee composed of the minister, an elder, one man from the congregation, one lady from the Ladies' Aid, and one lady from the Mission Society.

The managers will simply raise the money; they will not distribute it. Already quite an encouraging amount has been gathered together by subscription. The choir has kindly consented to give the unique "Ye Olde Folkes' Concerte" in the opera house on January 7th, 1908. The concert is perhaps one of the best ever given in Peterborough; many people were turned away each time it was given. The concert will be in a measure re-cast.

St. Andrew's people feel themselves free to ask everyone in the city to boom this concert, for charity's sake, for with due regard to preventing duplication the question asked will simply be—"Are you in need?"

There are many industrious, self-respecting men who are temporarily distressed at this time who would suffer greatly before going to a city charity board for help. It is proposed in some cases to lend a small sum weekly to these people, without security. All are invited to help this scheme along, as it will be good for the helper and the helped.

ST. PAUL'S WELCOME NEW PASTOR

Presentation Made to Dr. Marsh and Dr. Talling—Mrs. Pogue Receives Bequest

CHURCH'S BRIGHT FUTURE

Seldom before in the history of Peterborough have a minister and his wife been more heartily received by a congregation than were Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Pogue last night by the members of St. Paul's Church. A delightful supper was served in the Sunday schoolroom between the hours of 6 and 8 o'clock, and was largely attended. At 7 o'clock Rev. Mr. Pogue and Mrs. Pogue took their places in the parlour of the church, and the different members of the congregation were presented to their pastor and his wife by Messrs. J. C. Shook and G. M. Roger. At 8 o'clock a congregational reception was held in the church.

The church was well filled despite the inclement weather which prevailed, and when Mr. Pogue took his seat on the platform he was enthusiastically received. Beside him sat Rev. Dr. Marsh, Rev. J. R. Webb and Rev. Dr. Talling, and the middle seat was occupied by Mr. R. E. Wood, who acted as chairman.

The reception opened with a prayer, and was followed by a short address by the chairman. He began his address by saying that they had gathered there for three reasons—first, to give a hearty welcome to the new pastor; secondly, to say farewell to the Rev. Mr. Talling, and thirdly, to heartily thank Dr. Marsh for acting as Moderator during the time that St. Paul's was without a pastor.

Sheriff Hall, who was the next speaker, reviewed the history of St. Paul's regarding her pastors since its opening. In the year 1834 on the 12th day of October, Rev. J. M. Roger, of the Church of Scotland, came to Peterborough at the instance of the Presbytery at Kingston, and on November 1 he founded the first Church of Scotland in Peterborough. Later on the church changed to the Presbyterian Church of Canada, and Mr. Roger served his congregation faithfully for 43 years. The speaker referred to the pastorship of Rev. Dr. Torrance, who had served his congregation faithfully for 31 years. The office-bearers had made mistakes in the past, but he believed they had made a wise choice in securing Mr. Pogue as their spiritual adviser, and they looked forward with cheerfulness to the future. He also spoke of the excellent services rendered the congregation of St. Paul's by Dr. Marsh since the church had been without a pastor. Rev. Mr. Pogue was presented with a handsome purse of gold as a token of the appreciation by St. Paul's of his personality.

Dr. Talling also left behind him in St. Paul's many friends, who will never forget him. The children of the Sunday school also desire to welcome Mrs. Pogue, and Miss Marguerite Connal presented Mrs. Pogue with a handsome bouquet.

Mr. Norris then sang a solo entitled "Paradise," which was greatly appreciated. He is a singer of more than ordinary ability.

Mr. Roger, on behalf of the congregation, delivered a short address of welcome to Mr. Pogue. He assured the new pastor that he would meet with the hearty cooperation of the congregation in everything he undertook. The speaker said he appreciated the fact that the new pastor had left a large congregation to come to Peterborough. He thanked Rev. Dr. Marsh and Rev. Dr. Talling for their kindness to them in helping along the work of St. Paul's, and the Bible class here presented the latter with a century Bible for his splendid work in the capacity of teacher.

After this address the choir sang, "O Give Thanks unto the Lord," in which Miss Helen Davies took the solo.

Rev. J. R. Webb, president of the Ministerial Association, said that he and Mr. Pogue were old college friends, and that they were glad to meet again.

Miss Davies then sang a solo, "Come unto Me," in her usual excellent voice after which Dr. Marsh addressed the gathering.

Rev. Dr. Marsh said that he had done his duty in acting as Moderator of St. Paul's, and had felt it an honour. The call that was placed before the Presbytery was unanimously signed, and was of a most enthusiastic nature. He was sure that Mr. Pogue would even exceed the great expectations of the people.

In a short address Dr. Talling thanked the Bible class for their presentation. He also was proud of the part he had in securing Rev. Mr. Pogue, and was sure that St. Paul's had made no mistake.

Rev. Mr. Pogue closed the meeting with a brief address. He appreciated the kindness shown him by the congregation and the great reception he had received. He hoped that his association with the other ministers would be pleasant. He wanted the earnest cooperation of every member of the congregation, and the session. He was glad for Mrs. Pogue's sake, that he had come to Peterborough, as she would be able to enter more fully into the work which she held nearest her heart, and trusted that the ministry which had just began, would be fruitful and that Christ's kingdom would be more firmly established.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Doxology.

Strathconas Will Be Peterboro's O.H.A. Team

Annual Meeting of the Peterboro' Hockey Club Held Last Night—Transfer Was Unanimously Voted For by The Gathering

THE OFFICERS ELECTED

The Strathconas, City League champions will, as prophesied in the Examiner last night, represent Peterborough in the intermediate series of the O.H.A. this season. This was arranged at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club last night, when it was decided to transfer the club to the Strathconas and to have the officers of the latter club with a number of additions manage O.H.A. team. This step was unanimously agreed upon as it was felt that it would be in the best interest of the game this season. The Stratha. have signed nearly all the available men in the city and will have no difficulty in putting a team on the ice that should go a long way towards winning the championship. At that it looks as if they would also be able to enter a fast team in the City League as well, although the latter has not been decided upon. With such active and well known hockey men as Chris. Graham, Fred A. Clarke, W E Wasson, R M Glover and Dr. Wightman identified with the club and with the young blood infused by the Strathconas taking over the team the season should be a prosperous one.

The meeting was held in the Oriental Hotel parlours and was attended by a large gathering of enthusiasts who manifested great interest in the enterprise. Mr. Fred A. Clarke, the vice-president, occupied the chair in the unavoidable absence of President Alex Elliott.

The first business taken up was the hearing of reports. Secretary-Treasurer Graham made a short reference to last season's record which he said had, on the whole, been satisfactory. The club had won eight out of eleven games played and had large gates during the season. He presented the following financial statement which was adopted:—

Receipts.
Balance on hand	$18 50
Gate receipts	2,371 71
Members tickets	68 00

	$3,216 76

After a short discussion of the prospects for the season a motion was carried to the effect that the club this year be known as the Strathconas and that it shall be managed by the officers of the Strathconas. The names of Messrs. V Eastwood, Fred A Clarke, W E Wasson and Dr. Wightman were added to the list and the officers for the year will be as follows:—

Hon. President—Mr. Jas. Hendry.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—Mr. V. Eastwood.
President—C G Graham.
1st Vice-Pres.—R M Glover.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Fred A Clarke.
Secretary—F D Craig.
Treasurer—W Regan.
Executive Committee—Chas N Barber, Len Dobson, Clarence Wilson, W E Wasson and Dr. Wightman.

Secretary Craig was appointed to represent the club at the meeting to be held in Port Hope to-morrow night for the purpose of drawing up the schedule.

After discussing a number of details upon which nothing was decided the meeting adjourned.

There is no reason why hockey should not flourish here as usual this season. Although most of the stars of other years will be shining elsewhere or have retired there is an abundance of young material who, with the proper training and looking after, will make things interesting for the other teams in the district.

FIRST PRACTICE FOR EDMONTON

The Edmonton Senior Hockey Club held its first practice of the season last night at Setzaffer's rink. Thirteen players turned out and for the first practice a lot of good work was done. Whitcroft, the playing manager of the club, was out as large as life, and from his work will undoubtedly hold down his job to a nicety. He is skating very fast and the puck seems to stay with his stick well. Deeton and Campbell were also Dout and were well up with Whitcroft in the continued chase up and down the rink practicing the combination. McLaze was out for a while and had his whack at the rubber. Billy Bamford was there with his brother Gordie, both handling their sticks well and skating fast. Dick Wilson from Kingston was also out and showed a marked ability for stick-handling, although having some trouble with the skates.

The ice was keen with soft spots around the boards, but the rink is too small for anything but combination practice.

There will be another practice for an hour to-night from 7 to 8, when the boys will indulge in another hard grind. By Christmas, if such work is kept up, they will be in good condition for their first game.—Edmonton Bulletin.

THE EXCLUSION OF FORM II.

TO BE VOTED ON LATER

Yesterday afternoon at 4.15 the regular fortnightly meeting of the Philomathean Society was held in the Y.M.C.A. hall. The hall was crowded to the doors with a large number of the fairs ex present. The President, Mr. M O'Brien, was in the chair and succeeded in having the programme carried out perfectly. Each performer handled his or her part very well and they certainly are a credit to the society. The minutes were read and adopted and as there was no business to be attended to, the programme was carried out. At the last meeting Mr. H Brown had given notices that at the next regular meeting of the society, he would move that the constitution be amended in such a way as to exclude from all benefits and privileges of the society all pupils of Form II. Great interest was excited by this and three Second Formers had prepared speeches against it. Mr. H. Brown brought in the motion and, having laid it before the school, in a few well-chosen words, he proceeded to give his reasons for taking this step. He said that he felt great sorrow at taking this step, but as it was for the good of the school he felt compelled to do it. He said that a number of the Second Formers held prominent places in athletics but as they were desirous for better, their great numbers would shut out others from these positions. Mr. S Pringle then followed. It gave him much pleasure in seconding the motion and in support of it he said that the Second Formers would influence the others it allowed to remain. Mr. M. Adams then appeard for Form II. He spoke in a good manner although not being accustomed to making speeches. The next speaker for Form II was Mr. Harry Hall, and it is prophesied that, if he keeps on as he has been doing in the past, there is a great future in public life before him In concluding, on behalf of the Second Form girls, he challenged the girls of Form III and IV. to a contest in beauty, wit, debate or any athletic sport for girls. This caused great excitement and it is likely that the challenge will be heard from again. The closing speaker was Miss F. Hurley who has been seen before in literary circles.

The motion will be voted on later.

The rest of the programme was as follows:—

Piano solo—Miss E Connor.
Reading—Miss E Pollock.
Vocal solo—Miss B Reid.
Recitation—Miss A Bonnet.
Piano solo—Miss M. Primeau.

After the programme Mr. Merritt, of the Collegiate staff, Criticised the meeting. The meeting was closed by singing the National Anthem.

PLEASANT BANQUET AT Y.M.C.A.

The Intermediate Boys Were There— Plans For Winter Work Explained

OFFICERS WERE ELECTED

The intermediate class of employed boys of the Y.M.C.A. held a successful banquet last night. There was a large number present and a pleasant time was spent by all. Dr. J. E. Middleton occupied the chair, and after the good things provided by Caterer C. E. Coleman were stowed away by the boys the chairman briefly stated the object of getting the boys together, and asked the secretary, Mr. H. C. Wright, to explain the plans for the work for this winter.

The first thing proposed was a weekly tea at 6.30 p.m. on Thursday, for which each person was to pay ten cents, and a Bible Class to follow immediately after, to last not longer than twenty or thirty minutes, and to be conducted by Dr. Middleton.

Sixteen boys signified their desire to join the class and come each week for tea. A few of the boys who could not get there in time for tea promised to come for the Bible Class.

It was proposed to have a social evening on each Tuesday evening, with something of special interest each week, this to be under the supervision of Mr. C. E. Sisson and to be held in the junior rooms in the basement. Much interest was taken in this plan which was heartily endorsed by the boys.

It was decided to hold the first tea and Bible Class next Monday evening, December 16, at 6.30, and the second one to be on December 26, and each Thursday after.

The following officers of the club were elected unanimously:

Pres.—Bert Gillespie.
Sec.—Percy Stock.
Treas.—Mitchell Hart.

Manufacturers' Reasons For Fixed Assessments

Four Companies Demand This Favour From the City—Their Pay Rolls and the Annual Wages Paid

HAMILTON CO'S APPEAL

The question of fixed assessments of four of the local industrial establishments received careful consideration from the Council last night and was left in the hands of the Committee of the Whole for future consideration. The companies are the Peterborough Canoe Company, the Alfred McDonald Estate Lumbering Company, Auburn Woollen Mills, and the Peter Hamilton Company.

On behalf of the Peterborough Canoe Company and the Alfred McDonald Estate, Mr. E. A. Peck petitioned for fixed assessment for both of these firms. Referring to the latter, he reviewed the early struggles of the late Alfred McDonald with the gradual rise of the company to one of the best lumbering establishments in the district. Mr. Peck said the company has about 200 men on its pay roll, and expends in the city about $100.000 per year. It was, he said, one of the most reliable companies in the city and should have some assistance.

The Canoe Company was then referred to by Mr. Peck, who stated that, like the McDonald Estate Company, it was one of the oldest in the city and had its baptism of fire to keep it back in its early stages. While four-fifths of the industrial companies of the city had been assisted by being granted fixed assessment, Mr. Peck wanted to know why the other fifth was not favoured in the same way. He submitted that the two industries who represented should have fixed assessments. Conditions are not so good as they (were and as the industries are the vital life of the city it is therefore necessary that they be encouraged and assisted to maintain the city in its industrial vigour.

The pay roll of the Peterborough Canoe Company now numbers 50 men, receiving $25,000 annually.

The following establishments, Mr. Peck said, were receiving fixed assessment: The Rapid Tool Company, Central Milling Company, J. J. Turner & Sons, Peterborough Cereal Company, Peterborough Shovel Works, Quaker Oats Company, C. G. E. Company, Wm. Hamilton Company, Canadian Cordage Company, and Auburn Woollen Mills.

Mayor McWilliams asked Mr. Peck that if the McDonald Estate received fixed assessment, was not the principle the same in the cases of the other lumber companies in the city. Mr. Peck considered that the principle was practically the same.

Mr. Carnegie, on behalf of the Auburn Woollen Company, again asked for increased fixed assessment for his company. Mayor McWilliams asked if the company had found it necessary to ask for fixed assessment owing to competition from outside companies, but Mr. Carnegie was not sure about this.

Hamilton's Company's Appeal

Mr. Jas. Hamilton said there were certain reasons why the Peter Hamilton Company should be favoured. He stated that the property it occupied was very valuable now, but when it was first purchased it was not very valuable and has not increased in its value to the company.

The company has been in business sixty years and has seen many changes, and undergone the same trials as any of the other local establishment. It has 100 men employed at present, with $60,000 in wages.

Dr. Gray's Opinion

Dr. Gray was present in regard to this question and urged that nothing be done until the Court of Revision had made its report. He felt that the Hamilton Company had been "outlandishly" assessed, but a company should not receive any more than eight or ten years' assessment, as the citizens have a sufficiently heavy tax to pay as they are at present.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR CONCERT

Committees Made good Progress at Last Night's Meeting

A meeting of the musical and finance committees in connection with the benefit concert for Mr. David Hartley, was held last night, and more preliminary arrangements were made for the occasion, which promises to be a grand success. There were present Messrs. R. J. Munro, Archie Moore, Joseph Maher, and R. M. Glover, of the finance committee, and Mr. Rupert Gliddon of the musical committee. Ald. Phelan, Elliott, McIntyre and Morgan were also present.

Mr. Maher, on motion, took the chair, with Mr. R. M. Glover as secretary.

Messrs. Munro, Maher and Gliddon were appointed a committee to interview Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons of the Grand Opera House and arrange with them for the use of the opera house or to secure some other suitable place for holding the concert.

Mr. Gliddon was given power to add to the musical committee any names that are satisfactory to himself.

The details in regard to the musical programme, advertising, prices of admission, etc., were left in the hands of the joint musical and finance committee, after which the meeting adjourned.

VIOLIN RECITAL BY MISS JULIA CHOATE

Miss Lina Drechsler Adamson begs to announce a violin recital to be given by her talented pupil, Miss Julia Choate, on Friday evening, December 20th, in the Conservatory Music Hall. Miss Choate has for the past two years had the advantage of studying with Miss Adamson, who is the leading violinist, both at the Toronto and the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, and those who heard Miss Choate last year will mark the great improvement she has made under Miss Adamson's able tuition.

Miss Choate will be assisted by Miss Pearl Lundy, vocalist.

All who are interested in music are invited to attend.

CHRISTMAS GREETING CARDS

The Examiner Office has on hand a complete line of samples of Xmas Greetings which they will be pleased to show. Orders taken now filled at once.

Important Question Being Disposed Of By Council

Garbage By-law, Fixed Assessment and Park Were Discussed---Council Takes Action and Rescinds at Same Session in Davidson Matter---Dark Alleys To Be Lighted

As the old year draws to a close, the council meetings of the present body are becoming fewer and the principal aim appears now to wind up the most important business, by postponing or otherwise, and to present an almost clean sheet or abundance of work, to the new twelve. The Garbage By-law of course came up for consideration, and will be voted on this year by the electors. The council covered a great deal of ground and were in session until midnight.

The park in the south end was arranged for and a cheque for $2,000 will be given the Board of Education for the property.

The following were present: Mayor McWilliams, Ald. Phelan, Morrow, McIntyre, Wilson, Bradburn, Duncan, Morgan, Stevenson, Leary and Elliott.

Bylaws Passed

Bylaw No. 1349, providing for a granolithic sidewalk on a part of Dickson street.

Bylaw No. 1351, providing for a sewer on Dickson street.

A bylaw was passed providing for the appointment of poll clerks.

Bylaw No. 1355 authorizing the laying out of a new street in the south end, known as Prince street.

Communications

A communication was received from William Davidson, McDonnel street, asking for a refund of $20, his sewer connection being complete. Mr. Davidson opened up the street for his sewer connection without seeing the city engineer. The latter visited him and then allowed him to proceed. Mayor McWilliams considered that under the circumstances he should not get the money until the Board of Works had dealt with the case.

Ald. Bradburn was in favour of paying the money over, if the Board of Works were satisfied. On motion of Ald. Phelan and Elliott, the money was authorized to be paid.

The matter of making any changes in the payment of the assistants in the city offices was left over for next year's council to deal with.

Election Matters

The appointment of the men who will be stationed at the various polling booths at the coming elections, was made, only three vacancies having to be filled.

Someone asked if the polls would close at five as usual, and Mayor McWilliams said the time would be the same as before.

A bylaw had been passed providing for their close two hours later at seven o'clock, but owing to it not having been received in time it was not valid.

Regarding the Romaine street sewer, Ald. Duncan said that at present it was in good working order, and no trouble was being experienced.

Ald Leary brought up the question of new iron work for the Smith street bridge, saying it was, he believed, not in the strongest condition. Ald. Duncan, however, stated that he had inspected it and it appeared to be in good shape. The bridge showed no strain when a heavy load of bricks passed over it.

Alleys to be Lighted

Ald. Morgan read a report which he said aimed at assisting the police in their night work. He asked for eight incandescent lamps to be placed in dark lanes—a list of which he mentioned—in the centre of the city. The matter was left to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Just before the council was adjourned last night when all the business had been completed Mayor McWilliams referred to the Davidson affair which he said was the first little "slap in the face" that he had received from the council. The matter is explained in the beginning of this article but may be referred to again. Mr. Davidson had made a sewer connection with his house and dug into the street without, it is alleged, the proper authority. He states that he asked the City Engineer but the latter denies that, and it is stated that Mr. Davidson did ask the clerk. However, when the City Engineer heard of the affairs he saw Mr. Davidson about it and was satisfied that it was being done properly.

Mr. Davidson asked the council for the refund of the usual $20.00 but the Mayor said he thought that Mr. Davidson had violated the accustomed rule and considered that the affair should be investigated by the Board of Works to find out whether Mr. Davidson had really asked the Engineer for the right to cut open the street for the sewer.

The Mayor said that he had tried to point out that the council was being continually held up and that something should be done to assert the authority of the city.

The Mayor said in spite of his effort in this regard the Alderman had voted in direct opposition. Ald. Phelan had considered that the matter was a trival one and since it had no evil consequences the $20.00 might just as well be paid. Ald. Elliott agreed in this and seconded Ald. Phelan's motion. It was carried with most of the Aldermen in favour of it.

When Mayor McWilliams made the statement that he had received "a slap in the face" the alderman assured him that nothing of a personal matter had been considered. Ald. Phelan and Elliott had no apologies to offer as the affir had been impersonally considered by them.

After considerable discussion the motion was rescinded and Mr. Davidson's appeal will be dealt with by the Board of Works.

Old Peterboro' Boy Back After Years in Centre India

Sergt. Hall, Late of 60th Rifles Juggiepore, Visiting Friends in The City—On His Way to Vancouver to Take a Position

LEFT HERE 10 YEARS AGE

Sergt. G. W. Hall, late instructor of gymnastics and fencing with the 60th Rifles, stationed at Jubblepore, Central India, is spending a few days in the city the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Isaacs, Dublin street, en route to Vancouver, B.C., where he will take charge of the physical culture department of a college. Mr. Hall is an old Peterborough boy and has been kept busy shaking hands with old acquaintances since his return.

An Examiner reporter had a short interview with Mr. Hall last night in which the sergeant gave some interesting information about Central India, in which country he has resided for eight years. Mr. Hall left Peterborough ten years ago and spent two years in England and Ireland before going to India. While in Peterborough he was a member of the Y.M.C.A., and an interesting feature cropped up in the conversation. It happened that in the memorable "Red" and "Blue" membership contest, which the older members of the "Y" will remember well, Mr. Hall had been connected with the "Reds," while the reporter had belonged to the "Blues." The campaign, it will be remembered, was a hot one, and Mr. Hall, who was very much interested in the affair, left Peterborough before the result was known, and had not been able to find out the winners in the contest. In fact, it was not until the reporter last night informed him that the "Reds" had won the contest of ten years ago that he heard the result.

Speaking of Central India, Mr. Hall was not over-enthusiastic in its praises, and intimated that he was glad to leave the country, the climate of which was very bad. He was situated on the plains where it was always hot, while on the other hand it was cool enough in the mountains of the north. There had been no trouble with the natives during Mr. Hall's residence in India, although a brush with them is always anticipated by the soldiers, who are on their guard against an outbreak. The more the natives are educated and civilized the more dangerous they become. At one time they were quite satisfied with their lot, but now that they are becoming modernized they have become to grumble, and trouble may quite likely occur. There are very few English people in Central India with the exception of civil service officials and soldiers.

Mr. Hall left India on October 15 and spent a few days in England on his way to Canada. On his trip across the continent he will stop off at Chicago and other places en route.

—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Campney, seconded by Coun. Young, that Mr. James Hackas be instructed to procure plank and extend sidewalk on south side of Mathison street east, in accordance with a previous motion of the Council.—Carried.

Mr. J. A. Culverwell, managing director of the Northumberland-Durham Power Company, Limited, addressed the Council as the spokesman of a deputation of prominent Havelock ratepayers, requesting the Council to send two of its number as members of a deputation which will wait on the Dominion Government, requesting the lease of the Government's middle portion of Healey Falls, and urged upon the Council the importance to Havelock of such a step, both as an aid to the village and to the 25 stockholders of the company who reside in Havelock.

Messrs. Jas. Mark, S S Jayes, Chas. Fanning, Thos. Hubble, Jas. Watson and Thos. Wood also addressed the Council, all urging the importance of the Council doing all in its power to assist the company in order that Havelock may be afforded an opportunity of obtaining cheap power as an inducement to manufacturers to locate here.

After considerable discussion on the matter, it was moved by Coun. Campney and seconded by Coun. Young, that the Whole Council be a deputation to go to Ottawa along with a deputation of leading business men and manufacturers of the lakefront towns and cities to endorse the memorial to the Dominion Government of this Council, dated the 29th day of August, 1907, and to press the immediate settlement of the Northumberland-Durham Power Company, Limited, application for the intervening portion of upper Healey rapids, the company holding a lease from the Ontario Government of the falls and lower rapids, and owning portions of the upper rapids and a patent for the land required for development works.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Knox, seconded by Coun. Campney, that Wm. Rose's account for electric light fixtures and new lights for street, amounting to $17.15, less 50 cents deduction, and also B. J. Graham's account for $3.50 for work and material—cutting doors in dressing rooms—be paid.

The clerk was instructed to obtain advice from the solicitor of the Council regarding the liability of the business tax in certain cases on transfer of business, and also to write the Municipal World for its opinion on the matter.

Council then adjourned.

COLOSSAL COLISEUM FOR LONDON

Olympic Games Will See the Largest in The World

An extraordinary constructive feat is in progress in old London. On the open spaces of Shepherd's bush are rising with remarkable rapidity the city within a city which will be the scene of the Franco-British Exhibition next summer. Here the Olympic games, so much talked about already in Canada, will be held. The first sod for the exhibition buildings was turned last January, and in August the first stanchion of the huge arena was raised. During the past few months huge constructions that cover over 140 acres have been erected. Eight spacious halls, each 400 by 70 feet, are already outlined in steel, iron and concrete. For many the external decorations have already been affixed to the fireproof structural walls. Two hundred and fifty thousand square feet of floor space has been roofed over for the Machinery Hall alone. Other palaces are rising rapidly for education, fine arts, music and women's work.

In its present condition, with only the two great segments finished at each end of the mighty ellipse, the Olympic arena irresistibly reminds the spectator of the Coliseum, as that venerable monument of Imperial Rome now looks in the splendor of its majestic ruins. But the Coliseum, with all its tiers of arches, could be easily contained within the completed Olympic arena of to-day. The stadium of modern Athens, seats and all, could be built within the space of grass that forms merely the centre of London's latest marvel. The amphitheatres of Nimes or Arles could be hidden away at one end of the Shepherd's bush arena and scarcely interfere with its proportions. Some 80,000 people will be able to sit round its spacious seats and watch the greatest athletic gathering the world has ever seen. Like Pharaoh's officers upon the Pyramids, the companions of the Duke of Argyll mounted the long tiers of concrete steps the other day to the topmost circle of this Babylonian crater and looked out upon the acres of Greensward, the long curves of the cinder-track, the embankments for bicycle-racing, the huge cavern of the swimming bath. They were accompanied by representatives of the foremen and English press who had been gathered together from all over the country and from across the channel to see the wonderful preparations being made for the summer of 1908.

ST. GEORGE'S WANT A GAME HERE

New Toronto Senior Club Would Like to Meet the Strathconas

Mr. Chris. Graham, president of the Strathconas, has received a letter from the new St. George's team of Toronto asking for a game here on Christmas night. The locals have not definitely decided yet, but it is not likely that the St. George's will be accommodated, at least not on Christmas Day. A game on a holiday night does not seem to be a money-maker in Peterborough.

Miller's Drink Cure is safe, effectual and can be readily taken. Sold by W. Madill.

DECEIVING THE EYE.

How Witnesses May Differ as to What They Think They See.

Can anybody be perfectly sure that he is telling the truth, especially on the witness stand? To illustrate the fact that two witnesses, testifying as to how many people were in a room, may differ widely, yet honestly, in their opinion, Professor Munsterberg in an article in McClure's relates the following experiment with some of his students of psychology at Harvard:

"Last winter I made an experiment with the students of my regular psychology course in Harvard. Several hundred young men, mostly between twenty and twenty-three, took part. It was a test of a very trivial sort. I asked them simply, without any theoretical introduction, at the beginning of an ordinary lecture, to write down careful answers to a number of questions referring to that which they would see or hear. I urged them to do it as conscientiously and carefully as possible, and the hundreds of answers which I received showed clearly that every one had done his best. I shall confine my report to the first 100 papers taken up at random. At first I showed them a large sheet of white cardboard on which fifty little black squares were pasted in irregular order. I exposed it for five seconds and asked them how many black spots were on the sheet. The answers varied between twenty-five and 200. The answer over 100 was more frequent than that of below fifty. Only three felt unable to give a definite reply. Then I showed a cardboard which contained only twenty such spots. This time the replies ran up to seventy and down to ten. We had here highly trained, careful observers whose attention was concentrated on the material and who had full time for quiet scrutiny. Yet in both cases there were some who believed that they saw seven or eight times more points than some others saw, and yet we should be disinclined to believe in the sincerity of two witnesses, of whom one felt sure that he saw 200 persons in a hall in which the other found only twenty-five."

At the Bottom of San Francisco Bay.

What a melancholy sight the bottom of San Francisco bay must present! A diver recently told me of going down to the City of Quebec, sunk many years ago at the mouth of the harbor by one of the large China steamers. He descended with a stout heart and a mind inured to the tragedies of the sea, but when he saw two sisters of charity sleeping quietly in their berths and near by a man on his knees, swaying back and forth with the motion of the tide, and a dim, mysterious light over all the somber objects his heart failed him, and he gave the signal to be hauled above. The San Rafael lies there too. She went down in 1901, sent to the bottom by a collision with another steamer in the fog. The relentless tide runs over her cozy cabins and beautiful stairway, dank with the passage of time.

And there lie also, caught in the seaweed, the City of Rio Janeiro, the Escambia, the May Flint and the Caleb Curtis, the last a pilotboat sunk in a blinding fog. Truly, the bottom of the bay is paved with memories.—San Francisco Call.

Murderers as Heroes.

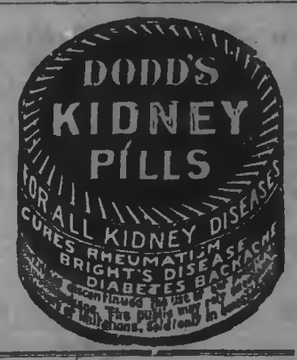
Instructions have been given by the government of Java for the execution of criminals within the walls of the prison in future. The present rule of public executions has no deterring effect on the Javanese. Murderers on the way to the scaffold are treated with great respect by the native police and are dressed in white and wear flowers in their hair. The spectators look on them with a respect which resembles hero worship when the criminals walk with bold and defiant tread. In such cases the relatives bury the murderers with great ceremony and hold their memory in reverence.

Lamp For Dante's Tomb.

The Italian Dante society is to furnish the tomb of the poet of Ravenna with a lamp which it is proposed shall be kept perpetually burning at the expense of the municipality of Florence. The lamp is in the fourteenth century Venetian style, its main feature being an ostrich's egg, surrounded at its greatest diameter by a circlet of copper, with ornaments of gems, lapis lazuli and malachite. The cup of the lamp will be of the finest Venetian crystal. The work is pronounced worthy of the best traditions of Florentine craftsmen.—London Tribune.

Part of a Ship.

Messrs. Harland & Wolff, shipbuilders of Belfast, Ireland, are soon to launch a new bow portion for the White Star liner Suevic, which ran ashore near the Lizard, on the Cornwall coast. A good two-thirds of the vessel was saved and taken to Southampton for repair. Now the new bow which has been built for her is to be towed round from Belfast to Southampton, and the ship is to be rendered once more complete.



Terrapin.

Terrapin begin laying about the middle of May and hatch in about thirty days. The female terrapin scratches a hole in the sand with her fore paws, deposits her eggs, from thirteen to nineteen, in it and then covers them up and leaves the heat of the sun on the sand to hatch out the young terrapins. They are not much bigger when hatched than a man's thumb nail and are as soft as dough. They crawl around pretty lively and begin to hunt for their food, consisting of small fish, crabs, etc. The first summer they are quite small, and about the first to the middle of November they go into their winter quarters. These consist of some soft mudhole in the marsh or on the bottom of some stream. Here they sleep until about the middle of April or later, when they come out and are of quite respectable size, say four inches in breadth. The next year they are six inches and the third seven inches in breadth. It is undoubtedly while the terrapin slumbers in the mud that he acquires the peculiar qualities for which we admire him. It is the only flesh known which one can crush in his mouth with his tongue without the aid of his teeth. The other animals run about, sleeping only at night. The terrapin sleeps night and day for six or seven months of the year and takes his night naps, too, for the balance of the year.—Baltimore Sun.

Pen Portrait of Grieg.

Here is as vivid a picture of Grieg the man as any that has yet been drawn. A correspondent who saw the noted Scandinavian composer when he received his honorary degree at Cambridge, in England, in 1894, makes it for the Manchester Guardian: "It was a sad and a strong face that we saw, one might almost have said a grim face, but that there was nothing of hardness in it, a face which must have inspired both respect and affection in all who met him. Yet as the little, old looking man stood there in the red and yellow gown of a doctor of music there was something incongruous about his appearance, the head, encircled with long, straight, white hair, appearing above the still stiffer, straighter lines of gaudy brocaded silk, which descended to the ground in the form of a regular cone, and the simile of one visitor, who remarked that they made him look just like a penwiper, was irresistibly accurate."

Beer Capacity of a Munich Porter.

An English family touring in Bavaria called at the world famous Hofbrauhaus, the pride of Munich, writes our correspondent. To the waitress serving them the head of the family in a matter of fact way simply held up his five fingers. To the family's astonishment, the waitress came back with five quart pots filled to the brim with beer. The visitors bravely struggled with the beer, but managed to dispose of only about a quart between them. Knowing that it would be considered an insult to leave beer, they called a porter and ordered him to finish it. In less time than it takes to relate it the Bavarian accomplished the task. Wiping his mustache, he demanded sixpence for the "job" and, having obtained the money, instantly ordered and emptied yet another quart pot.—London Mail.

A Waiter's Amazing Wail.

The waiter spoke indignantly.

"Men go about," he said, "complaining of being mistook for waiters, but it is on the other foot really that the shoe rests. Us waiters are the real complainants in these cases of mistaken identity. Our kicks are sincere. The others' ring false. For at dances and balls and such like crushes many a young man makes money by being mistook for a waiter. How does he make money? Why, he is tipped, and all them tips he pockets, never thinking of handing them over to their rightful owners. At every big affair we count on a loss of 5 per cent through the dishonest advantage that impecunious young swells take of being mistook for waiters."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Cree Indian Superstition.

Up in Canada the Cree Indians have some queer ideas in regard to delirium. The other day a Cree chief and a medicine man were arrested at Norway House, Keewatin, for the murder of a squaw. According to the custom of the tribe, the woman was strangled while she was suffering from delirium, with the idea of preventing the evil spirit from escaping.

SPORTING NOTES.

Paronhurst, a yearling colt by Todd, 2:14¾, dam Paronella, is a full brother to Kentucky Todd, 2:08¾.

That basket ball will be a recognized sport at Georgetown this year seems to be almost certain.

Boston's new shortstop, Westerberg, hails from the Pacific coast and is said to be a very promising youngster.

Gus Ruhlin is picking up some easy money in New York with his school of instruction for candidates for the police force.

Icon, 2:11¼, by Peter the Great, 2:07¼, looks like one of the real good trotters of the year. She is driven by the veteran trainer, Peter V. Johnston, who brought out her sire.

N. W. Niles won the Harvard university tennis championship recently for the second time by defeating C. C. Pell, captain of the Harvard tennis team.

Ben Jordan, the ex-champion featherweight of England, is now a farmer and only goes to London to collect the rents on his several pieces of property in that city.

Allie Moore of Charlevoix, Mich., established a new world's professional record on roller skates at the Riverview rink, Chicago, recently. Moore covered the distance in 1 minute 20 seconds, cutting two-fifths of a second off the old mark.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The king and queen of Portugal have their birthdays on the same day.

The Duchess Vera of Wurttemberg is fond of lizards, especially chameleons. She has some unique specimens, which exhibit an intelligence that surprises all her friends.

Princess Eitel Frederick, the kaiser's daughter-in-law, is extremely fond of monkeys, and at Potsdam she has a house for them containing no fewer than fourteen. The kaiser does not hesitate to protest, for he considers it a foolish waste of money.

Princess Fedora of Sleswick-Holstein, the youngest sister of the German empress, has a romantic history, having declined all offers of marriage since the tragic death of her fiance, Duke Frederick of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who, while in command of a torpedo boat, perished in the Baltic with the entire crew.

TRAIN AND TRACK.

Juvisy, on the outskirts of Paris, will soon possess the largest railway station in the world.

The first railroad in Morocco was opened some months ago. It was built by a German company to haul stone from a quarry to tidewater and is only about one and a quarter miles long.

The recent advance of 3 shillings a ton in the price of coal in England means an addition of over $8,000,000 to British railways in yearly operating expenses. British railways use about 12,000,000 tons a year for their locomotives alone.

In the last year the Pennsylvania Railroad company has purchased about 20,000 cats, from two to six, to put in each freight house on the various lines to destroy rats and mice. The freight agents are instructed to provide a quart of milk a day for each cat.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Do so well today that you need not long for tomorrow.

How important some little things seem to some men!

INDUSTRIAL ITEMS.

The whale catching industry is dying out. Only 150 are now caught each year.

In London about $5,000,000 worth of raw furs are disposed of every year by auction.

Seventy-six American cities each produce more than $20,000,000 worth of manufactured goods every year.

The southern states now surpass the New England states in the amount of power employed for manufacturing. The middle states come first, with about 5,000,000 horsepower; the central states second, with a little over 4,000,000; the southern states third, with 2,386,000, and New England fourth, with a trifle over 2,225,000.

Science Siftings.

The impression given at the latest exposition in Berlin of invention is that liquid air will soon enter the field as a very serious competitor of steam and electric power.

The telephone, apparently so extremely sensitive, is found by Henry Abraham to transmit to the ear less than a thousandth of the energy received from the line.

Mercury has a year of 88 of our days, Venus one of 224.7 days, Mars' year is 687 days, while that of Neptune is 60,127.7 days. No earth man could hope to reach the age of a year if he lived in Neptune.

Girl Toilers

Gain Strength for Work

In office and factory, shop, store or kitchen girls are at work all over this land, and, alas! far beyond their strength. Young women who work are especially liable to female ills. Too often the girl is the bread winner of the family and she must toil unremittingly, no matter if her back does ache, her limbs and abdomen throb with dull pain and dragging sensations, and dizzy spells make her utterly unfit for work. These are the sure signs of female irregularities which kill beauty and youth.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

builds health and strength for all women who work and are weary. It creates the vitality that makes work easy. From the thousands of grateful letters written by working girls to Mrs. Pinkham we quote the following:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Overwork and long hours at the office, together with a neglected cold, brought on a female trouble until finally I was unable to go to work. I tried change of scene and climate, but found that I did not regain my health. I then thought of a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when her health was in the same condition that mine was, and straightway sent out for a bottle. I finished that and took two more before I really began to improve, but after that my recovery was very rapid, and when I had finished the sixth bottle I was well and able to go back to work again. I certainly think your medicine worthy of praise, and am indeed glad to indorse it.

MLLE. ALMA ROBITAILLE, 78 rue St. Francois, Quebec, Que.

Oh, if Canadian girls who work would only realize that they have but one life to live, and make the most of their precious health and strength!

Mrs. Pinkham extends to every working girl who is in ill health a cordial invitation to write her for advice. Such letters are always kept strictly confidential, and from her vast experience Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help you—and may save your life.

FORTUNE IN A WALL.

Treasure Seekers Make a Raid on Old Inns in Ireland.

County Cavan just now is a sort of Tom Tiddler's ground, where all the people are in expectation of picking up gold and silver. The cause of this is the extraordinary discovery of $3,500 in gold secreted in the wall of a public-house in the county. The "find" had so excited the popular imagination that all the old public-houses for miles around are being searched for hidden treasure.

The hoard was found some days ago in a cash box concealed in one of the inside walls of a public-house in Glengevlin, which had belonged to the late Mr. Thomas Cosgrove, vice-chairman of the Enniskillen Rural District Council, who died somewhat suddenly over a year ago when returning home from Blacklion.

A nephew of Mr. Cosgrove, named Dolan, who died recently, was manager of the place during his uncle's lifetime, and for some time subsequently continued in occupation until equity proceedings were instituted. Mr. Terence Cosgrove, a brother of the late owner, succeeded in obtaining a transfer of the license, and shortly afterwards young Dolan left and went to the Glan Hotel.

It is rumored that the money had been secreted there for the past fifty years by the late owner, who had the reputation of possessing considerable wealth, but why the search, which resulted so luckily, was instituted is not quite clear. Several old public-houses in that part of the country have since been so closely searched that their structural arrangements have been altered almost beyond recognition.

JOSS STICKS.

The Process of Their Preparation Still Practically Unknown.

In all countries where Buddhist worship is celebrated there is a great consumption of "joss sticks." These ceremonial candles are lighted on occasions of festivity or mourning, prayer or thanksgiving to divinities, and the like. Joss sticks are at once candles and incense, since, like the latter, they burn without apparent flame. Their preparation is shrouded in some mystery, and the process is still practically unknown, those who carry it on being chosen from a special class and kept in rigorous seclusion.

A squared strip of bamboo, of varying length and thickness, according to the size of the joss stick that is to be made, is skillfully rolled on an inclined surface in a mixture of odoriferous powders agglutinated by resin, made viscous by slight elevation of temperature. One of the ends is left as it is, to serve as a handle. In some cases the bamboo is replaced with a flexible rod, which enables the joss stick to be rolled in spiral form.

The composition of the odoriferous powders varies with the country. Those used in Indo-China come generally from the peninsula of Cochin and include fourteen drugs, among which may be named camphor, sandalwood, aconite and clove. Aconite plays the part of a preservative and protects the joss sticks well against the attacks of rats and mice.

The Perfect Kiss.

Why osculation has received so little attention from wise men we cannot tell. It may be that thinking and kissing go not well together. If so, few of us would require long time to choose between them, or possibly the subject has seemed to require too delicate handling, or it may have seemed trifling. We neither know nor care. The most valuable practical lesson to be derived from experience and now set down is that closing of the eyes is essential to perfection in kissing. Aside from this hint to those of congenial spirit we would merely direct the attention of those who may decry the importance of the topic to the influence of the charm in retaining hold upon one worth keeping and rendering less frequent and hazardous those absences which are only too likely to make the heart grow fonder—of some one else. — George Harvey in North American Review.

Cedar Shavings For Dogs.

If your dogs are troubled with fleas a very simple way to get rid of the pest is to provide beds of fresh cedar shavings or, better, cedar excelsior in the kennels or wherever the dogs sleep. The scent is not at all unpleasant to the dogs, but is abhorrent to the fleas. When a dog's coat gets thoroughly scented not only do the fleas leave him while asleep, but they will not jump upon him when he is out in the sand during the day.—Country Life In America.

He Heard of It.

Admiral Walker was a fine old sailor and he was recognized as thorough. No personal friendship softened his manners to a delinquent. One day when he was sailing out from Hampton Roads with the international fleet that helped us to celebrate the centennial of Washington's first inauguration his orders about weighing anchor were disobeyed by his dearest friend in the service, who was in command of one of the ships, and as the old Chicago, the flagship, passed the trembling culprit the navies of the world heard "his whiskers" thundering out from the bridge objurgations and expressing wonder at his own moderation in not putting his old comrade under arrest. At another time when the white squadron was sailing out of a Mediterranean bay another old friend worked his ship so awkwardly that the admiral—then merely a "trade dollar admiral"—suspended him by signal in the face of the whole fleet. The punished captain, coming aboard to protest against his public reprimand, puffed out indignantly, "Why, sir, I never heard of such a thing." "Well," said John, pulling at his big side whiskers, "you've heard of it now."—Harper's.

Guests Who Won't Order.

The business man returned to his office in a bad temper after the luncheon hour. "I wish people who haven't minds of their own would come to a realising sense of the bother that they are to their friends and would develop a little initiative on their own account," he said. "Maybe it's only a mistaken idea of politeness, but anyhow it's a nuisance to be entertaining a person at the club and have him utterly without ideas as to what he wants to eat and drink. You ask him and he says he'll leave it to you, which is exactly what you don't want him to do. How can you divine his tastes, I'd like to know? What appeals to you very likely won't to him, and you know and he knows it. But your selections from the menu are always met with the comment 'That's very nice,' or 'You couldn't suit me better.' And so you go through the meal in a hit and miss fashion that certainly gets on the nerves of the host. The next time I run up against that kind of man I'm just going to sit back and let him do the entire ordering."—New York Press.

Where the Dog Is Valued.

In northern France and in Belgium especially the dog is indeed the friend of man. He is made to work. He gets little play except that small amount deemed sufficient to prevent canine dullness, yet he is so loved and so well cared for by his owner that he becomes a most important member of the family. The farmer, the tradesman, the householder, the guardsman of the frontier worships his dog—one of the first things he thinks of when founding his little home. He takes delight in rousing the dog's intelligence and loses no chance of pitting that intelligence against others. Local farmers vie with each other to improve a breed. Dog clubs take up the work, holding exhibitions in villages and towns. Cities challenge neighboring municipalities to contests on the grandest scale.—Wide World Magazine.

Worried by a Whale.

While cruising in the south seas the whaler Essex was furiously attacked by a cow sperm whale supposed to have been the mother of a calf which had just been harpooned. The whale had not been wounded herself, and her attack was very determined. At her first rush she passed under the Essex and carried away a great length of her false keel; then, coming to the surface a considerable distance away, she appeared to take bearings and deliberately charged the vessel again, ramming her with such violence that she stove in the bows, while the ship rolled so heavily that the captain thought she must be dismasted. The case is memorable because the crew had to abandon the vessel, and one boat was never heard of again.—Bally's Magazine.

I jist pit seeven or acht coopers in my pouch, an' when I feel the nervousness beginnin' I give them a bit rattle. It mak's me feel kin' o' whit I may ca' independent, like. Try't, mon, try't.—Dundee Advertiser.

High Living.

An eminent man who is a strict abstainer from both wine and animal food is obliged in consequence of this peculiarity to refrain from dining out. He entertains, however, an occasional kindred spirit. One such was recently at his table.

"You ought to have seen them," said the eminent man's son, "rioting over boiled carrots!"

In Wooden Shoe Land.

Patience—Did you have any shoes made in Holland? Patrice—Well, I tried to have a pair made, but when I went to get them they told me they hadn't cut the tree down yet.—Yonkers Statesman.

Easily Stated.

A committee having in charge a local entertainment went to a noted editor to request him to take part in it.

"What do you want me to do, gentlemen?" he asked.

"We would like to have you give us a talk on spelling reform," they replied.

"Well," he rejoined, "I can give you my idea of spelling reform in one sentence. Just leave 'me' off the 'programme.'"

A Working Majority.

"Why go further?" interrupted Senator Sniffkins. "The two classes you have named constitute a safe working majority."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

DOT'S BIRTHDAY CAKE.

It Had Five Lovely Pink Candles Set in Little Pink Rosebuds.

Once there was a little girl called Dot, and she was just five years old, and she had a fine birthday cake. It was big and round, and it had five beautiful little pink candles set in pink rosebuds on top.

Dot sat at the big table at dinner that day, and by and by they put a pretty pink paper cap on her head and then brought in the birthday cake. And the little candles were all burning bright. And when she saw it she said: "Oh, oh! How lovely! It is just too pretty to eat!"

But her mamma said, "I will cut it for you, dear." So she cut one piece for Dot, and then she asked Dot, "Will Marie have a piece?" Marie was Dot's big doll. And Dot looked at her and said, "Marie says, 'No, thank you.'" And mamma said, "Will Fuzzy have a piece?" Fuzzy was Dot's Teddy bear. And Dot looked at him and said, "He says, 'No, thank you.'" And mamma said, "Will papa have a piece?" And Dot said: "Oh, yes. Won't you, papa?" And papa said, "Yes, please." And Dot said: "Mamma, you will. You must have a piece of my birthday cake." And mamma said, "Yes, thank you."

And mamma cut the cake and gave Dot a piece and papa a piece and herself a piece, but she left the parts of the cake where the candles were burning—one, two, three, four, five. And Dot's birthday cake lasted one, two, three, four, five whole days before it was all gone.—St. Nicholas.

ONLY A HORSESHOE.

How Young John, the Farmer's Son, Was Taught a Lesson.

A farmer was one day walking to town, and his little son, John, was by his side.

"Look," said the father; "there is a horseshoe on the ground. Pick it up and carry it home for good luck."

"Oh," said John, "I do not think it is worth stooping for."

His father made no reply, but he picked up the iron himself, and when he reached town he sold it to a blacksmith for 2 cents and bought a few nuts with the money.

On the way home John grew very hungry. As if by accident, the father let one of the nuts fall. John picked it up quickly and, cracking the shell, ate it. After a few more steps the farmer dropped a second nut, and John grasped it from the ground as eagerly as if it had been a piece of gold.

In this way the nuts kept dropping until the boy had stooped for them all one by one.

As John was eating his last nut his father turned around with a smile and said:

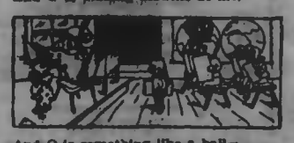
"See, now, if you had been willing to stoop once for the horseshoe you would not have had to stoop twenty times for the nuts."

John had been taught a lesson.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Day In School.

I wish I knew my letters well,
So I might learn to read and spell.
I'd send them on my pretty card
If they were not so very hard.

Now, S is crooked—don't you see?
And G is making mouths at me.



And O is something like a ball—
It hasn't any end at all.

And all the rest are—my, so queer!
They look like crooked sticks—oh, dear!
Ma counted six and twenty more.
What do they have so many for?

Game of Memory Test.

The players seat themselves in a circle. The leader begins by repeating the first of these sentences loudly and distinctly. The one on the left repeats it after him, and so on around the circle. When all have repeated it, the leader says with equal care the second sentence, joining it to the first; the next person repeats both sentences, and the rest of the company follow in turn. The leader then repeats the third, preceded by the first and second in regular order, etc.:

1. One old ox opening oysters.
2. Two toads totally tired trying to trot to Tedbury.
3. Three thick, thumping tigers tickling trout.
4. Four fat farmers fanning flames.
5. Five frivolous foreigners fleeing from fashions from France.

The player who makes no mistakes repeating the entire list of sentences wins the game. All who fall drop out as soon as the first lapse of memory.

A Boy's Composition on Hens.

Here is a boy's strong essay on hens: Hens is curious animals. They don't have no nose, nor no teeth, nor no ears. They swallow their victels whole and chew it all up in their crops inside of 'em. The outside of hens is generally put into pillers and feather dusters. The inside of a hen is sometimes filled with pebbles, shirt buttons and sich. A hen is a good deal smaller than some animals, but they'll dig up more tomato plants than anything that isn't a hen. Hens is very useful to lay eggs for plum pudding. I like plum pudding. Hens has got wings and can fly when they are scart. I cut my Uncle William's hen's neck off with a hatchet and it scart her to death. Hens sometimes make very fine spring chickens.

FERROZONE

You are getting pale and thin. You're dragged down with a "don't care" feeling that makes life most unhappy. Your strength is fleeting away, and weakness is creeping in. Every day your chances for cure becomes smaller.

Trouble is you don't assimilate your food, consequently the body is poorly nourished. The blood is thin, lacks those red corpuscles that denote health.

You can only prevent a total collapse by building up all the powers of the body with Ferrozone, which will surely make you well. Ferrozone creates tremendous appetite, increases the power of digestion, and insures perfect assimilation. Everything you eat is at once converted into nourishment.

FERROZONE makes rich, pure blood, a surplus of energy, new life for the nerves and all over-strained organs. Robust health will glow on the cheeks, jovial spirits, increased weight, and a clear, active brain will evidence a few of the benefits that follow Ferrozone.

The effect of Ferrozone is instant, yet permanent. For upbuilding and invigorating the listless and depressed it has no equal. It's the concentrated nourishment in Ferrozone that makes it so beneficial. We guarantee it contains no opiates, no alcohol, nothing but the most strengthening qualities known in medicine. Won't you use Ferrozone? it will surely make you well.

GAINED 15 POUNDS.

Mr. H. A. Thurston, of 238 Vermont St. E., Indianapolis, Restored by Ferrozone.

"A year ago I took the grippe. I was as weak as a child. I was no longer able to eat. My blood was thin. My cheeks were white and hollow. Doctors gave me all kinds of medicine, but none of them brought me strength. My friends said I was wasting away with some slow disease, and I bade them good-bye. Then I heard of the wonderful Ferrozone. After three days it gave me an appetite. I gained strength and became cheerful. Under Ferrozone I improved steadily. I am well to-day. I weigh fifteen pounds heavier than ever before, and feel like a new man.
(Signed) "H. A. THURSTON."

MEANS MUCH TO CANADA.

Wireless Telegraphy Will Greatly Stimulate Trade and Commerce.

The surprise created by the announcement that a message had been transmitted across the Atlantic by cable is still within the memory of people now living. The event was heralded about the world as the greatest triumph of the age. It seemed as if, in a moment, time and space had been annihilated, and the Old World, separated from this continent by thousands of miles of restless sea, had suddenly loomed in view on the seaward sky line. To read in the morning papers the utterances of British statesmen, spoken in Parliament an hour before the papers went to press seemed incredible, while the operators of the great world of commerce and finance could scarcely realize that they were in hourly touch with the markets of Europe, and could feel every throb of the great pulse that governs the trade of the world.

What that triumphant cable message from the Old World to the new, presaged for civilization, no man, even to-day, can fully understand. It is perhaps not generally known that more than sixteen Atlantic cables are daily pouring a vast stream of news backward and forward from continent to continent. To use a common phrase, the world has shrivelled to such an extent that an accident in the China sea is nearly as quickly made known to the readers of a Sydney daily as a mishap at the big steel plant.

With all this the world might rest content, but it will not. Science is ever on the move exploring some new territory, and the devotees of trade and commerce camp on its trail and promptly stake their claims.

Some time has elapsed since wireless telegraphy commenced its struggles for recognition and supremacy. Through a long period of doubt and experiment the wireless has held its way until it now comes forward the wingless carrier pigeon of the world, and invites the genus of commerce and the demon of news to mark the latest mile on the highway of progress.

Assuming that the wireless system is all it claims to be, and that its promoters are ready to handle the business of the world at a cost of fifty per cent. below existing cable rates, what will it mean to our British Dominion? Probably no man can answer that question, because it is impossible to grasp a comprehensive idea of the vast interest that will be affected and stimulated by the coming of the wireless.

Forty years ago Canada was but a scattered fringe of settlements extending along the Maritime coast and along the valley of the St. Lawrence. The great West was a lone land of trails that led to the wigwam and the haunts of the buffalo.

To-day Canada has become a factor in the world's affairs. She is invading the markets of the old land with the finest food-products of the world. Her mineral wealth sweeps in a giant curve from the Yukon to London, and along that line daily there are mines of untold richness and value. All these mines more or less dispose of their stocks in Europe.

Now, can any one, trying for a moment to take a bird's eye view of all these great industrial and commercial interests, scattered from the Yukon to England, anticipate the great stimulus that will be given to business by a 50 per cent. reduction in telegraphic communications with Europe. Can anyone estimate the millions that stand to the credit of the reduction in postage from three cents to two? It is the "close touch" that fosters trade and increases production.

It is the telegraph that removes the haphazard and guess work from business. Shipping products to a foreign market while in utter ignorance of the state of that market is a toss up between success and failure. Production is always extremely limited where its market is uncertain.

Beyond all question the inauguration of the wireless if it makes good its promises, will increase the trade and production of Canada by millions of dollars.

We are laying down twenty miles of railway every day in the Canadian West, and that means a Canadian city is born every twenty-four hours. To a country where conditions exist, as they do in Canada to-day, the coming of cheap communication with the world's markets adds to her commercial equipment something that can scarcely be estimated in dollars.

Pale, Anaemic, Sickly Girls

REGAIN COLOR, HEALTH, AND VIGOR WHEN THE BLOOD IS ENRICHED BY

Your mirror will tell you if you are anaemic, for the unnatural pallor of your gums, lips and eyelids will indicate the thinness and weakness of the blood.

Anaemia is most common among young women and is marked by pallor weakness, indigestion, irritability, spells of dizziness and fainting, heart palpitation, severe headaches and feelings of extreme exhaustion.

The blood is lacking in the elements which go to form energy, vigour and strength and demands such assistance as is best supplied by Dr Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure sharpens the appetite, invigorates the nerves which control the digestive fluids, strengthens the heart's action and naturally and gradually restores the sufferer from weak blood to health, strength and vigour.

The headaches and eyeaches of pale nervous school girls, of office girls, and of factory employees, are largely the result of thin, watery blood, and will disappear when the blood is enriched and the system built up by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. D. Hobbins, 420 Charlotte street, Peterborough, Ont., writes:—"My daughter was troubled with a weak fluttering, heart. The least excitement seemed to aggravate her trouble, and at times she had severe racking headaches. She became so bad that it affected her nervous system and she felt miserable most of the time. Through the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food her condition is entirely changed. Her nerves are steady, the headaches are gone and the action of the heart is strong and regular. We have every reason to give the credit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Put this great restorative to the test by noting your increase in weight while using it.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

TRIED TO KISS HER.

Taunton, Mass.—The unwritten law of Ireland is cited as a defence for a policeman accused of attempting to kiss a pretty girl. In certain parts of Ireland, it is the custom of a constable, after escorting a pretty girl to the end of his duty, to say, "Now, isn't that worth a kiss?" Nine-tenths of the Taunton women are in sympathy with the policeman.

A pretty woman is irresistible. It is easy to be beautiful—with well rounded figures, clear skins and sparkling eyes. Mrs. Jackson, of Toronto, writes: "I have finished my second box of Fruit-a-tives," "and can say they were just what I needed. I never thought my health could be improved so much in so short a time. I feel better than I have for years." As a blood purifier—and general tonic to build up the whole system — Fruit-a-tives are wonder workers. They are made of fruit juices and tonics. 50c a box. At all dealers.

Life In Newfoundland.

I need scarcely say there are no hotels on this coast, and consequently no hotel bills. The traveler selects his own house when he enters a settlement, walks in and sits down by the stove. Indeed, he scarcely waits for the invitation to "sit in" when the family goes to meals, the people of this coast being much given to hospitality. When night comes on he simply takes off his boots and—stays. It may be that he will have to share a bunk with one of the household, or perhaps he has a bed in "the room"; that depends on his social position. If room is short he will turn in on a settle, or simply lie down on the floor. I have slept on a settle under which the hens lived in winter, and rested as soundly as on any feather bed, the only inconvenience being that now and then I had to grope after the rooster, which persisted in thinking it was morning long before I did. The first question asked a stranger on his entering a house will not be "What is your business?" It is certain to be "Have you been to tea?" For our national drink is tea, and a drunken man is seldom or never seen. Indeed, we have become a prohibition coast.—London Standard.

Bulging Paintings.

Frequently a painting will bulge and be very unattractive unless remedied. An artist claims that such pieces can be remedied without danger of destroying the paint by dampening both the right and wrong side and keeping the canvas under very heavy pressure until thoroughly dried.

Tropical Seas.

The sea is much more salt in the tropics than in northern latitudes. This is due to the greater evaporation.

Goethe.

When Goethe was first in love he went into the forest, selected a beautiful tree, engraved thereon two hearts united by a scroll and received from the forester therefor a sound thrashing.

Old Greek Currency.

Jamaica Thunderstorms.

At Port Royal, Jamaica, for six months in the year thunderstorms are of almost daily occurrence, and guests to picnics and garden parties are usually invited to assemble "after the thunderstorm."

Baby Superstitions.

Roumanian mothers tie red ribbons around the ankles of their children to preserve them from harm, while Esthonian mothers attach bits of asafetida to the necks of their offspring.

Life of a Court Lady.

Those who think that the life of a court lady is necessarily that of a butterfly may be surprised to learn that cleverness with the needle and culinary skill are required of those who wish to be maids of honor in the court of Russia. They have also to learn to read aloud and to stand for any length of time.

The Cravat.

The cravat was originally a large shawl worn around the neck, not for show, but for comfort, by a nation of eastern Europe called Cravates or Croats.

Rice Water.

In households where not only economy, but the real art of cooking, is practiced the water in which rice is boiled is never thrown away. The major part of the nutriment goes into this liquid, and its addition to a soup is both palatable and valuable.

All Fools' Day.

All Fools' day is 200 years old. Brady's "Clavis Calendaria," published in 1812, mentions that more than a century previous the almanac designated the 1st of April as All Fools' day.

A Costly Gown.

The extravagance of the Roman ladies of high rank was one of the prime causes of the fall of that mighty empire. Poppaea Sabina, who cut a wide swath in Nero's time, was the happy possessor of a gown said to have cost nearly $1,000,000.

Taxes and Flogging.

Between 1378 and 1881, in a single Roman village district, 797 heads of families in a population of 1,200 families were flogged for not paying their taxes.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Egg spoons that are stained should be rubbed with damp salt before polishing.

Saucepans should be as flat and broad as possible, so that no heat may be wasted.

If a few drops of glycerin be added to the starch for linens, it will be found that the iron will not stick and that the linens will have a beautiful gloss after they are ironed.

Paraffin split on a stone floor may be removed by rubbing bath brick over the mark and letting it stay till next day. Then wash in the usual way, and the floor will be perfectly clean.

Paint can be removed from glass by rubbing it with hot strong vinegar. Stains on the hands can be removed by acetic acid or salts of lemon, and ink marks will soon yield to pumice stone.

To remove ink stains from linen dip the article in milk and let it soak for about two hours, then take out and wash with soap while the milk still remains on the spots of ink. This will remove any long standing stain.

The Gas Stove.

Do you find your gas stove a real economizer? If not, these may be some of the reasons:

Lighting burners before you are ready to use them.

Baking but one thing at a time.

Heating water or cooking in uncovered vessels.

Placing small vessels upon large burners.

Using large burners when small ones would do.

Not turning out the flame before removing food.

Not lowering the flame when food is already boiling.

Keeping the interior of the oven dirty and greasy instead of bright and clean when it reflects heat instead of absorbing it.

Maple Sugar Pralines.

For maple sugar pralines, such as the girls at Vassar make, boil a pound of maple sugar in water enough to keep it from burning until the syrup spins a thread. Then stir in a pound of blanched almonds cut in pieces and a teaspoonful of butter and stir until it grains. Then spread on a shallow plate until cool enough to cut into squares.

Axes of the Gauls.

The Gauls, to make handles for their stone axes, cleft the branch of a tree, placed the stone in it and left it till the wound in the wood had been completely healed.

Little Venice.

When Columbus discovered South America, near the mouth of the Orinoco, the Spaniards found an Indian village built over the water on piles. As it reminded them of Venice, they called it Venezuela, or Little Venice.

Persian Apples.

Peaches, called Persian apples, were known in Europe before the Christian era.

Football.

Football came into England with the Romans and is older than the English national game of cricket. It is played in many parts of the world, having been one of the most popular games with the Greeks.

Old Roman Swords.

The Roman swords, before Cannae, B. C. 236, were pointless and sharp on only one side. After Cannae the short Spanish sword, for cutting and thrusting, was adopted.

Days of Rest.

Monday with the ancient Greeks was the day of rest. The Persians set apart Tuesday as the day for public worship, the Assyrians Wednesday, the Egyptians Thursday, while the Moslems hold Friday as the most sacred day of the week.

Cannibal Taste.

Cannibals do not like civilized flesh. It is too salty.

Ocean Travel.

When the steamship Great Western made the run from Bristol, England, to New York from April 8 to 23, 1838, it was believed the problem of transatlantic steamship travel was solved.

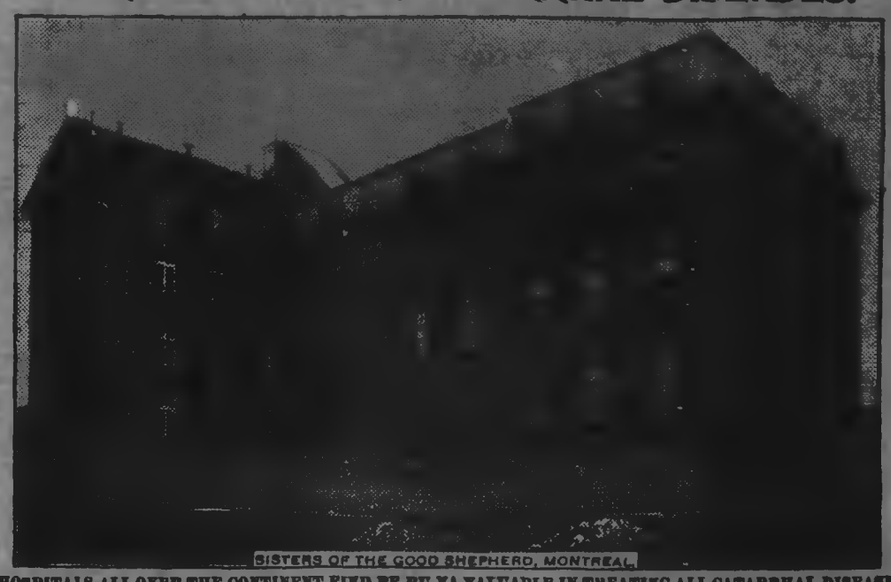
PROMINENT HOSPITALS SAY

PE-RU-NA IS EFFICIENT

IN RELIEVING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES.



SISTERS OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD, MONTREAL.

HOSPITALS ALL OVER THE CONTINENT FIND PE-RU-NA VALUABLE IN TREATING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES

CATARRH of the respiratory organs is a common ailment in Canada for at least two-thirds of the year.

This condition is no doubt caused by the long, severe winters experienced in this part of the continent.

Therefore, when Peruna was discovered by Canadian people to be a reliable remedy for these catarrhal diseases, it at once became a popular medicine, not only among individuals and in families, but in the great hospitals, where it was used as a preventative and relief in hundreds of cases.

These institutions do not hesitate to give their endorsement of the remedy which has been so helpful in the treatment of their poor and sick.

Among these institutions is that of the Sisters of Good Shepherd, who gave the following endorsement:

The Peruna Company,
Columbus, Ohio,

Having used Peruna for the past few months, for our sick and poor, we are happy to say that it has given us great satisfaction.

The Sisters of the Good Shepherd,
August 20, 1903. Montreal.

After a continued use of the remedy, this institution has found no reason to change its good opinion of the remedy and expresses its satisfaction in the following terms:

Montreal, Nov. 7, 1903.

We found Peruna a relief in several cases.

We can say it is a good tonic and we are very thankful.

Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

When catarrh once fastens itself upon the system it becomes an obstinate disease to eradicate.

A systemic remedy—one that reaches every internal organ of the body—is an absolute necessity.

Peruna is just such a remedy. It searches out the cause of the disease, healing and strengthening the mucous membranes, and thus giving Nature an opportunity to perform her part of the restorative process.

One of the many hospitals which have found Peruna of value in treating old and obstinate cases of catarrh is the Hospital St. John, who write, as follows:

"We are happy to tell you that your Peruna has given us satisfaction. Three patients have tried it, one 68 years old, Renoul Dupuis, afflicted with catarrh, is much relieved, more than he has been for a number of years.

"A young girl, 15 years old, had an obstinate cough, which half a bottle of Peruna caused to disappear.

"As to myself, two bottles have convinced me that Peruna is magnificent as a tonic.

"Before the treatment I could not walk for a quarter of an hour without experiencing much fatigue. Now I can walk a mile easily.

"Through these three cases we desire to make known to the public the efficiency of your remedy."

Hospital St. John, of St. Johns, Province of Quebec.

A later letter received from the same institution reads as follows:

"Three weeks ago I write to tell you how satisfactory we found Peruna. We recommend it highly for colds, coughs, catarrh and neuralgia.

"I have used it myself as a tonic with the best results, taken as directed, half a teaspoonful every half hour."

Mrs. Etta Booker, Dundurn, Sask., N. W. T., Canada, writes:

"I suffered with pelvic catarrh until I wrote to Dr. Hartman, and after taking treatment as he advised, I can say I am now cured of this most trying affliction, for which I am truly thankful. I think Peruna the best medicine for catarrh. I never felt better in my life than I do at present."

Peruna not only promptly relieves coughs and colds in their first stages, but is equally prompt and efficient for catarrhal diseases in the chronic stage.

Of course, it is only reasonable to suppose that a great deal less medicine will be necessary to cure a slight attack of catarrh than would be required to relieve the ailment after it had been allowed to become chronic.

THE DIAMOND CROP.

What Becomes of the Pecks of Gems Turned Out Each Year?

Where do all the crystallized gems go—worth many millions of pounds—which come into the market every year? The diamond is said to be one of the hardest things in nature and is practically impervious to wear and tear. I have an idea, though I am not certain, that an old diamond is every bit as good as a new one, supposing both belong to the same class—that is to say, diamonds do not wear out as trousers or hats wear out.

Then what becomes of the thousands and thousands turned out each year? I know that the financial geniuses who control the diamond output keep the supply down to the actual demand so as not to lower the price, and thus there must be a steady demand for these things to the value of millions a year, and there must be a gradually increasing stock or accumulation of them in rings or tiaras, crowns, scarfpins and so on.

People do not cover themselves all over with these gems and then jump about in the street to shake them off for the sake of humble friends and poor relations, as was done by the gaudy Duke of Buckingham. A certain number, I know, are stolen every year; but, after all, they are comparatively few, and most of them come back into the market in a very short time.

The man who steals diamonds does not eat them. He disposes of them for the benefit of his humble family, and all he really does (poor, honest and misunderstood fellow) is to put them into circulation. Where do they go?—London M. A. P.

129 Men Drowned.

Paimpol, France, Dec. 10.—Three Newfoundland fishing vessels, the Angler, Jacques and Croisade, with crews totalling 120 men, have been given up for lost, as they have not been reported since Oct. 1, when they left Miquelon.

Poisoned by Morphine.

London, Dec. 10.—Count Edward Sizze of Norris, a member of a wealthy and prominent Austro-Hungarian family, and connected with the diplomatic service, died from morphine poisoning in his room.

Trying For the Escort.

Port Dalhousie, Dec. 10.—Carter's wrecking outfit, at work at the tug Escort, accomplished nothing yesterday. They parted a 16-inch line and had to give up until more favorable weather.

The Dutch Language.

Dutch is not a dialect, but a full fledged language. It is of Teutonic origin in the same sense that German is and that English is. Every language has its "high" and "low," the Dutch being no exception to the universal rule.

DEAR SIRS:—

I beg to acknowledge the receipt this morning of cheque covering the amount appraised as our loss in the recent fire in our premises. Although it is practically only one week since the fire occured, we are already in receipt of the cash.

Such prompt settlement does yourselves and Companies represented, the greatest credit. I might state that our loss was settled in a manner most satisfactory to us in every respect, and I appreciate the interest taken by yourselves personally in connection therewith.

W. G. MORROW, ESQ.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $500 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. R. STRATTON.

"RANJI" IN ENGLAND.

Famous Cricketer's Progressive Work as Indian Ruler.

Prince Ranjitsinhji (Maharajah Jam Sahib of Nawanagar), who has returned to England in order to recruit his health, has taken up his residence at a West-end hotel with a numerous retinue.

Mr. A. C. MacLaren, the Lancashire cricketer, who is acting as a sort of unofficial member of his staff in this country, has given some interesting details of the prince's doings since he left England three years ago.

Recently the Jam fell from his horse and broke a bone in the shoulder. Enteric followed, and his highness became so ill that his medical adviser ordered him to England for twelve months for a complete change. Shortly he will go into the country, and he is looking for a house in Hampshire. He is already a great deal better, but for the time he must not do work of any kind.

Since he took up his duties as Jam of Nawanagar Prince Ranjitsinhji has administered his estate in an enlightened and progressive spirit. A Liberal in politics, he has sought the co-operation of his people, and has already effected great improvements. A City Improvement Trust has been formed, a housing scheme for the poor started, and orders given for the construction of a grain market, the want of which is believed to have been hitherto responsible for a great deal of plague. This is only the fringe of the reform movement.

Naturally he has not neglected sport. "He has got a cricket-ground on his estate," said Mr. MacLaren, "and he tells me it is shaping very well. When I was out there it looked like being a very good ground indeed. Indian wickets, in uphill districts, are mostly made of matting, but the Jam is going to have a grass wicket."

The prince is accompanied by two brothers and three cousins (the latter acting as aide-de-camp) and several attendants. His stay in England will probably extend to twelve months.

PRESENTS HUGE DIAMOND.

His Majesty's Birthday Gift From the People of the Transvaal.

One of the most important incidents of the King's birthday celebrations at Sandringham was the presentation to His Majesty by Sir Richard Solomon, Agent-General of the Transvaal, of the incomparable Cullinan diamond. This magnificent jewel, by far the finest ever seen, is the gift of King Edward's subjects in the Transvaal. It has been in London since March, 1905, having been discovered in January of that year in the Cullinan Mine. The King and Queen, and the Prince and Princess of Wales also, have already inspected it at Buckingham Palace. It is insured for $2,500,000. The directors of the Premier Diamond Co. have been responsible for the stone's safe custody since its arrival in England, and it will be a great relief to them when it has been placed in the Tower of London with the crown jewels, almost certainly its ultimate destination. At the present moment it is in the strong room of a famous bank near the National Gallery, and will be taken to Sandringham during the week by two persons only, a skilled detective keeping them in sight in case of emergency.

FOURTH DREADNOUGHT.

H. M. S. Superb, Britain's Mightiest Ship, Successfully Launched.

Britain's first-class battleship Superb, the mightiest of her class yet built, has been successfully launched from the Elswick yard. Lady Anne Lambton christened her in the usual way, naming her the Superb.

Laid down on Feb. 6 last, and finished in record time, the Superb is vaster than even the giant Dreadnought, with 18,600 tons to the Dreadnought's 17,900. She will be fitted with turbine engines of 23,000 indicated horse-power, which will give her a speed of 21 knots. Her chief armament will be ten 12-inch guns and seven and twenty 12-pounder quick-firers, an arrangement of the heavy guns allowing as many as eight of them to be fired astern as well as broadside.

PIMPLES

ALTHOUGH, NOT A DANGEROUS DISEASE, ARE A VERY TROUBLESOME AND UNSIGHTLY AFFLICTION . . .

They are caused by either poverty or impurity of the blood and require the prompt use of a good blood medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters, for their eradication, which it speedily accomplishes, at the same time strengthening the entire system. Pimples also often arise from dyspepsia and constipation, and in these cases Burdock Blood Bitters has the double effect of removing the pimples together with their cause.

Mr. D. P. Samson, Oscoda, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with pimples all over my face and hands. I paid out money to doctors but they could do me no good. A friend convinced me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using two bottles the pimples vanished, and I have not been troubled with them since."

Reducing the Debt.

The financial statement of the Dominion at the end of October, shows a total net debt of $251,506,732, a decrease of $65,719 during the past month. The total revenue for the first seven months of the present fiscal year was $58,257,779, and the total expenditure $33,904,292, of which $13,107,834 was on capital account. The principal items of revenue are: $35,209,282 from the customs, $9,364,155 from excise, $3,730,000 from the post-office, and $6,015,494 from public works, including railways. The total revenue for October was $8,223,071, an increase of $433,687 over October of last year. The expenditure for the month was $5,173,873, a decrease of $1,331,879, as compared with October, 1906.

How He Grew Young.

One satisfied man returned from a two weeks' holiday. He spent it on a farm owned by an old aunt, and the royal way in which she fed him, to use his own description, formed the chief delight of his holiday.

"You see," he remarked confidentially, "my wife is a graduate of a diet and cooking school of the most up to date sort. She sees that we never have a meal which isn't perfectly balanced as to food values. The things we eat are chosen with reference to that and not with regard to whether we like them especially. Well, I can tell you, old Aunt Laura, with her table just groaning with forbidden, indigestible articles, was a mighty welcome change to me. She never heard of carbohydrates or phosphates or cellulose, and she wouldn't know a proteid if she met one in a bean porridge, where, by the way, I believe they largely congregate. But I tell you her fried chicken and fresh pork and biscuits were the finest things I've had for years. My wife actually turned pale when she saw me eat, and I know she was worried, because we were six miles from a doctor. I was never ill for a minute, though, and those two weeks of old fashioned, unscientific cooking have made me feel like a new man—or, rather, like a boy again."—London M. A. P.

Her Conversion.

When preparing his parishioners for the solemn ordinance of confirmation an old clergyman found among them one old woman so excessively ignorant and stupid that for some weeks prior to the time he was obliged to have her come to his house every day in order to instruct and catechise her. At length he began to hope that his time, patience and zeal had not been entirely bestowed in vain, a few bright flashes of understanding having burst from the old dame's clouded intellect. "Now, my good friend," said the worthy pastor just previous to the commencement of the ceremony, "as this is the last moment in which I shall have an opportunity of conversing with you, let me ask, do you thoroughly understand and believe all the articles of your Christian faith?"

"Aye, yes, sir, thank'ee," replied his venerable pupil, with a simper and dropping one of her best courtesies, "I does indeed now, and, thank God, I heartily renounces them all."

The Clock Struck 1.

It was just two minutes to 1 when John Ludlam entered the house and, unwrapping a paper parcel, said to his wife that he had brought her a present of a clock. It was her birthday, and she had expected a brooch or a ring at least, and so she said tartly, "You liked the look of that clock."

His face flushed. "A nice way to speak about a present!" said he hotly.

"Well, it's the truth. I wouldn't have given a couple of shillings for it," said she in an exasperating tone.

John Ludlam was a quick tempered man. The veins in his temples swelled, and—

Just then the clock struck 1.

What did it signify—that the clock was running all right?

It did not. The ambulance surgeon said a few minutes later that if the clock had struck one inch nearer her temple John Ludlam would have been a widower.—Pearson's Weekly.

Many Color Lines in Cuba.

There are social distinctions in Cuba based upon color. There is not one but several color lines, though these are not eternal, hard, fast and unchangeable, as in the United States. In Cuba social life is run largely by social clubs. There are in almost every town and village negro clubs, two or three grades of mulatto clubs and white clubs. In one and at its functions may appear the husband, excluding the wife; in another, the wife, but not the husband; in a third, their children, but neither the father nor mother. To the world this will appear incredible, almost incomprehensible. Here it is convention, fixed, settled, accepted and operative. These distinctions, however, run but for a lifetime. —Army and Navy Life.

Too Much For Him.

"Andrew," said a devoted wife to her husband, "I want a hundred."

"A hundred what?" exclaimed the husband.

"Dollars," she replied calmly.

"What for?"

"Oh, a whole lot of things."

"Um-um," he hesitated. "I guess I shall have to check your extravagance, my dear."

"Do," she smiled, "and make it payable to my order, please."

He collapsed then and there.—Brooklyn Citizen.

Humor

NOTHING SERIOUS.

Chance Meeting of Two Men on a Street Corner.

"I beg your pardon," said the man in the plaid suit, "but isn't your name Nelson?"

"Yes, sir," answered the other, a spare, elderly, gray haired man, with a black mustache, whom he had accosted at a street corner.

"Flavius J. Nelson?"

"Yes, sir."

"Used to live in Mendota about forty-seven years ago?"

"Yes, sir."

"Your father had a team of ponies he called Duke and Diamond. Is that right?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, well! You've changed some, of course, in all that time, but I thought I couldn't be mistaken. I wonder if I've passed entirely out of your recollection. Do you remember a barefoot boy with a wart on his nose that lived across the street from your house?"

"Why, I can't exactly say I recall"—"Had a stump tail dog that was always following him around."

"I seem to remember the dog, but"—

"Used to go out hazelnutting with you every fall. Slipped into old Smith's orchard once, and he chased us out with a shotgun. Didn't stop running till we got home."

"I recollect old Smith and his orchard, but that's all."

"Remember Maggie Johnson and how we had a fight over her once because she rode home on my sled instead of yours?"

"I remember Maggie, but I've forgotten all about the fight."

"Well, you'll remember my name, anyhow—Jimmy Larkin?"

"Larson?"

"No; Larkin—Jimmy Larkin. Why, man alive"—

"Any relation to the Larkins that used to drive a dray around town?"

"I never heard of any Larkins that used to drive a dray around town. I'm talking about the Larkin family that lived right across the street from you in Mendota forty-sev"—

"Mendota? I thought you said Aurora."

"Oh, you did, did you? Then how about the stump tail dog you seem to remember? How about Maggie Johnson and old Smith? How about your name being Flavius J. Nelson? Now that I look at you closer I see I made a mistake. Your name is probably Montmorency Murgatroyd or Pete McGinnis, and you're having a little fun with a stranger. If ever I meet the real Flavius Josephus Nelson I'll apologize to him for thinking he could ever have grown to look like the lean, withered up, goggle eyed, dyed mustached, razor faced, gimlet nosed old pilgarlic I mistook for him. No harm done, sir. So long."—Chicago Tribune.

Rewards of Virtue.

"The persistency with which children see some other moral in a fable than the one it is intended they shall see is often distressing," says the principal of an institution for the young in Washington. "A kindergarten teacher had recited to a pupil the story of the wolf and the lamb and had followed it up with the remark:

"'And now, you see, Tommy, that the lamb would not have been eaten by the wolf if he had been good and sensible.'

"'Yes, I understand,' responded the youngster gravely. 'If the lamb had been good and sensible we should have had him to eat!'"—Harper's Weekly.

Caught the Fever.

"He was knocked down by a motor car, you know. Got $2,500 damages from the fellow."

"The idea! I wonder what he'll do with the money?"

"Oh, he's spent it. Bought the fellow's car with it."—Philadelphia Press.

Knew Him.

"Galboy's new stenographer is a fine one, but she'll never do for him."

"Why, isn't she quick enough?"

"Yes, but her hair is black and his wife's is yellow."—Judge.

Savage Sense of Humor.

Lecturing on New Guinea, A. H. Dunning said he once offered a native some smelling salts. After going through extraordinary contortions the native went away, returning soon with another native, whom he compelled to make acquaintance with the salts. The two brought a third, and so on until the whole village had been victimised. The savages watched each new sufferer with the keenest delight and took good care not to let him know what fate awaited him.—London Standard.

SEVEN KILLED IN BRIDGE DISASTER

Carried Into River by Collapse of New Bridge.

QUEBEC TRAGEDY REPEATED

Freshet on West Branch of Susquehanna Tore Away Middle Span of New Structure—Forty Men Hurt—Two Fatally—Several Miraculous Escapes—Victims Crushed Under Massive Girders.

Bloomsburg, Pa., Dec. 11.—High water last night caused the collapse of a new bridge in course of erection over the west branch of the Susquehanna River at Mifflinville, eight miles north of here, and resulted in the death of seven men and the injury of nearly a score of others, two perhaps fatally. Forty men were at work on the traveler, on the middle span of the structure, when it collapsed. They were all thrown into the swollen river.

The accident occurred just at nightfall, when the men were preparing to abandon their work. As a result, the work of rescuing those who were thrown into the water and caught in the mass of twisted iron and steel was greatly retarded. The second span of the bridge was being erected, and it was this section that fell with the big traveler.

The bodies of those killed were found floating on the surface of the water entangled in the bent and twisted girders and ironwork, but the others have not been found.

One of the most miraculous escapes was that of William Nesbitt, who was caught in the ironwork and held a prisoner for an hour with his mouth and chin above water before being rescued.

Deadly Black Hand.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 11.—M. Reiz, a produce dealer, is dead; Sunseri, a produce dealer, is probably fatally wounded, and Joe Ginite severely injured as the result of a supposed Black Hand outrage in the Pennsylvania Railroad produce yards.

Water Famine Ended.

St. John, Dec. 11.—One of the broken water mains was repaired Monday about midnight, and the other was fixed yesterday. All industrial concerns except a few on the higher levels were able to resume business yesterday morning.

Treasurer Arrested.

Sherbrooke, Dec. 11.—A. H. Anderson, treasurer of the Quebec Central Railway Co., has been arrested. He is charged with a shortage in his accounts.

He has been in the railway's employ for 25 years.

Peace Prize Divided.

Christiania, Dec. 11.—At a meeting yesterday of the Nobel Institute, J. C. Loevland, the Norwegian Premier, announced that the Nobel peace prize would this year be equally divided between Teodoro Moneta of Italy, and Louis Renault of France.

THE MEN DIED IN GREAT AGONY

Miner Found Grasping Pencil and Paper.

MORE BODIES RECOVERED

Victims' Corpses Threaten Monongah With Epidemic—Must Be Destroyed With Quicklime in the Mine—Relief For Destitute Families is Well Under Way—Many Rescuers Seized With Illness.

Monongah, W. Va., Dec. 11.—The relief work for the victims of the mine disaster is well under way. There is now plenty of food, but there is urgent need of clothing in many families. Cash funds are being raised in many places and instalments are already being forwarded, from some points. The coal companies of this district have contributed $20,000 cash.

Many of the bodies taken out Monday night were far advanced in decomposition. Some were so bad that hurried funerals were held in the rain. A tent has been erected in the cemetery to be used as a morgue for such as are too far gone to be taken to the bank building.

Health authorities fear an epidemic of fever due to the decaying bodies of the men and the animals and have prepared to enforce heroic measures if it becomes necessary. Quick lime will be taken into the mine and scattered over the bodies if conditions become much worse, and thus the last chance of identifications and restoration to relatives for Christian burial will have passed away.

Many of the rescuers have been stricken with illness and it was found necessary to bring a number of recruits here from the George Creek district. The coroner and his deputies remain constantly upon the scene, viewing the bodies as they come out.

Chief State Mine Inspector Paul is quoted as saying he believed the explosion was started by an electric spark from runaway cars in the main entry. A string of these cars was piled up in the entry at the bottom of a slope.

Nearly 150 bodies have been recovered.

Members of the rescuing party stated last night that a number of the men who were suffocated show evidence of great agony before death relieved them. One miner was found tightly grasping a piece of paper in one hand and a lead pencil in the other. An American miner was recovered who was not marked, nor were his hands or face soiled a particle. The average conditions of the bodies, however, is bad, heads being blown off, arms and legs broken and twisted, and fine pieces of coal are found imbedded in the bodies, showing the terrific force of the explosion.

Boy Killed by Horse.

Belleville, Dec. 11.—In an accident which occurred here yesterday morning, Charles D. Leavens, son of D. R. Leavens, postmaster of this city, was killed. He fell beneath the feet of horses his father was driving, and one of the calks on one of the horse's shoe penetrated his brain. He was eight years old.

MR. KEMP LEADS ATTACK

Minister of Justice Returns to House—Tributes to Late Member for South Huron — Rural Delivery Amendment Defeated—Hon. Geo. P. Graham to Remedy Faulty Railway Service at Brockville.

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—A fresh turn was given to the debate on the address yesterday by an attempt on the part of the Opposition, shared in by Mr. Armand Lavergne, to bait the Minister of Public Works. Mr. Kemp led the way, the intention apparently being to draw the new Minister and so provide Mr. Borden with an opportunity to reply, but if this was the object it signally failed. The Minister of Public Works met the jeers of the Opposition with an indulgent smile, preferring, as he indicated in a retort to Mr. Hoche, to bide his own time. As showing the insincerity of the Opposition campaign in favor of rural mail delivery, it was a matter of comment that throughout the whole discussion yesterday the only reference on their side to Mr. Armstrong's amendment on the subject was by Mr. Paquet, who voted with the Government. The amendment was defeated by 103 to 49. The fact that the Opposition are credited with the intention of moving amendments to the address bearing out the Halifax platform shows that they are determined to pursue obstructive tactics as far as possible. In this connection Mr. Borden laid himself open to a hint by the Prime Minister, who, in reply to a question, stated that it had never been the practice of the House to organize committees until after the conclusion of the debate on the address.

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth was in the House for the first time this session.

Campaign Contributions.

When Mr. Kemp rose to continue the debate on the address he immediately launched upon topic of campaign contributions. The Minister of Public Works, he said, had gone about the country making insinuations concerning the campaign fund of the Conservative party at the last general election. He would ask why Mr. Pugsley, who was Attorney-General of New Brunswick, did not prosecute the guilty parties under the criminal law if he knew that a large sum of money was illegally spent by Conservatives in that campaign. This hon. gentleman, however, was now in the House, and he might be expected enlighten them. He had spoken a great deal on the public platform, but he had not said a word while in the House.

Mr. Kemp read the opinions of some of the Liberal papers as to what was the purpose of the banquet. It was a most spectacular affair, and was said to cost about $15,000. There was not much doubt, in his opinion, as to what the aim and object of the affair was. Mr. Pugsley and Mr. David Russell were intimate in newspaper deals and in land deals.

Mr. Pugsley Explains.

Mr. Pugsley was on his feet. "The hon. gentleman when he states that I was associated with Mr. Russell in newspaper deals and in land deals is entirely incorrect."

Mr. Kemp: I understand that the hon. gentleman owned the The St. John Gazette.

"I was one of the proprietors and I sold out my interest to Mr. Russell and got the cash," said Mr. Pugsley, amid Opposition cheers.

Rural Delivery Again.

Dr. McIntyle (Strathcona) followed, talking to the Armstrong amendment in favor of free rural mail delivery.

The House rose at 5.30 yesterday to enable the members to attend the funeral service over the remains of the late B. B. Gunn, M. P. for South Huron.

Before the orders of the day were called, Mr. Fielding, in the absence of the Prime Minister, made a touching reference to the death of Mr. Gunn, upon whose desk in the House lay a massive floral wreath, the tribute of his fellow Conservative members. Mr. Fielding alluded to the fact that this was the second death since the session began, a circumstance which lent it additional sadness. He spoke of the deceased as a man who was most assiduous in attendance at the Parliamentary committees, who seldom took part in the debates in the House, but when he did so, always commanded attention. In conclusion, he expressed, on behalf of the members on the Government side, the sympathy of the Commons for Mrs. Gunn and the bereaved family.

R. L. Borden spoke with much feeling. It was but a week since the late member, he said, was walking about in evident good health, and only on Saturday, when Mr. Borden last saw him, neither of them had any premonition of the hon. member's fast approaching death. To Mr. Fielding, the Opposition leader voiced the thanks of the Conservative members for his tribute to their late friend, closing with a similar expression of deep sorrow and of heartfelt sympathy with the bereaved family.

Inadequate Train Accommodation.

Mr. Taylor again brought up the subject of inadequate train connection between the C. P. R. and G. T. R. at Brockville.

Mr. Graham said he had referred the matter to the Board of Railway Commissioners, and had received from them a communication in which they gave a history of what had been done in the matter. "More a history of what has been done than of what has been accomplished," he added. The Minister went on to say that it was a case where one railway company blamed the other for the present unsatisfactory state of affairs.

A tentative arrangement had been come to whereby the C. P. R. agreed to hold its train ten minutes at Brockville if the Grand Trunk would wire ahead that they were passengers on its train desiring to transfer at Brockville. But for five days last week the Brockville mails were held a day later there and on one occasion the mail car went off with half the mail, the other half being left on the platform truck because the C. P. R. people would not wait.

"This can and must be remedied immediately," declared the Minister forcibly, adding that if necessary he would have the Railway Act amended so as to make the companies accommodate the public in this matter.

The House voted last night on Mr. Armstrong's amendment, favoring free rural mail delivery. Dr. Paquet (Conservative, L'Islet) announced that he would vote against the amendment. There should be more post-offices and increased postal facilities. Rural mail delivery, he thought, would be premature. Lavergne, Verville and Robitaille also voted with the Government. The Government majority was 49.

Samuel Barker (Conservative, Hamilton) adjourned the debate. He will move an amendment condemning the Government for the Quebec bridge disaster.

LOOSE ROCK EXPLODED.

Four Italians Killed on Canadian Northern Construction Works.

Parry Sound, Dec. 11.—An inquest was held here Monday night to determine the cause of the death of four Italians, which occurred as the result of an explosion at Key Harbor, last Thursday.

Some eighteen men were working in a rock cut near Key Harbor, on the C. N. O. R. spur line, when a piece of rock, which was rolled down from the face of the cut, exploded, killing three Italians instantly, and wounding some others, one of whom subsequently died.

No one seems to be able to account for the explosion. There had been no dynamite used in the cut for days previous to this explosion, and it was three days before that six battery shots and some block holes had been fired.

FUNERAL SERVICE AT OTTAWA.

Remains of B. B. Gunn, M. P., Taken to Seaforth.

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—The funeral service over the remains of the late B. B. Gunn, M. P., was held last night at Rogers' undertaking establishment. Rev. Mr. Richardson of McLeod street Methodist Church officiated, and about 100 members of Parliament were present, including the Speaker and Deputy Speaker, R. L. Borden, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Hon. Wm. Paterson and Hon. G. E. Foster.

E. N. Lewis, M. P., with Mrs. Gunn and her two sons accompanied the remains to Seaforth.

PARLIAMENT HOUSE BURNED.

Fire Destroys New Zealand Legislative Buildings.

Wellington, N. Z., Dec. 11.—The Parliament Houses were, last night, entirely destroyed by fire.

Unemployed at Vancouver.

Vancouver, Dec. 11.—At a street meeting of unemployed yesterday, the declaration was made that between 200 and 300 were sleeping outside every night and a warning was given that Seattle unemployed must not come to Vancouver.

Two hundred then paraded to the City Hall, where a special meeting of the council decided to appropriate $3,000 for relief work in opening new streets, at the rate of 20 cents per hour.

The old police station building is being arranged as a sleeping place and aldermen will ask the Government to start the large clearing work of the provincial lands at Point Grey this winter, to provide work. The question will now solve itself, it is hoped.

Army Officer Killed.

Montreal, Dec. 11.—The mangled remains of Capt. H. F. Lester Pocock, of the British army, London, Eng., were found beside the C. P. R. track.

A diary found in his pocket showed at Montreal West yesterday morning that he had left London on Nov. 10, and was bound for British Columbia. He had a letter of introduction from Roger Pocock of the League of Frontiersmen to the organization in British Columbia.

The sum of $43 and some trinkets were found in his pockets. It is thought he fell from a train.

Stork Carries 18 Pounds.

Richmond, Ind., Dec. 11.—A baby daughter, weighing 18 pounds, has been born to Mrs. Frank Squires, wife of a farmer living near Washington, Ind. The attending physician and other doctors say the child is a record-breaker for weight. It is well proportioned.

Boy Killed at Strathroy.

Strathroy, Dec. 11.—While crossing the Caradoc street crossing yesterday on his way home from school, Elean, the ten-year-old son of James Collins, was struck by the Lehigh Express and almost instantly killed.

C.P.R. EMPLOYEE BELIEVED TO HAVE FALLEN FROM THE BRIDGE EAST OF GEORGE ST. AND MET DEATH IN RIVER

ARE SEARCHING TO-DAY

Was Employed to Look After The Water Tanks at Manvers And Peterborough

The disappearance of Edward Beaman, an employee of the C. P. R., leaves only one explanation, and his friends though loth to admit it, believe that he has fallen from the C.P.R. bridge and been drowned. He has not been seen since Monday night at six o'clock and every clue to his whereabouts has been investigated but no trace of him has been found. There only remains the premises that he is lying at the bottom of the Otonabee and a number of searchers have been at work since yesterday afternoon at the bridge in an effort to find his body.

His Disappearance

Edward Beaman has been engaged on the C.P.R. at Manvers and Peterborough as pump man, looking after the waterworks for supplying the engines with water. His home is at Manvers, but every day it has been his custom to come down to Peterborough on one of the trains during the early part of the day and return again in the evening.

On Monday night about six o'clock, he started from the station to board a freight train that was standing on the bridge east of George street. The ticket agent at the station is believed to be the last person to have seen him alive. He was then walking towards the train and disappeared in the heavy mist and it is believed walked to his death.

Missed by Friends

Beaman's custom was to ride with the conductor of the freight in the van. He did not appear at home in Manvers on Monday night and Tuesday morning was not back to work. A parcel which he was carrying with him when he left the station was found on the bridge, but at first was not considered of any importance as a link in the chain of events. The conductor of freight No. 51 said that he did not see on the van that night, and every other possibility has failed to locate him, and therefore it is firmly believed that he never crossed the bridge, but in some manner slipped and fell.

Searching Yesterday

It will be remembered that Monday night was very dark and a heavy mist added to the pall that even shut out the rays from the electric lights. The idea was formed that Beaman had fallen off the bridge, and the finding of the package substantiated the belief.

Mr. William Taylor, who formerly had Mr Beaman's position at Manvers and Peterborough, has made every inquiry, and believing the worst, arranged for a search party yesterday afternoon. Messrs. S. Guerin, M. Holt and A. Vass have been searching in a punt with hooks, but so far have been unsuccessful. The section men have also given as much assistance as they could, as Beaman was well-known around the C.P.R. yards.

Personal Appearance

Beaman was a man of about fifty odd years, and was married. His home is in Manvers, where his wife and son live. His son, a brakeman on the C.P.R., came to Peterborough last night to assist in the search. There are two daughters, one of whom lives in the city, as also does a sister.

Mr Beaman is a member of the Sons of England.

Later.—The body had not been found this afternoon. It has been learned that Mrs. Beaman had been in the city on Monday and had returned home on the afternoon express. She had forgotten a parcel up town and Mr. Beaman had returned for it and thus had three parcels under his arms.

Another fact learned is that Mr. Beaman's son who is a brakeman on the C.P.R. was on train No. 51 and spoke to him last near the little tool house just beside the bridge.

TWO WILD WHISTLEWINGS CAPTURED BY YOUNG'S POINT MEN ON SKATES

Catching wild ducks alive and in the middle of the day is a feat that not every person can perform. Yet this is actually what was accomplished on Clear Lake above Young's Point the other day, by Mr. P. J. Young and some of his friends who went skating up the lake. Two wild ducks of the whistlewing variety were seen by Mr Young sitting in the water which covered over the surface of the ice. Guns were not necessary as the birds were unable to rise off the ice, and the young men easily skated up and took them captives.

The whistlewings were taken in charge, but on the road home were presented to a farmer, who resides near the Point.

POLICEMAN SHOT THROUGH THE BACK FOLLOWS MEN 3 BLOCKS

In Franklin, Pa., they shoot policemen recklessly, according to a letter received by Mr. W. P. Eakin, of Peterborough from his parents who are living in that city. The letter states that as the result of an assault by three foreigners on a fourth individual who is alleged to have insulted them, Police Officer Meehan arrested two of the trio. The other went free and to revenge the arrest of his comrades, stole up behind the policeman and sent a bullet through his body. The officer died a few hours later. A mob quickly gathered on the street and th desperado would have been lynched on the spot had it not been for the interference of the police. He was captured and taken to police headquarters where he awaits his trial. The injured officer was full of grit and followed the two men who got away from him for three blocks.

AN IMMENSE ARMY OF MEN AT RAILWAY CONRTRUCTION

Toronto, Dec. 11.—(Special.)—It will probably be learned with some surprise that at the present moment there are engaged in railway construction work in Western Canada 38,000 men, and the work, according to Bradstreets' report, is going forward rapidly. About 18,000 men are engaged on the Grand Trunk Pacific construction between Winnipeg and Moncton, and on the section west of Winnipeg there are about 20,000 men at work.

About 125 miles of road between Portage la Prairie and Minnota, Man., are ready for traffic, and an additional 100 miles will soon be ready. The cost of the prairie sections is estimated at between $22,000 and $24,000 per mile. It was originally estimated that this section would cost $13,000 per mile, but the advance is due to the increase in wages and to the higher cost of supplies. The grading is being pushed between Saskatoon and Edmonton, and the greater part of the district is ready for the.

THIS DROVER HAS ALL BEATEN; DRIVES PAIR OF MINK TEN MILES

Lindsay, Dec. 11.—(Special.) — Mr. Raymond of the south ward is telling a good story these days. He lives near the river, a situation which has always produced some fine tales as those who are in the habit of frequenting the Scugog know.

A day or two ago he strolled up to Fishery Inspector Bradshaw and asked him, "What are the rules governing the killing of mink. Is there any protection on them at this time of year?"

The inspector said no, there was none whatever, and waited to see what was coming next, for Raymond evidently had something pretty good up his sleeve.

"Well," said Raymond, "you know, this summer I spent three whole days driving a mink with its mate from away up there at Cross Creek down to my place near the iron bridge. I got the pair to nest on the bank there, and if all goes well I intend to make a nice little thing out of raising mink. But you know, since the season opened I am terribly afraid that some sports who have found out about them will come out and shoot them. I am going to spend a couple of days watching that they don't come to any harm. I'm not one to spend three whole days for nothing."

At this charming and truthful disclosure the inspector was naturally not pleased even though he is a fisherman himself and can tell a few good ones. He has heard of this fish of knocking down sumbodies ducks at one shot, and of many other strange and startling performances, but meeting a man who has driven a mink nearly ten miles is an entirely new experience for him.

A HIAWATHA FOWL SUPPER IN HONOUR OF THE INDIANS

The Hiawatha villagers were treated to something new last night, when Rev. George Dunkley presented the two Indian runners, Fred Simpson and Ben Howard with the medals they won at the Y.M.C.A. Harriers' meet last week. A large audience assembled and applauded the boys as they received their medals. Five addresses were given in addition to that by Rev. Mr. Dunkley, who reviewed the story of the ancient Olympic games, and spoke of the preparation necessary for those who took part in them. The ladies of Hiawatha provided a fowl supper for the occasion and a delightful time resulted.

CHARGED WITH STEALING LUMBER AND A TUMBLER

Case of Wm. Haines Before Judge and Jury To-day

William Haines of Cavendish township was to-day before his Honour Judge Weller and a jury at the autumn sessions of the county court, charged with the theft of some lumber from Mr. R. Bell of the same township, as well as some other articles, including a blanket, a tumbler, spoons and a whip stock. The lumber was valued at $30.

All morning was spent in hearing the evidence of two witnesses but up to the time of going to press the case had not been concluded.

Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the defendant; Mr. W. H. Moore for the plaintiff, and Crown Attorney Wood for the Crown.

Velvet Skin, Soft and Clear

What one or two applications of Dr Chase's Ointment will do for rough, inflamed and irritated skin is almost as wonderful as the complete cure of eczema by its persistent use. By its healing, soothing and antiseptic influence Dr. Chase's Ointment quickly cures chafing and skin diseases and eruptions and leaves the skin clear, soft and velvety.

RIDES ACROSS LOON LAKE ON BICYCLE BUT AN ICE COLD BATH IS THE RESULT

Apsley, Dec. 11.—The frozen surface of Leon Lake last Sunday was an alluring sport for Herbert Nesbitt, a villager, who attempted an innovation which proved a disastrous one. The shining surface of the beautiful lake looked good to the youth who happened to have his bicycle with him. He went for a spin on the ice but unfortunately the ice was thin in spots and Mr. Nesbitt went through.

There was considerable struggling in the icy waters before the bicycle rider stood on a solid footing. He, however, reached shore in safety and wended his homeward way as rapidly as his pedal extremities could carry him under the circumstances.

The bicycle was not so lucky. It wasn't all made of inflated rubber and sank to the bottom of Loon Lake.

HOUSEBREAKER CAPTURED BY POLICE WHILE TRYING TO SELL HIS SWAG IN A JEWELLRY STORE

P. C. Meharry Trailed Chas. Miller Catching Him Redhanded—Apparently an Inexperienced Thief

IN POLICE COURT TO-DAY

Miller Broke into T. Brightman's Residence Yesterday and Stole Jewellry

Charles Miller pleaded guilty to having broken into the residence of Mr Thos. Brightman yesterday morning and stolen a quantity of jewellery. Before Magistrate Dumble to-day he offered no defence whatever, saying, 'I'm guilty; I know I done it."

Chief Rossel asked for a remand of one week, presumably to inquire into Miller's past.

The Capture

The robbery was committed in broad daylight yesterday morning and reported to the police at noon. Miller must have been without finances and in straightened circumstances for the robbery was a bold one. In some manner, he learned that the family was absent, and must have been on watch for some time.

Chief Rossel immediately started his men on the chase and Officers McGuty and Meharry were sent out. The latter rounded up two men, Valois and Powell, but no clue seemed to connect the affair with them. The Chief evidently considered that the thief was experienced at the game, for he left, as a last resource, an inquiry at the jewellery stores. He sent P. C. Meharry on this duty and the officer was not long away until he got a clue. The prisoner had been at Clarke's store, and going on down the street, P. C. Meharry caught him in Schneider's, where he was trying to dispose of his swag. He was taken to the police station and the jewellery was confiscated.

A Stranger

Miller is a stranger to Peterborough. He said he had been working on the railway near Georgian Bay all summer, but had lately been living in Toronto. Miller has none of the earmarks of a professional thief. His heavy boots splashed with mud were similar to those usually worn by labourers, and his jeans and dark clothes suggested his acquaintance with the pick and shovel. He is of medium height, dark hair and sandy beard.

He will appear for judgment in a week.

Fatal Flower Co'y Arrives

One of The Best Attractions at The Grand This Season

The "Fatal Flower" Company has arrived in the city with a car load of scenery and with the most complete equipment that has been in the Opera House this season. The Fatal Flower is a splendid attraction and one that will have few rivals here this year. After playing to-night in the Grand the company go to Ottawa and from there to the Grand, Toronto, where they play all next week.

MR. WM. DAVIDSON MAKES AN EXPLANATION

In connection with Mr. Wm. Davidson's claim on the city council, for a refund of $20 on account of sewer connection on McDonel street, he wishes to explain that although he deposited $45 to secure connection with the McDonel street sewer, (his residence being on Dickson street, where there is no sewer) he only claims a refund of the $20 deposited by him in compliance with the bylaw. He makes no claim on account of the $25 paid for the privilege of connecting with the sewer on McDonel street. He is asking for no more than is given to any ratepayer under similar circumstances.

Child Was Born With Two Noses

Toronto Dec. 11. — (Special.)— One of the most curious patients that has ever been brought to the general hospital was entered a few days ago, a child one year old. It had a double cleft palate and two noses. The latter were stubby and an inch apart, but each performed its function properly. The little one was brought in by its mother in an effort to remedy these strange malformations, which were its birthright. An operation was performed for the purpose of bringing the two palates together, and the child was then taken away. The treatment will probably be continued.

ONE INDIAN BRAVE ATE 34 HAM SANDWICHES

Pickles, Cheese and Twelve Cups of Coffee Also Demolished

Examiner Special

Burlington, N.J., Dec. 11.—Burlington county Red Men are still talking of an eating match witnessed at a "feed" this week of braves from several near-by towns. Arthur Wilcox, of this city, was pitted against a strange brave from Delanco.

Wilcox, his friends assert, got away with thirty-three ham sandwiches, four dozen small pickles, two pounds of cheese and twelve cups of coffee. His Delanco brother, whose name has friends refuse to make public, went Wilcox one better through the entire menu and was awarded the purse.

FINGER CRUSHED AT THE SHOVEL WORKS YESTERDAY

Mr. Simon Clancy Will be Laid Off For a Few Days

Mr. Simon Clancy, an employee of the Shovel Factory, met with an accident while he was at work yesterday. One of the fingers of his right hand was crushed by a blow from a hammer, which will necessitate Mr Clancy's discontinuance of work for some time.

CITIZENS WANT TO SEE THE BY-LAWS PUBLISHED

They Believe That Possibly The Garbage By-law is Sufficient

A number of citizens have spoken to the Examiner who want to see the Sanitary Bylaw published. They desire to see it in print so that they may compare it with the Garbage By-law now being constructed and which will be voted upon at the January election. They are of the opinion that possibly the Sanitary Bylaw with a few alterations or a few extra clauses added might be made to cover the cases which the Garbage Bylaw proposes to do. They also want to see the latter bylaw in print as soon as possible in order that it may be discussed thoroughly before the elections arrive.

THE STORY OF THE PURSUIT OF A WHITE OWL WHICH EVADED A SOUTH MONAGHAM FARMER

A Practical Joke At a Threshing "Bee"—Things Are Not What They Seem

AND THE OWL GOES FREE

An amusing "owl" story is reported from South Monaghan, where recently a large and beautiful white owl was seen by Mr. Geo. Woods, who resides not far from Bensfort, and who has discovered to his satisfaction that "things are not what they seem." Mr. Woods one day last week was going over to a neighbour's farm on some business — to be explicit, he was going to engage the owners of a threshing machine to call at his farm to conclude the season's threshing—when he noticed a large white owl sitting in the stubble of his wheat field.

Mr. Wood had no gun. This, of course, is usually the case when there is game around. He therefore paid no particular notice to the handsome bird, with the big eyes, other than to admire its plumage. The threshers were engaged that evening to come two days after, to thresh for him.

When he arrived home that evening, Mr. Wood again saw the owl, and this time it was sitting on the fence near his barn. He had visions of capturing the bird and hurriedly ran for his gun. Fortunately for the owl, perhaps, it had disappeared when the firearm was in readiness, and Mr. Wood could not exhibit the prize to the threshing hands, that was once almost within his grasp. However, the men heard the story of the narrow escape of the owl and resolved to play a practical joke.

At noon one of them secured an old newspaper which he stored away in his "jeans" till the evening twilight had begun to fall. After tea on his way home he arranged the paper on the exact post on which the owl was known by Mr. Wood to have perched. The alarm was then sounded that the owl had returned, and its former pursuer was quickly out with the shot gun, for which in his hurry, he could only find one shell.

The rest of the story can possibly be imagined. The "fake" owl was riddled with shot, but refused to either fall or fly. The operator was urged to "let it have the other barrel!" but there were no more shells forthcoming. He then stole quietly along and grabbed the "owl" on the fence, as the eyes of all the merry threshers were concentrated upon him.

STORY OF HOW A LOST BRACELET WAS FOUND

Lost bracelets can be restored to the owners by means of the insertion of an ad. in the Examiner columns just as well as lost watches and pins. On Saturday a lady dropped her bracelet on the street. An ad. was placed in the Examiner on that day. It was found on Monday afternoon and on Tuesday was restored to the owner.

PRESENTATION BEFORE DEPARTURE

Miss Lilian Pratt Given Amethyst Ring By Girls Guild of St. John's

Last night at a regular meeting of St. John's Girls' Guild, the president, Miss Lilian Pratt, who is removing from the city at the expiration of the present school term, to join her mother in Toronto, was presented with an eulogistic address and a handsome gold ring set with three amethysts. The address was read by Miss Minnie Smith and the presentation made by Miss Jane I. Layfield. Miss Pratt, being taken by surprise, but managed to express her gratitude for the handsome gift and the kindly feelings of the members of the Guild.

It might be mentioned that Miss Pratt has always been a very popular worker in not only the Girls' Guild, but in almost all the societies in connection with St. John's Church in which a young lady could take part.

Previous to this pleasant event Miss Pratt had, as president of the Guild, awarded two trophies for regular attendance to members of the society, Miss Edith Horsfield being the recipient of a very pretty hat pin and Miss Kate Martin a maple leaf pin.

After the regular business had been transacted light refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour spent.

HAS LICENSE TO CARRY EXPRESS AND BAGGAGE

Mail Carrier Works Within His Rights—Answers Expressman

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Sir, — In regard to a letter which appeared in your issue of yesterday, signed by a "Expressman," I want to make some corrections. I would like to inform him that I have a license to carry express and baggage to any point in the city and that when I am doing that I am entirely within my rights. It is, therefore, the business of no expressman whether I carry express or baggage; I use my own vehicle and sleigh in doing so, and I pay my license. As long as my doing this does not detain the mails I am allowed to do it; and I maintain they are not detained by carrying baggage, which is always left over until the mail is delivered. "Expressman," had he wished to deal squarely in this matter should have signed his name to the letter, and not have made claims so recklessly without foundation.

Yours, etc.,
JAMES A. REID,
Mail Carrierr.

Apsley Ore Contains Iron Pyrites

Was Tested This Morning by a Practical Man, Mr. Eakin

Iron prites were found in some samples of ore which reached the Examiner a few days ago from Mr. George Wilson of Apsley. The ore was to-day tested by Mr. W. P. Eakin of Peterborough, who called at the Examiner office to investigate it. He tested for copper, but found none. However there was a good percentage of iron pyrites, and Mr. Eakins states that the value of the find depends on the conformation of the country rock.

WOUNDED DIGNITY

Peterborough has mercifully been spared such calamities as volcanic upheavals, tempests, etc., but on Monday night a greater calamity befel—lese majesty was committed. The Mayor received a "slap in the face" It is lamentable that at practically the closing meeting of the city fathers, the brotherly harmony which has existed throughout the year, should have been so rudely interrupted and the Mayor's dignity so deeply wounded. The circumstances leading up to the deplorable indignity are these: Mr. Wm. Davidson says he got permission from some of the civic authorities to put in a sewer service to a property of his on McDonel street. He deposited his cheque for $20 as security with the city When the service was completed he applied for a return of his deposit. The cheque was made out and the Mayor refused to sign, on return the cheque, as Mr. Davidson or any other citizen, under such circumstances, was entitled to have done. But it is stated that the Mayor is not on friendly terms with Mr. Davidson, and it is further stated that the Mayor took this small way to have a great revenge, on the plea that he wanted to make a star chamber matter of it and have it referred to the Board of Works. This is another way of saying that it should be referred to the Mayor, for it is a tradition in civic circles that the Mayor is the Board of Works, as a majority of the Board, including himself and a couple of other members are regarded as one and indivisible.

The action of the Mayor in regard to Mr. Davidson's cheque is an example of the French proverb, qui s'excuse, s'accuse. At the last meeting he said he wanted to speak on a "question of privilege" on a personal matter, and then he referred to the action of the Council in voting to return Mr. Davidson's cheque after "the Mayor—not from personal motives whatever"—had voted its return as "a slap in the face." Nobody accused the Mayor of acting from "personal motives," and his anxiety to defend himself from a charge that had not been made naturally arouses suspicion.

The incident is as pretty a combination of big-head and peanut politics as one would ask to see. The Council must be brought to book for voting the return of a cheque to a reputable citizen, who states that he got permission to open the street, while another equally reputable citizen, the City Engineer, states differently Now the venerable Mayor wants to drag two reputable citizens, either one old enough to be his father, before himself to find out which is a liar, and not to satisfy any civic interest, for the full Council voted that the transaction was proper, but to anoint the Mayor's wounded dignity To show a little spite to Mr Davidson, the matter must be reopened on a snatch vote after several aldermen had left the meeting.

At the meeting, the Mayor, in extenuation of his action, said that the Council was being "continually held up." But are not the taxpayers being held up? The Board of Works, of which the Mayor is head and body, went blindly into expenditure. At the beginning of the season they plunged into a long list of street work without any adequate idea of what it would cost, with the result that the large sum appropriated has been over-expended and the city has little to show for the expenditure made. Take as an example of the way the Board of Works works It was stated as a guess by some member that the cutting of the roadway through Armour's Hill to the lift lock would cost $500 On the strength of this guess the work was undertaken, and it has cost $3,000, only six times more than the estimate or "guess" of the Board of Works

Our evening contemporary is pained to note that there is no anxiety on the part of local Conservatives to call a convention to nominate a candidate for the Commons It asks if the mistake of 1904 is to be repeated Why not? It will make little difference, for the electors are likely to "repeat the mistake" of 1904 and elect a representative who is alive The people of Peterborough are not slow to note that the only live representatives, the only live and working representatives of Peterborough—West Peterborough especially—has had in the past twenty years have come from the Liberal party.

CANADIAN FINANCES

Mr. Cockshutt, member for Brantford, has placed on the journals of the House of Commons, a resolution of the view-with-alarm variety. The grounds of alarm are that the imports of Canada have for some years exceeds the exports, and that very large sums have been collected in duties on imports. It is not necessary to go into the eternal quarrel between free traders and protectionists as to the balance of trade. There is always an adverse balance of trade in Great Britain, whether times are good or bad, and there is ways a balance of trade in favour of the United States, whether the times are good or bad. Large imports are an effect, rather than a condition, and, as a rule, they are an indication of prosperity. When times are good people have more money to spend, and consequently they buy more imported goods, as well as more native products. The imports have increased very largely, and the production and consumption of native manufactures have shown a similar increase. It is altogether likely that in these periods of prosperity there is a tendency towards extravagance, and that money is spent which the cautious man would have put in his stocking to provide for a rainy day. But if Mr. Cockshutt or anybody else could infuse this canny spirit into the community in a period of good times, the effect of his warning would be seen not only in a reduction of imports, but in a reduction of the consumption of native manufactures. Flush times for the importer, are, usually, flush times for the manufacturer, and vice versa. Thus, in the good times that followed the N. P., the imports rose in four years from $81,904,000 to $182,254,000, although the new tariff was expressly designed to check imports. To a certain extent, an increase in imports is a direct indication of prosperity in the manufacturing industry of Canada, because the imports consist largely of the raw materials of our manufacturing industry.

There is a fierce quarrel over the question whether the present Government has increased taxation. The fact is that the present Government has reduced the rate of taxation, but that the lower rate has been applied to an immensely increased volume of imports. Almost exactly the same thing has happened in the city of Toronto, where a rate of 18 1-2 mills to-day gives us a much larger revenue than a rate of 19 1-2 mills in 1900, because the lower rate is applied to a much larger assessment.

The times being good, and money coming in freely, the Government has done as the community has done—spent money freely and embarked in big enterprises. In the case of the nation, as in the case of the individual, there is always a temptation to excess in times of prosperity, and those who counsel thrift and care are doing the nation a good service. But there is such a thing as extravagance in speech as well as in spending, and to say that Canada is being hurried to the brink of ruin, by heavy expenditures, is the wildest, est kind of nonsense.

The best test of the financial standing of the country is the net debt. In 1907, the net debt was $263,071,859. In 1898 the net debt was $263,956,308. That is to say, the debt has actually been reduced, while the productive capacity, the financial, commercial and industrial power of the country, has been enormously increased. For instance, in 1898, the net debt was almost equal to the total trade, while to-day the total trade is almost twice the amount of the debt. The debt is not much more now than the exports of a single year. A similar comparison might be made with native manufactures, or farm products. While everything else has been growing, the debt has been standing still, or receding.—Toronto Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is distinctively Hibernian and Sir Boyle Roshean to have the All-Red route start in the Green Isle at a Black Sod bay.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux's mission to Japan seems to have been crowned with success, assurances having been given that Japanese emigration, both to the United States and Japan, will be restricted. In view of the triumph of diplomacy, as the Brantford Expositor points out, the tactics of Mr. Borden, in seeking to make capital against the Laurier Government for signing the Japanese treaty, seem like a pretty cheap grade of politics, more especially as the Opposition, had originally found fault with the Government for not having signed the treaty sooner.

Pointed attention is called by The Springfield Republican to the fact that the present financial and industrial disturbance in the United States has occurred at a time when the country is under the highest tariff it has ever known. Banks have fallen, industries have been closed up, and great numbers have been deprived of employment despite the existence of a system of protection which, according to its authors, should have proved a certain assurance against the disasters that have occurred. In Canada between 1896 and 1906 the tariff on articles subject to customs taxation averaged less than 28 per cent, and in that ten-year period the country prospered as never before. In view of this exhibit, The Weekly Sun observes that the experience of recent years in both the United States and Canada has forever shattered the position of those who have contended that high protection insures abounding prosperity.

"Independent Liberal" writes from Peterborough to the Toronto News: "You positively make me tired. You pose as an Independent, but your correct role is that of chief apologist for Mr. Borden. Mr. Borden makes the statement that the reason he was defeated in Nova Scotia was owing to wholesale corruption on the part of the Liberals. Hon. Mr. Pugsley states that there was a huge Tory campaign fund to bribe the electorate. You say that Mr. Pugsley should bring up his charges and prove them or quit talking. Do you say the same thing about Mr. Borden? Of course not. The attitude you take appears to be that Mr. Pugsley must prove any charges he makes concerning corruption, but if Mr. Borden makes any charges concerning corruption it would be a hardship to make him prove them." 'Twas ever thus. Your Independent journal takes a course that is intended to help the party in whose actual interests its ostensible, or, rather, assumed independence is daily exploited. The party to which it is at heart opposed is not overtly knocked but damned with faint applause.

LEARN TO EAT

Few People in Peterborough Really Know How

Slow eating will solve one half the problems of ill-health. Those who suffer already with indigestion and weak stomach can, with care and the use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, restore their stomach to a healthy condition, so that they can eat what they want at any time without fear of distress or suffering.

After a few days' use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets the headache, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, distress after eating—all these symptoms of a weak stomach will disappear, and perfect digestion and a good skin will show that the vital machinery is once more running smoothly.

Take a little Mi-o-na tablet before each meal so that it will stimulate the digestive juices and give strength to the stomach, and then it will take care of the food that is eaten, without indigestion, and the unpleasant full feeling which so many suffer after meals.

Mr. Madill has so much confidence in the powers of Mi-o-na to cure indigestion and all stomach ills that he gives a guarantee with every 50-cent box to refund the money if the remedy fails to give satisfaction

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE Y.M.C.A.

The Membership Rapidly Growing—Meeting of The Directors

A large number of new members have been received during the past month at the Y.M.C.A. and the renewals are coming in better. The dormitories are again filling up, and more interest is being taken in the different apartments of the work. The lockers are all being over-hauled, repaired and put in first class shape.

The programme committee is at work for the New Year's Day reception and a strong and interesting programme will be presented.

The Board of Directors will meet on Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound, or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube resored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Local Option Winks At Drink

In a license town, drinking is done under rigid laws and in the eyes of the public. Every condition operates to make men restrain themselves. The beverages sold are of honest quality, and pure. In a local option town, men drink adulterated stuff of the worst quality, and drink far more because public opinion is blinded by the law.

Practically, local option banishes the decent bar and tolerates the "blind pig." It winks at the abuse of alcohol and fosters its abuse.

Under local option, the man who profits is the keeper of the "blind pig," who sells adulterated stuff by stealth and contributes naught to the local revenues.

Under license, the community benefits as a whole, for the liquor traffic is regulated, is taxed, and is conducted under the watch of the whole population, with all the restrictions that implies. Local option takes the traffic from the grip of the law and delivers it over to private greed.

The Bridgenorth Youths Have The Hockey Fever

Organize a Club For City League With High Hopes of Victory—Interesting Letter From The Chemong Lake Village

LOSE FINGERS IN WINDMILL

Examiner Special.

Bridgenorth, Dec. 11. — Something is radically wrong with our calendar this year; at least December and April have become slightly mixed.

The hay press, which is an entirely new machine in this district, is being extensively used and now a load of baled hay or straw is a familiar sight while in previous year it was an unknown quantity.

Good, dry hardwood is a scarce article here and Mr. Will Mann has a complete monopoly of that trade, but he is supplying the villagers with the best quality at a reasonable price.

Miss A. Oliver was the guest of Miss Ida Mann on Saturday and Sunday last.

Miss M Darling, of Central Smith spent a few days last week with her friend, Miss Eunice Mann.

One of our old boys, Mr. G J Brumwell, of Lindsay, paid a short visit to his parents a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo Brown are at present domiciled at the Chemong Park Hotel.

Last Thursday, Reeve Scott, accompanied by Mr. J N Telford, made an official visit to the County House of Refuge and reports all well at that institution.

Court Bridgenorth, C.O.F., will hold two meetings every month during the winter season, on the second and last Friday.

The pulpit of Gilmour Baptist church has been occupied on the last two Sundays by Rev. A H Bruce, of Park street Baptist church, Peterborough.

While Mr. Wm. Paul, Sr., was adjusting the lower gear of his windmill, he had the misfortune to have three fingers of the left hand so badly mangled that amputation was necessary.

Several of the local sports attended the athletic meet in the Brock street rink, Peterborough, and were well pleased with the entertainment dispensed there.

Hockey! hockey! hockey! We have the fever, also a team and also a rink. Encouraged by the success of last winter it was decided to form a club and get on a business basis. basis. In accordance with this idea, about twenty enthusiasts from the village and suburbs gathered at the home of Mrs. W B Kelly on Saturday evening and the Bridgenorth Hockey Club was duly organized. Mr. B. Kelly acted as chairman in a very acceptable manner The list of officers is as follows:—

Hon. Pres.—R N Scott.
Pres.—T N Kelly.
1st Vice-Pres.—J A Jobe.
2nd Vice-Pres.—P T Udy.
Sec.—Treas.—E Brumwell.
Captain—W Mann.
Executive Committee—H Stubbs, F Jopling, J Cullen and the Captain.
League Delegates—T N Kelly and F Jopling.

It was unanimously decided to make application for entry to the Peterborough Hockey League as that would ensure a series of games. As all the league games are played in Peterborough, there will be some good outings during the winter.

During the intermission in the meeting, refreshments were served, speeches were made by the officers and Mr. Nobbs Kelly entertained the gathering with some excellent phonograph selections. Thus business and pleasure formed a happy combination which adds to the social life of any community. When the business of the evening was concluded a vote of thanks was tendered to the hostess and to the chairman, and the members of the newly formed club dispersed with enthusiasm resting at 97 degrees in the shade.

MEN DISCHARGED AT THE CAMPS

Twenty-five Said to Have Been Laid off at One Camp

A Peterborough man who returned to the city last night from one of the lumber camps in the far north, brings the intelligence that the season in the woods is not a good one this year. He states that work is very slack and that many men are being laid off by the companies. In the camp where he was employed no less than twenty-five men have been discharged and the same condition is said to apply at the other camps.

IN MEMORIUM

Lines written in memory of the late Mrs. John Allen, who died Nov. 8th, 1907, aged 59 years and 10 months:

There's a vacant chair by your fireside,
Vacated by one we loved;
Her spirit has flee and is risen, we trust,
To the home of the blest above.

Her dear worn hands are laid on her breast,
Her chair is set gently away,
Her flesh needs the care of our hands no more,
For it has returned to its clay.

And your dear father is now without
His companion of many long years,
In vain we try to comfort him,
For deeper than any he grieves.

Yet friend it is only another shear gleaned,
So full and so thoroughly ripe,
Laden with yeans of kindness and love,
And the deeds of a noble life.

Let us cast down our burden of sorrow,
Down at our dear Saviour's feet,
For we shall welcome our loved ones in Christ,
When God's wondrous plans are complete.

Though with hearts full of grief we'll look up and be glad,
For the joy of our dear one afar,
For the peace and the rest waiting those who are Christ's,
After they've crossed the bar.

Rest in peace,
From her loving niece,
K. R.

An Artisan Cannot Row As An Amateur in England

Rule That Will Bar The Majority Of Canadian Oarsmen From The Olympic Regatta Next Year—A Farcical Regulation

WORDS OF THE RULE

The cast iron regulations of the A.R.A. have been adopted by the British Olympic Committee for the aquatic events next year, and as a result the majority of the Canadian oarsmen will be barred from participating. The clause that most affects Canadians is the following: "No person shall be considered an amateur oarsman, sculler or coxswain who is employed in manual labour for money or wages, who is or has been by trade or employment for wages, mechanic, artisan or labourer, or engaged in any menial duty."

To Canadians the rule appears a ridiculous farce. Why should a man who is an amateur in every sense of the word be barred from rowing because in his work he is not permitted to wear a silk hat or carry a cane? The rule does not seem to carry out the principle of British fair play, of which so much is heard. The Olympic regatta is to be made a five o'clock tea affair evidently, and it is probable that the rules will be amended to make it necessary for participants to appear in dress suits. The average Canadian oarsman has to work hard for his living, and it is hard to see why he should be barred from rowing.

John Burns on Preference.

London, Dec. 11.—(C. A. P.)—John Burns, M. P., addressing a meeting at Leeds, having enumerated the various advantages which the colonies already enjoyed, said we could not, without a mandate from the country—and that would never be given—we could not risk a world trade of thousands of millions and the goodwill of fifteen hundred millions of people, by doing more than we had done for the colonies. That, said Mr. Burns, is also the opinion of sensible, disinterested colonists.

The Persian Language.

Persian is said to be not a very difficult language. The modern Persian is very much like the English in its sensible rejection of the inflections that burden so many of the world's tongues. There is no difference of terminations to mark the gender either in nouns or adjectives, and all inanimate things are neuter. In other ways the Persian language conforms to the English.

SWEDEN'S NEW KING.

New Monarch Has Soldierly Instincts Rather Than Scholarly.

Stockholm, Dec. 11.—Gustave V., the fourth of the descendants of Field Marshal Bernadotte to occupy the throne of Sweden, can trace his connection with the great Napoleon in two others ways. He is the great-grandson of Desiree Bernadotte's Queen, whom Napoleon once thought of making Empress of the French, and he is the great-great-grandson of Josephine of Beauharnois, who succeeded Desiree in the Little Corporal's affections. Gustave was born in 1858, and received his education, like his father before him, at the University of Upsala. He entered the army in 1875, and attained to the rank of general-lieutenant in 1892. He is not unused to the cares of state, having frequently acted as Regent during the illness and absence of his father. He is personally very popular with the citizens of Stockholm, who look upon him as possessing his father's simplicity and sincerity. But while King Oscar was a scholar, King Gustave is a soldier, soul and body, and is somewhat inclined to rashness. It is said that he regards the Kaiser as the ideal ruler and emulates him as far as possible. He won the enmity of the Norwegian Storthing before the separation by suggesting that the Norwegians be tamed by force of arms.

BOYS HAD BIG LOOT.

Stratford Police Recover Large Quantity of Stolen Goods.

Stratford, Dec. 11.—Charged with wholesale burglary, three Stratford boys, Fred Bart, Fred Hoeltzje and Anthony Steeves, all under 18 years of age, were arrested and remanded. Bart pleaded guilty, while the other two pleaded not guilty. Several hundred dollars' worth of goods were found in the homes of the boys, and included everything from cigarette paper to revolvers and razors.

It required a large dray to haul the booty to the police station. Chief McCarthy, who ran the boys down, says that he has got to the bottom of the petty thieving that has harrassed merchants and citizens alike during the past year.

The police force was baffled and despite the increased staff of night men, were unable until yesterday to trace the robbers. The boys had in their possession hundreds of keys, which gave them access to almost any store they wished. Burglars' tools, including chisels, pincers and deadly-looking weapons, formed part of the arsenal.

Hundreds of dime novels stolen from a local bookstore, were found stowed away beneath the floor. Dozens of boxes of cigars, hundreds of packages of cigarettes, groceries, skates, razors, revolvers, knives, in fact, enough to stock a store.

It is believed that the boys have been carrying on their nefarious operations for months. Their latest robbery was at the wholesale grocery on Downie street, several sacks of goods having been stolen. While returning home with one of these sacks Hoeltzje was overtaken by Chief McCarthy at midnight, but he managed to escape in the darkness.

STOESSEL PLEADS NOT GUILTY.

Attitude of Court Regarded as Unfavorable to the General.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 11.—Before a brilliant assemblage of his old comrades in arms, Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel, yesterday was placed on trial to answer with his life and reputation for the loss of Port Arthur on Jan. 1, 1905, and in firm tones and with confident manner, the general pleaded not guilty to the charge of needlessly surrendering the fortress and thereby humiliating the Russian army.

There were also present 200 officers and soldiers, who had been at Port Arthur and who took part in their full dress uniforms, blazing with stars and decorations.

Gen. Stoessel alone was in civilian attire, and this made him conspicuous. He wore proudly around his neck the cordon of the military Order of St. George, which was conferred upon him by the Emperor during the siege, and on his breast was pinned the cross of George III., awarded the general for conspicuous bravery in frontier fighting.

The other accused officers, Gens. Fock, Reiss and Smirnoff, came to the court clad in their uniforms.

One or two incidents showed the attitude of the court to be unfavorable to Stoessel. His personal request that two additional witnesses be called in was dismissed without ceremony. Those witnesses could give evidence of vital importance to Stoessel. One of them, Dr. Rozanoff, was chief of the Red Cross within the fortress. At the preliminary hearing, he testified that at the time of the surrender Gen. Stoessel had at his disposal only 8,000 able-bodied men to defend the hundreds of miles of fortifications, and that the bitter cold winds prevailing at the time, made it difficult for the soldiers to even hold their rifles in their hands. Gen. Nadien, the other witness excluded, is the author of a deposition similar to that of Dr. Rozenoff.

The absence of ex-Viceroy Alexieff from the trial is interpreted to mean that the Government is not willing to enhance the magnitude of the proceedings. Alexieff escaped going on the witness stand with difficulty.

Blaze In Montreal School—Children Marched Out Without Panic.

Montreal, Dec. 11.—With 790 pupils under their care and with the horrors of the Hochelaga school fire fresh in their minds, the teachers of Montcalm school were startled yesterday to see smoke pouring out of a storeroom on a third floor.

The principal promptly signaled fire drill and the pupils marched out in two minutes in perfect order.

The firemen confined the fire to the one room. The fire was caused by a defective gas jet.

Would Remove Dunsmuir.

Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 11.—Unconstitutional and disloyal were the terms used in the resolution passed by the Asiatic League sent to Ottawa last night, condemning the action of Lieut.-Governor Dunsmuir in signing a contract with the Canadian Nippon Co., to import for his company, the Wellington Colliery, 500 Japanese miners, as disclosed in W. L. M. King's enquiry, while almost at the same date withholding his assent to the provincial natal act. The resolution calls for his removal.

The Trades and Labor Council has taken similar action, which may be followed by like resolutions by the Conservative Association.

GETS LIGHT SENTENCE.

Workman Sent to Jail For Fourteen Months For Counterfeiting.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 11.—Yesterday afternoon Judge Page Morris in the United States District Court sentenced Erhest Workman, aged 25, the self-confessed counterfeiter, who came from Winnipeg, to fourteen months in the state reformatory.

With the usual deduction for good behavior this will give Workman his liberty in a year. The sentence was pretty nearly the minimum.

Howard Wheeler, attorney for Workman, told the court his client was born near Exeter, Ont., and had had but two years schooling. That he had made no attempt to pass the gold certificates which he had made in St. Paul, and they were made so poorly they could hardly deceive anybody.

But the most telling point was made by Wheeler, when he read a letter written to Workman by his 19-year-old wife begging him to plead guilty so their separation would be all the shorter and pledging herself to stand by her husband to the end.

A Thrilling Runaway.

Stratford, Dec. 11.—Mrs. Dean, who arrived here from Galt at noon on a visit to her mother, Mrs. Borland, Daly avenue, had a thrilling experience. Seated in a cab while the driver was checking baggage, the horses started off and dashed through the main streets with the vehicle swinging from side to side. The horses were caught in time to prevent a possible fatality after running many blocks.

NORWOOD TO LEND IT'S ASSISTANCE

Will Also Send Delegation to Ottawa Re The Healey Falls

Examiner Special.

Havelock, Dec. 7.—A deputation of Havelock citizens last night interviewed Norwood Council, requesting them to send a deputation to Ottawa to assist the Northumberland Durham Power Company in securing the lease from the Dominion Government for their intervening portion of the upper Healey rapids. After a full discussion in regard to the matter the Norwood Council decided to join with Havelock council in sending the whole council as a deputation. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:—"Resolved that the whole Council of Norwood be a deputation to go to Ottawa, along with Havelock Council, and with a deputation of leading business men and manufacturers of the late front towns and cities, to endorse the memorial to the Dominion Government of this council dated Sept. 4th, 1907, and to press for the immediate settlement of the Northumberland-Durham Power Company's application for the intervening portion of the upper Healey rapids, the company holding a lease from the Ontario Government of the Falls and lower rapids, and owning portions of the upper Healey rapids and also a patent for the 56 acres of land, required for developing works. We also record our appreciation of the sentiments expressed by the deputation from Havelock, viz.,—Wm. Matheson, J P Coon, Jos. Knox, Thos Wood, of Havelock, and Managing director J A Colverwell, of Port Hope, viz.—that unity is strength." Dated at Norwood this 4th day Dec., 1907.

Ill Temper From a bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable, or more gloomy and discouraged, than liver complaint, and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia, and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right, and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

The Institute Meeting At Lakefield Well Attended

Farmers Turned Out Well in Spite Of The Rain—Intelligent Addresses By The Appointed Speakers

GOOD CONCERT IN EVENING

The meetings of the Farmers' Institute in West Peterborough are progressing, with good results. On Monday afternoon the farmers of Smith and the neighbouring townships, gathered at Lakefield, in the afternoon. There was a good attendance, with President Telford in the chair.

The first speaker was Mr. Drury of Ottawa, who took up the subject of the "Farmer's Flock of Sheep." He commenced by saying that the sheep is one of the best animals on the farm, from a financial standpoint. An ordinary stock of from 25 to 30 sheep should give a good return to any farmer. Sheep are one of the best stock to keep down weeds, and in this respect alone are very valuable. Mr. Drury described the class of sheep which he considered to be the best for every day farming. He advised using a good pure-bred sire, that had come to maturity, as from him you would get the best and strongest lambs. He would, he said, have the lambs come fairly early and be weaned in September.

Sheep in Winter

Continuing, Mr. Drury said that the lambs should be put on the very best pasture, and at that time he would put the breeding ewes in a poorer pasture for a month. Sheep, he said, do not require very warm buildings, but they should be dry, and sheltered on the north, east and west, to provide against draft. They can be wintered chiefly on pea straw, turnips, clover hay and a little grain. After mid-winter sheep require very little attention as compared with the other stock. Mr. Drury would not advise heavy feeding of turnips just before breeding time, but after that they might be fed liberally. They should then be dipped to kill the ticks. A number of dips are sold on the market, any of which are good, and would kill the ticks and nits. In order to get good results Mr. Drury said that sheep should be kept free from vermin.

Questions were asked by the farmers present and answered by the speaker.

The decrease in the number of sheep was largely due to the depredations of roaming dogs and many of the farmers had given up the raising of sheep owing to the losses caused by these dogs. The question of moment among the farmers seems to be, which will survive in the province—sheep or dogs.

Mr. Drury also spoke on Soil Moisture, and a synopsis of his address has already been printed.

Evening Meeting

A meeting was held in the evening in the town hall in conjunction with the Woman's Institute. Besides the addresses the following programme was presented to a large audience:

President's address, Mr. Telford.
Chairman's address, Dr. Burgess.
Instrumental duet, Misses Kline and Nelson.
Vocal octette.
Vocal solo, Mr. Ernie Telford.
Male chorus.

The addresses were delivered by Mrs. Colin Campbell on the Home, on the Housekeeper's Education, and Mr. Drury spoke on the Social Side of Farming, surpassing his remarks on the subejct in Ennismore.

Mrs. Campbell's speech was a very interesting one, dealing with the best methods to be used in the home, and the improtance of these methods when put into practice.

A vote of thanks was tendered the speakers, those providing the music, and the reeve and councillors of Lakefield for the use of the hall.

The meeting was concluded by the singing of the National Anthem.

SIDELIGHTS ON DAIRY MEETINGS

Farmers Derive Much Knowledge From Addresses of Dairymen

The series of meetings in connection with the annual meetings of the different cheese factories, just closed, have been a great success. The attendance was good and the interest taken in the addresses given by Messrs. Ward, Cameron and Somerville, showed that the dairy farmers are alive to the advantages of better care of milk, and the general improvement of the dairy business. The Ontario and Dominion Departments of Agriculture, are to be congratulated on the able speakers sent out to address the meetings. The instructors, Messrs. Ward and Cameron, knowing the local conditions, were able to deal intelligently with the weak points of the individual factories. Their addresses dealt with the importance of cooling milk, better sanitary conditions, and included the fact that if all the milk was cooled down to a temperature of 60 degrees, and delivered to the factories as good as the best, a saving of one half pound of milk on every pound of cheese could be realized, which would amount to many thousand of dollars in the Peterborough section alone.

Mr. Somerville took up the cow-testing work, and the cool curing of cheese. Last year a number of cow-testing associations were formed in the Peterborough section, and with the exception of a few members have been entirely satisfactory. The work on the whole has been well-done and Mr. Somerville is much pleased with the reports of members at the close of the first year. If this work is carried on until all members of cheese and butter factories have an average of production of 6000 lbs. per cow, the great problem of our national industry will be solved. The cool-curing rooms installed have given entire satisfaction and the benefits derived from this system of cruing cheese, have been appreciated by the patrons of the different factories. Mr Somerville's work in the Peterborough section has been appreciated by the patrons and makers, and at every meeting a most hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speakers. If the advice given is carried out as far as possible next season should see our Peterborough cheese board leading as a dairy section.

Compliments to Dry Goods Stores By The Dry Goods Review

The December issue of the Dry-goods Review, which has just reached the Examiner, makes some complimentary remarks about two of Peterborough's prominent drygoods stores, which have recently introduced novelties. The Review says:—

"Wednesday Winners," specially priced items for the mid-week market day, are being advertised by Richard Hall & Son, Peterborough, as a means of stimulating trade for that day, and it is stated that the results have fully justified the adoption of the plan. The practice is to cover the city thoroughly with bills on Monday, giving prices and descriptions of the offerings for Wednesday, and on Tuesday the daily newspapers carry three-quarter page advertisements, giving the same information. This plan has been in operation for several months, and it is stated that each week the volume of business attributable to this method shows a gratifying increase.

Subsequent to the enlargement of his drygoods store in Peterborough, A. W. Cressman added two new departments, shoes and stationery. Men's shoes are of course placed in the portion of the store devoted to men's wear, while those for ladies are sold on the second floor. The stationery department occupies a considerable space on the main floor. This is the first Peterborough store in which these departments have been opened and their introduction is reported to have been followed by satisfactory results.

MORE AMUSEMENTS FOR THE N.C.O'S

Will Hold Concert Every Month in New Mess Rooms—New Rules

The regular meeting of the N. C. O's of the 57th Regiment was held Monday night in their rooms on Simcoe street. Sergt. Butlen in the absence of Sergt. Major Brittain, occupied the chair. It was decided that the business of each meeting must be concluded at nine o'clock and from that time until 11 o'clock be spent in games and amusements. It was also decided to hold an entertainment at each semi-monthly meeting which will be held on the first Wednesday of every month. A Committee to act was appointed as follows:— Staff Sergt. Cottrell, chairman; Sergt. Edwards, Colour Sergt. Kingscote, Colour Sergt. Waterman, Staff Sergt. Sharp, and Sergt. Dercosher.

The work of the committee will be to provide a musical programme and indoor games for the entertainment of the men.

The mess is one of the largest organizations in the city having about one hundred members. The men are looking forward with great interest to the completion of the new armouries, in which they hope to have better quarters and claim that they will have the best furnished officers mess in the Dominion. Their present rooms are very comfortably furnished and the walls are decorated with the pictures of the different army heroes. The rooms are open every Wednesday between the hours of 8 and 11 o'clock to members only.

The officers would like to arrange a game of cards with any club in the city, the Conservative or the Echo Camp Clubs preferred.

CHILDREN FOR ADOPTION AT SHELTER

A Baby Boy and a Girl of Thirteen Years Are There

At the present time there are two children in the Children's Shelter, under the care of Mr. and Mrs. Henry. One is a little baby boy aged 15 months, and the other a girl of 13 years of age, who will be given out to suitable parties.

BUILDING NEW BARGE AT THE POINT

Stoney Lake Navigation Company Adding Another to Their Fleet

The Stony Lake Navigation Company of Young's Point, is erecting a new barge there to keep up with its growing trade in towing. This company has already one of the largest towing barges on the local waters, but find it insufficient to keep up with the spring and autumn trade in carrying wood, quarry stone, cheese, sand, lumber, etc.

LEFT WITHOUT PAYING RENT

Charlotte Street Tailors Skip Out—Goods Seized For Rent

There is a retail tailor shop on Charlotte street which has been closed for some time and has caused considerable gossip amongst the storekeepers and residents of that district. The lady who owns the building told the Examiner that the tailors were in arrears for rent and that the goods would be seized for the value of the rent.

The man who acted as proprietor came to her on the 23rd of October to rent the shop. He gave his name as Mr. Garrow. The same day a young fellow arrived who said he had just come out from England and secured a position as clerk. About a month ago the proprietor went away leaving the clerk in charge and when the landady got suspicious and asked for the rent she was told that Mr. Garrow would soon return. At the end of the week the clerk disappeared and the store has been locked up ever since. Many people have tried to get in but found no one there.

As for tailored garments in the store there were none and it is quite evident that they were not rushed with orders. Everything about the room was in good order but very little cloth was found.

SNOW PLOUGHING MAY BE BETTER

Ald. Phelan Introduced The Question at Council Meeting

If there is one thing which the citizens would like to see done well, it is the snow ploughing. Ald. Phelan at the last council meeting called attention to this matter by saying that many complaints had been made to him that the work is not being performed as it should be. The people say that the men who have the contracts do not turn out early in the morning. They claim that the snow should be cleaned off in time for work in the morning, and that it should be done properly, not leaving a mound of snow along the middle of the walk.

Ald. Phelan asked who was responsible for seeing that this work was done properly, and was told that the engineer was an authority. The engineer said that he would take the proper steps to see that the men who did the snow ploughing do the work as the city requires them to do.

ANOTHER ORANGEMAN PASSES AWAY

John Gray Died Last Night—To Be Buried With Orange Honours

Death removed at midnight last night an old resident of Peterborough and one of the most prominent Orangemen of the district in the person of John Gray, at his late residence, 209 Murray street. The deceased became ill about one year ago and has suffered since that time with cancer of the stomach. He was 63 years, 9 months old and leaves to mourn his loss besides his wife, nine children. They are John, of Chesley; Joseph, of Peterborough; William, in Western Canada; Mrs. D. J. Moore, City; Mrs. Jas. T. Nelson, Lang; Mrs. Gen E. Mullin, Smith, and Mcsie, Austin and Walter, at home.

The late Mr Gray was born in the North of Ireland, and came to this country at the age of 5 years with his mother. He resided in Perth for many years and came to Peterborough about 18 years ago where he has since resided.

He has been a member of the Orange Order for 46 years and while here belonged to Nassau Lodge. The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2.30 to the Little Lake Cemetery from his late residence, and he will be buried with Orange honours.

TWO VAGRANTS IN COURT TO-DAY

Discharged But Told to Hie Themselves Beyond the City's Limits

ONE DRUNK WAS FINED

This morning's session of the police court was held in the council committee rooms, owing to improvements that are being made in the court room. Four cases were heard and disposed of without delay.

George Valois was charged with being a vagrant. He stated that he did not think that he was guilty of that offence. P. C. Meharry was sworn and stated that Valois had been given lodgings in the cells on Sunday night, and has been loafing around the streets since then. The officer stated that he has known the prisoner for many years. Valois said that he had come down from Toronto seeking work as there was none to be had in the city. He had a job offered him, and was to see the the man last night, but as he was arrested he had been unable to keep his promise. He asked His Worship to give him a chance to find this man and if he did not he would get out of town in two hours. Magistrate Dumble told him that he would discharge him if he promised to leave the city.

Two Vagrants

John Powell answered to a similar charge but said that he was not a vagrant. He had been working in a shop at Woodstock, but owing to work becoming scarce he was discharged. Powell said he went to Toronto, but there appeared to be no chance for him there and meeting Valois, the latter suggested that they come on to Peterborough. He arrived here on Sunday and spent the intervening time in the city. Powell was given the same opportunity as Valois and was told that if he again appeared in court it would be the Central Prison for him.

Bruce Carlin did not have the necessary two "Williams" to pay his fine for being drunk in a public place early this morning. He did not know what he had done while inspirited with the care-dispelling stuff, but P. C. Adams said that he had found the man hopelessly drunk. Ten days was Carlin's only alternative.

PARTICULARS OF THE SUICIDE

Tragic End Of Robert Graham in a Lumber Camp

The suicide of Robert Graham, of Minden at W. S. Robinson's lumber camp in Anstruther, has caused a sensation in the north country, where he was widely known. Almost every lumberman who went north knew "Minden Bob" Graham, as he was generally called, and he was most popular with his fellow employees.

Further particulars have reached here concerning his tragic death. It appears that Graham had paid a visit to Gooderham on Thursday, and returned during the day, when the men were at work, away from the camp. Entering the sleeping room he sat down on one of the bunks and placing the muzzle of a .44 rifle in his mouth, pulled the trigger with his foot. The effect of the shot was terrible, the side of his head being blown away by the discharge.

The shot was heard by some of the men, who rushed in to find Graham dead.

The affair has cast a damper over the lumber camps.

Superstitions on Skin Diseases

Of all superstitious, the most foolish is the idea that when a rash or sore is healed and cured by means of an external remedy, it will "strike in" and do further harm. No reputable physician will give any countenance to such a notion. Skin diseases of every form, and especially eczema, salt rheum, scald head, etc., are promptly relieved and certainly cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

DAUGHTER OF JAIROS REHEARSAL

Chorus Work a Feature—Children Of St. John's Practise

A splendid rehearsal of Stainer's choral work, the "Daughter of Jairus," took place last night in St. John's School, when the largest turnout of orchestra and chorus met at 8 p.m. The chorus work will evidently be a great feature of the forthcoming performance.

Popular Cure for Croup

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, as a cure for croup, will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success. It is wonderfully prompt in relieving the cough, clearing the air passages and soothing the excited nerves. Many mothers who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on keep this great medicine promptly on hand for use in case of emergency.

Grand Officers Of The C.M.B.A.

Were Visiting Local Branch of The Society Last Night

The meeting of the C.M.B.A. in the T.A.S. hall was attended by a large number of the members. The occasion was the visit of three of the Grand officers of the Society. They were Hon. F R Latchford, Grand Solicitor, Ottawa; Mr. J. J. Beehan, Grand Secretary and Dr. Ryan, Grand Medical Adviser, of Kingston.

It was a friendly visit in the interests of the society and an event of special importance in the affairs of the C.M.B.A. in Peterborough. Rev Dr. O'Brien and Rev. Father MacDonell were present with the officers besides the members of the society.

MORE DEER ARE LEFT IN BURLEIGH

Hunters Didn't Get Them All—A Glee Club Organized

Examiner Special

Burleigh Falls, Dec. 11.—Only two weeks until Christmas and the snow gone.

The young people of this neighbourhood have organized a Glee Club which meets once a week at the homes of the members in turn. The last meeting was held at the home of Miss Hazel Walsh, who is organist of the Club. A couple of hours were very pleasantly spent, at the close of which several violin selections were given by Mr. E. Lemmon and Mr. W. Dunford.

Although the hunters were exceptionally lucky this fall the deer are not all dead yet, several having been seen on the Burleigh rocks since the close of the season, by parties looking up stray cattle.

The voters of this neighbourhood will have an opportunity of voting on Local Option at the coming election, as a bylaw to that effect has been passed by the council at its last meeting. It looks at present as if local option has a chance of carrying.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sanderson, of Lakefield are visiting friends in Burleigh.

A meeting of the Trustees of S. S. No. 1, Burleigh, will be held in the lower school on Thursday, Dec. 12.

A party of our young folks spent last Sunday with Mrs. P. Darling, of Douro.

KEENE HOCKEY TEAM IN THE RACE

Expect to Have Strong Team in The City Hockey League

Keene, Dec. 10.—(Special.) — At a meeting held on Thursday evening the hockey club was reorganized and the following officers elected for the coming season:

Honourary President — A. St. A. Smith.
Pres.—F. A. Eason.
Vice-Pres.—W. H. Bell.
Sec.-Treas.—A. B. Fee.
Captain—Jas. Dickson.
Manager—V. McCarthy.
Trainer—J. R. McIntyre.
Committee—F. A. Eason, W. H. Bell, Jas. Quinn, F. M. Dean, Leo Walsh.
Representatives to City League—Dr. W. H. McWilliams, F. M. Dean.

The boys expect to put a strong team on the ice this winter, and are hopeful of winning the city championship.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM CARTER

Keene, Dec. 10.—(Special.) — The death occurred on Monday afternoon at four o'clock of Mr. William Carter, in his 84th year. The deceased had been ill for several months, a general breakdown of his system having taken place, due to his extreme age. The late Mr. Carter was a lifelong resident of Otonabee, spending most of his life on his farm near Jermyn, removing a few years ago to Keene. His wife and one son, William, of Edmonton, Alta., survive him. Mr. Carter was a Liberal in politics, and a prominent member of the Methodist church.

No arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral, which will probably take place on Wednesday.

AWARDED FIRST PRIZE THIRD YEAR

Splendid Record For Messrs. Turner & Sons at Toronto Exhibition

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons to-day received word from Mr. J. O. Orr, manager and secretary of the Canadian National Exhibition that their firm had again been awarded first prize and diploma for their exhibit at the Toronto Fair this year. Mr. Orr also referred to it as the finest exhibit he had ever seen.

Messrs. Turner & Sons have only had exhibits for three years at the Toronto Exhibition and each year they have been awarded first prize for their display which speaks highly for the class of goods they manufacture.

ATTENTION!

Mr. Jas. McMartin Erecting One on His Property Below Locks Bridge

Odd Springs, Otonabee, is a growing settlement and the latest addition is a new store which is being erected on McMartin's corner by Mr. Jas. McMartin. The material for the building is now on the ground and the erection began to-day. The store will be a frame one and the proprietor intends having for sale groceries of all kinds, flour, feed, bread, etc. The corner is centrally situated for that district and in addition to the energies of Mr. McMartin, who is now the enterprising manager of the Otonabee Ferry, the store should prove a popular one.

A number of the residents in that vicinity are considering the proposal to request a post office, so that it is possible Mr. McMartin may have charge of one in the near future. Arrangements are also underway to have a blacksmith shop erected on the same corner and there is every possibility of a village springing up in Otonabee, which may soon become annexed to Peterborough.

Canadian Pacific Railway

Change in time commencing on Nov. 25th., the local train which formerly left Peterboro' at 8.00 will leave the C.P.R. depot at 7.56 a.m. until further notice. tf

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, and the glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

Chief Authorized to Have it Enforced in The City

In the report of the Council meeting of Monday night a matter was overlooked which may be of interest to some people in the city It is nothing more than the Fire Escape Bylaw, No 1306, passed on May 13, 1907

It was brought up by one of the aldermen, and, on motion, the Chief was authorized to see that it was enforced The bylaw is a long one, but is to the effect that the owner of every building in the city (except private dwellings) more than two storeys in height, the third of which has not more than one exit other than an elevator, and which third or any higher storey is occupied by ten or more persons at any one time, at all, within three months after the passing of this bylaw, make the necessary provisions for fire escapes A knowledge of this bylaw should be acquired, as ignorance of it may cost some people a few dollars later on

If the cough is dry and hard, if there is pain, soreness and tightness of the chest, if you have difficulty in getting your breath, you have reason to suppose that you have bronchitis. Lest it should become chronic or lead to serious lung trouble, do not delay the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, the most certain cure for bronchitis.

ATTRACTIVE LIGHT FOR OTONABEE POWER COMPANY

Placed in Front of Their Store On Simcoe Street

The Otonabee Power Company has recently placed a new sign over its office on Simcoe street. It is just west of the Kingan Hardware Company's store, and attracts the attention not only of passers-by on Simcoe street, but is also seen with advantage from George street. The colours are very prominent and attractive.

Are you well? Are you pale, weakly, depressed in spirits, melancholy, tired, nervous and irritable? Try Miller's Compound Iron Pills. Sold by W. Madill.

A Sumptuous Magazine

Though it makes no boast of being a Christmas number, being modestly dated December, there is no question that the greatest ten cents worth on the newsstands this season is "The Canadian Pictorial," which enters on its third volume with this issue. It contains forty-eight pages, illustrated more superbly and more lavishly than any previous issue of a publication that has regularly made for itself a unique position in the life of Canada. The cover, which is exceedingly attractive, shows a girl whose beauty has been the talk of a continent. Between this covers are pictures in three colours of a nature varied enough to suit the most exacting. Christmas cheer and Christmas topics are portrayed in abundance and valuable hints to those looking to the festive season are given. The first of December is the Queen's birthday, and a page about Her Majesty's home life is illustrated with an exquisite picture. News pictures are not lacking and current events of interest to Canadians are portrayed on a scale never before attempted in Canadian journalism. The publishers announce that, while the edition is limited only by the capacity of their presses, there is every indication that the supply will be exhausted early in the month. Ten cents a copy, One dollar a year. The Pictorial Publishing Company, 143 St. Peter street, Montreal.

Any subscriber to the Daily Examiner who pays any amount over $1.00 on his subscription to the Examiner will be given this magazine at the rate of 50c. per annum. Subscribe now. Sample copies at this office. An excellent Xmas present. The Examiner has the sole right to handle this magazine in Peterborough.

THE LATEST NEWS FROM VILLAGE OF APSLEY

Apsley, December 10. — The roads are in very poor condition for sleighing. Mick tried the runners on the Lakefield stage, but had to go back to the wheels.

Mrs. William Bullied of Lanswade, is very ill at present.

The last two or three cold nights have skinned over the lakes with a thin coat of ice, but they are not safe to travel on yet.

On Sunday Mr. Hugh Nesbitt, tempted by the nice looking surface of Loon Lake, concluded to have a spin over it on his bicycle. It was not long before the bicycle was at the bottom of the lake, and Hugh speeding for home on "shank's mare."

A kindly act was done by the men in Mr. Wiggs's camp at Jack's Lake, when a subscription was taken up to aid Mr. Cowley, who I mentioned in a former letter was laid up in Apsley with a badly cut foot. The sum of $25 was collected and sent to Mr. Cowsby, who appreciates the man's kindness all the more as the gift was unexpected, and he was also a stranger to almost everyone in the camp.

The Wonderful House Of One Hundred Years Hence

Architects Declare It Will Be a Magnificent Creation

ELECTRICITY PROMINENT

According to the predictions of architects and inventors, the house of 100 years from now will be a wonderful creation

Arts, crafts, science—all branches of commerce and industry — have made remarkable strides in the past century, and taking the developments of the past century as a criterion, it is almost impossible to predict what the house of 100 years from now will not have for "modern conveniences"

One "advanced" Boston contractor declares the houses of our great-great-grand-children will have summer in the winter time, slot machine theatre parties, grand opera and music by wire, and other astonishing modern improvements provided for the dust-proof, automatic-domestic service dwellings in which they will live

When the newly-weds of 100 years from now begin to look up a house they will probably inquire more particularly after the automatic amusement and labour-saving devices, the electrical cooking, heating and domestic-service devices and the state of the machinery for saving winter cold for summer use and summer heat for winter use

What is Foreshadowed

The house of a hundred years from now has been foreshadowed to a certain extent by an unique electrical house which H W. Hillman, a wealthy investor of Schenectady, N Y., has built, and by another equally wonderful electrical house recently erected in Paris by M Georgia Knap

These two dwellings have been ingeniously constructed on the principle of "you press the button, electricity does the rest," and are so far in advance of the ordinary dwelling of today that the advertised "modern improvements" seem crude in comparison

Just imagine for instance that you are a visitor going to call on M Knap at his villa in Paris You find the front gate securely locked, and you press the button to gain admittance If it be night a searchlight immediately beams down on you from somewhere behind the gate, and follows you, no matter which way you move

The gate unlocks itself and swings open, at the same time reminding you to be careful of the step The obliging searchlight throws its rays to show you the way, and at the front door you find your hostess already waiting to greet you

As you stand in the entrance hall a sudden vibratory motion around your feet indicates that the automatic door mat on which you have just stopped in cleaning your shoes While this interesting operation is going on you pick up the rubber mouthpiece of what appears to be a speaking tube and pass it lightly over the collar and sleeves of your coat and hem of your skirt This is really the vacuum dust remover which absorbs any particles of dust that may have gathered on your garments in the street In the house of the future dust will be barred most rigourously

M. Knap has demonstrated by his electrical house that the domestic problem is going to be almost entirely eliminated in the house of the future Electricity, properly applied, has already proven a most capable servant

The electric kitchen in the Hillman villa at Schenectady, N Y., is simplicity itself and gives a very fair idea of what the private kitchen of 100 years from now will be like It consists of a wooden table six feet long and three feet wide, equipped with seven regulating switches for turning the current on and off Three heats can be given—the maximum, medium, and minimum

In the morning the maid turns a switch in her room when she gets up, and by the time she is ready to descend to the kitchen the tea kettle and cereal-cooker are boiling, the electrical frying-pan and coffee-percolator are heated, and breakfast is almost ready The three-heat switches are used so that the cooked food can be kept warm until used

Listen to the Play

In the house of 100 years from now, if you are a guest for the evening and would like to attend the opera or one of the theatres without leaving your host's house, you go into the theatre room, where a few words to "central" and the dropping of a small coin in the slot metre puts you into telephonic and visual communication with the particular theatre asked for

On the screen of the periscope is reflected in miniature a perfect moving picture representation of the scene being enacted at that moment at the theatre, and from the megaphone mouth of the telephone alongside come the voices of the actors and singers, the music of the orchestra, and the applause of the audience

In brief, the house that is to come will have double walls, vacuum dusters, automatic-cooking range, self-operative electric lathery and scullery, front entrance periscope, searchlights, range finder and telephones, winter sun and winter garden, opera, theatre and concert room equipped with slot-metre consumptions with all the best theatres and concert halls in the city, and a music room connected with the best harmony distributing depots in town; will have a complete automatic domestic service; will be dust-proof and have all the latest devices for heating, cooking, and for ventilation —From predictions of architects and inventors

THE DEFENDANTS CLAIM FORGERY

Evidence to be Secured in Michigan For Use in Cobourg Case

An order was made by the Master-in-Chambers this morning to examine Chas. A. Kellog of Mount Pleasant, Mich., by commission, in the case of Mathew Shea against George and Alfred Harrington, of the county of Hastings The Harringtons are alleged to have given two instalment notes for $900 each to Sullivan Bros., of Mount Pleasant, who assigned them to Mathew Shea The Harringtons allege in further proof of the that still another one has been discounted with Kellog, who is the manager of a bank The trial was to have come off at Cobourg on the 16th, but may have to be postponed —Toronto Star

The Sullivan Bros connected with the case are well known in Peterborough, having imported a number of Percheron stallions here, many of which are still in this vicinity

DISMISSED BY THE JUDGE

Cavendish Case Did Not Go To The Jury

The case of William Haines was dismissed by His Honour Judge Weller at yesterday's session of the County Court. It was a jury case, but owing to the lack of evidence Judge Weller did not allow it to go to the jury. Haines was charged with having stolen a quantity of lumber and a few household effects from Mr. R. Bell of Cavendish, in which township both men reside. In the morning the evidence of two witnesses was received, but there was not a strong enough case presented, and His Honour dismissed it.

The members of the bar connected with the case were Mr. F. D. Kerr for the defendant, Mr. W. H. Moore for the prosecutor, and Crown Attorney Wood represented the Crown.

ENTERTAINED PICCOLO BAND

Pleasant Evening at Home of Mr. Armstrong, Sherbrooke Place

A pleasant event occurred at the residence of Mr. Wm. Armstrong, 3 Sherbrooke Place last night, when Mr. Armstrong entertained the piccolo band of which he is manager. A number of others were there and a pleasant time in games, amusement and dancing was spent. The piccolo band gave a number of selections between acts, which were very much enjoyed. Refreshments were served during the closing stages of the evening.

First Shipment Made Just One Hundred Years Ago

Examiner Special.

Pittsburg, Dec 12.—Just a hundred years ago the first shipment of anthracite ever made went from Plymouth, Luzerne County, to Columbia, Lancaster County, and a number of citizens of Plymouth are now arranging enthusiasm for a celebration of this heroic event Abijah Smith shipped the first cargo of the black diamonds in an ark, floating down the Susquehanna River The discovery by Jesse Fell of Wilkesbarre, about six months after this shipment, that the new fuel would burn in his grate with intense heat without an air blast caused many orders to come into Plymouth for fuel, and the chief business of the town ever since has been the mining and shipping of coal

ORGANIZATION ALREADY EXISTS

"Royal Templar" Answers Letter Written By "E. K." About Temperance League

Editor Examiner.

Dear Sir, — Permit one, through the columns of your valuable paper, to direct the attention of your correspondent signing "E. K.," and who who writes in the interest of the cause of temperance, to the fact that there already exists a temperance organization in this city. I refer to the Royal Templars of Temperance. This society has as its platform for work and its reason for being, the reclaiming of those who have fallen a prey to the appetite for strong drink, the saving of the young from the snares of the wine cup, and eventually the total legal prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes throughout the whole of our fair Dominion. The efforts of the society are even directed along lines of gospel teaching and in the spirit of the Divine Master. Surely this is a platform broad enough and serious enough and sufficiently far-reaching in its ultimate outlook to satisfy the most ardent temperance worker and advocate. A platform on which all religious denominations can join and all shades of political opinion work together for a common cause. The churches stand for temperance and mostly for total abstinence, and they have their rules of membership, and they have their leagues and guilds and brotherhoods, affording opportunity for young people to meet together and to do Christian and church work, and yet there seems a sort of disposition to keep clean of distinctive temperance work. Hence the room and the need for a distinctive organization taking up this feature of social and moral Reform.

Here is the nucleus for a great, progressive, Protestant temperance league, if you like; here are ready-made bylaws, rules, and usages for banding together, and methods of work suggested right along the lines presented by "E. K."

Dan Spence Council, No. 28, Royal Templars of Temperance has not had the sympathy and co-operation of the Christian people of Peterborough that it has a right to claim and expect. In union and co-operation there is strength and the best promise of success, and here is where all can unite.

I cordially second the proposition of "E. K." that something more ought to be done than is being done for the temperance cause in Peterborough, and I write this to say that Dan Spence Council is looking for just such thoughtful and energetic people as I take "E. K." to be. Come along and help to make this Council a power for good in this community.

Thanking you for space I remain, Mr. Editor,

Yours for the cause,
ROYAL TEMPLAR.

THE IDEAL CHARACTERS TREATED

Interesting Meeting of The Y.M.C.A. Debating Club

The regular meeting of the Y.M. C.A. Debating Club was held in the Y.M.C.A. last night, with the president, Mr. Welford Shier, in the chair. After the roll call Mr. Ray gave an interesting and exhaustive review of Current Events, dealing very effectively not only with local matters, but also with European and Asiatic questions.

The subject for the evening's discussion was "Ideal Characters," and was led by Mr. E. Bruce, who took as his "ideal character" the late Professor Grant, of Queen's College, Kingston. In the opening words Mr. Bruce pointed out that he had chosen a Canadian as his "ideal character," and after giving a brief sketch of his youth and early manhood, went at length with his impression of Canadian life and education.

This was followed by a reading of one of Thomas Carlyle's books, "Heros, and Hero Worship," by Mr. Cameron, who gave to that writer the position of an "ideal character."

Both orations were listened to with great interest by the large number present, and at the close a discussion, in which several took part, followed.

The next meeting of the club will be held on December 18, the programme to be announced later.

WEDDING BELLS.

ROSE-COOKE

Yesterday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock a quiet wedding took place at the George street Methodist church parsonage when Miss Annie Cooke of Peterborough was married to Mr. Wesley Rose, son of Mr. Jas Rose of Harvey street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. A. Pearson, the bride and groom being unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. Rose left on the 5.38 G.T.R. train for Toronto on their honeymoon trip, and on their return will reside with the groom's parents on Harvey street.

Superstitious on Skin Diseases

Of all superstitious, the most foolish is the idea that when a rash or sore is healed and cured by means of an external remedy, it will "strike in" and do further harm. No reputable physician will give any countenance to such a notion. Skin diseases of every form, and especially eczema, , salt rheum, scald head, etc., are promptly relieved and certainly cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

IRISH PEOPLE THRIFTY

SAVINGS GROW BUT LAWLESSNESS BLIGHTS COUNTRY.

Cost of Cattle Driving—Crime Is on the Increase—Trouble Anticipated Through Winter — Landlords Are Selling Their Property and Going Abroad—Hundreds Out of Work—Tillage Abandoned.

One reservoir of stored-up gold seems to have been overlooked in the recent crisis. This is Ireland. According to a return just issued by the Irish Department of Agriculture, not only are the savings of the people represented by the banking and Government statistics, higher than ever before, but more money was put away in 1906 than in any previous year.

The bank deposits on June 30 of this year amounted to $240,335,000, an increase compared with 1906 of $11,125,000. The postoffice savings banks deposits amounted to $53,185,000, an increase of $30,000. Government funds amounted to $195,955,000, an increase of $11,195,000.

Under the above four heads investments increased in twenty years from $324,750,000 to $501,955,000. Irish railway receipts in 1907 are also the highest on record.

A lawless winter seems to be in store for Ireland. The machinery of the law appears to be at a practical standstill and the police chiefs think that things will be worse before they are better. Cattle driving had spread throughout the country and the mischief done is so great that priests are preaching against lawlessness and urging the people not to take part in ranch-clearing.

Arrests of the offenders are futile, as it is impossible to secure a verdict. The authorities brought several batches of cattle drivers to Dublin, hoping to secure convictions by a metropolitan jury, but though the cases were proved and no defence was offered the juries always disagreed and the defendants were released on their own recognizances.

Hitherto the ranch-clearing campaign has induced about a score of graziers to surrender their farms, and on the other hand it has inflicted heavy expenses on the counties concerned in the shape of extra police taxes, while the compensation to be paid to the owners of cattle will run into thousands of pounds.

The country gentry are fast leaving. Landlords who sell their estates are almost invariably going to England and the Continent, and this throws many laborers and others out of employment. Fine mansions and houses in the country parts have been given over to small farmers who can only occupy a room or two. This has already been made plain to many who have purchased farms outright, and they have abandoned tillage as unprofitable, yet have not stocked their farms for want of capital. Industrial progress has been set back, as capitalists are afraid to invest in Ireland.

Gabbie—That's a queer sort of ring for you to be wearing. It isn't suitable for a man at all.

Lovett—Think not? Well, I tried it on a girl, and she didn't seem to think it suited her either.—Philadelphia Press.

Modern Progress.

Grandma—In my day women didn't fly around out of doors as they do now. They would sit at home and spin.

Gladys—But now they go out and spin much better if they have a good, fast auto.—Baltimore American.

THE ARCHDEACON OF P.E.I.

Praises Dr. Agnew's Heart Cure—Remarkable Testimony.

We, the undersigned, have been seriously troubled with valvular heart disease; have both had fainting spells upon the slightest extra exertion. Last April, when we both were unable to do any work of moment, we began using Dr. Agnew's Heart Cure, having no faith in it but hoping it might relieve. After taking six bottles we feel almost cured. We feel compelled to send this unsolicited testimonial, with the hope that others may be benefited as we have been. Gratefully yours, T. B. Reagh, Archdeacon P.E.I., and I. D. Reagh. (2)

HAD MYTHICAL MILLIONS.

Victims to Plausible Tales of Youthful Criminal.

A romantic story of mythical millions, and several other fortunes in estates in America and England, with large house properties, was told at Middlesboro', when Charles Edmundsen Nellis, 27 years of age, was sent to prison for twelve months on four charges of false pretences.

Chief Constable Riches said that the prisoner lived upon acquaintances for a considerable time, and had obtained a large sum of money from them on the pretense that a Liverpool aunt had left him $70,000. He had drawn up numerous documents, purporting to be wills, by which he said he inherited a fortune of $50,000,000 in America, an estate at Southampton, and house properties in Leeds.

Among other inheritances he spoke of were 84 blood horses, 24 milking cows, 3,380 hens, 49,990 pigeons, 2,590 ducks, and numerous suites of furniture. Nellis, in further documents, stated that he was heir to Sir Henry Nellis, and letters are alleged to have been signed by Lord Carnarvon, Lord Allendale, the King's secretaries, and other important personages.

Nellis had also been courting a Miss Lavinia Rayner, to whom, according to an alleged $125 special marriage license, he was "half married," the other part of the ceremony having to be performed at Leeds. Only that day, at 2.30, he willed her huge sums of money, and the parents of the young woman had consented to the marriage.

In passing sentence, the chairman of the bench described Nellis as an unmitigated scoundrel.

Lord Darnley's Romance.

Lord Darnley was at one time on the Stock Exchange, and for several years was connected with a big firm of port wine shippers. He has likewise been president of the Marylebone Cricket Club, but in recent years has descended from cricket to golf. He won his wife out in Australia, when in 1883 he took a cricketing team to the Antipodes. It seems that at one of the matches he lost his handkerchief, and the day being extremely hot, inquired of his friends if any of them had a spare handkerchief that he might borrow.

Immediately a very feminine handkerchief of delicate fabric was handed to him. It was a most acceptable offering on that hot day, and after the match he expressed a desire to thank the donor. An introduction to Miss Florence Morphy followed. She was the daughter of a Victoria magistrate, and governess to the younger children of Sir William J. Clark.

The acquaintance thus began ripened under the kindly chaperonage of Lady Clark, an engagement following which stood the test of a long absence in England, and then Ivo Bligh returned to Australia, claimed his bride, and bore her off in triumph.

Music For Prisoners.

The inmates of Wandsworth Prison, numbering over 1,000, have just had an experience which they are not likely to forget. The Brixton Oratorio Choir, consisting of 70 trained voices, visited the prison and sang for them selections from "St. Paul" and "Elijah." Miss Evelyn Wynne also gave her services, as did a professional instrumental quartette. It was a wonderful sight to see prisoners listening, straining forward to catch every note and word. The governor said there never had been such silence. The men almost seemed glued to their seats. It was last winter that the suggestion was made by Rev. A. J. Waldron, vicar of Brixton, that the choir should visit metropolitan prisons, and consent was first obtained for the choir to visit Brixton Prison. On that occasion the chaplain of the prison said the prisoners had never been so moved before. Prisoners who had before rebelled against all discipline and had maintained a stubborn demeanor were entirely softened. In the infirmary were several prisoners who were unable to be present, but who heard the music through the open windows. One old man said it seemed as if suddenly heaven had come to the prison. The warders at both prisons are eloquent in their praise of the innovation, and say it has brought a new hope into the whole prison world.

How Swell Women Dress.

Justice Grantham, at the Sussex Assizes, indulged in some strong remarks regarding the way in which "swell ladies of the land," as he termed them, defrauded poor tradespeople. "It was time," said the learned judge, "that many ladies who dressed so expensively were made to realize that they could not defraud tradespeople with contempt, and that by making false statements in order to obtain what they required they could be sent to prison. If this was more fully realised it would put a stop to a lot of false credit. Great advantages were taken by swell ladies of poor tradespeople. They went to various shops and ordered grand and expensive costumes for which they never intended to pay; consequently many poor tradespepole were absolutely robbed."

His Own Critic.

An actor who was "taken" while on the stage by a cinematograph was greatly pleased with the result. Talking about it to a prominent dramatic critic, he said:

"It was the most extraordinary experience I ever went through—actually to see myself acting."

"Now," replied the critic, 'you will understand what we have to put up with."

FAMOUS CLEARING HOUSE.

How Millions Are Handled In Famous Old Lombard Street.

In Lombard street, famous all the world over as the little narrow street of banks and bankers, the recent financial fluctuations have caused quite a flutter, and nowhere have the rise and fall in stocks been felt more keenly than at the London Bankers' Clearing House—that centre of the banking system where millions of money are dealt with daily.

The romantic history of the clearing house puts in the shade that of any other financial institution in London or the provinces. Its aim, as most people are aware, is to enable the different banks to reach a settlement every 24 hours. Every morning checks drawn upon all the other clearing houses are delivered from the different banks, and before they are despatched their amounts are entered in a book. Sitting at the desks of the clearing house are clerks belonging to all the banks interested. In the morning each clerk finds on his desk a pile of checks drawn upon his bank, and the amounts are checked. When this laborious process is finished the clerks of the different banks return to their headquarters.

The busiest time of the day (during which there are three clearings) comes just before four o'clock, when the "runners" rush in at the last moment with bundles of checks to be examined. Then comes the heavy task of arriving at a balance. Although nearly a hundred million pounds has been known to pass through the clearing house in the course of the day not a single farthing of it is in coin.

For the genesis of the clearing house you must go back to the year 1775, when a Mr. Irving, a clerk to Messrs. Fuller, suggested that a room should be hired where clerks from various banks could meet for the purpose of exchange. The ground floor of No. 7 Lombard street was chosen for the purpose, but with an increase of business the clearing house was removed in the year 1814 to No. 2 Lombard street. The joint stock banks were not admitted until the year 1854, but even now all the metropolitan institutions are not represented at the clearing house, and owing to the consolidation of the banking system of recent years the number of clearing banks represented is not more than eighteen. The bankers' bank is the Bank of England. Until a few years ago four private banks owned the clearing house. Since then a company has been formed, an equal number of shares being held by the banks concerned.

Year.
1870	£ 3,914,000,000
1885	5,511,000,000
1890	7,801,000,000
1901	9,561,000,000
1906	12,711,334,000

This scene of city bustle and excitement is situate at the end of Post-office court, which straggles out of Lombard street. In the busy hours of the afternoon you can get a glimpse of the clerks behind the swinging doors bending over their desks at high pressure. The "clearers" and the "runners" are hustling and sometimes wrangling together. But the whole system works as accurately as a machine, and often a million of money is interchanged in the space of a few minutes.

IN DAYS OF LONG AGO.

Hon. S. H. Blake Gives Some Reminiscences of the Past.

It is to be regretted that so interesting a speaker and writer as Hon. S. H. Blake could not be induced to write a book on the recollections of his youth and his impressions of men who occupied prominent places in politics, law and the church during the past forty or fifty years.

Mr. Blake gave some interesting reminiscences in an address to men at Toronto recently.

"It took us three days to go to London," he said, speaking of the days preceding the railways, the first of which entered Toronto in 1853. I remember driving in a great stage coach, a big thing on leathers, with great lights."

Some of Mr. Blake's anecdotes were highly humorous, and one of them suggests that sentiment in favor of church union was not strong in earlier days.

"My uncle," he said "was rector near London, and he was under the impression that the Methodists were doing a great deal of sheep stealing," that is, luring away members of the rector's flock. "Passing their church one day during a service, my uncle wondered if any of his parishoners were there, and entered to find out. He climbed to the gallery and the officiating minister spied him. 'Come down out of that, you hoary-headed sinner,' the preacher shouted to my uncle, 'and be converted.'

"It was marvellous," said Mr. Blake, "how speedily my uncle came down and climbed into his wagon."

Good Year For Traffic.

The season of navigation at the port of Montreal just closed, according to port statistics, may be regarded, on the whole, as having been satisfactory, especially in the passenger traffic it was the greatest season in the history of the St. Lawrence. The C. P. R. Atlantic liners had an increase of 33 per cent. and the Allan line 25 per cent., while the Dominion line vessels carried 7,000 more passengers than during the season of 1906, but on the whole the freight business from a steamship standpoint is declared to be not so satisfactory as the previous season, though the volume of traffic was larger.

From the opening of navigation up to Dec. 1 the number of seagoing vessels entering the port totalled 740, representing a tonnage of 1,934,475, as compared with 820 vessels and a tonnage of 1,973,223 in the like period of 1906, or a decrease of 80 vessels and 49,748 tons.

IMPORTANT RAILWAY OPENED.

La Tuque Branch Taps Country Rich in Pulpwood.

The official inauguration of the new La Tuque branch of the Quebec & Lake St. John Railway, a section which promises to develop into one of the most important divisions of the road, took place recently. A special train conveying the directors of the road, and a large number of invited guests, left Quebec for La Tuque, the head of the branch.

Among those who attended the opening of the road were a number of the Provincial Ministers, the Mayor of Quebec, and a large delegation of leading citizens and railway officials. At La Tuque the guests were entertained at dinner, after which a number of interesting speeches were made, and the great value which the new branch would prove to the St. Maurice Valley and the development of this portion of the province which was sure to follow its opening were pointed out.

The new branch has been under construction for the past three years. It is some forty miles in length, and owing to the rugged country through which it passes has been expensive to build. The quantity of rock-cutting has been over 370,000 yards, and of earth 1,200,000 yards. The line has been most substantially built, all the bridges being of steel. Commodious stations and freight sheds have been built, and everything done to make the line first-class in every way. Magnificent scenery marks the route, especially in the River Jeannette Valley and Lakes Wayagamack and Little Wayagamack, the "Horseshoe." At the "Horseshoe" the road runs under the line of the Transcontinental Railway, a remarkable piece of engineering, the two roads running parallel to each other on the upper and lower levels of mountain side for some miles.

Material for the transcontinental is now being brought over the new line, and it is expected that the completion of this section of the great road will be greatly hastened as a result. At La Tuque there is immense water power, and this has been purchased by one of the greatest paper making companies in the world, who will spend half a million dollars within the next three years.

Above La Tuque Falls the St. Maurice widens out to half a mile and there are about ten thousand miles of spruce timber limits on the upper river and its tributaries, and this vast territory is undoubtedly the richest spruce timber country in the world. Even now the lumbering operations of the St. Maurice employ thousands of men, and there seems no reason why the region should not become the home of the paper industry.

There are great expectations in Quebec as to the benefits which are likely to flow to that city from the new branch line. It runs from the main line of the Lake St. John road on the River Batiscan to La Tuque on the St. Maurice, and gives to Quebec control of the St. Maurice territory, as the main line gives control of the Saguenay. These two arms, stretching east and west, make tributary to this city the whole of the northern half of the Province of Quebec.

He Will Do That.

"Yes," said the voluble crank, "I used to be as bad as you, but I made up my mind to quit smoking and drinking, and I did it."

"Indeed?" remarked Manley, "I guess a man who can quit smoking and drinking could quit almost anything"—

"Except talking about it."

YOU CAN EASILY OPERATE THIS TYPEWRITER YOURSELF

Don't worry you correspondent.

Don't write him anything by hand that takes him time to make out—that may leave him in doubt, that he can't easily read.

And don't fill out legal pap rs or card memos—or make out accounts or hotel menus in your own hand writing.

It looks bad—reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and sometimes antagonizes.

You can write out your letters—make out an estimate—make out your accounts, or hotel menus—or do any kind of writing you need, on any kind, size or thickness of paper, and spa any way you want on

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer.

For you can easily learn with a little practice to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly as an expert operator on the Oliver. Because the Oliver is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 50% more durable than any other typewriter, because it has about 50% less wearing points than most other typewriters.

50% easier to write with than those other complicated, intricate machines that require "hammering"—technical knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate.

These machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance policies, or odd-size documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring expert to operate.

You can adjust the Oliver to any reasonable space—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clear.

For the Oliver is the typewriter for the doctor, the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant, the hotel proprietor—or any man that does his own writing.

The Following Letter Speaks For Itself

Peterborough, Nov. 1st, 1907.

W. G. MORROW, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. B. STRATTON.

HOME-MADE MEDICINE

Said to Relieve Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;
One ounce Compound Salsatone;
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;
Mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime, is stated by a prominent physician to give most excellent results in kidney or urinary afflictions, and also in rheumatism and sciatica. The mixture opens the clogged pores of the kidneys, thus assisting them in their work of filtering all waste and poisonous matter from the blood, and expels these in the urine. To allow this poisonous matter to remain means that it will settle in the muscular tissues or joints, and cause the untold misery known as rheumatism.

The mixture is composed of harmless vegetable ingredients which can be purchased at any good drug store, and mixed at home.

Anyone suffering from any of these afflictions will no doubt be pleased to learn of so simple and highly recommended remedy.

The Maid of Arts

By M. C. SANFORD.

Copyrighted, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

Unbroken blue the sky and sea, shifting greens and browns the shore. Along the deserted beach and through the empty streets Autumn swished her rustling skirts with no one to heed her passing—no one, at least, save a solitary man who, having escaped at length from the stern dictates of "the law," had come to Surfside for a few weeks' freedom. Leaning over the fence which skirted the path around the rocky coast, he gazed dreamily out to sea, following the ragged outline of the shore and breathing in the salt of the ocean with the sweetness of the earth beneath him.

Suddenly a fresh cut in the weather worn rail caught his eye. "H. T., W., '04!" Some one beside himself had evidently sought out the shore late in the season. "W.—'04?" he queried. "Wellesley!" He had it! For was not a knife blade broken off half short in the wood, an indisputable evidence of woman's work?

"So," he mused, "I am not to be alone with the 'natives' and nature, after all." He started to move on. Again he was arrested, this time by a small, bright object at his feet. It proved to be a Wellesley class pin.

"Lost it while she was carving her name with that girl's knife, I s'pose," Van Dyke argued to himself, as was his legal habit, fastening the pin meanwhile to his vest beneath his own Harvard pin.

Strolling on, he renewed his acquaintance with one after another of the favorite haunts of his boyhood—"swallow's cave," the rock that boomed like a cannon at high tide and innumerable cozy retreats to be gained by careful climbing over the chaos of big bowlders on the cliffs. He whistled like a boy as he went and sang snatches of the college songs so fresh in his heart. At last, in utter abandonment, he curled up in the lee of an overhanging rock and, soothed by the lull of the waves and the minor wail of the October wind, fell asleep.

He was awakened in a curious manner. Opening his eyes, he found them covered with a soft transparent something that wrinkled when he winked. He raised his hand to remove it and gazed in astonishment upon his sudden acquisition of a woman's handkerchief. A monogram was embroidered in one corner. His logical mind deciphered it in a flash with little expenditure of eye-strain.

"Exhibit 'C,'" he murmured, jumping up eagerly. "Now, here's hoping for the lady herself!"

But the most searching scrutiny of rocky "nests" and niches failed to discover her. Indeed, after several days of faithful explorations Van Dyke began to think his lady of the monograms a teasing myth.

Nevertheless he would have continued to hope for her realization if a letter from his sister had not put a cruel end to his romance.

"Dear Richard," it ran, "I have just learned that Helen Tudor, a college friend of mine, is staying at Surfside with her mother. She's a very clever girl; has just written a remarkable thesis on some learned subject and got an A. M. degree. You ought to like her. She's your kind. Be sure to look her up. I've written her you're going to. She's staying at the Sea Cliff."

That dished the whole thing. "His kind," indeed! He abominated a "blue-stocking." So he fought shy of the Sea Cliff and ceased to look for "H. T., W., '04," in his daily rambles.

But with the proverbial irony accredited to her Dame Fate as soon as she perceived Richard's back turned upon her bobbed up in front of him most unexpectedly, or, to be strictly accurate, Richard to his own astonishment bobbed up in front of her.

With characteristic alacrity he had taken a handspring over a jutting rock and landed in a secluded niche below. His sudden appearance so frightened the young person curled up in it that she dropped her book into a pool of water.

"I beg your pardon," Richard blurted out. "Let me get it for you." ("It's probably dry enough to be proof against a wetting" was his mental comment.) "I hope it isn't injured fatally," he added aloud, handing the water soaked volume to its owner, who, he was surprised to notice, was a dimpled, rosy cheeked young woman with mischievous eyes.

"Goodness, I hope not!" was her emphatic reply. "I couldn't go to sleep tonight if I didn't find out how the story ended."

"Fiction?" queried Richard cautiously.

"Yes, of course. What else does one read on a vacation?"

Now, here was an incongruity to ponder over—he hadn't fancied that "H. T., W., '04," would like fiction. But he would not be misled. "On a vacation," she had said. Doubtless the rest of the year she gave up to more solid literary accomplishments.

Realizing that he was expected to say something, although he had quite forgotten that her last remark had been in the form of a question, Richard braced himself for the ordeal.

"This is my favorite haunt," he announced, unconscious of displaying any air of proprietorship, as he established himself comfortably beside her.

The girl smiled mysteriously.

"Yes, I judged so," she answered simply.

"Why, how did you guess?" asked Richard in surprise. "I've never seen you here before."

"But I've seen you."

He gathered his wits together at this. It made no difference that she was pretty and that she was fond of love stories, like other girls—he knew her real self behind this mask of coquetry. She was really a haughty, overbearing, pedantic person with a string of academic degrees tacked on to her name. He would round up this little matter without any sentimental nonsense.

"Oh, yes," he said in his dignified, legal manner. "You probably refer to the day you dropped your handkerchief on my face. Here it is. I am glad to be able to return it to you. And here is your college pin also. I found it near the fence where you had been carving your initials."

He handed both souvenirs to her with a cold solemnity he had difficulty in convincing himself was genuine.

The girl looked at the pin carefully, glanced up at Richard a moment in perplexity and then burst out laughing.

"Thank you," she said finally, recovering herself. "But why do you imagine the pin belongs to me?"

Richard explained with elaborate pride how he had traced the monogram on the fence, the pin and the handkerchief.

"I cannot be mistaken, Miss Tudor," he finished confidently. "You see, I discovered your identity some time ago. You did carve the initials on the fence, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"And you did drop the handkerchief over my eyes?"

"It blew out of my hand."

"Same thing. And you are stopping at the Sea Cliff, aren't you?"

"Yes."

Richard made a gesture expressive of the futility of stating further evidence.

The girl made an effort to check her amusement.

"I will take up your points in sequence," she announced, with mock gravity, looking at him with a frankness so charming that he forgot his dislike of her and smiled back indulgently.

"First, I did carve the initials in the fence, but they were the initials of the girl who was with me; second, it was she who lost the pin, and, third, the initials on the handkerchief are not H. T."

"Then you are not Helen Tudor?" exclaimed Richard, with such evident relief that the girl burst out laughing again. "And you don't write clever theses and tack A. M.'s on to your name?"

The girl shook her head.

Richard took up her handkerchief, which was lying in her lap.

"It certainly looks like H. T. to me," he said, examining the monogram closely. "I am not yet convinced."

The girl handed him the water soaked novel, open at the fly leaf.

"To Theodora Harnett," he read aloud.

He took out his pencil and began scribbling beneath the inscription. The girl looked over his shoulder.

"Theodora, I adore you"— That was as far as his foolishness had a chance to go, for in a flash Theodora had snatched the book from his hands and sped like a deer over the rocks.

"Come back tomorrow," he called, "and tell me how the story ends."

And she did—and not only that day, but the next and the next, until the end of their own story, like that in the water soaked novel, came with the asking of a question and an answer short, but sweet.

"But, oh, how near you came to marrying H. T., didn't you, Richard?" laughed Theodora bewitchingly. "Well, she's welcome to all the A. M.'s and other degrees she deserves. I'm happy with just 'T. D.'"

"There's one degree that's yours by nature, little 'maid of arts,'" said Richard lovingly. "Cupid must have conferred it on you at your christening. It isn't acquired from books, not even from water soaked novels."

Are You Left Eared?

"Left eared?" said the young lady from the telephone exchange.

She did not know, so he tested her, finding, sure enough, that her left ear was a little the neater of the two.

"It is a natural thing," he said. "You girls use the left ear exclusively all day long in your telephone work, and the right ear has nothing to do; hence the left, like a muscle, develops, the right atrophies.

Only One.

"At the unveiling of Rodin's bust of Henley in Westminster abbey," said a New York editor, "a number of good stories were told about the great poet.

"H. G. Wells praised Henley's conduct of the New Review. Of course this periodical failed, yet it was undoubtedly the best edited magazine of the last century. In it Henley introduced to the world new writers of such distinction as Joseph Conrad, Kenneth Grahame, W. B. Yeats, Mr. Wells himself and so on. One day as Mr. Wells and Henley stood in the office of the magazine discussing rather sadly its gloomy prospects a funeral went by with slow pace. Henley leaned out of the window and looked at the funeral anxiously. Then he turned to his companion and said, with a worried frown:

"'Can that be our subscriber?'"

A Venerable Church.

The old Church of St. Pierre, at Montmartre, which has been closed for the last six years for repairs, is about to be re-opened for public worship. It is the oldest church in Paris, says The Dundee Advertiser, having been built in the twelfth century by Louis VI. and his Queen, Alix of Savoy. It served as chapel to a Benedictine convent, also founded by the same King—a "royal" convent, the abbesses of which were appointed by the King, instead of being elected by the nuns. Henri IV. gave the post to one of his mistresses, Marguerite Louise d'Orleans, half-sister of the "Grande Mademoiselle," who took refuge in the Abbaye when separated from her husband in 1675, but the historian relates that "her conduct did not edify the establishment."

Genuine.

A woman went to a fancier's to purchase a bird. She was in search of a good singer, and several were recommended to her.

"But," she said, "they seem to be marked very strangely. Are they pure canaries?"

"Pure!" cried the proprietor of the shop. "Pure! Why, ma'am, they're as pure as they make 'em. I raised them 'ere birds from canary seed."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Invalid Ladies
This Is For You.

There are thousands of females who suffer untold miseries common to their sex.

This is largely due to the peculiar habits of life and fashion, and the improper training of girlhood. Then, too, the physical changes that mark the three eras of womanhood (the maiden, the wife, and the mother) have much to do with her sufferings, most of which are endured in silence, unknown by even the family physician and most intimate friends.

To all such whose hollow cheeks, pale faces, sunken eyes and feeble footsteps, indicate nervousness, palpitation of the heart, weak, faint and dizzy spells, we would earnestly recommend a course of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. Jos. Sharp, Brighton, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with palpitation of the heart, weak spells and nervous trouble, and found no relief until advised to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I got one box and that helped me so much I sent and got five more. I am now cured completely."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Foot-Hugging Foot-rites

They Hug the Feet

Improvement Number Thirteen

A shoe that's built with a Plumb-Line Level Heel and Sole, balanced on precisely the same level as the heel and ball of the foot and with an artistic arch that follows the curved arch line of the foot with watch-like accuracy, is pretty apt to hug the bottom of the foot.

A shoe that's built with a Heel-Comforting Ball and Socket Counter that clings around the heel like the socket of the shoulder envelopes the arm-ball, is pretty apt to hug the heel and back of the foot.

A shoe that's built with a Hurtless Instep Seam, modeled the exact shape of the foot's instep and set at the correct point on the instep, is pretty apt to make the shoe hug the foot's instep.

A shoe that's moulded over Foot-Sculptured Lasts, which give the shoe precisely the same inside shape as the shape of the foot which inhabits it, is pretty apt to make the shoe hug the foot snugly on the outside at every point of contact.

And a shoe made of "Normal Calf," a leather almost as soft and supple as the live calf's skin, is more apt to hug the foot than a coarser leather. Kid gloves hug the hand; buckskins don't.

This is how Foot-rites are built and that is why Foot-rites hug the feet. No other shoe was ever constructed on scientific plans and specifications to insure a snug fit for every foot.

If you've had trouble with too loose fitting shoes that look hobnail, or too tight fitting shoes that look like inflated frogs and cause corns, bunions, blisters and all sorts of foot troubles, call on the Foot-rite retailer in your town. Let him fit you with a pair of Foot-rites. Don't do the fitting yourself. Let him do it. He's an expert fitter and knows best what size and shape will fit you. He'll give you a little shoe fitting astonishment. He'll show you a shoe without a wrinkle in vamp or waist, because Foot-rites are wrinkleless. He'll show you a shoe that won't rub or pinch corns and things on the feet. He'll show you a shoe that hugs the feet at every point, as gently, though snugly as silk socks. Every pair Goodyear Welted—which gives flexibility and comfort.

Anywhere in America, Canada or Great Britain—$4.00, $5.00 and $6.00.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST

HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for (not necessarily adjoining), the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such homesteader residing with the father (or mother).

(3) If the father has permanently abandoned the farm owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

The homesteader is required to give notice to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

PUMPING IN EMIGRANTS

SALVATION ARMY TO BRING OUT RECORD NUMBER NEXT YEAR.

Colonel Lamb Gives Some Details of the Project—Steady Demand For Men In the Dominion—No Traces of Unemployment In the East—Statements About Prejudices Are Exaggerated.

The importance of the Salvation Army as a factor in procuring suitable emigrants for Canada is recognized and appreciated both in England and the Dominion. During the last four years forty thousand men, women, and children have sailed for this great land of opportunity and endeavor under the auspices of this organization, and already preparations on an increased scale are being made for handling what is expected to be a record number of emigrants next year.

Colonel David C. Lamb, head of the Salvation Army's emigration department, has recently returned to London from Canada. This visit—the fourth he has paid to the Dominion—was made for the purpose of still further improving the system of handling the emigrants sent out, and completing plans for the work of next season.

Although only absent from England six weeks, Colonel Lamb traveled nearly sixteen thousand miles — an average of four hundred miles a day. During this rapid transit he had opportunities of conferring with Earl Grey, the Governor-General, with the Premiers of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia, and with Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior, all of whom are greatly interested in the Salvation Army's emigration scheme.

Want Skilled Labor.

The colonel stated that he found no traces of unemployment in the cities of the east. "In fact," he continued, "I found a steady demand for men. No man who is able-bodied and willing to work at whatever comes along need be unemployed either in the east or in the west."

"Is there much demand for skilled labor?"

"There was until quite lately, but the financial stringency which is almost universal at present has caused a falling off in the demand for this class of labor. I notice that several manufacturing concerns have been compelled to slightly reduce their staffs, but this condition of affairs is, I believe, transitory."

"Are the prospects good for continuous work at railway construction camps during the winter and spring, and what points should emigrants be chiefly directed to?"

To Go to Camps.

"The supply is unequal to the demand, and this demand will continue through the winter both for lumber and railway camps. As to what points emigrants should be directed I could not make any definite statement. In the case of our own parties we are governed entirely by circumstances. Men who are willing to go to the camps are met at the port of landing by our officials, who are in close touch with the sources of demand, and advise accordingly. While at a particular period Winnipeg may be congested, another centre will be able to dispose of all the men who come along. These centres of demand shift, and it is one of the advantages of our system that we direct the supply of labor to where it is required. During my visit I went into the question of winter labor in the camps, and acquired much useful information on which we shall act."

"Does the Salvation Army send emigrants to the Maritime Provinces, or does it confine its attention to Ontario and the western provinces?" was the next query.

Vacuum In the East.

"As I have just stated," replied Colonel Lamb, "we send our emigrants to wherever there are openings. This year we did much for the Maritime Provinces, and in the coming year it is our intention to do more. The filling up of the west naturally creates a vacuum in the east. That vacuum we help to fill. Of course, we study the wishes of the emigrants. When I am asked to advise whether a man should go west or remain in the east, I reply: 'If you want to make money go to the west. If you want to have a comfortable home, where social conditions are very similar to those of England, and where your children can be brought up and educated as well as they could be in the Old Country, settle down in the east. Canada is so large, and the opportunities so many and varied that really the wishes of all can be more or less gratified."

"I understand that the Salvation Army has made arrangements with the Government of British Columbia to send out emigrants to that province. How many do you intend sending there during the coming season?"

Through Rate to Vancouver.

"Between six and eight thousand. The first party sails on Feb. 20. We are giving a through rate to Vancouver, covering food and bed, thus giving the third-class passenger conveniences which were previously confined to the first."

"Are there not difficulties in preventing men from being engaged for work en route?"

"Why should there be? The parties will travel over the continent to Vancouver on special trains, accompanied by our own officials. If any of the party want to leave before the end of the journey they can do so, although I fail to see what advantage they will gain. We are sending to the Pacific Coast province emigrants who are willing to go there, and in so doing we are merely extending the scope of our work. No, there is no reason to anticipate any leakage of that nature."

"Do you regard the ratio of the cost of living as compared with current wages as leaving a better margin in Canada than in the United Kingdom—taking, of course, into consideration the point that some trades are idle in winter?"

Wages Are Double.

"I do. Generally speaking wages in Canada are double those in the Old Country. The cost of living in the Dominion is roughly 25 per cent. more than that of the Old Country, and the standard of living is 10 per cent. better. This means that from 100 per cent. better wage gained, 35 per cent. only has to be deducted for increased cost of living, leaving the substantial margin of 65 per cent. over that of the Old Country. Regarding the few trades that are idle during the severe part of the winter, the wages made in the other part of the year are such that this margin is maintained."

"What proportion of the emigrants sent out by the Salvation Army receive assisted passages?"

"Of the forty thousand emigrants sent out by us this year about eight thousand, or 20 per cent., received assistance."

"Did you note the remarks recently made by Mr. Bruce Walker, Dominion superintendent of emigration in London, regarding philanthropic societies and the intention of the Canadian Government to exercise greater discrimination in the class of emigrants accepted?" the colonel was asked.

Need For Discrimination.

"Yes," replied Colonel Lamb, "and I am pleased with Mr. Walker's remarks. We ourselves have emphasized to the Government the necessity of greater discrimination. As a proof of the good class of emigrants sent out by the Salvation Army, I may mention that the Dominion Government accepts our medical certificates without question and in entirety. Another fact that speaks well for the class of emigrants sent out under our jurisdiction is, that out of the two thousand families receiving assisted passages only 100 cases have been unable to meet their financial obligations to us. This year we anticipated receiving at the most in repayment of loans $10,000. We actually received $11,000, an eloquent testimony to the character of the emigrants and to the resources of Canada.

"Statements have been made," remarked our representative, "that in Canada Englishmen, more particularly Londoners, are not welcomed. Is there any truth in these statements?"

"Little, if any," replied Colonel Lamb. "These statements are very much exaggerated. Of course, the natural assurance of the Londoner brings him into conflict with the Canadian, particularly the westerner, who himself is not by any means devoid of self-assertion. However, when the Englishman and the Canadian get to know each other, any ill-feelings between them quickly subside."—"Canada."

"OUR NATIONAL OUTFIT."

Canada Has All the Requirements For Nation-Building.

Hon. Geo. W. Ross recently addressed the Caledonian Society of Montreal on "Our National Outfit," at the society's club rooms. At the outset, Mr. Ross told of the influence Scottish men and Scottish character had on our national life. From earliest times Scotchmen had done much to shape our destiny, and on the pages of our history the most famous names are those of the Scotch. One of the essentials of a great nation's structure is an elastic constitution. We have that, and under our flag French and English, Catholic and Protestant, live and work harmoniously together. We have within our borders descendants of four or five of the great nations of the world. England has given her sturdy, stubborn sons; Scotland her strongest and best; Ireland, France and Germany all contribute their sons and daughters, and the whole forms a strong, virile people. We are beginning the 20th century with the same population as the United States began the 19th century. "Will history repeat itself?" asked Mr. Ross, and then in a burst of eloquence he stated that it was already doing so, and that our industries, our products of forest and farm, and our best national life were that of a great nation. We have spent 114 millions on canals and 255 millions on our railroads, "and this was spent," declared Mr. Ross, "at a time when we were young, but our fathers had faith in this Canada of ours. We must give our best attention to technical education," declared the speaker "for it is by means of this that Germany has forged to the front of late years. With 1,000,000 pupils in our schools and with our thousands of university men we ought to create an atmosphere for a better and purer public life." Mr. Ross contended that national greatness could not be attained unless we had the Anglo-Saxon genius for self-government. This instinct we possessed, for our history showed that our present Government was the result of years of struggle, and only came to us because our statesmen dreamed dreams and saw visions, and strove for the fulfilment of these dreams. They saw in a vision the prairies peopled, canals cut, railroads running, and our people prosperous. "And," continued Mr. Ross amid an outburst of applause, "there will come a day when our commerce shall girdle the earth, and there shall be no port at which our ships will not call and our products enter. Just as to-day the ports of the C.P.R. are not Halifax and Vancouver, but Yokohama and Liverpool, so the day will come when our all-red route shall encircle the world."

In conclusion, the speaker urged upon the Canadians to preserve for the nation and for future generations the Plains of Abraham, which Mr. Ross called the birthplace of our national life.

Large Timber Wolf Shot.

The largest wolf ever shot in the North country was secured by Mr. R. Hand, proprietor of the Imperial Hotel, of Wabigoon, while hunting on the range of mountains back of Wabigoon Lake. It was an immense timber wolf of the Russian species, and measured six feet from head of nose to tip of tail. His powerful jaws were thickly studded with prodigious teeth and fangs, which gripped together like the sections of a combination lock.

Unaided.

Dr. Slicer—Shocking! This paper says that 8,000 people died lacking medical services last year. Mrs. Slicer—Well, well! You wouldn't think that possible, would you?—Cleveland Leader.

A COUGH COLD IS DANGEROUS.

There are different kinds of colds, and various ways in which they affect different people. Some constitutions will throw off a light cold, while to others it will stick tenaciously. There is one kind—the kind accompanied by a cough, the kind that turns to bronchitis, the kind that ends in consumption — that should never be neglected.

Many a life history would read different if, on the first appearance of a cough, it had been remedied with

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

This syrup contains all the virtues of the "Norway Pine Tree," combined with Wild Cherry Bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks.

Mrs. E. S. Akerly, Akerly, N.B., writes: "My little boy had such a bad cough he could not sleep at nights. I tried several remedies but nothing seemed to relieve him until I got Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. From the first few doses he commenced to improve, and when he had taken one bottle he was completely cured."

Be careful in purchasing to see that you get the genuine Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark. Price 25 cts.

"Fashion-Craft"

The Artistic View Point

¶ Rightly or wrongly "Fashion Craft" believes that its salesmen should be just as hard to please as its most fastidious customers.

¶ That is, none but men trained in clothes-knowledge can sell "Fashion Craft" clothes.

¶ They must understand not only Fit, which is elementary knowledge, but color effect and pattern effect, so that their taste and judgement is used to the buyer's interest.

¶ Think what this means ---helping the customer to choose and not forcing him to buy.

The Commecial View Point

¶ "Fashion Craft" business suits include fine English Worsteds, Saxonies and Cheviots, in ample variety from $15 to $30.

¶ The $15 suit has $15 worth of substantial wearing value and the appearance of higher priced garments.

¶ Every suit at whatever price is intended to emphasize one fact, that the "Fashion Craft" Clothing is a distinct type and that the wearer is getting the best a custom tailor can do--- plus "Fashion Craft" distinction.

Synopsis Of Canadian North-West HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-west Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homestead upon by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

Homestead Duties.—A settler who has been granted an entry for a homestead is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of this Act, as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Application for patent should be made at the end of three years, before the Local Agent, Sub-Agent or the Homestead Inspector.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of his intention to do so.

WOMAN'S QUICK WIT.

Prevented Landslide From Causing Disastrous Train Wreck.

Lancaster, Pa., Dec. 12.—The tracks of the Columbia & Port Deposit R.R. were covered by a gigantic landslide yesterday for a distance of 500 feet at Fishing Creek, and a disastrous wreck was averted by the quick wit of a woman. Mrs. Elmer St. Clair, wife of a trackwalker, was in her home nearby when she heard a terrific rumble and looking out saw what had occurred.

She locked her children in the house and flagged the first train that came along, which happened to be a freight. The crew then flagged two passenger trains, which, combined, had over 200 persons aboard.

JAP JOURNALS CRITICAL.

But Canada's Wishes Regarding Emigration Will Be Respected.

Tokio, Dec. 12.—Rodolphe Lemieux, the Canadian Postmaster-General and Minister of Labor, who has been in Japan since the middle of November for the purpose of negotiating, if possible, a modus vivendi between Japan and Canada in regard to immigration, will return to Canada shortly. The negotiations have been conducted without a formal agreement or exchange of memoranda, but with an understanding similar to that between Japan and the United States.

The newspapers are full of rumors about the latter. Some of the papers state that regulations will be enforced restricting the emigration from Japan to so-called student-laborers. The more reliable journals are of the opinion that the announcement of stricter control of emigration on the part of Japan is assured.

As an offset to the reluctance of the United States and Canada to receive Japanese immigrants comes the news of successful negotiations with Brazil, which welcomes the Japanese.

Reductions have been made in the budget resolutions as affecting the navy to the amount of $15,000,000, and as regards other departments to the amount of $5,000,000. In connection with this it is learned that construction at the Kure and Yokosuka dockyards is at an absolute standstill. It is stated that the outlay in the repairing of thirteen warships taken from the Russians was equivalent to the cost of three first-class battleships, while the result is a preponderance of ineffective ships in the navy.

WILL SUPPRESS PIRACY.

British Warships Are Patrolling Chinese Waters.

Pekin, Dec. 12.—Great Britain, on the third of this month, assigned four more warships to police the West River, and yesterday ten vessels under the command of Vice-Admiral Sir Arthur Moore, are patrolling 150 miles of the river, to the limit of the Wuchou concession.

Great Britain is prepared to take whatever steps may be necessary if China does not suppress the piracy, to protect shipping on the river, and she has notified the Chinese Foreign Board that she will patrol the river until the Chinese police boats are under the administration of the Imperial customs department.

This is the first time since 1900 that Great Britain has undertaken such military measures in China.

A WANDERING MONARCH.

Lord Curzon's View of the Coming Imperialism.

London, Dec. 12.—(C. A. P.)—Lord Curzon, speaking on true Imperialism at Birmingham, said he looked forward to the time when the sovereign would visit the dominions and personally hold court at Calcutta or Quebec. The capital would never leave London, but there was no stationary obligation on the crown.

The Daily Graphic, apropos of the Irish deputation to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, opposes the all-red route on the ground that once the policy of using the taxpayers' money to subsidize private interests is sanctioned, there is no limit to the extensions which may be demanded. No more can be said against the Irishmen's scheme than against the whole idea.

Etiquette of Divorce.

London, Dec. 12.—The breach of promise suit brought by Mrs. Mabel Louise Atherton against Capt. John Yarde-Buller came to a rapid conclusion yesterday. The plaintiff is the divorced wife of Col. Thomas Atherton. When Col. Atherton began divorce proceedings the co-respondent named was Capt. John Yarde-Buller, son and heir of Lord Churston and the defendant in yesterday's action.

Mrs. Atherton's counsel explained that his client only wished to establish the fact of Capt. Yarde-Buller's promise to marry her after the decree of divorce should be made absolute.

Mr. Justice Darling pointed out that it had been admitted the promise had been made while Mrs. Atherton was a married woman. There were cases now before the courts raising the point as to whether such a promise was good. He would express his own opinion on this point, he said, and would enter judgment for Mrs. Atherton with costs, but without damages.

Freight Train Broke Down.

Kingston, Dec. 12.—A G. T. R. freight train broke down one mile west of Collins Bay about 3 o'clock yesterday morning and blocked traffic both east and west.—It is stated that an axle broke, and cars were scattered across the track.

Ten cars blocked the line from fence to fence. There were four cars of wheat, four of pork, one of package freight and one of lumber. Their contents were badly scattered. At 10 o'clock one track was shifted sufficiently to allow passenger trains to pass. No one was injured.

Retired Farmer's Fatal Fall.

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 12.—From injuries received by falling into a cellar at his home in Prescott, George Davison, a retired farmer, died yesterday in the Brockville Hospital. He was hurt internally and there was no hope from the beginning. He was 83 years of age and leaves one son. The body was taken to Prescott for [illegible]

KING OSCAR LIES IN STATE.

Condition of Dowager Queen Sophia Causes Much Anxiety.

Stockholm, Dec. 12.—The body of the late King Oscar was removed from the palace and taken to the chapel yesterday morning, where it will lie in state until Friday next, the day set for the funeral.

The condition of Dowager Queen Sophia, is occasioning anxiety. The strain upon the Queen incident to the illness and death of King Oscar, was very severe and since his death she has been almost constantly confined to her bed.

Roosevelt's Last Term.

Washington, Dec. 12.—President Roosevelt will not be a candidate for a third terms. All doubt on this point was last night dispelled by the authoritative statement of the White House that Mr. Roosevelt still adhers to the declaration of renunciation made on the night of the election three years ago. In the statement issued last night President Roosevelt says he has not changed and will not change the decision communicated to the American people in 1904.

It appears that the President had been awaiting the call for the Republican national convention to afford the proper opportunity for making his position clear and unmistakable, thus leaving the field clear for Fairbanks, Taft, Cannon, Knox, Foraker and other declared or prospective candidates for the Republican nomination.

New Governor After Night Riders.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 12.—Governor A. E. Willson, who was inaugurated at Frankfort yesterday, took immediate steps towards suppressing the mob spirit among the tobacco planters in the state. Trouble is threatneed at Carlisle and at Mount Sterling, and the proper officials were ordered to have the state militia in readiness for the first signs of frouble.

A company of militia will be sent into Trigg County, where the mob was raised that burned the warehouses at Hopkinsville, and every man will be arrested against whom evidence can be procured.

OTTAWA TRAIN IN SMASH-UP.

Passengers Badly Shaken, But Nobody Seriously Hurt.

Ottawa, Dec. 12.—A bad wreck occurred at Arnprior yesterday. The G. T. R. local from Ottawa crashed into a freight engine head-on, both going at a rapid pace.

The tender of the passenger train telescoped the combination mail and baggage car.

The drivers and firemen on both engines jumped.

No one was seriously hurt, although the passengers were badly shaken.

The two engines and cars were badly smashed.

Conference of Bishops.

Cologne, Dec. 12.—The conference of Catholic bishops, which has been in session here to discuss the encyclical issued by the Pope against modernism in the faith, brought its deliberations to an end Tuesday evening. It is understood that a serious disagreement occurred in the matter of a resolution which requests the Pope, before he issues sudden edicts, to inform himself about the situation in Germany. Cardinal Kopp of Breslau supported the resolution and had with him a great many of those present. The resolution was opposed by Cardinal Fischer, Bishop Keppler and Bishop Koran.

The agreement was reached, and it was consequently decided to hold another conference next year at Fulda.

Two Children Perish.

Montreal, Dec. 12.—Two children, one aged two years and the other a baby, belonging to Mrs. Belleville of Busherville, near East Clifton, were burned to death Tuesday night. The mother left the children in the house while she went to a neighbor's on a message. When she returned the house was in flames, and the fire had gained such headway that all efforts to save the children were futile. The mother made frantic efforts to rescue her children, and was seriously burned in the attempt.

The Time of His Life.

Tokio, Dec. 12.—Prince Pulan, the special envoy from China, who is now returning the recent visit of Prince Fushima to China, was magnificently entertained by Baron Goto at the leading theatre last night. Over 1,000 people were present, including the diplomatic corps.

ESTIMATES IN FOR NEXT YEAR

Mr. Fielding's Provision For Next Fiscal Year.

TOTAL AMOUNT $120,000,000

Large Sums For Harbor Improvements—Many Public Buildings Provided For — Figures Exceed Those of Last Year—Provincial Subsidies—Items For Various Points In Province of Ontario.

Ottawa, Dec. 12.—Finance Minister Fielding last night brought down the estimates for the fiscal year 1908-9. The total amount, called for is $119,237,091. This is 14 millions more than the main estimates of last year, which amounted to $105,689,519.

When the supplementaries are brought down the estimates for the year, beginning April 1 next, may total $126,000,000, if opinion may be formed from experience of the present fiscal period, when the total was $136,000,000, including $6,676,000 pledged on the Quebec bridge, and $3,000,000 pledged on Montreal harbor. Of the 119 millions, 24 millions are authorized by statute.

On account of the consolidation fund the estimates are $70,871,471, and on capital account $42,365,620, the totals under the latter heading being: Militia $1,800,000, railways and canals, $36,987,620, public works $3,278,000, Dominion lands $800,000.

Under consolidated revenue the items are: Public debt, $12,363,947; charges of management $319,450, civil government $2,202,747, administration of justice $1,298,595, police $42,700, penitentiaries $553,000, legislation $1,480,283, arts, agriculture and statistics $1,253,500, quarantine $116,000, immigration $920,000, pensions $193,013, superannuation $353,000, militia $5,202,630, railways and canals $1,017,659, public works $9,119,050, mail subsidies and steamship subventions $1,497,883, ocean and river service $914,800, lighthouse and ocean service $2,717,050; scientific institutions and hydrographic surveys $543,692, marine hospitals $53,000, steamboat inspection $47,560, fisheries $1,242,300, superintendence of insurance $27,450, subsidies to provinces $8,035,472, mines and geological surveys $230,250, Indians $1,273,960, mounted police $730,000, Government of Northwest Territories $9,800, Government of Yukon $365,600, Dominion lands $617,214, miscellaneous $660,500, customs $2,074,500, excise $867,322, weights and measures $173,100, adulteration of food $30,000, miner revenues $3,540, railways and canals collection of revenue $10,451,408, public works $543,900, postoffice $6,261,830, trade and commerce $91,600, inspection of staples $120,000, culling timber $14,900.

The increases over last year include $2,209,100 increase in provincial subsidies and $1,470,765 on railways and canals. In the Militia Deparment the amount asked for the annual drill is $1,000,000, an increase of $150,000.

Ottawa, Dec. 12.—The Civil Service Commission will not fully report upon their labors until the end of the session, but meantime will issue an interim report.

MANY KILLED IN THE RACE WAR

Desperate Fight Between Whites and Negroes Down South.

MEN ROASTED IN THE FLAMES

Lodge Rooms Set on Fire—Alleged Conspiracy Against White Population In Alabama — Governor to Call Out the Militia—Revolvers Freely Used — Thirty Killed and Many Were Wounded.

Columbus, Miss., Dec. 12.—Thirty negroes have been killed, five whites and many negroes wounded, and five negro lodge rooms burned in Pickens County, Alabama, just across the Mississippi border.

The race rioting broke out in two different parts of the county, and the first trouble began suddenly Sunday night.

Rioting has been incessant since then, and negroes are fleeing for their lives. Owing to the discovery of a plot by negroes to rise against the whites of the county every black is in danger. This conspiracy was carried on by means of a secret society, which had lodge rooms in remote districts of Pickens County. Fifteen negroes were burned to death in a lodge room near Reform Tuesday night when whites attacked the place, and finding repeating rifles and shotguns, fired the building. The blacks were penned in by the continual shooting of the whites and those who were not killed in attempting to escape were roasted alive. So far as has been learned the burning of the other lodge rooms were without fatalities.

The trouble started Monday with the arrest of Tom Lowe, a negro, on a charge of stealing a bale of cotton from Whig Lowe, a white planter, who is also a deputy sheriff.

Lowe located his property at a gin and traced the theft to Tom Lowe.

Deputy Lowe, with several other officers, succeeded in arresting the accused negro Monday evening. As they were running to Gordo with the prisoner they were fired upon from ambush by a party of negroes, headed by Bob Lowe, the prisoner's brother. Tom Lowe fell dead from a shot, which, it is said, was fired by his own brother at the deputy sheriff.

Rumors quickly circulated that Lowe's friends were arming themselves to rescue him. The sheriff organized a posse to resist the expected attack, and in a few hours news that a battle was imminent spread throughout the adjacent county, and whites and negroes alike armed themselves and congregated in the towns.

The negroes mobilized in their lodge rooms and the white mounted guard outside. Finally the sheriff ordered the negroes to surrender their arms and disperse to their homes. The order was refused, and the attack followed.

News of the battle was telegraphed to the governor with a request that the militia be sent to prevent further bloodshed. It is believed the request will be promptly complied with.

If we could only see others as we see ourselves what splendid men and women would inhabit the world.

MADE AN ATTACK ON GOVERNMENT

Effort to Hold Ministers Responsible For Quebec Disaster.

DEBATE ON ADDRESS CLOSED

Mr. Barker's Amendment Is Lost—Sir Wilfrid Laurier Severely Criticizes Opposition Tactics—Should Await Result of Investigation Before Charging Anyone—Questions In the House.

Ottawa, Dec. 12.—What the Prime Minister described as an unfair and unworthy attempt on the part of the Opposition to make political capital out of the Quebec bridge disaster marked the concluding part of the debate on the address, which, after the defeat of an amendment proposed by Mr. Barker, censuring the Government for the manner in which the ill-fated undertaking had been carried on, suddenly collapsed yesterday afternoon. The address was passed without further division, and to-day the House will go into Committee of Supply on the estimates. Mr. Fielding announced that the undue length of the debate had upset the plans of the Government. Consequently the budget will not be presented until after the Christmas holidays. In the interval it is understood that in addition to the estimates several Government measures, including the French treaty, will be discussed. The speeches of the Minister of Finance and the Prime Minister completely disposed of the efforts of the Opposition to fix responsibility for the Quebec bridge calamity on the Government, and emphasized the tendency which has been so marked this session on the part of the Opposition to disregard recognized Parliamentary practice. The Government majority on Mr. Barker's amendment was 46.

Sir Wilfrid Replies.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied to the criticisms and said that he regretted Mr. Monk should have been party to the making of political capital out of a great national calamity. Had the disaster not occurred there would be no motion before the House censuring the Government for having dealt with a company instead of constructing the bridge as a Government work.

But if the policy of dealing with a company was wrong to-day, it was equally wrong in 1903, yet not a word was said against it then, nor for the consecutive sessions. How, asked the Prime Minister, could the hon. gentlemen opposite say there was insufficient supervision? Was that not one of the very questions which a royal commission was at present investigating? It was to fix responsibility for the disaster, as well as to ascertain the cause, that, immediately after the accident, the Government had appointed that commission. A company, said Sir Wilfrid, which included such men as Hon. S. N. Parent, Hon. John Sharples, Gustave Lemoine, H. M. Price, Mr. Audel, and the late Hon. R. N. Dobell, could safely be trusted to spend public money properly.

The House divided on the amendment, which was voted down by 98 nays to 50 yeas.

In the House of Commons yesterday Hon. Mr. Brodeur replied to Mr. Foster that the sum of $35,499.55 had been paid to experts to re-organize the system of keeping accounts for the Marine and Fisheries Department.

Mr. Pugsley told Mr. Foster that the cost of extension of the western block was $88,000, and to a question by Mr. Foster as to the expenditure of the Canadian Government in connection with the Imperial Conference, Mr. Fielding said the appropriation was $8,000 for the Prime Minister's expenses and $16,000 for the other Ministers, of which Sir Frederick Borden received $4,000, and Mr. Brodeur $4,000. The receipts of the Yukon telegraph system from March 31, 1907, to date, were $52,725, and expenses were $136,188. Mr. Pugsley told Mr. Foster there was no expenditure on capital account.

Mr. Brodeur told Mr. Foster that the Government had paid about $206,000 to the Marconi Co. This was expended in stations.

Mr. Fielding declined to give Mr. Daniel, at this time, the list of nations that will share in the duties accorded to France by the new treaty under the favored-nation clause.

Mr. Graham replied to a question by Mr. Borden that Mr. Hodgins, C. E., had been dismissed from service of the National Transcontinental Railway Commission on the ground that his services were unsatisfactory. An investigation was not considered necessary. It was not the intention of the Government. Mr. Fisher informed Mr. Marshall, to appoint inspectors in every fruit and vegetable factory in Ontario.

Mr. Lanctot was informed by Mr. Aylesworth that Judge Ouimet had applied for a pension, which was granted, on the ground of ill-health.

Mr. Graham stated, replying to Mr. Ames, that the prohibition zone along the line of the G. T. P. east of Winnipeg was reduced in sections of Manitoba and in Rainy River district.

New Bills Introduced.

Three bills were introduced. Claude Macdonell (Toronto) had an amendment to the Dominion Election Act, containing a compulsory voting clause, requiring that a holiday be declared on the day of the general elections in Canada, and repealing the requirement of a $200 deposit by candidates. He also submitted an amendment to the Copyright Act designed to simplify the formula to be attached to the notice of copyright. Mr. Sinclair submitted an amendment to the Fisheries Act repealing the jurisdiction of fishery officers to try complaints.

Bank Manager's Suicide.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 12.—T. Otway Saldeir, manager of the west end branch of the California Safe Deposit & Trust Co., located on Devisadero street, committed suicide some time Tuesday night in the office of the branch bank, by blowing off the top of his head with a shotgun.

MAN PLUNGED TO DEATH.

Was Annoyed Because His Wife Refused Him Liberty.

New York, Dec. 12.—Jacob Victor, of No. 377 Hamburg avenue, Williamsburg, leaped five stories to his death after a quarrel with his wife, to whom he had been married only two months.

Victor, who was only 23 years old, enjoyed a local reputation as a bowler and pinochle player up to the end of his bachelorhood in October.

When Victor came home to supper he asked his wife if she would mind very much if he spent the evening at his old bowling club, Mrs. Victor demurred.

"But they need me badly at the club," protested Victor; "a match is to be played and they are afraid their team is too weak to win."

Mrs. Victor arose from the table weeping and said she had hoped she would never live to see the day when she and her husband would quarrel.

"All right," cried Victor, "if you're tire of married life, so am I, I'll end it right now."

He dashed from the room and his wife followed. With her in close pursuit he bounded up five flights of stairs to the top of the house, burst into the apartment of a family he did not know, opened the door of their dumb-waiter shaft, and plunged in.

His wife was so close behind him that as he made his dive she was able to seize one of his heels. But he kicked her hands with his free foot and broke her hold. He fell to the bottom of the shaft and when taken out had hardly a whole bone in his body. He had been killed instantly.

His wife was made so ill from shock that she had to be removed to the German Hospital.

WAS SHOT FROM ASOVE.

How William Dixon Was Murdered at Iron Bridge.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Dec. 12.—The case of the crown against Thomas McFarlane for murder occupied the attention of the court yesterday. The crime was committed at Iron Bridge last July 4. The men lived together in a shack on the farm owned by McFarlane. McFarlane is accused of murdering William Dixon by shooting him in the head with a rifle. The shot was heard by neighbors, who investigated and found the body of Dixon on the floor and McFarlane gone. McFarlane later gave himself up to Provincial Constable Graham of Blind River and witnesses swear he told conflicting stories as to how Dixon died, one being that he committed suicide.

The evidence for the crown was strong, although entirely circumstantial. Medical testimony proved conclusively that Dixon could not have died by his own hand, the wound causing death being in the top of the head and being apparently fired from a stovepipe hole above Dixon when he stood in a lower room near the table. The case for the crown concluded at 6 last night, and the defence will commence this morning.

Emperor Leaves England.

ONE YEAR IN CENTRAL

Judge Weller Passed Sentence on The Man Who Tried to Shoot P. C. Newhall

JURY OUT TEN MINUTES

James Murphy Of Toronto Found Guilty and Given Term In Prison

James Murray was sentenced to a term of one year in the Central Prison, Toronto, by His Honour Judge Weller, for having attempted to shoot P. C. Newhall, when the latter placed him under arrest. The affair happened at the C. P. R. station, early on the morning of the 23rd of October, just before the midnight train pulled in from Toronto. Murray, who claims Toronto as his home, was in company with two other men, and was trying to sell jewelry, and had even approached P. C. Newhall to sell a ring for $1.50, which the officer afterwards learned could be bought for 30 cents a dozen.

A Jury Case

There were only two cases that were brought before the jury in the county court, and this was one of them. It was opened yesterday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, and continued until five o'clock. The jury were only out ten minutes in deliberation, and brought back a verdict of "Guilty," after which Judge Weller pronounced the sentence of the court. The prisoner was in a light vein until the jury retired, when an anxious look appeared on his face and he lost his easy manner.

Mr. R. H. Wood, County Crown Attorney, conducted the prosecution, while to Mr. E. L. Goodwin, the youngest member of the bar in the city, fell the duty of defending the prisoner.

The Story of the Fray

The affair is still fresh in the minds of the public. Murray is one of a gang of three men who arrived in the city on the evening of the 22nd of October from the east. They came up on the 4.48 C. P. R. train per "blind baggage," and dropped off in the city with the evident intention of doing some kind of a job. They had not been long in the city when they were noticed by the police. Later in the evening a man slightly under the influence of liquor reported to P. C. Newhall that he had suspicions that they were trying to do him, and the officer determined to watch the men.

Accordingly, when towards midnight the three suspects wended their way to the C.P.R. station they were shadowed by Officers Newhall and Adams. The latter remained at one end of the platform while Newhall, who was not in full uniform, walked up and down keeping his eye on the men.

Finally, Murray seemed to notice him and accosted him.

"Hey, Jack, do you want to buy a ring?" he said, "I've got a little beauty here, and it's yours if you've got $1.50; I want to get out of here to-night, and I need the money."

"I don't know," said the officer; "let me see it; I might buy it."

Murray walked over to one of the lights with his pals and P. C. Newhall followed. He put the ring on his finger pretending to look closely at it, and as he turned slightly to another position one of the trio noticed the red stripe on his trousers, and recognized him as a policeman.

Revolver Drawn

That was the signal for action, which was not long in beginning. One of the three started to run, and the officer grabbed the other two by the coats. In the scuffle which lasted but a few seconds, another of the three got free, leaving a lapel and a large piece of his coat in P. C. Newhall's hand. Murray, the third man, was held by a firm grip and finding himself caught pulled a revolver from his pocket. Quick as a flash the revolver was sent flying from the man's hand by a deft blow from the policeman's baton, and the affair was all over in shorter time than it takes to tell it. The officer had the ring all the time on his finger.

P. C. Adams got wind of the scuffle and hurried to the scene, but two of the birds had flown, and the third was captured. The revolver was picked up and was found to be fully loaded. It was a six shooter, 38 calibre, and is a dangerous looking weapon. P. C. Newhall also found the piece of coat which had dropped from his hand, and also a bottle of whiskey which one of the three must have let fall in the encounter. The other two men disappeared and have not been heard of since.

The officer received a kick on the shin and a blow on the face but one of the men that got away received a blow on the head that must have dazed him for the time being.

"Another second," Murray said, "and your brains would have been scattered!" but that second did not come, thanks to the officer's quickness.

Cross-Examination

Officer Newhall's testimony was identical with that taken in the police court. He was put through a rigorous examination by Mr. Goodwin, who handled the defence with

LOCAL BANKS DO NOT WISH TO CARRY THE CITY'S ACCOUNTS

It looks as if the city will have trouble in finding a bank to carry its accounts next year. A meeting of the joint committee was held yesterday afternoon for the purpose of awarding the contracts and it was found that not a single tenders had been received. The committee was, of course, under the circumstances, unable to do anything with the exception of appointing a sub-committee to wait upon the managers of the different banks in the city with a view of having one of them take over the accounts next year.

The Bank of Toronto looked after the city's account last year, but evidently do not want it again as it has not sent in a tender.

The difficulty seems to be over the question of debentures. The city will have $36,000 worth of school debentures to dispose of this year, and if they can be sold at a reasonable figure the banks would have little hesitation in carrying the accounts inasmuch as a good sale of debentures would considerably reduce the overdraft.

Just at present the matter is causing the city's representatives considerable anxiety, and it is hard to see just what the end will be.

LABOUR MEN INDIGNANT OVER ROMAINE STREET SEWER BUNGLE

The regular monthly meeting of the Trades and Labour Council was held last evening in the Labour Hall, George street, with President Alexander in the chair. The session proved to be the most successful one of the year, the attendance being unusually large, and the discussion on the different questions considered being of a decidedly animated nature. Messrs. Londerville and W. Mowry were duly accepted as delegates from the Iron Moulders' Union, as were also Bros. Wm. Taylor and George Scott representing the Stone Cutters' Union and the Pattern Makers' League, respectively.

Definite action was taken last evening regarding the labour mass meeting to be held in the city under the auspices of the Trades and Labour Council. It was decided to hold the meeting at the beginning of the New Year, and a committee was instructed to make all arrangements. Mr. Jas. Simpson of Toronto, the eloquent exponent of labour principles, and who is vice-president of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada, will be the speaker.

During the evening the secretary referred to a local tailoring establishment which was on the unfair list, and suggested that an effort be made to settle the misunderstanding between the Tailors' Union and the shop in question. The delegate from the Tailors' Union went fully into the matter, but no action was taken.

Romaine Street Sewer

The Romaine street sewer trouble also engaged the attention of the delegates present and the aldermen were roundly scored by the speakers. The discussion was decidedly warm, and the result was that a vote of census of opinion that if the council for still retaining the services of the city engineer and foreman after the gross negligence and incapacity exhibited in the construction of the sewer.

The Garbage Bylaw to be submitted to the people, also received attention and it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that if the sanitary regulations were more strictly adhered to in the centre of the city, there would be little need of additional legislation. It was contended that the legislation at present enacted by the corporation, if rigidly enforced, would cover the ground thoroughly. As a result of the discussion a motion was passed, requesting the city to more closely define and publish the duties of the sanitary inspector.

Reference was also made to the fact that the city had failed to provide lavoratories at the market buildings.

The Trades and Labour Council will meet twice a month during the winter season, and another meeting will be held before the close of the present month, the date to be announced by the president.

PETERBORO' FARMERS SUFFER FROM CYCLONE IN THE WEST

A letter received from Davidson, Sask., by Mr. Thomas Lee, contains the news of an almost unprecedented occurrence in the history of that section of the West. A short time ago, Davidson was visited by a cyclone, surpassing anything that the people had ever seen. It was in fact the first serious catastrophe that the town had ever experienced from the wind. There are a number of people in and around Davidson, who are well known in Peterborough, and two of them are mentioned as having sustained serious loss.

James Sanderson, formerly of Smith, was one of these and his house and barns were razed to the ground, and scattered around the immediate vicinity. While no injury is reported to have been sustained by the Sanderson family, the stock did not entirely escape.

Mr. George Jeffrey, formerly of North Monaghan, was also one of the heaviest losers, his property being in the path of the wind.

Fortunately Mr. Lee's property was not in the storm belt, and is reported to be untouched. Speaking of the affair Mr. Lee stated that he believed the neighbourhood would turn out and build a temporary house for the homeless that would serve until the spring.

The cyclone did considerable damage in one part of the town. The roof of the main hotel was blown off and many houses were wrecked.

TRAIN OF IMMIGRANTS TAKE PARTY FROM PETERBORO' TO-DAY

This afternoon a trainload of immigrants passed through the city on their way to St. John, N.B., to embark on the steamers Empress of Britain and the Ionia. The train was a long one, and the Mecca of nearly all the passengers was the western seaport of England—Liverpool. At the station here a number of people from this city and the surrounding towns left for the same purpose of getting back home for the winter.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE EXAMINER'S ILLUSTRATED CHRISTMAS NUMBER

The Examiner is arranging to issue on Saturday, Dec. 14th, the best illustrated edition that has ever been attempted by a Peterborough paper. There will be the regular Saturday edition of 16 pages to which will be added 6 pages of special Christmas matter; 2 pages of specially highly illustrated Christmas matter and 4 pages of a special art section, one of which will be devoted to splendidly reproduced photo studies of child life by Roy of Peterborough. This makes a total of 34 pages for the Christmas issue. The advertising in it will be most liberal, the enlarged edition being appreciated by the merchants of Peterborough as an exceptional opportunity for placing before the buying public the wares for the Christmas trade. That the public looks forward to this issue is evidenced by the fact that it will exceed by 500 copies the largest number of papers that have ever yet been issued from the Examiner office. They will be delivered to all subscribers of the Examiner in the regular way and extra copies at two cents each may be obtained. Orders should be left at the office at once to insure their being filled.

THE CORDAGE ANNUAL

Report of Directors To Shareholders Submitted And Was Duly Adopted

DIRECTORS AND OFFICERS

The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company, Limited, was held at the head office of the company on Wednesday, the 11th inst., at three o'clock in the afternoon, at which there was present a large number of the shareholders from different parts of the Province of Ontario. The report of the directors to the shareholders was submitted, together with the financial statement of the company, and both were duly adopted.

The following gentlemen were elected directors for the ensuing year, namely, Messrs. R. R. Hall, J. O. Groendyke, W. H. Meldrum, J. A. Bennett and J. S. Latimer; and at a subsequent meeting of the directors, the following officers were elected, namely, R. R. Hall, president; J. C. Groendyke vice-president and manager; Mr. W. H. Meldrum, vice-president; Mr. E. B. Fowler, secretary.

The directors recommended to the shareholders that in view of the financial statement they did not see their way clear to declare a dividend and their recommendation to the shareholders was adopted by them.

The first meeting of the Peterborough Canadian Club will be held on Friday evening, December 13, at the National Hotel at 7.30 o'clock. The speaker of the evening will be Professor Shortt of Queen's University, Kingston. The subject of Professor Shortt's address will be, "Problems of Immigration."

Only members of the club will, of course, be permitted to attend. Membership tickets cost one dollar and may be secured from the following officers of the club: F D Kerr, D O'Connell, Dr Cameron, R E Layfield, T F Matthews, J H Larmonth, D Hughes Charles, John Crace, H LeBrun and F R H Kenner.

The dinner will cost fifty cents. The only speaker will be the guest of the evening. Tickets for the dinner will be on sale at the National Hotel on Friday evening. The president, Mr F. D. Kerr, will be the chairman.

CAB SMASHED IN A RUNAWAY

Lively Sprint Comes to a Sudden Stop This Morning

The first runaway of any of the horses belonging to Jones' new livery on Simcoe street occurred this morning with rather disastrous results. A team of horses attached to a covered bus was standing at the G.T.R. station after 9 o'clock this morning awaiting the arrival of the Port Hope train, which was about 35 minutes late. The driver had opened the door for a customer who wanted the use of the cab, but at that moment the horses started away in a mad run apparently from no cause whatever.

They turned into Charlotte street, going east, but their crazed flight was as short as it was furious. At the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets they made a long turn, but without the guidance of the driver they ran into a telegraph pole. The front pillars were broken, the tongue and whiffle-trees smashed. The horses were thrown to the sidewalk in the fall, but were not injured.

NEARLY $2,000,000 IN LOCOMOTIVES

The Grand Trunk Places Orders For 100 Engines

The Grand Trunk management has just placed orders for one hundred new locomotives, which represent an expenditure of nearly $2,000,000.

These locomotives will be built during the winter, spring and summer—the last to be delivered by August next—in time to take their place in the road's equipment for the movement of next season's crop. The fact that no less than seventy out of the one hundred engines are to be built in Canada is likely to give satisfaction to all who are interested in the development of local industries.

A SCHEME TO SECURE AID FROM MR. CARNEGIE FOR A LIBRARY

The City Council at its meeting on Monday night will discuss the advisability of applying to Mr. Andrew Carnegie for a grant towards a Public Library for Peterborough. The intention of those in favour of the scheme is to secure $30,000 from Mr. Carnegie with which to erect a modern library centrally situated, and then to dispose of the property which the generosity of the late Mrs. Nicholls has given the city, and use the proceeds to equip and maintain the library. How the scheme will be received by the Council as a whole is not known, as it has never been discussed by the present body.

The supporters of the proposal to apply to Mr. Carnegie point out that there are only the two ways—the large scheme as outlined above, and the smaller one of doing the best that can be done with the Nicholl's property and the funds at the disposal of the Council.

There will, of course, be considerable discussion and likely opposition to the scheme. It will be remembered that it came up before several years ago and there was a storm of opposition, so much so that it was dropped.

$1,000,000 SPECIFIED IN THE ESTIMATES FOR TRENT CANAL

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier visited Peterborough, and addressed the electors, in November, 1904, he assured his hearers that the Liberal Government intended completing the Trent Canal, and subsequent events show that Sir Wilfrid, and his Government were in earnest. Last year the estimates contained an item for $700,000 for Trent Canal construction, and this year an item of one million dollars appears in the estimates for a similar purpose. As soon after Sir Wilfrid's assurance, as surveys could be made, and plans prepared, new stretches of canal were put under contract. Not only has the Government dealt liberally with the Trent Canal, but it has not been unmindful of improvement of the smaller aids to navigation. In the estimates brought down by Hon. Mr Fielding yesterday, appear the following:

Trent Canal, $1,000,000.

Gannons' Narrows Bridge, County of Peterborough, wharf, $1200.

Gore's Landing, wharf, $1000.

Peterborough, steamboat landing, $2500.

River Otonabee, dredging, $5000.

Roache's Point, wharf, $3200.

Peterborough has not been forgotten in the estimates as an additional $20,000 has been asked for the new Peterborough armouries, now under construction.

THE LATEST DISCOVERIES ABOUT THE PLANET MARS

To-morrow night there will be a meeting of the Peterborough section of the Royal Astronomical Society in the Y.W.C.A., beginning at 8 o'clock sharp, when Dr. Marsh, the president, will give an address on "The Planet Mars." His lecture will be entirely free from any technical terms and will be given so that all can understand and follow without difficulty. The recent discoveries made about Mars, with particular reference to the vegetation and the possibility of it being inhabited, as well as the meteorological conditions as far as have already been learned. All members of the society as well as any others interested are requested to be present.

"THE MINISTRY OF THE MAN IN THE PEW," TO BE THE SUBJECT

A meeting of the Men's Banquet Committee of the Murray street Baptist church was held last night and all arrangements were made for the banquet which will be held on January 16. The guest of the evening will be Dr. Kierstead, a professor in McMaster University, Toronto, who will give an address on "The Ministry of the Man in the Pew." Dr. Kierstead is a strong and influential speaker, and a large number of men is expected to attend.

A toast list has been arranged and Dr. Scott will preside at the banquet. The toast to "The Minister in the Pulpit" will be proposed by Mr. R. Harding and responded to by Rev. Dr. Pogue. The toast to "The Guest" will be proposed by Mr. T. F. Matthews, when Dr. Kierstead will reply with the address of the evening. Mr. Geo. Cochrane and Mr. B. A. Lillie will also take part in the function, which is one deserving of every assistance. The toast to the "Press" will be proposed by Mr. Vimon Eastwood.

CAPTAIN BERNIER THE FAMOUS EXPLORER COMING TO THE CITY

Capt. Bernier, the famous Arctic explorer, who is a warm personal friend of Rev. Dr. Marsh, president of the Peterborough branch of the Royal Astronomical Society, will be in the city in the near future to give an address. Dr. Marsh has received a letter from the renowned explorer stating that he is now engaged in preparing governmental reports at Ottawa, and as soon as they have been completed he will come to Peterborough. The visit of Capt. Bernier is being looked forward to with interest by local astronomers as well as many others, and an address from him will be very much appreciated in Peterborough.

OPERA HOUSE SEAT BROKEN BUT DAMAGES ARE COLLECTED

Geo. Williamson went to the show last night, paid for two seats and for his disgraceful actions in the theatre was compelled to pay an extra nine dollars this morning as a result of Magistrate Dumble's findings. Williamson took his wife to the Grand and under the influence of liquor made himself disagreeable to a number of ladies sitting in the seats ahead of him. Remonstration on the part of the management was useless and it was finally deemed necessary to put him out.

The special constable went down to handle him, but did not make much of an impression as Williamson is a strapping big fellow. However, a gentleman nearby, who knows a few fancy holds, soon had him on his way to the door. Williamson broke a seat and used disgraceful language.

In court to-day he was sorry for his actions, but that was not sufficient. Five dollars damage was awarded Mr. J. J. Turner for the damage to a seat and $2 were added for being drunk and disorderly, and $2 extra for a further breach of the law by his disorderly conduct.

Williamson was given ten days to the money.

NEW ARRIVAL WANTED SOME ALE ON CITY CHARITY ORDER

A story is being told of the head of a family recently arrived from England, who are being looked after by the city's charity forces and who have apparently come to the conclusion that the charity officials in Peterborough are a variety of perpetual Santa Clauses. They have received several ordrs on grocery stores for household supplies and the first of these was taken out in the legitimate tea, sugar, flour, etc. Next time, however, the order came along the head of the house determined to make a test case and when he presented the order, remarked to the astonished groceryman "that he would like four bottles of 'h'ale.'" Apparently much to his surprise the request was refused and the new arrival had to depart empty handed.

BEAMAN NOT FOUND

Searchers Have Found no Trace Of Him—Firm Belief That He is Drowned

PACKAGE OF BLANKETS

Found on The Bridge—The Cold Handicaps The Men as Ice Forms Rapidly

The efforts of the searchers for the body of Edward Beaman have been unsuccessful. Messrs. S. Guerin, R. Holt and A. Vess have been working away during daylight hours, but without results. The section men on the eastern and western divisions extending from the city have lent valuable assistance and were persevering in their work this afternoon. The men are handicapped by the cold and have to continually break the ice. When they make a passage, on their return they find it closed again. However, they are not discouraged, and expressed their confidence that if the body were in that vicinity they would find it.

To-day the parcel the missing man dropped was left in the tool house east of George street. It is a large parcel containing several blankets, and was found by an employee of the Geo. Matthews Company, whose name is reported to be East.

He found the parcel half way between the west shore of the river and the first store abutment. Beaman's late comrades are confident he has met his death in the water. One of them suggested that he may have stooped to pick up his parcel and thus fall off the bridge, but the more plausible theory is that he slipped and stumbled.

The men did not learn of the exact spot where the parcel was found until noon to-day, and recommenced their searchings in a new place where the water eddys around near the wharf.

There are two large parts to use the section men giving as much time to the work as possible.

FROST'S HANDSOME JEWELLRY AND CHRISTMAS STORE

Rich, Rare and Recherche Gifts That Focus the Eyes of Peterboro' Holiday Shoppers

People are more ("particularly" about buying Christmas gifts than they are about buying anything else. Why? Because all aim, either consciously or unconsciously, to put themselves into their gifts—to have their gift become an index to their mind. A store, therefore, which has the best variety of what appeals to the "particular" buyer, and which seems to possess the happy faculty of knowing how and what to buy for his contentment, must become a favourite store for gift buyers.

Such a store is Frost's, the city jeweller, of 347 George street. What to buy for Christmas need be no great worry for the holiday shopper at this store. Mr Frost has this year planned and schemed to provide something suitable for everybody and at all prices. There are pearl goods in surburats, pendants, beauty pins, necklaces and brooches; diamond rings, single stone, twin, three and five stones, combined with ruby, emeralds and pearls; ladies' and gentlemen's watches set with diamonds, plain, or hand engraved; bracelets in 14-karat gold, set with beautiful pearls and amethysts, worth $45; others as low, in gold-filled, as 75 cents each; jewellery cases in gilt and French gold finishes; ebony goods in mirrors, brushes, etc.; cut glass from the famous Gundy-Clapperton cutters, embracing berry bowls, jelly dishes, bon bons, vases, whip cream, claret jugs, etc., in a range of prices from 60 cents to $25; high class china and hand-painted china, such as the beautiful Minton, Royal Crown, Derby, Royal Bonn, Worcester, Royal Dalton. The cases are filled to overflowing with thousands of beautiful things which constitute a Christmas store attractive, progressive, enthusiastic and wide-awake.

People buy at Frost's because they trust—whether in diamonds or anything else—as not one in ten can pick out, unaided, the "real thing."

Of course, the store is prettily decorated, as Frost knows how. The windows, cases and corner pieces proclaim the exquisite taste and dexterity of the artist's hand in the dainty but not gaudy decorations.

THE WEATHER.

The weather at present has a decided wintry aspect, the recent fall of snow having made fair sleighing. The temperature also has taken a downward motion. This morning the thermometer registered 7 degrees above zero, but went down 2 more degrees later on in the forenoon. Conditions are fixed for considerably below zero to-night.

THE ALL-RED ROUTE.

Most of the opposition to the All-Red Route on the other side of the water comes from those interested in rival routes. The Peninsular and Oriental Steamship Company with transportation interests bound up in the route from Great Britain to the East and vice-versa, as expected, condemns it. Sir Thomas Sutherland, presiding at the annual meeting of the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship Company, referring to the "All-Red Route," declared that it would demand gigantic resources, and that it would be interesting to find out where these resources were to be found. Further, he insisted, the building of the steamers to carry enough coal for an express service between Vancouver and Wellington, New Zealand, was one of the engineering problems at present insoluble as far as Canada was concerned. Of ocurse, the all-red project "demands gigantic resources," but it has an empire of gigantic resources, the richest empire in the world, behind it, and its operation will effect the development of gigantic resources, now dormant, and bring them within the sphere of commercial realization that promises to provide ample compensation for all the outlay of patriotism, energy and treasure which the effectuation of the scheme involves. Sir Thomas speaks of the building of steamers to carry enough coal for an express service between Vancouver and New Zealand as "an insuperable engineering problem." The Canadian Pacific Railway has long ago solved the problem of maintaining an express service between Vanvouver and Japan and a splendid service they give, a service which is building up a profitable trade and aiding in the development of the Canadian West and of Canada at large.

The opposition to the scheme in Canada comes chiefly from interested transportation bodies and the Conservative Opposition — Conservative party of Canada which will profit most by the All-Red Route. As an example the Galt Reporter, the type of a class, says: "The All-Red Route is fading away." Thus do the party pessimists show their littleness of soul towards a proposal of the most imperial proportions of any that has perhaps ever been launched. The imagination, the patriotism that does not warm to enthusiasm over the all-red route in principle, if not in application, are small enough to excite more commiseration than condemnation. The idea of Canada becoming the highway of an empire's trade, and an element in a solidarity of the empire, which can result from no other possible medium, should bind every Canadian to an enthusiastic interest. The project has a significance related to conditions of long standing. Without pronouncing upon the merits of the Blacksod Bay incident in the all-red route, its possibility of adoption has a relation to more or less effectively allaying the perennial unrest of Ireland. The Bishop of Sligo is in this county at present, and is naturally enthusiastic over the Blacksod Bay plan as furnishing the shortest and cheapest route, and his closing words are, "Whatever you do, don't leave Ireland out of this great problem."

From England—from an interested source of course—comes the objection that the completion of the Panama Canal will destroy the all-red route by supplying a shorter, and a more direct route between Great Britain and Australia and New Zealand. If the Panama Canal is ever completed, of which there is a very nebulous prospect, it will not affect the central idea of the all-red route, the development of inter-imperial traffic. Canada, occupying the middle distance of the route, will at once derive, and furnish, the lion's share of advantage. Fancy cannot place a limit to the developmental possibilities of Canada. The fringe of the curtain that conceals the boundless treasures of commerce, of the unpossessed areas, of this country, has barely been lifted. In contributing to the development of these resources — in pouring in immigrants to swell our population, the all-red route will both give and get, and the most remote parts of the empire will be bound together with links of steel and steam. This is Canada's century, and the all-red route will be the pillar of fire that will point the way to its share in the growing greatness and unity of the great empire.

WATER WORKS BY COMMISSION

The town of Welland will submit, at the coming municipal elections, a bylaw to turn over the civic waterworks system, to a commission of three members, one to be the mayor. The wide-awake town of Welland is capable of looking after its own affairs, and needs little outside suggestions; but one may be permitted to point out, by way of encouragement, what a splendid success has attended the management, by commission, of the Peterborough Water Works. These were purchased by the then town, from a private company, in 1901, and placed in charge of a commission of three, elected for three years, one retiring every third year. The purchase involved a financial obligation of $237,000. The services of the commission have been so effective, that the income realized has provided interest and sinking fund, so that an amount is being accumulated for the complete extinction of the indebtedness at the end of thirty years. This is being done with a reduction of rates to domestic consumers, twice made, and, in case of the passing of the bylaw to make all property fronting on water mains assessable for rates, to be submitted to the people in January, there will be another material reduction in domestic rates. In addition the works are kept in the best possible condition, and about ten thousand per year is spent on repairs, improvements, and extensions Payment for the latter is provided for by the issue of debentures, whose payment at maturity is provided for out of current revenue, in the same manner, and at the same time, as the sum representing the original purchase price. Last year the surplus extension fund amounted to $15,000, and last year's net surplus, after providing for all charges and allowing for depreciation, was $5,000. This comfortable financial condition might be supposed to warrant a further reduction of rates, but it is considered wise to provide a fund against the time when the water works dam will have to be re-built.

While the rates have been twice reduced, with another reduction to come in the event referred to, there is an additional reduction of 25 per cent. for prompt payment of rates at a given date. It is not extravagant to say that the commission has managed our water works system in an ideally admirable and business-like manner. The commissioners have applied the same prudence, thought and thrift that they, all successful business men, have made effective in their private affairs, and with similar results. The success that has attended the administration of the commissioners, involves skilful, efficient superintendence. The commission could not have done what it has done—we could not have had a water system, structurally in the first-class, without a first-class superintendent, and staff; by natural reaction these are largely accounted for by a good commission. This matter is referred to in general terms — greater detail would disclose a better showing —to demonstrate the workability of a commission in the management of a municipally owned public utility. The satisfactory experience that Peterborough has had with the commission idea, effectively applied, is warrant for assuming that its application could be advantageously extended. Is there any doubt that the functions of, say, the Board of Works, intrusted to a commission, would not be performed with advantages similar to those attending the water works commission's administration?

It is noted that Welland proposes to make the mayor a member of their water commission. If Welland will take Peterborough's experience as a guide—don't do it. Peterborough tried the experiment one year, with the mayor a member of the board. Since 1902 the commission has been absolutely independent of municipal control, and there is yet to be heard any complaint or word of dissatisfaction. The Board is independent of municipal influences, and, therefore, they can deal justly and show no favours. As an example: Instances are on record of two of the commissioners, and the secretary, failing to get the discount for prompt payment because their water rates were not paid on the specified day; something which argues a lack of ingenuity that would not be popularly ascribed to the average municipal representative body.

WHO USES HYOMEI?

The Best People in Peterboro' Says Wm. Madill— Guaranteed in Catarrhal Troubles

No other remedy or treatment for catarrh has ever been so popular or made so many remarkable cures in Peterborough as Hyomei.

The best people attest its curative virtues, says Mr. Madill, who is the local agent. The fair way in which Hyomei was sold, to refund the cash unless it gave satisfaction, was the best proof, when it was introduced, that it possessed unusual curative powers. Mr. Madill took all the risk of the treatment giving satisfaction, and left it to the purchaser to be the judge.

Later, when Hyomei was used and recommended by our well-known physicians and business men and their wives as a treatment that absolutely cures catarrh, no matter how serious or long standing, the sales rapidly grew, and to-day there is no remedy in Mr. Madill's stock that has such a large and staple sale.

The first breath of Hyomei's healing air kills all catarrhal poison.

Try Hyomei to-day on Mr. Madill's offer to refund the money if the treatment does not give you satisfaction.

ONE YEAR IN THE CENTRAL PRISON

good judgment and skill in the face of condemning evidence.

Mr. Hawthorne, the driver of the Oriental 'bus, was used as a witness, but as he had only seen Murray approach the officer, and had not seen the actual scuffle, the evidence of the witness was of no great importance.

Murray in the Box

Murray gave his testimony, as sole defence, and stated that he had been arrested once for trespass on the railway last September. When he was pressed by Crown Attorney Wood as to whether he had served a term in the common gaol, Toronto, the prisoner refused to make any statement, merely asserting that he "did not remember." A letter from Chief Grassett explained that he had served time for theft.

Two Thousand Free Rides

In answer to the question as to how many times he had "bumped" it on trains, prisoner said about 2,000 times during the past year and a half. He further stated that a railway could well afford to give away a few rides. Prisoner admitted that he did not recognize P. C. Newhall at the station, and that he had told the officer that he would get even with him for using the baton. Otherwise he denied P. C. Newhall's statements.

The Verdict.

On returning after a very short time, and giving their verdict of guilty, His Honour said that he did not see how they could arrive at any other conclusion. He considered that from his own statements the prisoner was one of those men who studied the criminal laws. He apparently considered that the world owed him a living and that he would have it at any cost. The only way to deal with such men, His Honour said, was by imposing a smart sentence, which would serve as a warning to others of his class. His Honour accordingly sentenced him to one year in the Central Prison.

Murray had nothing to say for himself. To the close observer it was noticed that when he entered the court room, and first met P. C. Newhall's glance he made a face expressing his love for the officer who had caught him at his game.

Editor Post Card Column:

Dear Sir,—No doubt it has been noticed what a lot of men are out of employment in Peterborough. Is the Council going to shut its eyes to the fact, or are they going to do the same as Vancouver has done and vote a substantial sum for relief work? Walk down George street in the morning and one thinks that this must be the poorest city in the Dominion instead of what we citizens like to call it, "a progressive wealthy city."

"NEVER PUT OFF TILL TO-MORROW WHAT YOU CAN DO TO-DAY"

MAKE HIM HAPPY

ON CHRISTMAS MORNING

LeBrun & Co. Can Help You

What will Santa Claus bring? That's the all-absorbing topic, and it's NOW that the thing should be settled, if you really want to do your best. For Christmas is just round the corner.

THIS is our 35th Christmas Anniversary and the Big Clothing Store is still prospering and growing---thanks to the continued confidence of the public.

Every year more and more people do their Christmas shopping at LeBrun's for two reasons. 1st:--Because they are sure of something out of the ordinary and 2nd, because they are sure of being charged an honest price.

We want to make this Anniversary a record-breaker. We have done our part by providing the right goods at the right prices. We leave the rest to you with the request to do it NOW.

We want the Ladies to feel at home at LeBrun's, for this is a Lady's Store at Xmas as well as a Man's. A lady's present to her husband, and a young woman's present to her brother, or some other girl's brother, will have all the good sensible points about it that LeBrun's High-Class Furnishings and Fine Clothing presents. Christmas Handkerchiefs are a leading line at LeBrun's. We show very fine samples for gentlemen in Silk, Linen, Lawn, etc., initialled and plain, and put up in Fancy Boxes.

The City Clothing Store

Has made extensive purchases in SENSIBLE GIFTS for men, young men and boys. Let it be distinctly understood, too, that we are CUTTING PRICES so that even our large stock may be too small for wise, moneysaving fathers mothers, husbands, wives, lovers, brothers and sisters. Look over this list and you'll be sure to find something that he would like to find in his "stocking."

Schedule For Group No. 2 Was Drawn Up Last Night

Peterboro's First Home Game on Jan. 10th With Lindsay—Representatives Met At Port Hope Last Night

REFEREES AGREED UPON

At a meeting held at the American Hotel, Port Hope, last night, the schedule for District No 2 of the intermediate O.H.A. series was drawn up. Considerable difficulty was experienced in arranging the games owing to the fact that there are five clubs in the district and that the schedule must be completed before February 1.

The clubs represented were as follows: Port Hope, Fred Curtis; Whitby, F. N. Burns; Lindsay, Blake Crawford; Cobourg, L Wilson, and Peterborough Strathconas, F. D. Craig.

Mr O. McMillan of Port Hope, the convener of the district, presided, and the following schedule was adopted after considerable discussion:

Jan 1—Whitby at Cobourg.
Jan 1—PETERBOROUGH at Port Hope.
Jan 3—Cobourg at Whitby.
Jan. 6—Port Hope at Whitby.
Jan. 6—Cobourg at Lindsay.
Jan. 8—Lindsay at Cobourg.
Jan 10 — Lindsay at PETERBOROUGH
Jan 10—Whitby at Port Hope.
Jan. 13—Lindsay at Whitby.
Jan 14—PETERBOROUGH at Cobourg
Jan 17—Port Hope at PETERBOROUGH
Jan. 17—Whitby at Lindsay.
Jan. 20—Cobourg at Port Hope.
Jan 20 — PETERBOROUGH at Whitby
Jan 24—Port Hope at Cobourg.
Jan 24—PETERBOROUGH at Lindsay
Jan 27—Cobourg at PETERBOROUGH
Jan. 27—Lindsay at Port Hope.
Jan 30 — Whitby at PETERBOROUGH
Jan. 30—Port Hope at Lindsay.

The following referees were decided upon: Dr Walbefs, F. Taylor, of Lindsay; Geo Brown and Art. Hemmick, Port Hope; A Bentley and K. Payne, Cobourg; W E. Watson and E. A. Ford, Peterborough.

This schedule gives Peterborough four home games.

Wednesday Selected For City Hockey League Games

Five Teams Now In The Fold—Bridgenorth Added at Last Night's Meeting

GENERAL BUSINESS DONE

A meeting of the City Hockey League was held last night at the Examiner office when general business was discussed. The President, F A Clarke occupied the chair, and among those present were T N Kelly and Fred Jopling, of Bridgenorth; Wm. Hurl and W W Leonard, of Lakefield; Fred Doherty, of Norwood; W Metheral, of the Strathconas and W. Egan, of the 57th Lifes.

The question of the number of season tickets to be issued to each club was decided upon and placed at 50 for each for which 75 cents will be charged. Players certificates will be issued in a few days and sent to the various clubs to filled out and signed. The constitution will also be printed and mailed to the various clubs.

Bridgenorth was admitted last night making five teams in the league with a possibility of Keene coming in before Saturday night.

The games this year will be played on Wednesday nights of each week if arrangements can be made with the Rink Company. This was decided upon in view of the fact that many in the village teams have to work in stores on Thursday nights and are unable to get away. At the next meeting the schedule will likely be drawn up.

Prospects For Some Lively Hockey in This District

All the Teams in The District Appear To Be Very Evenly Matched—Warm Games May Be Looked For This Season

CONCERNING THE TEAMS

With Cobourg, Lindsay, Port Hope, Whitby and Peterborough battling it out for the championship of No. 2 District of the O.H.A. intermediate series, some of the liviest hockey ever seen in this district should result. As far as could be gathered from the representatives at the schedule meeting in Port Hope last night, the teams appear to be very evenly matched. Port Hope will have a team composed for the most part of old timers, including "Husky" Brown, who has been persuaded to turn out again and will play cover point, with Gamble, it is likely, at point, and Suggett, a new man at the game, in goal. The forward line is an unknown quantity. Lindsay, of course, will have the majority of last year's Midgets to help out its team. Koyl, Randall, Cott, and the rest of the famous juniors are still available, while among those who are trying for a place is Jack Seymour of last year's Strathconas.

Cobourg will have most of its last year's intermediates who made such a good showing. Payne and Bentley will be in the game again this year.

Whitby is the dark horse and may take a beating. On its small rink, 146x50 feet, the team will have something on the others, especially on Peterborough. Port Hope and Cobourg, which have big rinks, and will be handicapped by the small ice.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE LOOKS GOOD

Peterboro' Will Be Grouped in Eastern Section

"Well, the basketball league looks good," said Mr. Norton H. Crowe, secretary of the C.A.A.U., last evening. Secretary Wilkins has received word from Peterborough to the effect that they are ready to line up, and this makes a third section, with Kingston, Peterborough and perhaps Port Hope grouped together. There is no doubt but that the league will be started about the second week in January, as the Montreal and Ottawa clubs have practically completed arrangements for the eastern group, while London, Stratford, Brantford, Hamilton, and the two city teams, West End and Central, are all ready to draw up the western group schedule.

Secretary Ernie Wilkins of the Canadian Amateur Athletic League, the Y. M. C. A. controlling body, has charge of the arrangements, and the three group schedules will be drawn up immediately. It is altogether likely that the winners of the Western and Midland groups will meet in the semi-finals, and the winners meet the survivors of the Eastern group for the inter-provincial championship.

Kingston raised a big noise at being left out in the early arrangements but are satisfied with the new grouping.—Toronto News.

THE TIGERS ARE THE CHAMPIONS

Defeat Arrows in Whirlwind Finish And Win The Cup!

The Y. M. C. A. Tigar basketball team cinched the Senior League championship last night and incidentally the Greasman trophy, by defeating the Arrows, after a close game, by the score of 23 to 17. The Tigers were behind at half time by the score of 14 to 8 and only won out in the final 5 or 6 minutes of play, which made a fast conclusion to an exciting game. The Arrows played good ball throughout and the spectators considered them sure winners until the last spurt of the jungle men.

Weatherstone and Staunton were the stars of the winners, while Dobson on the Arrow team shone on the defence. The fast Arrow forwards were watched too closely to get in effective work.

This win makes the third straight for the Tigers, who have played consistent ball all season. The line-up of the teams was:—

Tigers—Forwards, Wallace, Sutherland; centre, Staunton; defence, Weatherstone, Loomis.

Arrows—Forwards, F Greasman, G Miller; centre, Gillespie; defence, Dobson, Darling.

Referees—Hall and James.

The standing of the teams in the league is:—

	Won.	Lost.
Tigers	3	0
Arrows	2	1
Harriers	1	2

BRUCE RIDPATH HOME AGAIN

Wonderful Lakefield Canoeist Returns To Canada After Europe Trip

D. Bruce Ridpath, the hockeyist and canoeist, who has been in Europe for the past three months, returned home yesterday. He played in the stationary circuses in Berlin and Hamburg, and his engagement lasted from September 18 to November 23. He never missed a performance, playing once a day. He was billed as "D. Bruce Ridpath, of Chicago, the aquatic wonder." The Germans thought Chicago was better known than Toronto, and billed the young Canadian as coming from that place.

Ridpath will likely stay in Toronto this winter and play hockey with the professional team. He has an offer from Manager Sinclair of the P.A.C. hockey team of Pittsburg.

Next season after a tour of the States in summer months, Ridpath has engagements at the New York Hippodrome, and the four Old Country Hippodromes at London, Manchester, Liverpool and Glasgow. He sold his canoes in Berlin, but has new ones which were built at Peterborough and Toronto.

Popular Cure for Croup

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, as a cure for croup, will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success. It is wonderfully prompt in relieving the cough, clearing the air passages and soothing the excited nerves. Many mothers who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on keep this great medicine promptly on hand for use in case of emergency.

The Passing Of Two Old Animals

Latest Warsaw News—Big Department Store Ready For Christmas

Warsaw, Dec. 12.—Everything is being arranged to have the new Selkirk planing mill begin operations about the first of the New Year. The machinery has all been shipped and is being placed on the mill site on the lot above the village. A large quantity of lumber is now on the ground ready to be placed and the addition of this new industry to Warsaw is welcomed.

The array of Christmas goods at A. F. Choate's departmental store is far in advance of any ever shown here before. The store has been converted into a headquarterrs for Santa Claus. All lines are complete; something to please every taste and suit every purse.

Two of the oldest animals in this vicinity have been removed by death. They both belonged to Miss Lukey—one was a horse aged 31 years, and the other a cat aged 21. The horse's life was ended yesterday by being shot on account of its age, and the cat gave up her life on the same day for the same reason. A double funeral was held both being laid to rest together after long and faithful lives.

A meeting of the Farmers' and Woman's Institute was held yesterday in the town hall here. Mrs. Colin Campbell of Windsor addressed the ladies in the afternoon and a general meeting at night. Other excellent addresses were delivered by prominent dairymen.

Pains and Aches of The Aged

LARGELY DUE TO DERANGEMENTS OF THE LIVER, KIDNEYS AND BOWELS, WHICH ARE OVERCOME BY

You do not feel so young as you used to. The joints are a bit stiff. And you have dull, heavy pains in the back and limbs, with attacks of rheumatism, it may be.

It is possible you have found out that the cause of trouble rests with the sluggish action of the kidneys, liver and bowels, but if you have not used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you have not tested the effective treatment for these conditions.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a comfort to the aged largely because of their unique combined action on the whole excretory system.

Constipation and biliousness can no longer exist when the liver is energized to action by the use of this great medicine.

Kidney derangements and backache likewise disappear when the kidneys are invigorated, and an occasional dose of these pills ensures the elimination of uric acid from the system.

Almost daily we hear of aged people whose pains and aches have been overcome and whose lives have been made more comfortable and more happy by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. James Simpson, Newcastle Mills, Northumberland County, Ont., writes: "This is to certify that I was sick in bed the most of the time for three years with kidney disease. I took several bottles of pills—different kinds—and a great many other kinds of patent medicines; besides this I was under treatment by four different doctors during the time, and not able to work. I began to take Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and since that time have been working every day, although a man nearly 70 years of age. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have cured me."

In every family there is need of just such a medicine as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to calm constipation, backache, biliousness, indigestion, and prevent dangerous and fatal diseases of the kidneys and bowels. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Music and Drama

HOOLIGAN IN NEW YORK

The leading female role in "Hooligan in New York" is a blind girl who earns a living selling flowers in the streets of the great city. A supposed friend of her father has possession of property that rightfully belongs to her, and fearing that she may eventually secure it, he plots to murder her and thus make himself secure. She is rescued by Hooligan, and the villian is finally brought to justice. The character is a sympathetic one, and Miss Nellie La Fleur, who will be seen in it at the "Grand" next Saturday is said to be the ideal. It is a peculiar fact that during the six years Miss La Fleur has been in the theatrical profession she has played no less than six blind girl parts, in "The Two Orphans," "Brother for Brother," "Under the City Lamps," "The Ministers' Daughters," "Young Mrs. Winthrop," and "Hooligan in New York." She regards her present role as the best of them all, and refused a similar part in a new production which promises to remain the entire season on Broadway, to continue with "Hooligan in New York."

MRS. STORY'S RECITAL

The following despatch from Ottawa refers to a former Peterborough lady, Mrs. E D Story, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Tivey, of East City:

St. George's parish hall was filled last evening when Mrs. E D Story gave a most enjoyable recital. Every number was an artistic treat and the audience gave the talentd singer a most flattering reception.

Mrs. Story is the possessor of a rich contralto voice, magnificent in quality and of great range. She can sing contralto or soprano with equal ease, due doubtless in a large measure to her robust constitution. Her voice is highly cultivated and her various interpretations last evening were most artistic. Mrs. Story studied abroad for two years, but last year, on her return, was prevented through illness from giving a recital. She however, gave a recital three weeks ago which proved so enjoyable that a number of musical people asked her to repeat it. This she consented to do and the recital last evening was an even greater success than was the first. The hall was packed and the programme was a most pleasing one. Mrs. Story was presented with several beautiful bouquets during the evening. The Indian Love Songs, The Three Wishes, by Pinsuti, the Ave Maria from Cavalliera Rusticana, with violin obligato, and the Swing Song by De Koven, were the most pleasing numbers and to these she had to respond with hearty encores. All the numbers, however, were exceedingly well received. Mrs. Story was assisted by Mr. Donald Heins, violinist, who was also well received and had to respond to encores. Mr. Arthur Dorey played the accompaniments most acceptably.

FATAL FLOWER

The management of the Grand Opera House made no mistake when they promised a treat to their patrons in the presentation of the Fatal Flower. The play was a new one to the local theatre-goers and in fact the theme is a novel one and is comparatively new in the line of dramas. As the action developed the heart interest increased and several calls were given the artists who without exception were realistically true to their parts.

William Walcott and Florence Rosland in the leading roles were far above the ordinary class of actors seen in one night plays and received able support from Charles H. Booth, Ella Cameron and in fact the whole company. The story of the play centres around a peculiar flower whose scent means death in 24 hours to anyone inhaling it. There are many dramatic episodes in the action leading to the satisfactory finale.

One of the strong points of the production was the scenery which in detail was perfect. Three complete settings were offered and materially enhanced the realism of the play. The extreme favour with which the play was received last night, warrants the management of the Opera House in arranging for a return engagement of "The Fatal Flower."

DECEMBER NUMBER OF ROD AND GUN

A Handsome Magazine With Some Splendid Stories of the Hunt

Extra attractions are the rule for Christmas numbers and in this particular the December issue of "Rod and Gun and Motor Sports in Canada," published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, Ont., is by no means behind. The quality and character of the contents are both high and such as must prove attractive to every sportsman, while the Christmas flavour, though not too pronounced, is well in evidence. An exploration paper of exceptional interest leads off, the traveller, with a half breed guide, making his way from the End of Steel on the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway to Moose Factory on Hudson Bay. Two stories of hunters lost in the woods are most interesting experiences which will come home to those who are acquainted with our pathless forests. Some Christmas Fox Hunts, a Christmas Day spent in Murrie Zoology on the shores of the Pacific in British Columbia, and a story of a police patrol under great difficulties in the far north-land are all notable articles. The story of how an ungrateful settler met his end in a snow blizzard on Christmas Eve, and how a bear was defeated by snowballs are specimens of the variety of contents which make this number an advance upon all that has gone before. "Three Hours in a Bear Trap" is a vivid piece of description of a misadventure in the backwoods, while Indian Cooking in Northern Canada supplies another view of life in Canadian forests which prove so attractive to all students of outdoor life. For variety and interest this number is unsurpassed and should be the one magazine no sportsman means to miss. Every article is interesting and many of them are of special interest.

BY-LAW IN WORKING ORDER

And Snow Shovelling is The Fashion of The Hour

With yesterday's fall of snow the citizens were quietly informed that the sidewalks within the fire limits must be cleaned. Not only that, but the authorities do not intend to make the rounds after every fall of snow, as once told is considered sufficient.

Yesterday afternoon P. C. Meharry began the campaign, invested with the power that the famous by-law provided. Half an hour later the main street was a hive of industry resounding in many keys from the various scrapers and shovels used in the work.

The city itself received a notice of its share of the work, the Mayor being told to have the snow cleaned from the walks in front of the civic property. The bylaw means extra work for the junior clerks and messenger boys, and next spring the marks of their toil will surely be remembered by the chipped pavement.

DANDRUFF CAUSED BY A GERM

A new Discovery That Kills the Germ and Prevents Baldness

Pretty nearly all the hair preparations for dandruff have some merit in allaying itching of the scalp, and in being a fairly good dressing for the hair, but there is only one that recognizes what causes dandruff, falling hair and baldness, and that destroys the cause, a little germ—and that is Newbro's Herpicide. This germ eats its way into the scalp, it digs up the scalp into little white scales. Unless it is destroyed there's no permanent stopping of falling hair and cure of dandruff and baldness. Newbro's Herpicide kills the germ. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1. THE STORE THAT NEVER DISAPPOINTS

What do the Women Like?

A HARD QUESTION ANSWERED EASILY

Ever think how cosy looking a nice Eiderdown Dressing Gown or Sack was? Yes, they are cosy looking, and not only that but they are cosy and comfortable too. There's no woman but what would deny herself some other luxury for a pretty Dressing Gown, even if it was only for evening wear. They have an air of refinement about them these cold evenings. Let us suggest that if you have a lady friend that you are undecided about what you will give her try one of our EIDERDOWN GARMENTS.

EIDERDOWN WEARABLES

Dressing Gowns and Bath Robes — In all the newest and most popular shades of the season, made of fine soft Eiderdown and trimmed with facings of satin and piping of fancy cord. These garments are very serviceable. See them before you decide on anything else. Xmas Special Prices 4.40, 5.40, $7.00

These, too, are very popular among the fair sex, they are loose fitting, comfort giving house garments, made of fine Eiderdown, the most popular material for such purposes. The shades are the same as in the gowns, viz. : grey, light blue light and dark reds, beautifully trimmed with facings of suitable colored satins, and piped with fancy cord. They are all fastened with the braid bars and loops. Prices Special for Xmas Trade..... 1.25, 2.25, $3.00

Dressing Sacques

LACE, SILK AND LAWN BLOUSES

In the history of this business we have never before shown such a complete range, nor such exquisite styles in fancy Waists as we are showing this season, nothing in the wardrobe is so much thought of by the average woman as beautiful Waists. A Skirt may be ever so plain but when a handsomely trimmed Waist is worn with it, she feels satisfied that her outfit is up to the popular fancy and rightly, too, for the plainer the skirt the more enhanced is the appearance of the Waist. Following are a few of our most admired lines :—

Brussels Net—Cream with tucked yoke and trimmings of insertion and self frillings, made with the new kimona sleeve. This is one of our most admired waists for The Price $6

Fillette Net Waists—with full ¾ sleeves, elegantly trimmed in pointed yoke effect, with lace insertion and floral applique over the shoulder, giving rich soft appearance Our $5 Style

Fittette Lace—In the popular ecru shade made with the new kimona sleeve effect, prettily trimmed with lace insertion and shadow embroidery, net insertion in the long pointed yoke effect.... Price $10

White Net—Fine Brussels Net, made in the pretty new kimona style, with front and back yoke and shoulder straps of Fillette Lace, Insertion and Valenciennes Lace Price $10

CONCERTED ACTION ADVOCATED

In Order to Prevent Over-lapping On Christmas Gifts to the Poor

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—With the approach of the Christmas season, when every one who is able to do so, delights in distributing Christmas cheer, some arrangements should be made by the different organizations in connection with the churches, which would prevent over-lapping in the disbursement of gifts. It has come to my notice recently, as well as in former years, that there are some people who at this time of the year are sending their children to different Sunday Schools each Sunday in order to obatin, as they say, for each one Christmas gifts. The result of this is, besides encouraging such a contemptible practice, that some people have plenty of help, while the deserving ones are overlooked or fare sparsely. Would it not be well to have a meeting of each clergyman and a member of each congregation to make a list of the names of the people to be remembered and, while distributing the gifts each one for himself, yet prevent any organized attempt to make a mare tout of the charitably disposed citizens. While I am writing I may mention that I will be glad to distribute, as I have done the last year, clothing among the deserving poor, if the public will entrust me with it and send old clothing to me.

Faithfully yours,
E. A. LANGFELDT.
St. Luke's Rectory.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, and the glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food , the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

ONTARIO FARMERS TO BLAME

For The Falling Off in Price of Ontario Wheat—Hints for Farmers

GOOD MONEY IN WHEAT

Our farmers are more to blame than anyone else for the present low price of Ontario wheat. When Western wheat first became a competitor of our Ontario grain our farmers made no effort to keep the intruder out. Instead of fighting against the introduction of Manitoba patent flour they bought Western flours. Naturally Ontario wheat was neglected; many mills closed down and the demand for Ontario wheat became nil. Yet our farmers complain that there is no money in wheat.

There is good money in wheat, and our farmers can get it out by forcing up the prices. Since our millers have perfected blended flours there is no reason why our farmers should buy Western flours. Blended flours (containing Ontario wheat and a small quantity of Manitoba wheat,) are better both for bread and pastry than any flour milled of a single kind of wheat. One of the leading bakeries of Toronto, has tried out the blended flours, and it has been the means of doubling and trebling their business on "home-made"bread. In the Maritime Provinces blended flours are capturing the market and have driven "Western hard patent flours" out of many stores entirely.

Blending Flours

What our farmers should do is to stop spending their money for Western flour, and buy blending flours, milled by our own millers of our own Ontario wheat. In this way the money which now goes to the wheat growers in Alberta and Manitoba would stay right here at home. And as the demand for blended flours increase the demand for Ontario wheat will increase, and higher prices will be obtained for their crops by the farmers.

It is the farmers' fault too, that dairymen and stockmen are paying such high prices for bran and shorts. When our mills do not grind much grain there is a corresponding shortage in the amount of bran, etc., for sale. Those who keep cattle and horses must get their feed from Alberta and Manitoba, where there is plenty of wheat raised, and where the mills are grinding out great quantities of feed. With a good healthy demand for Ontario flours our mills will be running to their full capacity, plenty of bran and shorts would be produced and with no freight charges to pay the prices necessarily go down.

AN IMMIGRANT ARRIVES LATE

A Good Man Looking For a Position With a Farmer

Among the recent immigrants who have arrived from the Old Country is an Englishman who applied for work yesterday to Mr. Geo. Howson at the local immigration office. He arrived in Canada about a week ago and is looking for a position with a farmer. From his appearance he is an industrious young man and is willing to work. He neither uses tobacco nor intoxicants. He has a good education and will make a good man for any farmer.

Grand Jury Once Again Recommend House of Refuge

They Visited Gaol and County House of Refuge Yesterday—Presentment Made This Morning

VAGRANTS IN THE JAIL

At this morning's session of the County Court, before the regular business was proceeded with, the Grand Jury made their presentment in which the necessity of erecting a City House of Refuge was urged, in which to keep the city's poor, who are now compelled to stay in the gaol. The County House of Refuge was visited yesterday afternoon and a favourable report made upon it. The Grand Jury's presentment was as follows:—

To His Honour Judge Weller:

We, the Grand Jury at the County Court of the County of Peterborough beg leave to report as follows:—

We have visited the County Jail and find everything connected with it in a very satisfactory condition, which shows well for the officials in charge. We found 18 inmates, males, no females, in the Jail, 10 vagrants and 8 for various offences. The former were mostly elderly men whose only offence was poverty, and we would strongly recommend that some provision be made at an early date to provide a more suitable place to keep them.

We also visited the County House of Refuge, near Lakefield and we found it a beautiful, substantial structure, eminently suited for the purpose for which it was built. Everything connected with it was scrupulously clean and comfortable. We found 23 inmates, 13 males and 10 females, all of whom when spoken with, expressed themselves as quite satisfied with their treatment and home-like surroundings. This place appears to be almost an ideal home for these poor old people, and we again express a hope that at no distant date some provision will be made whereby the City's poor may receive the same kind of care and treatment in a suitable building as is provided for those of the County.

We would recommend the planting of shade trees on the grounds around the House of Refuge. This will add greatly to the appearance of the property.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, and that you may be spared to hold for many years the exalted position you now occupy,

Yours respectfully,
W. E. CONWAY,
Foreman.

His Honour Judge Weller, commented on the report, complimenting the jurors and expressing his pleasure at their visit to the House of Refuge.

HANDSOME NEW SIGN ERECTED

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons Have Completed One For Mr. Thos. Barrie

One of the handsomest and most modern signs ever seen on George street was erected at Mr. T. Barrie's store this morning and has attracted considerable attention and will probably continue to do so to-night when the effect of the illumination will be seen. The sign runs up the side of the building almost to the roof and is surmounted by a picture of the bear, the trade-mark of the firm, while in large gold letters on both sides is the legend "Barrie's." At night the sign will be brilliantly illuminated and the name will be discernible for blocks. The sign is the work of the sign department of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, and is a credit to that firm.

THREE RULES

Eat well, dress well, live well. If you don't do all of these three you will be sick. If your kidneys, liver, stomach or blood are out of order you have broken one of these rules. A simple remedy for any of these ailments is the old time sweet spirits of nitre, syrup of rhubarb, and compound vimsea. Mix these in the following proportions: one ounce sweet spirits of nitre, four ounces syrup of rhubarb, and one ounce compound vimsea. Dose, a dessertspoonful in a little water after meals and at bedtime. A few doses will affect a cure. Observe the above rules, and further attacks should not occur.—8.

George Street Sunday Teachers Discussed Subject Last Night

The teachers at the George street Methodist Sunday school, held a meeting last night in which matters in connection with the school library were discussed. A new library room larger and more convenient than the present one, has been arranged in the north-west corner of the basement, and at the meeting last night it was decided to purchase new book shelves and other fittings for the room, which will be in use in a short time. New books will likely be added and the library made as complete and put in as good shape as possible.

DISTRIBUTION OF SEED GRAINS

How Farmers and Gardeners May Obtain a New Variety

Visitors to the Ontario Agricultural College during the past summer were shown a Holstein-Friesian cow, called Bontje 4 Pietertje DeKol, which was expected to produce 24,000 pounds of milk within the year. As a matter of fact, she has actually exceeded this estimate. From October 25, 1906, to October 25, 1907, she has given 30,778 pounds of milk, testing 3-fraction over 3.76 per cent., and containing 781.91 pounds of butter-fat. The cost of the feed, as charged up by the College authorities, was $72.66. The value of the butter-fat, at prices that have been paid neighbouring farmers by the College creamery, was $190.35. If the 29,000 pounds of skim milk and butter milk were to be valued at, say 20c per cwt., it would amount to $10. Adding this to the value of the butter-fat, the total yield of butter-fat and skim milk would equal $200.35. Deducting the cost of feed, we have a profit over feed consumed, of $157.72. At the price of cream which has been received during the past year by her former owner, Mr. Geo. Rice of Tillsonburg, Ont., the butter-fat in this cow's milk would have been worth $224.57. The skim milk in this case would have been, say 175 cwt., worth $35, making total proceeds of $259.57; or a profit, over cost of feed, of $186.91. To state this cow's record another way, according to the rule for estimating butter yield by adding one-sixth to the butter-fat, the estimated quantity of butter which could have been made from the cow's milk was practically 912 1-4 pounds, which is about six times the yield of the average cow of this country. This is a wonderful record, one which very few cows would be capable of making. Prof. Dean writes that so far as he is aware, it is one of the best, if not the best, ever made in Canada, and he doubts whether any cow, beginning her record before she was four years old has a better one.—Farmer's Advocate.

SOME FIGURES FOR FARMERS

Money Received From Government For School Purposes—Some Certificates Withheld

BASED ON EQUIPMENT

The following from the Ontario Department of Agriculture, gives some interesting information for the farmers;

It is seldom that the farmer allows himself to be carried away by a panic. His customary hard common sense and conservative methods usually protects him from this evil; but when we hear of young pigs being sold at 50 cents each at weaning time, or slaughtered in order to stop their demands for food, it would seem that something closely approaching a panic must be abroad in the land.

There probably never was a panic which did not aggravate the evil which set it in motion and the demoralising effects of the present panic among farmers must be apparent to everyone. Doubtless there are some farmers who are forced to sell their pigs through sheer necessity but such unfortunate cases are not sufficiently numerous to account for all the young pigs and breeding sows which are being dumped upon a doubly glutted market at present. The farmer with feed in his bins has need to do some careful calculating before deciding to throw away his pigs. Selling stock upon a poor market in order to sell grain upon a high market is not always a profitable enterprise and the the number of dollars coming into the treasury during the year may be considerably less under this method than had the grain been marketed in the form of meat. Farm animals, and especially hogs, consume and turn into valuable meat, many products which otherwise would have been wasted, and though the farmer may not always realize the highest market prices for the grain fed to the hogs the other unsalable products for which the hogs have provided a market will generally under a careful system of feeding much more than make up the deficiency.

Where is the Profit

What does the farmer gain by sacrificing his hogs and selling his grain? In the first place he obtains prevailing market prices for his grain, which might, or might not, have been obtained had the grain been fed to hogs. Secondly, he saves the labour of feeding the hogs. Thirdly, he has less risk, and less capital invested. Against this he has incurred a heavy loss by disposing of his stock on a glutted market. He still has the cost of teaming the grain to market after cleaning it. He has lost the sale of a numberr of products which the hogs could profitably utilize. He has lost a lot of valuable fertility, the absence o which will lessen his next crop, and hence increase the cost of production. He has placed himself in a position where he cannot take advantage of the high prices for finished hogs which seems certain to prevail when the present excitement has burned itself out; and after all he is not absolutely certain that he has got any more for his grain than if he had fed it to his hogs.

WATCH YOUR TONGUE

If Furred and Coated, it is a Warning of Trouble To Come

When it is the morning after the night before you do not have to look at your tongue to know that the stomach is upset, the head is aching with a dull rhythm, and that all the world looks black and dreary.

It may have been lobster Newburgh, Welsh rarebit or some other tasty dish that looked much better at night than the morning after. There is no need to look at the tongue thermometer then for symptoms of trouble. You naturally go to your box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, and with one of the little relievers bring joy and gladness to the physical system.

The real time to watch the tongue is all of the time. If it is coated with a white fur, or possibly with dark trimmings, even though the stomach does not tell you by the acute pains of indigestion that it needs help, yet the coating shows that you are getting into a bad way and that there is need of Mi-o-na.

Mi-o-na is so positive, so sure, so reliable in its curative action upon the stomach, that Mr. Madill, the local agent, gives an absolute guarantee with every 50-cent box he sells, to refund the money unless the remedy gives absolute and complete satisfaction.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF TRAVELLERS

Dominion Commercial Men Will Congregate in Montreal

The annual banquet of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association will take place on the 23rd of December at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, at 7.30 p.m. As usual every year this notable function, of a really powerful Association, will unite the most prominent men in financial, commercial and political circles.

Commercial travellers, going, in every direction, from one end of the Dominion to another are accomplishing an active commercial mission, disseminating broadcast, ideas and works of activity and progress. They are the practical messengers and the essential co-operators of the development of the country. Their union and their strength is synonymous to the strength, value, and progress of the entire nation.

TORN TO PIECES BY MAD DOG

Woman Terribly Mangled—Six Policemen Necessary to Stop Brute

New York, December 13. — (Special). — Mrs. Frederick A. Vedder, a young woman recently married, was almost torn to pieces in her home at 444 Fifteenth street, Brooklyn, by a St. Bernard dog that suddenly developed rabies.

Her face, throat and ears were torn and her arms and legs terribly lacerated by the mad animal. The St. Bernard had always been a peculiarly faithful and gentle animal. Mrs. Vedder was sewing in the parlour of the apartment when the animal attacked her.

A tenant in the house telephoned to the police station, and six reserves were rushed to the house. When they burst in the door of the flat the dog turned from the unconscious young woman and attacked them. The St. Bernard was finally shot to death.

When the policemen arrived the dog had its fangs in its mistress' throat and a few minutes later the young woman would have been dead.

When she was turned over to the staff physicians in the hospital they said there was little chance of her recovery as hydrophobia was practically certain if she survived the shock of her injuries. The Pasteur treatment was begun at once and the wounds were cauterized.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER ARRANGED

Begins in St. Andrew's Church Monday, January 6th

The week of prayer in connection with the World's Evangelical Alliance will be held in Peterborough from Jan. 6th to Jan. 10th in the various churches beginning with St. Andrew's on Monday night. On Tuesday night it will be held in Murray and Park street Baptist churches; on Wednesday night in the George street Methodist church; on Thursday night in Knox Presbyterian, and Mark street Methodist churches; on Friday night in St. Paul's. It is expected that all those interested will keep the week clear, as especial care has been taken to arrange interesting and suitable subjects for consideration.

BRIDGE OVER THE OUSE COMPLETED

Structure is 70 Feet Long—Built By The County

The new bridge being erected by the county over the Ouse River, near Norwood, will be completed before to-morrow night. The abutment construction was done by Mr. J. Hayes of Peterborough, and the steel work by the Dickson Company of Campbellford. The bridge is 70 feet long and is said to be substantially built. It is situated in Asphodel, about four miles west of Norwood.

OMEMEE ORGANIZES IN HOCKEY

But They Cannot Play City League This Year—Train Service not Suitable

WANT EXHIBITION GAMES

Omemee can not see its way clear to come into the City Hockey League this year on account of the train service when they come to Peterborough. The team is desirous, however, to get on a few exhibition games with local sevens, as the following letter to the secretary of the league will indicate:

Dear Sir,—Your letter of a few days ago to Mr. Sheriff has been handed me since our reorganization meeting of last week. In reply I would say the matter was discussed at our meeting, and the proposal to join the P.C.H.L. regretfully turned down, the sole reason being the train service. Trains are so arranged that we could not get to Peterborough without spending all night there, or the alternative of driving down. The latter we might do occasionally, but not for a regular and frequent schedule. However, although we cannot see our way clear to join the league, we would be sorry not to meet the league teams in exhibition games this winter, as your teams which played here last winter made a very favourable impression here. The train service this way is all that could be desired, and very convenient to you, and we would like to arrange for such matches as freely as possible, with return matches when dates are convenient to both. We will endeavour to give you as clean, gentlemanly games as last year and trim you by as large margins as those of last year or as those by which you may be able to serve us, perhaps, when we give you the return in Peterborough. Strathcona or others will be able to tell you what kind of sports they have found our boys in the past.

Our rink is electric lighted this year and several other improvements have been made, giving better dressing room accommodation.

In conclusion, tell the boys that if we are not in the league this winter it is not because we will not have a good team and good prospects of winning out, and that I shall be glad to discuss dates with you at any time.

Yours truly,
N. H. SUTTON,
Sec.-Treas.

Popular Cure for Croup

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, as a cure for croup, will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success. It is wonderfully prompt in relieving the cough, clearing the air passages and soothing the excited nerves. Many mothers who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on keep this great medicine promptly on hand for use in case of emergency.

GOOD GOING HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

C. P. R. Steamer Empress of Britain Leaves St. John To-day

St. John, N.B., Dec. 13—Steamship Empress of Britain of the C.P.R. fleet sailing from St. John this afternoon will take away more than 1,500 passengers. This, it is claimed, will be the largest number ever leaving a Canadian port on an eastbound steamer, and will be fully 200 more than were carried on the Christmas steamer of the C. P. R. last year.

The total number carried by the C. P. R. eastward in December last was about 3,000. This season more than that number have gone, and there are still two boats, so that the total will be about double that of last year.

TORTURED DAY AND NIGHT

Zam-Buk Cures Piles

That there is no end to the healing powers of Zam-Buk is being demonstrated every day. Mr. Julius Glaser, of Deabgh, Ont., was tortured day and night with blind bleeding piles, so bad that he says: "I could find no comfort standing, sitting or lying down, and was unable to do any work. One day my eyes rested upon a little sample box of Zam-Buk. I picked it up and read the words, CURES PILES. I started using Zam-Buk that night, and before I could purchase a large box I was already cured, and HAVE NOT BEEN TROUBLED SINCE. You may publish this if you wish for the benefit of other sufferers." This is only one of the many cases where Zam-Buk has healed piles when all else failed. Why do you go on suffering when such a splendid remedy is near at hand? Zam-Buk heals sores, cures eczema, skin eruptions, ulcers, ringworm, itch, barber's rash, blood poison, bad leg, salt rheum, abrasions, abscesses, cuts, burns, scalds and all skin injuries and diseases. Of all stores and druggists at 50 cents, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. 3 boxes for $1.25.

GOES TO WEEP AT HIS OWN GRAVE

John Gallagher Didn't Know he Was Dead and Buried

Examiner Special.

Port Huron, Mich., Dec. 13 — At the head of a grave in Flint Cemetery, is a small white marble tombstone, bearing the inscription, "John Gallagher," and information to the effect that he died twenty years ago, having been killed by a train. This afternoon or to-morrow morning John Gallagher is going to Flint to weep at his own grave.

Twenty-eight years ago Gallagher left home and nothing was heard of him until it was thought that he was killed by a train near Flint. The relatives buried the remains in Flint, and have since that time believed the man dead.

While his mother, Mrs. John Roupree, was eating her supper, there came a knock at the door, and she opened it to fidn herself face to face with a stranger.

'Hello, mother!" said the man.

But mother didn't know her son, so changed was he, and it took some minutes to convince her that her boy stood before her.

Gallagher had travelled nearly around the globe several times, and has learned more or less of eight languages during his sojourn.

Ill Temper From a bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable, or more gloomy and discouraged, than liver complaint, and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia, and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right, and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

Undisputed Facts About

Zutoo

Zutoo tablets are now recognized as being without doubt or question, the best and only safe remedy on the market for headaches and colds.

They have practically displaced all other cures, and are now the only one used to any extent.

The reason is doubtless found in this further fact.

Zutoo tablets not only cure headache and colds but, unlike many other remedies, do not affect the heart, nerves or stomach.

ENGLAND'S GAMBLING ROOM.

British Journals Protest That Limerick Craze Should Be Stopped.

Many people are asking wherein the Limerick competitions of the English periodicals differ from lotteries and raffles. The claim is made by the organizers of the contests that every "fifth line" to these complete verses is weighed in the balance. But judging alike from the enormity of the task and the worthlessness of some of the prize-winning answers, it is gravely doubtful whether the scrutiny is very close. It is urged on many sides that Limerick competitions are lotteries pure and simple, and should be suppressed.

One weekly, after retaining over $2,000 has still $16,500 left for distribution. The first twenty competitors will each receive $625 for a line of alleged poetry. The vast sum received shows how extensive is the new craze, for it comprises 150,000 sixpences. That each of these answers is carefully examined is a contention that can scarcely be accepted.

The judging is supposedly done by the editor and some novelist of standing. But The British Weekly claims that the real work is done as follows: —In the first place a number of clerks open the envelopes, carefully remove the "tanners," and throw in the waste-paper basket such lines that make no attempt at scanning. Further sifting takes place, and finally a few hundred answers are sent up to the referees for final adjudication.

Frequently it happens that two contestants send in identically the same lines; one gets a large cash prize and the other is ignored. But the aggrieved one, having agreed to accept the editor's decision as final, has no redress.

Advertisements are also published of firms that will supply missing lines for such people as have not enough poetic invention to write their own guesses. Most of these lines incline to that lowest form of wit-puns. But the claim is made that many purchasers of these poetic tips have carried off substantial prizes.

The suggestion is also made by London Truth that many faulty and foolish lines are included among the prize-winners to gull into the competition a class of people who in any bona-fide contest of brain would not have the least possible chance. While not making any insinuation as to the probity of the judges, it will be interesting to read a Limerick that has just captured a $225 reward of merit—

A short-sighted sportaman of Bray
Shot straight at a partridge one day,
But a pig in the field
Gave a jump and then squealed
Ditto—3 sheep, 2 cows, 1 horse (bay).

"This fad," says the British Weekly, "has come to a point at which it is necessary for the moral health of the nation to call a halt. We hope to hear that action is taken and we especially hope to hear that some of the great newspaper proprietors who began the use of Limericks without any evil intention, will now desist in the interests of the people.

"If these competitions are not illegal, there is no reason why a Limerick shop should not be opened, where you could go in, fill in a coupon, hand in sixpence, and have the decision published outside the shop that night."

BURGLARS IN OLD LONDON.

Gangs of Recently Released Thieves Seem to Cause Epidemic.

London and the suburbs are suffering from a burglary epidemic more serious than any hitherto experienced in the neighborhood of the metropolis.

North, south, east and west, expert gangs are at work making rich hauls. Many of them are masked burglars and do not hesitate, when the circumstances require it, to display, if not to use, arms.

Cricklewood is one of the districts most affected, and a veritable reign of terror exists among householders there. Gangs are also exceptionally busy in Surbiton and the surrounding country, where at least a dozen daring burglaries have taken place of late.

"The view taken by the police," a prominent insurance official says, "is that the extraordinary prevalence of burglary is due to Herbert Gladstone's action in granting wholesale remission of sentences to criminals serving terms of imprisonment under six months.

"This mistaken act of clemency has resulted in London and the suburbs being flooded with thieves and burglars, who have taken advantage of their unexpected freedom to exercise their talents during the dark and foggy autumn nights."

The police are not indifferent or inactive, though they are largely blamed by the sufferers. Every article stolen has been fully described and com-

AN EATING ULCER.

Ulcers are a skin disease, and are more or less directly occasioned by a bad state of the blood, which produces acrid humors and corrupts the secretions.

No one can expect to have a skin free from disease when the blood is in a disordered condition and the stomach and bowels acting feebly in consequence.

Through its wonderful cleansing, purifying powers on the blood, and its renovating action on the entire system, Burdock Blood Bitters has made thousands of cures of different skin diseases during the past thirty years it has been on the market.

Mrs. Joseph Robinson, Hallerton, Que., writes: "I had an eating ulcer on my ankle. I took two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters and it worked like a charm, cleaning out all the impurities from my system and improving my appetite. While taking the B.B.B. internally I used it externally to cleanse the sore, and it helped plete lists have been sent round to jewelers and pawn-brokers.

Special plain clothes men have been put on, with instructions to watch for any ticket-of-leave man or ex-convict who may be prowling around.

"There are many of these characters of whom we have lost trace," said a Scotland Yard detective to an Express representative recently.

"I firmly believe that it is these men who are doing the mischief. They have quitted their usual haunts, and are as slippery as ells. But they will be taken sooner or later."

Up-to-Date Diplomatist.

Sir Eldon Gorst, Lord Cromer's successor in Egypt, has managed to shock Cairo—not that people think it will do Cairo any harm—by driving his own motor-car, and by calling on the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire clad in white duck trousers, grey coat, and soft felt hat. Sir Eldon Gorst is going to reduce English officials and put in their places Egyptians, especially in the Irrigation Department. This has caused consternation among the natives who own land. One declared angrily, "This means bakshish (bribery) and the kourbash (whipping) again." It would surprise many to know, writes a Cairo correspondent, the absolute faith and trust they have in the integrity of the English irrigation officer.

The Outlook Is Dark.

The junior partner in a certain law firm passed into his office a day or two ago with a dark cloud shadowing his usually sunny front. An undercierk drew the attention of the managing clerk to the fact, expressing uneasiness.

"I guess you'd be upset, too, if you were in his position," the superior explained. "You know he's been married less than a year and he and his wife never had a dispute. Well, sir, last night she dreamed he had abused her, and she was so mad about it that she wouldn't say goodby to him this morning."

"Pretty tough, ain't it?"

"You bet it is. And the worst of it is he's afraid now she'll dream he knocked her down and have him up in a police court for felonious assault."—New York Globe.

FAMOUS DUBLIN CATHEDRAL.

Sacred Edifice Which Abounds With Historical Memories.

The falling from the tower of Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin, of the half-ton weight which supplies the motor power for the bells, owing to the snapping of the steel rope connecting it with the carillons, will recall an ancient mishap to this fabric. In 1562, during the vice-royalty of the Earl of Sussex, a near relative of Sir Philip Sydney, the celebrated soldier and scholar of the Elizabethan Court, the roof and part of the body of Christ Church fell, by which Strongbow's monument was injured. The stone for the repairing of the building owing to the injuries thus sustained was procured from the quarry at Donnybrook, which is now filled with water, and the account furnished to the Cathedral authorities for this stone and the receipt for its price are still preserved among the Cathedral archives. It is not, perhaps, generally known that Dublin is the only city with the exception of Salamanca, in which two cathedrals—Christ Church and St. Patrick's—which both belong to the Protestant Church are in the possession of one and the same religious communion. Christ Church abounds with historic memories. It possesses the heart of St. Laurence O'Toole, the great Archbishop of Dublin, which is preserved in a casket. It was in olden times a favorite place for the meeting of the Irish Parliament, and in a Parliament holden in this cathedral the exclusion of Catholics from the Irish Parliament was effected. In 1487 Lambert Simnel, the impostor who personated the Earl of Warwick, who was then a close prisoner in the Tower of London, was crowned in Christ Church by the name of Edward VI., Thomas Fitz-Gerald, Earl of Kildare, the Lord Deputy, being present. Simnel was subsequently captured by Henry VII., made a scullion in the King's kitchen, and eventually advanced to the rank of a falconer. It was in Christ Church Cathedral that the services of the Catholic Church were held for the last time in a church belonging to the English Church Establishment. During the stay of James II. in Dublin, in 1649, Catholic services were held in Christ Church, and the altar, the candlesticks, and the tabernacle then used are still preserved in the Cathedral. At a later period it was from the pulpit of Christ Church Cathedral that the violation of the Treaty of Limerick was first recommended. Dr. Dopping the Protestant Bishop of Meath, preaching in Christ Church, openly advocated the violation of that treaty, on the ground that it was not obligatory to keep faith with Papists.

BARMAIDS ARE TO STAY.

Home Secretary Says to Abolish Them Would Result in Disaster.

The British barmaid is safe. At least she will not be legislated out of existence by the present Liberal Government. The report was circulated that Home Secretary Gladstone was contemplating the inclusion of a clause in his forthcoming bill relating to the reform of the license law, that should declare the employment of girls and women in bars illegal.

A deputation accordingly waited upon the Home Secretary for the purpose of showing him that such legislation would inflict great harm upon a large and generally deserving class of women, and that barmaids, on the whole, were better paid and better looked after than women of any other trade followed by Englishwomen.

Mr. Gladstone in reply, said the Government realise that any drastic provisions to check, diminish, or put an end to the employment of women behind the bar might have an immediate result far more disastrous than any mischiefs accruing from the present system.

"I have lived in this world half a century," he added, "and I have not been a teetotaler, and I certainly had my full share of experience of the conditions of employment in licensed premises at one time of my life—I am not, I would have you understand, alluding to my recent years. Speaking of these earlier days, I may say there were few queer holes or dark corners in London that I did not explore.

"Indeed, I may go so far as to say that in the search for truth—as I hope it was—and of legitimate knowledge, I was brought to a knowledge of conditions which are perhaps hidden even from those whom I have the honor to address. I do not wish to exaggerate anything, but I do think there are conditions in certain places which are morally, physically, and economically bad."

The Times says that the reformers have not provided other employment for the hundred thousand women now behind bars. It asks: "Are they to compete for places in the tea shops? The tearoom girl is exposed to more temptation of a certain kind than the barmaid."

Changed Faces.

The nose lasts longest unchanged of all the features. The brow becomes wrinkled, and crow's feet gather round the eyes, which themselves gradually grow dim as time rolls on. Cheeks lose the bloom which cosmetics cannot replace and lips their fullness and color. The chin, dimpled in youth, develops angularities or globularities, as the case may be, and the eyebrows become heavy with the crop of many years' growth. The nose shows no mark comparable to these familiar facial indications of the approach of old age and practically enjoys immunity from the ravages which time makes on the other features of the face. Next to the nose, probably the ears, as a rule, show the fewest and least obvious signs of old age.

A Fine Chess Player.

The Archbishop of Canterbury is a skillful and, in some respects, a wonderful chess player, says a London paper. Once when on a visit to India he stayed with an official in charge of the laying of a new railway line, and in the daytime he made his tours with his host over the route. On these occasions the two constantly played chess without either board or men. All the moves were made verbally. They never forgot a move or a point of the game, and each could tell at any moment what was the exact position of the imaginary men on the imaginary board.

BLIND NATURALIST ADRIFT.

How He Works and Learns—What Out-Doors Means to Him.

Clarence Hawkes has written entertainingly and with a sure and confident touch of the life in the open, and it is likely that few of his readers would surmise that he is a blind man. How he works and learns, and what the out-doors means to him, are perhaps best glimpsed in the following interview with the blind naturalist.

"It has seemed to me that the most impressive facts in the storehouse of nature are perceived or felt rather than seen with the eyes. Any farmer, for example, might have seen the flight of water-fowl which attracted the attention of Bryant on that autumn afternoon, but only a poet could have perceived the great truth of God in nature, and deep significance of the spring and fall migration. Therefore, I contend that an understanding heart is as important in nature study as a bright pair of eyes, and even more so.

"When you sit on the cushion of fragrant needles at the foot of the old pine and hold your breath do you know that there is a jay's nest in the top of this old tree? But neither the pin needles nor the brown cones told me the secret. Do you not hear a soft call and the flutter of wings as the old jay flew away, and then a strident squak in a distant tree-top? Ten to one this jay is a thief who has dispossessed the rightful owner of the nest.

"What was that rustle in the thicket yonder a rabbit or squirrel? Neither, for rabbits stay on the ground and squirrels do not climb anything as slender as witch hazel. It was a bird, probably some vireo or thrush. How do I know the thicket is witch hazel? Why should I not? The most noticeable scent in the fragrance of the woods which the morning sun is steening is the smell of witch hazel.

"Did you hear the swish of a bough as it sprang back to its accustomed place? That was a squirrel. He likes to jump from the branches of one tree to another, making his way through the woods without touching his dainty feet to Mother Earth. You did not see him? Wait till he sees you and what a scolding and barking he will set up because you have invaded his private domains. Listen! Now he is clattering away like a small fury. The jay will hear him and shout the news from his tree-top; 'Look out, two men in the woods—still sitting under the old pine.' The jay is a busy tell-tale, and he has saved many a game bird in his time by his warnings.

"Had I not been given the keenest of vision for the first 14 years of my life, and had not those young eyes been ever alert for new impressions, I should have despaired of pursuing nature studies in after years. But in some mysterious manner the sensitive plates exposed in my youth secured perfect pictures of each passing season and of a multitude of the varying aspects of nature. For 22 years these plates have remained in the dark room of the soul until today each film holds a picture of remarkable brilliancy and fidelity to detail. Only the slightest sound or scent is needed to slip the slide and throw the picture on the screen of my memory. The 'honk' of a wild goose, for example, brings back to me with startling clearness that morning in the fog in the pasture, and again I see the flock rushing southward."

LOST IN A GROVE.

Remarkable Experience of Two Men In Muskoka.

That two sober and serious men, one of whom had braved a hundred battles for the British flag in remote parts of the globe, the other a practical business man, could utterly lose themselves in thirty acres of bush, within 200 rods of their camp, appears incredible; but such was the thrilling experience of Thomas Horlick, a South African hero, from Vienna, Ont., and John Ainslie of Owen Sound.

While exploring a small bush bounded by the C. N. O. and C. P. R. tracks and Lake Stuart recently, the men became so bewildered on finding that they were continually following a circular course, that when darkness and a snowstorm overtook them they completely gave up, and remained out in the storm, by a smoldering fire, which they were hardly able to keep alive, munching snowballs, till morning, when the noise of the workmen on the building they were roofing told them that shelter, warmth and food were within a stone's throw. A few minutes' walk brought them in, completely worn out, and suffering keen chagrin, but othrwise little worse for their memorable night spent in a Muskoka grove.

Tired Eyes.

People speak about their eyes being tired, meaning that the retina or seeing portion of the eye is fatigued, but such is not the case, as the retina hardly ever gets tired. The fatigue is in the inner and outer muscles attached to the eyeball and the muscle of accommodation which surrounds the lens of the eye. When a near object is to be looked at this muscle relaxes and allows the lens to thicken, increasing its refractive power. The inner and outer muscles are used in covering the eye on the object to be looked at, the inner one being especially used when a near object is looked at. It is in the three muscles mentioned that the fatigue is felt, and relief is secured temporarily by closing the eyes or gazing at far distant objects. The usual indication of strain is a redness of the rim of the eyelid, betokening a congested state of the inner surface, accompanied by some pain. Sometimes this weariness indicates the need of glasses rightly adapted to the person, and in other cases the true remedy is to massage the eye and its surroundings as far as may be with the hand wet in cold water.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cattle Steady—Hogs Firmer at Buffalo and Chicago.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—London cables are firm, at 11c to 12¾c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c to 10c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market, as reported by the railways, were 161 carloads, composed of 2522 cattle, 1134 hogs, 1653 sheep and 100 calves.

Exporters.

A couple of carloads of export bulls sold at $4.25 to $4.25 per cwt.

Butchers.

There was a better trade in butchers' cattle—that is, there was a firmer feeling, especially for anything approaching good quality. There was little change in the prices of common and inferior cattle, but the best lots were sold at better prices. The best Christmas cattle sold from $4.90 to $5.00 per cwt.; loads of good at $4.50 to $4.75; medium, $4 to $4.90; good cows and medium steers, $3.50 to $4.30; common cows at $2.25 to $3; canners and canner bulls at 75c to $2 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report a good demand for the heavier class of steers, 800 to 1100 lbs. each, which are not plentiful. The Messrs. Murby handled 200 cattle during the week at the following prices: Best feeders, 1000 to 1100 lbs., at $4.50 to $4.90 per cwt.; best feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $4.90 to $5.00; best stockers, 800 to 900 lbs., at $3.85 to $4.25; best stockers, 600 to 800 lbs., at $3.40 to $3.75; common stockers, unchanged, at $1.50 to $1.75.

Milkers and Springers.

There has been a fair trade for milkers and springers during the week, but prices were, generally speaking, lower—that is, there were few of the high-priced kind. Several dealers stated that there was a difference of from $5 to $10 per cow less than ruled two weeks ago. Prices ranged from $30 to $55 each, and one extra fine animal, large in size and possessing all the good milking qualities, sold for $70. The bulk of the best sold around $40 to $45 each. Common light cows were slow sale at $30 to $35 each.

Veal Calves.

The run was not large and prices ruled steady at $3 to $6 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The run not being too large, trade held steady at unchanged quotations. Export ewes, $3.75 to $4 per cwt.; rams, $3 to $3.50; lambs, $4 to $5.25 per cwt.

Hogs.

Prices for hogs were higher. Mr. Harris quoted selects at $5.40, fed and watered; lights, $5.15 per cwt.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

Veals—Receipts, 250 head; active and 25c higher; $5 to $6.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 3500 head; active and 10c to 15c higher; heavy and mixed, $5.25 to $5.30; Yorkers, $5.10 to $5.25; pigs, $4.60 to $4.90; roughs, $4.00 to $4.75; dairies, $5 to $5.20.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 2000 head; active and higher; lambs, $5 to $6.85; yearlings, $5.25 to $5.50; wethers, $4.75 to $5; ewes, $4.25 to $4.50; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.25; Canada lambs, $6.60 to $6.60.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Beeves—Receipts, 523; none on sale; feeling steady; exports, 2750 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 200; veals steady; barnyard calves and westerns in poor demand and weak; common to prime veals sold at $5 to $6.25 per 100 pounds; culls at $4; common barnyard calves at $2.50; Indiana calves at $3.75 to $5.50; good westerns at $4.25.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 2225; the market was fairly active and 10c to 15c higher; common to choice sheep sold at $3 to $5.25 per 100 pounds; fair to prime lambs at $4.25 to $6.75; culls at $4.

Hogs—Receipts, 3546; no sales reported.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Cattle—Receipts, estimated at about 12,000; market slow and dull; steers, $4 to $4.30; cows, $2.30 to $4.70; heifers, $3.50 to $5.25; bulls, $2.60 to $4.30; calves, $3 to $6.75; stockers and feeders, $2.40 to $4.50.

Hogs—Receipts, estimated at about 23,000; market steady; choice heavy shipping, $5.30 to $5.40; light butchers', $5.30 to $5.35; light mixed, $5.10 to $5.15; choice light, $5.15 to $5.20; packing, $4.90 to $5.; pigs, $4 to $4.75; bulk of sales, $5.20 to $5.35.

Sheep—Receipts, estimated at about 45,000; market steady; sheep, $3.90 to $5.10; lambs, $5.40 to $6.25; yearlings, $4.30 to $4.90.

Engineer Acquitted.

Barrie, Dec. 13.—As a result of a collision in the Allandale yards on Sept. 29, in which Fireman Blackburn was killed, his engineer, Henry Morris of Hamilton, was charged at the County Court here yesterday with manslaughter. Crown Attorney Cottar conducted the prosecution, and T. C. Robinette, K. C., defended Morris.

The trial lasted all day and resulted in a verdict of acquittal.

Farmer Killed by Train.

Palmerston, Dec. 13.—James Woolner, a farmer living near Moorefield, was driving across the G. T. R. track, about a mile east of Moorefield, at noon yesterday, when he was struck and thrown some 70 or 80 feet up the track, and when picked up he was dead. The horse escaped.

The train was in charge of William Frost, conductor, and George Hamilton, engineer.

KING SUBSCRIBES $625.

And Sends Hearty Approval of the Champlain Celebration.

Montreal, Dec. 13.—In an address before the newly-organized Women's Canadian Club yesterday, Earl Grey made a strong appeal for the preservation of the Canadian battlefields.

The Governor-General declared the Canadian winter was the best asset of the country, and thought the people of Montreal did not act chivalrously in refusing to hold winter carnivals.

After an appeal to ladies not to rest until "that polluting gaol" had been removed from the Plains of Abraham, Earl Grey suggested raising a fund of a million dollars for the reclamation of the historic spot, and the erection of a colossal statue of the Angel of Peace, with arms outstretched, on the front of Quebec first visible to a passenger on a steamer coming up the St. Lawrence.

Continuing, he said: "The privilege of contributing to a fund in honor of the 300th birthday of Canada, and of sacred ground where the foundation of Greater Britain was laid, will, I am confident, appeal to thousands in all parts of the world."

Earl Grey concluded by reading the following cable from Sir Dighton Probyn: "The King commands me to telegraph his approval of the scheme for the celebration of the Champlain tercentenary, and to say that His Majesty will gladly subscribe 100 guineas towards the fund you are raising for this good object."

QUEER CASE AT WELLAND.

Prosecution for Carrying Soap as an Explosive Falls Through.

Welland, Dec. 13.—At the County Court and General Sessions yesterday, Robert Pasquel was acquitted of the charge of carrying explosive substances. The substance was a cake of soap.

The case has excited considerable interest, and the charge was laid on the authority of the Attorney-General. Chief Mains of the frontier police and two other officers on Sept. 18 attempted to arrest three men at the Michigan Central station, Niagara Falls. One drew a gun and backing off got away. Pasquel and one Harding were arrested. They were found to have the necessary articles for the blowing up of a safe. Harding had the nitro-glycerine, and Pasquel had the soap. Harding was sent down for a year on the charge of carrying explosives, and Pasquel got three months for carrying concealed weapons.

The police, it would appear, were not satisfied with Pasquel's sentence, and on the advice of the Attorney-General endeavored to convict him of the more serious offence of carrying explosive substances. When the evidence had been heard, however, Judge Wells took the case from the jury and dismissed the charge on the ground that there was no evidence to show that Harding and Pasquel were acting in concert.

Pasquel has held various responsible positions at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

NO AID FROM POPE.

Pretender Don Carlos Had Audience at the Vatican.

Rome, Dec. 13.—The Pope yesterday received in private audience Don Carlos of Bourbon, the pretender to the Spanish throne.

Don Carlos expressed the hope that the Pontiff would assist him in an attempt to regain the throne of Spain, but the Pope indicated that for political reasons it would be impossible for him to change his present attitude towards King Alfonso.

JACKSON GETS NINE YEARS.

Judge Adds Two Years to Sentence For Using Threats.

Woodstock, Dec. 13.—The trial of Arthur Jackson, a quadroon, took place here yesterday and lasted from 1 a. m. until 6.30 p. m. Jackson was defended by John S. McKay, and R. N. Ball, K. C., prosecuted.

The jury were out twenty minutes when a verdict of guilty was brought in.

"Have you anything to say why I should not pass sentence?" asked Judge Finkle.

"As God sits upon his throne in heaven, as I firmly believe he does, I did not commit the crime I am accused of," was the prisoner's reply in dramatic tones.

"Then I sentence you to seven years at hard labor in Kingston Penitentiary."

"May I now say a few words, your honor?"

"You may not."

Jackson gritted his white teeth and with a smile he remarked:

"When I get out I will say something to the entire community."

"Ha, ha, my lad, then I will task two more years on your term, and you will serve nine years with hard labor in Kingston Penitentiary," replied his honor hotly. A pin could be heard drop in the court room. The handcuffs clinked as they were placed on the prisoner's wrists and he was led back to his cell.

Alex. Green, who was arrested on the same charge as Jackson, of holding up C. P. R. Operator Walcott on the 9th of October last, was allowed out on bail, and will appear next week.

3,750 Miles by Wireless.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 13.—The Kiev station of the wireless telegraphy line which the Russian Government is constructing to connect Sebastopol with St. Petersburg, has succeeded in picking up Marconi transatlantic messages, including a number of press despatches, sent from the American side. Messages transmitted from Paris and Casablanca also have been picked up.

The distance from Glace Bay, Cape Breton, the point at which the Marconi wireless messages are started for Ireland, to Kiev, is approximately 3,750 miles. Stray wireless messages have previously been picked up at a distance of 2,500 miles from their point of origin.

Funeral of the Late B. B. Gunn.

Seaforth, Dec. 13.—The funeral of the late B. B. Gunn, M. P., yesterday afternoon was one of the largest ever seen in this part of the country. The public services in the Methodist Church were very largely attended, hundreds being turned away. The church was draped. The services were conducted by Rev. D. Rogers, pastor, assisted by Revs. Messrs. Walwin and Birks of London, former pastors of the deceased, and by the other clergymen of the town.

The procession from the church to the cemetery was headed by the Seaforth band, the fire brigade, the Canadian Foresters, the members of the Town Council and others. The stores and other places in town were closed.

The Following Letter Speaks For Itself

Peterborough, Nov. 1st, 1907.

W. G. MORROW, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $2000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. R. STRATTON.

Any person contemplating taking out Life Insurance will find it to his advantage to secure our rates before placing the risk.

Death Ends His Struggle.

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—Yesterday at noon a tragic suicide marked the close of a life that had for two weeks been a struggle to get work to support a wife and one child.

An Englishman named John F. Booth, who has been in this country but two years, and, in Ottawa, it is understood, not very long, took cyanide of potash. Booth was a chemist when in England.

Troops Necessary.

Goldfield, Nevada, Dec. 13.—Crowds gathered at the station to witness the arrival yesterday afternoon of Gen. Funston and Major George Thethel and Lieut. Hernsley Evans, the officers who accompanied him from San Francisco.

Governor Sparks told Gen. Funston that in his opinion the presence of troops here had prevented serious trouble.

President's Daughter Sick.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Mrs. Longworth, daughter of President Roosevelt, was successfully operated upon for appendicitis at the White House yesterday morning, by Dr. Finney of Baltimore. The President was at the scene until the operation was over.

Killed on the Track.

Carleton Place, Dec. 13.—The remains of a man named Henry Tennant, about 50 years of age, of Lanark Township, were found on the C. P. R. track near the freight shed yesterday.

Lord Kelvin Ill.

London, Dec. 13.—Grave anxiety is felt here regarding the condition of Lord Kelvin, the famous scientist. He has been ill for some time, and yesterday he was reported to be worse.

Railway Man's Kick.

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—Railway employes are arranging to send a big deputation to Ottawa after the Christmas holidays, to ask the Government for a change in the criminal code. The object is to free engine drivers, conductors, etc., from bearing the burden of criminal prosecution whenever there is a railway accident.

The men will represent to the Minister of Justice that they are the chief persons concerned in avoiding accidents, that responsibility for the traffic arrangements which results in wrecks is higher up, and that they should not be punished for the faults of a system.

Five Hundred Dead.

Monongah, W. Va., Dec. 13.—A number of the bodies brought out yesterday did not bear the brass checks used in the company's system of records and accounts for a large number of men and boys in the mines that were not included in the checking rolls upon which estimates of the dead were largely based. There is reason to believe that the number will not fall far short of 500.

Orchard Testifying Again.

Boise, Idaho, Dec. 13.—For four hours yesterday in the trial of Geo. A. Pettibone for the murder of former Governor Steunenberg, Harry Orchard was on the witness stand. A new feature of the evidence was that Pettibone had told Orchard in 1904 that he had purchased 100 rifles from a hardware company in Denver and shipped them to the Coeur d'Alenes for use in the riots of 1899.

Corporations Accused.

New York, Dec. 13.—Attorney-General Jackson yesterday called the attention of District Attorney Jerome to the affairs of the Hamilton Bank, International Trust Co. and Excelsior Fire Insurance Co., and declared that acts of a criminal nature appeared to have been committed therein.

Bank Manager's Confession.

San Francisco, Dec. 13.—J. Balsell Brown, the imprisoned manager of the California Safe Deposit and Trust Co., Wednesday made a confession to the bank commission, that fictitious entries were made in the books of the bank.

Another Line Completed.

Winnipeg, Dec. 13.—What has been known as the Kirkella branch of the C. P. R., between Kirkella and Saskatoon, will be completed by Saturday night, when a special train will run over the line.

Marine Engineer Drowns.

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 13.—The tug Ottawa, which arrived yesterday from Lake Superior, brought the body of Second Engineer Seagel, who dropped dead Wednesday night. His home is in Sarnia.

Will Return to Texas.

Dallas, Texas, Dec. 13.—An Austin despatch says it is reported there on good authority that the big life insurance companies, all of which retired from Texas on July 1 because of the enactment of the law requiring them to invest 75 per cent. of their Texas reserve in certain Texas securities, are to return to Texas on Jan. 1.

Stoned to Death.

Denver, Col., Dec. 13.—A letter has reached here stating that William Robertson Boggs, one of the foremost metallurgists of the country, was waylaid and stoned to death near Topia, Mexico, by a gang of Mexican miners. Because of the financial stringency Boggs was unable to pay his men their wages.

Down on the Prairies.

While we ate the eastern sky lightened. The mesatains under the dawn looked like silhouettes cut from slate colored paper. Those in the west showed faintly luminous. Objects about us became dimly visible. We could make out the windmill and the adobe of the ranch houses and the corrals. The cowboys arose one by one, dropped their plates into the dishpan and began to hunt out their ropes. Everything was obscure and mysterious in the faint gray light. I watched Windy Bill near his tarpaulin. He stooped to throw over the canvas. When he tied it was before daylight; when he straightened his back daylight had come. It was just like that, as though some one had reached out his hand to turn on the illumination of the world. —Stewart Edward White in Outing Magazine.

HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the father has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

Dan's Silver Lining

By W. F. BRYAN.

Copyrighted, 1907, by Homer Sprague.

"I think I can make it," said Sheldon confidently. "My car is not as fast as your father's, but we ought to be able to get a fair start, and with half an hour's handicap we'll be in town and married before he can catch up with us."

"I hope so," said Patrice. "I should hate to be caught and carried back in disgrace, Dan."

"You won't be," he promised confidently. "You be on the edge of the grounds tomorrow at 3. By the time they find out that you are gone it will be impossible to catch us."

"I don't see why father cannot be nice and let us be married at home," pouted Patrice. "Just because there has been bad blood in the two families since your grandfather and mine fought a duel is no reason why we should not marry."

"Your father thinks otherwise," laughed Dan. "An elopement is the only thing left, since he watches you so closely, and there is no hope of ever obtaining his consent."

"I'll be there just at 3," she replied quietly. "Be sure to be on time."

"Don't worry," he returned as he bent to kiss her. "Everything will come out all right."

Patrice looked after him wistfully as he slipped through the trees. She disliked the idea of deception, but it was apparent that her father would never consent to her marriage to Dan Sheldon, and an elopement was inevitable. She could not give up Dan.

The main road ran past the Carney estate straight to the town, twenty-five miles away. With a clear track and no accidents they could get to town and become lost in the streets long before her father's powerful car could catch up with them.

It was difficult to slip away as 3 o'clock approached, but Patrice managed to find an excuse, and as Sheldon in his dark green car came up the road she stepped through the trees beside the road.

Earlier in the morning she had hidden a satchel with some necessities in the little clump of elms, and now she tossed this into the car and climbed to the seat beside Dan. The tonneau had been removed and the car stripped to lighten the weight and increase the speed. Almost before she had settled herself the car shot forward again.

She turned to look back and gave a little cry. Just as they passed an open space her father had come out on the piazza and had seen them. She could now discern his figure running toward the garage as a clump of trees intervened.

"Can't we turn up some side road?" she suggested after she had told Dan of her discovery.

He shook his head.

"I think we had better make straight for town," he said. "We shall have at least ten minutes start, and we may be able to do it."

"Let's hope so," she cried. "Don't let us be caught."

"Don't worry," he cried as he threw the lever to the highest speed. "If we are caught we will at least know that there has been a race."

The car shot forward, and while the girl looked back to discover the approach of the pursuers Dan kept his glance fastened upon the road ahead and gripped the steering wheel with a firmer clutch. They were going at a speed that required the utmost care in steering, and he could not turn to look back.

For ten minutes they sped along, and still no pursuit was reported. Dan began to hope that all would go well. Two miles beyond the road made a sharp turn through a thickly wooded tract, and Dan slowed up slightly for the curve. As they came round the bend he uttered an exclamation and shut off the speed. Just ahead a wagon had been drawn across the road, and he was compelled to come to a halt.

"Get that wagon out of the way!" he shouted. Instead the man slowly climbed down from the seat of the ramshackle vehicle.

"I guess I wouldn't be in such a hurry to give orders if I was you," he said as he came lumbering toward them. "I'm the constable here, and there ain't no fresh city chaps as kin give orders when they are under arrest in Woodey township. I guess you'll have to see the squire about violating them speed regulations."

"Can't I pay you the fine?" pleaded Dan. "I'm in a great hurry to get to town. The penalty is $20, isn't it?"

"That's what it is," was the reply, "but if you think you're going to give me the money and then say I took a bribe you're mistaken. We do things regular and in order in this township."

"But we are eloping," pleaded Patrice. "My father is right behind. Won't you let us go, please?"

"If you're in a hurry," said the constable dryly, "you'd better stop talking and drive me over to the court."

"Jump in," invited Dan. "I guess the three of us can manage."

The constable sat on the bottom of the car and indicated the road.

"Drive right up there," he commanded. "The justice is sitting, and he'll try your case at once."

They turned up the middle path that wound through the woods, and presently they were in the tiny courtroom that formed a part of the wood shed of the farmhouse.

The trial was conducted with the expedition of long practice. Dan pleaded guilty, paid his fine and turned away.

"I guess we'll run into your father," he said dolefully. "No chance of a wedding now."

"Goin' to git married?" inquired the justice. "What you want to go to town for? I guess I can hitch you up about as tight as any city parson. It's only $5."

"There's a silver lining to every cloud," laughed Dan. "Come, Pat, let's get married right here."

Hand in hand they stood before the table that represented the bar of justice and made the responses required by the brief formula. Then the justice laboriously filled out a highly illuminated certificate with his spluttering pen and handed it to them.

"I guess that ties you up as good and strong as you'll want," he said. "Five dollars, and I allus kiss the bride."

"Make it $10 and no kiss," suggested Dan as Patrice shrank from the sight of the magisterial beard.

"Never saw a kiss that was worth $5, so pass over the $10," said the justice comfortably. "Now you can get along to town or back to pape."

He went back to his potato patch, and the automobile resumed its way down the road. As they came to the highway Patrice gave a cry. Her father's car had run into the wagon that the constable had forgotten to remove. The mechanic had brought the car to a stop just as the front wheels had wrecked the wagon. No one was hurt, but the wagon was fit for kindling wood, and both front tires of the auto were punctured.

"Can't we give you a lift back home?" suggested Dan as they came to the road. "Mrs. Sheldon and myself are going right past your place."

"Mrs. Sheldon!" echoed Mr. Carney. "Married already?"

"Justice of peace," explained Dan. "Marriages performed—automobilists fined while you wait. It's a thriving industry."

The old man climbed aboard the car. "I guess there's no use in trying to keep up a feud when you young people are so determined," he said. "Let's go back to the house. I'm glad I didn't have to make that trip to town for nothing."

"Every cloud has a silver lining," laughed Dan as he started the car. "My silver lining is the best of all." And he kissed the new Mrs. Sheldon.

"ALL-RED" AN ABSURDITY.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy Asserts That Scheme Is Impracticable.

In a statement issued to the press by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the C. P. R., regarding the route, in reference to which an influential deputation, representing the Blacksod Bay scheme, is now visiting Canada, he says:

"If in this proposed all-red route scheme the mails are chiefly to be considered, it is conceivable that for this purpose Governmental subventions might be applied for the realization of certain advantages in this regard. On the other hand, if the commercial principle be considered, with a view, through profit, to lessen or eliminate Governmental subvention, it is an absurdity."

Concerning what the attitude of the C. P. R. would be, should the new project be actually set on foot, Sir Thomas says the duty of the C. P. R. would be, as it had been in the past, to protect its own business, to extend its interests, to preserve and enlarge the trade which it had built up, alike as a great carrying and steamship company.

"We put on the two Empresses, and they are paying boats. We saw the need and we met it. But the difference between the Empresses, from the point of view of cost, of expense, of handling, and a type which would give the highest possible speed, is simply enormous, and, in my opinion, would not be justified from the commercial point of view, which is the chief consideration with a company like the C. P. R. I don't say that the necessary limit of speed has been absolutely reached. On the contrary, the C. P. R., either of its own motive or in co-operation, might be disposed to provide boats of a faster type than those now running on the St. Lawrence route, but with the distinct understanding that such must proceed to Liverpool or some other English port. Nor need this idea absolutely exclude the possibility of an arrangement by which there might be a landing of the mails in Ireland; but the present proposal makes either St. John or Halifax the all-year-round ports and ignores the St. Lawrence route. The St. Lawrence route has a great attraction for travelers, and I would consider its loss, its neglect, almost in the light of a national calamity.

St. Lawrence Needs Improvement.

"Of course," continues Sir Thomas, "The St. Lawrence needs improvement, efficient lighting and buoying, a clear and sufficient channel. So too, does the Atlantic coast need careful attention to reduce to a minimum the chance of accidents, but with ample provision and facility you have in the St. Lawrence during the summer a most desirable route, which not a few travelers, coming up the gulf, desire to prolong for the beauty which marks it; and as to the matter of time there would be little difference, as far as the clock is concerned."

From the commercial point of view, Sir Thomas considers the all-red route impossible.

"It is true that the Cunard people built the Lusitania and the Mauretania in a spasm, occasioned by a scare lest the American mercantile marine, engineered by Pierpont Morgan, would wrest the supremacy from the British shipping companies; but aside from these two extreme types, the Cunard people have not duplicated the Campania or Lucania. On the contrary, since the Campania and the Lucania, they have built the Carmania and the Coronia—safe, but not fast boats," he says.

Fate of Fast Boats.

"In the case of the Hamburg-American line, how is it that the Deutschland has not been repeated, and that all the subsequent boats are of the normal character, such as the President Lincoln, President Grant and the Amerika, the latest, and which is of the normal, seven-day type?

"The Deutschland, by the way, is now on the Mediterranean trade. She has made, before now, the trip from New York to Plymouth in 5 days 7 hours and 38 minutes. She has maintained an average of 23.51 knots per hour during an entire voyage. She has covered in a single day 601 knots. In spite, however, of this great record for speed, she was taken off the New York route and put upon a slow tourist course, which accommodates people of leisure in the winter time.

"No, I do not say for a moment that there might not be a greater speed on our route, and I am not unfriendly to a reasonable increase, but not on the lines of the present proposal, but as supporting the Blacksod Bay route, and not as neglecting our own St. Lawrence route, which, with every improvement made which it is possible to make would be one of the greatest attractions to ocean travelers.

"This company will continue to protect its interests. It will continue to increase its business by the means at its disposal. We are working upon commercial lines. The company has to consider the interests of its proprietors."

Marvelous case of Leo Corrigan

which shows that skin diseases heretofore considered hopeless can be cured.

Since childhood, Leo Corrigan had been tortured with the burning agony and itching of Eczema. His parents had spent a great deal of money in consulting physicians and buying medicines—but all to no purpose.

As he grew older he sought other doctors—some of them specialists. He was eleven weeks in a Toronto hospital—eight weeks in bed. At times the irritation and pain caused by the Eczema were so severe, life was a burden. He would get so bad he could not walk. Several winters he could do no work.

He wrote, on February 20, 1906:

"In November, 1905, I had another attack, and was advised to use Mira Ointment. (I thought this would be like the other remedies I had tried, and of no use to me). But, to my great delight, a few hours after the first application, I felt great relief.

I have used it, now, two and a-half months, and unhesitatingly state that it is the best remedy I ever used. It has worked wonders for me. Since using Mira Ointment I have been able to work every day—without irritation or pain—no stiffness of the hands or soreness. I feel a new person.

"From a state of great irritation and sometimes excruciating pains to freedom from all such, being capable of doing hard work every day, is a marvelous change. Mira Ointment has effected it.

"I strongly recommend any person afflicted with this terrible complaint—Eczema—to use Mira Ointment."

What this wonderfully effective Ointment has done in this extreme chronic case, it can do in other seemingly incurable conditions. If you suffer from any form of skin-disease, don't delay. Certain relief and cure is waiting you in Mira Ointment. Get a box to-day. 50c. —6 for $2.50. At drug-stores—or from The Chemists' Co. of Canada, Ltd., Hamilton—Toronto.

One on Gus Elen.

Mr. Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian, tells an amusing story of a joke he once played on Mr. Gus Elen, of coster-character impersonation fame. "Some one told Elen," says Lauder "that I managed to save more money out of my salary than he did. That worried him. He did not think it could be done, so he made arrangements to visit me and make a few inquiries. I was advised of his coming.

"When he asked my address he was directed to a poverty-stricken boarding-house at the end of a squalid alley. Up several flights of stairs he was guided, and finally found me in a dark, little attic sitting at a desk writing by candle light. 'I say, Harry,' he said to me, 'I hear you have reduced the cost of living so much that you are saving more money than I am. How do you manage to do it?' 'Wait till I blow out the candle,' I replied, 'and I will tell you.'"

King and Cigarette Smoker.

A pretty incident occurred at the Aldwych Theatre, London, when the King of Spain arrived to witness the performance of "The Gay Gordons." A representative of the management who waited at the royal entrance to receive His Majesty was smoking a cigarette when the King's motor-car drove up. It so happened that the King saw him throw the cigarette away as the car came to a stop. "Oh, I'm sorry you did that," said King Alfonso, as he stepped out. "I smoke myself. Let me replace it with some of mine." He then took several cigarettes from his case and offered them to the delighted recipient.

"Fashion-Craft"

The Test of Good Tailoring

¶ There is no test of fit so searching—and no proof of quality so strong as actually putting the garments on and examining them.

¶ Hundreds of men have applied this test to "Fashion-Craft" Cloths—and now they are among our most satisfied clients.

¶ We emphasize this fact because there is not one man in a thousand, who, after a month's trial, will not say the same thing.

¶ A trial will not cost you a cent. If for any reason within one year you are dissatisfied with your purchase you can get your money back for the mere asking.

A BOLD TEXAS RANGER

Smiling Silas, the Pluckiest of Simmons' Band.

HIS FIGHT WITH CALDERONE.

The Sensational Finish That Came to the Pursuit of the Mexican Terror and the Remnant of His Gang of Murderers Across the Rio Grande.

"The pluckiest chap I ever saw was a young Texas ranger known as Smiling Silas, one of Simmons' band, on the Rio Grande border, and I never will forget the way that lad, single handed, rounded up Pantaleon Calderone, a Mexican terror, and three of the greaser's followers. I didn't see the sensational finish to the chase across the plains—no; wish I had—but it was given to me by a half breed boy who'd looked on from a safe distance.

"It was back in the early eighties," begun the Texas cattleman, "that Simmons' rangers came down to the river to round up Calderone and his cutthroats. The Mexicans made life on the border miserable and were capable of all sorts of dark deeds. No, they weren't brave in the same way that American road agents were courageous, but they possessed a certain amount of daring, which, combined with the craftiness of Satan himself, made them desperadoes of the worst type.

"They worked principally on the American side, and after raiding a lonely ranch and murdering every man, woman and child in their way they would swim their horses across the river, gain Mexican territory and laugh at pursuit. Simmons' men struck their trail and followed it for about ten miles along the river, and they were just in time to see the greasers walking their dripping horses up the opposite bank of the yellowish stream.

"Calderone had burned a ranch, killed the ranchero, a man named Dayton, from Michigan, and ruthlessly slaughtered about fifteen or twenty head of cattle, and Simmons wanted him the worst in the world, but Simmons wasn't for running a chance of international complications by crossing that river and invading Mexican territory. He dispatched a messenger over to the alcalde of a little sun baked town, and the drowsy official assured the Senor Americano that he would send word to El Capitan Barrios, who would soon get the murderers with his rurales. That was all there was to it, though. It is true that El Capitan Barrios, a little sallow faced, cigarette smoking chap, did cross the river and confer with Simmons, but despite the fact that Barrios made himself out to be a hero of the Sir Galahad type the rurales never stirred from their comfortable barracks in the shade of the palm trees.

"Simmons and his rangers spent a few days in loping back and forth along the border, keeping a sharp lookout for Calderone and expecting every hour to receive some word from Barrios, but no sight of the robber did they get, and never a message came from the rurales.

"While the rangers were in camp one dark night Calderone and his band, numbering twenty, I believe, recrossed the river with their horses and struck northward over a sweep of prairie land. It was late the next day when the rangers were apprised of the bandit's venture, and, saddling horses, they hit the trail with a vengeance.

"The Mexicans looted a small ranch, killed about half a dozen people and then, describing a broad circle, headed back for the river. Late in the afternoon by cutting across the prairie the rangers closed in with the band, and Simmons, urging his ten sturdy fellows forward, put his straining horse to its best to get within shooting distance of the robbers.

"Just when the river was in sight the greasers, appreciating that their horses were spent and that the Americans were gaining on them, turned to fight. They quickly dismounted and fought Indian fashion, resting their carbines on their saddles and shooting from behind their horses. They outnumbered the rangers almost two to one, but, then, they lacked the sand and fighting skill that Simmons' boys had. The rangers, seeing the stand the greasers had taken, drew up their horses out of shooting range and, springing from their saddles, advanced on foot through the long prairie grass in crouching attitudes. Finally when within good pistol range Simmons yelled a command to his men, and down they fell on their faces, while from their elevated right hands cracked the deadly pistols. Nearly every shot told, and half a dozen kicking horses went to the earth, and three or four bandits yielded up the ghost at the same time. The Mexicans had reserved their fire too long—that is a failing with them, you know, for they either shoot too soon or too late—and when they did blaze away at the enemy with their carbines and pistols their aim was bad and their bullets either flew over the heads of the attacking party or plowed up the soft soil in front of them.

"Simmons, seeing the disastrous effect of his first fire, jumped to his feet and, calling to his men to follow him, charged straight for the line of struggling horses and shrinking men. The rangers fired as they ran, and this time the shots were so directed that they claimed eight human victims and laid low only one luckless steed. The greasers were thoroughly beaten, and the eight or nine still on their feet lashed toward the river, leaving their wounded mates to their fate. Simmons called to the two men left with the corral to bring the horses up, and the tired beasts responded bravely to the demand made upon them.

"The Americans followed the Mexicans on a swinging lope, and before the half mile to the river had been covered by the leaders in the mad chase four saddles were emptied and only murderous Calderone himself and three of his crew were on the break for safety.

"The surviving brigands urged their panting steeds down the slope to the river, forced the horses to take the water, and when the rangers gained the Texas bank the fugitives were in Mexican territory, and Simmons held up his hand in a mute signal forbidding that any more shots be fired.

"The rangers were altogether a dashed lot when they lined up on the Texas side of the Rio Grande. They had made a splendid fight, it is true, and rid the earth of fifteen or sixteen desperadoes; but, then, the prize beauty of the robber bunch had escaped and their work was practically for naught, as Calderone would soon recruit his band. Simmons called the roll and found all his men in sound, good health, with the exception of two, Riley and Brinsmead, who had received slight wounds in the fray on the prairie. Of the robbers eight were stone dead and the rest were wounded, some badly and some with only scratches. I might as well get through with the prisoners at once. Three of them died of their wounds and the rest were hanged to trees and riddled with bullets.

"Simmons and his men remained on the bank of the Rio Grande until nightfall, and the chief refused to listen to the importunities of his men to carry the pursuit into Mexican territory. 'We can't cross this river, boys,' he said, ''cause the greasers down in Mexico City won't stand for it.'

"That night, though, Smiling Silas, who had been one of the boldest in the fight on the plains, slipped from camp, saddled his horse and, holding the steed by the bridle, swam the river. He landed safely on Mexican territory, his pistols and ammunition all right, and waited until daylight behind a fringe of chapparal. When the sun was up he looked for Calderone's trail and found it. It led south through the mesa district to a range of hills, and about 11 o'clock in the forenoon he came upon Calderone and his three companions. The robbers were sleeping under a broad palm tree, their horses tethered close by, and Silas could have shot them ere they would have had time to arise and defend themselves. But he disdained such a course. Dismounting from his horse and tying the animal to the tree, he walked right into the midst of the robbers and aroused them with a loud cry. The greasers sat up and reached for their guns instinctively, but a pistol barked from each of Silas' hands and two of the ruffians toppled over to arise never again. The other two, Calderone and one of his lieutenants, gained their feet, and the lieutenant broke for the woods. 'Bang!' cracked Smiling Silas' long barrel gun, and the runaway fell on his face with a bullet in his spine.

"Just as Silas fired Calderone turned loose his gun, and the bullet carried away the ranger's hat. Silas jumped toward his foeman before a second shot could be sent and, striking him in the face with the butt of his revolver, stretched him, dazed and bleeding, on the ground. The American drew back as Calderone struggled to his feet, and the half breed boy who was attending a flock of sheep on the rising ground gazed at the strange and thrilling picture spellbound. Calderone swung his pistol over his head in a trembling hand, but ere he could use it Silas stepped in and wrenched it from his grasp. 'You Mexican snake!' cried the ranger. 'Pull your knife! I'll give you a chance!'

"Calderone was an expert with the bowie—most Mexicans of his stamp are—and, sagging to gain strength on the instant, he whipped out his long dagger and sprang toward the American. Silas had dropped his pistol and, with bowie in hand, met the assault. The knives clinked as the ranger parried the downward thrust of the Mexican, and the quivering bodies of the two combatants came close together, with the long strips of steel locked at the hilts. It was then that Silas' American training stood him in good stead, and, while his right hand was engaged with the knife, his left swung free, and he brought the member over with a wide sweep flush upon the side of the Mexican's face. Calderone fell back, groggy and bleeding from the force of the blow, and Silas leaped after him like a tiger cat bent upon securing prey. The greaser feebly raised his knife to fend a stroke, but Silas' blade swept under his arm and buried itself to the hilt in his heart. Calderone fell to the ground a corpse, and so the band was exterminated. Silas reached the camp the same night, but he did not tell where he had been until the half breed Mexican boy related the story a week subsequent to the combat."

Stops Itching, Heals the Skin

AND FOR THIS REASON THERE IS NO CURE FOR ECZEMA SO SATISFACTORY AS

There is always a certain amount of mystery about all medicines that are taken internally, but not so when Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied to raw or inflamed skin, for the benefits are self-evident.

It is because Dr. Chase's Ointment possesses in a remarkable degree the ability to stop itching and heal raw skin that it has become known the world over as the most successful treatment for such disease of the skin as eczema, salt rheum and psoriasis.

By all means tone up the system by the use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, but also cure the eczema by the local application of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The wretched stinging, itching sensations will soon disappear under this treatment and gradually and naturally the raw sores will become smaller and smaller until they entirely disappear.

But there are scores of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home, and especially so where there are children who suffer from teething eczema, chafing, insect bites, hives, poisoned skin or any form of skin irritation or eruption.

Mr. O Wiley, who is employed as cooper by the Kennedy & Davis Milling Company, Lindsay, Ont., states: "I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for eczema on my little girl some few years ago, and soon brought about a thorough and permanent cure. She had suffered for considerable time, and though we tried a great many remedies, Dr. Chase's Ointment was the only preparation to prove effective. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Ointment, as it certainly effected a prompt and permanent cure in this case."

Test Dr. Chase's Ointment in any case of itching skin or on a sore that refuses to heal, and you will be surprised at the results.

LIVING IN HER COFFIN.

Woman Has Narrow Escape of Being Buried Alive.

A West Bromwich woman, it is believed, has just narrowly escaped being buried alive. Her name is Ann Richards, and her age 69 years.

She had been attended by a local doctor, who certified that she was suffering from a weak heart.

The other day one of her sons, on returning from the Birmingham University, where he is a student, found his mother lying across the rug in front of the fire, in a swoon, as he thought. He went for the doctor, who, it is alleged, declared that Mrs. Richards was dead, and gave a certificate that she had died from heart failure.

The funeral arrangements were made, and Mrs. Richards was placed in a coffin. Her son, however, who was much attached to his mother, paid frequent visits to the room where she lay, and was convinced from the color which seemed to come into her face that she was not dead. He communicated his opinion to other members of the family, who, as the day for the funeral drew near, were filled with anxious thoughts.

Another doctor was caled in, and he, at the son's request, applied what he regarded as the best test by opening a vein in the woman's arm, but there was no sign of blood, and the doctor concluded that the woman was dead.

The son continued to notice periodical changes in his mother's features, and, on again going to look at her, he found, to his amazement, that her arm was saturated with blood.

Mr. Richards again called in the doctor, who seemed somewhat surprised at this extraordinary development, and he examined the woman, and could not discover any signs of decomposition. He said he could not give a death certificate, and expressed the opinion that she was not quite dead. He advised that Mrs. Richards should be taken out of the coffin, and this was done, the coffin being removed from the room.

Then hot bricks and bottles and mustard plasters were applied, and the body became thoroughly warm, but the woman showed no signs of consciousness. The doctor again visited the house and satisfied himself that the woman was now dead.

KAISER'S YACHT SIMPLE.

Has Many English Pictures Displayed on the Hohenzollern.

As royal yachts go, the Kaiser's yacht, the Hohenzollern, is by no means specially gorgeous. Plenty of show and glitter would somehow be expected. Instead, severe simplicity is the keynote.

The Kaiser's own apartments are especially simple. A brass bedstead along one side of the bulkhead, a single wardrobe, a dressing table, with a very large triple mirror, and a barber's chair, with a headrest, are all the furniture. The walls are nearly bare, almost the only thing hanging on them being a faded New Year's card, in a little black frame. The card is inscribed, "To dearest Willy, with all best New Year wishes, from mamma." Photographs of the Kaiser and the Kaiserin practically complete the wall furniture.

Elsewhere, all over the yacht, the walls are absolutely covered with pictures. Little sketches by Martino, larger pictures by Willy Stower, some choice old engravings, frequently of incidents in British naval history, some modern proof engravings, photographs of nearly all the ships in the German navy, special photographs of incidents in the Kaiser's various cruises, are cheek by jowl with other examples of the catholicity of the Kaiser's taste.

Among these are also to be noted two of the four-page supplements of the British fleet, issued by The Graphic, and an ordinary colored Christmas number plate from The Sporting and Dramatic—"Nelson's Last Hours in Portsmouth." One or two German chromo-lithographs are also to be found beside most valuable old engravings or artistic masterpieces.

There is, however, one stranger picture still. It hangs just outside the Kaiser's cabin "on the line." It is a rather large photograph of an Orange demonstration at Belfast, entitled "We Will Not Have Home Rule!"

A Likely Story.

The Pastor—I hope you are not going fishing on Sunday, my little man. The Boy—Oh, no, sir. I am merely carrying this stick so that that wicked boy across the street will not suspect that I am on my way to Sunday school. —London Illustrated Bits.

Hatched.

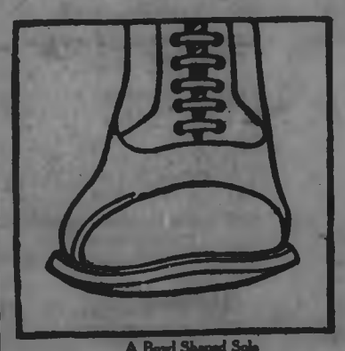
One afternoon three small children were popping corn, taking turns at the popper.

"Oh, mamma," exclaimed little Dorothy, clapping her hands gleefully, "every one of my corns hatched out!"

Wrestling is the national sport of Persia, and the tournaments held to decide championships rival our baseball matches in popularity.

HAS UNWARPABLE SOLES

Improvement Number Eight



A Bowl Shaped Sole

A Foot-rite Unwarpable Sole

Nearly every shoe is built without regard to sole warping, on soles of red, rigid, lifeless, hemlock tan leather which curls up bowl shape at the first wearing and, like bent lead, "stays put."

Until the invention of Foot-rites, warping soles were never given the slightest consideration. The Foot-rite makers have solved the sole warping problem, and this is how:

Foot-rite's sole leather is sun seasoned; and sun seasoned leather, like sun seasoned lumber, is unwarpable.

Foot-rite uppers are made of "Normal-Calf," also of sun seasoned leather almost as soft and supple as the live calf's hide, which doesn't shrink and draw up the soles.

The drying of water-soaked shoes causes shrinking and warping. As Foot-rites are almost waterproof, little water is soaked up.

And, being formed over foot sculptured lasts, Foot-rite insides are precisely the same shape and size as the feet which inhabit them. This means that the foot bears down on every single, solitary square inch of insole space. There's no vacant or waste floor space, and the great weight of the body, evenly and equally distributed over the sole, irons out all warping and holds the sole as flat as a flat-iron bottom.

A Foot-rite dealer has the shoes in town. Run in on him and his shoe. You'll find a door swinging inward but never outward to a more welcome shore.

Anywhere in America, Canada or Great Britain—$4.00 and $5.00. Every pair Goodyear Welted—which means added wear and comfort.

Synopsis Of Canadian North-West HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-west Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded upon by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

Homestead Duties.—A settler who has once been granted an entry for a homestead is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of this Act, as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Application for patent should be made at the end of three years, before the Local Agent, Sub-Agent or the Homestead Inspector.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of his intention to do so.

A NOTED BANDIT HAS BEEN SHOT

Boris Sarafoff, Famous Revolutionist, Killed at His Own Door.

LED 380 RAIDS INTO TURKEY

Assassinated by a Young Macedonian —Tragic End of An Adventurous Career—Another Chief Also Shot at the Same Time—Price of $20,000 on His Head—Once Captured a Town With Forty Men.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Dec. 13.—Boris Sarafoff, the most famous of all the leaders of the Bulgarian bands in Macedonia, was shot dead at the threshold of his home yesterday, by a Macedonian, who at the same time shot and killed another revolutionary chief named Gervaloff.

Sarafoff's hatred of the Turks was imbued at an early age through seeing his father and grandfather tortured, dragged off in chains to a dungeon and then exiled for 15 years.

At the age of 14 he attacked, singlehanded, the prison in which his father and grandfather were confined, but he was flogged for his pains. The boy swore to revenge himself on the Turks and studied to this end, becoming an official in the Burgarian army.

In 1895 Sarafoff formed a band of desperadoes to raid Turkish territory. Since then he has headed no less than 380 daring raids into Turkey. Once he captured the Turkish town of Melnik with 40 men, putting the garrison to flight.

Sarafoff was familiar with hundreds of lines of tracks through the forests and mountains of Turkey. His aim was to organize a vast rebellion with the object of seizing Constantinople and overthrowing the dynasty and Turkish rule. The Turkish Government set a price of $20,000 on his head. He was about 37 years old.

Sarafoff was the organizer of the Macedonial committee. His prominence in Macedonial agitation and his dictatorial methods made him many enemies among his own followers.

KUROPATKIN A WITNESS.

Evidence He Gives Is Favorable to Gen. Stoessel.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 13.—Gen. Kuropatkin testified yesterday at the trial by court-martial of Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel and other army officers, charged with needlessly surrendering Port Arthur to the Japanese, that the Japanese could have taken Port Arthur by assault in the early days of the war.

The defences were then so incomplete, Gen Kuropatkin went on, that the fortress must have fallen at the first vigorous attack. But the slowness of the Japanese and the resistance made by the army in the field gave the Russians time to improvise defence works, which had withstood the Japanese for six months. Gen. Kuropatkin's evidence was favorable to Gen. Stoessel.

TELLS STORY OF SHOOTING

Says They Were Struggling For Possession of a Rifle—It Went Off and Dixon Was Killed—Admitted Telling a Different Tale Before—Judge Severely Criticizes the Jury's Verdict of Acquittal.

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 13.—Thomas McFarlane, on trial for the murder of William Dixon at Iron Bridge, was last night acquitted.

He appeared in his own defence and told an entirely new story. He had been feeding a dog. Dixon was intoxicated and took down a gun from the wall and shot the dog. The two men had grappled and in the mix-up the gun went off and Dixon fell.

The prisoner then attempted to commit suicide under the stress of excitement, but the gun missed fire. He then left the house, returning in the morning, when he knelt down beside the body of Dixon and made a vow to his Maker that he would give himself up.

The judge's charge was against the prisoner, who was greatly affected in court.

During the argument of counsel the prisoner was dejected and kept his face concealed below the dock.

The judge said he could not conceive of a jury arriving at such a verdict on the evidence given. As the verdict was announced a fervent "Thank God" escaped the prisoner, who immediately left the building.

CANADA HAS DONE ENOUGH.

Subsidy to Australian Steamship Line Dropped From Estimates.

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—Canada's answer to the exclusionist trade policy of the Australian Commonwealth is announced in the dropping from the Parliamentary estimates for next year of the subsidy vote of $180,000 towards the Canadian-Australian steamship service.

If the Commonwealth is determined to exclude Canadian products from its markets, there is no further reason for keeping up the expensive steamship service, which has for many years operated between the Australian ports and the city of Vancouver. Moreover, the bulk of the trade which Canada is now doing with Australia finds its way to the latter by way of New York.

Took Carbolic by Mistake.

Petrolea, Dec. 13.—The death occurred yesterday morning as a result of taking carbolic acid by mistake of Miss Maud Durham, daughter of the late R. J. Durham. The young lady had been doctoring for years, and apparently got hold of the wrong bottle when taking her medicine Wednesday night.

She was alone in the house at the time, and when discovered was in an unconscious condition, and despite the efforts of a couple of doctors, passed away without regaining consciousness.

CANADA AND JAPAN DISCUSSED

Mr. Monk Raises Question of Immigration in the House.

CORRESPONDENCE WANTED

Status of Dominion Representative in Japan—Mr. Lancaster's Bill to Limit Speed of Trains at Crossing Is Again Sent to the Senate—The Motion Against Late Sittings Was Withdrawn by Request.

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—The question of Japanese immigration was raised for the first time in the House yesterday afternoon, on a motion by Mr. Monk for all correspondence between the Dominion and Imperial Governments relative to the Anglo-Japanese treaty. The member for Jacques Cartier took the ground that the clause insuring the Japanese freedom of travel and residence in Canada involved an abandonment of the principle that Canada was entitled to control its own immigration, and argued that as the character and habits of the Japanese were different from those of Canadians there should have been a restriction.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the House was entitled to the fullest information on the subject, and the Government had no objection to the motion, but he pointed out that it would not be advisable to bring down the papers until Mr. Lemieux had concluded his mission.

Replying to Mr. Foster, the Prime Minister explained that Mr. Lemieux had no diplomatic status in Tokio, and that representations to the Japanese authorities had been made through His Majesty's ambassador.

Mr. Lancaster's bill respecting unprotected railway crossings, which was rejected by the Senate last session, was read a third time, with the unanimous consent of the House, being the first bill to go through this session.

In moving the second reading of his railway bill, Mr. Lancaster said it had been dealt with every session since the last general election. He showed that he had endeavored to meet the views of all parties, and that the bill now before the House was drafted by the member for Westmoreland, the then Minister of Railways and Canals. The law as it stands to-day was absolutely of no effect and the House of Commons a year ago had unanimously adopted his amendment. The Senate, however, had thrown it out. Mr. Lancaster advised sending the bill back till the gentlemen of the Senate either adopted it or suggested something in its place.

Early Closing Resolution.

Mr. Wright (Renfrew) spoke to his early closing resolution. He wants to fix the House adjournment, except on extraordinary occasions, at 10.30 p. m.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier thought the present rule was one to which reasonable exception could be taken, but he pointed out that the House, as in England, might have a tacit understanding that the sittings should not be prolonged beyond 11 or 12 o'clock. Here, however, late in the session, when under pressure, they could sit later. It would be well, he thought, to allow the present rule to stand and have a mutual understanding. He had no doubt that the health of the members was interfered with, but under the circumstances he would ask Mr. Wright to withdraw.

Mr. Wright was agreeable, remarking that he had failed in a good cause.

R. L. Borden did not despair of seeing the reform brought about, and was glad that the matter had been brought up.

Mr. Foster pointed out that Sir John Macdonald was opposed to arbitrary rules in this respect, still he (Mr. Foster) thought the early closing movement might eventually prevail, and when the time arrived it might be well to go further and limit speeches to half or three-quarters of an hour. At present a good deal of the work came in the last few weeks, and if the Government could be brought to a reasonable attitude and bring down the supplementary estimates and important measures at the earliest moment, he thought the Opposition would also be reasonable and facilitate the business of the House.

Messrs. Monk and Taylor also favored the early closing movement.

Ask For Japanese Correspondence.

Mr. Monk moved for the correspondence between the Government and the Imperial authorities in respect to the Anglo-Japanese convention regarding Canada. We should never deprive ourselves of all control over immigration, he said. The Japs were a people who were not easily assimilated, therefore, he considered the Government acted incautiously and imprudently in adhering to the treaty with Japan.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, agreeing to the motion, said it would not be advisable to bring down the papers while Mr. Lemieux was in Japan. He found no fault with the spirit which prompted Mr. Monk's resolution.

Our civilization and that of the Orientals was so different that it was impossible to bring about a fusion of the two races, but at the same time these objections were in the minds of the Government when they decided to adhere to the treaty.

No Diplomatic Status.

"On what ground does Mr. Lemieux stand in Japan?" asked Mr. Foster.

"It is difficult to say," replied Sir Wilfrid. "We have no diplomatic status in Japan. Mr. Lemieux was introduced to the Japanese Government by the British ambassador in Tokio, and it is under the British ambassador that the negotiations are carried on." The motion was agreed to.

Claude Macdonell wanted to know if the Government would continue its previous policy of disallowance in the event of the Legislature of British Columbia re-enacting the Natal Act. To this Sir Wilfrid replied that the question will be considered when it arises.

Mr. Monk was informed by Hon. Mr. Templeman that the matter of introducing a measure to [illegible] Inland Revenue Act in regard to tobacco was under consideration.

Sir Frederick Borden said, in reply to Mr. Worthington, that no Sutherland rifle sights had been purchased by the Militia Department. They were to be adjusted to the Lee-Enfield rifle, and the Government was considering whether they were to be used with the Ross rifle.

Ministers' Travelling Expenses.

Hon. W. S. Fielding gave Mr. Foster and the House the amount of traveling and other expenses paid since March 31, 1907, to date to the following Ministers: Sir Wilfrid, $68.75; Sir Fred. Borden, $720.65; Hon. W. S. Fielding, $1,142.75; Hon. L. P. Brodeur, $607.60; Hon. Sydney Fisher, $830.14.

Hon. Frank Oliver told Mr. McCarthy (Calgary) that a bill was in course of preparation to set apart Dominion lands for residents of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, who took part in the South African war of 1899-1902.

ACCUSED OF THEFT.

Hamilton Man Arrested on Charge of Stealing Church Funds.

Hamilton, Dec. 13.—From a trusted member of St. Philip's Anglican Church in the east end of the city to a cell in No. 3 police station is the descent made in a few hours by Charles Campbell, 29 years of age. He was arrested stepping into a G. T. R. train to make a journey to his old home in Scotland. The charge is that he stole $28 he collected for the church. Although pressed to turn the amount over he kept putting it off until the church officials became suspicious. He had a railway ticket to Montreal, and a third-class steamer ticket. He was setting out on the journey with just 32 cents.

Joe Myers, the race track follower, who was arrested at the Jockey Club here last year on the charge of stealing a ticket from Harry Daniels, and who was allowed out on $300 after being committed for trial, did not turn up yesterday afternoon at the general sessions, and his bail was declared forfeited.

British Journal Gives the "All-Red" Project Hard Knock.

London, Dec. 13.—(C. A. Black Peril in Colonies.

Philadelphia, Dec. 13.—"The gravity of the negro problem is not confined to the United States; England faces it in her colonies. The whole world faces it. The problem of the future of that race is one of the greatest and gravest confronting civilization."

Sir John Roger, governor of the English Gold Coast Colony, Southwestern Africa, expressed these views in an address at the Berean Presbyterian Church.

"In Africa," he said, "negroes outnumber the whites in the proportion of 5,000,000 to 1,000. How to educate them is as grave a question there as in America. Our greatest trouble is to induce them to work with their hands in the trades. The hope of the negro race lies in manual labor."

Two Children Perish.

Cobalt, Dec. 13.—A fire Wednesday night which destroyed the house of William Hewit resulted in the death of his two little girls, aged 5 and 3, by suffocation. The parents were away.

The Hunter-Graham block, the opera house and Bank of Ottawa building are largely occupied by roomers. Both buildings are deficient in fire escapes, and the sanitary condition of each building is in some respects a disgrace. The rents at both are considerable.

Fell Fifty Feet.

Stratford, Dec. 13.—John Tisdale fell 50 feet from the top of a superstructure of the new Grand Trunk works and sustained compound fracture of arm and concussion of the brain. His home is in Windsor.

Three more boys—Routier, Smith and Brison—were arrested yesterday in connection with recent robberies. They are believed to be part of a gang which successfully operated for the past year. Six are now in jail and there are others to follow.

Three Wild Dogs Shot.

Woodstock, Dec. 13.—Three dogs, which have been killing sheep in the vicinity of Golspie, about four miles from here, for the past year, were shot by Thomas Redhead, who had been trailing them for days. The animals' lair was in a hollow log in a bush. They fought like wolves.

OMEMEE HAMLET SWEPT BY MOST DISASTROUS FIRE IN IT'S HISTORY; FOUR BURNED BY SUDDEN EXPLOSION

Loss Estimated at Over $12,000—Narrow Escape of Occupants of a Dwelling

OCCURRED AT MIDNIGHT

The Origin is Unknown—The Fire Stopped Within 18 Inches of a Frame Building—Details of The Blaze

Examiner special.

Omemee, December 13th. — Omemee's population received a rude awakening shortly after the midnight hour this morning, when the news spread around that the village was in the midst of a threatening blaze. The fire that followed was the most disastrous that has ever occurred in Omemee's history, and it may yet result in the loss of a human life. Every man who left his downy bed of ease was a fireman, and all had to work like Trojans to save the village from complete destruction.

As it was, four large buildings, estimated at $12,000 in value, were razed to the ground; most of the contents of these are a complete loss, and, what is still worse, four heroic citizens who acted in the early hours of the morning as firemen, were seriously injured by the flames as the result of an unexpected explosion.

Under Doctor's Care

One of the young men named Bogue, was seriously burned by the explosion, which occurred in Mrs. Norris' dwelling, from an unknown cause. It may possibly have been caused by coal gas, and for an instant lit up the whole surroundings like a vivid flash of lightning. Bogue was burned about the head and body, and is now under a doctor's care. P. A. McPherson, the local manager of the Bell Telephone Company, who was standing at the outside of a window in that dwelling, was thrown into the street by the force of the explosion. His face and hair were burned, and this morning he is suffering considerably from the effects.

Charles McCaffery and William MacPherson, who were inside the dwelling, are also suffering from severe burns.

Progress of the Blaze

About 12.30 o'clock, just when the inhabitants of this quiet hamlet were wrapped in deepest slumber, the fire bell gave out the first intimation that a blaze was in progress, it started in W. D. Stenson's stove and tinware store on King street, which was completely destroyed. The loss there is estimated at $4,500, with no insurance.

Mrs. Norris' dwelling lay next in the path of the flames, and it was here that the disastrous explosion occurred which almost caused the death of four of the firefighters.

The inmates, including Mrs. Norris, her daughter, son-in-law, and her grand-daughter, had narrow escapes and only succeeded in getting out with their lives. The estimated value of the dwelling, including its contents, is $4,000. There is $1000 insurance on the building, it is understood.

George Griffin's tailor shop was the next to succumb to the flames. The building was totally destroyed, but most of the contents were saved. The loss there will be about $1500, and of the Masonic Hall above, $2000, making a total loss of about $12,000.

Seven-hour Fire

For almost seven hours the fire lasted and it was only by the diligence of the firemen that greater loss was not sustained.

Next to Griffin's store the Public Library Building stands, and although it is a frame structure, and stands within 18 inches of the former, it was saved.

The Peterborough fire brigade was summoned about 6.30 o'clock, but was cancelled afterwards as the fire had been gotten under control. The blaze was the biggest ever seen in the village and the whole population is to-day viewing the charred ruins.

HAVOC BY TAR COVERED CANINE

Brought Consternation To a Number of Ladies To-day

A canine of the mush dog variety created considerable amusement in the neighbourhood of the post office to-day. He had evidently had a dispute with a quantity of tar and the latter got all the best of the argument with the result that the dog was covered with the black substance.

In his efforts to get rid of his new coat he managed to bump into half a dozen ladies, the skirts of each of which showed traces of the contact, and his path down Water street was marked by a line of ladies gazing tearfully at besmeared dresses, while mean man laughed and the dog went carelessly on.

SOMETHING MORE ABOUT THE EXAMINER'S BEAUTIFUL ELABORATE AND ARTISTIC SPECIAL CHRISTMAS NUMBER

The special Christmas edition of the Daily Examiner, which will be issued at the usual publication hour to-morrow, will represent the successful realization of the most ambitious effort in the production of special newspaper issues ever attempted or achieved in this city or district. The special edition will be an enlargement and artistic elaboration of the usual 16-page Saturday issue and will consist of 34 pages. Full size, and splendid illustrations and matter characteristic of, and appropriate to, the season will be used. Its beauty will not be its only feature. The elaborate and instructive special advertisements of our merchants will constitute a valuable guide to Christmas buyers, and the issue as a whole will be an interesting and convenient souvenir of Peterborough to send to friends outside the city and county. The number printed will constitute the largest edition ever printed upon a news press in Peterborough. Orders for extra copies beyond those to be delivered in the regular way to subscribers, may be procured at the Examiner office for only the every-day price—2 cents each.

THE LIFE OF A PROMISING YOUNG LUMBERMAN CRUSHED OUT BY A FALLING TREE IN NORTHERN WOODS

Tree Fell The Wrong Way And Struck William Belleghem Across The Shoulders

HE WAS INSTANTLY KILLED

The first victim of the many dangers that lurk around the lumber camps of the northern woods is William Belleghem, the twenty-year-old son of John Belleghem, who was killed this morning by a falling tree. The accident occurred at the W. B. Kelly Lumber Company's camp in Harvey township, before the eyes of the youth's father, and it has cast a gloom over the entire community.

The victim left the camp in good spirits, accompanied by his father and John Coon of Bridgenorth. The youth and Mr. Coon began the day's work by sawing down a large tree which was later doomed to cause the death of a hopeful young life.

Before attempting to saw down the tree, the side of it was first notched. The men figured on falling it away from the notch, and its contrary movement was the cause of the killing of young Belleghem. When the tree began to tumble, Coon took the saw and moved back to safety. The victim of the accident, attempted to do the same, but walked with stooped shoulders into the path of the falling tree. It struck him fairly on the shoulder, knocking him into the earth before he was able to utter a word.

The fatality occurred shortly after seven o'clock this morning, and the body arrived at his parents home in Bridgenorth at one o'clock, having been brought down a distance of 25 miles.

The deceased was very well known in Peterborough, having lived here nearly all his life, moving to Bridgenorth last spring, when his family took up their residence there. He was most popular with all who knew him and the intelligence of his tragic death will come as a shock.

Besides his sorrowing parents, five brothers and one sister are left to mourn his loss. They are Mrs. Roseborough, living in the Northwest, Messrs. Ernest, Charles, Herbert, James and John.

THE HOUND EASILY FOUND HIS WAY HOME

It only took one insertion of a lost ad. in the Examiner to bring back a valuable hound belonging to a well-known local hunter. The ad. went in the Examiner last night, and this morning the hound was let loose, and made his way home. The dog was a very much prized one and a good hunter. The rapidity with which it was restored to its owner, was the most important feature of the tease, however.

PLEADS GUILTY TO BIGAMY

The Story of Unresistable Charms of an Ottawa Man in Police Court

LIVED WITH TWO WIVES

Examiner Special

Ottawa, Dec. 13. — In the police court to-day Ewart S. Tressidder, an electrician, pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy. On December second, under the name of Harold Barrington, he underwent an illegal marriage ceremony with Margaret S. Sinclair, a 17 year old girl, when he was already a married man, having been wedded to Miss Annie Turcott, of Ottawa in April last. Only a few days ago she bore him a child. Rev. Canon Kettson, rector of the biggest Anglican church in Ottawa, tied the "second knot." The man gave his name as Barrington, had two witnesses and produced the necessary license. There was also a case of theft against Tressidder on which he also pleaded guilty.

In the Tressidder case a strange feature is that wife No. 2, boarded with wife No. 1 and with Tressidder for two months or more. He was remanded for sentence on both charges until Monday next.

WEDDING BELLS.

GRAHAM-POLLOCK

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday by the Rev. J. G. Potter of St. Andrew's church. The participants were Miss Christine Pollock, daughter of Mr. Robert Pollock, 107 McDonel street, and Mr. Harold Graham, eldest son of ex-Ald. Jas. Graham, Dublin street. Both of the young people have many friends in the city who will wish them every success. They will reside in Peterborough.

Joseph Gagnon Of Tweed Witnessed The Deed

HOME FROM BLIND RIVER

Gagnon Himself Lost Finger in The Mill—Tells of Stabbing Fray in Hotel—A Race Fight

James Gagnon, whose home is in Tweed, passed through the city last night from Blind River, where he had been working in a sawmill until four days ago, when he lost the index finger off his left hand. It was dressed by the doctor there, but the bandage had not been removed, he said, since it was first put on. He feared that blood-poisoning had set in and was going home to have it properly treated. He arrived in the city on the G.T.R. and went to Tweed on the local.

Gagnon, speaking to the Examiner, said that on Wednesday at noon a serious fight had occurred at the hotel in Blind River where he was staying, between an Englishman and several Italians. According to his story, the Englishman, who was a comparative stranger, had said something to the Italians while at work in the morning, and when going to dinner the wrangling was recommenced. Bad language was used on both sides and the Englishman made an attempt to strike one of the Italians, but missed. The latter retaliated, assisted by some of his fellow countrymen, and in the melee a knife was used and the Englishman received serious wounds. His condition was very bad when Gagnon was leaving Blind River, and he was not sure whether the man would pull through or not.

COPPER IN SEABROOK MINE

So Reads the Superintendent's Report to The Syndicate, With Trace of Gold

AN EXCELLENT SHOWING

Havelock, December 13. — Mr. L. W. Spear, managing director of Spear's Canadian Mining Syndicate, Toronto, has received word from Superintendent George R. Rogers, of Preneveau, relating to the development of the Seabrook mine property. On the mine No. 1 shaft has been sunk to the 40 foot level. On the foot wall there is a vein of calcite 18 inches wide, richly charged with copper pyrites, showing an increase in width with the depth. The whole vein is sight feet wide between the walls. The whole formation, so far as it is possible to ascertain, is of slate schiest with veins of calcite running from the south to the north through the shaft. Mr. Rogers believes that pay ore will be reached in the shaft at a depth of 20 to 60 feet. Assays from samples taken from the 25 foot level showed a little over 11 per cent of copper and $1.30 per ton in gold. At a depth of 32 feet the assays yielded 51 per cent of copper with a tracing of gold. Work will be continued during the winter, when the shaft will be put down at least one hundred feet. The company is also planning to drive a cross-cut through the western end of the property, cutting several surface veins at a depth of 120 feet.

Mr. Rogers has lately closed a contract for the development of the Rogerton Mine, in Dungannon township, Hastings county. The property consists of 120 acres and is one mile from a railway station. No 1 vein has a high percentage of nickel and copper and at a depth of 100 feet it will prove to be a rich copper and nickel lode from 30 to 100 feet wide. No. 3 vein is four feet wide, and it has a rich showing of niccolite between two well defined walls of diorite. No 3 vein is three feet wide, and it contains silver, nickel and gold.

On the east end of the property there is a large lode of mica forty feet wide, and apparently carrying little iron.

ATTENTION!

The C. P. R. Atlantic Steamship Line have chartered the twin screw steamer Cassandra to sail from West St. John, Dec. 14th. Will carry only 2nd cabin passengers. Rates $35, $37 and $42.50 from St. John to London direct, and land passengers in ample time to reach their homes for Christmas. For tickets and all information see W. McIlroy, Agent, 303 George St.

MUNICIPAL MATTERS IN SMITH

Probably no Contest for The Reeves Chair This Year

Smith township ratepayers are commencing to talk municipal matters and discussing the probabilities for the municipal elections in January. From what can be learned there is going to be no opposition to Reeve Scott for the reeveship, and unless something unlooked for turns up he will have a second term by acclamation. Smith township will have a deputy reeve in 1908, having now over 1,000 ratepayers, the number required to entitle the municipality to a deputy reeve. Some of the present councillors will likely aspire to the deputy reeveship. — Lakefield News.

A MODERN JESSE JAMES CREATES STARTLING SENSATION WITH A SIX SHOOTER ON A LONELY CAVAN ROAD IN THE EVENING TWILIGHT

Sends Four Bullets into Charles Porteous' Head and Relieves Him of His Money—Dined With Victim at Noon Yesterday

PORTEOUS LIVED ALONE

Unparalled Robbery in the Millbrook District—Police on The Trail of The Highwayman—Farmer May Recover

A rude reminder of the times when highwaymen ran amuck for pleasure among the sparsely settled districts was experienced at a farm house between Cavanville and Millbrook last night when one of the most sensational and daring hold-ups of the present age in any country occurred, and which has left Charles Porteous, a farmer, lying at death's door.

The story of the tragic affair is one of a most bloodthirsty character. Besides being robbed of the money from his pockets on the farm where he lived alone, he was shot four times in the head by a revolver in the hands of one of the most desperate characters that has ever travelled the highways in these modern times.

The desperado is up to the present at liberty, although the police of Peterborough, Millbrook and Toronto have been on his trail, and if he is apprehended will no doubt suffer much for his inhuman action of last night.

He Wanted Work

Yesterday morning he called at the farm house of Mr. Porteous looking for work. The farm lies about five and a half miles from Millbrook and about four and a half miles from Cavanville on the eighth concession of Cavan. The owner is a widower whose wife passed away a few years ago and who owns considerable property where he lives.

The unwelcome and unknown visitor applied for employment and stayed with him and accepted his hospitality for the morning. After the midday meal the stranger took his departure, but from his subsequent actions he must have had murderous ideas running through his mind all day.

Draws a Gun

At night again he retraced his steps to the Porteous farm and demanded money from the victim of his villainous deed. Mr. Porteous at the time of the second visit was at the stable milking the cows. He refused to comply with the demands of the highwayman and resisted search. The six-shooter of the stranger was then brought into play and soon four bullets went whistling round the farmer's head, all of which struck the intended mark.

Porteous was then robbed of the money he carried, amounting only to $7.50, after which he made his escape from the clutches of the desperado.

Covered With Blood

With a bullet hole through his head, and the blood streaming from four wounds, the farmer made his way out of reach of his unwelcome visitor. Notwithstanding the loss of blood, he arrived in a semi-conscious state at the farm house of Mr. Joseph Challice, where he told his ghastly tale for the first time.

Dr Turner of Millbrook, was immediately 'phoned and soon arrived on the scene. The Millbrook police were also notified and were soon on the trail of the stranger. On examining the victim Dr. Turner discovered that he had been shot four times about the head, and extracted the bullets that had not gone all the way through the flesh.

Where the Bullets Struck

The first ball struck Porteous on the left cheek, causing a slight wound. The next passed entirely through his face from left to right, the third went through the scalp at the back of the head, and the fourth grazed the left side of the head just above the ear. To-day the doctor stated to the Examiner that none of the wounds were serious, but he did not think that Porteous would die.

The Peterborough and Toronto police have been notified of the affair and are on the watch for the stranger.

About the Murderer

Mr. Porteous gave a detailed description of the man to the police, considered him to be a Yankee, about 25 years of age. He is described as wearing a black overcoat, a black peak cap, and a mask which buttons about the neck. He is clean shaven and has suffered the loss of two front teeth. From the information the authorities are hopeful of running him to earth.

From the Porteous farm he is supposed to have made his way to the C. P. R. near Myrtle. There he boarded a freight going west, but he later became too cold in the dark, or devised another means of escape, as according to the train crew, he was traced his steps eastward. Up to the present no further information could be learned of the man who vigorously attempted the murder of a quiet farmer on a homestead [illegible]

NEEDY CITIZENS WILL HAVE CHANCE TO BREAK STONES DURING WINTER MONTHS

Board of Works Try to Solve The Problem of What is to be Done For the Unemployed This Winter

TO PURCHASE THE STONE

The problem of what is to be done in the way of providing work for the large number of unemployed residents of the city, the majority of them immigrants, was partially, at least, solved last night by the Board of Works, which body decided to purchase $100 worth of stone to be broken through the winter for road purposes. This it is thought will give work to many needy citizens and it will at the same time be useful although, perhaps, unnecessary, as the stone crusher can provide enough broken stone for the roads. However, the money will be well spent if it serves the purpose intended and gives the unemployed an opportunity to earn their livlihood during the winter months.

Besides the business the vexed question of Mr. Wm. Davidson's deposit of $25 for sewer connection with his premises, on Dickson street, and which deposit he is seeking repayment of, was thoroughly gone into. This was the question which caused so much trouble at the council meeting on Monday night.

It is claimed that Mr. Davidson had dug up the street, and taken the law in his own hands, whereas according to bylaw he should have first secured permission, from the city engineer before proceeding with the work. Mr. Davidson claims that he had taken the initiative in this matter in ignorance of the law, and with no intention to defy the city, and as soon as his attention was drawn by the engineer to the requirements of the law under such circumstances, he had immediately made his deposit with the city treasurer. The board decided to return Mr. Davidson's cheque, but in future to prevent the opening of streets without permission.

Ald. Wilson moved, seconded by the Mayor, that Mr. Davidson be refunded his deposit of $20, but in future the engineer be instructed to impose a fine of $10 on any person opening a street without permission before accepting a deposit for a sewer connection.—Carried.

Ald. Wilson moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that the city lay in one hundred dollars worth of stone to be broken for road purposes. Tenders to be asked for the same.—Carried.

A WALKER THAT BEATS THE WORLD

Has Walked Over 10 Times Distance Around the Earth

There must be few, even among "men of letters," who, like Joseph Hunt, a Lincolnshire postman, can claim to have tramped a distance of, roughly, 240,000 miles, not much less than the equivalent of ten journeys around the earth.

Not long ago George Thompson retired from service as postman in the Langrick district of Yorkshire, after covering on foot 125,000 miles in 26 years of letter-carrying, a service of 14 years shorter than that of his Lincolnshire rival.

In 34 years Orme M. Brown walked 111,000 miles as postman between Cupar and Kilmany and Logie — a considerable distance, as was stated at the appropriate presentation to him of an easy chair, nearly equal to half that which separates the moon from the earth.

John Simmonds of Henley-on-Thames, retired with a record of 181,000 miles of fair "tack and toe," the result of 40 years' tramping; while most amazing of all, Thomas Phipps, a postman in the Chipping Norton district, was credited with an aggregate journey of 440,000 miles between the years 1840 and 1896.

SOLD WEDDING PRESENT TO KEEP FROM STARVING

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—John Booth, an English chemist, unable to get work, though tramping the streets of Ottawa for the past two weeks, yesterday took cyanide of potash, asked his wife to forgive him, and fell dead at her feet. He has had very hard luck, and it is alleged, had to sell his wife's gold watch (a wedding present) to try and keep the wolf from the door. Local English societies will assist the wife and 16-months-old child left.

OBITUARY

AN ARABIAN GOING TO HAVELOCK

But Could Not Explain His Wants To The People

It is not very often that a traveller from the ancient country of Arabia visits Peterborough, but last night one of these countrymen passed through the city, even with his back turned to Mecca. He was on his way to Havelock, but he could not say so in English. He had a little card on which was written—

"I want to go to Havelock,"

And when he came in on the flyer last night he tried to find out his next move to reach the railway town. He did not understand English so Conductor Mercer pointed out, as clearly as he could, how the foreigner could get to the C. P. R. station, and take a train going east. The stranger started off, but it is not known how he succeeded. He was very peculiarly dressed and carried a white bag, looking very much like an Oriental.

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer last night was down to four degrees below zero, but by daybreak, the temperature had moderated considerably, and the mercury marked ten degrees above. It has been rising gradually all day.

DIFFERENT CONDITIONS

Our Conservative critics make a great display of protest against the increasing expenditures of the Dominion for public purposes. They contrast them with the expenditures at the time the Conservatives were in office. They forget that since that time there has been a tremendous expansion in every department of national activity. The total trade of the country has increased nearly three fold; they forget that the manufacturing, commercial, agricultural, and all other departments of national activity have shared alike in the growth. There has been an almost three-fold increase in revenue under decreased tariff taxation. Then why should there not be an increase of public expenditures, necessary in a double sense—to create the conditions favouring expansion and development, and to meet demands for services arising out of the great growth in all departments of national interest? Under Conservative rule there was depressed and diminishing trade; there was flaccid revenue under a high rate of taxation; there was large expenditure—indeed, extravagant expenditure, since it went far beyond the covering capacity of the national income— and enormous increase of the public debt. While there have been large expenditures under the Liberal Government, they have been warranted in many ways. Because the needs of the country in the way of transportation and other advantages demanded them; because, being needed, we had the money to make them without adding to the burden of the public debt. What has been, and is, wise and justifiable expenditure under Liberal conditions, would have been and was, largely, unwise and imprudent under the regime of the Conservatives. The conditions were the opposite of what have prevailed in the past eleven years under the administration of the Liberal Government, and still prevail.

THE POWER POLICY

The Ontario Government power policy is being subjected to considerable criticism. One authority which seems to have considered the subject sets forth the conclusions arrived at:

"The proposal that the Government of Ontario should supply power to municipalities; pay for doing so out of the revenues of the Province; control the supply; and recover the cost of supplying it and controlling it from the municipalities seems to be most ingenious it looked at from the point of view of the politician.

Conceive, if possible, the Dominion Government supplying postal service on the lines of "The Power Commission Act;" delivering mail, keeping account of the cost of delivery, and vested by law with power to make the municipalities pay the following charges: Four per cent. upon moneys expended for the necessary establishment; an annual sum sufficient to repay in thirty years all money spent and debt incurred for establishing the service; the cost of operating the service and insurance upon all property necessary to it.

Have we not had enough of the use of public moneys for party ends. But how much worse from any one but the politician's point of view would be the use of what would not be truly public moneys but moneys that belonged to sections of the public who would derive no benefit. Governments would have the administration of funds, and the power to apply them for political advantage, that would be furnished by municipalities bound to supply them by contracts that bound all people alike without respect to their political leanings. Municipalities entering into such contracts would incur this danger of blind contribution to political purposes. Opponents of Governments in power will be placing in the hands of such governments funds that the latter can control as they choose. What scope for political party manipulation at the expense of the municipalities."

NATURE WORKS THE CURE

If you try to doctor an overworked stomach and a clogged liver you often add to your troubles. The stomach that has been living on rich foods needs a rest, not drugs. Diet yourself and leave drugs alone. To get the stomach and liver back into shape you must eat moderately, skip a meal occasionally, eat your food slowly, take lots of exercise, and beware of strong cathartic pills. The bowels may be gotten into working order by the use of the following prescription: one ounce sweet spirits of nitre, four ounces syrup of rhubarb and one ounce compound vimosa. Take a dessertspoonful in water after meals and at bedtime.—10.

THE ESTIMATES

Mr. Fielding brought down the estimates of the Dominion at Ottawa, Wednesday. The amount called for, $119,237,000, is almost $20 per head of the population of the country, and if this were to be raised by taxation, as many people imagine, or spent merely in operating the machinery of government, it would be a very serious burden.

As a matter of fact, Canadians are taxed at a remarkably low rate, when the totals are compared to those in the budgets of European peoples. In Great Britain, for example, the army and navy cost $315,000,000 last year, or $7.40 per head of the population. The same services in Canada costs about 90 cents per head. The British debt interest and sinking fund charge last year was $135,000,000 ,or about $3.14 per head of an estimated population of 43,000,000. The debt charges in Canada this year total $2.06 per head of an estimated population of 6,000,000.

Great Britain does not own a mile of the railway lines of the United Kingdom. Canada operated 1,483 miles of railway, with a revenue of $7,950,000 in 1906. This has been materially increased during 1907. The railway revenue passes through the Dominion Government's books, but it is not taxation, nor is it spent on Government machinery. The amount to operate the road comes in from the sale of tickets and the carriage of freight, just as the G.T.R. and the C.P.R. revenue comes in, and is paid out to the employees and for supplies. The eight millions of revenue, therefore, is no more taxation than is the revenue of any other railway company, yet many people compare the per capita expenditures of the Government of Canada with those of States that operate no public services, and shake their heads gravely over Canada's high cost of government.

The national Government in Canada does a very uncommon thing in gathering from the people by customs taxes much of the money used to maintain the Provincial Governments. This year the various Provinces will get a little over $9,000,000 from the Dominion Treasury toward the cost of Provincial services. There is, of course, nothing of the sort south of the line, and yet comparisons are frequently made between the cost of the national Governments at Ottawa and at Washington. Many other departments of the public service bulk largely in the estimates, yet do not involve any taxation. Of this nature is the Postoffice, which accounts for over $6,000,000 of the total.

The estimates this year include $30,000,000 for the National Transcontinental Railway, and the people will, of course, own the road when it is built. After it is put into running order the G.T.P., the operating company, will pay a rental for its use.

Much of the big sum called for, it will be noticed, is being spent in laying up assets in the form of railways, canals, docks, grain elevators and public buildings, all of value in facilitating the country's business.—Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES

General Stoessel, is now undergoing trial in Russia, for the surrender of Port Arthur — the Russo-Japanese war wind-up. From an independent point of view, it would seem to be about as reasonable to try a man for being hanged.

If Premier Whitney speaks in favour of the power bylaw, next week Adam Beck can say, "Now let thy servant depart in peace." It will be the first time, remarks the Toronto Star, the great man has broken silence on this subject since he proclaimed that "Niagara power should be free as air."

The Conservative journals complain of increasing expenditure. It is to be noted that the estimates contain an increased item for legislation. The longer Parliament sits the greater the expenditure. It costs about $15,000 per day for the average session, or about $500 an hour for legislation. The Conservative Opposition spun out the debate on the address by obstructive talk, at the rate of about $75 per minute, thus adding to the cost of legislation and the expense of Government. Speech may be silver, but silence would be golden on the part of parliamentary spouters who talk for mere mischief-making purposes.

Our back-door contemporary refers, in its characteristically crude way to the remark of the Examiner that the only live working representatives Peterborough—West Peterborough especially—has had in the past twenty years have come from the Liberal party, by sarcastically disparaging the services of Mr. Stratton during his long period of representation. The Review cannot laugh away the record. It is invited to make comparison between the representation West Peterborough had between 1886 and 1905 and the representation it has had since and has now; and to make comparison between the absentee representation West Peterborough had previous to 1904, and the representatives it has had since that time. The contrast will be in both cases between perfunctory party figureheads and live representation by live men, alive to the interests of their constituents.

FRUITS ORIGINATED IN CANADA

Complete List is Desired by the Government and Assistance is Required

EXAMINE THEIR MERITS

The following communication from the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, will be of interest to Horticulturists, as well as farmers:

During the past three hundred years many varieties of fruits have originated in Canada, some of which are of great merit. The Dominion and Provincial Government through their official publications have recorded a large number of those originated but up to the present time, no complete list of Canadian fruits has been published.

In view of the fact that many new varieties are being originated every year, it seems desirable, before the task becomes too great, to prepare as complete a list as possible, so that in future all that will be necessary to do will be to add to it the new ones.

The Horticulturist of the Central Experimental Farm, would therefore be grateful if you would either personally or through the Horticultural Society, or Farmers' Institute you may represent, assist in preparing this list by sending to him the names of any seedling or cross-bred fruits of Canadian origin, which you think should be recorded. It is especially desired to get information regarding local or unnamed seedlings of merit. Please send, if possible, the originator's name, the date of origin, the name of the place where it originated, a description of the fruit and any other information regarding it. Any or all of these particulars would be appreciated. Even if the name and address only of the originator were sent it would enable us to correspond with him and get further information.

The Horticulturist will be glad to examine and report on the merits of any new fruits which may be sent to him. Letters and mail parcels, under five pounds in weight may be sent free of postage.

SKELETON AT HIS FEAST

A Thing of The Past For a Portland, Maine, Man

Many a person in Peterborough sits down to a table laden with good things but a staring skeleton at the board warns them that they satisfy their appetite at their peril. This skeleton of indigestion has become a phantom of the past to many persons who have restored their digestive organs to a normal condition by taking our delicious cod liver preparation, Vinol. Vinol is rich in alterative elements which restore natural assimilation and makes rich, red blood, which in turn strengthens every organ in the body to do its work as nature intended.

Mr. W. E. Waterhouse, of Portland, Me., writes, "I suffered so long with stomach trouble and indigestion that I lost flesh rapidly. Vinol cured me after everything else had failed. It strengthened my digestive organs, gave me a hearty appetite, and I can eat anything without the slightest distress. I do not believe any other remedy equals Vinol for stomach troubles and indigestion."

We ask Peterborough people who suffer with indigestion and every weak, aged and run-down person, to try Vinol. If it does not help you, we will return the purchase money. McDermid and Jury, druggists, Peterborough, also the Market Drug store.

OTHER TOWNS WANT INCREASE

Gravenhurst and Berlin Have Same Request as Peterboro'

Approving municipal debentures generally at an increased rate of interest is keeping the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board busy these days.

Berlin has a waterwork extension bylaw for $6,000, and Gravenhurst one for $15,000. Gravenhurst further wants to pay 5 per cent. instead of 4 1-2 on $45,000. Peterborough has two bylaws, one for $40,000 and the other for $21,000. Peterborough wants the rate changed from 4 3-4 per cent to 5.—Toronto Star

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound, or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube resored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

PEOPLE WHO DISAPPEAR.

Love Affairs and Family Differences Often the Reason.

"Women do not disappear so much as men," said Mr. Hartley, an international detective, who was interviewed in reference to a mysterious disappearance which is now attracting much public attention.

"When a woman goes it is usually a love affair. Either the parents object to the man, or there is some other cause. And it is important to remember what cunning schemers women can be. Even quite young girls may be wonderfully clever in keeping things from their parents. During the course of my work I am very sceptical of women for this reason. A girl might arrange for her lover or some one sent by him to meet her, and it would be a very simple matter for her to give her friends the slip in a crowded street. Of course very often we get cases of sudden loss of memory happening to people who are in the best of health and spirits, but one rarely finds this occur to a young girl, and where the tendency does exist the family or friends usually know of it and keep watch accordingly. Again, it is possible a girl does not like the prospect of going home after she has been away for a holiday, and some one with whom she was in touch might assist her in carrying out a plan of her own.

"Disappearances are very common not only in London but in Paris and New York, but the public seldom heard of them. Not only girls but old men and others disappear. Generally these are not cases of kidnapping; they had to do with family or business matters, and as the families as a rule did not wish the police to know the circumstances they employed private detectives. Thus the outside world does not get to know of half of the disappearances and their causes.

"Crimes sometimes enter into these sudden disappearances. A cool headed man of the world who has committed theft or felony either in business or private life will take it into his head to disappear and make a fresh start in life somewhere else. A few years ago a gentleman whose family was high in the social world vanished. He has been suspected of robbing his brother-in-law during a period of pressure in the latter's business. The victim knew that if he informed the police his brother-in-law would stand in danger of being prosecuted, so he handed the case over to me. It was proved that the man had actually been robbing him right and left, but for the sake of his wife he was allowed and even assisted—to disappear.

"A husband walked out of his flat in Marylebone one day and was not heard of. His wife searched for three months herself then came to me. She knew her husband could not have endured hardship or adventure, because he was physically unable to do much for himself. It was a troublesome case, but eventually I found the husband in a nursing home. What had happened was that the man's parents were strict living people, who did not go to the theatre and did not drink stout. They did not think their son's wife—who did those things—was good enough for him, and they chose this means of getting him away from her."

Do not be troubled because you have not great virtues. God made a million spears of grass when he made one tree.—Beecher.

JEWISH WEDDINGS.

The Form of Ceremony the Same as In Remote Ages.

The Jewish wedding ceremony is almost the same to-day as it has been for centuries, simple and impressive, but quite different from our ceremonies. Religious Hebrews get married under a canopy of silk called the huppat, which is supported at the four corners of the square by poles.

The first in the wedding procession is the rabbi, carrying a glass goblet of wine. Next come four bearers carrying the canopy, each holding a pole. Next come the parents of the bride and groom, and behind them the bride and groom are arm in arm. The canopy is halted and held at the desired spot, the bride and groom going under it. The groom stands still, and the bride walks around him three times, then takes her place at his right hand, while the rabbi is singing a song of praise. Then the bridegroom takes his bride's hand and slips on her finger the plain gold wedding-ring, saying in Hebrew: "Thus do I make thee my wife according to the laws of Moses and the customs of Israel."

Both bride and bridegroom take a sip of wine from the goblet the rabbi holds, after which the bridegroom takes the glass himself, drops it on the ground, and crushes it beneath his heel. The rabbi says: "No more than this glass be united again can this couple be separated." This is the end of the ceremony, and it is followed by a supper to the guests, seated at long tables, where speeches are made and congratulations given the bride and groom.

Some Other Fellow's.

"With $100,000," said the man of expansive ideas, "I could make a fortune in Wall street."

"Yes," replied the piker, "but whose fortune would you make?"—Washington Star.

Despite the fact that the Toronto papers have been jumping at Peterborough ever since the Montreal game, and have hinted that Peterborough would have no chance to get into the Intermediate Provincial Union, it looks as if the body was of a different frame of mind. The following letter received by Mr. T. W. McDonough, secretary of the club, will be evidence of that fact:

Dear Sir,—

A general meeting of the Intermediate Union is to be held at the King Edward Hotel in Toronto at 2.30 p.m. on Saturday, December 21, for the purpose of discussing, among other things, the question of expansion. As delegates which your club might care to send will be made welcome at the meeting.

Yours,
W. B. Hendry,
Sec.-Treas.

Peterborough will be represented at the meeting and will make a big fight for admission.

In the Attic.

By TEMPLE BAILEY.

Copyrighted, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

Miss Cynthia's attic was fragrant with aromatic herbs. Little bags of lavender and of dried rose leaves hung from the rafters and mingled their delicate perfume with the coarser aroma of sage and sweet marjoram and thyme and summer savory.

On autumn afternoons the attic was golden with sunshine, and from the little peaked window one could see the long white road and the blue hills beyond.

It was to this fragrant and gold lighted attic that Miss Cynthia would come when the summer rush was over and in its peace and quiet try to forget that she was worn and worried and withered.

At thirty-five one should not be worried and withered. But hard lives do not make for youth and freshness, and Miss Cynthia had always drudged. Work had been the watchword on the farm, and when prosperity had come in later years the habit of keeping summer boarders had become fixed, and even after the death of her parents Miss Cynthia had continued it.

But with September came rest and freedom, and it was then that Miss Cynthia sought the attic and wrote in her diary.

The diary was a safe outlet for her woes. There were pages blotted with the tears she had shed when she had closed the volume of her first romance, and two leaves on which she had penned a poetic swan song of affection were pinned together with a black pin.

Miss Cynthia had old fashioned ideas about love. She had loved once, and hence there could be no other affair. It mattered nothing that the man in the case was married and had grown fat and pudgy and uninteresting. It was not the man, but the idea, and to that idea Miss Cynthia was true.

To be sure, no second suitor had entered her life, so that there had been no severe tax upon her constancy. But the roses had gone out of her cheeks when she was twenty, and she had twisted her hair in an uncompromising knot and had at that early date given herself up to mourning and to memories.

"You're silly," Martha Ann told her one bright September morning as Miss Cynthia, with her black diary in her hand, prepared to ascend to the attic. "Why don't you go out and visit and have a good time instead of writing in that dark old place?"

Martha Ann was an old and privileged servant, but Miss Cynthia would brook no interference with her acts of affliction.

"I don't think good times are my portion, Martha Ann," she said and went up the stairway thoughtfully.

Halfway up she paused to say: "Make a good vegetable soup for lunch, Martha Ann. I'll throw down a bunch of my herbs. Soup will taste good on a cool day."

"Love," wrote Miss Cynthia in her little book, "is of man's life a thing apart; 'tis woman's whole existence!"

When she had rounded off the last prim letter she bit the end of her pencil and sighed and looked out of the peaked window.

Far down the road she could see a cloud of dust. Coming nearer, the cloud showed itself the forerunner of an automobile.

The big machine swerved out of the road and into Miss Cynthia's own drive. It stopped at her door, and she had to lean far out of the peaked window to see Martha in her gingham apron speaking to the occupant.

Miss Cynthia could not hear a word, and she almost fell over the sill in the effort to satisfy her curiosity. She saw Martha Ann go in, and presently she felt a pull at the back of her dress.

"Goodness," Martha Ann said crossly, "I called and called, and I couldn't make you hear. That man wants something to eat."

"What?" Miss Cynthia gasped. "But he doesn't look like a tramp, Martha Ann."

"Tramps don't ride in automobiles," Martha Ann sniffed. "He says he's been riding all the morning, and he just couldn't find a place to eat, and he would be glad to pay for a meal. He understood that we took boarders, he said."

"Well, you go down and hurry the soup and make an omelet and some hot biscuits, and I will talk to him, Martha Ann."

"You'd better stop in your room and primp a little," Martha Ann advised. "He's awfully good looking."

"The idea!" said Miss Cynthia, with dignity.

She was a little sorry, however, when she reached the sitting room that she had not taken the girl's advice, for the man that she greeted was big and blond and prosperous looking. It developed that he slurred his grammar, but as he leaned back in the biggest rocking chair and talked in his hearty voice Miss Cynthia decided that he was very attractive.

"I expect you think it's queer my dreppin' in on you this way?" he said as Martha announced lunch. "But I couldn't pass the poppies and the peonies in the yard. My mother used to have an old fashioned garden, and there was something about yours that reminded me of it, and I felt as if you'd give me a home cooked meal. A man gets tired of hotels."

Over the steaming, savory soup he expanded still more.

"This is the kind I like," he said "With all the vegetables in it and herbs. I'll bet you've got a lot of herbs tied up in your attic. My mother had. She said the attic was the pleasantest place in the house, and I used to think so too."

Miss Cynthia felt that at last she had met an understanding soul.

"Would you like to go up after lunch?" she asked eagerly. "There is a fine view from the little dormer window."

"My, how nice it smells!" said the big man as he seated himself in Miss Cynthia's favorite corner. The black diary lay open by his side. His eyes caught the lines:

Love is of man's life a thing apart;
'Tis woman's whole existence.

"Oh, tommyrot!" he said. "Did you write that?"

"Yes," Miss Cynthia admitted. "Byron said it, you know."

"Well, he didn't know what he was talking about. Why, if I loved a woman I should just love her all over—no halfway business for me."

"Oh!" Miss Cynthia gasped. There was something in his tone that made his statement next door to a declaration—a fervency that positively thrilled her.

"I am awfully glad I came," he said as they went downstairs. "I am a stranger in this neighborhood, but if you will let me come again I will be mighty glad. It seems like my own folks."

"You must come real often," Miss Cynthia urged, and hoped that Martha Ann would not hear her invitation.

"Gee! This is the way to live," said her visitor as he stood on the steps and surveyed the quiet gardens, the family of gray pussy cats in the sunny porch corner, the gray horse in the paddock.

"I should think traveling around in your automobile would be interesting," Miss Cynthia ventured.

"Well, 'tis," he agreed. "Do you like it?"

"I have never been in one," Miss Cynthia admitted.

"What?" he asked. "Oh, look here! You run right up and put on your hat, and I'll take you."

"Oh," said Miss Cynthia, all a-flutter, "I wonder if I can?"

"Of course you can," said the gentleman securely. "I won't run away with you."

Safe in her own room, Miss Cynthia consulted Martha Ann.

"You'd better go with us," she said. "I don't think it's quite proper, Martha Ann, do you?"

"I wouldn't go in one of them things if you'd give it to me," Martha Ann said, "and he's all right. I saw his name on a bundle of papers he left in the automobile. He's Andrew Briggs, the millionaire that's bought the factory. He is building a church and a library for the town, and I guess he's respectable."

Miss Cynthia dressed in a whirl. Of what account was that little romance of years ago when at her gates was a prince like this?

She came down with four yards of white chiffon tied around her hat. It had been bought for a waist, but, worn as a veil, it made a fascinating frame for her flushed little face. One man loosened her hair, and the soft brown curls gave youthfulness to her expression.

Mr. Briggs eyed her with appreciation.

"I'm awfully glad I met you," he said again as he helped her into his car.

Martha looked after them as they whirled down the long white road.

"Well, I never!" she remarked to the pussy cats. "Did you ever see two people take to each other like that? I bet it will be a match"—

And it was.

Both Won.

That the average Broadwayite is a "natural born gambler" was well illustrated the other morning. Two men met, and one confessed the want of breakfast. The other "made good" the deficiency, and during the meal No. 1 remarked that he had received notice that there was a registered letter in the postoffice for him.

"Nobody would send me money," he added, "so it's a waste of car fare to go after it."

"I'll give you a dollar for a half interest," said No. 2.

"You're on if you pay care fare," was the quick reply.

After breakfast the pair went to the postoffice, got the letter, opened it and found a five dollar bill.

"Anyhow I'm $3.50 ahead," said the owner of the letter as he "split the bill." "That's from a man I never expected to make the loan good."—New York Globe.

Could Not Cure Himself.

Something of the irony of fate is exemplified in an anecdote related by the New York Times concerning Professor Poirier, who until his death was the most famous cancer expert in France.

Professor Poirier gave much of his time without pay to aiding poor people afflicted with cancer. One day there came to him a woman on whom he had operated and who feared the growth was coming again.

"Fear nothing," said the physician when he had made an examination. "It will be some years before you will need a fresh operation—which, by the way, I shall not be able to perform."

"But, doctor, you will not refuse to treat me?"

"No, my poor woman, but I shall not be there to do it. I also have a cancer, and it will be more rapid than yours."

A Counter Charge.

An elegant young man seized a thief on the platform of a train, saying, "Are you not ashamed to follow so disgraceful a profession?"

"And are you not ashamed," demanded the other, "to go so well dressed without a pocketbook about you?"

The Old-Fashioned Family.

A fireplace anyone may have, and to me the wonder is that our civilization has abolished the very soul from our northern homes. Fire is no longer the joy of the household, but the slave, imprisoned in the cellar. Ah, but it was delicious, when the old-fashioned family sat together in the great kitchen around the huge fireplace. All the evening we told stories, ate doughnuts, drank cider, all the time paring apples, and hanging the long festoons of quarters from the beams. But the dear little mother, she it was who told the best stories, while she was knitting mufflers and socks, or mending our well-worn clothing. There were no parlors at all in those days, and as for strummed pianos, we had not yet heard of them. At nine o'clock, honest and drowsy, we knelt and thanked God for life and love and home. Our bunks and beds and trundle beds were all in close proximity, and from every one of them we could see the flames, still jumping up the chimney, while the big Bvelog was slowly eaten through. There was not one millionaire in all the world, and, indeed, we were not worried over the affair.

Thimbles.

The earliest thimbles were made of leather, but in the seventeenth century they were of gold and silver, principally gold, and enriched with rubies and other gems.

ANXIOUS WAGNER.

The First Performance of "Rienzi" at Dresden.

In Ludwig Frankenstein's Wagner year book Gustav Kietz tells this story in connection with the first performance of "Rienzi" at Dresden: "On the day of the first performance Wagner asked me to meet him in front of the theater after the box office had been opened, so that he could give me and my friend Schuster, the butcher, tickets for the performance. Wagner was in a state of great excitement, and when he gave me the two tickets Heine whispered to me, 'Take some one with good big hands with you.' He watched the people as they came toward the theater, and every time one went in he would make some remark to his wife which showed his satisfaction. I had to go within, but I shall never forget the childish joy of the composer when he saw groups enter the house and the disappointment when others passed the open doors. I thought of it even that evening when the enthusiasm was the greatest. How happy Wagner and his wife must have been at the following two performances, when the house was so filled that even his relatives, who had come to Dresden for that purpose, could not be admitted to the theater!"

The Mood of ——

A story told of Carlyle in an English review forcibly recalls the days when in England religious services were long enough to test the zeal of the worshipers.

According to the story, Carlyle had been asked to take the reading at family prayers during a short visit paid to his friend, the provost of Kirkaldy. The Bible chanced to open at the first chapter of the book of Job, and Carlyle immediately became absorbed in his subject and read on and on to the end of the last chapter, which, closing the volume, he remarked:

"That is a marvelous lifelike drama, only to be appreciated when read right through."

It is fair to infer that it was appreciated for once. Any one who has taken a long, solitary afternoon and attempted to give the book of Job an opportunity to be appreciated by reading it honestly through at one sitting can realise the consternation of the provost. Such a one will not be likely to wonder with Carlyle why he was not asked again to assist at family prayers in that household.

Why Hollow Trees Live.

In forests and private parks one may often witness the remarkable sight of a very old tree, with a trunk consisting of nothing but a hollow shell, and yet bearing branches that are covered with foliage. It would seem to be impossible that the dry bark, in some cases only held together by an iron band, could go on producing leaves year after year in the manner in which it does. The explanation, however, is quite a simple one. In very young trees the sap carrying portion is in the center. It is a series of bundles of minute cellular tubes, scientifically known as "vascular bundles." As the tree gets older this series of bundles forms a ring which gets bigger and bigger as the circumference of the tree increases. In course of time the center withers and decays, since it is no longer needed to supply the branches with nourishment. —London Graphic.

Eggshells.

When using eggs break away just enough of the smaller end of the shell to enable you to remove the contents. Wash the shells carefully; then put them away in some safe place. At jelly making time fill these shells with jelly, covering the broken end with paraffin paper. It is impossible to imagine a more convenient way to carry jelly.

THE LAW AGAINST KILLING.

Deep Rooted Feeling Against Murder Exists In Most Animals.

There is a deep rooted feeling against murder in most animals. Their senses tell them that this is one of their own race and their instinct that therefore it is not lawful prey. New born rattlesnakes will strike instantly at a stranger of any other species, but never at one of themselves. I have seen a young mink, still blind, suck at a mother cat till fed, then try to kill her. Though a bloodthirsty creature, it would never have attacked its own mother.

Wild animals often fight for the mastery, usually over a question of mates, but in virtually all cases the fight is over when one yields. The vanquished can save himself either by submission or by flight. What is commoner than to see the weaker of two dogs disarm his conqueror by grovelling on the ground? The victor in a fight between two cats is satisfied when the foe flies; he will not pursue him twenty yards. In either case had the enemy been of another race the victor would have followed and killed him.

What makes the difference? Obviously not a reasoned out conclusion, but a deep instinctive feeling—the recognition of the unwritten law against unnecessarily killing one's own kind.

There are doubtless exceptions to this. Cannibalism is recorded of many species, but investigation shows that it is rare except in the lowest forms and among creatures demoralized by domestication or captivity. The higher the animals are the more repugnant does cannibalism become. It is seldom indulged in except under dire stress of famine. Nothing but actual starvation induced Nansen's dogs to eat the flesh of their comrades, although it was offered to them in a disguised form. Experience shows me that it is useless to bait a wolf trap with a part of a dead wolf. His kinsmen shun it in disgust unless absolutely famished.

Obviously no race can live by cannibalism, and this is instinctively recognized by all the higher animals. In other words, the law against murder has been hammered into them by natural selection, and so fully established that not only will they abstain from preying on one of their own tribe, but will rally to rescue one whose life is threatened. The fact that there are exceptional cases does not disprove the law among beasts any more than among men.—Ernest Thompson Seton in Century.

Not That Kind.

"What is your occupation?" asked the police justice.

"I'm a matchmaker, your honor," answered the prisoner, a seedy bobo who had been run in for vagrancy.

"No levity in this court!" thundered the justice.

The prisoner drew a ragged coat sleeve across his eyes.

"Your honor wounds me deeply," he said, "by misunderstanding me. I'm not a matrimonial bureau. I make real matches—the kind your honor scrapes on your honor's pants leg when your honor lights a cigar."

"My friend," said his honor, leaning forward and regarding him benignantly, "in this age of specialized industry, to say nothing of labor saving machinery, it is not likely that any man produces a complete match, ab initio or de novo, as we say in Latin. You probably split the wood into chunks suitable for the machine. We have no matchmaking plant at the workhouse, but I will endeavor to see that your muscles do not suffer from lack of their accustomed exercise. You will pound stone for the next thirty days."

The first entry on the books of the New York subtreasury was a credit to Lieut. W. S. Rosecrans as a Government disbursing officer.

Rings As Gifts

Our Display of Rings is greater this year than ever before—many exclusive designs are shown.

THE ONE YOU RING may be the man you'll be "banded" with for life, or it may be "just an old friend." In either case, he or she will be lucky to get such a good ring, and you'll be fortunate in getting it at our price.

FITTED ALL AROUND

We carry DIAMONDS to fit the ring,—rings to fit the finger, and prices to fit economical ideas and overworked pocketbooks.

A flash of exqaisite beauty beyond the mere play of words is our $25.00 DIAMOND SOLITAIRE.

SANDERSON & CO.

Colds

Many people in Peterboro and elsewhere can testify that the SAFEST Cough Remedy on the market for Children and Adults is—

Madill's
Cough Syrup

It does not dry the cough, but causes free expectoration, thereby freeing the lungs from phlegm.

Government Is Asked To Help Find Missing Child

Mrs. Marion of Lindsay Wants Assistance—Already $350 Has Been Spent in Futile Efforts to Locate Her

TRACED HER TO MONTREAL

Among Attorney-General Foy's callers yesterday morning was Mr. J. R. Marion of Lindsay, whose adopted daughter, Dorothy, disappeared from school at Lindsay on November 21st.

According to Marion, the kidnapper was Mrs. Marois of Montreal, the child's mother, and Marion's object in calling on Mr. Foy was to have the department take up the search for Mrs. Marois and the 8-year-old girl.

"I am a poor man," Marion said to The Star, "and already I have spent $350. We lost trace of the woman at Montreal Junction. From there she could go to Montreal on a street car, evading the police at the Windsor street station, or, else, to the States.

"Mrs. Marois gave us the child three years ago, and we adopted the child legally. My wife is almost prostrate. Both of us became attached to the child, and, not having children of our own, we lavished parental care and attentions on the little one. She was a wild tot when she came to us, but when taken from us had become as sweet a child as you could wish to see.

"Dorothy was received into our church," went on Marion, "and we loved her as our own. So devoted was my wife that she insisted on making the little girl's clothes."

It will be remembered that Mr. and Mrs. Marion were in Peterborough in the hope of finding their child but were doomed to disappointment.

BOYS PLAY INDIAN AND SCARE A BEAR

They Shot Arrows at Him Till he Climbed a Tree

Examiner Special.

New York, Dec. 13. — An Indian medicine company appeared near Low Beach, Sullivan county, yesterday, and following the red men's departure about twenty boys daubed their faces with lamp black, stuck feathers in their hair, and made for themselves hickory bows and arrows, which they pointed with sharpened horse shoe nails. Then they set out on a hunting expedition.

The young savages encountered their first real game two miles from the town. Charles Beckman discovered something moving in the brush. The boys twanged and a storm of arrows hit a half grown bear which rushed from cover. Another volley of arrows hit the bear, which then turned and climbed a tree. While the other "Indians" stood guard Sammy Curtain was sent to bring hunters with more effective weapons than nail tipped arrows. A posse of farmers killed the bear and not only forgave the boys for shooting live stock, but gave them steaks to broil in their tepees.

AT HOME IN AID OF DEEP SEA MISSIONS

Arrangements Made to Hold it on Jan'y 1st, 1908

The third annual At Home in aid of the Deep Sea Missions, will be held in the Conservatory of Music Hall, on January 1st, New Year's night. This is a function held for a worthy cause, and will no doubt be largely attended as in other years. The reception committee consists of Mrs. Peter Campbell, Mrs. J. R. Stratton, Mrs. J. A. Aylmer, Mrs. Cyril Currier and Mrs. D. Hughes Charles.

WILLIAMSON IS BACK AGAIN

In Daily Troubles At The Police Court

Evidently Margaret Williamson is not her husband's affinity. Judging from the family difficulties that are made public through the court, Geo. Williamson and his wife were not destined to tread life's path together in undisturbed tranquility. Yesterday morning Williamson appeared in court and had to pay $9.00 as a result of his most disgraceful actions in the Opera House on Wednesday night.

After court was over he was talking to Mr. Dumble about his antecedents and with a very humble mien asserted that he would never again appear in court and would certainly never touch "that vile whiskey" again. But Williamson's promise was not worth the breath wherewith he made it, for the next the authorities heard of him was yesterday afternoon when he assaulted his wife and according to the story treated her in a shameful manner.

Before Magistrate Dumble this morning Williamson pleaded not guilty to the charge of assaulting his wife. He was remanded for one week and will appear next Friday. It was reported that he had thrown his wife out of one of the windows of the house, but Williamson says that his wife broke it herself and was to blame for the whole affair. However, Magistrate Dumble will decide that next week.

By the way, Jas. Williamson, of the same clan, was fined $5.75 for being drunk and disorderly yesterday.

FIRST SMOKER WAS A SUCCESS

Mr. J. H. Burnham at Conservative Club Last Night

A successful smoker was held in the Conservative club rooms last night when Mr. J. H. Burnham of Toronto gave two readings. One was from Dickens and the other from a work of Thompson Seton. The attendance was very large and an enjoyable time was spent. Several songs were sung by Mr. Chambers, and Mr. Geo. Lynch was heard in two of his recitations given in his own way. The whole affair was a success, and a hearty welcome was extended Mr. Burnham.

ROYAL TEMPLARS HOLD MEETING

Interesting Evening Spent Last Night—Address by Rev. C. H. Coon

Last evening in the Y.M.C.A. hall a special meeting of the Royal Templars of Temperance was held for the purpose of initiating a large number of new members.

Bro. Richmond, as Select Councillor, occupied the chair, and Bro. Allin of Toronto, who for the past week has been working in this city, in the interests of the local society, conducted the initiation ceremonies.

Rev. C. H. Coon was present and delivered a much appreciated address. Miss Bell contributed to the evening's enjoyment by giving a well-rendered piano solo, and there were also a number of speeches by the members.

The next meeting of the society will be held on the second Tuesday of January, 1908, when all members new and old are urged to be present.

Music and Drama

Speaking of the National Chorus concert next week, the Toronto Star has the following to say of a well-known local artist: "Miss Helen Davies, the soprano, who has sung with such great acceptance at previous concerts, will sing in the 'Death of Minnehaha' on Monday evening."

THE ECKHART FAMILY

The greatest instrumental combination in the world, viz., the wonderful "Eckhart" Family, will give their famous variety entertainment in the Conservatory Music Hall, next Tuesday, at eight p.m. Crowded houses are greeting these great artists everywhere, and a great treat is in store for those who take in next Tuesday's show. Admission, 50c., and 25 cents.

HANDSOME CHRISTMAS WAR CRY

Some Excellent Stories and Beautiful Pictures in This Number

The Christmas number of the War Cry has reached the Examiner office. The issue is a handsomely illustrated one containing a large number of excellent stories and in every way is creditable to the publishers whose abilities in securing such excellent contents deserve more than a passing recognition. The War Cry, which is the official organ of the Salvation Army in Canada, will be read with delight in many homes in the Dominion. It contains two handsome supplements—a winter scene in Canada and that melancholy, but attractive scene, "The Doctor."

The front page is a pretty winter scene in colours and foretells a handsome and attractive interior. Among the portraits on the pages is that of the venerable leader, Gen. Booth, Commissioner Coombs, Staff-Capt. Goodwin, now in Peterborough, and many others. The stories include "Our Shack-stove Story" competition one of which was told by the local staff captain. "Christmas in Denmark," one of the stories was written by Col. Sowton, the chief secretary, who is coming to Peterborough in the near future. Another writer is Adjutant White who was here just a few weeks ago.

In a word the Christmas number of the War Cry is excellently written and handsomely illustrated and no doubt will be read by many in Peterborough and will be highly appreciated by them.

WERE DUMPED INTO CHURCH GROUNDS

Unique Experience of Three Young Men at Norwood Last Sunday

Three young Englishmen had quite an adventure last Sunday near Norwood. They set out to pay a visit to South Dummer church, but the horse did not see the necessity of going so far to attend church, and as they were passing along Ridge street, showed its disapproval by dumping them over the new cement wall into the Methodist Church grounds. After putting the cutter right again and sealing the wall the trio proceeded to South Dummer without further mishap, where they spent a very pleasant afternoon—so pleasant that when the time arrived to go home only two were ready to go. However, they started, and had not gone very far when the steed became unmanageable and got up such speed that one of the party rolled out of the cutter. At last, with the help of some Norwood boys and a C.P.R. train, the animal was brought to a standstill. The boys decided to take no further risks so unhitching the horse from the cutter, led it home. The third member of the party returned by the C. P.R.—on foot.

The entertainment in aid of St. Andrew's Church Relief Society will be held in the Grand Opera House on Jan. 24, Burns' night. The prices will be 15c' 25c, 35c and 50c.

The programme of ye olde folkes' concerte will be partly recital giving new features and Scotch songs appropriate for the evening will be introduced. A general meeting of the congregation and particularly all the societies of St. Andrew's Church is called for Wednesday next to thoroughly organize the plans of the relief society.

THE Y.M.C.A. DIRECTORS MEET

Discussed Plans For The Arranging of Bowling Alleys

The Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. met last night and received an estimate for altering the rooms downstairs to make space for the bowling alleys. Estimates will be presented at the next Board meeting for the cost of the alterations and if satisfactory, the work will be pushed rapidly forward. The association year closes December 31 and the directors find that a great many pledges made in the recent campaign are yet unpaid. It will greatly assist them in closing the books for the year if these are paid in soon.

The committee appointed to look after the refreshments on New Year's Day for the reception meeting to-night. The committee is composed of Messrs. P. Rodgrave, A. E. Walker, J. H. Connal, F. Cressman and Ray P. Best.

A challenge has been received from the Senior Boys' Department basketball team of Central Y.M.C.A. of Toronto for a game to be played here on New Year's Day.

SHAREHOLDERS WILL NOT LOSE MUCH

Shareholders of the defunct Ontario Bank were on the anxious seat this morning over a rumour that an assessment of 30 per cent. or thereabouts would be announced at this afternoon's meeting in Toronto.

Efforts to secure a confirmation or denial of the rumour were not successful, but financiers on the outside, when spoken to, declared that they could see no necessity for an assessment at present at any rate, as the bank has nominally a surplus of assets over liabilities of some $300,000, according to the October bank statement, and the liquidator is not necessarily forced to dispose of these assets until such time as a favourable market can be found. In any event, it is declared that such a course as an assessment would scarcely be taken as long as there is explanation of receiving from the former directors a sum which would pay off the bank's indebtedness and give the shareholders something.

Needless to say an assessment at this juncture would come pretty hard on many shareholders.—Montreal Star.

Committee in Charge Made Further Arrangements Last Night—Band Will Contribute Large Part of Programme

TICKETS WILL BE OUT SOON

At a meeting of the committee in charge of the David Hartley benefit concert held last night at the Examiner office it was decided to hold the function in the week ending January 18. The Market Hall has been secured for the occasion, and should admirably answer the purpose as it will accommodate a very large crowd. Mr. Gideon has charge of the programme, which will consist of a band concert, interspersed with vocal numbers and an acrobatic turn by Mr. Ted Daly, late of Norris and Rowe's circus.

The tickets will be out in a few days and there should be a ready sale. Reserved seats will be sold at 50 cents and general admission at 25 cents, and no doubt a very substantial sum can be raised. The effort is a praiseworthy one and every citizen should buy a ticket and help the work along.

HOUSE OF PROVIDENCE FORGOTTEN

Overlooked by Grand Jury in Their Tour Of Institutions

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Is it blind sarcasm or common ignorance that prompts every grand jury, when making its report to the judge, to suggest the advisability of erecting a house for the care of the city's poor?

Let any of the members of these juries take the trouble to go over to the fifth ward and he will find a splendidly erected, modern house, with beautiful grounds, known as the House of Providence, containing more than seventy of the city's and county's poor and needy.

Possibly it is because the city, as a corporation does not contribute anything towards the maintenance of this charity, that it is so continually and consistently ignored by the juries; or again it may be overlooked because its charitable deeds are done gently and quietly and not published in the daily press. It seems to me that published "charity," of which we have such an overdose in this city, smacks of cunning pride and of a desire for cheap popularity.

Yours truly,

"OBSERVER."

NUMBER OF DEGREES CONFERRED

Joint Committee Busy at Oddfellow's Meeting Last Night

A meeting of Oddfellows which was largely attended was held last night in their hall when various degrees were conferred on several members, the degree team being a joint one from Otonabee Lodge No. 13 and Peterborough Lodge No. 111.

Among the visiting brethren were P.D.D. Grand Master F. Fry and Noble Grand Robt. McNally of Norwood Lodge No. 262, together with ten other members, including six candidates for the several degrees.

Bro. Omar Butler, Noble Grand of Marmora Lodge No. 378, was in charge of the Marmora contingent.

Bro. Joe Kelly, Noble Grand of Lakefield Lodge No. 358, was present with the Lakefield brethren, 12 strong.

There were 11 candidates for the first degree, 14 for the second, and 16 for the third degree.

Bro. T. Hooper catered for the supper after the conferring of the degrees, and the visitors left on the midnight train for home.

CHRISTMAS GREETING CARDS

The Examiner Office has on hand a complete line of samples of Xmas Greetings which they will be pleased to show. Orders taken now filled at once.

THE PASSION PLAY IS MAGNIFICENT

Beautiful Pictures Have Been Admired By Hundreds

The magnificent representation of the life of Christ, the Passion Play, which is being shown at the Crystal this week, has been attracting enormous crowds, and the splendid pictures have been admired by hundreds. They are an instructive work of art and are the most realistic moving pictures yet shown in Peterborough. The second series, which will conclude the pictures, is being shown now and will conclude to-morrow night. In connection with their presentation the beautiful number, "The Holy City," is being sung.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

The Examiner would be pleased if all their subscribers who have had their street numbers changed would let this office know the new number in order that the address may be entered correctly on the delivery

WATER PIPES WERE TURNED ON

When Owner Returned The House Was Damp

Mr. J. H. Burnham, formerly of this city, but at present of Toronto, returned to Peterborough yesterday for the concert at the Conservative Club rooms. This morning he visited his house on Water street, which has been vacant of late, but found evidences that show that some persons had forced an entrance, and not content, had disturbed the ordinary conditions. One noticeable piece of vandalism was the breaking of the water pipes, and a considerable quantity of water had over-flowed on to the floor. Mr. Burnham left the repairing of the pipes in the hands of a local firm of plumbers. It could not be learned whether any further damage had been done.

HOW SHAREHOLDERS ARE AFFECTED

Bank Shareholders to Pay Part of the Double Liability

Toronto, Dec. 13.—Anywhere from 30 to 50 per cent. of their double liability is what the shareholders of the Ontario Bank will probably be called upon to pay as a result of the liquidation of that institution.

The net loss, as shown in the statement, is $2,157,543.13. Deducting from this $1,500,000 capital which is entirely wiped out, the loss remaining to be made up is $657,543.13.

The curator, Mr. W. E. Stavert, estimates that this deficit may be reduced under liquidation proceedings by from 35 to 40 per cent.

Of the capital of the bank, the bank itself holds 3,000 shares of stock, on which no double liability can be realized.

Taking the statement as it at present stands, the shareholders will be called upon for just a fraction over 50 per cent. of their double liability to make up the deficit.

It, however, the liquidation proceedings succeed in reducing the net deficit by 40 per cent., or $263,008, then there would remain $394,528 of a net deficit to be paid out of the double liability, or slightly over 30 per cent.

This, of course, is on the assumption that nothing will be recovered from the former directors of the bank, against whom suit has been begun. The shareholders at yesterday's meeting did not deal with a proposal to vote money for the prosecution of these suits, but will do so at an adjourned meeting.

WON MANY PRIZES AT GUELPH

Mr. Harry Lush Had Great Success At Poultry Show

Mr. Harry Lush of Dublin street returned home last night from spending a couple of days at the Ontario Poultry Show in connection with the fat stock exhibition at Guelph, bringing a goodly share of the prizes. Mr Lush exhibited 15 birds and made a remarkable showing considering the very large number of entries from all parts of Ontario. In the silver spangled Hamburg class he was especially lucky, getting first and second with pullets and second with a cock bird. He was also awarded a special prize for the best collection of Hamburgs shown, a noteworthy honour considering the number of entries, and also a special prize for the best pair of pullets in the Hamburg class. One of Mr. Lush's birds took first prize in the cailup class, and he secured two eighth prizes in Orpingtons, in which class no less than 200 birds were shown. For 15 birds, Mr. Lush's success is remarkable.

The show was a grand success according to Mr. Lush, and Mr. McNeil, the veteran poultry judge, stated that the entries were equal to the Boston and New York shows combined in quality and in point of quality far surpassed either.

410 GEORGE ST.

The Bishop Of London Tells Of What He Saw in Canada

His Impressions on His Visit To The Dominion—The Welcome Of The French Canadians

BOUNDLESS POSSIBILITIES

The Bishop of London contributes to the Diocesan Magazine a chatty account of his visit to Canada. These impressions are the more interesting as he refused to write articles concerning his tour for other publications. He says:

"Certainly one of the things that I shall remember most was the touching way in which on the last morning the emigrants came in dozens to the upper deck for me to autograph their Victorian cards as a memento to carry off to Winnipeg, or other towns in the far west as a memento of my time together crossing the Atlantic.

"To see Quebec for the first time as you round the bend of the beautiful St. Lawrence is certainly a moment in your life, and immediately I saw it I felt there was one text possible for my sermon next Sunday in the cathedral, 'A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid.' I found a fellow enthusiast about Quebec in my old friend Lord Grey, who came down during Saturday night to Quebec to greet me, and although I did not meet him until after church, I distinctly heard a rustle of approval in the Governor-General's pew when I said that Quebec was one of the few really famous spots on the world's surface.

"Then another thing which I must notice was the welcome I received from the French-Canadians. They seemed touched from the start by my public recognition of the splendid work done by the French Jesuit missionaries and nuns in the early days both at Quebec and Montreal, and showed their loyalty to the empire, and their welcome for me, who had come in a friendly spirit to see them. 'French Canada is as loyal as ever to the British crown.'

Canada's Love

"Ottawa was cool after Montreal, and the Governor-General had sent his 'aide,' Mr. Leveson Gower — 'another old friend—and some of the servants, to entertain us at Government House during our stay. The reception there, however, was as warm and cordial as in Montreal. And here I must again remark upon the wonderful loyalty of Canada. We sang 'God Save the King' at breakfast, luncheon and dinner; and this was only the first of the great meetings, when representatives of all denominations were present on the platform, and people of all classes and creeds appeared to bear a word from the old country. It was at Ottawa, too, that I had the first experience of one of the 'Canadian Club luncheons,' which are such features in Canadian life. At Ottawa Sir Wilfrid Laurier came to the club luncheon, sat by my side, showed me how to eat a Canadian corn 'cob,' and expressed himself as much interested, and even affected, by the account of the slums in old London.

"Nowhere did we have more delightful golf than on the beautiful links at Ottawa, and this feature of the tour had the incidental advantage of bringing me into touch with a class of men who haunt the golf links and tennis courts of the British Empire and the States, who otherwise would have felt that they had no part or lot in the visit of a Bishop to their country. Our stay at Toronto was delightful in every way and I may mention that all through the tour we have been favoured with the most delightful weather, only having two wet days during the whole time. This of course added to the beauty of the scenery through which we passed."

Dr. Ingram concludes his account of his Canadian tour in these words, "The expedition left me with a great idea, not only of the love of Canada for the Old Country, and of any one who came from it, but of its boundless possibilities. There is room in Canada for a hundred millions of people, and it ought eventually to be one of the greatest nations of the earth. We ought to see to it that it remains British in race and sentiment by sending out our best sons and daughters to it, and, above all, ought to spare no sacrifice or effort that those who go carry with them the ministrations of the Old Church, which has made England great in the past, and that the new nation shall be in heart and life and sentiment, first of all 'Christian.'"

THE CHRISTMAS GIFT DEPENDS UPON THE SPIRIT PROMPTING

"What shall I give for Christmas presents?" This is a question which at this season of the year comes to the mind of the gift-giving element of the country. The plutocrat thinks less on the subject than the newsboy with his papers under his arm on cold nights, as he rubs a few coppers or nickels together and wonders what little gift he can purchase which will bring some cheer to a little sister or hard-working mother in the place he calls his home. No matter how little has been laid aside during the year, or how insistent are the calls of necessity, there is something in the heart which longs to assist or to remember another when comes the message of "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men."

There can be no greater joy to those who have been blessed with means than to be the agent by which a gleam of happiness is brought to some person or family where the wolf has been hovering near the door. Such an act requires little, but accomplishes much. Again, where there is not the necessity the Christmas season gives splendid opportunities of recollecting old friends and school mates. A suitable card of greeting is much appreciated after possibly a silence of years and a wide separation.

Choose Wisely

The chief thing about presents is to choose them wisely and suitably to the recipients so that they will be truly appreciated.

There is an art in making a thoroughly acceptable Christmas gift. It requires no brains, if much money, to order a gift, at random and have done with it regardless of whether it is suitable and acceptable or not. On the contrary, it requires some brains and but little money to make a Christmas present that will please. All depends upon the spirit prompting the gift and the tactfulness in its presentation—who gives it and how it is given.

Peterborough stores have been making preparations for the Christmas trade which this year promises to exceed all expectations. The various merchants are among the most industrious in the country, and none strive more hard to produce and display the Christmas goods to the best advantag. They have everything in the line of Christmas presents for the old and young. The windows are now being dressed in their prettiest garbs, and they are handsome, too. The window of Richard Hall & Sons, depicting a forest winter scene, is a handsome one. Cressman's, Robt. Fairs, and Turnbull's stores are regular fairylands for special Christmas goods. The clothing stores, including Merrett & Merediths', Lang & Misher, and H. LeBrun, have been arranged in excellent style, and many compliments are being paid the proprietors on their activites.

The contents of the grocery stores are among the most valued, from the standpoint of the plum puddings, and cakes, and pies, that play such important parts on the Christmas Day tables. Great care is taken by the local grocery men to handle all lines of goods that the house wife needs for the culinary operations. Among the windows and stores that deserve special mention are those of W. H. Hamilton, White & Gillespie, Peter Conrad & Son, J. R. Ball, E. F. Mason, and W. Bradshaw. Bountzen & Mitchell, the wholesale liquor men, have secured fine estocks for their Christmas trade; Oke, and Dutton, are prepared for all emergencies in the fruit and fish line, and Porter, Matthews, and Kennedy have laid in handsome and wholesome winter meats, etc., which look tempting from the street.

Where Gifts Are

The jewellery stores which play such a prominent part in the gift line are looking their prettiest, and every hour crowds gaze with longing looks at the handsome and rich displays. Sanderson & Company, C. E. Frost, A. Gibson, Schneider, and Clarke & Son deserve special mention for their displays.

For stationery, bric-a-brac and fancy goods, A. H. Stratton & Co. have a fine assortment shown in two stores on George street. R. J. Soden and F. C. Cubitt are also interested in these. The fancy dry goods stores including Harry Adams', the Beehive, Mrs. Byrne's and Allan & Felion—the latter being chiefly a millinery store—are tastefully decorated with Christmas goods.

The winter season of the year recalls the services of the furs again, and Peterborough is well supplied with three excellent fur stores in Barrie's, Leah's, and Clarke & Company, the latter being managed by Mr. N. E. McWilliams. Now is the time the furs are needed, and with a cold, hard winter staring us in the face, nothing can be more acceptable as a Christmas gift than something from the interior of a fur store.

The confectionery men have high hopes for a favourable season. Hooper and Coleman have made special arrangements for the trade. Stenson, McWhinnie, and Kylie, three prominent boot and shoe merchants, have some pretty footwear which no doubt will be a strong attraction to the gift-hunter, who is now on the "rampage."

An Interesting Custom

While this almost universal convention in theology ostensibly signifies "Good will among men," it nevertheless is really an inherited custom confined to one's own fireside, his own circle of near relatives and intimate friends. The true genius of it all is Santa Claus, whose relation to the church is a very much mooted question.

As Christmas approaches, however, one's thoughts associate themselves with those nearest and dearest, how to surprise and please, and perhaps at the same time give something that is worth while.

The children wonder what will Santa Claus bring them, and the father, mother, uncle, aunt and grandparent, ask what the little folk would like Santa Claus to bring them; and so the tip is secured and happiness reigns around the family circle on Christmas morning when the stockings are emptied and presents distributed. Parents' enjoyment is increased by the happiness of their children, and Christmas becomes what it was intended to be—a season of joy.

"Every year the celebration of Christmas grows more elaborate. More presents are bought, the crowds are greater; the decorations are more splendid. The problems of the merchants are correspondingly more complex; the supply has to be increased, the pressure at every point intensifies. On the other hand public opinion disapproves long hours and late work, particularly for young women girls and children. On the other hand, merely through thoughtlessness, many shoppers defer their purchases until the last possible moment at the cost of unnecessary strain upon salespeople and delivery forces.

GIFT GIVING MADE VERY EASY

A Staff of Clerks Who Will Guide Purchasers in Making Selections

FOR LADIES AND MEN

With the holiday season close at hand the question of selecting suitable remembrances for one's friends as Christmas tokens is beginning to be a subject of worry. However, a visit to Cressman's large store will make this matter a delight for not only have they a large stock of choice presents for "him" and "her", but the staff under Mr. Cressman are careful in assisting the purchaser by displaying articles which their experience has taught them will be appreciated.

The store has been arrayed in holiday attire with gift suggestions at every hand. Mr. Cressman has made large preparations for the heavy business which has already begun. In his own words he believes that a record Christmas trade will be seen in this city.

The people manifest a strong tendency to select useful articles this season in fact more so than ever before. The purchaser in the woman's department of Cressman's store will find an extensive and varied line of desirable goods. Special attention is called to the fancy lines of all kinds that is ever a favourite with the ladies. Mr. Cressman has a fine display of linens of Irish and Austrian manufacture, hemstitched and drawn any article of which is a woman's delight.

In the man's department gifts that "he" will like are displayed in profusion. Special attention is called to the smoking or lounging gown and jacket that is the most popular gift of the season. It is strange but it is a fact that men seldom purchase one of these but he appreciates it as much as any garment in his wardrobe. Mr. Temple who has charge of this department presents a display of men's cravats that in select styles and colours at very reasonable prices is unsurpassed in local stocks. The ladies are assured that the gift suggested will be appreciated by the fastidious male.

WEAR IT?

(Supplied By W.C.T.U.)

Wear the White Ribbon, my sister,
O wear it abroad!
You cannot tell how its whiteness
May speak for the Lord.
Somebody's eye will be caught,
Someone will ponder in thought,
Lessons of purity taught—
'Is this no reward?

Wear the White Ribbon, my sister,
O wear it at home!
Influence there may re-echo
Through heaven's high dome.
Children about you at play,
Callers that drop in to-day,
Carry impressions away,
Though you may not roam.

Wear the White Ribbon, my sister,
O never forget
Grand opportunities lost, you
Will some day regret.
Are you dismayed in the fight?
This little emblem of white,
Steadily kept in your sight,
Will cheer your heart yet.

Wear the White Ribbon, my sister,
And earnestly pray;
He who is Lord of all being
May use it each day.
Pray that its unspoken word
Where there is need may be heard;
Pray that the soul which is stirred
May have grace to obey.

CAUSE OF FALLING HAIR

Dandruff, Which is a Germ Disease—Kill the Germ

Falling hair is caused by dandruff, which is a germ disease. The germ in burrowing into the root of the hair where it destroys the vitality of the hair, causing the hair to fall out, digs up the cuticle in little scales, called dandruff or scurf. You can not stop the falling hair without killing the dandruff germ. "Destroy the cause you remove the effect." Newbro's Herpicide is the only hair preparation that kills the dandruff germ. Herpicide is also a delightful hair dressing. Sold by leading druggists. Send ten cents in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Company, Detroit, Mich.

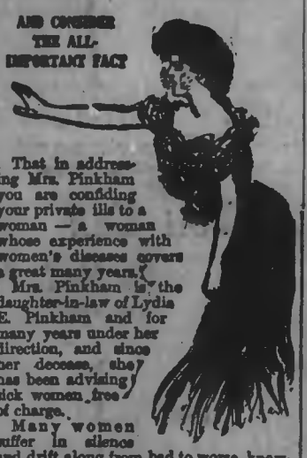
STOP, WOMAN!

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT



That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman — a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers a great many years.

Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for many years under her direction, and since her decease, she has been advising sick women free of charge.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women, you cannot well say, without trying it "I do not believe it will help me."

A STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

BY BERTHA RUNKLE.

Copyright by The Century Co.

"But now was I to dream it was monsieur?" I cried, confounded. "I knew there was something queer about him—about you, I mean—about the person I took you for, that is. I knew there was something wrong about you—that is to say, I mean I thought there was; I mean I knew he wasn't what he seemed—you were not. And Peyrot fooled us, and I didn't want to be fooled again."

"Then I am a good master?" he demanded truculently, advancing upon me.

I put up my hands to my ears.

"The best, monsieur. And monsieur wrestled well, too."

"I can't prove that by you, Felix," he retorted, and laughed in my nettled face. "Well, if you've not trampled on my jewels I forgive your contumacy."

If I had my bare toes had done them no harm. I crawled about the floor, gathering them all up and putting them on the bed, where I presently sat down myself to stare at him, trying to realize him for M. le Comte. He had seated himself too.

He had shaved off his mustaches and the tuft on his chin, and the whole look of him was changed. A year had gone for every stroke of the razor; he seemed such a boy, so particularly guileless! He had stained his face so well that it looked for all the world as though the Southern sun had done it for him; his eyebrows and lashes were dark by nature. His wig came much lower over his forehead than did his own hair, and altered the upper part of his face as much as the shaving of the lower. Only his eyes were the same. He had had his back to the window at first, and I had not noted them; but now that he had turned his eyes gleamed so light as to be fairly startling in his dark face—like stars in a stormy sky.

"Well, then, how do you like me?"

"Monsieur confounds me. It's witchery. I cannot get used to him."

"That's as I would have it," he returned, coming over to the bedside to arrange his treasures. "For if I look new to you I think I may look so to the Hotel de Lorraine."

"Monsieur goes to the Hotel de Lorraine as a jeweller?" I cried, enlightened.

"Aye. And if the ladies do not crowd about me"—— he broke off with a gesture, and put his trays back in his box.

"Well, I wondered, monsieur; I wondered if we were going to sell ornaments to Peyrot."

He locked the box and proceeded solemnly and thoroughly to damn Peyrot. He cursed him waking, cursed him sleeping, cursed him eating, cursed him drinking, cursed him walking, riding, sitting; cursed him summer, cursed him winter; cursed him young, cursed him old, living, lying and dead. I inferred that the packet had not been recovered.

"No, pardieu! Vigo went straight on horseback to the Bonne Femme, but Peyrot had vanished. So he galloped round to the Rue Tournelles, whither he had sent two of our men before him, but the bird was flown. He had been home half an hour before—he left the inn just after us—had paid his arrears of rent, surrendered his key and taken away his chest, with all his worldly goods in it, on the shoulders of two porters, bound for parts unknown. Gilles is scouring Paris for him. Mordieu, I wish him luck!"

His face betokened little hope of Gilles. We both kept chagrined silence.

"And we thought him sleeping!" presently cried he.

"Well," he added rising, "that milk's spilt; no use crying over it; plan a better venture. That's the only course. Monsieur is gone back to St. Denis to report to the king. Marry, he makes as little of these gates as if he were a tennis ball and they the net. Time was when he thought he must plan and prepare and know the captain of the watch and go masked at midnight. He has got bravely over that now; he bounces in and out as easily as kiss my hand. Pray he may not try it once too often."

"Mayenne dare not touch him."

"What Mayenne may dare is not good betting. Monsieur thinks he dares not. Monsieur has come through so many perils of late he is happily convinced he bears a charmed life. Felix, do you come with me to the Hotel de Lorraine!"

"Ah, monsieur." I cried, bethinking myself that I had forgotten to dress.

"Nay, you need not don these clothes," he interposed, with a look of wickedness which I could not interpret. "Wait. I'm back anon."

He darted out of the room, to return speedily with an armful of apparel, which he threw on the bed.

"Monsieur," I gasped in horror, "it's woman's gear!"

"Verily."

"Monsieur! you cannot mean me to wear this?"

"I mean it precisely."

"Monsieur!"

"Why, look you, Felix," he laughed, "how else am I to take you? You were at pains to make yourself conspicuous in M. de Mayenne's salon; they will recognize you as quickly as me."

"Oh, monsieur, put me in a wig, in cap and bells, an you like! I will be monsieur's clown, anything, only not this!"

"I never heard of a jeweller accompanied by his clown. Nor have I any party color in my armoires. But since I have exerted myself to borrow this toggery—and a fine, big lass is the owner, so I think it will fit—you must wear it."

I was like to burst with mortification; I stood there in dumb, agonized appeal.

"Oh, well, then you need not go at all. If you go you go as Felicie. But you may stay at home if it likes you better."

That settled me. I would have gone in my grave clothes sooner than not go at all, and belike he knew it. I began arraying myself sullenly and clumsily in the murrain petticoats.

There was a full kirtle of gray wool, falling to my ankles, and a white apron. There was a white blouse with a wide, turned-back collar, and a scarlet bodice laced with black cords over a green tongue. I was soon in such a desperate tangle over these divers garments, so utterly muddled as to which to put on first and which side forward and which end up, and where and how by the grace of God to fasten them, that M. Etienne, with roars of laughter, came unsteadily to my aid. He insisted on stuffing the whole of my jerkin under my blouse to give my figure the proper curves, and to make me a waist he drew the lacing cords till I was like to suffocate. His mirth had by this time got me to laughing so that every time he pulled me in a fit of merriment would jerk the laces from his fingers before he could tie them. This happened once and again, and the more it happened the more we laughed and the less he could dress me. I ached in every rib and the tears were running down his cheeks, washing little clean channels in the stain.

"Felix, this will never do," he gasped when at length he could speak. "Never after a carouse have I been so maudlin. Compose yourself, for the love of heaven. Think of something serious; think of me! Think of Peyrot, think of Mayenne, think of Lucas. Think of what will happen to us now if Mayenne know us for ourselves."

"Enough, monsieur," I said. "I am sobered."

But even now that I held still we could not draw the last holes in the bodice point nearly together.

"Nay, monsieur, I can never wear it like this," I panted when he had tied it as tight as he could. "I shall die or I shall burst the seams." He had perforce to give me more room; he pulled the apron higher to cover gaps and fastened a bunch of keys and a pocket at my waist. He set a brown wig on my head, nearly covered by a black mortier, with its wide scarf hanging down my back.

"Hang me, but you make a fine, strapping grisette," he cried, proud of me as if I were a picture, he the painter. "Felix, you've no notion how handsome you look. Dame! you defrauded the world when you contrived to be born a boy."

"I thank my stars I was born a boy," I declared. "I wouldn't get into this toggery for any one else on earth. I tell monsieur that flat."

"You must change your shoes," he cried eagerly. "Your hobnails spoil all."

I put one of his gossip's shoes on the floor beside my foot.

"Now, monsieur, I ask you, how am I to get into that?"

"Shall I fetch you Vigo's?" he grinned.

"No, Constant's," I said instantly, thinking how it would make him writhe to lend them.

"Constant's best," he promised, disappearing. It was as good as a play to see my lord running errands for me. Perhaps he forgot, after a month in the Rue Coupejarrets, that such things as pages existed; or, more likely, he did not care to take the household into his confidence. He was back soon with a pair of scarlet hose and shoes of red morocco, the gayest affairs you ever saw. Also he brought a hand mirror for me to look on my beauty.

"Nay, monsieur," I said with a sulk that started anew his laughter. "I'll not take it; I want not to see myself. But monsieur will do well to examine his own countenance."

"Pardieu! I should say so," he cried. "I must e'en go repair myself; and you, Felix—Felicie—must be fed."

I was in truth as hollow as a drum, yet I cried out that I had rather starve than venture into the kitchen.

"You flatter yourself," he retorted. "You'd not be known. Old Jumel will give you the pick of the larder for a kiss," he roared in my sullen face, and added, relenting: "Well, then, I will send one of the lackeys up with a salver. The lazy beggars have [illegible]

I bolted the door after him, and when the man brought my tray bade him set it down outside. He informed me through the panels that he would go drown himself before he would be content to lie slugabed the livelong day while his betters waited on him. I trembled for fear in his virtuous scorn he should take his fardel away again. But he had had his orders. When, after listening to his footsteps descending the stairs, I reached out a cautious arm, the tray was on the floor. The generous meat and wine put new heart into me; by the time my lord returned I was eager for the enterprise.

"Have you finished?" he demanded. "Faith, I see you have. Then let us start; it grows late. The shadows, like good Mussulmans, are stretching to the east. I must catch the ladies in their chambers before supper. Come, we'll take the box between us."

"Why, monsieur, I carry that on my shoulders."

"What, my lass, on your dainty shoulders? Nay, 'twould make the townsfolk stare."

"Now, never have I seen a maid fresh from the convent blush so prettily. I'd give my right hand to walk you out past the guard-room."

I shrank as a snail when you touch its horns. He cried:

"Marry, but I will, though!"

Now I, unlike Sir Snail, had no snug little fortress to take refuge in; I might writhe, but I could not defend myself.

"As you will, monsieur," I said, setting my teeth hard.

"Nay, I dare not. Those fellows would follow us laughing to the doors of Lorraine House itself. I've told none of this prank; I have even contrived to send all the lackeys out of doors on fools' errands. We'll sneak out like thieves by the postern. Come, tread your wariest."

On tiptoe, with the caution of malefactors, we crept from stair to stair, giggling under our breath like the callow lad and saucy lass we looked to be. We won in safety to the postern and came out to face the terrible eye of the world.

CHAPTER XXV.

"Felix, we are speaking in our own tongue. It is such lapses as these bring men to the gallows. Italian from this word, my girl."

"Monsieur, I have no notion how to bear myself, what to say," I answered uneasily.

"Say as little as you can. For, I confess, your voice and your hands give me pause; otherwise I would take you anywhere for a lass. Your part must be the shy maiden. My faith, you look the role; your cheeks are poppies! You will follow docile at my heels while I tell lies for two. I have the hope that the ladies will heed me and my jewels more than you."

"Monsieur, could we not go safelier at night?"

"I have thought of that. But at night the household gathers in the salon; we should run the gauntlet of a hundred looks and tongues. While now, if we have luck, we may win to mademoiselle's own chamber"—— He broke off abruptly and walked along in a day dream.

"Well," he resumed presently, coming back to the needs of the moment, "let us know our names and station. I am Giovanni Rossini, son of the famous goldsmith of Florence; you, Giulietta, my sister. We come to Paris in the legate's train, trade being dull at home, the gentry having fled to the hills for the hot month. Of course you've never set foot out of France, Fe—Giulietta?"

"Never out of St. Quentin till I came hither. But Father Francesco has talked to me much of his city of Florence."

"Good; you can then make shift to answer a question or two if put to it. Your Italian, I swear, is of excellent quality. You speak French like the Picard you are, but Italian like a gentleman — that is to say, like a lady."

"Monsieur," I bemoaned miserably, "I shall never come through it alive, never in the world. They will know me in the flick of an eye for a boy; I know they will. Why, the folk we are passing can see something wrong; they are all staring at me."

"Of course they stare," he answered tranquilly. I should think some wrong if they did not. Can your modesty never understand, my Giulietta, what a pretty lass you are?"

He fell to laughing at my discomfort, and thus, he full of gay confidence, I full of misgiving, we came before the doors of the Hotel de Lorraine.

"Courage," he whispered to me. "Courage will conquer the devil himself. Put a good face on it and take the plunge." The next moment he was in the archway, deluging the sentry with his rapid Italian.

"Nom d'un chien! What's all this? What are you after?" the man shouted at us to make us understand the better. "Haven't you a word of honest French in your head?"

M. Etienne, tapping his box, very brokenly, very laboriously stammered forth something about jewels for the ladies.

"Get in with you, then."

We were not slow to obey.

The courtyard was deserted, nor did we see any one in the windows of the house, against which the afternoon sun struck hotly. To keep out his unwelcome rays the house door was pushed almost shut. We paused a moment on the step to listen to the voices of gossiping lackeys within, and then M. Etienne boldly knocked.

There was a scarrying in the hall, as if half a dozen idlers were plunging into their doublets and running to their places. Then my good friend Pierre opened the door. In the row of underlings at his back I recognised the two who had taken part in my flogging. The cold sweat broke out upon me lest they in their turn should know me.

M. Etienne looked from one to another with the childlike amile of his bare lips, demanding if any here spoke Italian.

"I," answered Pierre himself. "Now, what may your errand be?"

"Oh, it's soon told," M. Etienne cried volubly, as one delighted to find himself understood. "I am a jeweller from Florence; I am selling my wares in your great houses. I have just sold a necklace to the Duchesse de Joyeuse; I crave permission to show my trinkets to the fair ladies here. But take me to them and they'll not make you repent it."

"Go tell madame," Pierre bade one of his men, and turning again to us gave us kindly permission to set down our burden and wait.

For incredible good luck the heavy hangings were drawn over the sunny windows, making a soft twilight in the room. I sidled over to a bench in the far corner and was feeling almost safe when Pierre—beshrew him!—called attention to me.

"Now, that is a heavy box for a maid to help lug. Do you make the lasses do porters' work, you Florentines?"

"But I am a stranger here," M. Etienne explained. "Did I hire a porter how am I tell an honest one? Belike he might run off with all my treasures, and where is poor Giovanni then? Besides it were cruel to leave my little sister in our lodging, not a soul to speak to, the long day through. There is none where we lodge knows Italian, as you do so like an angel, Sir Master of the Household."

Now, Pierre was no more maitre d'hotel than I was, but that did not dampen his pleasure to be called so. He sat down on the bench by M. Etienne.

"How came you two to be in Paris?"

My lord proceeded to tell him I know not what glib and convincing farrago, with every excellence, I made no doubt, of accent and gesture. But I could not listen; I had affairs of my own by this time. The lackeys had come up close round me, more interested in me than in my brother, and the same Jean who had held me for my beating, who had wanted my coat stripped off me that I might be whacked to bleed, now said:

"I'll warrant you're hot and tired and thirsty, mademoiselle, for all you look as fresh as cress. Will you drink a cup of wine if I fetch it?"

I had kept my eyes on the ground from the first moment of encounter, in mortal dread to look these men in the face; but now, gaining courage, I raised my glance and smiled at him bashfully and faltered that I did not understand.

He understood the sense if not the before us lads. It was not bad fun, offer slowly, loudly. I strove to look as blank as the wall, and shook my head gently and helplessly and turned an inquiring gaze to the others, as if beseeching them to interpret. One of the fellows clapped Jean on the shoulder with a roar of laughter.

"A fall, a fall!" he shouted. "Here's the all-conquering Jean Marchand tripped up for once. He thinks nothing that wears petticoats can withstand him, but here's a maid that hasn't a word to throw at him."

"Pshaw! she doesn't understand me," Jean returned, undaunted, and promptly pointed a finger at my mouth and then raised his fist to his own, with sucks and gulps. I allowed myself to comprehend then. I smiled in as coquettish a fashion as I could contrive and glanced on the ground, and slowly looked up again and nodded.

The men burst into loud applause. "Good old Jean! Jean wins. Well played, Jean! Vive Jean!"

Jean, flushed with triumph, ran off on his errand, while I thought of Margot, the steward's daughter, at home, and tried to recollect every air and grace I had ever seen her flaunt before us lads. It was not bad fun, this. I hid my hands under my apron and spoke not at all, but sighed and smiled and blushed under their stares like any fine lady. Once in one's life, for one hour, it is rather amusing to be a girl. But that is quite long enough, say I.

Jean came again directly with a great silver tankard.

"Burgundy, pardieu!" cried one of his mates, sticking his nose into the pot as it passed him, and full! Ciel, you must think your lass has a head."

"Oh, I shall drink with her," Jean answered.

I put out my hand for the tankard, running the risk of my big paw's betraying me, resolved that he should not drink with me of that draught, when of a sudden he leaned over to snatch a kiss. I dodged him, more frightened than the shyest maid. Though in this half light I might perfectly look a girl I could not believe I should kiss like one. In a panic I fled from Jean to my master's side.

M. Etienne, wheeling about, came near to laughing out in my face, when he remembered his part and played it with a zeal that was like to undo us. He sprang to his feet, drawing his dagger.

"Who insults my sister?" he shouted. "Who is the dog does this?"

They were on him, wrenching the knife from his hand, wrenching his lame arm at the same time so painfully that he gasped. I was scared chill. I knew if they mishandled him they would brush the wig off.

"Mind your manners, sirrah!" Jean cried.

Monsieur's ardor vanished; a gentle, appealing smile spread over his face.

"I cry your pardon, sir," he said to Jean; then turning to Pierre, "This messer does not understand me. But tell him, I beg you, I crave his good pardon. I was but angered for a moment that any should think to touch my little sister. I meant no harm."

"Nor he," Pierre retorted. "A kiss, forsooth! What do you expect with a handsome lass like that? If you will take her about"——

"Madame says the jeweller fellow is to come up," our messenger announced, returning.

My lord besought Pierre:

"My knife? I may have my knife? By the beard of St. Peter I swear to you I meant no harm with it. I drew it in jest."

Now this, which was the sole true statement he had made since our arrival, was the only one Pierre did not quite believe. He took the knife from Jean, but he hesitated to hand it over to its owner.

"No," he said, "you were angry enough. I know your Italian temper. I'm thinking I'll keep this little toy of yours till you come down."

WAS A TOTAL WRECK FROM HEART FAILURE.

Heart disease is characterized by its stealthy approach and its variety of forms, yet in all its forms nature gives unmistakable signals which warn us of its presence.

One of the first danger signals announcing something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a flattering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or, again there may be the most violent beating, with flushings of the skin and visible pulsations of the arteries. You may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die. In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond all question, marvellous. They give such prompt relief, such speedy restoration to health that no one need suffer.

Mr. Darius Carr, Geary, N.B., writes: "It is with the greatest of pleasure I write you a few lines to let you know the great blessing your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have been to me. I was a total wreck from heart failure, my wife advised me to take your pills, and, after using two boxes I was restored to perfect health. I am now sixty-two years old and feel almost as well as I did at twenty."

THREW AWAY $175.

Ottawa, Ont.—Some hoary-headed philosopher once remarked that there was no such thing as luck. Another misguided thinker stated that money could not buy health. Both of these fallacies have been exploded here in Ottawa. Certainly, when a man loses $175, and then finds something worth many times that amount—he is lucky. And when a man is suffering from disease, and can get relief by buying a certain medicine, then money buys happiness as well as health. At least, that is the way Mr. Ed. Dery looks at it. "Having suffered for over a year with dyspepsia and indigestion, I spent over $175 for doctors without relief. Hearing of "Fruit-a-tives," he continues in his letter, "I decided to try them. The result is, that I am completely cured after using only two boxes. I cannot praise Fruit-a-tives enough, and I would not be without them in the house."

Good digestion requires strong stomach muscles and plenty of gastric juice. This digesting fluid is taken from the blood. If blood is poisoned by constipation—sick kidneys—or weak skin action—then gastric juice will be weak.

"Fruit-a-tives" act on the three great blood purifying organs—kidneys, bowels and skin—keep these organs healthy—rid the system of impurities—and thus insure sound digestion.

Take "Fruit-a-tives" and you can eat, and digest, anything your appetite craves. Made of fruit juices and tonics. 50c a box; 6 for $2.50. At druggists or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

A Christmas Story

By ERNEST JARROLD.

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY ERNEST JARROLD.

ON the afternoon of the day before Christmas two brokers sat in their palatial offices in the Hanover building when there came a knock at the door.

"Come in," said Henry Rogers, the senior member of the firm, a man of sixty, with a round, jolly face and a pair of keen, humorous eyes.

The door opened, and the janitor of the building stepped inside and with an obsequious bow said:

"Mr. Rogers, the scrubwomen of this building—there's fifteen of them—are out in the hall, and they won't go away until they see you."

"Bless me!" said Rogers, arising and throwing his half consumed cigar into the glowing grate.

A few seconds later Rogers stood before a group of women, huddled together in earnest and rapid conversation. When the banker appeared Mary Ellen Ryan, a widow of forty, with three children, stepped forward and made a courtesy nearly to the floor. Said she:

"Axin yer par-rdon, Mr. Rogers, but the gur-rls have had a little meetin' today, and they picked me out to say a few words—a few words—a few thankful words to you for sendin' the five dollar bills to each of us. God bless you, and"—

Here Mrs. Ryan's utterance became choked, and Rogers said hastily:

"My good woman, you surely must be mistaken. I"—

"'Tis no use of you denyin' it, sir," interrupted Mrs. Ryan passionately. "There's not another man in the Hanover buildin' would do the likes of it, and may you live to eat the chicken that scratches over your grave, sir, and if it would not hurt your feelin's we'd all like to shake hands wid you, sir, bekase you're a man." And Rogers' soft hand was squeezed to a pulp by fifteen hands reddened by water and calloused by the scrubbing brush.

"More of your sentimentality," said Francis Powers, his partner, as Rogers re-entered his office. "I'll bet that you have given away a thousand dollars in just such a foolish fashion during the last three days."

"I haven't figured up yet," replied Rogers, his eyes twinkling. "By the way, Powers, what does it cost you to support your yacht?"

Powers flushed angrily.

"Excuse me, Francis," said Rogers. "I did not mean to be rude. As to the scrubwomen, I prefer to have my fun with living men and women instead of Satsuma vases, bric-a-brac, yachts and automobiles. It is only the point of view. You give liberally to the church and organized charity, and I prefer to give individually. I get my recompense in the exhibition of genuine feeling."

"Yes, I know," replied Powers testily, "but you are the laughingstock of the whole street. The hallways are filled every day with all kinds of riff-raff who come here to pull your leg. I stumble over the lame, the halt and the blind waiting for you to come out. Why, I heard Brown say to a book agent the other day: 'Go and see Rogers. He's easy.'"

"So Brown said I was easy, eh?" chuckled Rogers. "Now, I suppose, Francis, that you consider that slang expression a term of reproach. Still I think it sounds a little better than 'that miserly old thief Rogers' or 'old Rogers would squeeze a cent till the eagle screamed.' In fact, Francis, I am of the opinion that Brown paid me a compliment. Under the guise of cynicism he paid me one of the highest compliments that one man can pay to another."

"You certainly are incorrigible," replied Powers. "There are regular channels for the distribution of charity, societies organized for the purpose."

"Yes, I know," replied Rogers, "but if I dispense my dollars in that way I shall miss the fun of watching Mary Ellen Ryan fumbling with her apron and trying to make a speech. By the way, I have heard many an after dinner speech that wasn't half so eloquent as Mrs. Ryan's. Eloquent speeches are made not entirely with the tongue. Did you ever hear a woman say to you that she hoped you would live to eat the chicken that scratched over your grave? Francis, I like to see the light come into a faded eye, the blush into a sunken cheek at the touch of a piece of paper which represents to me only the price of a dinner."

Rogers' talk was interrupted by a clerk, who put his head in at the door and said:

"Mr. Rogers, there is a queer looking fellow out here who calls himself Otto Kreig. Will you see him?"

"By all means," replied Rogers. "He's the German violoncello player. Send him in. You should have heard him play the Schumann 'Haimweh,' Powers. He appeared at the Atlanta club the other night before 300 men of our type. He carried his big fiddle three miles because he had no car fare, and the club rewarded him with a glass of champagne and a dish of ice cream. I'm going to play a joke on him."

KREIG SPREAD HIS THIN HANDS OUT TOWARD THE GLOWING GRATE.

Kreig entered, a tall, emaciated youth of twenty-five, with poorly fitting clothes.

"Excuse me," said he, hesitating at the door.

"Come in!" said Rogers heartily, drawing a lounging chair up to the open grate fire. Kreig sank into its luxurious depths and spread his thin hands out toward the glowing grate.

"How long have you been in this country, Mr. Kreig?" said Rogers.

"I vos by dis country t'ree mont' alretty," replied the musician.

"How long have you been playing the violoncello?"

"Since a baby I vas. So soon I can hold de bow. Six, seven, eight hour every day I practice, yes. Und ven I hungry am I play de 'Heimweh.'"

"I suppose they gave you $50 for your work at the Atlanta club the other night?" said Rogers in a matter of fact tone.

"Feefty tollar! Two hundred mark!" exclaimed Kreig in amazement. "Dey gif me some ice cream and von glass of champagne, and dey tell me mebbe I git an engagement."

"Very enterprising and economical, that entertainment committee of ours," said Rogers dryly to his partner. Then, turning to Kreig, he said:

"There were several gentlemen at the club the other night who were very much pleased with your playing, Mr. Kreig, and they have requested me to hand you a little car fare," and he placed in the astonished musician's hand twenty-five dollar notes, which crackled like thorns under a pot and made music in the German's ears sweeter than a symphony. He arose and tried to speak, stammered and gazed helplessly about as if he had been hit with a sand bag and was led to the door by Rogers and gently shoved into the hall.

"You can tell a lie with a better grace than any man of my acquaintance," said Powers as the door closed behind the paralyzed musician. Powers was visibly affected by the scene he had witnessed.

"Put me down for $25 on the German's account," said Powers. "I'll have him come up to the house some evening this week and earn the money. But how long, Henry, is this little play going to last?"

"There is only one more actor to appear, so far as I know, and that is Jimmy, the newsboy," replied Rogers.

"Is he deserving?" said Powers.

"Deserving!" exclaimed Rogers passionately. "Am I deserving of the brain and the self control which permit me to make money where other men starved? Do I deserve the thousand luxuries that I enjoy? Why, Powers, there are fifty men in Sing Sing tonight who have tried harder to do right than ever I have tried and who have failed because of inherited weakness and a vicious environment. All I dare ask is, 'Is he in need?' And when I have given him a few pieces of paper made magical by the name of Uncle Sam I chuckle to myself, like the egotistical old ass I am, because I have got it to give."

Scarcely had Rogers ceased speaking when Jimmy Reagan was ushered in by the clerk. He was eight years old. He wore a pair of trousers which had evidently been made for a grown man. Upon his red head was perched a glazed cap. His faded coat was buttoned about his neck with a horseshoe nail. Constant exercise in the open air had crimsoned Jimmy's cheeks and made his eyes shine with diamond-like luster. He was gnawing on a big red apple.

"Say, Mr. Rogers," said he, "dere is a Sandy Claws, ain't dere? Flaherty says he's only a man."

"Of course there is, Jimmy," said Rogers. "He was in here awhile ago, and he left this overcoat for you."

The coat was lined with red flannel, and it wrapped Jimmy's form like a blanket. He was intoxicated with delight. He walked up and down the room like a hussar on dress parade. As he ran his hand down into a capacious pocket his fingers touched something cold, and he drew out a handful of ten cent pieces.

"Hully gee!" said he. "I ain't never seen so many dimes in me life. Did Sandy put dem in de pocket?"

"Yes, Jimmy, I think he did," said Rogers.

"Sandy is a dago, ain't he?" said Jimmy.

"No; I believe he is a German," replied Rogers.

"Oh, he's Dutch, is he?" said Jimmy. "Didn't he bring you nuttin'?"

"No," laughed Rogers; "he forgot me this year. I suppose he was too busy taking care of the children."

Jimmy looked up wistfully into the face of the big man smiling down upon him; then he said:

"Wouldn't you like to have Sandy bring you a injine or a new pair o' stockin's?"

"No, Jimmy," replied Rogers, patting the boy upon the head, "but if you happen to run across Santa Claus tell him to bring me something that would please a lonely old joker." And Jimmy vanished into the twilight.

* * * * * * * *

Rogers and his partner were silent as they rode uptown in Powers' automobile. Rogers was thinking of "the names he loved to hear," which had been "carved for many a year on the tomb." There was no loving smile to greet him when he arrived at his luxurious bachelor apartments. No clamoring children clung to his coat as he sat down in solitary state to his dinner. Oppressed by thronging memories, he ate only a few mouthfuls and drove to his club to chase away the blues in light hearted companionship.

It was a gala night at the Atlanta club, and Rogers was the center of the merriment. A huge Christmas tree stood in the parlor, and all kinds of odd and satirical presents were handed to the members. Rogers had been presented with a pair of blue overalls, which he put on over his dress trousers. The air was filled with banter and jollity when the attention of the members was attracted to the hall by the noise of a scuffle and a piercing howl. Rogers ran to the hall, where he found two lusty waiters trying to eject a small red headed boy. He was fighting like a wildcat. When Rogers appeared he tore himself loose from his captors and ran to his benefactor.

"Dey wouldn't let me come in," he sobbed, "en I only wanted to tell you dat I couldn't find Sandy, but I got de Krismas present fur a lonely ole joker meself."

Rogers took Jimmy into the brilliantly lighted parlor and quieted him with soothing words, while the members of the club to the number of fifty gathered around the strangely assorted pair.

"Well, Jimmy," said Rogers, "what did you get for my Christmas?"

Jimmy took from his pocket a small pasteboard box and, lifting the lid, displayed a gleaming red glass stone set in a framework of brass. It was a tawdry horror, a frightful burlesque on art, but not a man smiled as it was passed around for inspection among the club members.

"How much did you pay for this beautiful jewel?" asked Rogers.

"Ain't it a corker?" said Jimmy, with shining eyes. "I knowed you'd like it. It cost a quarter, an I beat de dago down 10 pence. I showed it to de big copper Mahoney, en he said it was jest de cheese fur a lonesome old joker, en he couldn't go to sleep when de jool was in de room."

This provoked a roar of laughter from the hearers, and in answer to the frantic appeals from all parts of the room Rogers stuck the atrocity in the middle of his shirt front, where it gleamed like a locomotive headlight.

* * * * * * * *

The church bells were ringing in the birth of a new Christmas as Rogers and Jimmy left the club together. As they stepped into the street Jimmy pulled at Rogers' coat tail. The banker looked down at the boy beside him, who seemed to be uneasy. He shifted from one foot to the other and dug his toe into the snow.

"What is it, my boy?" said Rogers kindly.

"I didn't want to say nuttin' to you inside," said Jimmy eagerly, "'cause I was 'fraid de swell guys 'ud be lafin at me. De teacher in de night school says dat if Sandy Claws don't bring you nuttin' you mus' be a small Sandy yourself. En she giv' me a little piece to speak tonight in de school."

Here Jimmy stopped to fumble in his trousers until he found a piece of soiled copy book paper. Holding it up to Rogers, the boy said:

"I don't know it yet, 'cause dere's big words in it."

Rogers smoothed the paper out upon his palm. Then he adjusted his spectacles, and, walking to the light of a drug store window a few feet away, he read aloud:

"I expect to pass through this world but once. If, therefore, there be any kindness I can show or any good thing I can do to any fellow being, let me do it now, for I shall not pass this way again."

Perhaps it was an act of simple courtesy or it may have been a deeper feeling that prompted the millionaire to raise his hat with the courtesy of a Chesterfield as he handed the Earl of Derby's epitaph back to the eager eyed boy.

"It's all to de mustard, ain't it?" said Jimmy. "En dat's de reason I give you de brass' pin."

* * * * * * * *

"And what did the rich man say, Jimmy?" said Miss Williams, the schoolteacher, at 8 o'clock on Christmas night.

"De snow was a-fallin' on his bald head, en he was kind o' solemn, en he says, 'Out o' de mouth o' babies en suckers comes wisdom.' Was he a-guyin' me, Miss Williams?"

Another Misprint.

He whispered, "My dear, I'll print a kiss."
His heart was all a-flutter,
But such an awkward chap was he
That the maiden said and laughed with glee:
"Oh, fudge! You couldn't print better!"

THE WAY IT WORKS.

Teaching a Calf to Drink Is a Soul Trying Operation.

Those who have had a mournful experience know that there is nothing more trying to the soul than the operation of teaching a young calf to drink. The process is familiar to every man who has brought up a calf from infancy. You seize a pail of warm milk, go into the stable, catch the calf by the ears, back him into a corner and bestride his neck. The idiot rather likes this, and while you are reaching for the pail he employs his time in slobbering the lower corners of your jacket. You discover what the blockhead is about and box his ears. You can't help it. You feel that way and let him have it. But the calf can't tell for the life of him why he has been struck, and he gives a sudden and unexpected "flounce." He believes he will go over and stay on the other side of the stable, but he doesn't announce this beforehand. He starts on the impulse of the moment, and you can't tell just when he arrives there. You ride along with him a little way. But the laws of gravitation are always about the same. Your legs—one on each side of the critter—keep up with the calf for about a second, but your body doesn't. You slide over the calf, and your back kisses the floor. Your head is soaking in the pail of milk. When you get up you are mad—uncommonly so. Milk runs from your hair and imprecations out of your mouth.

There is buttermilk in your eye, and you solemnly declare you will learn that calf to drink or break his blanked neck. The calf doesn't know of this resolve, and he glares at you in stupid fright from across the stable. He is not aware that he was the cause of your downfall and wonders ignorantly what in thunder is the matter. You don't try to explain it to him, but furiously catch him by the ears, look back over your shoulder at the milk pail and back up toward it, dragging the calf after you, who bawls out in a manner which seems to say, "Is this the way you treat a fellow creature?" You again back into the corner, sling your left leg over him and once more try to get his head in chancery. The calf attempts a little more funny business and plunges suddenly forward. You are on the lookout for breakers this time, and, having a firm hold on his ears, you mutter through your clinched jaws, "No you don't, honey." But he does, though, and you "cross the continent" together by the "rapid transit" line. You hadn't intended to go, but that is where you and the calf didn't see alike. You take his view of it in a few moments later—you astride of the calf's neck, and, jamming the finger of one hand into its mouth, you place the other on the back of his head and shove his nose into the pail, fully resolved to strangle him if he doesn't drink.

The calf holds perfectly still—ominously so—and there is silence in heaven for the space of half a minute, at the end of which time the blockhead, who hasn't drank a drop, suddenly makes a splurge, knocks the pail to "kingdom come," milk and all; you are again reduced to a horizontal from a perpendicular, and when you rise the excitement is intense. You have been soaked with milk, "slobbered" on and hurt and abused the worst way. Not a drop of milk has gone down the infernal brute's neck, and there he stands glaring at you, ready to furnish you another free ride anywhere you want to go. With an affidavit, you bang him over the head with the empty pail and hobble out of the pen, mad and hurt all through, fully resolved to let your four footed fool starve.

"I Want The Proof" You Say

WHEN TOLD THAT NERVOUS EXHAUSTION AND PROSTRATION ARE THOROUGHLY CURED BY

What is more discouraging and disheartening than trying to cure nervous exhaustion and prostration by means of ordinary treatments? Because you do not look sick and are suffering great pain, and because they cannot realize your feelings of weakness, helplessness and discouragement, your friends fail to show much sympathy for you, and most doctors are simply helpless in the face of exhausted nerves.

Of course you need not expect Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to work a miracle and cure you in a day or a week, but you can be absolutely sure that you will be benefitted, to at least some extent, by every dose of this great restorative that is taken into the system.

The dreadful weakness and helplessness which makes life miserable to you and leads to all sorts of dark forebodings, will gradually and certainly give way to strength and vigour under this treatment, headaches will disappear, your appetite will improve, you will sleep and rest better and you will find that day by day your nervous system is being built up to health and strength.

That Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is actually bringing about just such cures is proven in thousands of cases of which records are kept on file in these offices. The invigorating, upbuilding influence of this great medicine will surprise you if you only persist in its use.

Mrs. D. O'Connor, 278 Simcoe street, Peterborough, Ont., states: — "My heart has given me a great deal of trouble lately. The least undue exertion affected it, and brought on weakness and fainting spells. My nerves were also very unsteady, and I became so bad that I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which was highly recommended to me. Now I am happy to be able to say that I am completely restored to health. My nerves are strong and steady, the action of my heart regular and the dizzy spells have ceased to trouble me."

Archduke Francis Ferdinand.

Who Succeeds to the Austrian and Hungarian Thrones Upon the Death of Francis Joseph.

THE Archduke Francis Ferdinand d'Este, who succeeds to the throne of Austria on the death of Emperor Francis Joseph, became heir presumptive through the tragic death in 1889 of the Crown Prince Rudolph, the emperor's only son. Francis Ferdinand's father, the late Archduke Carl Ludwig, brother of Francis Joseph, was then next in the line of succession, but owing to his great age and his ill health—he was but three years the emperor's junior—his chances of ever inheriting the crown appeared so slight that he renounced his rights in favor of Francis Ferdinand, who was then twenty-six years old.

This sudden change in the status of the young archduke brought him at once into the fierce light which beats upon a throne. From a princely nonentity he became the head of the ancient house of Hapsburg, next to the aging emperor. Everybody wanted to know all about him. Newspapers at home and abroad began to "play him up," and fertile invention supplied details of his character and habits which the short and simple annals of his previous obscurity withheld. The most scandalous stories were told about him, and knowledge of the idiosyncrasies of other Hapsburg princes gave them quick credence in the general mind. He was pictured as weak, dissolute, half mad. It was predicted that if he lived to wear the iron crown made from the nails which pierced the hands and feet of Christ, the most precious possession of his house, he should lose it before a year had passed. The dissolution of the dual kingdom was regarded as certain. "When Francis Joseph dies, then dies the empire," was a popular phrase. Hungary saw visions of a new Kossuth whose work would be made easy by Francis Ferdinand's infirmity, and Austria despaired.

Of a naturally retiring disposition, the new heir apparent failed to avail himself of the opportunity to rise like a new sun to the Austrian horizon and dazzle his calumniators into silence. Instead, he kept the noiseless tenor of his way, devoting himself to study of statecraft, literature and music, appearing in public only when his presence was officially demanded. Popular ignorance and misconception of his real nature continued. The late M. de Blowitz gave publicity in the London Times to a tale to the effect that he stopped a peasant funeral near Prague and amused himself by jumping his horse half a dozen times over the bier, a libel which was afterward repeated in parliament at Budapest and for which there was not a shadow of foundation.

Even people of the court at Vienna related as an illustration of his lack of culture that when he attained manhood and became as much his own master as an imperial prince can ever hope to be he made a bonfire of his books. As a matter of fact, Francis Ferdinand is not merely a well read man, but an author, among his books being an entertaining description of his travels, including his visit to America in 1893; several graceful monographs, notably one on the great field marshal Radetsky, remarkable for its high souled patriotism, and two volumes of very pretty Alpine poetry.

The archduke is also an engineer and is said to have been the only prince of the blood who ever took his diploma as such. He is of an inventive turn of mind, and his expert knowledge of machinery would have got him a good job if revolution had deprived him of his princely patrimony. Francis Ferdinand is furthermore an adept in zoology and natural history, which should appeal to President Roosevelt. Naturally a prince who spent so much time in the acquirement of erudition had few leisure moments in which to pose as a popular idol, and as a spectacular feature of court and public life he was not a success.

Four years ago, when stories of Francis Ferdinand's alleged escapades were most rife, the Rev. Charles Nussbaum of St. Louis, who had once been a tutor of the archduke and his brother Otto, said, "I am astounded that two such fine little boys should have become the undeserving men they are said to be." They rose every morning at 5 when they were under his observation, he said, and began their studies at 6. With a short respite for breakfast at 9, they continued at their books until noon. After lunch from 1 to 3 they performed military tasks, including riding, fencing and gymnastics. At 4:30 they resumed their studies and at 6 had dinner. In the evening they played simple games in their mother's room and went to bed at 9. Twice a week they attended lectures at the high school that they might learn something of public school life. Their brief holidays were spent traveling under the supervision of tutors. Such a regime was not particularly likely to produce a debauche. "No kinder hearted family, royal or otherwise, exists than theirs," said Mr. Nussbaum.

Lately a revulsion of feeling toward the archduke has taken place. His unconventional marriage to Sophie Chotek, a woman of unroyal birth, was a fearful shock to the Austrian court, the most aristocratic on earth, and even the people whom one would expect to regard his act as that of a true democrat thought he had disgraced his rank. But his devotion to his wife, now the Princess Hohenberg, and to his children and the absolute freedom of his life from all domestic scandal have reconciled both court and public to his condescension, and, though his sons can never ascend the throne, his morganatic household is held in high respect.

Politically, too, the archduke's position has changed. Hungary was particularly hostile to him. The fact that he did not speak Hungarian had something to do with that, but as some fifteen languages and dialects are spoken in the empire Americans will appreciate his inability to talk in them all. Hungarians called Francis Ferdinand arrogant, reactionary, and accused him of holding opinions more Bourbon than those of Louis XIV. They declared they could expect nothing of him. But when the old emperor fell ill and began to turn the cares of state over to his chosen successor they had to confer with the archduke.

FRANCIS FERDINAND.

Count Andrassy, the Hungarian minister of the interior, very recently was referred to Francis Ferdinand by the emperor when he came to Vienna to discuss an important matter of policy and after a long consultation with the archduke came away saying, "He is a man we can work with." Subsequently other high Hungarians revised their views of their next ruler, and the predictions of the parting of Austria and Hungary at Francis Joseph's death gave way to optimistic forecasts of continued union and even to expectations of Hungarian autonomy.

In Bohemia the prince has always been a favorite. He spends a considerable part of the year there, where he owns immense estates. He is very generous to the Bohemians, who appreciate his having chosen one of them to be his wife at the cost of renouncing the rights of his descendants to the imperial throne.

In assuming the reins of empire Francis Ferdinand will take up a heavier burden than even that the Emperor Nicholas bears, for his realm is composed of even more diverse constituents than that of Russia. Austria and Hungary are continually striving for hegemony. There is conflict between church and state. Bohemia makes daily demands for something or other. Lithuania, Galicia and all the rest have their warring interests, and all the time Italy is thinking about the border provinces which are never spoken of in the confines of Victor Emmanuel but as "Italia irredenta" (unredeemed Italy). Also the Balkans are sitting up and taking notice. There is deep portent in the signs of the times for Francis Ferdinand.

The quincentenary of Oswestry in Shropshire, which ranks next in age to Winchester, was celebrated recently, the Archbishop of Canterbury taking part in the proceedings. The school was founded in 1207.

Durham County Council have approved of the expenditure of £12,000 on building fifty houses for the working classes at Usworth, a mining town in the county.

COMFORT FOR SANTA CLAUS.

How Little Edward Provided For His Chimney Friend.

Edward was seven years old and had not yet been disillusioned out of that old yet ever new story of Santa Claus coming down the chimney. Just before Christmas he had proudly written a letter (his first), stating the particular gifts he wanted, and after his mother had read it it was carefully put into the fire.

"Now," said Edward's mother, telling the lie cheerfully, "that letter will go right up the chimney and direct to Santa Claus."

Edward seemed very much impressed.

Christmas morning the child was perfectly delighted with the shower of gifts and with the glittering tree.

"Wasn't it good of Santa Claus to bring me so many more things than I asked for in my letter?" he said at the breakfast table, clasping his hands in an ecstasy. After this outburst he grew thoughtful, then, suddenly jumping up, disappeared into the kitchen.

His mother and father looked at each other and wondered. Then the mother followed to see what the inspiration might be.

She found Edward standing in front of the kitchen stove pouring out a cup of coffee.

"Why, Edward, dear, what are you doing?" his mother asked, coffee being one of the child's "forbidden things."

Edward looked up appealingly. "It is such a cold morning, mother"—

"But, Edward, you know I never permit you to take coffee!" his mother interrupted.

"No, no, mother; I do not wish to drink it. I want to give it to Santa Claus. He was so kind to send me more engines and things than I asked for. May I give him some coffee and rolls, mother—may I?"

Before his mother had time to think of a suitable reply the child had put cream and sugar into the cup; then, with his little face all aglow with appreciation and gratitude, he earnestly poured the steaming coffee into the fire.

"There now!" he exclaimed, with satisfaction. "That will go right up the chimney and direct to Santa Claus, won't it, mother? And it will warm up his

"The Queen's Christmas Card."

Queen Alexandra has not given up her interest in behalf of the unemployed. Last Christmas she sanctioned a unique plan to raise more funds for them. This was in the shape of the issue of a Christmas book, consisting of poems, stories, sketches, drawings and music, which was entitled "The Queen's Christmas Card." Algernon Charles Swinburne, Alfred Austin, the poet laureate; Thomas Hardy, Marie Corelli, Hall Caine, George Meredith, Arthur Wing Pinero, Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema, Edwin A. Abbey, William Holman Hunt, Sir Edward John Poynter and Sir Edward Elgar are among the host of those who contributed. The production of the book was practically gratuitous. It sold for half a crown, and the proceeds were devoted to the queen's unemployed fund.

Sermon in a Penitentiary.

"The strangest sensation I ever felt," said a well known local clergyman, "was when I preached to the prisoners one Sunday at the Eastern penitentiary. I stood on the hard stone floor in the middle of a long double tier of cells. Around me there were hundreds of listeners, yet I could see but two or three, whose white faces were pressed against the bars. The remainder did not even look at me, preferring to sit quietly in their cells out of sight and listen. When I began to speak I raised my voice so that every body could hear me, but was astonished to hear a muffled growl from a nearby cell, the possessor of the voice saying: 'Don't talk so loud. You can hear a whisper in here when the doors are open.' So I lowered my tones and went on speaking. Suddenly the absurdity of the gestures I was making struck me, as there were so few to see them, so I quit that. It was a most peculiar feeling, speaking to an audience that did not see me, and I actually got a species of stage fright and was forced to bring my sermon to an untimely close."

Shooting a Lion.

How it feels to shoot a real lion in an African wilderness is described by Agnes Herbert in her "Two Dianas In Somaliland:" "With quivering tail extended and most horrible coughing snarls, the lion seemed about to disprove the idea that he was no match for a mounted horseman. But away and away dashed the sporting little pony, and his majesty turned his terrific attentions to us and in a whirl of tossed up mud came to within forty yards of the place where Cecily and I stood in the open, rigid and awaiting the onslaught. Then we let him have it. I saw his tremendous head over my sights as in short bounds he cleared the distance that separated us. I fired simultaneously with my cousin. He crumpled up like a toy with the mainspring broken and sank, as he finished his last spring, with his massive head between his paws—a majestic and magnificent sight."

Waiter Was a Grafter.

"I have discovered a new dodge of my hereditary enemy, the grafting waiter," said the man who eats most of his meals in restaurants. "It might well be called the 'hiding the coin' trick. I had it first tried on me at an after theatre supper in a popular hotel grillroom. It was a crowded night and I had a very charming young woman companion, so maybe the waiter thought I wouldn't bother to count the change. He brought me a dollar in silver more than was necessary to provide for even a generous tip. It was a quarter shy. A recount didn't help. Then I discovered the missing coin 'way to the other side of the salver, carefully hidden beneath the stub of the check. Foolishly enough I gave the waiter the tip I had intended to, which didn't please the young woman when I told her about it afterward; she seemed to think there was something other than a tip coming to that waiter."

"Its Only a Cold, A Trifling Cough."

Thousands have said this when they caught cold. Thousands have neglected to cure the cold. Thousands have filled a Consumptives grave through neglect. Never neglect a cough or cold. It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It strikes at the very foundation of all throat or lung complaints, relieving or curing Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Sore Throat, and preventing Pneumonia and Consumption.

It has stood the test for many years, and is now more generally used than ever. It contains all the lung healing virtues of the pine tree combined with Wild Cherry Bark and other pectoral remedies. It stimulates the weakened bronchial organs, allays irritation and subdues inflammation, soothes and heals the irritated parts, loosens the phlegm and mucous, and aids nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulations. Don't be humbugged into accepting an imitation of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cents.

Mrs. C. E. Bismete, Lombardy, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with a hard dry cough for a long time, especially in the mornings, but after having used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, for a few weeks, I find my cough has left me. I can positively say that this remedy is well worth a trial."

CHRISTMAS WITHOUT A RAY OF SUNSHINE

The Dreary Celebration of Explorers within the Arctic Circle

Like Their Ship, Their Hopes Seemed Wrecked

How the Joyous Season Was Spent

The Holiday Edition of an Arctic Newspaper Goes to Press

CAN anything be imagined more cheerless than a Christmas spent in the Polar regions, imprisoned amid vast fields of ice and with no ray of sunshine to lighten the cold, dreary gloom of a six months' night?

But, in addition to the cold and gloom, imagine a party of explorers marooned upon an ice field, their ship crushed and wrecked, with most of the long, dreadful winter still before them and no certainty of ever again returning to home and civilization. Do you think Christmas could be celebrated with right good will under such circumstances?

In 1903 such a Yuletide fell to the lot of the Ziegler expedition, commanded by Anthony Fiala. Mr. Fiala tells of it in his book, "Fighting the Polar Ice," recently issued by Doubleday, Page & Co., of New York. The simply written narrative is thrilling in its dramatic portrayal of adventure and hardship.

That the perilous position of the party may be better understood, let Mr. Fiala tell of some of the events of the expedition that led up to the Christmas plight. He begins with a reference to the Baldwin-Ziegler expedition of 1901-2.

By Anthony Fiala

IT WAS odd how quickly the Arctic lost its terrors after the return to civilization. During the long, dark winter of 1901-2, every night, after the working hours, the period we called day was over, we would huddle together for warmth around a tiny stove in the cabin of the America and talk of warmer countries.

Two of the men avowed their intention of going on an expedition to the island of Borneo as soon as the America returned to Norway; two others stated that they were going to Mexico, another expressed a wish to explore Africa, while one of the doctors said he meant to go to the equator and never travel more than five degrees north or south of it the rest of his days.

Yet on the eve of another expedition these men applied to go north once more.

On Friday, July 10, we left Vardo, Norway, with our bow pointed north. On the afternoon of July 13 we met the ice, and our progress north was barred by close-packed, crystal fields. Captain Coffin suggested that it would be best to turn the ship around and return to longitude 49 degrees, where the ice seemed loosest, and then force our way north, to which suggestion I agreed.

Passing over the long and often discouraging flight with the ice, we come to the morning of August 31, when we made our highest north, the open Victoria Sea allowing us to pass beyond the 83d degree of latitude. We then returned to Teplitz Bay, Rudolf Island. Our voyage for this year was now over, and I gave instructions to disembark the animals, unload the cargo and prepare the ship for winter quarters.

The tent where the Duke of Abruzzi, Captain Cagni and their companions had wintered in 1899 and 1900, and from which they started on their record-breaking trip, had been destroyed by storms, and all that remained were the heavy spars of the framework sunk deep in the snow and the top of the interior tents.

A large tent, 20 feet wide and 38 feet long, was erected, and in it the ponies and dogs were stabled. In another large tent room was made for storage of food and forage for the animals. A house was built of lumber brought from Norway, our company laboring late in the gathering twilight and numerous storms to complete this winter shelter.

Toward the end of September the days grew stormy and dark, the sun's visits became daily shorter, until on October 15 our luminary dipped below the horizon in a blaze of scarlet fire, not to rise again until March of the following year, and a thick gloom settled over the ice of land and sea.

November opened clear and cold, the temperature gradually falling. There was a very faint twilight at noon, with a low glow in the southern skies on clear days. Thereafter it grew darker each day, until there was little difference between noon and midnight.

On the morning of November 12 I was awakened about 4 o'clock by the shaking and trembling of the ship, and lay for some minutes listening to the groaning and moaning of the timbers under pressure of the ice.

I got up and went on deck. It was so dark that I could not see very far, but I could distinguish in the distance the ghostly form of the ice in a jumble of confusion, and could see the pressure ridges approaching the bow and stern of the ship and the enormous folds in the ice off to starboard. It felt rather cold, though the temperature had risen to 22 degrees below zero.

Days of storm and varying temperature followed, and the nights were made unpleasant by the grating of the ice in motion and the groaning and shaking of the ship under pressure.

Early in the morning of December 21 I was awakened by the old grinding and crunching of the ice and the trembling of the ship. As I was hurriedly dressing the America began to shake as if on the wave of a mighty earthquake; she shrieked like a living thing in pain.

I went on deck in the darkness, only to realize that the America was in her death agony. The whole sea of ice to starboard was in motion, sweeping down in great lines and billows or breaking blocks that rose and tumbled over each other like an army of giants determined to destroy us.

Huge boulders of ice came over the rail, crushing it like paper, and frightful sounds were heard from below as if the ship were breaking in half. At 7.20 Engineer Hartt came to me, and with tears in his eyes said that water was entering the ice pits and that he could not keep up steam. Later he announced that the water had reached the grate bars, that the fires were out, and that he had sent the men ashore.

But fate postponed the complete destruction of the America. Another pressure raised her high in the ice grip, and in that position she froze, the storms drifting her in until she seemed immovable—a black, giant skeleton marooned in the icy waste of Teplitz Bay.

The night of disaster was tinged with some flashes of humor. While the crew were passing bags over the side of the ship the cook, who was of an excitable nature, suddenly appeared at the raff with a large bag, which he heaved over with all his might.

It struck the ice below with a resounding crash, which caused several of the sailors to exclaim, "Hello, cook, what was that?"

"Oh, that's all right," he answered; "it's lamp chimneys and flatirons."

But it was hardly all right, for during the winter we were obliged to cut the bottoms out of pickle bottles and use them in lieu of the chimneys that had been broken.

With the disablement of the ship arose the necessity of dragging ashore all the coal possible and of dismantling the interior for the woodwork to enlarge our house. At nightfall, when twenty-four homeless men had to be given a place to sleep, the cheapest, meanest Bowery lodging house would have seemed a palace compared to our little hut. Men slept on tables and underneath them, on benches and on piles of wet baggage.

Despite these advantages, the Christmas and New Year holidays passed happily. We celebrated them with boodquets, to which our hard-working steward contributed many delicacies.

A Christmas edition of the Arctic Eagle, our camp newspaper, was printed, Assistant Commissary Stewart making up the forms and running the press, and Seaman Montrose, who had once been a printer, acting as compositor.

Nearly all the members of the party contributed to its columns, and much amusement at its quips and personals was the result.

It was by no means an encouraging outlook that the brave little party faced at that Christmas time. Their ship, crushed and useless, was piled high upon a mass of ice blocks, and only a short time after Christmas it disappeared from sight. By no means pleasant was it to be marooned upon an Arctic waste.

And yet the Christmas dinner seems to have been a very creditable production of culinary skill. Certainly the members of the party, ranged about the long table in the low, dark hut, did not appear greatly depressed when the photograph was taken.

Evidences of good cheer may be seen upon the table. The boxes of cigars and the long-neck bottles impart a holiday after-glow to the banquet. The fact that some of the men found it necessary to eat in overcoats and sweaters probably did not detract from keen appetites whetted by encounter with a temperature far below zero.

No doubt all had been put in excellent humor by the scintillating brightness found in the Christmas edition of the Arctic Eagle—the only holiday newspaper, so far as known, ever printed in that wilderness of Polar ice.

Then, too, there was little time for repining or low-spirited spells. All the men were busy preparing for the coming northward dash on sledges. While folks at home were still pursuing a round of festivities, probably during Christmas week, these marooned explorers spent the days about a work table sewing fur garments to be used on the over-ice trip.

Four years before this the Duke of Abruzzi's Italian expedition had spent a memorable Christmas locked in the ice nearby. "We meant to spend the winter at a different place, but early in September our ship was frozen in solid," said one of the party, in describing the experience.

"We had to take everything possible ashore, as the ship seemed in a bad way from the pressure and was no longer habitable. A camp was established—one large tent with two smaller ones inside, and between these two inner tents we put our stove. So we lived during the winter.

"That was as cold, forlorn and lonesome a Christmas as I ever want to spend. The temperature was 50 degrees below freezing most of the time, and sometimes much lower. We had to be very careful to avoid getting parts of our bodies frozen.

"The cold was terrible during some nights in the tents. Even the boots were frozen. But later the falling of snow afforded better protection, and, if we were not entirely comfortable by Christmas, we had grown accustomed to things as they were and could think of something beside the cold, misery and danger.

"Christmas was celebrated with great solemnity, and a week as merry as we could make it under the circumstances followed. We had an extra feast or two, and all the Christmas legends and stories that we knew were recounted; still, it was a far different holiday season from that which we knew at home, where bells are celebrated at home. The arrival of Father Christmas is usually with a brilliant display of fireworks."

If feasting and even a partial attempt at a Christmas celebration marked the holiday season last year, spent by Commander Robert E. Peary and his companions in the Arctic, Peary does not speak of them in his business-like account of his trip, recently published.

Peary was terribly in earnest; his heart was set upon attaining the coveted goal, and every moment during which headway could be made was devoted to work. Besides, Christmas Day was probably one of considerable anxiety because of the position of the ship Roosevelt.

Early in September the ship had been caught in a sudden formation of ice at Fort Sheridan, Grinnell Land, and imprisoned.

An Ingenious Steward Made Dinner a Success

A CHRISTMAS NIGHT DISASTER

"On Christmas night," states Commander Peary, "the ice suddenly broke away from the shore and disappeared in the inky darkness, leaving the starboard side of the Roosevelt exposed and unprotected. A violent southerly gale began which threatened to tear the ship from her moorings. The swell heaving around Cape Rawson rocked the vessel pronouncedly."

This anxious and perilous time doubtless precluded very much enjoyment of the Christmas spirit.

But perhaps the most remarkable observance of Christmas under difficulties was by the crew of the German ship Hansa, which had been crushed by ice in December, 1850. The crew clambered, with such belongings as they could rescue, upon an iceberg, where they remained, facing hardships and danger, 300 days before they were rescued.

"Yet even to the crew of the ill-fated Hansa Christmas brought some festivities," states an account. "The tremendous gale which had raged many days ceased just before December 25, and a heavy fall of snow almost buried the black huts that the shipwrecked men had constructed for themselves from debris of the wreck upon the floating iceberg.

"The Christmas tree was erected in the afternoon, while the greater part of the crew took a walk. The lonely huts showed with wonderful brightness amid the snow. Christmas upon a Greenland iceberg!

"The tree was artistically put together of firwood and matwood, and Dr. Lauke had saved a twist of wax taper for the illumination. Chains of colored paper and newly baked cakes were not wanting, and the men had made a knapsack and a revolver case as a present for the captain.

"We opened the leaden chests of presents from Professor Hochstetter and the Geographical Society, which had been brought from Germany, and were much amazed by their contents. Each man had a glass of port wine, and we then turned over the old newspapers which we found in the chests, and drew lots for the presents, which consisted of small musical instruments, such as fifes, jewsharps, trumpets, etc., with some games and crackers. In the evening we feasted on chocolate and gingerbread."

Under the circumstances, it was remarkable that there should have been any spirit to attempt even the poorest celebration of the Christmas time.

THE WORLD'S RICHEST PEOPLE---THE OSAGE INDIANS

IF A POET of the Osage Indian Nation in Oklahoma should, in pitying mood, indite such a line as, "Lo, the poor Paleface!" he would be perfectly within bounds, for, no matter what nationalities or communities of Caucasians should take exception, they would be poor compared with this particular tribe of Indians.

Every one of the 1800 of them—man, woman and child—is worth $8610 in land and cash, and has a comfortable income besides. The words "every one" are used advisedly, for all the worldly goods of these people are held in common. Yet their possessions, reinforced by a present capitalization of their income, make every one of the tribe worth, it is estimated, about $50,000.

Their wealth at hand consists principally of $6,000,000 in cash held by the government and 1,500,000 acres of land, most of which they lease for grazing at a good rental.

The average per capita wealth of residents of the United States is about $1400; for the whole world, only about $10. Here is a tribe of Indians worth per capita almost a thousand times as much as the average citizen of the world!

TWO pictures of the Osages have been painted by writers who have visited them—the one depicting them as uncivilized and unsusceptible to civilizing influences; the other presenting them as owners of fine homes, with modern conveniences, anxious to improve their condition and sending their children to Eastern colleges.

As a matter of fact, a visitor to the Osage country could find both these types, and it is a question of which is in the majority.

It was through the sale of their land in Kansas several years ago that the Osages were started on the highway to their great wealth. For this land they received a sum total of $8,000,000, which the government has since held for them in trust, paying to them quarterly the interest, amounting annually to, $480,000, or $422 for each man, woman and child.

Of the 1,500,000 acres of land which they have retained, they lease 800,000 acres for grazing, at an annual rental of $120,000, which, added to the interest on their money at Washington, makes a revenue of a little more than $900 for each man, woman and child, or over $2500 a year for each family of five or more. One family of fifteen, for instance, receives $4500 a year without having to do a tap of work.

At $5 an acre—a small valuation for land in that section—the Osage grounds are worth $7,500,000, or $4166 per capita. This, added to the $4444 in cash, makes a total of $8610 owned by each individual; and those who care to can grow constantly richer from the increment.

The fact that their revenue enables them to live in idleness has resulted in abuses in some quarters; intoxication is said to be on the increase, and many of the Indians are described as having retrograded to primeval conditions.

The wildest of the Osages live in the southwestern part of their domain, where they are said to closely observe all the ancient customs of their forefathers, such as burning their dead at the stake, going almost naked in summer, and eating dog.

An instance of their adherence to ancient custom was the election of a chief some time ago—a ceremony hardly to be reconciled with one's conception of the richest people on earth.

In the centre of a circle of tepees was a large fire. A fire dance and a tomanawk dance preceded the election. Then the voters were "tried by fire"; that is, a burning stick was held in front of each, and if the flames burned straight he was yet in the good graces of the Great Spirit, but if they flickered he was commanded to leave the medicine lodge. With painted faces, and almost naked, the men danced until midnight. They joined hands and circled about singing:

Our Father, make our new chief;
Oh, make him a wise man;
Let us live happy
And have meat feasts.

At the dog feast which followed the election no one dared refuse to eat; and two white men who were there out of curiosity were compelled to eat dog, too.

Thirty years ago, when their tribal form of government was organized, the Osages were the most powerful Indians in the West, but smallpox cut down their number two-thirds. Then they moved into a reservation south of Kansas, and have remained there peaceable since.

Their organization was effected by a wise chief, Claremore. There are a chief, assistant chief, secretary, treasurer and thirty councilmen. The chief is elected every four years, and he appoints the others.

The people live in little villages—some of them in segregated tepees, as their forefathers did centuries ago. For the advantages offered by a nearby civilization they have little use. Barring some degenerate exceptions, they adhere to the simple life-teachings of their aged chiefs.

Presence of mind on the part of a factory manager was the means of avoiding a fire panic the other day in London. Fire broke out in a big athletic outfitting establishment in Holborn, and the building and stock were heavily damaged before the flames were extinguished. There were 1,800 employees on the premises, and one of the managers conceived the expedient of emptying the building quickly by announcing to the women employees that the firm had decided to let them off to go out and see a passing parade. The manager hurried through the room calling out to the girls and women: "This way for the parade; this way to see the show." He got the women started towards the staircases, down which they were hustled. By the time tehy discovered the real cause of the rush they were in safety beyond the reach of the fire.

A once famous battleship has disappeared from British naval circles. The other morning the once celebrated battleship Sans Pareil was towed from the Mersey to Preston by four large tugs. She had been acquired from the Admiralty by Messrs. Ward for scrap purposes. She was first brought to Birkenhead, where the engines, fittings, and gear were taken out of her, leaving little more than the shell for treatment at the breaking up grave at Preston. The Sans Pareil was designed as a harbour defence ship, and carried 110 ton guns. She was built some eighteen years ago, and was considered one of the most powerful ships in the British Navy.

A dramatic story of a motor-car comes from Henley-on-Thames, Oxford. The other day an expert chauffeur was driving two ladies, when they suddenly became alarmed by his conduct. The brakes were jammed on hard as the car turned aside and ran into the hedge. Instead of getting down the man remained in his seat, grasping the steering wheel. The ladies hurriedly stepped out of the automobile, and were amazed to find the chauffeur dead with his foot on the brake pedal. Apparently he had been seized with heart failure, and just had time to apply the brakes and shut off the engines before he expired.

The crew of the steamer Nether Holme, which ran on the rocks near Ven-y-Hold Stack, on the South Pembrokeshire coast had a wonderful escape. The tide receded, leaving her high and dry, and the crew of fifteen [illegible] by means of a rope [illegible] previous wreck. They wandered about until they found a Coastguard's hut at Nimston. Later they were received and sheltered at Brownslade, Lambton. The vessel is expected to become a total wreck. The vessel is a steel screw steamer of 1,969 tons register, belonging to Maryport.

Although prodigies are somewhat of a drug in the musical market, those days, one introduced to London recently, seems likely to have an extraordinary success as a pianist. The boy is 14 years of age, Ernest Longyel is his name. He was born in Vienna of Hungarian parents. At the age of 5 1-2 years the Government scholarship was awarded to him, and Archduchess Augusta also aided him in his musical education.

An unusual scene was witnessed near Peterborough, Northamptonshire. The Bishop of Peterborough was on a motor-car trip in his diocese when the car frightened a coal cart horse and the cart was overturned in the ditch. The rural dean sat on the horse's head until it was released from the cart, and then the bishop, the dean, and the chauffeur and valet helped the driver to reload his cart.

Mr. George Houlden, a farmer, who was the last man in the fens to wear the old-fashioned smock frock, has died at Pinchbeck, near Spalding Lines.

SCOTLAND

Ladies are beginning to play a fairly prominent part in Scottish municipal affairs. Mrs. Malcolm, Burnside House, Dollar, has the unique distinction of being the only lady in Scotland returned as a town councillor and also as a parish councillor—in both cases unopposed. While dissociating herself from the Suffragist agitation, Mrs. Malcolm believes in all ratepayers having a vote. Three ladies have been returned to the Dundee Parish Council, but the municipal lady candidates at Edinburg, Patrick, Millport and Dumfries, were all defeated.

A great Dane dog has been found wandering on the Berwickshire coast, in the neighbourhood of St. Abb's Head, this being the sole survivor of the Danish steamer, Alfred Erlandsen, which, with her crew of 15, was lost there lately. When found, the dog was in a crippled state, but by kind treatment from a lady in the district, who is caring for it, the animal is likely soon be all right. Much surprise has been expressed at the dog being able to reach the land, as the sea was very rough, and the coast is a rockbound and dangerous one.

At a recent meeting of Glasgow Traders' House in Trades' Hall, the chairman called attention to the production by the clerk of a translation of the first minute-book of the House, dated from 1605 to 1676. The clerk had taken a deep interest in their old records. The first minute-book had been written in a language not easily understood at the present day, and a good deal of trouble had been required in having it translated. The book was examined with interest by the members.

The Glasgow shipbrokers have contracted with the American Government to convey 200,000 tons of coal to the Pacific for the coaling of the American fleet. Twenty-one Glasgow steamers have been chartered.

IRELAND

For some time past several county councils and other public bodies in Ireland have been considering the question of devising some means to enable the smaller farmers to cope with their heavy losses which they suffer from time to time owing to disease or accident among their live stock. These losses are to no small extent due to the absence of veterinary advice or to delay in obtaining it. It is understood that the Wexford county committee of agriculture have agreed upon a scheme which they are put into operation for twelve months as an experiment, for the establishment of a number of veterinary dispensaries at different centres in the county, at which veterinary surgeons will attend on certain days each week for the treatment of diseased animals. Farms will be visited by the surgeons with the object of treating cases which cannot be dealt with at the infirmaries. A scale of fees has been arranged and is based on the value of the stockholder's holdings.

At the meeting of the Newry Board of Guardians a resolution was adopted, "That in view of the disastrous state of the country caused by the recent inclement weather, whereby in many places the oat crop is totally destroyed, and the potato crop seriously affected the landlords of Ireland be asked to abate the current year's rent by at least 50 per cent., and that the Government be asked to make a proportionate abatement on the annuities payable in respect of land purchased under the Lands Acts, particularly the act of 1903." It was decided to send copies of the resolution to all the Boards of Guardians in Ulster and also to the Prime Minister, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, and Messrs Mooney, M'Veigh and M'Killop, M.P's. The guardians from the country districts described the state of the corn crop as rotting in the fields, and not worth in many cases, expending labour on it, to try and gather it in.

The Cork County Committee of Agriculture have been devoting much attention of late to the question of winter dairying in Ireland. A proposed scheme of practical experiments was formulated by the county committee, as the result of a conference on the subject, and the Department of Agriculture have signified their approval of the schems for the county. A sum of 250 pounds has been set apart for this purpose and it is proposed that three farms be selected for carrying on the experiments. The results of these experiments will probably be the introduction of a scheme on a large scale for the organisation of a system of all the year round dairying, which will place the country in a position to compete with Denmark in this department, and provide increased employment for the agricultural labourers in the winter months.

A remarkable bequest contained in the will of an elderly man of Portamouth, County Armagh, Ireland, has been made public. He leaves the whole of his property to the town of Portadown (to provide recreation for the people, but he bars the expenditure of any of the money on the encouragement of football or rowing for speed. The will is that of William John Watson. He was 70 years of age and although possessed of means he lived as if in a state of poverty. Mr. Watson spent his earlier life in Australia, where he made a fortune of $50,000. Some years ago he returned to his native town. The will provided also that the local urban council shall have a dinner every five years, the cost not to exceed $5 a head, and that at each of these quinquennial banquets the will shall be read publicly.

Suffered for 23 Years With Kidney Trouble.

CURED AT LAST BY GIN PILLS.

Whether you are just beginning to feel the first twinges of kidney pains—or whether you have tried for years to find relief—Gin Pills will cure you. Surely you can't doubt their virtues after such a letter as this:

"I sent for a free sample of your Gin Pills some time ago, and found them to give me great relief, so I put myself under the treatment, and am now using the third box, and feel myself entirely cured. I have suffered with my kidneys for 23 years. At the time I began taking Gin Pills I could not turn in bed without pain. If I moved at night, the pain would be so great that it would wake me up. Now I am free of pain, and feel as well as I did 23 years ago. I feel it my duty to let you know about Gin Pills, so that it might be the means of relieving some other sufferer.

"HENRY WAKEFORD, Toronto."

Gin Pills hold out a guarantee of certain, quick relief. They will stop the pain—heal the sick kidneys—and build up the whole system—or your druggist will refund your money. That shows our confidence in Gin Pills. We will do more. We will send you a trial box of Gin Pills absolutely free if you will write asking for it and state the name of the paper in which you see this. A BLESSING TO MANY PEOPLE

May Mean Much Less Sickness Here When This Prescription is Known

IS A HOME MADE REMEDY

This is a message that will bring happiness again into many families and sunshine into the lives of hundreds of disheartened and discouraged men and women here. It requires just a little inconvenience, for it can't be bought already prepared. It is a simple home recipe now being made known in all the larger cities through the newspapers. It is intended to check the many cases of rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble which have made so many cripples and invalids and weaklings of some of our brightest and strongest people.

The druggists here have been notified to supply themselves with the ingredients and the sufferer will have no trouble to obtain them. The prescription is as follows: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one half ounce; Compoung Kargon, one ounce and Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one tablespoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Recent experiments, even in severe hospital cases prove this simple mixture the remedy for Rheumatism, because of its positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It compels these most vital organs to filter from the blood and system the waste impurities and uric acid which are the causes of rheumatism. It cleanses the system, strengthens them and removes quickly such symptoms, as backache, blood disorders bladder weakness, frequent urination, painful, scalding and discoloured urine. It acts as a powerful stimulant to the entire kidney and bladder structure, puts new life into them and invigorates the entire tract. It makes the kidneys clean the blood. The Dandelion will take care of liver trouble and constipation, and is fine for the stomach.

All the ingredients, states a well-know local druggist, are of a vegetable extraction, making it a safe and harmless prescription at any time.

Those who suffer and are accustomed to purchase a bottle of patent medicine should not let a little inconvenience interfere with making up this prescription. Wherever this becomes generally known, states a large eastern publication, it ruins the sale of the patent medicines and so called rheumatism and kidney cures, which is its best endorsement of virtue. 10

Her Sealskin.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

Copyrighted, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.

No one ever accused Mrs. Stone of being unduly sympathetic. Ten years' experience with a brutal husband and ten subsequent years of buffeting with the world had deprived her of that sentimental quality, if indeed she had ever possessed it. She was admirably fitted to be what she was—head of the Associated Charities of a large city. Impostors who came fawning down the corridor dreaded this sharp eyed, thin lipped woman. What an expert cross examiner the years of insight and unbelief had made her! How difficult it was to have the telltale bottle or cover up the telltale odor when she descended on their abodes!

She had driven away half the mendicants in town. The worthy ones whom she had made comfortable at home—they even were not grateful; they missed the noise and excitement of the street. But Mrs. Stone was obdurate. If the police would not enforce the begging ordinance, she would. If the really needy ones would stay at home, she would see that they were provided for; if they infested the street, not a penny should they have from her, and she would see that they were arrested into the bargain. So the blind lavender man took to woodcarving, and they all grumbled and were very unhappy.

One morning a woman in a bedraggled black gown and a veil with a hole that came just over the tip of her nose made her way into Mrs. Stone's office. Mrs. Stone knew the type—husband, a lingering man just dead; from three to six young children, not one of earning age.

"Be seated," said Mrs. Stone brusquely, but not unkindly, and her limp guest perched uncomfortably on the edge of the only chair, which was so located that every ray of cold gray light searched out the lines in the visitor's face. "What can I do for you?"

"I want work," said the woman.

"What kind?"

"Any kind of work by the day."

"Can you clean?"

"Yes."

"Wash well?"

"Pretty well."

"Cook?"

"Some—plain things."

"H'm—cleaning would be best for you."

Mrs. Stone noted these details in a book, together with age, name, address, nativity, and then came down to more interesting details.

"How long have you lived here?"

"A week."

Mrs. Stone raised her eyebrows.

"Where did you come from?"

The woman mentioned a nearby town.

"Why did you leave there?"

"My husband died."

"How long ago?"

"About three weeks."

"How many children have you?"

"Five."

"Ages, please."

"The oldest is ten."

"Husband leave you anything?"

The woman hesitated.

"Yes, a little," she said finally.

"How much?"

"Well, the society buried him and paid the doctor, and I had a little left."

"How much?" came the remorseless question.

"About $300."

"You have that?"

"No, ma'am."

"What did you do with it?"

"I bought something."

"Indeed!" Mrs. Stone's pencil was suspended in the air. "What?"

"A sealskin sack."

"A what?" Mrs. Stone almost shouted.

The woman cast down her eyes. "A sealskin sack," she repeated almost inaudibly.

"Well, I declare!" Mrs. Stone said aloud. "A charwoman with a new $300 sealskin!" she added to herself.

"When do you propose to wear it," she went on to inquire—"to your work in the morning?"

"Oh, no, ma'am," continued the woman, taking the question seriously. "I wouldn't wear it every day. On Sundays I'll wear it sometimes, if 't's not too sunny and doesn't rain. They say rain doesn't hurt 'em, but I wouldn't take the chances—and sun fades 'em."

"What good is it to do you, then?"

"Oh, I take it out of its bag and stroke it morning and night and between whiles when I have time. There isn't much danger of its being stolen. No one would suspect such a thing in a place like ours and I'd thrash a child within an inch of its life who dared tell of it. Fire's the worst. I do dread fire. I wish I could insure it."

Mrs. Stone was facing one of the problems of her career.

"I don't understand it at all," she said, "why you should have spent your entire capital so wastefully and so uselessly? You have nothing to wear with the thing, and you come to a charitable association to get work for you."

"I'll tell you," said the woman eagerly, her face lighting up. "I had wanted a sealskin all my life. I was a factory girl, and on my way home at night I used to stop before the fur shops and look in—all those lovely capes and things—I wanted them all. I'd have learned to sew fur and have worked in a fur shop if I'd have dared, but I was afraid I'd steal something. Then I married John, and there was nothing but hard work and babies. Sometimes I couldn't get out to look in a fur window for a week at a time. Then John died." The woman's face was alight. "Three hundred dollars wouldn't buy much for six, but it would buy a sealskin. I wanted it all my life! I never had so much money at one time before—I couldn't help it—I just had to buy it. I was never so happy in my life as the night I wore it home, and I'm just as happy with it now. I'd do it again. I'll work my fingers to the bone for my children. But I suppose you won't help me to get work now?"

The woman had risen from the chair's edge. Mrs. Stone was meditatively tapping the desk with her pencil.

"Wait a minute," she said. Mrs. Stone was thinking. She was remembering that two of her lady directors, lately widowed, were seeking forgetfulness in Europe, the meager allowance granted by the stingy departed having been multiplied by a generous court while the estates were being settled. Mrs. Stone might not be sympathetic, but she was logical and fair minded.

"There's a janitorship, vacant in a school which I might get for you," she said. "It's $60 a month, and you could live well on that. Are you strong enough to do the work, and will you do it well? Of course if you don't do it well you'll simply be discharged, but I should dislike to recommend an incompetent person."

"Put me on trial," said the woman eagerly. "Indeed, I'll do it well, and Jamie is old enough to help me some."

"Very well," said Mrs. Stone. "Come at 9 o'clock on Monday, and I'll see what can be done."

For several seconds after her visitor had left Mrs. Stone sat silent before her desk. Then she whirled about in her revolving chair to listen to the next tale of woe.

A month later one of her assistants said to her:

"I'm afraid that woman for whom we secured the janitress' place was an impostor, after all."

"What makes you think so?" asked Mrs. Stone.

"Well, anyhow, I don't think she's as poor as Ellen West, who wanted it."

"She has six children to support," returned Mrs. Stone. "Ellen has only two, and she drinks."

"Yes," said the assistant, "but I saw her in the park yesterday, and what do you think she had on?"

"A sealskin sack perhaps," said Mrs. Stone, not looking up from the figures she was adding.

"So you knew?" gasped the other.

"Yes, I knew."

The assistant was bursting with curiosity. She waited a moment.

"Perhaps she has seen better days," she ventured.

"I don't think so," said Mrs. Stone, "though it was a sort of inheritance."

"Oh!" said the assistant. "But it is very good and new. I thought perhaps it was electric, but it wasn't. I should think she might sell it and get something for the children."

"She might," said Mrs. Stone, "but I don't think she will. Two, eight, nineteen, twenty-four—we've taken in $240 in dues this month. That's not bad."

Ill Temper From a bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable, or more gloomy and discouraged, than liver complaint, and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia, and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right, and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

Bate, Newell Bate, Hon. Geo. Bryson, J. C. Edwards, J. M. Courtney, C.M.G., A. H. Edwards, H. K. Egan, A. L. Forbes, J. B. Fraser, W. H. A. Fraser, J. D. Fraser, Rev. T. Garrett, Geo. Hay, Geo. S. May, M.L.A., John J. MacCrackenn, David Maclaren, D. T. Masson, R. A. Mather, W.D. Morris, John L. Murphy, Denis Murphy, Geo. H. Perley, M. P., Colin Rankin, Mattawa; Jos. Riopelle, C. E. Russell, F. J. Wilson, J. G. Whyte.

Moved by Rev. T. Garrett, seconded by Mr. Joseph Riopelle, "That the President take the chair and the General Manager be requested to act as Secretary."—Carried.

The Chairman then asked the secretary to read the REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS.

The Directors have pleasure in submitting to the Shareholders the Thirty-third Annual Report, showing the result of the Bank's business for the year ended 30th November, 1907, together with the Balance Sheet of the Bank on that date.

Balance at credit of Profit and Loss Account on 30th November, 1906, was	$236,512 95
Net Profits for the year ended 30th November, 1907, after deducting expenses of management, and making necessary provision for interest due to depositors, unearned interest on current loans, and for all bad and doubtful debts, and contingencies	443,288 09
	$679,801 04
Appropriated as follows:—
Dividend No. 63, 2 1-2 per cent., paid 1st March, 1907,	$75,000 00
Dividend No. 63, 2 1-2 per cent., paid 1st June, 1907,	75,000 00
Dividend No. 64, 2 1-2 per cent., paid 2nd September, 1907,	75,000 00
Dividend No. 65, payable 2nd December, 1907	75,000 00

Transferred to Officers' Pension Fund	5,000 00 351,963 56
Balance carried forward at credit of Profit and Loss Account	$327,837 48

Your Directors desire to express their deep regret at the loss sustained by the Bank since the last annual general meeting of the shareholders, through the death of Mr. John Matner, who had been a member of the Board since 1889. The vacancy thus created on the Directorate was filled by the unanimous election of Mr. E. C. Whitney to the position.

Branches of the Bank have been opened during the year at Cobalt, Ont., and on Bridge Street, in Hull, and sub-offices at Moose Creek, Ont., St. Andrews, Que., and in the southern part of the city of Peterborough.

The buildings alluded to in the last report as being in the course of erection have been almost entirely completed. Your Directors found it necessary during the year to acquire premises for the occupation of the branch opened at Cobalt, and it was also considered desirable to acquire a site on the corner of Gladstone Ave. and Bank Street in this City, where a building is now being erected.

The Directors have decided to submit for the approval of the Shareholders a By-Law authorizing an increase in the Capital by $2,000,000, to be availed of, as usual in such amounts and at such times as the Directors may determine, the intention being to allot the new shares from time to time, as required, but no allotment is contemplated for the near future.

The usual inspections of the offices of the Bank have been made during the year. The officers of the Bank continue to perform their respective duties to the satisfaction of the Directors.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE HAY,
President.

GEORGE BURN,
General Manager.

A By-Law to increase the Capital Stock of the Bank from three to five millions of dollars by the issue of 20,000 new shares of $100 each was carried, and By-Law No. 6 was altered to read so that the necessity for closing the books for fifteen days on the declaration of each quarterly dividend might be obviated.

The usual votes of thanks to the president and directors, and to the general manager and staff were unanimously passed.

The Scrutineers reported the following gentlemen re-elected directors:—

BATE, HENRY N.
BRYSON, HON. GEORGE.
EGAN, HENRY K.
FRASER, JOHN B.
HAY, GEORGE.
MACLAREN, DAVID.
MURPHY, DENIS.
PERLEY, M.P., GEORGE H.
WHITNEY, EDWIN C.

At the meeting of the Board held subsequently, Mr. George Hay was re-elected president, and Mr. David Maclaren vice-president, for the coming year.

Christmas on Taft's Ranch.

SECRETARY OF WAR TAFT is part owner of one of the largest ranches in Texas, the Coleman-Fulton ranch, so called, a 175,000 acre "farm" eleven miles from Corpus Christi on the San Antonio and Aransas Pass railroad. One hundred men are always and 250 men sometimes employed on it.

"I was so fortunate as to have the pleasure of seeing a unique Christmas tree on this ranch," writes Mary Elise Muncey in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. "Christmas morning, though warm, was foggy, and a slow rain fell, but by 12 o'clock the sun came out, and the people at the ranch house began to make their preparations. Ever since early morning the employees from the different farms had been coming in. All kinds of vehicles were pressed into service. Some came on horseback and some on foot. There were many children.

"I saw what I had never seen before, a growing Christmas tree. Just in front of the house was a large mulberry tree. The ladies of the house came out about 2 o'clock and decorated the tree, with the assistance of some of the men. Even the men required stepladders to reach the topmost boughs. First, the ladies gave them some artificial icicles, which they hung on the branches in great profusion. As the sun was shining brightly by this time, it gave the icicles a very glittering appearance, and the wind, commencing to blow, shook them gently, making the illusion more perfect. Then long bright ribbons of many colors were suspended from the topmost limbs and fruit and candles tied on with ribbons of the same color—oranges with orange ribbon, apples with red ribbon, limes with green ribbon, etc. Small toys were suspended from the tree; large ones were at the base. It presented a very gorgeous spectacle, and the sight of the happy children that surrounded it made one wish to be a child again to enjoy it to the uttermost. But the best was yet to come.

"In the front yard were the presents intended for the grown people, and each man received one. One was a fine surrey. Five were each given fifty and seventy-five dollar saddles. Several married men got handsome metal bedsteads, with springs and mattresses. Twenty or thirty fine hats, costing $7 apiece, were distributed and many other articles, all the best of their kind. I saw a young man who received an all leather suit case. This last item may seem strange on a ranch, but there are many polished gentlemen among the employees who would consider suit cases very necessary should they have occasion to visit the city.

"All this while music was to be heard from a band stationed on the front porch, where many of the visitors were seated. After the Santa Claus of the Christmas tree had retired and the presents to the grownups had been distributed all repaired to the porch and front yard to see again the gleeful children and the tree, and surely it was a thing of beauty and, with its fruits and flowers, looked as though it had been transplanted from fairyland.

"The people that came from a distance departed before nightfall, but those that lived near by remained for an evening of music and good cheer, and thus ended a happy Christmas day."

What Grandpa Knows.

SOME folks say 'at Red Riding Hood
Ske didn't live at all nor go
Down where th' wolf was in 'at wood,
But grampa says 'at it is so!
An' some folks say 'at Goldilocks
Don't meet th' bears an' run away,
A-bumpin' into trees an' rocks,
But grampa's seen her many a day.

My grampa takes me on his knee
An' tells me all 'bout Puss in Boots
An' 'bout th' fairies you can't see
For their in-vis—their funny suits.
An' he knows where the beanstalk is 'At Jack th' Giant Killer climb'
To get 'at gold an' things o' his,
'Cause grampa's seen it many a time.

An' Cinderella, too, my pa
Ist laugh an' say 'at he don't know,
But grampa—w'y, my grampa saw
'Her slip 'at slipper on her toe!
An' Simple Simon—would you think
He never was like some folks say?
But grampa only laugh an' wink,
'Cause he has seen him many a day.

CAUSE GRAMPA'S SEEN IT MANY A TIME.

'At Alferd Brown, 'at lives nex' door
To us, I don't like him, 'uhcause
He say 'at he don't think no more
'At there can be a Santa Claus,
But grampa whisper in my ear
'At Santa will find me all right,
'Cause he has seen his sleigh an' deer
An' pack o' playthings many a night.

My grampa knew Boy Blue an' all
Th' children 'at live in th' shoe.
When Humpty Dumpty had 'at fall
He's standin' close as me an you!
An he say ist to don't buhlieve
Th' folks 'at say there ain't no chime
O' reindeer bells on Christmas eve,
'Cause he has heard 'em many a time.

THE PRESIDENT'S CHRISTMAS

How the Big and Little Roosevelts Celebrated Last Year.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt had only the immediate members of their family to celebrate Christmas. Just before going to bed on Christmas eve the children hung their stockings in the president's room, and bright and early the next morning they were up to claim their prizes. Everything that was ever designed for a Christmas stocking found a place in the line that hung from the mantel, and when the boys awakened there was a merry scramble to see just what was inside.

After breakfast the president, Mrs. Roosevelt and the children went to the library to exchange presents too big for the stocking.

Each member of the family had a special corner for his or her gifts, and there were any number of mysterious little parcels to be opened. This very pleasant little ceremony took the entire morning.

After this the president walked to his church, Grace Reformed, and the rest of the family went to St. John's Episcopal church.

In the afternoon the president, Mrs. Roosevelt and the children went over to the home of Captain and Mrs. William Sheffield Cowles, where they always spend Christmas afternoon and where there is always a tree for the Roosevelt and Cowles children. They were joined there by Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, and a little family reunion was held.

After the visit to the Cowles' the president played tennis with his sons.

At night was given the Christmas dinner in the private dining room. Among the few invited guests were Senator Lodge, Dr. Rixey and family and Mr. and Mrs. Longworth. The string section of the Marine band furnished the music for the occasion.

While the Shriners were feeding their guests there came to their hall 150 loaves of bread. The huge six foot Santa Claus was busy cracking jokes as he waddled about and took down the gifts from the Christmas tree. In the middle of one of his stories there entered another big, fat Santa Claus, carrying a colossal basket full of bread, and behind him were three or four negroes, also carrying baskets of bread. One of the Shriner committeemen at once inferred that some one had sent a gift of bread to be distributed and signed a receipt for the 150 loaves. In a few minutes they were handed around to the heads of families, and an additional smile of Christmas joy went around with them.

When the festivities were nearly over and the crowd had begun to disperse a man came running in and asked:

"Did you get 150 loaves of bread?"

"We did," was the reply.

"What did you do with it?"

"Gave it away."

"Well, that was an order from the Carroll institute. It came here by mistake. But it is all right. We are glad you gave it away, and if you need more let us know," and the man went away, evidently fully satisfied with the incident.—New York Times.

A Disappointment.

Rich Uncle (to his physician)—So you think there is hope for me?

"Not only that, but I can assure you that you are out of danger."

"Very well. I wish you would inform my nephew, but break the news gently to him."

THE THREE WISE MEN.

Who Were They?—An Unsolved Christmas Mystery.

One Christmas mystery remains unsolved. Who were the wise men of the east—the magi who followed the star of Bethlehem from afar to do homage to the newborn Saviour?

The simple story as told in the Bible is one of the most familiar in Christmas lore. Any child could recite it in detail. Painters and sculptors have made it the theme of the most inspired products of their brushes and chisels, but to this day the identity of these wise men remains a mystery. A search of the great paintings in which the subject is treated produces a bewilderment. There are half a hundred different ideas presented. The varying versions of the books of the ages are as many.

It is fair to assume from the fact that the visitors were received at court by King Herod and that they carried gifts of value that they were in their own country men of royalty or close to it. Herod evidently deemed it well to treat them with deference, for disquieted though he was by their news of the comet that was to lead them to the birthplace of the Redeemer he dissembled and told them that when they had found the newborn he would return to worship with them.

Much of our information about the early days of the Christian era comes from the monks of the fourteenth century, who delved deeply into historical sources since lost to the world. Their story of the three wise men has received wide credence. According to these monks, the wise men were three great kings called Caspar, Melchoir and Balthasar. Caspar was the oldest and from the north. At the time of the birth of Christ he was sixty years old, and for more than two-thirds of that time he had ruled in Arabia. Balthasar was black, a native of Saba, from the east, and forty years old. The youngest was Melchoir, from the south, whose country was Tarshish. He was twenty years old.

Impelled by some mysterious power, they dropped all the cares of state and followed a single star thirteen days and nights without eating or sleeping till it led them to Jerusalem.

Then the story follows that of the Bible until they returned to their own countries.

The story does not stop here. It tells circumstantially the after life of the three wise men. The good Apostle St. Thomas journeyed to their country and baptized them, and all three went out to preach the doctrine of the Christ.

They were slain by barbarous gentiles, and later the Empress Helena, mother of Constantine, recovered their sacred bones and took them to Constantinople. Thence they were carried to Milan and finally found an ultimate resting place in Cologne, where they now are.—New York Post.

WHEN SANTA WENT ASTRAY.

Miracle of the Loaves Repeated For Washington's Poor.

The day of miracles has not passed, according to the firm belief of a hundred or more poor people in Washington. Last Christmas day Almas temple of the Shriners gave its annual dinner to the poor. It was a well planned affair, generously contributed to, and turned out a big success. But the most notable thing about it was not on the programme and made the hit of the occasion.

THE DESERT SANDS.

Why the Arabs of Sahara Lose the Use of Their Eyes.

"I shall winter in the Sahara," said a traveling man. "With a caravan I shall traverse under a blinding sun and an endless plain of snow white sand, but none of my Mohammedan attendants will wear any kind of shade over his eyes.

"Against that dazzling glare the backs of their necks will be swathed in white linen, and even their ears will be protected. Nothing, though, will keep the sun out of their faces.

"Wondering about this, I said one day to the kaid of an Algerian village:

"'Why don't you Arabs wear a cap of some sort? You live in the world's worst sun glare, but neither fez nor turban under any circumstances has a peak.'

"'The Koran,' the kaid answered, 'forbids all true believers to shade their eyes. Obeying the Koran implicitly, we dwellers in the desert avoid like poison brims to our headgear. In consequence there is more blindness among us than among any other people in the world.'"

From the Yuletide Cynic.

Thank heaven, it isn't only the aristocrat who can have a family tree at Christmas.

Be Christmas white or Christmas green,
It's all the same to you
If Christmas finds you all serene
And doesn't make you blue.

It doesn't take a magician to transform a small boy into a turkey gobbler.

When Santa Claus comes down the chimney he chases many a man up the spout.

It's the vanity of the sex that prompts the female turkey to wonder how she is going to be dressed for the Christmas dinner.

Polar Experiences Recounted In An Alluring Adventure Tale

Story of Travels Through Hudson Bay Districts of The North Part Of The Dominion

THE ESQUIMAUX TRIBE

The record of a conspicuously good piece of travel through Canadian winter wilderness has just been made public. In 1906 George F. Caldwell was commissioned to report on the character of the land, the lakes and the streams which lie back from the western shore of Hudson Bay. The beginning of January found him at the Cape Fullerton police post at the extreme north of Hudson Bay, where a steamer had landed him. He was not a stranger to the place, for he had been there the year before under Mr. A R Low, on the "Neptune" expedition. On that occasion he was sent with five natives and two dog sleds to Wagner Inlet, a hundred miles to the north of Fullerton, mapped the shore and returned, after an absence of fifty days, with some four hundred miles of travel and exploration to his credit. In his history of the "Neptune" Mr. Low says that Caldwell "on this trip did a large amount of excellent work in surveying the coast line and examining the rocks along the route."

A Difference

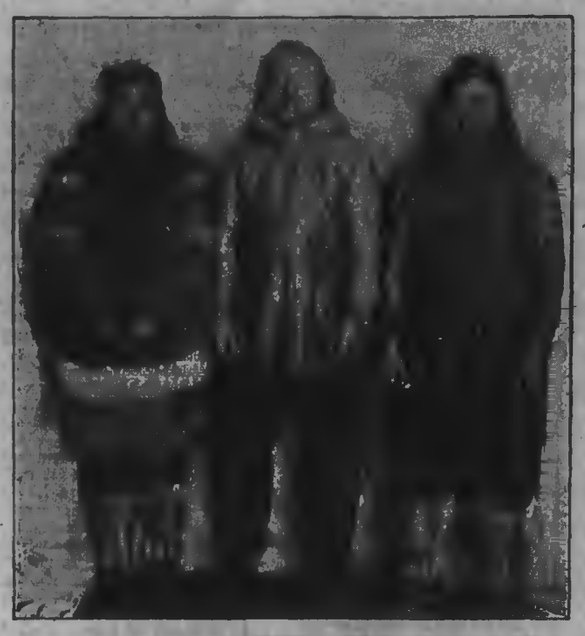
In 1906, however, Mr. Caldwell found the situation differed vastly from the year before. He did not have the elaborate resources of an exploring ship to draw upon. He was on the rim of the Arctic region in mid-winter with almost a thousand miles of frozen and practically unmhabited wilderness between him and his destination which lay nearly a thousand miles to the south. He had expected to get get a dog team at Fullerton, without which no winter progress can be made in the north. He found that distemper had so reduced the number of those Arctic draught animals that none were to be had.

The value of a dog in the north is well illustrated by Mr. Caldwell's experience Neither knives, guns, ammunition nor finery, so dear to the heart of the Esquimaux, would induce them to part with the few dogs which the epidemic had spared. The fear of death from destitution was stronger in them than fancy for finery.

Without a Team

With astounding resolution Caldwell determined to go through with his enterprise. If there were not dogs at Fullerton they might be found on the way. There were natives at Chesterfield Inlet, a couple of hundred miles to the south, and where there are natives in the north there are dogs; neither can exist without the other in those latitudes.

By dint of persuasion and bribes, he hired two dogs and bought one pup from the Fullerton natives, and these by promising to take through the mail, persuaded Sergeant Haynes, who was in charge of the police post, let him have the services of six more as far as the native settlement at Chesterfield. With seventy pounds of cooked beans, a hundred pound barrel of ship biscuit, ten gallons of coal oil for the cooking lamp, seven pounds of lard, three pounds of tea, twelve pounds of sugar, tobacco, matches, and ammunition he turned his steps to the south, and set out on the first stage of his long trip, with a team of nine dogs and Corporal Rowley, of the police, to take back six of the team from Chesterfield.



THREE ESKIMO CHIEFS.
These Men Are Fair Types of Their Race.

Disappointment

The start was made on the 8th of January and without serious mishap Chesterfield was reached on the 19th, a distance of 180 miles having been compassed during the eleven days, on two of which storm had prevented progress. On the 6th they had passed snow houses containing eighteen natives, six of them men, but no dogs were for sale.

At Chesterfield the natives were found to number 40, twelve of them being men. Disease had been among the dogs there, leaving only a remnant of the teams, which the natives regarded as more valuable than anything the white man had to offer. After negotiations, which lasted for two days, Mr. Calwell accomplished the purchase of one more dog and the loan of another for the trip. Thus he found himself the possessor of five dogs when nine constitute a team. The prospect for further progress was dark.

Man For the Work

A couple of days later a remarkable native arrived on the scene from the hunting ground with five dogs and a load of skins which he was taking to Fullerton to barter with the police. The native's name was Ahtunaha, and he was famed as a mighty hunter and traveller. He had traversed practically the whole extent of Canada from the Arctic Ocean to the international boundary. Eight years before a traveller named Clifton had got Ahtunaha to accompany him to Churchill, and had then induced him to go on to Winnipeg, where the native had, Mr. Caldwell says, been left without funds. The Hudson Bay officials, who are still the guardians of the northern natives, took charge of Ahtunaha and sent him back to Norway House. The climate there was too tropical for him, for Mr. Caldwell says: "While waiting at Norway House Ahtunaha was so affected by the heat that the doctor had to allow him the privilege of living in the company's ice house until such time as the boats descended the river to York factory," who next time Ahtunaha journeyed with a white man it was to the north. He was one of the natives who accompanied David T. Hanbury on his trip along the Arctic Coast. He was, once, too, the bearer of a famous message, for it was he who brought in 1904 from the Norwegian exploring ship Gjoa, then wintering off King William Land, the letter which stated that the magnetic pole had been located and surveyed, and that the ship was in a fair way to accomplish the Northwest passage, which she did the following year.

Won a Recruit

A better companion for such a journey as that to Churchill no man could want, and besides Ahtunaha owned five dogs. But he was bound for market with a load of furs. He was going to Fullerton, a hundred and eighty miles to the north, and did not intend to be diverted to Churchill, five hundred miles to the south. "I secured Harry Ford, the police interpreter," writes Mr. Caldwell, well knowing it would take a greater amount of persuasion than my limited acquaintance with the native tongue would cover. Ford did his work well, explaining that the police patrol, which was ready to return to Fullerton, would take the load of skins to that post for him. He dwelt on the value of the trade stuff he had earned by making the journey (Ford had made the trip with Moody the year before) and as a final incentive, said that I wanted him to cross to the Coppermine river with me during the coming winter. Ahtunaha at last consented to accompany me, promising to secure another man to travel with us. He insisted however, that it would take his wives at least six days to make boots, mitts, and renovate his clothing for the trip.

Enjoying Reward

This shows how strange are the things which attract the aboriginal fancy. The Coppermine trip, which won Ahtunaha, is the last thing in the world which would attract anyone sane and civilized. It meant a two thousand mile tramp after the dogs across the barren lands just south of the Arctic Ocean. The Coppermine is the river on which the first expedition of Sir John Franklin came to grief, and it is there that men starved frose and were killed and eaten. Yet for this Ahtunaha agreed to go five hundred miles south with a white man and then return to his people. He had enough faith in the promise of the white man to believe that he would be back the following winter to make good his word. There is some satisfaction in the knowledge that the promise was kept and that last winter, Ahtunaha was paid the final instalment promised for the Churchill journey. Mr. Caldwell went back in August, 1906, with Major Moodie, in the Adventurer. He was last heard from at Baker Lake, which is at the head of Chester Inlet, bound with Ahtunaha, for Coronation Gulf, on the Arctic Ocean, and from there up the Coppermine to Great Bear Lake and south to Edmonton. They should be heard from this winter if fate and frost have let them live.

Trip For Nothing

Even wth Ahtunaha and his dogs secured for the journey Mr. Caldwell felt that his trip was insufficient. So while the wives were preparing Ahtunaha for the trip, Mr. Caldwell set off with a couple of natives for an Esquimaux camp on Baker Lake in quest of more dogs. "On reaching there," he writes, "we found two igloos containing three men, five women and three children. They were as badly off for dogs as I was so that it may be said that I made a trip of eighty miles for nothing." When he returned he found that the police patrol was on the way back to Fullerton and that after their departure one or more of the natives had made way with half of the biscuit intended for use on the trip.

Teddy Boy and Teddy Bear

By Pauline Frances Camp

A LIVELY little Teddy Boy,
Who owned a Teddy Bear,
A very stronge adventure had,
And sadly did he fare.
One night upon his pillow white,
He'd scarcely laid bis head,
When suddenly a fuzzy form
Stood right beside his bed.

In gruffish tones it prowled, "You've played
With me a year or two;
'T is only fair that I should play
A little while with you.
I've been a very patient bear,
And now I'm going to see
Just how you stand the treatment
You have been giving me."

Then seizing Teddy by the hair,
Bear through the window jumped,
Dear me! how fast against his ribs
The heart of Teddy thumped!
He tried his best to call aloud,
That help he might bespeak;
But not a sound could utter, save
A dismal little squeak.

With skip, and hop, and leap,
and stride,
Each longer than the last,
They sped along until they reached
A forest dim and vast.
And there, beneath a giant tree.
Was heard the sound of joy;
And there stood twenty Teddy Bears
With each a Teddy boy.

Our Teddy's Special bear stepped forth
And seemed to take the lead,
"Begin, begin!" he growled, "You know
How fast the night will speed.
We'll have a game of tenpins, first,
With lots of fun and noise."
And quickly in a row they stood,
That group of luckless boys.

Biff! bim! the cocoanut balls spun by,
By skillful Bruins cast.
Heels over heads along the line,
Those boys they toppled fast.
A merry game of foot-ball
Next added to their woe,
As twenty whirling dizzy lads
Bounced light from toe to toe.

And so the topsyturvy night
Went on until the dawn;
Till Bruin cried, "One contest more
And then we must be gone.
Up, up, with every Teddy Boy,
See who can toss most high!"
And hurtling through the air, those boys
Shot upward toward the sky.

Our Teddy higher went than all,
And came down with a whack!
And presto! as he struck the ground,
The voice he'd lost came back.
And such a mighty howl he gave
Was never heard before.
Mama and nurse and Papa, too,
Came hurrying to his door.

Then Teddy opened wide his eyes
And lifted up his head,
To find himself upon the floor,
Beside his little bed.
While to the bedpost, safely tied,
With beady eyes astare,
And paws stretched out in helpless wise,
There hung his Teddy Bear.

And Ted may be mistaken, but
He thought he saw him wink,
As slowly he climbed into bed,
To rest a while—and think!

THE BOGUS MONEY CERTIFICATES MANUFACTURED IN THE UNITED STATES TO FILL THE GAP CAUSED BY THE MONEY DEPRESSION — BEWARE OF IT

BOGUS YANKEE CERTIFICATES THAT MAY BE COUNTERFEITED FLOATING ABOUT THE COUNTRY

Are Being Made in the United States in View of the Great Money Stringency on That Side of The Line

ARE CAUSING TROUBLE

Canada will have to beware of the bogus-certificate money, which is at present circualting in the United States. The money is being manufactured to relieve the stringency. It is easily counterfeited, and already some of the certificates have been successfully passed. Peterborough citizens, as well as those of the towns along the border, where considerable American money is in circulation, are warned to keep an eye on the class and style of the money they receive. Canada has every reason to be proud of her banks, the stability of which is lofty in contrast to those of our Yankee cousins across the line. The United States, it will be seen by the following extract, is endeavouring to overcome the financial depression by issuing money that is not money. The new paper is called a certificate, a picture of which accompanies this article, which appeared in the December issue of the Dry Goods Review.

Easily Counterfeited

The Review, speaking about the new money says: The conditions arising from the scarcity of money in the United States, have produced a new form of currency, which has been adopted, it is reported, by some of the clearing houses in the larger cities. It is known as "clearing house certificates" currency, and is issued to banks only, of course. It is printed in two colours and resembles a cheque. Different denominations, from $1 up are used.

As a permanent form of currency it can hardly be accepted as desirable, one of the reasons being that it is easily counterfeited, and, in fact, since its adoption a few weeks ago, bogus certificates have been successfully passed. Merchants will cash them only at a discount, and when, say a five-dollar note is presented, the store usually demands that at least one dollar's worth of goods shall be purchased before it will be accepted. The specimen photographed was shown in Toronto by Z. E. Martin, a Canadian, who is at present living in Chicago, and is president of the Martin-Senour Company.

An Illegal Method

In a recent issue of the Vancouver World, was an account of "The money that is not money," showing the method, admitted to be illegal, by which the United States was endeavouring to overcome the financial depression. Banks had given security to the San Francisco and other clearing houses and these clearing houses issues certificates that represented gold. This paper money, such as is issued by these clearing houses, is worthless in Canada, and though it is practically the only money that is obtained across the border, it is often non-negotiable. Some stores will bear this sign, "Certificates accepted here," but other stores refuse anything but gold and silver. In view of the fact that hardly any money can be secured from the banks, men with large accounts only being able to squeeze out $25 a week, this state of affairs creates awkward complications.

But still worse developments have arisen. In Nevada a couple of days ago, a general strike of the firemen, boiler makers, blacksmiths, machinists, engine wipers, section hands, and call boys occurred, the Southern Pacific employees striking for the sole reason that they be paid in cash, and not by check, for there was a foot note printed on the check which read, "Payable at the option of any bank in San Francisco clearing house certificates."

Traffic was tied up for seven hours in the yards at Sparks, Nevada, and it was only after strenuous efforts that a fireman and crew could be obtained for one train.

Had to Compromise

The men sent a deputation demanding money to cover the checks, and gave a certain time, threatening to stop all traffic on the line unless the money was forthcoming at the time stated. The banks informed the railroad management that they could not handle the $60,000 worth of checks monthly without jeopardizing the funds of their depositors, but later agreed to compromise, accepting the checks on a basis of 10 per cent. cash, and the remainder in certificates of the Reno Clearing House Association.

A Y. M. C. A. RINK IS PROPOSED

Boys to Make an Effort to Get a Sheet Of Ice

The Y. M. C. A. management intend making a rink for the boys but first need a large enough list of ticket holders. By selling tickets for the rink the boys may be able to secure enough money to make their rink a success. They want the boys to start out and work hard and secure a good sheet of ice on which some good hockey may be played during the season.

A CHRISTMAS CHRONICLE OF BOOKSTORE SUCCESS

The Secret of The Greatness and Popularity of the Peterborough Bookstore—Hint Glimpses of The Treasure House It Opens To The Christmas Shoppers.

In every community there is some man who by force of merit and honourable achievement stands head and shoulders above his fellows.

In every city there is an industrial establishment that heads its class in magnitude of operation and excellence of management.

In every city there are commercial establishments that stand out in proud prominence above their competitors, occupying a place of distinction and merit unchallenged because unchallengable, unsurpassed, because unsurpassable.

One of these is the Peterborough Bookstore, a household word throughout this city, county and district, for advanced business methods and satisfactory dealings, satisfying goods and pleasing prices.

Why? Because since the establishment of the Peterborough Bookstore—a synonym for A. H. Stratton & Co.—in 1888—a score of years ago it has achieved a business record three times greater than in the beginning years of its history.

Why again? The answer comes in a few words. Because it has always given the right goods at the right prices, which is to say that the people have found that by going to the Peterborough Bookstore they could always be sure of finding the goods they wanted, satisfactory in quality and reasonable in price. Because they could always be sure of a courteous welcome and prompt attendance with a desire to please in the matter of choice, goods and prices behind them both.

By years of strict attention to business, intelligent and discriminating study of the wants of the purchasing public, the Peterborough Bookstore has secured the confidence of the public in all the matters of quality, price and square dealing.

Confident in the quality, range and merit of these goods A. H. Stratton & Co. have spared no pains to make their goods and establishment known to the public.

Through these means and conditions the Peterborough Bookstore has built up an immense trade and the public who are parties of the second part to this trade are doubly rewarded for their share in its creation. In the first place they get good goods at good values.

Then, in the second place, the large trade they have created enables and warrants the Peterborough Bookstore to buy largely.

You know what that means. It means a big pull to enter the market with the ready cash and buy in big bulk. It means goods bought right. It means low prices and high values for the retail purchaser. The Peterborough Bookstore has as good facilities for buying as any departmental store in Ontario, and it can and does sell goods at departmental store prices.

What does this mean? That you can buy goods from the immense stock in every department of the Peterborough Bookstore, with as extensive a range of selection, as good values, and as low prices, as in any store in Ontario, bar none.

These departments cover books of every possible description; fancy boxed stationery for Christmas; fancy goods of every kind and use; cut glass in glittering variety; leather goods, a conspicuous speciality of this establishment, in fact, everything to be found in a large, fully stocked, and modern book, stationery, and fancy goods shop.

The methods pursued by the Peterborough Bookstore for years — the shrewd and extensive buying — the considerate and liberal selling, have resulted in a yearly increase of business, and no increase greater than last year.

The volume of business has outgrown the extensive premises at 416 George street, especially in the matter of the colossal Christmas and holiday trade.

And, what then? This increase has compelled the opening of another store as large as the original—at 432 George street, nearly opposite and a little north of the old stand.

Why? The customers of the Peterborough Bookstore, the growing army of patrons, must be served, if it takes half a dozen extra stores.

What does this branch store mean? It means a magnificent harvest of holiday bargains. By a lucky deal the Peterborough Bookstore got possession of $5,000 worth of Japanese and English china goods, of superb variety and exclusiveness, as complete a stock as can be found in an altogether china store.

These goods were got at such a fine figure, that, while they represent the best of good quality, they can be sold, are being sold, and will be sold, at prices at least one-third off regular quotations. It will pay every Christmas shopper to visit the store and secure his or her share of bargains, unheard of before, and probably unique, for this stock must be closed out before the first of the year. This means rapid selling, such as must result from the quality of the goods at the prices asked.

This is not all. Let us return to the main store, 417 George street. Here all past efforts and successes at catering to the Christmas trade have been surpassed. All the floors will be found packed by a bewildering and beautiful display, the most superb and superior that has ever been gathered under one roof in this district, in this city, or, in fact, in any store in this Province, outside the larger cities.

We can't enter into details—can only suggest the general lines,—the details must be left to the imagination, and your liviest imaginings will not equal the reality, as you will find on a visit.

In the way of books, you will find Bibles in all bindings. Poets in sets and individual volumes. Prize Books for Sunday and day schools. Presentation books for teachers, in endless variety, from the most superb bindings and letter press to the plainest.

You will find Toilet Goods and Requisites, including brush sets, military sets, shaving sets, manicure sets; Writing Desks and portfolios, fountain pens, fancy stationery, cut glass, tapestry, china, pictures, engravings, and a splendidly equipped picture-framing department.

You will find games of all kinds—card games, bridge whist sets, playing cards, tally cards, invitation cards, prizes for progressive games, etc.

You will find Christmas cards, calendars, shopping bags, and so forth ad infinitum.

You will also find magnificent shelves of books for Sunday School libraries, of which a speciality is made.

You will find that all these lines are distinguished for splendid quality, infinite variety and reasonable price. The purchasing public has learned, when thinking of Christmas gifts, to turn as naturally to the Peterborough Bookstore for the best and cheapest, as they turn to the sun for light. The public knows where to come for the best for the least money, compatible with a living profit.

Never before has the Peterborough Bookstore assembled such a complete, colossal and varied stock of superb goods for the holiday trade as in its two stores, 417 and 432 George street.

Come and see, and you will say, with the Queen of Sheba, when she visited the wonders of Solomon, "the half has not been told."

Don't miss the bona fide reductions in Underwear at H. LeBrun & Co.'s 50 dozen Boys Shirts and Drawers fleece-lined, at 25 and 30c each. see our window for what you can buy for 25c.

Prospects In The County

From present indications there will be many of this year's County Council in their respective seats next year. If rumour is true, most of them will be elected by acclamation. Elections for reeves, however, are promised in Anstruther and Burleigh, Harvey, Ennismore, Douro and Dummer. In the former Reeve Booth will have an opponent in Mr. Gallon. Reeve Root. Shaw's election will possibly be contested by Mr. Ingram, and Reeve Moher of Douro will likely have a municipal opponent in Mr. D. Mooney. In Dummer it is rumoured that Reeve Darling will have two or three opponents, but who they are is yet a mystery. In Ennismore it is stated that Mr. Cornelius Connors will contest the municipality against the present Reeve, Samuel Killan. So far as can be learned, the municipalities of Smith, Otonabee, Norwood, Havelock, Asphodel, and other eastern townships as well as Galway and Cavendish in the north will go unchallenged. The general forecast is that the county municipal elections will be quiet, but another week may change the aspect of affairs.

NO CLUE HAS BEEN FOUND

Suspicious Character Seen by Mr. Reid Last Night

No positive trace has been learned of the assailant of Charles Forteous, of Caven. However, several men at the C.P.R. station last night believed that a stranger whom they met was the man who is wanted by the authorities. It was just previous to the arrival of the midnight express. A freight had pulled in ahead of it and the mail carrier, Mr. James Reid noticed him; he was walking along the tracks and tallied closely with the description given of the stranger.

Mr Reid said that he walked down the spur line [redacted] way. He did not a[redacted] and did not go out to the express. It is possible, but not likely that this may be the man. However, Mr. Reid was not confident, but says that the man's appearance was very similar to his description.

PHOTOGRAPHS FOR A PRESENT

Hundreds Have Been Taken—An Appropriate Gift

The general public has no idea of the amount of photographic work that has been ordered for the Christmas season, and which is piling up daily. An Examiner reporter dropped into Roy's studio a few nights ago, and was astonished at the hundreds of photos in all stages of finishing, developing, printing, toning washing, mounting and framing. The staff of artists has been exceedingly rushed with the orders, that have been given for Christmas, and for several weeks back the men have been working until midnight, and will continue so until after the present holiday season. The modern equipment with which the studio is supplied, make it possible for Mr. Roy to complete the amount of work that is coming in.

Many sittings are booked ahead, and a large number of people are taking this means of remembering their friends. The Examiner saw hundreds of finished pictures on tables, racks, and in cases, occupying every available place in the display room.

The new and exclusive styles of finishing and mounting, which are features of the work done by Mr. Roy, make photos one of the most desirable gifts that can be received as Christmas favours. The pictures, which were finished, and ready to be sent out, were choice productions of the photographer's art, and would surely be appreciated by those who receive them.

When your business becomes irksome and distasteful you are not well. Miller's Compound Iron Pills will make it a pleasure to attend to business. They are sold by Wm. Madill.

SECURED A LYNX IN OTONABEE

Young Muskrat, a Six-atha Indian Brought Him to the City

Harry Muskrat the young Indian who ran in the junior Examiner road race on Thanksgiving Day arrived in the city to-day the proud possessor of a large lynx, which he shot the other day near Rice Lake. The dog scented the animal out and chased him up a tree from which he was brought to the earth by a bullet from young Muskrat's rifle. It is a large specimen of that rare tribe of cats.

TWO OLD TIMERS TALK OF THE OLD TIME CHRISTMAS WHEN PETERBORO' WAS YOUNG

THE PRESIDENT OF THE CANADIAN CLUB IN PETERBOROUGH

Mr. F. D. Kerr, Who Presided at The First Dinner of The Canadian Club Last Night

Some Reminiscences of the Early Days When Christmas Turkey Was Cheaper and Things Were Different

OLD TIME CELEBRATIONS

In this season of Christmas celebration, something about the manner in which the occasion was observed in the early days of Peterborough's history should prove of interest. Believing that such a feature would be of interest, the Examiner yesterday interviewed two veteran residents of the city, Messrs. Jas. Stevenson, and William Logan, whose reminiscences of the Christmas days of long ago, are given below, and which give an insight into the conditions existing in Peterborough in the childhood of this city.

Perhaps no resident of the city knows more about the early days of Peterborough, than does Mr. James Stevenson, and his reminiscences of Christmas in the olden days, as related to an Examiner reporter yesterday, should prove of more than unusual interest at this season. Mr. Stevenson has been a resident of Peterborough for sixty-four years, coming here in 1843 from Port Hope to take charge of a business.

Peterborough was a very different place then, the population being about 800 people. Three or four good stores, a few blacksmith shops and taverns, comprised the business section. East of George street was an open drain, there being only a few buildings there Charles Perry kept one store, while the late Mr. Morrow, father of Mr. R. A. Morrow, was also in business here at the time Mr. Stevenson came to Peterborough.

It can be readily understood, that in those days there was not the same business rush before Christmas, the few stores made their small preparations for the occasion, but there was no planning of windows for months in advance of the event, and of course one of the large modern stores could have stored away all the goods in the different shops in Peterborough, provided of course that they would care to handle all the different lines.

If, however, there was not the same elaborate preparations for the holiday, it was nevertheless enjoyed by everyone and the little ones appreciated their small toys as much, if not more, than the youngster of the present age does a "Teddy bear" or a mechanical engine. Everything was very much cheaper in those days, especially poultry, and therefore every family could partake of the Christmas cheer.

Dancing Was Popular

Dancing was one of the principal amusements at all festivals in the forties, and an old store on George street was turned into a dance hall where the merry makers would enjoy themselves until an early hour in the morning. Whisky was very cheap, selling at 20 cents a gallon, and there was a large quantity of it consumed in Peterborough, especially on holidays. Although Mr. Stevenson states, that they had a respect for Christmas day and generally behaved themselves on that occasion. Mr. Stevenson, however, remembers one rather big fight, which occurred on one twenty-fourth, which, however, did not result seriously. Fights by the way, were a prominent feature of all holidays in the early days. The low price of whisky, coupled with the differences in creeds between the different sections of the surrounding country, was responsible for the majority of these miniature Donnybrooks, which sometimes waxed very lively. There was generally trouble when men from Cavan would encounter some of the Douro people, and it generally resulted in blows.

During the early years a feature of life in Peterborough was the holding here of a fair every three months, at which the farmers round about brought into Peterborough all they wanted to sell, and disposed of it on the market square and other places. These fairs would not amount to very much in these days as on a good market day at the present time more goods are brought into the city, according to Mr. Stevenson, than was ever shown at twenty of the old fairs. However, they were considered quite an event in the forties, and many people came to town for the occasion, especially at the December fair.

The post office was, as it is now, a busy place around Christmas time. It was a plain low log shack on the market square and the postage on a letter from the old country amounted to 20 cents.

Mr. Stevenson, who has seen more than sixty Christmas seasons pass over Peterborough, is still hale and hearty, and has a wonderful memory of the people and places of over half a century ago.

JUDGMENT WAS GIVEN TO-DAY

Samuel Killen for the Township of Ennismore Wins in County Case

Magistrate Edmison gave judgment this morning in the county court on the case of O'Connor vs. Killen, acting for township as reeve. The evidence was heard some time ago but judgment was reserved. The trouble between the parties arose over a culvert that was made through a road between the farms of Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Flood. The former said that the water overran his farm, coming from that of Mr. Flood, and obstructed the culvert in order to prevent it.

Magistrate Edmison made a decision against Mr. O'Connor and imposed a nominal fine of one dollar. He stated that he believed that Mr. O'Connor was labouring under a false impression that he had the right to block the culvert. Mr. O'Connor also had to pay $7 for damages done the culvert and the costs of the proceedings.

LIVINGSTONE'S LIFE THE SUBJECT

Mr. Duncan Campbell Reads Paper For Boys' Club

Last night a good meeting of the Boys' Club of Knox Church was held the feature of which was a reading by Mr. Duncan Cameron on the life of David Livingstone. This was presented to the boys in an interesting manner, showing how Livingstone had begun as a poor mill hand but worked his way to success, finally becoming a famous missionary explorer. As a result of his efforts for his country his remains were interred in the historic vaults of Westminster Abbey.

Walter Perks acted as chairman for part of the evening and Earl Doxee for the remainder, in the absence of Will Shepherd, missionary vice-president.

The boys are getting ready their box of Christmas goods to send to Harcourt. They will be assisted by the Mission Band. The box will likely be packed next Tuesday.

SUNDAY FUNERAL BY-LAW TO BE ENFORCED

Ministerial Association Representatives Confer With Cemetery Board

Two members of the Ministerial Association—Revs. J. H. Webb and H. J. Keith—met the Little Lake Cemetery Board yesterday afternoon to co-operate with that body in the exclusion of Sunday funerals. The board promised that the by-law already governing funerals on Sunday would be enforced. It is as follows:

"The grounds will be closed against Sunday interments, except in cases of extreme necessity, such as when there is danger of contagion or infection or because of the condition of the body, and then only upon a certificate from the attending physician or some other responsible party that there is such danger, or that it is absolutely necessary that the interment should take place, and the cause of such necessity shall be clearly stated in the certificate."

LACK OF ARGUMENT

Who would think that the Romaine street sewer would have a parallel at Ottawa in the stately regions of the House of Commons. The Peterborough Board of Works pronounced the sewer bad, and after discharging an innofensive pipe-layer ordered an investigation to discover who really was at fault. The Conservative Opposition at Ottawa have condemned the Government, and hold it responsible for, the Quebec bridge disaster, while the Commission appointed by the Government, is investigating the affair with a view of fixing the responsibility. In the one case, a man is punished and inquiry set on foot to discover who is to blame and worthy of the punishment that has already been measured out. In the other condemnation has been pronounced without waiting for the result of investigation to discover the guilty. The eagerness of the Opposition to undertake such puerile criticism, only serves to betray the weakness of their case. If they had some substantial ground of complaint against the Government they would not need to commit contempt of court in order to make a point.

CHEATING THE PEOPLE

The Conservative Opposition, by factiously prolonging the debate on the address, has cheated the people out of a Christmas box. It was expected that the debate on the address would be, as it really is, a mere formality. But the Opposition insisted on manufacturing election campaign material by raking up and discussing every possible subject — subjects with no more relation to the Speech from the Throne than to the nebular hypothesis. This prolongation of the debate on the address disarranged the Government plans, and Mr. Fielding was compelled to delay, till after the holidays, the delivery of his budget speech—his Christmas box to the people of Canada. We can judge from the estimates which were brought down on Wednesday what Mr. Fielding's budget speech would have been like, what it will be like. It would have been, and will be, an exposition of the buoyant prosperity and national thrift of Canada, of an overflowing revenue and evidences of growth in greatness and national wealth and national expansion in every direction. It would have been, as it will be, a story of statesmanlike administration which, in its beneficent and substantial results, represents cause for national gratitude. But in spite of the Opposition, Mr. Fielding's Christmas box for Canada has only been deferred. It will make a good "starter" for a new year of Canada's century.

BUSY NOW

It is the open season for the evergreen advice to the public, to do their Christmas shopping early. With the entry of December into the home stretch of the year, the Christmas-tide practically begins, that, is, the laying of plans for the proper due, and traditional, observance of the holiday and holiday of holidays and holydays. There are many good reasons, both selfish and altruistic, why Christmas buying should be done early. In the first place, it will be, what appeals to humanity generally, in their own interests. Stocks, the beautiful, attractive and vast stocks, in the shops, will be at the best, early buyers will have first choice, and not have to be content with a culled collection of goods. Early shoppers will avoid the rush that inevitably comes at the close of the buying season. This will be a kindness to overworked saleslgirls, and permit them to serve patrons with greater comfort, deliberatoin and satisfaction. Then the early shopper, who is fortunately possessed of laisure and means to do early buying, will leave room for those whose comparative servitude to household duties, whose lack of ready means, compel them to postpone their Christmas buying till a later period. The fortunate should think of these things, and decide to do their holiday buying early. It is the proper way to begin the celebration of the Christmas season, to put the Christmas spirit into practice, to observe the season that commemorates the advent on earth of the great Altruist, whose life and mission on earth were forgetfulness of self and sacrifice for the good of others.

Canadian Pacific Railway Change in time commencing on Nov. 28th., the local train which formerly left Peterboro' at 8.00 will leave the C.P.R. depot at 7.56 a.m. until further notice. tf

CARELESS ADMINISTRATION

The Examiner has before referred to the plunging habits of the City Council in the matter of the unconsidered adoption of works and undertakings — without counting the cost. It is both a pleasure and a disappointment to be endorsed in such a position—a pleasure at being right and a disappointment because one is not wrong. A prominent local bank manager sees the weak point and asserts that the city doesn't go at its business in the right way. He says they rush into expenditure before knowing where the money is to come from, and then have to make a lively chase to get funds to cover their indebtedness. This is done instead of doing as business men of the most ordinary perspicacity would do—arrange for the necessary funds before taking the plunge. The city fathers seem to commit a double error. It is stated that the Board of Works undertook street works without knowing what they would cost, and it also appears, without knowing where the money was to come from. The consequence of this was that the Board of Works achieved a large excess of estimates, and the consequence of other operations is a huge overdraft. At the end of November this year we have a bank overdraft of $110,000, four-sixths of our total tax bill, which is $136,411.26. This seems, to the ordinary ratepayer, to indicate that the city spent $235,000 last year—available taxes, $125,000 plus $110,000 overdraft. The overdraft at the end of November last year was only $50,000. The City Council has one more session and should take advantage of the opportunity to clarify the financial situation and give the ratepayers such satisfactory explanation as seems to be due. Why is it that the city banks are fighting shy of carrying the account of a city with an assessed value of ten millions of dollars. It is to be hoped that the figures of the November statement are as much inflated—beyond the actual situation—as the assessment for 1907.

THE BANK OF OTTAWA

The reports presented at the thirty-third annual meeting of the Bank of Ottawa demonstrate the strength, stability and prosperous condition of the affairs of this great financial institution. The prosperity of the bank is shown by the fact that its dividends are generous, indicating a prosperous year, further shown by the addition of $327,832.48 to profit and loss account, a substantial increase as compared with $236,612.25 credited to the same account last year. The statement shows the affairs and business of the bank, to be in a thoroughly sound and satisfactory condition, with a continuously expanding actuality and outlook. Several new branches have been opened, and a satisfactory growth marks all the interests of the bank. The general prosperity extends to the local branch, which, under the assiduous, and capable, management of Mr. Hollingshead, is meeting with gratifying success, success so great as to require an enlargement of premises and increase of facilities, for the transaction of the business resulting from a continuously increasing clientele. The annual report, reproduced in another place in this issue will well repay perusal.

EDITORIAL NOTES

While civic governments are providing stone piles and little hammers to give the unemployed employment, the Dominion Government is spending millions upon necessary permanent public utilities—with the effect, if not the object, of furnishing employment to thousands of the unemployed all over the country.

If the people of the Old Country, living in semi-starving congestion, only appreciated their opportunities, they would flock to Canada, take lands, for the asking, and make homes for themselves. In England four-fifths of the land is owned by one-quarter of one per cent. of the population. In this country the ratio is practically reversed, and, with a population of one-tenth of that of the old country, there are a hundred times more land owners, in Canada. Old Country people, by coming to this country, occupying land and working it, enduring a few hardships, as their forefathers did, who are now prosperous lords of the soil, owners of happy homes, and pillars of the nation, would accomplish something, which they can never hope to think of doing in their native land, become free-holders and home owners.

FIVE HOSPITAL TENTS SHIPPED IN ONE WEEK

Sent Out For Small Pox Patients By Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons

The fame of the manufactured articles of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons is rapidly spreading. During the past week they have had no less than five telegraph orders for double hospital tents for smallpox patients in various districts in Ontario. Along with these tents goes a complete outfit, including beds, blankets, stoves, etc. These are named as the best hospital tents manufactured in Canada, and no doubt their reputation is well merited.

PEOPLE WHO DISAPPEAR.

Love Affairs and Family Differences Often the Reason.

"Women do not disappear so much as men," said Mr. Hartley, an international detective, who was interviewed in reference to a mysterious disappearance which is now attracting much public attention.

"When a woman goes it is usually a love affair. Either the parents object to the man, or there is some other cause. And it is important to remember what cunning schemers women can be. Even quite young girls may be wonderfully clever in keeping things from their parents. During the course of my work I am very sceptical of women for this reason. A girl might arrange for her lover or some one sent by him to meet her, and it would be a very simple matter for her to give her friends the slip in a crowded street. Of course very often we get cases of sudden loss of memory happening to people who are in the best of health and spirits, but one rarely finds this occur to a young girl, and where the tendency does exist the family or friends usually know of it and keep watch accordingly. Again, it is possible a girl does not like the prospect of going home after she has been away for a holiday, and some one with whom she was in touch might assist her in carrying out a plan of her own.

"Disappearances are very common not only in London but in Paris and New York, but the public seldom heard of them. Not only girls but old men and others disappear. Generally these are not cases of kidnapping; they had to do with family or business matters, and as the families as a rule did not wish the police to know the circumstances they employed private detectives. Thus the outside world does not get to know of half of the disappearances and their causes.

"Crimes sometimes enter into these sudden disappearances. A cool headed man of the world who has committed theft or felony either in business or private life will take it into his head to disappear and make a fresh start in life somewhere else. A few years ago a gentleman whose family was high in the social world vanished. He has been suspected of robbing his brother-in-law during a period of pressure in the latter's business. The victim knew that if he informed the police his brother-in-law would stand in danger of being prosecuted, so he handed the case over to me. It was proved that the man had actually been robbing him right and left, but for the sake of his wife he was allowed and even assisted—to disappear.

"A husband walked out of his flat in Marylebone one day and was not heard of. His wife searched for three months herself then came to me. She knew her husband could not have endured hardship or adventure, because he was physically unable to do much for himself. It was a troublesome case, but eventually I found the husband in a nursing home. What had happened was that the man's parents were strict living people, who did not go to the theatre and did not drink stout. They did not think their son's wife—who did those things—was good enough for him, and they chose this means of getting him away from her."

LIVING IN HER COFFIN.

Woman Has Narrow Escape of Being Buried Alive.

A West Bromwich woman, it is believed, has just narrowly escaped being buried alive. Her name is Ann Richards, and her age 69 years.

She had been attended by a local doctor, who certified that she was suffering from a weak heart.

The other day one of her sons, on returning from the Birmingham University, where he is a student, found his mother lying across the rug in front of the fire, in a swoon, as he thought. He went for the doctor, who, it is alleged, declared that Mrs. Richards was dead, and gave a certificate that she had died from heart failure.

The funeral arrangements were made, and Mrs. Richards was placed in a coffin. Her son, however, who was much attached to his mother, paid frequent visits to the room where she lay, and was convinced from the color which seemed to come into her face that she was not dead. He communicated his opinion to other members of the family, who, as the day for the funeral drew near, were filled with anxious thoughts.

Another doctor was caled in, and he, at the son's request, applied what he regarded as the best test by opening a vein in the woman's arm, but there was no sign of blood, and the doctor concluded that the woman was dead.

The son continued to notice periodical changes in his mother's features, and, on again going to look at her, be found, to his amazement, that her arm was saturated with blood.

Mr. Richards again called in the doctor, who seemed somewhat surprised at this extraordinary development, and he examined the woman, and could not discover any signs of decomposition. He said he could not give a death certificate, and expressed the opinion that she was not quite dead. He advised that Mrs. Richards should be taken out of the coffin, and this was done, the coffin being removed from the room.

Then hot bricks and bottles and mustard plasters were applied, and the body became thoroughly warm, but the woman showed no signs of consciousness. The doctor again visited the house and satisfied himself that the woman was now dead.

KAISER'S YACHT SIMPLE.

Has Many English Pictures Displayed on the Hohenzollern.

As royal yachts go, the Kaiser's yacht, the Hohenzollern, is by no means specially gorgeous. Plenty of show and glitter would somehow be expected. Instead, severe simplicity is the keynote.

The Kaiser's own apartments are especially simple. A brass bedstead along one side of the bulkhead, a single wardrobe, a dressing table, with a very large triple mirror, and a barber's chair, with a headrest, are all the furniture. The walls are nearly bare, almost the only thing hanging on them being a faded New Year's card, in a little black frame. The card is inscribed, "To dearest Willy, with all best New Year wishes, from mamma." Photographs of the Kaiser and the Kaiserin practically complete the wall furniture.

Elsewhere, all over the yacht, the walls are absolutely covered with pictures. Little sketches by Martino, larger pictures by Willy Stower, some choice old engravings, frequently of incidents in British naval history, some modern proof engravings, photographs of nearly all the ships in the German navy, special photographs of incidents in the Kaiser's various cruises, are cheek by jowl with other examples of the catholicity of the Kaiser's taste.

Among these are also to be noted two of the four-page supplements of the British fleet, issued by The Graphic, and an ordinary colored Christmas number plate from The Sporting and Dramatic—"Nelson's Last Hours in Portsmouth." One or two German chromo-lithographs are also to be found beside most valuable old engravings or artistic masterpieces.

There is, however, one stranger picture still. It hangs just outside the Kaiser's cabin "on the line." It is a rather large photograph of an Orange demonstration at Belfast, entitled "We Will Not Have Home Rule!"

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The Metal of the Standards That Are in Use Today.

There are no products of human skill on which a greater degree of care is expended than the standards of weight and measure in use among the civilised nations of the globe. Two things in particular have to be considered, accuracy and durability. Nature does not furnish any single metal or mineral which exactly answers the requirements for a standard of measure or weight that shall be as nearly as possible unalterable.

The best substance yet produced for this purpose is an alloy of 90 per cent of platinum with 10 per cent of iridium. This is called iridio platinum and is the substance of which the metric standards prepared by the international committee on weights and measures is composed. It is hard, is less affected by heat than any pure metal, is practically nonoxidizable and can be finely engraved. In fact, the lines on the standard meters are hardly visible to the naked eye, yet they are smooth, sharp and accurate.

If our civilization should ever be lost and relics of it should be discovered in some brighter age in the remote future there is nothing that would bear higher testimony to its character than these standard measures of iridio platinum, for the protection and preservation of which the science of this day has done its very best.

Local Option Is Hypocrisy

Local Option is the hysteria of the folk who would govern communities by the emotions instead of by the reason. These pretend that the by-law will check the abuse of alcohol.

It IS a pretence; for statistics show beyond challenge that there is more liquor sold, and more than TWICE AS MUCH DRUNKENNESS, in the prohibition states of America, as in the states under license.

CANADA'S BEST SETTLERS THE RESULT OF ECONOMIC CRISES IN DISTRICTS OF OLD LAND

The Undesirable Citizens Sent Out by The Poor House Guardians—Professor Shortt's Address at Canadian Club Dinner

HAD A LITERARY AUDIENCE

Possibly no audience of a higher literary character and representative of the business and professional population of the city ever before assembled here than that which occupied the seats around the banquet tables at the Hotel National last night to listen to the address of Professor Adam Shortt on the occasion of the first dinner of the Peterborough Canadian Club. The event was doubly interesting and unique inasmuch as it marks a new epoch in the national lives of the thinking citizens of Peterborough as well as being the occasion for the hearing of such an address as the eminent Professor of Political Science in Queen's University, Kingston, is always capable of delivering.

Professor Shortt spoke on the immigratino problem. It was an intelligent address because the Professor has spent years in studying the laws and origin of Canada's early and late additions, and because he dealt with the important subject from a national and independent standpoint. He spoke what he thought, and his listeners appreciated what he said. He believed in the theory that the superior qualifications or deficiencies of a people were hereditary; that the sins of the father are visited upon the children—that heredity is an absolutely determining condition. He maintained that the best classes of Canadian people to-day came from those sections of the mother countries which were once visited by some economic crisis, and that the most undesirable citizens in Canada were those who were disposed of by the poorhouse guardians.

Professor Shortt believed in the exclusion of the Asiatics, not because he considered them inferior to Canadians, but because they desired conditions incompatible with those that Canadians desire.

A Literary Audience

Among those present at the initial dinner of the new club were: Messrs. H A Lillie, E M Best, R N Merritt, S J Stubbs, John Crane, R B Morley, G B Vanlierteom, W F Nelson, C R Cameron, J W Doan, Dr Wightman, A F McLean, W E Hillhouse, E S Clarry, Jas D Clarke, R M Glover, Richard Lees, Dr Carmichael, Wm Pringle, Dr Gowan, C E Coleman, W H Hill, A Mowat, J E Hodgson, John Wilson, R J Munro, Chas E Anderson, W E G Hagman, R E Layfield, H LeBrun, H C Winch, G L Hay, E A Peak, G H Giroux, M M Mowry, R A Aseom, J F Harvey, J A Kelly, Dr Frederick, Dr Greer, S W Dobbin, Dr Morgan, Walter B Trew, R H Marlow, Dr Morrison, T D MacGregor, G L Blatch (Ottawa), W R Morris, A E Coulthard, S T Medd, Macfarlane Wilson, R M Waddell, E L Goodwill, John Green, C E Gason, Fred Ray, M Bennett, Donald Downie, Dr Eastwood, A P Poussette, A Montizambert, L M Hayes, W H Claxton, W S Davidson, R E Wood, S G Patterson, T J Matthews, T E Bradburn, R F McWilliams, F D Kerr, Dr. Halliday, C Fenenden, R F Morrow, W J Stacey, F E Kerr, W J Henry, W H Moore, Dr. Malcolm McCulloch, Rev. H J Keith, Robt. Harden, R Haratone, W Hatton, Dr. Cameron, Dr. Scott, Col. Rogers, H B H Kenner, D B McRae and B T Huston.

After dinner had been served, the president of the club, Mr. F. D. Kerr, introduced the speaker of the evening, and referred to the objects of the club. The name "Canadian Club," he said, conveyed the whole idea of the association. It meant a gathering of the citizens of any community to study questions of national importance. In Canada, Canadian institutions and Canadian problems should be decided upon only by thorough investigations and it is necessary that we should study those problems for our own benefits. He referred briefly to the organization of the first Canadian Club by Mr. McCullough of Hamilton, and mentioned that each year the Peterborough Club expected to have several such gatherings as that held last night. Mr. Kerr then introduced Professor Shortt of Kingston by stating that it was a particular pleasure to welcome him not only because he stands high in literary matters, but that he has stepped down in his academic career to study the great labour and capital question of the Dominion.

Greeted With Applause

Professor Short, on rising, was greeted by enthusiastic applause, which often punctuated his remarks as he proceeded to unravel his chain of thought. He first expressed his appreciation at being asked to address the inaugural meeting of the Club. He knew of no movement more promising for the development of large ideas, on important questions, in Canada. In such a club any speaker was sure to become acquainted with a select audience, and one which is willing to listen to something, unpartisan, and independent, in connection with the welfare of the country. He referred in a humorous strain to the remarks made by the president, to his age, but concluded his statement by the more serious remark that "age is merely a question of intellectual ossification," which left his audience with some food for thought.

The subject he proposed dealing with was one causing some attention in Canada to-day—that of emigration. The conditions existing at the present time are merely the dividing line between the conditions of the past, and those of the future.

The question of immigration might be looked at from two different standpoints. The labouring man, the manufacturers, and the merchants look at it from economic points of view, but the national interest in it is however the most important point.

Canada a Democracy

From a national point of view, we see that Canada is a democracy. The people are expected to take part in the government as they are given the franchise for that purpose. The older idea of our ancestors, who set up the idea of individual government but who were led to believe that if every man were given the right to say who should rule, that we should have a perfect administration, has only partly come true.

It is quite obvious that in order that self government may be a success, those who are given the power must exercise wisely their various powers. Man is not a being who can exercise indiscretely his powers of working, governing and thinking. He is absolutely a social being, and despotism was forced upon him because he was a social being.

Prof. Shortt believed in party politics, but also that we have got to educate ourselves in selecting our leaders, and following them, in an intelligent way. The problems we have to deal with in our legislation are problems that require much thought — their complexity demands it. To regulate labour, that the government will not be placing us all in jeopardy, demands great minds, and if the complexity of unequal labour is facing us to-day, the work must be done most carefully.

Are we therefore to open our doors to any individual, to say semblance of humanity? Are we not committing themselves to have them become normal citizens, in Canada, like ourselves? We dare not take in any element that cannot respond to the requisites of a national Canadian.

Canada is different from other countries in the question of immigration as Canada on its democratic basis cannot order our new comers around as countries who place their government in the hands of a few are able to do.

The First Conditions

In investigating the history of Canada he found out by the original documents the conditions under which the first immigrants were brought to this country in early stages of the 19th century. Some were sent out by societies and some by poor house guardians. The latter figured on whether it was more profitable to keep those people in their parishes or pay their passages to the new world. He had traced different settlements and he found that some of the best and some of the worst element settled in the some of the best districts and vice versa.

Heredity is an absolutely determining condition and the atmosphere of almost all districts remains the same as it was when they were first settled. The sins of the father are visited upon the children—this has been found by actual experiment by studying the conditions of the inmates of the asylums and the penitentiaries. The people who are contaminating the community are the indolent classes who are left outside the walls of such institutions.

He also found that the character of the first settlers in the different parts of the country determined the characters of those settlements to-day. Some of those districts where the best element came from, did not have to send their emigrants. From those districts came the men who have risen to the responsible positions in this country. In the other districts there is found stagnation, poor houses, no attempt to beautify the surroundings and a general tendency to the lowest types of manhood.

The Economic Crisis

We are too apt to think that it doesn't matter what these immigrants are in the first generation—we may suppose that the second generation will be of a better quality. Those sent out by the poor-house guardians were those who were the loose fish of the community from which they came. The better class are those who come on account of an economic crises, when it is required that they pick up in sections and come from the old world to the new. Such people are industrious and thrifty and not the drift-wood so common in so many places.

There is an element in the British Isles of the riff-raff character who are susceptible to the lures of the steamship agents and this is the cause of the overcrowding of some of our larger cities with undesirable inhabitants. The immigrant cannot help his station of life — Prof. Shortt did not mean to assert this—but he maintained that Canada did not get a representative class from the old world.

It was no accident that people from Ontario and from the United States who are settling the west are the stability and backbone of that country. There were many reasons why the foreign element coming into Canada should be broken up and separated in our country rather than have them in compact bodies. When divided up they are more susceptible to be gradually adapted to the manners and customs of the stable Canadian people.

In Conclusion

Prof. Shortt believed in keeping out the Asiatics in the west. He did not mean to say that they were inferior to Canadians but he considered that they needed different surroundings and different conditions to Canadians. We own Canada and the Asiatics the countries of the east—let each stick to his own. In desirability as citizens he named in order the Chinese, Hindus, and Japanese. The Japanese and Chinese should retain their system in their part of the world and we as Canadians should exist under our own conditions. If they intermingle with us we either should ban to their customs and conditions or they to us and both are impossible. We can treat them as equals but they shall not settle in our country nor us in theirs. It is the Canadians who should be developed and not Canada.

The speaker on motion of Dr. Halliday and Mr. H. LeBrun was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for his presence and his address at the first dinner of the Peterborough Canadian Club.

IRONING MADE EASY FOR THE MODERN HOUSEWIFE

What Electricity and Electric Smoothing Iron is Doing to Make Ironing Day A Pleasure

The fame of Peterborough as the "Electric City" has been strengthened during the past year by the formation of the Collier-Cunningham Company. The products of this firm are confined exclusively at present to unique designs of apparatus heated electrically.

The modern housewife wisely seeks to secure for the home those utensils which will enable her to economize time, lessen labour and cost of maintenance. The grand old coal range is gradually being superseded by the modern gas range, and prompt meals, nicely cooked are the result. But the gas range, however excellent cannot equal the electric. In it no draft is necessary and consequently still better control of the baking is possible. And a feature that is appreciated is that such an oven can be placed anywhere in the house at a moment's notice and attached wherever there is a lamp.

Electric meat broilers, toasting discs, coffee percolators, tea kettles, etc., are found to be very convenient in the house. They couple efficient work with a very moderate cost. All such goods will in a short time be manufactured by the Collier-Cunningham Company, and the designs for these are now in course of preparation.

The demand for the "Automatic" electric smoothing iron has been so great and the outlook for electrically heated goods is so promising that the company has secured the upper stories of the Coughlin building at 214 Hunter street, and installed machinery specially adapted to the manufacture of such products.

Travellers are now covering the province and the company reports very rapid sales. The demand for heavy irons weighing from 20 to 30 pounds each for the use of tailors and pressers, is particularly brisk, the old "tailor's goose" being too slow for the modern sartorial artist.

As Peterborough C. G. E. motors are now known from Vancouver to Halifax so it will soon be another constant advertisement for this city when, in every town and city in all this broad Dominion will be found the Peterborough "Automatic" Electric Iron made by the Collier-Cunningham Company.

The examining officers were Capt. H. B. Clegg, Capt. Bennett and Lieut. Hodgson.

FROST'S HANDSOME JEWELERY AND CHRISTMAS STORE

Rich, Rare and Recherche Gifts That Focus the Eyes of Peterboro' Holiday Shoppers

People are more ("perskekety" about buying Christmas gifts than they are about buying anything else. Why? Because all aim, either consciously or unconsciously, to put themselves into their gifts—to have their gift become an index to their mind. A store, therefore, which has the best variety of what appeals to the "perskekety" buyer, and which seems to possess the happy faculty of knowing how and what to buy for his constituency, must become a favourite store for gift buyers.

Such a store is Frost's, the natty jewelry, of 347 George street. What to buy for Christmas need be no great worry for the holiday shopper at this store. Mr Frost has this year planned and schemed to provide something suitable for everybody and at all prices. There are pearl goods in sunbursts, pendants, beauty pins, necklaces and brooches; diamond rings, single stone, twin, three and five stones, combined with ruby, emeralds and pearls; ladies' and gentlemen's watches set with diamonds, plain, or hand engraved; bracelets in 14-karat gold, set with beautiful pearls and amethysts, worth $45; others as low, in gold-filled, as 75 cents each; jewellery cases in gilt and French gold finishes; ebony goods in mirrors, brushes, etc.; cut glass from the famous Gundy-Clapperton cutters, embracing berry bowls, jelly dishes, bon bons, vases, whip cream, claret jugs, etc., in a range of prices from 50 cents to $35; high class china and hand-painted china, such as the beautiful Minton, Royal Crown, Derby, Royal Saxe, Worcester, Royal Doulton. The cases are filled to overflowing with hardness of beautiful things which constitute a Christmas store attraction progressive, enthusiastic and wide-awake.

People buy at Frost's because they trust—whether in diamonds or anything else—as not one in ten can pick out, unaided, the "real thing." Of course, the store is prettily decorated, as Frost knows how. The windows, cases, and corner pieces proclaim the exquisite taste and dexterity of the artist's hand in the dainty but not gaudy decorations.

A PRAYER

Let me do my work each day, if the Darkened hours of despair, overcome me,
May I not forget the strength that comforted me
In the desolation of other times.
May I
Still remember the bright hours that found me
Walking over the silent hills of my childhood,
Or dreaming on the margin of the quiet river,
When a light glowed within me
And I promised my early God to Have
Courage amid the tempests of the changing years.
Spare me from the bitterness and the sharp passion
Of unguarded moments. May I not forget
That poverty and riches are of the spirit.
Though the world knows me not, May my thoughts and actions be such
As shall keep me friendly with myself.
Lift my eyes from the earth, and let me
Not forget the uses of the stars.
Forbid that I should judge others, lest
I condemn myself.
Let me not feel the glamour of the world,
But walk calmly in my path. Give me
A few friends who will love me for what I am;
And keep ever burning before my vagrant steps
The kindly light of hope; and though
Age and infirmity overtake me, and I
Come not within sight of the castle of my dreams,
Teach me still to be thankful for life
And for time's olden moments that are Good and sweet; and may the evening twilight
Find me gentle still.

HELD REGULAR COTTAGE MEETING

At the Residence of Mr. Charles Noyes of Mark Street Church

A most successful cottage meeting took place at Mr. C. Noyes, of East City, last night. Quite a number of friends met and a very profitable evening was spent. Mr. Noyes took a short but good lesson, Isaiah 40: 31. The speaker went on to say that constant trust and faith in God would lift us on our daily life. There were some there who were old and would not regain their past strength, but they could put their hope in the the above verse. But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up with wings as eagles. They shall run and not be weary and they shall walk and not be faint.

The speaker said that we did not wait on God long enough. The majority of Christians only give God two or three minutes a day for all the blessings of life He has bestowed on us. I may add that a very hearty meeting was carried out, in which all joined heartily. It would be well if more home meetings could be arranged, so as to draw us neighbourly together that we may be lifted up by God's great blessing, and then we shall not be faint though the worldly desires of sin.

TWO OLD TIMERS TALK OF PETERBORO' WHEN YOUNG

A Blacksmith's Story

Six years better than a half a century is a long period to look back over, but Mr. Wm. Logan, who still continues his daily toil at his carriage works at the corner of Brock and Aylmer streets, recalls the Christmas of 1852 as if it were merely a year ago. Time has made some changes in the ideals of the people, but Mr. Logan says that the same feeling of happiness prevails with many of the customs that were in vogue while Peterborough was a struggling town.

Electric lights have taken the place of the home-made tallow candles that cast a mellow glow over the substantial furnishings of our grandfathers' homes, and furnaces and steam have transplanted the open hearth where the logs merrily crackled in the face of the early blasts of winter. However, Mr. Logan does not consider that our modern improvements have materially affected the holiday spirit that existed at Christmas during his first years in this city.

A Strong Hearty People

Mr. Logan states that the people of those days were robust and brawny, owing perhaps to the severe winters that were the rule rather than the exception. They were for the most part accustomed to labour and toil, and a simple fare graced the board in every household. The people had an abundance of food, and in fact there was little or no requirement for a Charity Board.

Mr. Logan remarked that the pleasures of Christmas have remained about the same. The people were happy, and the community being small the individuals were interested in each other's welfare. The churches made extra efforts to celebrate Christmas in the proper spirit and the rest of the day was spent in sleighing, skating, and indoor socials.

Trips to the Inns

One feature of the day at that time was a trip to one of the inns outside of the city. The young men would hire a large sleigh and drive out for a bowl of hot punch and then return home again. A popular inn that was a favourite with the young men was that on the Green property about two miles west of the town. Mr. Jos. Green now lives in the place which was once a famous inn.

The skates which the young people used were of wood with an iron bottom, but the boys and girls were as agile and graceful as are their children's children to-day.

The Christmas Cheer

Mr. Logan was confident that the old time dinners were superior to those which make Christmas a day to be remembered by its sumptuous spreads. Turkeys could be purchased for $1.00 which was supposed to be a good price and geese never went beyond 50 or 60 cents. The mothers had only the old fashioned methods of cooking, but their puddings and mince pies could not be surpassed by the women of any age.

Speaking of the custom of having a little of the liquid cheer Mr. Logan said there were few houses that did not have their special cake and liquor. The whisky fifty years ago was unadulterated and only immoderate use would cause intoxication. The people could drink glasses of it with impunity.

After Old Santa Claus came around Quiet the sons and left his presents in the stockings that hung from the fireplace. Christmas trees were practically unused and the exchange of presents was not the fad that it is to-day and useful articles only could be bought.

"Thus the old order changeth."

Popular Cure for Croup

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, as a cure for croup, will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success. It is wonderfully prompt in relieving the cough, clearing the air passages and soothing the excited nerves. Many mothers who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on keep this great medicine promptly on hand for use in case of emergency.

Where?? When the Little Empty Stocking Hangs

ONCE IN EACH YEAR, very near the end of the Twelve Month there comes a certain night — it is a night of happy thoughs—of dear pleasant memories—little children go all to soon to bed and the kindly old Santa Claus delays his coming for a time, at least reluctant to interrupt their childish hopes and fears. Grown up Folks—(for the grown up folks have a strange habit of sitting up on such important nights). Tip-toe stealthily and creakily about the house. The little empty stocking hangs at the chimney piece, a dear little, quaint, little stocking that is too small to hold the precious things that the loving Santa will bring before the dawn breaks on Christmas morning. Perhaps the little stockings will be a bit larger at each recurring Christmastide and hang alone, or—in years to come, other and still tinier, stockings may bear it company—perhaps even there will come a dreary time when the fire-place is bear, when longing eyes turn away and the flickering light of the fire is hard and cold. But no matter what the years bring or take away, the spirit of friendship and kindness remains—at the end of the busy year, full of effort and struggle, comes the season when we forget the trials and welcome the opportunity—when we count our friends and find them many, when we choose for them remembrances, not hastily and because of their cost, but because of the pleasure they will bring—when we realize to the full that life is worth living, because for once it is unselfish. "The worries of the season"?—If this store may play its part during the trying days that lie between now and Christmas eve—if it may lighten the strain on your purse (for everyones purse is too small at such a time). If by perfect unassuming service and superb assortment for your choosing, it may help to keep the puzzle wrinkles from your forehead. It will have done all we have hoped and planned to have it do. Gifts from the best markets of the world are here, delightful inexpensive ones for those who must closely reckon the incomings and outgoings, superbly rich ones for those who need not count the cost. We have arranged these conveniently for your inspection. Our sales force will find no effort too great, if it helps you in your selections for Christmas. This store is ready.

FRIENDS SAID FAREWELL TO ONE OF PETERBORO'S MOST POPULAR ATHLETIC MEN

Mr. W. T. Crowley Presented With a Purse of Gold at a Successful Banquet Held in His Honour Last Night in Hooper's Grill Room

LEAVES CITY ON MONDAY

About thirty-five of the friends with whom Mr. W F Crowley has been connected in the various lines of sport for so many years, said farewell to him last night on the eve of his departure for Edmonton, at a very successful banquet held in Hooper's Grill room. The feature of the event was the presentation to Mr. Crowley of a purse containing one hundred dollars in gold, and also a pair of solid gold cuff-links, as a mark of the esteem and affection in which he is regarded by the citizens of Peterborough as a whole, and the sport-loving element in particular. No more popular or clever athlete has ever played on a Peterborough team, and no one has been so actively engaged in sports, or has done more for the city in that line, than has Mr. Crowley, who has figured in the majority of Peterborough's athletic successes for the last decade or more, and whose example, both on and off the field has been an inspiration and an encouragement to the young athletes of the city. No young man has left Peterborough leaving behind him such a grand record and such a large number of friends as Mr. Crowley will do on Monday next, and while his departure will be regretted on every side, he will carry with him to his new home in the West, the united wishes of the people of this city for his prosperity and welfare, and it is certain that Peterborough could have sent no better representative to the wonderful new country in the West than the guest of honour last evening.

A Splendid Success

The banquet was a splendid success in every way and reflected credit upon those who had the arrangements in charge. The gathering was a most representative one, including those identified with almost every line of sport in Peterborough as well as those who, while not actively engaged have always been faithful and hard workers on behalf of the different clubs. Many of those present were men who have fought side by side with Mr. Crowley on the rugby field or in the rink and who are therefore well aware of what they are losing in his departure from the city. Every speaker showed that they felt this loss by their remarks which should certainly prove an encouragement and an inspiration to Mr. Crowley when he is far away in the West.

Among those present in addition to the hero of the occasion were Messrs. E S Clarry, who ably acted as toast master; S W Rose, J Sheridan, T J Carson, Thos. T Boyd, E Desautel, W A Fitzgerald, W Dickson, G Fitzgerald, W E Hillhouse, C R Cameron, Ed Dillon, C G Graham, Eugene Hurtubise, J N Barbar, J J Mulligan, M Connors, H R H Kenner, Harry Morgan, T W Mollborough, Phil Smythe, Geo Lynch, Louis Mandel, C E Frost, R M Glover, E M Best, Geo Riley and E D Craig.

After an excellent repast served in the usual efficient style of the establishment had been partaken of, Mr. Clarry opened the toast list by proposing the toast to the King, which was honoured in loyal Canadian fashion by the gathering which heartily sang the National Anthem.

A recitation by Mr. Geo. Lynch, given in his own inimitable style was much appreciated.

The Toast of the Evening

Mr. Clarry then proposed the toast to the guest of the evening in a splendid speech in which he referred to Mr. Crowley's long and creditable connection with athletics in Peterborough. He spoke of his early hockey which he said had been learned on natures rink on Little Lake and of his subsequent connection with the Trent Valley League which had been the means, according to the speaker of developing many players.

Afterwards Mr. Crowley had joined the Peterborough team and had been one of the star players of that organization. He had been one of the mainstays of the rugby team and no Peterborough man, or Canadian for that matter, had been connected with so many teams which had won championships. "The guest of the evening has played on no less than fifteen championship teams," said the speaker, and "it must be gratifying to him to know that he has retained the respect, the regard and the affection of every person in Peterborough. The name of Bill Crowley is a household one in Peterborough and is known to sporting men all over the Dominion."

Continuing, Mr. Clarry stated that in every town there was a diversity of race and creed and no man in Peterborough had done more to harmonize those interests and prevent the discord of faction than had Mr. Crowley. If the athletes of the city would follow the example set by him he was satisfied that Peterborough would prosper along sporting lines. While his absence would be severely felt in Peterborough the speaker thought that Mr. Crowley would do good in the west and that in sending one of his stamp to foster a healthy Canadian sport the city would be doing a good missionary work. In conclusion he again expressed the regret of the gathering at Mr. Crowley's departure from the city, and assured him that what had been done in the past was appreciated as his friends wished to show not only in words but in a tangible form.

Presentation Made

At this stage Mr. Ed. Dillon made the presentation of the purse of gold and the cuff links to Mr. Crowley amid great applause. The toast to the guest of the evening was then honoured in a most enthusiastic manner, threecheers being given for Mr. Crowley while the gathering sang "He's a Jolly, Good Fellow." When the recipient of the toast rose he was greeted with long sustained applause. In a brief but appropriate speech he thanked his friends for their kind words and gift, and stated that he was very sorry indeed to leave Peterborough where he had been born and lived all his life, never being away from the city more than two weeks on a holiday trip. He had many good friends here whom he regretted very much to leave, and he had never met a finer lot of young men than in this city. He had always tried to do his best when engaged in any sport but he did not think that he merited all the good things that had been said about him. He was not going away for the purpose of playing hockey but because a good opening had been offered which he considered most wise to take advantage of. In conclusion, he assured his friends that he would always have a warm spot in his heart for the boys of the city.

Mr. E. M. Best was called upon to propose the toast of the Athletic Organizations of the city, which he did.

Athletic Organizations

in a capital speech, beginning with a reference to the reputation which Peterborough enjoyed everywhere in Canada as a good sporting city, which was one of the reasons that had induced him to come to this city. He spoke of the high level upon which the different sports had been placed in Peterborough in the earlier days by Rev. Father Phelan, Messrs. H. LeBrun, Fortye, J J Howden and others, and later by Mr. McPherson, Rev. Mr. Bushell, Messrs. McLeod, R M Glover and Bill Crowley. Speaking of the latter, Mr. Best stated that he had always found him on the square and one of the gamest men that ever played for Peterborough. The city could have no better representative in the new country, as he was a standard sport from every standpoint.

Mr. R. M. Glover, in replying to the toast, went into the history of athletics in Peterborough during the past ten or twelve years to show that the different teams in the various lines of sport had been composed of practically the same men who had appeared before the public season in and season out, year in and year out. A turning point had been reached and it seemed to him that from now on the teams would have to be composed of new men. The older players had gotten everything out of the games that they could expect, and were now dropping out. He asked them, however, to continue to show an interest in the games and to assist the young players in every way possible. Speaking of Peterborough's record, he said that if any other town in Canada could show a better record for amateurism in sport they must be dandies. The games of the different Peterborough teams had always been fought to a finish, and the locals had never done a thing at home that they were afraid to do away from home, and they could be depended upon to do their best under any circumstances. He closed with an appeal for support for the new players who will be in the game from now on.

Mr. C. G. Graham also ably replied to the toast, stating that he had been connected with sports for a long time in Peterborough and was very sorry to see Mr. Crowley leaving the city. He did not know of anybody in Peterborough who had sacrificed as much time and money for the sake of the different sports as Mr. Crowley had done, and his assistance in the different games had been most valuable. He had always found him a square player who was able to take a bump and give one in return. His departure was regretted by every one, and Mr. Graham, on behalf of the clubs with which he was connected, wished him every success in his new home.

Ladies Will Miss Him

The toast to the "Ladies" was next honoured, being ably proposed by Mr. Jas. D. Clarke and responded to by Messrs. W. E. Hillhouse and Harry Morgan. All three, after paying their respects to the ladies of the city, whom, it was intimated, would miss Mr. Crowley very much, referred in complimentary terms to the guest of the evening, and expressed their regrets at his departure. Mr Morgan, who has been as closely connected with Mr. Crowley as any other player in Peterborough, said that he felt that in his departure from the city he was losing a good friend, but hoped he would always honour the city of Peterborough in the west by his ability as a hockey player, as a workman, and by his conduct in general.

Mr. T. W. McDonough was called upon to propose the toast to "The Press," which he did in a neat speech, in the course of which he also regretted the departure of Mr. Crowley, who was one of the first men he had met on coming to Peterborough.

The representatives of the press present briefly replied to the toast.

Mr. Kenner, who had been unable to be present earlier in the evening, was asked to address the gathering and made an eloquent speech, in which he referred to Mr. Crowley's long connection with sport in Peterborough and spoke of his success as a runner, a jumper, and at lacrosse, hockey and football. He paid a high tribute to the guest of the evening as a gentleman both on and off the field who had brought much honour to Peterborough, and whom, he was sure, would prove equally as successful in the city of Edmonton, which was destined, he thought, to be one of THE cities of Canada. Mr. Kenner, than whom no one is a better authority on the subject, also spoke on the subject of Peterborough's successful career in the athletic world. His remarks were received with much applause.

The most successful affair was then brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Mr. Crowley leaves for Edmonton on Monday.

The Tenderfoot Sows the Grain Too Late in The Spring

Why the Autumn Frosts Play Havoc With the Western Wheat—Mr. A. J. Gibson Speaks of Conditions

FEED COMES TO ONTARIO

Western farmers, who have but recently left the east for the vast prairie lands, have this year learned a lesson from which they will profit greatly in the future. Such is the information the Examiner received from Mr. A. J. Gibson, of Regina, who arrived in the city the other day to re-open up the real estate office of Wilson & Gibson, in the market block, in which that firm formerly did business.

Mr. Gibson states that the western crops are not nearly as bad as they have been painted in western papers. In some parts of the west the grains are frozen, but the greater part of this is due to the lateness with which the crops were sown. The farmers who have recently gone to the west have been neglecting to sow their grains in the spring until after all danger of frosts have passed and this is greatly the cause of the crops being caught by the late frosts. This is, of course, applicable almost everywhere. When the farmers become more acquainted with the western conditions a great difficulty will be removed.

Opening an Office

Mr. Gibson is opening up his office in the market block again on the 20th inst., and not on the 20th ultimo, as is erroneously stated in his special advertisement in another column of this issue. He has samples of this year's grains taken from various districts, showing the yields, and these, he states, compare favourably to any previous year. These samples may be seen at the real estate office here. Mr. Wilson, the other member of the firm, is still at Regina looking after the grain business at that end. He buys direct from the western farmer and sells the manufactured material for feed to the Ontario buyers. A large amount of grain and feed wheat is coming east for the assistance of the eastern farmer, which illustrates the necessity of the Ontario farmer growing his own wheat to blend with that from the west.

"The western markets are high at the present time and the farmers in clubs are shipping their grains direct to the big elevators at Fort William, and doing away with the services of the middle man.

Progress of Railways

The work on the G. T. P. in Saskatchewan is going ahead with great rapidity and the C. P. R. is gradually spreading a net work of lines throughout the province.

Another important asset to that country is the government owned coal mines which are of great assistance to the farmers, and which have come to the fuel rescue. These are being operated in many districts and are proving popular.

Mr. Gibson has a quantity of books at his local office giving general information about the soil, climate, etc., of the west, which have been issued by the department. These may be obtained by making application to Mr. Gibson. He has also a number of booklets for distribution containing information about the city of Regina. It shows the progress made in building in later years, with a number of handsome illustrations. In the course of construction now are the post office and customs house at an estimated cost of $200,000, and the city hall at $170,000. Regina owns a quarter million dollar hotel built along the same lines as the Royal Alexandra of Winnipeg and the King Edward, Toronto; and the Provincial Parliament buildings will be begun in the spring and will be erected at an approximate cost of a million and a half.

The constitution of the west, in Mr. Gibson's opinion, is such that does not permit failure and a brighter future is in store for the vast prairie lands of the west, the name of which is on the tip of tongues in almost every country of the world.

TRIUMPH IN XMAS WINDOWS

Richard Hall & Sons Magnificent Display Arousing Wide-eyed Admiration—Splendid Stock

WORK OF H. C. McDONALD

The well-known firm of Richard Hall and Son, do not allow any holiday season to pass, without special attention to their window dressing, and the interior decoration of their store, but their efforts for the present Christmas season have surpassed anything attempted before, even by this enterprising establishment. The store throughout is the embodiment of the Christmas spirit, and, so thoroughly are the goods displayed, that one would be lead to buy from their appearance, even if he or she had not the reputation gained by the firm in the past as a guide.

Mr. H. C. McDonald, the clever window dresser and decorator of the firm, has been at work for months in planning for the display, and he cannot be blamed very much for feeling elated over the spontaneous admiration with which his decorations have been received by the public. No more tasteful or seasonable window dressing has ever been seen here, and it is doubtful if many city establishments could surpass it in point of quiet, good taste, and rich, but not gaudy display.

The gem of the three windows is undoubtedly the large one to the south, in which Mr. McDonald, with rare success, has imitated a scene in a forest after a snow storm. Imitation snow covers the bottom of the window, while a back ground of iciles adds to the wintry scene. A tree covered with frost, under which stands a deer with frightened eyes, as if startled by an unexpected noise, completes the illusion, while from behind, the cheerful old moon beams down upon the scene with a smile that is peculiarly appropriate to the Christmas season. In the midst of this Canadian winter scene, a display of holiday novelties is shown.

The window to the north is a representation of a drawing room of the Louis XVI style, lamps, pedestal, rugs, cushions and draperies, all being emblematic of that luxurious age. The cushions and draperies were all designed, and manufactured in the firms own drapery department.

The third window, that north of the entrance, is in the colonial style, with two massive square pillars, bearing brass electric brackets, with coloured lights. Across the background is a panel of red velvet, adorned with evergreens and miniature reindeer. In the body of the window there is an excellent showing of fancy linen.

A glance at the store on entering is sufficient to show that the same lavish display of the Christmas spirit is to be seen in the interior. Arches composed of handkerchiefs and fancy linen, toned up with autumn leaves, are arranged everywhere throughout the store. Not far from the entrance, and in the centre aisle, a large Christmas tree, reaching to the ceiling, meets the eye. It is beautifully illuminated with coloured lights, and bears an attractive array of children's wear.

Across the central portion of the ground floor a framework of gold grill, covered with white, holly leaves and bunches of sea grass, is seen. In front is suspended a large crescent of frosted evergreens, bearing a life-sized doll. The back ground is of blue, with silver stars, representing a sky scene, and the effect is wholly pleasing.

Along the entire north side of the store runs a ledge, which is adorned with attractive panel grill work, covered with autumn leaves, and decorated with large Christmas bells.

The effect of the whole display is a triumph for Mr. McDonald, and for the establishment which has the largest display of Christmas gift goods, just now, that it has ever shown. Each department is making a special showing of holiday articles, and an increased sales staff will look after the customers.

Even if you do not visit to make a purchase the store is well worth a visit as a revelation of what the enterprise of a firm, and the cleverness of an individual, can accomplish in the way of holiday preparations.

SIMPLE BUT EFFECTIVE

Ask your druggist if the following simple recipe will not give relief to those suffering with Kidney trouble. Here it is: One ounce sweet spirits of nitre, four ounces syrup of rhubarb, one ounce compound vimos. He will mix it for you at a small cost. Directions are a dessertspoonful in water after meals and at bedtime. At this time of the year it is advisable to wear warm clothing about the kidneys. Boiled water is preferable to drink as it absorbs any poison in the blood. Don't use stimulants and eat well cooked food. 11

REPLIES TO CRITICS

Mr. Pugsley Answers Opposition Attack on Civil Servants.

ADMINISTERS SHARP REBUKE

Refuses to Be Driven—Will Take His Own Course — House in Supply Passes Estimates of Over $900,000 —Condition of Indian Schools —Question of Undesirable Emigration Into Dominion.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—Mr. Pugsley had his first brush with the Opposition in the House last night, and the manner in which he acquitted himself was in striking contrast to the bearing of his critics. Mr. Bennett used language evidently designed to provoke the Minister of Public Works to angry retort, but the latter in a brief reply, couched in the most dignified terms, administered a sharp rebuke to the member for Simcoe, and at the same time informed those who had been attacking him that he would exercise his own judgment as to the course he would take. The session was mainly devoted to a consideration of the estimates, over $900,000 being voted. In the course of the discussion members of the Opposition and Mr. Fisher joined in expressing their appreciation of the valuable work being done by Dr. Doughty, Dominion Archivist.

Mr. Bennett's Charges.

Mr. Bergeron and Mr. Bennett had the usual budget of questions concerning the duties and salaries of Mr. Preston, Mr. Jackson, and other agents of the Trade and Commerce Department, and Mr. Bennett followed up his queries with a speech, in which he branded certain officials of the Government as thieves and embezzlers. He specifically referred to the case of an official in the Public Works Department, who, he alleged, had to refund money which he had misappropriated.

Mr. Pugsley's Reply.

Mr. Pugsley replied that he was a stranger to the House and a stranger to a large number of the members. "I trust, however," he proceeded, "that I shall be so able to conduct myself as to gain the respect of the members of the House." There have been some statements made by some gentlemen which he did not expect to hear in a Parliament of gentlemen. "I think hon. gentlemen ought to cultivate a manner and discuss matters of public interest in a way which will not reflect discredit on this Parliament. Let me say that when it becomes necessary for me to defend myself I am prepared to defend myself, here or in any other tribunal, or in any other place. But I will not permit any member of this House to say when I shall speak or what course I shall take in this Parliament or anywhere else. I shall exercise my own judgment."

Officials In Elections.

The first hour at the evening session was given up to private bills. Among those given a second reading was the bill declaring the Hamilton Radial Electric Railway to be a work for the general advantage of Canada.

When the estimates of the Department of Trade and Commerce were reached Uriah Wilson attacked the Government for allowing its employes to take part in election contests. In his riding J. L. Haycock had taken the platform against him at the last election, and he asked for a Ministerial declaration as to how far public officials could go. Mr. Fielding thought that in the case of an officer not drawing a living salary it would be hard to say, but otherwise he "ought" to abstain from participation in elections.

Before the orders of the day were called Mr. Borden called the attention of the Premier to a circular, signed by a reputable person, who guarantees to issue marriage licenses, procure citizens' papers, permits to old or crippled persons to land in Canada, and issues passports. The circular states that it is due to the efforts of the gentleman that persons of the character named were permitted to land in Canada. Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he would look into the matter.

The Crop Financing.

Mr. Foster referred to Hon. R. W. Scott's statement in the Senate a few days ago regarding the arrangements with banks to advance money to move crops. The Finance Minister had declined to give the information in the Lower House, pleading that this was not the time.

Mr. Foster sympathized with the Finance Minister in having the information divulged "in another place."

The Finance Minister smiled. "I'm unable to say anything."

Mr. Bergeron desired to know if the Government will bring down the suggested bill in regard to patent medicines. Hon. Mr. Templeman promised a definite answer in a few days.

Mr. Foster referred to a C. A. P. despatch that Hon. Mr. Sifton has with him in London, the Dominion geographer. It seemed that Sifton was showing off his appendage and giving the impression that he is acting for the Government. Sir Wilfrid replied that Mr. White, the geographer, was in England at his request to get information concerning the trade and traffic and conditions of all lines plying on the Atlantic.

To Mr. Staples (Portage la Prairie) the Premier said the report of the Royal Grain Commission would be brought down early.

House In Committee.

The House went into committee on estimates.

Mr. Crockett asked if any arrangements had been made between the Dominion Government and the Government of New Brunswick, looking to joint action for the promotion of immigration.

Mr. Oliver replied that negotiations were in progress with the Governments of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, but no actual arrangements had been made. To Mr. Taylor the Minister said the withdrawal of the Ontario Government from the work of distributing immigrants from Toronto was exceedingly voluntary on the part of that Government. No suggestion to that effect had been made from Ottawa.

On the item of $67,100 for salaries, and $15,375 for contingencies, Mr. Foster brought up the matter of Dr. Bryce's report of the lamentable task of sanitary administration in the Indian schools as a result of which the death rate was abnormally high as against the public rate. Mr. Oliver admitted that the report showed an appalling mortality, but it was a fact that these schools were not directly under the control of the Government, and those in charge of them had informed the Department the conditions which were reported on by Dr. Bryce were no worse in the schools than among the Indians outside of them.

"They ought to be better," urged Mr. Foster, who added that it seemed to him it would be better for the Government if it could not get better results for the large amount of money expended to go out of the business. He was aware the question of Indian education was a difficult one, but the results, as far as the number of Indians permanently benefited by education was concerned were meagre indeed.

Mr. MacPherson suggested that the Government of the Dominion and Province of British Columbia should get together and settle the question of ownership of Indian lands.

FRENCH NAVY OPIUM CRAZY.

Startling Condition of Affairs to Account For Disaster.

Marseilles, Dec. 14.—The judicial authorities here have recently received a large number of confidential letters, from the wives of naval officers stationed at Mediterranean ports, complaining that their husbands were obtaining supplies of opium somewhere in this city. The authorities searched the stores of several Oriental curiosity dealers, and several thousand dollars' worth of the drug was seized. The dealers will be prosecuted.

According to the statements made by those who have investigated the matter, the opium habit recently has increased to an alarming extent in the navy, and it is even said that to this account may be laid the responsibility for many of the accidents that have occurred. The naval authorities have been endeavoring to eradicate this evil, but up to the present with little success.

GOES TO GALLOWS SMILING.

Youth Who Murdered Young Woman Pays Death Penalty.

Morden, Man., Dec. 14.—Laughing and joking, Lawrence Gowland, the young murderer of Miss Georgina Brown of Killarney, walked to the scaffold at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. He had displayed an animated demeanor since the crime in July. He cut the girl's throat and his own because she rejected his advances while they were alone in her brother's farmhouse. He recovered.

He was 23 years of age, and came from England two years ago.

800 AMENDMENTS.

Australian Tariff Bill Passed After Five Months Debate.

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 14.—The House of Representatives, after a five months' debate, in which eight hundred amendments were disposed of and three hundred divisions taken, has just completed the tariff bill. The strongly protective character of this bill has been somewhat modified.

Banjo Plays His Requiem.

Lincoln, Dec. 14.—With the gallows ready for his execution, which took place yesterday, and his attorneys arguing in the court for his life, Harrison Clarke, colored, sat in his cell at the State Penitentiary strumming a banjo.

Clarke's attorneys asserted in court that the prisoner was insane when he murdered Edward Flury, a street car conductor.

Judge Cornish, before whom the plea was made, overruled the motion to stay sentence, and Clarke was hanged.

Farmers Win.

Woodstock, Dec. 14.—In the famous note case, begun by Albert Wilson against ten well-known farmers of this district, the Supreme Court of Canada has handed out judgment allowing the appeal of the farmers against the decision of a lower court. The farmers thus finally win out, as the amount in question is not sufficiently large to allow of the cases being carried to the Privy Council.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 14.—Thomas Ryan was found guilty last night of manslaughter in connection with the death of Edward Hines at the Windsor Hotel last summer.

The men were engaged in a fight, and Hines died as the result of blows inflicted. George T. Blackstock conducted the prosecution and W. H. Hearst the defence.

May Incite to Strike.

Buffalo, Dec. 14.—Judge Hazel, in the United States Court yesterday afternoon, denied the motion of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Co. to continue the injunction obtained by the company restraining the Switchmen's Union from inciting a strike among the men in its employ.

Absconder Caught.

San Diego, Calif., Dec. 14.—Word received by a detective agent now here is to the effect that Wm. F. Walker, the absconding bank treasurer of New Britain, Conn., was arrested at Ensanada, on Wednesday and will start for New Britain. The arrest was made by a Pinkerton detective.

Mexico City, Dec. 14.—No news has been received of the steamer Ibero of the Yucatan Colonization Co., which sailed from Vera Cruz Dec. 2 for Frontera, and it is feared the crew of fifteen men are lost.

Babe Saves Eight Lives.

Allentown, Pa., Dec. 14.—The cries of an infant saved the lives of eight persons here early yesterday, but not before the baby's father and brother had been asphyxiated by coal gas.

TO SEE OSCAR'S BODY.

Poor People of Stockholm Thronged About Royal Chapel.

Stockholm, Dec. 14.—The body of King Oscar of Sweden, who died Dec. 8, laid in state yesterday in the chapel of the royal palace, but only persons especially invited, were being admitted to view it. The public will be given access to the chapel to-day.

The body is clothed in an admiral's uniform. The expression on the face is peaceful.

The catafalque has been made into a bower of beautiful flowers.

From early morning until late last night a great crowd waited outside the palace chapel in the hope that they would be allowed to see the face of the dead king for the last time, and when the hour came for closing the chapel, a rush was made for the doors and the police had to be called out to check the rush.

The crowd was made up of the poorer people of Stockholm, among whom King Oscar was a great favorite, none of whom received the invitation necessary for to permit them to view the body.

Although King Oscar's last wish was that there should be no display of mourning, everybody is appearing dressed in black and not a particle of colors is to be seen in the streets.

KIDNAPPED AND CHAINED.

Englishman Sues For Alleged Cruelty In Northern Camp.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—John Kay, a young Englishman, who has been in Canada only about 12 months, has instituted an action in the Superior Court for $10,000 against McRae, Chandler & McNeil, railway contractors, alleging unlawful arrest and cruelty.

Kay alleges that he was employed to work for the firm in Northern Ontario at $35 a month and board, but on getting to work was informed that he would get $1.75 a day and must provide for himself. He was glad to be discharged and went to a neighboring camp.

Eight days afterwards he was seized by agents of his former employers and chained in a boarding-house at Englehart for three days and four nights, during which he suffered greatly from the brutal treatment.

He was then, he says, removed to a log shanty where he was further imprisoned for eight days, half starved and nearly driven insane by the flies. He was then taken to North Bay, and without being given any opportunity for defence was sentenced to jail for a month on a charge of desertion, but was only detained 12 days.

Fire Chief Convicted.

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 14.—George Raymond, the Blind River fire chief, was yesterday morning found guilty of forgery.

The case centered on a letter received by Raymond some time ago, purporting to be signed by Oulette Brothers, Blind River, and offering Raymond $500 to fire houses in Blind River.

Witnesses swore Raymond had mentioned the details of the letter before it had gone through the postoffice, and William H. Shaw, writing expert, Toronto, identified the writing as that of Raymond. Oulette brothers testified that they could neither read nor write.

Three Men Killed.

Haverstraw, N.Y., Dec. 14.—Three men were instantly killed and one seriously injured by the premature explosion of a blast at the Trap Rock quarry yesterday. About 120 pounds of dynamite was used in the blast. The dead men were Italians known at the quarry only by numbers. The injured man, who also is known only by a number, is in the Nyack Hospital.

Two Accidents In Moncton.

Moncton, N. B., Dec. 14.—Caught beneath an immense branch from a tree which he was felling, Rafael Boudreau was crushed to death in the Buctouche woods.

John Thatcher, 10 years old, had his right foot so badly crushed under a train yesterday that amputation will be necessary. The little lad made no complaint.

Two Children Burned.

Watertown, N. Y., Dec. 14.—In a fire that destroyed the residence of Charles Gilbo, in this city yesterday, his two children, Harold and Flossie aged 4 and 2 years, respectively, were burned to death. The children had been locked in the house by the mother just a few minutes previous to the discovery of the fire.

Asylum Storekeeper Dismissed.

London, Dec. 14.—Norman Wanless, who has been storekeeper at the asylum for the insane for some years, was given notice that after the first of the year his services would no longer be required.

Two additional cases of smallpox have broken out at West London.

Morris Injuries Were Fatal.

Regina, Dec. 14.—A. Morris, the C. N. R. fireman of Winnipeg, who was badly injured here Thursday night, died yesterday morning. His parents reside in Toronto. The unfortunate man had one leg completely severed and the other was terribly mangled.

Adrift In River.

Walkerville, Dec. 14.—Late Thursday night people in Wolfe Road House, three miles above here, heard cries for help from the river. Two men were found helpless in a boat which was drifting down the ice.

Government Should Pay.

London, Dec. 14.—Hon. Dr. Pyne yesterday stated that the Dominion Government should pay for the establishment of technical schools in the provinces.

Sifton to Retire.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—It is stated here that Hon. Clifford Sifton is to retire from politics altogether, and will refuse renomination in Brandon.

Two Years For Forgery.

Port Arthur, Dec. 14.—John Gr[illegible] and Harry Simpson have been sentenced to two years in the penitentiary for forging and passing cheques.

Two Chinamen Burned.

Winnipeg Dec. 14.—Two Chinamen, Lee Chow and Look Wing, laundrymen at 93 Stella avenue, were brutally murdered in their beds Thursday night and the building was set fire to by the criminals in the hope of effectually destroying all clue to the crime. The fire, however, was soon discovered and extinguished, and a medical examination showed that both the men had had their heads smashed with an axe.

It is evident they had been killed and placed in their beds. This at first misled the police and led to the supposition of suffocation. It will be a very perplexing crime to fathom owing to the difficulty of working among the Chinese colony. Robbery was probably the motive.

Cost of Thaw Trial.

New York, Dec. 14.—An extra appropriation of $15,000 for conducting the trial of Harry K. Thaw was allowed yesterday by the board of estimate. Comptroller Metz and District Attorney Jerome were going to confer with his experts with a view of keeping down the expenses for their testimony at the second trial. Already $24,000 has been spent for experts.

"It is an outrage, but it can't be helped," added the comptroller. "The experts were paid at the rate of $100 a day, approximately $15 an hour in some cases."

It was stated that the cost of the Thaw trial so far had been upwards of $100,000.

Lost $6,250,000 at Euchre.

London, Dec. 14.—George McCulloch, who for many years was associated with the development of mining industries in Australia, died here yesterday. He was the possessor of one of the finest art collections in the world.

On one occasion he lost at euchre his share of a mine which, six years later was worth $6,250,000.

Police Blamed by Firemen.

New York, Dec. 14.—While the firemen labored to extinguish a fire in a stable in East Ninth street, one man was burned to death and another man and a woman narrowly escaped death in a house in the rear of the stable. Denouncing the police for failing to notify him earlier, Chief Croker sent his men into the blazing house.

Hotelman Responsible.

Calgary, Alta., Dec. 14.—A decision by Justice Harvey yesterday laid down the principle that innkeepers are responsible for goods left in hotels by guests, he awarding W. N. Tompkins of Okotoka $100 in his suit against the Royal Hotel for compensation for a fur coat which was taken from a cloakroom.

$85,000 Short.

Sherbrooke, Que., Dec. 14.—A petition is in circulation by the friends of A. H. Anderson, late treasurer of the Quebec Central Railway, to be presented to the court asking for clemency. Anderson pleaded guilty to appropriating upwards of $85,000. He was remanded until Monday for sentence.

They Got Work.

London, Dec. 14.—(C. A. P.)—The report of the Privy Council committee respecting Scotch emigrants who alleged they were refused work promised by the G. T. R. at Portage la Prairie in May, has been received, and shows the company immediately employed them elsewhere.

Strike Darkens Bordeaux.

Bordeaux, Dec. 14.—The city was in darkness last night, as the result of a strike of gas men and employes of the electric light company, who are demanding an increase in pay.

All business houses were compelled to close at nightfall.

London Approval.

London, Dec. 14.—(C. A. P.)—Lord Strathcona states he is sanguine that the patriotism of the Canadian people of both races will see that Earl Grey's proposal for the celebration of the tercentenary will see it through. Canadians in London would be proud to have their offers accepted.

The press editorially express the warmest approval of the project. The Standard points out that it will also mark Canada's entry amongst the nations of the world.

The Telegraph says the scheme is as ambitious as it is brilliant.

Married Once Too Often.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—Ewart Tressider, a young Ottawa electrician, pleaded guilty in the Police Court yesterday morning to a charge of bigamy and was remanded until Monday next for sentence. Last week Tressider under an assumed named married Miss Sinclair, a young Rideauville girl of 17. Last April he married the daughter of Charles Turcotte of Ottawa.

Derrick Cable Broke.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—W. J. Lucy, aged 47, of Ottawa, died in the hospital here yesterday morning, the result of being injured through the snapping of the cable of a derrick with which he was working on the Rideau River. His skull was fractured by the blow. He leaves a widow and several children.

KAISER GIVEN AN OVATION.

Most Cordially Received by Queen and People at Amsterdam.

Amsterdam, Dec. 14.—Emperor William of Germany arrived here yesterday on the Imperial yacht Hohenzollern from Port Victoria, England, and was greeted by members of the royal family of the Netherlands. Prince Henry boarded the Hohenzollern and escorted the Emperor to a pavilion on shore, where Queen Wilhelmina awaited him. The greetings were most cordial, and the Emperor kissed the Queen's hand. Their Majesties drove through the crowded streets to the palace, where they subsequently appeared at a balcony and were given an ovation by the assembled throng.

Magazines From Britain.

London, Dec. 14.—(C. A. P.)—Hon. Sydney Buxton, speaking in Boston, estimated that as a result of the intellectual preference, over 500,000 magazines, mostly high-class, were being sent to Canada.

T. McPherson and J. L. Todd were made fellow members respectively of the Royal College of Surgeons.

Will Burn Villages.

Oudja, Algeria, Dec. 14.—The French troops, under the command of Gen. Lianley, have received orders to begin a forward concentric movement toward the mountain retreats of the tribesmen, with the object of forcing the native leaders to yield. All villages submitting to the French will not be harmed, but those resisting will be burned.

Nationality of the Dead.

Monongah, W. Va., Dec. 14.—Three hundred and twenty bodies have been removed from the mine. Of these 71 were Americans, 11 negroes, 146 Italians, 14 Slavoks, 31 Poles, 5 Greeks and 2 Hungarians.

Hooded Farmers' Rigs.

Orangeville, Dec. 14.—Farmers coming into town recently have suffered rather severely by the theft of valuable robes from their rigs while left in the hotel sheds. On Saturday night two young Englishmen — Hutchings and Lewis — were arrested for attempted assault and later released on cash bail. They were arrested again when Hutchings had a fine robe in his possession, and Lewis a big fish, which they could not account for. By Police Magistrate Pattullo yesterday in the assault case a nominal fine was imposed and Hutchings and Lewis were convicted of theft of the robe and the fish respectively. The sentences were 30 days for Hutchings and 14 for Lewis.

The Hoodoo Ring.

By IDA WRIGHT HANSON.

Copyrighted, 1907, by Jessie Morgan.

"Pauline, I love you. Will you marry me or won't you?" I made my little speech desperately, with my eyes shut.

The silence was so long that I opened them to find Pauline with her own eyes shut and her lips moving rapidly, but noiselessly.

"What are you doing?" I inquired as calmly as I was able.

"I was saying the protection charm for lovers," she answered, smiling sweetly at me. "It's lucky for you that you asked me today. No more lucky days for me till the middle of next month."

"Oh, superstition, thy name is Pauline!" I said fondly. No matter what absurd ideas she had, she was the sweetest girl in the world. "Tomorrow I will bring the diamond," I added after awhile.

"Oh, no, please," she answered promptly. "I should rather have a ruby. Rubies exert a special protection in matters of love."

Next day when I entered the only jewelry store the place afforded I was wishing that my Pauline were not so superstitious. Of course I wanted her to be pleased, but diamonds seemed to me the only gems for betrothals.

When I met her in her garden that night I fancied that she looked pale, and when I gave her the box I thought she seemed on the threshold of tears.

"Open it, heart's dearest," I allured, not without some trepidation.

But she put the box up her lace sleeve and began whispering to me of how she was ever prone to hold her pleasures a little while from her until she had tasted anticipation to the full, and she was so wonderfully entrancing that no mortal man could remember such mundane things as metal or brilliants in the soft symphonies of her feeling-swept voice.

But there was a change in my sweetheart after that. I had sometimes chafed over the necessity, when we were starting for somewhere and had only a brief time to get there in and had forgotten something, of being compelled, when we returned for it, to sit down till we had counted fifty, but this Pauline always laughingly insisted on.

Now she treated all signs seriously. She no longer laughed when we spilled the salt. She looked at me with fear in her eyes as she threw a pinch of it into the fire. She sometimes cried when I left her, as though my absence were to be an indefinite thing instead of a time of hours, and when I came to her she often rejoiced, as though I were come from a far country, and through all these days she refused to wear my ring. One night I spoke sharply to her.

"Pauline, take my ring from your sleeve, or the corner of your handkerchief, or your pompadour, or wherever you have concealed it, and put it in its rightful place," I insisted.

"It's in the house," she faltered, looking at me with frightened eyes. "I'll get it."

Returning, she placed the red leather box on the arbor table, and with her face wreathed in tragedy she began to talk.

"I looked at the rings in that store before you went in to get it. There was only one ruby, as you know, and I thought it beautiful, beautiful! I had told the man when I went in that I wasn't going to buy, so he began to talk to me. He said he called the ruby his 'hoodoo ring.' He said a young man bought it first for his girl, but she jilted him before she ever saw the ring, so he brought it back, exchanging it for a diamond scarfpin. Then a man bought it for his daughter's graduation gift, but she died the week before, and he sold it for money to buy the poor child's shroud. Wasn't it dreadful, Harry? Then a mysterious veiled lady said she was going to buy it, but she suddenly disappeared and was never heard of after.

"I went home in a dreadful state of mind. All day I was sending the mental suggestion to you not to buy that ring, but just before closing time I sneaked in to look, and the ruby was gone. I could not bring myself to tell you then that I didn't want it after you had been good enough to please me, for I knew you preferred a diamond, so I said I would forget all about it. I compromised with my own conscience by telling myself that I would not open the box, but I have never opened the box."

"You haven't looked at the ring?" I exclaimed.

"No. But just having it in my possession has done such awful things! First my poor kitten ate the poisoned meat, then my best loved vase fell to the floor when no one was near it and broke itself to pieces, I tore my best dress the first time I wore it, and you had the automobile accident."

"But I didn't get hurt," I objected.

"Yes, but it's a warning!" she wailed. "I don't want the ring, and I don't want you to keep it, and it is a shame to make that poor man take it back. Let's bury it somewhere, and you shouldn't get me another. I will be satisfied without an engagement ring."

Then I laughed. I couldn't restrain myself any longer, and my poor girl's wet eyes looked at me reproachfully. I picked up the box and touched the spring. She gave one long, earnest look at the sparkler, then looked wildly at me.

"Why, it's a diamond!"

I nodded. I could do no more then.

"Is that the ring I have been carrying around or hiding away for two mortal weeks?"

I nodded again, helpless with laughter, and it was not long till Pauline laughed with me. Then she kissed the ring and slipped it on her finger. Next she went to the door of the arbor and looked deliberately at the moon over her left shoulder. Spying a ladder leaning against the wall, she walked under it. A rusty nail showed satisfyingly in the moonlight, but she did not turn it around. She came back to me, sat down and regarded me gravely.

"I still have an unholy curiosity to know who did buy that ring and what it did to them!" she said mournfully.

"Oh, heart of mine," I crooned, "can it be that you have lived for a whole summer in this place and have yet to learn that that jewelry man is known hereabout as Ananias Jones, although he was christened Henry? He just dotes on talking to pretty girls, and he has quite a genius for story telling. Figuratively speaking, my beloved, he sold you a gold brick."

Pauline sighed and removed her shoes. She placed the high heeled, absurd little articles on the table, regarding them seriously. Then she put them on again, being careful to dream the left foot first.

"There! That's the very worst one of them all," she said in the tone the great man must have used when he had conquered his last world and there were no more of them.

"There's a worse one!" I cried in no mighty a voice that Pauline jumped. "Today week is Friday, the 13th. You wouldn't dare let it be our wedding day?"

I knew it was an unfair advantage, and I was about to take it all back when my blessed girl snuggled herself into my delighted arms.

"I might dare, Harry," she whispered, "but wouldn't you as lief it would be a day sooner?"

Trespassing.

Inventive genius seldom achieves success at the first attempt. A half grown boy in Pennsylvania, who had devoted his leisure hours for many months to the making of a milking machine of his own devising, at last completed it to his satisfaction and resolved to make a trial of it. Without saying a word to any one he carried his machine down from the attic, where he had wrought patiently day after day to bring it to perfection, and, took it out to the barnyard, where old Cherry, the family cow, stood placidly chewing her cud, with her big, lusty calf playing round her.

A few minutes later his mother saw him trying to re-enter the house unseen. He was covered with dirt from head to foot and in a state of demoralization generally. In his hand he was carrying something that looked like the wreck of a toy battleship.

"For mercy's sake, Jed," she exclaimed, "what have you been doing?"

"I've been trying my milking machine on the cow," he said.

"Your milking machine? Good land! Did the cow do all that to you?"

"No," answered Jed. "Old Cherry would have stood for it all right. It was the calf that—er—kind o' seemed to object to the machine."—Youth's Companion.

The Discovery of Bret Harte.

A copy of the Overland Monthly had fallen into my hands, and I was exceedingly interested in a sketch, "The Luck of Roaring Camp," by an author whose name I had never before heard. I asked Mr. Fields to read it, and he cared more for it even than I, being much older and wiser, and he very soon dictated a letter to Mr. Harte, begging him to send something to the Atlantic. The reply, which came in due time, I think, not only expressed a willingness to become a contributor, but spoke of the writer's probable departure from California. I cannot say how long it was before the Harte family reached Boston and became the guests of Mr. Howells in Cambridge. I only know that it was the time when every man was quoting from "The Heathen Chinee" and generally quoting the verses in his pocket-book. There was, I thought, a good deal of curiosity felt about the office as to the sort of man the suddenly popular author would prove to be. He was found good looking and exceedingly well dressed, extremely self possessed, with a gracefully friendly and even affectionate manner to the new business and literary acquaintances of his early age in the establishment, with whom he speedily became intimate.—Atlantic.

Just think of it! It is said that the poor people of Japan have been made so much poorer by the war between their country and Russia that thousands of children are now obliged to work in the mills for the munificent wages of 5 or 6 cents a day!

DEATH OF WELSH POET.

Career and Life Work of Sir Lewis Morris.

The death is announced of Sir Lewis Morris, the poet, which occurred at his residence, Penbryn, Carmarthen. Sir Lewis was in his 74th year, having been born in Carmarthen in 1833. He was educated at Sherbourne School and Jesus College, Oxford, and was called to the Bar in 1861. He was elected an Honorary Fellow of Jesus College in 1871, and two years later he became honorary secretary of the University of Wales. Subsequently he accepted the office of treasurer. At an early stage of his career Sir Lewis took an interest in politics, and in letters to the press he suggested the formation of a Welsh party in the House of Commons. But the proposal attracted little notice. "I was before my time," he said in after years, when he saw groups representing nationalities and interests in Parliament. In 1881 and in 1886 he made unsuccessful attempts to enter the House of Commons. In 1891 he became a candidate for the representation of his native borough, but retired at the request of Mr. Gladstone in order not to endanger the seat. "It was a disappointment," he said, speaking of his defeats, "but I believe now, from what has since happened, that it was a blessing in disguise, and I found other avocations." Among the poems which Sir Lewis Morris enriched British literature are "The Songs of Two Worlds," "The Epic of Hades," "Gwen, a Drama in Monologue," "The Ode of Life," "Songs Unsung," "Gycia," "Songs of Britain," "A Vision of Saints," "Songs Without Notes," "Idylls and Lyrics." He also wrote odes on Queen Victoria's Jubilee, on the death of the Duke of Clarence, and on the opening of the Imperial Institute. His best poem is "The Epic of Hades," and he relates that much of it was written "amid the not inappropriate sounds and gloom of the Underground Railway, and the nods and winks of city clerks, who thought their fellow-traveler crazy. Sir Lewis was not one of those who regard the rush and hurry of the present day as hostile to poetry. Indeed, in his opinion, invention is progressing in a direction which will open a larger poetical outlook than we have ever enjoyed. "What, for instance," he once said, "will be the vast poetical vista when men learn the art of navigation in the air? The future of poetry is vast, immense. Think of the midnight flights we may have six or seven years hence through or over the thunder and lightning, and over the stormy sea and endless plains, till with the morning, if we may believe the maxim, the sun rises over the pure snows of the frozen Alps or some white-walled town. Think of electric wires possibly through the depths of interstellar space to some distant star.

SIR LEWIS MORRIS.

Sir Lewis was a friend of Tennyson, whose influence is conspicuous in his later works. He has related that he once went with Tennyson to the house of George Henry Lewes and George Eliot. They found a room full chiefly of young men, all eager to hear Tennyson read from his writings. The Laureate had decided to read from "Harold," but everybody shouted "Maud!" "Maud!" This ruffled Tennyson a little, and when a very eminent oculist, noticing that he wore two pairs of spectacles, one over the other, ventured to observe that he feared his sight was not perfect, he answered in gruff Johnsonian tones, "I see perfectly well, sir, and if I did not I know where to get advice." Browning was unknown to him, but he relates that he heard Browning's voice by the aid of the gramophone, which he describes as "one of those cruel instruments that repeat your words for the benefit of posterity." A group had gathered round the gramophone to hear Browning's voice from the shades. "As we listened, quiet as mice (said Morris) a grotesque thing happened. There was a stop in the flow of words, and then a kind of aside in strident tones: 'It is a very strange thing, ladies and gentlemen, that I cannot remember my own lines.'" Browning, in speaking into the phonograph, had had a lapse of memory, and it was the oddest thing imaginable to hear his interjected excuses at a moment of strained and reverent gravity.

CHRISTMAS ON SHIP OF ICE.

Strange Story of Skipper Shipwrecked on the Pacific.

Captain S. A. Hoyt, secretary of the Masters and Pilots' association of Seattle, Wash., and possibly one of the most widely known seafaring men on the Pacific coast, has a fund of experiences to draw from when he wishes to while away an hour. Up in the big, pleasant rooms of the association the captain recently told the following tale:

"The approach of Christmas always reminds me of the December that I spent on an ice ship. Never heard of one? Well, they are unusual. I was master of the little brig Holly, and along about the 1st of November we were wrecked away down south of the Horn. The ship went on an ice floe and was battered all to pieces. We did manage to save some tools and food and part of the cargo.

"I put the crew to work to cut off a large pinnacle of the berg. Then I set them all to work with axes, and we shaped it into a graceful ship's hull. After that we hollowed it out inside, making cabins and everything like a regular ship, and with some of the timber saved from our vessel we rigged her as a bark, side lights and everything, even going so far as to paint her and name her the Holly. She was a fine craft and floated like a duck when finally launched. We spent Christmas on board of her and had a great time. I loaded part of the wrecked Holly's cargo in her, and we then started for Callao, which was our destination.

"The ice ship sailed fine and was as good a sea boat as any in which I sailed. This was only, however, when we were down south in cold water. The nearer we got to the equator the lighter became our vessel, and I finally discovered that our ship was melting beneath us. Another two days and we would have been in the water when a steamer picked us up and also saved the cargo. This paid for the loss of the vessel, which was also insured, so the owners came out ahead in the end."

OUTDID UNCLE SAM.

How an Old Lady Found a Person the National Postoffice Couldn't.

"The fates call and mortals obey." The speaker was a small, precise and elegant old lady whose diminutive stature was quite forgotten by her hearers in the realization of her force and dignity. She had gone to the dead letter sale under protest and was narrating an experience which grew out of the purchase she had made. "I went to that sale not because I wanted to or was interested or expected to buy anything, but because I've an impertinent grandniece who hinted I was too old to be in such a crowd.

"After awhile the auctioneer offered a package as big as a sack of flour, and I bought it for 85 cents. Then when I brought it home I found it contained nothing but a lot of worn, threadbare clothing mended almost to death. I was just about to force it on that grandniece of mine and make her distribute it to some poor families when I found a letter in the pocket of the coat. I've kept that letter. The writer was a young girl from down east in Massachusetts. She was sending that clothing as the only Christmas gift she could make for her brother Ben, who lived in a city in Wisconsin.

"Well, when I read that letter I just sat down and cried to think that poor girl's sewing had all gone astray. I made up my mind that if the postal authorities could not find that girl's brother I could. So I did up the bundle again, put a letter outside asking the postman to return the package to me if he couldn't deliver it and then addressed the whole thing to 'Mary Burgess' Brother Ben, ——, Wis.' Would you believe that that postman in that Wisconsin town really found that poor boy and gave him the bundle? And now I've a letter from the girl in which she tells me both she and her brother are in much improved circumstances, that Ben has a fine position in a furniture factory and that they are soon to be together for good." —Washington Star.

THE ACTOR'S CHRISTMAS.

Life on the Boards Is Not All a Happy Holiday.

"I like Christmas," said an actor. "No two are ever alike in my business. Last year, for instance, the company I was with was four weeks behind in salaries, and we were simply hanging on with the hope of the big houses Christmas day pulling us out a little. We were playing one night stands and left some little town in New York state for Wheeling, W. Va., right after the performance. It was a trip that called for three changes of cars, and there were no sleepers in any of them.

"Every car on every train was loaded with holiday excursionists, and every male excursionist was loaded with rye and brimstone. There were fights fresh every half hour, and constables met us with open arms and clubs at every station. No eating stations were honored by us, and we arrived at Wheeling too late to give a matinee performance, our manager had two black eyes and a broken wrist, and our star had lost a new set of teeth without which he refused to play at night.

"The report had it that we were all in jail, and there would have been no house anyway. We had to get up three benefit performances before we could get money enough to buy tickets to New York, but we got there. However, as I said before, Christmas days are not all alike."—Buffalo News.

Pipes Scared Wolves.

Donald McLean of Warsaw, who recently came to Canada from Scotland, while engaged in deer hunting recently at the head of Stoney Lake, returned to camp, only to hear the distant howling of timber wolves; his rifle was found to be useless in the dark against the oncoming pack. McLean, hearing that noises of various descriptions had been effectively used to frighten off wolves, selected the bagpipes, and playing them incessantly, walked constantly around a large tree for several hours. The howling of the wolves grew distant and they finally disappeared.

McLean declares that he owes his life to the lively skirling of the bagpipes.

Never Forsake a Friend.

Whatever happens, never forsake a friend. When enemies gather, when sickness falls upon the heart, when the world is dark and cheerless, is the time to try true friendship. They who turn from the scenes of distress betray their hypocrisy and prove that interest only moves them. If you have a friend who loves you, who has studied your interest and happiness, be sure to sustain him in adversity. Let him feel that his love was not thrown away. Real fidelity may be rare, but it exists in the heart. They only deny its worth and power who never loved a friend or labored to make a friend happy.—Exchange.

FAMOUS WOMAN DECORATED.

Florence Nightingale Awarded the Royal Order of Merit.

Florence Nightingale, the English philanthropist, has been decorated with the Order of Merit by King Edward. She is the first woman to receive this distinction, which up to the present time has been bestowed only upon nineteen men, each one of marked eminence. Th Order of Merit was founded by King Edward in 1902 for the recognition of especially distinguished services in all walks of life.

Many anxious inquiries have been made recently at 10 South street, Park lane, the quiet, unpretentious-looking house in which lives Miss Florence

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

Nightingale, the heroine of the Crimean war, whose name is still a household word the world over. She is in her 87th year, and has lately evinced a weakness which has greatly concerned her medical attendants. Many presents of fruit and flowers arrive daily for her from admirers and friends. Being a confirmed invalid, this wonderful old lady—whose heroic deeds as a nurse during he Crimean war stirred the hearts of the world, and led a grateful country to vote her a sum of $250,000—lives the life of a recluse.

For many days at a time she is forced to keep her bed; but occasionally, seated in an invalid chair, she receives a small circle of friends, and from a rear window of her house looks out upon the procession of carriages which passes up and down Hyde Park. Failing eyesight has been her affliction for some time past, but her mental powers are still wonderfully clear, and she continues to take interest in nursing questions, and particularly in the Nightingale Home for Trained Nurses, which she founded with the aid of the money voted to her after her wonderful work in the Crimea.

HIRED BABY FOR BOMBS.

Ruse of Spanish Queen to Save Prince From Anarchists.

A story concerning the baby Spanish prince which was widely circulated at the beginning of the royal visit to England is again current in court circles and receives, strange as it may appear, considerable credence. The Queen of Spain has not forgotten the dastardly act of the Anarchists on her wedding day. So when the visit to England was arranged she despatched her beloved baby two days ahead, safely and surreptitiously in the care of nurses and detectives. Then she and the King brought with them another baby, and it was only when Kensington Palace was reached that the devoted mother again clasped her own infant in her arms.

Had the King and Queen been blown up with the substitute baby the real one would have had a poor chance of recognition. It is easy to imagine the Carlist onslaught on such a pretender. But a mother's love did not concern itself with this. All she wanted was to safeguard her child.

As a sidelight on this story it may be mentioned that the baby which accompanied the royal couple was constantly on show in Paris and was extensively photographed there in its nurse's arms when the party stopped there en route for England. Nobody there seemed to think it was a bogus prince.

It is said the ex-Empress Eugenie has settled a fortune on the prince, so that when he grows up he will be rich even if he never reigns.

The Clansmen.

A short while ago there was started a movement to have the kilts of a certain one of the British "Highland" regiment discarded in favor of ordinary trousers. It was objected that the men would be discontented at this change, and the colonel gave orders that a census of the regiment be taken, in order to ascertain the wishes of the men themselves. The colonel is the descendant of a long line of Scotch lairds and strives earnestly to uphold the old traditions.

The sergeant who took the census of the regiment finally appeared with his report.

"All the men, with the exception of three, are in favor of the change, sir."

"Indeed," the colonel said. "Tell me the names of these three true clansmen. They shall be promoted."

The sergeant read from the list:

"They are, sir," he said, "Patrick Doolan, Hans Steinbrenner, and Moses Ikenstein."

She Had a Good Appetite.

A baker in Manchester, England, heard some one moving about in his store the other night, and upon going down stairs he found a girl 13 years old helping herself to pies and cakes. She had got into the place through the transom and had been eating for an hour. In court, next day, the baker swore that she had devoured eight large cakes and seven pies, besides helping herself liberally to lady fingers and cookies.

The girl couldn't remember all she ate, but said she felt full for the first time in three years. His honor said that any one with such an appetite was a dangerous person to be at large and he sent her to a workhouse for three months.

Customer—I must say, waiter, this is the first time I've ever had a really tender steak here. Waiter (aghast)—Good gracious, I must have given you the proprietor's steak! — London Standard.

COSMOPOLITAN CHRISTMAS.

How Philadelphia Celebrates the Yuletide of Many Peoples.

It is not the Christmas of one land, but the Christmas of many, that Philadelphia celebrates.

In no two Christian countries is the great natal day observed with the same rites and customs. In the foreign settlements of Philadelphia these variant forms, transported from the old lands, are kept alive. Indeed, at no other time are the various nationalities so very different as at Christmas.

In Little Italy, for instance, the "sacred Bambino," or Christ Child, is worshiped for nine days before Christmas. In every Italian home a novena is said, and a bagpipe player discourses daily before a Christmas shrine the "nacimiento."

In the city there are German children who, not knowing Santa Claus, look for the coming of Kriss Kringle and Knave Ruprecht on Christmas eve—the Christ Child distributing presents and the Knave leaving switches for the chastisement of naughty little ones.

In the Swedish quarter, in the vicinity of Swanson and Christian streets, sheaves of wheat are placed at windows or on housetops, that the birds as well as people may have a Christmas feast.

In a Chinese church Christmas hymns are sung in the language of Confucius, a most impressive and unusual ceremony.

A colony of Syrians observe exceedingly peculiar ceremonies in Philadelphia, one being enlivened by a dancer who balances a keg of beer on his head.

In the Kensington section the clicking of countless shuttles gives place to the Yuletide customs of merry England, so faithfully observed that the spectator might easily imagine himself transported magically to the "tight little isle" itself.—Philadelphia North American.

Letters to Santa.

dear santy klos. If you don't come to my haus befour you come to willie Dorgin's I'll never speak to you in my life. Deer Santa Clous. Tel me your telephone number so I can order a ortomobeel for a poor boy what ain't got no father on our street. MINI BORMAN.

The Christmas Guest.

Whose shall come my way this night,
By moor or hill or shore,
For him the blessed candles' light,
For him the open door.
(Oh, Mary, this for thy Son's sake,
Though mine comes in no more!)

My hearth is swept, my Yule logs burn,
My board is decked and spread;
For any who may come in turn
Are warmth and wine and bread.
(Oh, Mary, grant my son this night
Be housed and comforted!)

Bid banned or beggared come for guest,
My heart shall share his woes,
And on his head my hand shall rest
To bless him ere he goes.
(Oh, Mary, grant my son this night
That blessing and repose!)

This night for thy one Son's dear sake
Wait light and warmth and wine.
Oh, Mary, we be mothers both,
Take these my tears for sign,
And this I do for thy sweet Son.
Wilt thou not do for mine?

—Theodosia Garrison in Broadway Magazine.

EXPENSIVE APARTMENTS.

Women Who Can't Rent Them, but Who Like to Inspect Them.

The superintendent of an expensive apartment building was telling his troubles.

"It isn't showing apartments to those who really want one that makes me see the whole world through dark blue glasses just now," said he. "It's the aggravation of the people who go about inspecting fine suits which they cannot possibly pay for.

"You wouldn't imagine how many women have the mania unless you had my job for awhile. Only yesterday a young married woman and her mother, both smartly gowned, asked to see one of my six room suits, which rents for $200 a month, and there's no kitchen in the apartment either. We serve meals from the basement at $15 per week for each person.

"Well, those women were here fully an hour. They discussed the outlook from the various windows and the size and plan of the rooms and every little detail. They wanted to know if the front room would be done over in old gold and brown to harmonize with a certain set of furniture, and they measured the windows to see if their curtains would fit.

"Where 'baby' was to sleep bothered the young woman a whole heap. The nice sunny room she wanted for a nursery had only portieres between it and the drawing room, and another room opened into a court, while a third had a draft blowing through it. They discussed this question for some ten minutes, and when they finally decided that the kid should have a crib in the same room with its parents I began to feel that the apartment was off my hands.

"Then they insisted upon seeing the chef and went over the subject of meals with him for another fifteen or twenty minutes, making him give all the menus served for a week back. After that they climbed to the top of the house to see the maids' rooms, one of which goes with every apartment.

"Finally they stated that the apartment was the most satisfactory they had seen and that they would come back that evening with the young woman's husband. They felt sure he would decide to take it.

"As we came downstairs I stayed behind to lock the apartment, which had been under inspection, and I suppose they thought I wasn't going any farther, for as I caught up with them on the first flight I overheard the young woman saying:

"'Wouldn't it be swell to live like that, mamma, with all those delicious menus every day? When Jack gets rich we'll do so, won't we?'"—New York Press.

LORD CHESHAM KILLED

POPULAR PEER MEETS TRAGIC DEATH IN HUNTING FIELD.

Distinguished Soldier and Well-Known Sportsman — Served Under Lord Roberts in Boer War—Helped to Raise the Imperial Yeomanry—Received Many Tokens of Royal Favor.

News has just reached Canada of a distressing fatality of the hunting field which involved the loss of the life of a distinguished soldier and well-known sportsman. Lord Chesham was killed near Daventry the other afternoon, while out with the Pytchley hounds. His lordship was thrown, and his neck broken by the fall. Lord Chesham, who was hunting from Boughton Hall, which he had taken for the season, was thrown at a fence one and a half miles from Daventry. His horse turned a somersault in leaping, and Lord Chesham was pitched on to his head, his neck being dislocated by the violence of his fall. Lord Chesham was one of the welter-weights of the Pytchley Hunt. Naturally his tragic end occasioned great regret in many circles, especially among sportsmen.

A graphic story of the accident was told at the inquest on Lord Chesham, which was held in the library of Holdenby House, the seat of Lord Annaly, master of the Pytchley Hunt. The coroner, in opening the proceedings, said all would sympathize with Lady Chesham, who had lost first her daughter by a riding accident, then her eldest son in the Boer war, and now her husband. Lord Chesham would be missed by many people, from the members of the royal family to the workmen on his estate, to whom he was most kind. Capt. Beatty, of Kebworth Grange, Leicestershire, said that he had known Lord Chesham all his life, and at the time of the accident he was riding behind him with the Pytchley. While the hounds were in full cry Lord Chesham's horse, in going for a fence, appeared to get his forelegs underneath. The animal recovered itself, and rose sufficiently to get over, but landed short on the other side, with his forelegs in a ditch. The horse turned a complete somersault. Witness, rushing over the hedge, found

LORD CHESHAM.

Lord Chesham with his head and shoulders under the horse, which jumped up and bolted. Lord Chesham appeared to have died immediately. Dr. Harrison was sent for, and Lord Annaly was notified of what had occurred, and, by the latter's express wish, the body was removed to Holdenby House.

Dr. Harrison stated that Lord Chesham must have died instantly, the vertebrae being broken at the junction of the head and neck.

The jury returned a verdict of "accidental death," and expressed sympathy with Lady Chesham and her family.

Lord Chesham's Career.

Charles Compton William Cavendish, third Baron Chesham, who succeeded to the title in 1882, when he was 33, was the son-in-law of the late Duke of Westminster, having married the Lady Beatrice Grosvenor in 1879. Educated at Eton, he joined the Coldstream Guards at 20, and later migrated to the 10th Hussars and 16th Lancers. In 1879 he retired with the rank of captain; but when the last South African war broke out he volunteered for service, and helped to raise the Imperial Yeomanry. Lord Roberts, in one of his despatches, referred to him as "one of the prime movers for the employment of Yeomanry in the field, and more particularly as one of the general officers commanding the Yeomanry with distinct ca and dash." "I owe him a debt of gratitude," said Lord Roberts, "difficult to express, but none the less deeply felt." He was in command of the first brigade of Imperial Yeomanry, and afterwards inspector-general of that force. His daughter, Miss Lilah Cavendish, also made herself popular during the war by offering her services as a nurse for the Yeomanry Hospital. It was during Lord Chesham's absence in Africa that the King (in 1901) distributed the Royal Buckhounds, of which Lord Chesham had been appointed master in the previous year in succession to the Earl of Coventry. He was also made a lord of the bedchamber to the Prince of Wales, and in 1901 was admitted to the Privy Council. Lord Chesham's eldest son, Lieut. Cavendish, of the 17th Lancers, was killed in battle near Pretoria, just after the arrival of Lord Roberts' army in the Transvaal. In view of the circumstances of Lord Chesham's death there is a melancholy interest in the following note about his lordship which appeared in "Vanity Fair" not long ago:

He owns about 12,000 acres outside of London, and some property in that town; so that he is quite a well-to-do Imperialist, who will take trouble for his country's sake, going keenly into detail. He is also an exceedingly popular fellow and a fine sportsman; who used to play polo well; and though he can ride to hounds with the best, he is wholly free from "side." He knows a horse when he sees it.

A Popular Play Indeed.

Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" has been translated into German nine times, into French seven, into Italian six, into modern Greek three, into Latin and Swedish twice and into Croatian, Danish, Dutch, Frisian, Polish, Roumanian, Russian, Magyar, Portuguese and Yiddish. There are seven or eight English acting editions of the tragedy. But one attempt actually to alter and improve it has ever been made. This was in 1722, when John Sheffield, duke of Buckingham, divided it into two parts at the death of Caesar, calling it "The Tragedies of Julius Caesar and Marcus Brutus," and made many other changes. To enrich this poor play, or, rather, these poor plays, Pope furnished some choruses, but they had the usual effects of ill adjusted ornaments—they served only to make the meanness of the thing they bedecked the more conspicuous.

"Seven Lean Years."

The recent discoveries of Brugsch Bey in connection with the Egyptian hieroglyphics which he deciphered are the subject of an article in Die Oesterreichische Worhenschrift, in which the writer says that it is no longer difficult to understand the origin of the "seven lean years" narrative in the Book of Genesis. The inscriptions as translated by Brugsch show that 1,700 years before the Christian era the Nile for seven consecutive years did not overflow, and famine, pestilence and misery followed. "We know," says the writer, "that the date of the seven years of fruitlessness mentioned in Genesis was 1,700 B. C., and thus what has been looked upon as a fancy has through these hieroglyphics become a matter of history. The failure of the Nile to overflow, the withering of the vegetation, the lands devoid of crops, famine and the consequent scourges are all depicted in the pictures which the student has been able to decipher."

Young Mother—The doctor thinks the baby looks like me. Visitor—Yes. I wanted to say so, but feared you might be offended.

Nurse's Prayer.

Once upon a time a mother told her little son of five to say his morning prayer to her. Kneeling devoutly before her, the little fellow asked:

"Mother, shall I say my prayer or nurse's prayer?"

The mother, not being aware that the nurse ever said any morning prayer, became curious.

"Say nurse's prayer, dear," she answered.

Whereupon the little fellow began solemnly:

"Lord, O Lord, have I got to get up?"

Vanity and Love.

"Do you agree with the woman who says that vanity is a much stronger passion than love?"

"Well, I know that there is a greater demand for mirrors than for valentines."

He Called It.

"I have never seen him contribute a cent."

Interesting Discourse On Conditions of Planet Mars

Dr. Marsh Explains in Simple Words His Chosen Subject—Animal Life on Mars

A COMPARISON MADE

A meeting of the Astronomical Society was held last night in the parlours of the Y.W.C.A. with a fairly good attendance. Sheriff Hall occupied the chair and Rev. Dr. Marsh delivered an address on "The Planet Mars." Previous to the address Mr. Herbert Collier told of his observations with the society's telescope. The following were proposed for admission: Messrs. J C Shook, Jas. Connal, Frank Schneider, and Mr. and Mrs. Rich. Hall and Mrs. R A Campbell.

Dr. Marsh said he would try and give an idea of Mars that would be understood. The sun has a family, he said. It is a star, and so bright that it obliterates all other stars. If it were less brighter, stars would be seen in daytime. Our sun is a star of the second order, and not of the second magnitude. The magnitude of the stars is their brightness as seen by us. The bluish-white stars are of the first order, the yellow stars of the second, the red of the third, and so on.

Dr. Marsh explained how the sun's family was composed of grown-up people who have names, and millions of lesser satellites that will never be named. Venus, with the exception of Eros, is the nearest planet to the sun. The earth has the next position, then Jupiter, Uranus, and Mars in a row.

A planet has no light of its own, but a star possesses light. Therefore the earth is a planet. The inner planets are nearer the sun. Dr. Marsh explained, as likewise he did with the outside, major and minor stars.

Mars is approximately 4,200 miles in diameter, and is not as large as the earth. Dr. Marsh said Mars is flattened at its poles on account of its rotary motion.

The superficial attraction on Mars is appreciably less than that on the earth. Mars rotates in 24 hours, 37 minutes and 22 3-4 seconds, a little slower than that of the earth. The inclination of the earth is 23 1-2 degrees, but that of Mars is 24 degrees and 50 minutes, a little increase in inclination.

Mrs. (Dr.) Emmett of South Parkdale, Toronto, assisted Mrs. Sells at her reception on Thursday, returning home last evening.

The friends of Miss Muriel Scott, daughter of Reeve Scott of Smith, will be pleased to learn that she is recovering from her recent illness.

Tickets for the Deep Sea Mission at home on January 1st, may be secured for $1 from the Honorary Secretary, R. H. Marlow, Bank of Commerce.

The Rt. Rev. Bishop Reeve, assistant Bishop of Toronto, will arrive in the city this afternoon, and to-morrow will perform the rite of confirmation at St. John's and St. Luke's churches. While in the city he will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. Montizambert.

Mr. W G Pattello, electrician, of Toronto, is in the city representing the Fred Armstrong Company, contractors for the electrical work in the new Normal School. Mr. Pattello is in charge of the installation of the conduit work of this Government building, in which he is an expert. Mr. Duncan MacGregor, of the firm of MacGregor & Reid, states that Mr. Pattello, in former years, worked with him as his apprentice, when engaged on the electrical work of the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, and is rather proud of the fact that one of his former helpers should be assigned similarly important work on the Normal School in this city.

WOMAN FAINTS IN A RUNAWAY

Farmer's Horses Try to Break Loose on The Market

A runaway occurred this morning on Water street which did not result damage but a woman fainted from the fright. The horses were near the market when suddenly they became frightened and started on a lively run. Near the corner of Water and Simcoe streets they were stopped but the woman who was on the seat with the driver was beginning to faint and had to be supported by her husband while another man managed the restless team. The woman was taken to Ormsby and Walsh's store and restoratives revived her. The runaway doubtless startled the women as the horses were making a desperate effort to get away.

NEW HORSESHOE FORGING AHEAD

The Diamond Caulk Endorsed And Approved—Peterboro' Firm Reaps a Benefit

In a brief interview to-day with Mr. H. P. Kennedy, further particulars were gained of the encouraging progress being made in connection with the Diamond Calk Horse Shoe Company, of which that gentleman is the president and managing director.

Mr. Kennedy has returned from a second visit to the United States, where he has been engaged in successfully demonstrating the practical merits of the patent horse shoe.

In Chicago he succeeded in enlisting the attention of representatives of such wealthy firms, as the Marshall Field Company, who employ a very large number of horses, and use up a correspondingly large number of horse-shoes. In every case practical horsemen, connected with these firms, fell in love with the Diamond Calk Horseshoe at first sight. In Rochester, where Mr. Kennedy spent nearly a week the same unboundedd confidence was manifested for the new patent. Several of the largest public utilities and institutions of the city, employing hundreds of horses, have had their interests aroused to such an extent that arrangements are in motion for a further practical demonstration of the utility of the winter shoe with the calks.

What, perhaps, will be fully as interesting news to Peterborough citizens is the fact that a large amount of money is being paid out in the city every week to different firms for material and work in connection with the manufacture of these horseshoes. While the company is not in any position as yet to satisfy even a small percentage of the urgent orders coming in from quarters where the value of the shoe has already become known, it is doing what it can. The Peterborough Machine Company, under the management of Mr. R. Wilson, has all its employees except one working night and day on these shoes, putting out the calks and plates, and putting them together. The Peter Hamilton Company also has a number of its employees engaged in punching and cutting out the retaining plates for the powerful plate. Several local blacksmiths are also working punches on them. For wages alone about one hundred dollars per week is at present being paid out by the company, while some of our hardware firms and others are being paid large amounts for material, etc. An Ingersoll screw factory has already had orders for 60,000 screws, and another manufacturer an order for 18,000 piece plates. These facts not only furnish some idea of the bona fide character of this horseshoe invention, but they also serve to show the industrial value which the company has already become to the city, although its operations are still in their infancy.

The Peterborough Light and Power Co, wishes to remind its customers that Monday, Dec. 16, is the last day discount will be allowed on November accounts. The office will be open during the evening of the 14th and 16th from 8 p m to 11 p. m.

Are You Left Eared?

"Left eared?" said the young lady from the telephone exchange.

She did not know, so he tested her, finding, sure enough, that her left ear was a little the acuter of the two.

"It is a natural thing," he said. "You girls use the left ear exclusively all day long in your telephone work, and the right ear has nothing to do; hence the left, like a muscle, develops, the right atrophies.

"At the unveiling of Rodin's bust of Henley in Westminster abbey," said a New York editor, "a number of good stories were told about the great poet.

"H. G. Wells praised Henley's conduct of the New Review. Of course this periodical failed, yet it was undoubtedly the best edited magazine of the last century. In it Henley introduced to the world new writers of such distinction as Joseph Conrad, Kenneth Grahame, W. B. Yeats, Mr. Wells himself and so on. One day as Mr. Wells and Henley stood in the office of the magazine discussing rather sadly its gloomy prospects a funeral went by with slow pace. Henley leaned out of the window and looked at the funeral anxiously. Then he turned to his companion and said, with a worried frown:

"'Can that be our subscriber?'"

Memorial to Dr. Barnardo.

An imposing memorial is to be erected over the grave of Dr. Barnardo. The work has been entrusted to Mr. George Frampton, R. A., who hopes to have is completed for unveiling on "Founder's Day" next year. By his own special desire Dr. Barnardo was buried in the centre of the green at the model village of Barkingside, Essex, which he created. At present the grave is covered by a plain stone slab. The memorial is to be 15 feet in height. On the summit of the stone pedestal is a bronze group of three figures, a mother and children, symbolising "Protection." A portrait medallion of Dr. Barnardo is at the side, and at the base three children are seated.

Cald Maclean's Captivity.

The question of Raisuli's residence still blocks the way for negotiations for the release of Caid Sir Harry Maclean. The grant of $60,000 to Raisuli is made conditional on his abiding in Tangier, which he never dared to enter even when he was governor. As a British protege, Raisuli would, in case of misconduct, have to obey the summons of the British authorities, or forego the protection.

Caid Maclean has now been a prisoner for twenty weeks. As an exhibition of impotence, the negotiations are unexampled.

MAGIC OF THE BASS.

Memories of the Battle That Linger With the Angler.

"The Indians call it 'Me-da Mon-nuh-she-gan,' which translated means magic bass. He is said to be much like other black bass in appearance. But his peculiar attributes are these:

"He must be caught by casting, with a surface bait, so that you can see him rise to it. He may be taken in running water where the clear current foams over mossy bowlders and through gurgling, sunlit shallows or in the silent pools where the forest hangs darkly over the stream. He may be taken at some still lake's grassy marge, where the water lilies build him a green and white and golden canopy, or in the open places when the west wind's magic turns the glassy surface into silver.

"But wherever you find him you will see that nature rules supreme. And whether in brawling stream or quiet pool, in some peaceful lilied bay or just beneath the rippled broad expanse, where the wild beauty of the spot makes your heart beat faster, here may you find the magic bass.

"And this is his magic: That when you have fought him inch by inch and have looked upon him as he lay exhausted in your landing net you are his forever. For wherever you go and whatever you do there will come to you ever and often a dream of his first leap into the air, of the tugging line and of his body at your feet, and indistinct behind it all lie the sparkling water and the forest and the blue sky.

"In the dead of winter you will of a sudden hear the soft splash of the bass rising to your fly, you will feel the sudden tautness of the line, and the snow outside your window will melt into a summer landscape. When you are busiest there will come to you the song of the reel and the smell of pine and fir and balsam. That is the magic of the Me-da Mon-nuh-she-gan."—Outing Magazine.

Various Kinds of Meteors.

"Meteors" and "meteorologists" have little in common, although their origin is identical. "Meteor" meant a good many more things to Englishmen of a few generations ago than it does now, in accordance with the meaning of the Greek adjective, which signified "up in the air," so that "ta meteora," the things up in the air, meant the heavenly bodies. Winds and whirlwinds were aerial meteors formerly in English, clouds, snow and rain were aqueous meteors, and among luminous meteors were reckoned rainbows and twilight. Meteorology preserves the memory of all this, but the word "meteor" has gone over altogether to the astronomer's sphere.

Infinitesimal Shears.

A clever workman in a cutlery factory in Sheffield, England, made a dozen pairs of shears, each so minute that they altogether weigh less than half a grain. That is about the weight of a postage stamp. Each pair is perfect and will cut if sufficiently delicate material could be found. Lying on a piece of white paper they seem no larger than fleas.

Epochs in Canadian Development

THE great elements in the nation-making of Canada were, I take it, the century struggle between French and English for the possession of this continent; the American Revolution and the incoming of the Loyalists, together with the succeeding war of 1812; the immigration and political struggles of 1820–60; the Confederation of the Provinces; the ensuing conflict in a thousand directions between United States influences and tendencies and British traditions and sentiment; the practical discovery of Canada's resources and possibilities at the beginning of the present century.

The Century Struggle.

The French and English Wars moulded the early character of the respective settlers in America, considerably modified the type of its peoples in a distinctive racial sense, and largely contributed to the creation of the separate nations north and south. It was a dramatic preface to the ensuing roll-call of history. Battles in North America, from the beginning of the seventeenth to the end of the eighteenth century, did not resemble military conflicts elsewhere. No such splendid natural setting for the contest between France and England which belted the world was anywhere else provided. During much of the period when the respective Mother Countries were at war—and frequently when they were resting and recuperating during an interval of apparent peace—the broad aisles of the primeval forests of America, the stormy waters of immense inland seas, the untrodden mazes of an illimitable wilderness, constituted the environment of a determined struggle. Around and about the opposing forces echoed the war-whoop of the savage. Over the head of the beaten white man—French or English—rested the shadow of the scalping-knife.

The American Revolution.

It is often forgotten that Wolfe's famous victory which ended this struggle did more than win the greater part of this continent for Great Britain. It made the United States possible. Had the leader who toiled up the Heights on that eventful night with his gallant army been able to look but a few years into the future, it is possible that much of the fire of victory would have gone out of his heart, and much of the happiness of his last moments been marred. The fear of the French was removed from the minds of the Colonists on the Atlantic Coast and for it was soon substituted a growing feeling of independence toward the Mother Country. It was not, in too many cases, the independence which might have said to Great Britain as Canada does to-day: "I will stand beside you as an equal." It was rather the independence which declared that "I can stand without you and in defiance of you."

Loyalists and War.

Out of the Revolution of 1776 came the Loyalist settlement of Upper Canada, and the Atlantic Provinces. Out of the conditions immediately preceding it, and associated with the struggle itself, came the British cultivation of French-Canadian loyalty and the toleration of French institutions. Into the pioneer activities of the struggling peoples on the St. Lawrence, the Great Lakes, and upon the Atlantic shores, was interjected the War of 1812 with all the nation-making qualities which only a life and death conflict can afford. In the upbuilding of Canada this struggle holds, I think, a place similar in its national import to that of the Revolution in American history. It consolidated the British sentiment of the whole population from the shores of Lake Huron to the coasts of the Atlantic. It eliminated much of the disloyal element which was beginning to eat into the vitals of Provincial life in Upper Canada, and modified in some measure the force of the American spirit which remained in the hearts of some section of the settlers. It checked the growth of republicanism amongst the French of Lower Canada, and prevented the rebellion of 1837 in that Province from being the rising of a whole people united in political sympathies with the greater population to the south. It made the authorities of the Roman Catholic Church in the same part of the country feel once more, as they did when the Continental Congress of 1775 attacked the Quebec Act, that the only visible danger to what they considered the sacred rights and privileges of their faith came from the other side of the international line. It, for a time, brought Canadians of French and English and American extraction together in defence of their hearths and homes, and laid in this way an almost invisible foundation for that seemingly vain vision—the permanent federal union of British America for purposes of common interest, defence and government.

Settlement and Political Evolution.

From the early conditions of French Canada, the Loyalist settlers of the other Provinces, and the later immigration of the "twenties," there evolved political parties which made, or marred, the history of the first half of the nineteenth century. Loyalists and settlers of the gentry class from the Old Land, soldiers and ex-officers of the Army, Highlanders and immigrants of Tory antecedents, strong Church of England supporters, Orangemen and the bulk of the professional class, office-holders by an almost inherited right, formed the Tory party which dominated affairs until the days of the Rebellion of 1837 and Lord Durham's brief administration. Scotch and other Radicals from the old soil, Americans of republican sympathy or allegiance, office-seekers of good or evil type, discontented elements of all kinds, and men of more moderate views who naturally objected to permanent Tory ascendency, formed the earlier Liberal party, and the followers of Mackenzie in Upper Canada, or of Reform principles in the Maritime Provinces. Inextricably bound up with these political questions and the character of the people were the religious or denominational rivalries of the time.

Finally, however, there came recognition of the principle of equality under the law for all denominations in the English-speaking Provinces. By this time (1854) the Seigneurial Tenure system in Quebec, or Lower Canada, had also disappeared, and with it the last official and formal link with feudal France. But people and parties in the French Canadian Province remained in character and customs much as they were in the days of the conquest, through the period of that flash of folly called the Rebellion of 1837, and even in the three decades following the Legislative union with Upper Canada in 1841. Then, in Upper Canada and the Maritime Provinces, and to a less influential degree in Lower Canada, the great immigration of the middle of the century took place, and the basis was laid for later political conditions and for Confederation. Hundreds of thousands of people poured into the Provinces from Great Britain and Ireland—changing the entire character of the country; clearing the still vast forests of the interior like magic; modifying in some cases and increasing in others the asperities of party warfare; building up the villages into towns and a few of the towns into cities; turning the isolated hut of the pioneer into the comfortably furnished home of a prosperous farmer. Corduroy or planked roads gave way to macadamized thoroughfares, and then the whistle of the locomotive began to be heard in the land, and steamers commenced to plough the Great Lakes and to pass through newly-constructed canals down the St. Lawrence to Montreal or Quebec.

Dominion Unity.

By Confederation in 1867, a common Canadian centre of thought and local loyalty was created and the discussion of common interests rendered possible. Trade between the Provinces developed, and the first faint indications of a local or national patriotism, as distinct from the wider impulses of Imperial loyalty, became visible. Parties in Ontario and Quebec gradually and steadily evolved upon other than the racial and religious lines which had immediately followed the Union of 1841. The union of the Provinces by railways and commerce, the expansion of the Dominion to the waters of the far Pacific, the evolution of protectionism and its acceptance in 1878, the creation of a continental railway in 1886, the change of parties into two great national organizations, distinct—in the main though not entirely—from sectionalism and sectarianism, followed in the general process of national development.

United States and British Influences.

With internal unity had come a check to the rapidly-growing dependence upon United States trade and tariff reciprocity, as embodied in the Treaty of 1854–66. This was at first its greatest value. It was only a check, however. There followed a long, varied and sometimes confusing struggle between the under-currents of American and British sentiment or influence. The fiscal hostility of the United States ran through every page of these later annals as an alternate policy of coercion and conciliation;—always with a more or less veiled belief that "manifest destiny" must in the end compel the assimilation of Canada with its own powerful community. Its influence had already affected the school-books and educational systems of the Provinces, the political character of the people, the earlier phases of banking legislation, and the social manners and customs of all the country outside of Quebec. Its journalism had indirectly controlled and modified the press of Canada; and its literature in the later form of cheap magazines and multitudinous books of an ephemeral character has since swept the whole field of Canadian readers. Its cable service from London to New York controlled the news columns of the Canadian press, as it did the pages of American papers. Its superior wealth and great financial and industrial resources have frequently manipulated Canadian markets and affected the welfare of most vital Canadian interests.

Upon the other hand, the contiguity of the United States has had a centrifugal as well as a centripetal effect. Proximity has made Canadians aware of the anomalies of its constitution, the admitted corruption of its politics, the inequalities in its treatment of colored peoples, the evils of its elective judicial system, the extreme sensationalism and untrustworthiness of a part of its press and (up to the year 1898 and the Spanish War) the bitterness of its popular feeling towards England. The very power and population of the United States have helped to keep Canada loyal to the Empire. Pressure of this kind forced, or helped to force, the Provinces into Confederation, and knowledge of the greatness of the Republic and the competition of its boundary, fishery, trade and tariff interests with those of Canada have prevented the growth of that independence sentiment in the Dominion which so many British politicians of earlier days were afraid of, and which it might have been thought the French-Canadians themselves would favor. Hostile expressions and an aggressive policy towards Canada and Britain, however, coupled with this knowledge of American defects in character, institutions and politics, did more than discourage independence agitation and sentiment. They destroyed the probability or possibility of Annexation, although there was a time from 1888 to 1891 when danger in this direction really appeared to threaten Canada.

The tempting bait of Reciprocal trade and tariff unity was, however, refused, the British tendencies triumphed, all parties accepted the result and the sliding scale of sentiment turned towards Imperial unity. Then came the Preferential Tariff of the Laurier Government, the Confederation of Australia, the South African War, the Colonial Conferences of 1887, 1897, 1902 and 1907, the evolution of cables and steamship lines, the practical settlement of Canada's destiny along lines of union with the Empire and absolute independence of continental control.

Material Progress.

The discovery of Canada in a material sense really occurred at the beginning of this century. Between 1901 and 1906 the assets of its chartered banks increased $236,000,000; its ordinary Federal revenues jumped up $28,000,000; its correspondence (letters) increased 123,000,000 in number; its railways carried 9,000,000 more passengers and 21,000,000 more tons of freight in 1906 than in 1901, and earned $53,000,000 more; its total trade increased by $164,000,000; its total shipping rose from sixty to eighty million tons; its manufacturing output was estimated to have increased $150,000,000. One year's history now is like that of a decade in the past. In 1906 Cobalt was developed, $60,000,000 was spent in railway building, bank clearings aggregated in thirteen centres $659,000,000 more than in 1905, the Western Provinces produced 200,000,000 bushels of grain. Everywhere there is progress and evolution; discovery of resources in untouched mineral wealth, inexhaustible timber supplies, illimitable agricultural areas and fruitful fisheries; multiplying railways, expanding trade.

"The Cloth Puppy"

— BY —
CATHARINE WELCH

HE WAS not beautiful, the Cloth Puppy. Nor did he possess that horrid fascination belonging to a toy of extreme ugliness; he was merely plain. At first sight of him the Girl found him decidedly uninteresting. Perhaps when they gave him to her —it was on her sixth birthday—there was even a trifle of contempt in her round-eyed gaze as she took the proffered gift under her arm and bore him off solemnly nursery-wards. There on the nursery shelf he sat for almost a week, in all his newness of unspotted white calico and shining shoe-button eyes, a very lonely little toy indeed. And then one day the Girl met with a grief.

Her dearest possession, a truly-really dog, died, and her big eyes were red with weeping as she followed her brother out into the back garden where the dead pet was to be buried. This brother of hers was the greatest hero in the world. He was eleven, and had real lessons, and was a person to be feared and admired always.

The presence of her brother, and the elaborate funeral ceremony he concocted in honor of her dead dog, perhaps consoled the Girl a little in her loss. Still, she was wide-eyed with grief as she knelt on the grass and watched the small coffin being lowered into the grave.

Suddenly the brother was struck with an idea. "I tell you what we'll do, Sis!" he exclaimed.

Sorrow made the child dull. "Yes?" she said, indifferently.

"Yes!" he cried, "we'll bury the Cloth Puppy too. That's what they used to do over in the East. When a man died they used to bury his wife alive in the same grave with him."

The boy's eyes shone with enthusiasm.

"But," objected the Girl," "the Cloth Puppy wasn't his wife."

"Pooh! that doesn't matter. Just like a girl. Here, hand him over, Sis."

Obediently the child fetched from the nursery shelf her new toy, and then dully watched herself robbed in a moment of her two treasures, the real dog, taken by the doggie angels —so said Mamma—and the Cloth Puppy, that, only now, when she was about to lose him, she learned to value, sacrificed to the enthusiasm of her brother.

"I wish I had my Cloth Puppy back again," she said, dolefully, as the last toy spadeful of earth fell on the grave.

"Nonsense! He must stay there, of course," said the autocrat brother.

But even the six-year-old worm will turn, though the tyrant is a worshipped brother.

That night she looked sadly at the vacant space on the nursery shelf where the Cloth Puppy had been wont to stand.

In bed she cried for her dead-and-gone dog, that, every night till now, had slept on top of the tufted coverlet by her side. And then she thought of her other dog—the Cloth Puppy. If only he were there he could sleep by her side and ease her loneliness. Why had she let herself be robbed of him, just when she needed him most. Why, indeed?

She raised a cry to heaven. "I want my Cloth Puppy! I want him! I want him!" she wailed.

The bare feet pattered over the floor to her brother's room across the corridor.

"I want my Cloth Puppy back! Come, dig him up!" she demanded; and, in the face of determination, eleven years yielded to six.

Hand in hand the two children stole down the stairs and tiptoed past the drawingroom, where the big folk were sitting, out into the back garden. Shivering in the summer evening, the Girl stood and watched her brother dig up the new grave.

"Here he is, Sis," said he, a little awed at such determination from his meek little sister.

With the Cloth Puppy—rather earthy, it's true, but safe again—clasped to her breast, the little girl crept up the stairs contented.

Next morning, when Nurse came to wake her, she found the child peacefully asleep, the Cloth Puppy still held tight in her little arms.

"Nurse," said she, seriously, as she opened her eyes, "will you please see that the ruffles on my nightdress are done up soft? The little starchy prickles hurt my Cloth Puppy."

The nurse laughed, but the child got her way.

And so began the friendship of the Girl and the Cloth Puppy.

He never had any name but just that—the Cloth Puppy; though sometimes when they two were all alone the Girl called him "dearie," and then his little sawdust heart beat rapturously, and he struggled so hard, but always in vain, to wag his stiff cloth tail. It was then, when they were all alone together, usually at night, and when the Puppy nestled against the soft white ruffles, that the Girl told him things.

Only he knew the tears she shed because her straight black hair would never, never curl, and her face was white instead of rosy as other children's were, and her little legs were so thin her brother sometimes cruelly compared them to bean-poles. Clasped to his little mistress's heart, his shoe-button eyes grew bright with the tears he could not shed, and he snuggled even closer to her to try to show the sympathy he felt.

The Girl and he were inseparable always. In the daytime they worked and played together in the nursery and in the back garden all sorts of queer little games. Sometimes they escaped the vigilant eye of Nurse and made their way softly down into the big empty drawingroom—forbidden ground, where tall, smooth-topped tables held all sorts of fascinating things, and the Cloth Puppy sank up to his knees in the deep pile of the soft Eastern rugs.

Sometimes they spent hours making up fairy stories together, as they sat on the floor in front of the nursery fire or lay awake in bed. Then the Girl was a beautiful princess, with every charm except curling locks—even in a half-awake dream, imagination could not bring about so great a thing as that. And the Puppy was a noble greyhound, or else a prancing steed with silver trappings.

At other times in their day-dreams the Girl was an unhappy neglected child, with a cruel step-mother and unkind step-sisters. And then the Cloth Puppy was, of course, her fairy god-mother, and at the end of the story the Girl always drove off in a grand satin-lined coach to marry a charming Prince; and—must it be confessed?—leaned her head out of the window to stick out her tongue scornfully at the wicked and envious relatives she left behind.

Playing and dreaming and sometimes working together, the Girl and the Cloth Puppy grew older, but stayed firm friends as ever they were. The Girl showed the passing years more plainly. Her wept-for hair at first was plaited and then done up in a knot on the top of her head, so that its straightness was no longer noticeable. Lengthening skirts, too, covered up the legs whose thinness had caused so many tears.

The Puppy grew older, too. His cloth coat was dirtier, and one of his ears had lost its jaunty erectness, and the tail, whose unfeeling stiffness had been such a trial to him, now hung down limp and wagged itself—sometimes most inopportunely—when one joggled him. But—he was a puppy still. Faithful and sympathetic as ever, he snuggled each night against the unstarched ruffles, and listened to the whispered confidences that now took the place of the fairy stories. Did he understand? The shoe-button eyes never blinked, and yet, who can say the sawdust heart beat as steadily as usual when, one night, the Girl caught him in her arms and, with a little cry, kissed his snub nose and murmured into the drooping ear that she was "the happiest girl in all the world"?

Soon the Cloth Puppy was a witness of such doings as few masculine eyes ever see; the trying on of delicate lacey garments and silky tea-gowns and of one white shining satin-frock—the wedding-dress.

At last, one day, the wedding-dress was put on, and as he stood on one corner of the dressing-table the unwinking eyes of the Cloth Puppy took in admiringly every fold of shining satin and every line of his dear mistress's face.

Then came a voice from below. "Hurry, Sis. It's time to start!" and then the Girl snatched up the puppy and held him against the soft laces at her throat so that she could look down into the shoe-button eyes and kiss the snubby nose.

"I'm going to leave you, dearie," she said. "Good-bye!" and, laying him back quickly on the dressing-table, she lifted up her soft draperies and hurried away.

The Cloth Puppy watched her go, and into his sawdust throat came a big lump. Perhaps, in her haste, the Girl set him too near the edge of the dressing-table. At any rate, overbalancing, he fell and rolled into a dark corner. And there he lay, all alone, until a maid, sweeping the room some days later, found him.

"Here's the toy dog the young mistress was fond of," said she. "Where shall I put him?"

"Away in the garret with her other toys," was the reply.

* * * * * * * *

The Girl is a woman now, with little girls of her own; and, now and then, her children visit her old home and climb the steep garret stairs to look at the toys "Mother used to play with when she was little."

CHEERFUL YESTERDAYS AND PLEASANT REFLECTIONS—THIS GREAT STORE GIVING GREATER VALUES AND GROWS BETTER ALL THE TIME

Cheerful yesterday's and pleasant reflections are encouraging for resolution to make the to-morrow's even brighter. The sound business principles which have kept an establishment moving prosperously for over half a century must give to it the highest place in the public estimation and secures for it the largest portion of the public trade.

It is because of these facts, that the readers of The Christmas Examiner will be interested in a brief recapitulation of some of the leading facts and factors incident to the rise and salient growth of the firm of Messrs. Richard Hall & Son, Limited, 353 George Street, who have become one of the business landmarks of Peterborough.

One of the unique advantages of this splendid store as a shopping centre lies in their possession of unrivalled facilities as direct importers. This was the first firm in Peterborough who imported dry goods, carpets, etc., from European manufacturers, and they are to-day admitted to be the largest importers for spot cash in the city. Representatives of the firm have been annually crossing the Atlantic and visiting the Continental markets on purchasing tours, Mr. S. Dickson Hall, the present manager, having personally, made twenty-four European trips in the interests of his house.

MR. RICHARD HALL, PRESIDENT
WHO HAS BEEN CONNECTED WITH THE BUSINESS FOR 40 YEARS

It is also worthy of note that the founders of this business were the originators of the Big Canadian Dry Goods Syndicate, in which sixteen of the largest and best stores throughout Ontario are concerned, embracing one store in each city and town. The idea of this syndicate was to combine in buying from the European manufacturers as one mammoth concern with the object of securing all the available discounts. This meant that goods are purchased by this syndicate at as low a price as any of the largest importing houses on the continent. Every one of these syndicate stores are the acknowledged leaders in their business throughout the various centres in which they are located. The result is that manufacturers in Europe always give a preference to the members of this syndicate and confine their goods to the respective stores embraced therein before showing to other stores—a privilege which confers upon them the choice of the newest goods as they are placed on the market, ahead of the season.

But perhaps the most remarkable feature of this firm's growth is the wonderful increase of business since Richard Hall & Son took it over—its constant improvement—its "growing better" all the time and all along the line, a fact never so much in evidence as at the present time. Indeed, their ambition never flags; for, on being asked, the firm would not deny that they are still contemplating and planning for greater premises. A representative of the Examiner was shown a private statement of the daily sales of this firm during the last forty years, in which there was abundant evidence to prove that the business of this busy house has developed in an undreamed-of manner, especially during the past few years.

MR. S. DICKSON HALL, MANAGER
WHO HAS MADE TWENTY-FOUR TRIPS ACROSS THE ATLANTIC IN THE INTERESTS OF THE FIRM

Attention is directed to the large page advertisement in another section of this issue. The novelty of this advertisement cannot fail to attract the eye of every reader of the Examiner. While a mere glance through the front door is sufficient assurance of the variety and exclusiveness of the stock, and a close examination which seems to follow irresistably, discloses hundreds of pretty and practical remembrances that seems to "just hit the right place," a perusal of this unique advertisement will well repay shoppers.

Besides the attractive display of goods, the store is decorated appropriately for the holiday trade; and a trip through the fairy-like aisles, flanked by evergreens, Christmas bells and other decorations, is a pleasure, even though one does not wish to buy.

A CHRISTMAS THOUGHT.

LUCY LARCOM.

Oh! Christmas is coming again, you say,
And you long for the things he is bringing;
But the costliest gift may not gladden the day,
Nor help on the merry bells ringing.
Some getting is losing, you understand;
Some hoarding is far from saving;
What you hold in your hand may slip from your hand;
There is something better than having;
We are richer for what we give;
And only by giving we live.

Your last year's presents are scattered and gone;
You have almost forgot who gave them;
But the loving thoughts you bestow live on
As long as you choose to have them.
Love, love is your riches, though ever so poor;
No money can buy that treasure;
Yours always, from robber and rust secure,
Your own without stint or measure.
It is only love that we can give;
It is only by loving we live.

For who is it smiles through the Christmas morn—
The light of the wide creation?
A dear little Child in a stable born,
Whose love is the world's salvation.
He was poor on earth, but He gave us all
That can make our life worth the living;
And happy the Christmas day we call
That is spent for His sake in giving.
He shows us the way to live;
Like Him let us love and give!

Christmas in the Orient

Specially written for this issue

By SAINT NIHAL SINGH (I.I.I., P.G.)

"YOU are a lobbyist," spake a genial voice from across the hotel counter.

"Indeed, I am," I returned the banter good-humoredly. "I am quite engrafted on Canadian soil," I added quickly.

I took particular care to emphasize a syllable after my questioner's style. The imitation evidently pleased the man.

This colloquy took place in the lobby of a swell hotel in Toronto. My questioner, I had never met before. No CARDS were exchanged. No introductions made. He and I got to talking with each other as little kids accidentally thrown together. The frankness and geniality of my friend impressed me. Before he got through with me that day I had cheerfully accepted his invitation to spend my next Christmas at his country residence.

The sweet memories of the Christmas I spent with him come back to me with life-like vividness during my moments of mental reverie and introspection. Never did I have more genuine fun in my life. Never had I tasted better dishes. Never had I heard more delicious music. Never was I surrounded by more lovely girls and boys. Everything about me looked sweet, sunny and smiling. My friend's home, its inmates and guests appeared, in my sight, consecrated and blessed.

Throughout that Christmas week my thoughts ran homeward. I constantly mused on that old saw which even in our own times has not become "toothless," that prophets are not honored in their age and native land.

Born in the Orient, Christ's religion is essentially Oriental in its nature and make-up. It has been engrafted on the European soul. It has taken root. And it is now being passed to the Orient with "Occidental" stamped across its face.

Along these lines ran my thoughts and musings last Christmas. Every thing around me indicated how happy the people were to have arrived at that part of the year when, according to Saint Augustine's reckoning, one thousand nine hundred and six years ago, an Oriental was born to save the souls of sinners. Everything about me seemed resonant with life, heartily rejoicing at the nativity of Christ Jesus in the far Eastern Holy Land.

What about Christians in the Orient?—I asked myself and every one around me asked me coaxingly.

What about Christmas in the Orient? kept echoing and re-echoing within myself. What about Christmas in the Orient? the echo keeps reverberating as the Christmas of the year one thousand nine hundred and seven draws nigh.

I do not feel disposed to question the truth of the "saw" I quoted above. I doubt me if I wish to adduce any psychological phenomena to trace its cause.

But the Orient has not forgotten its Christ Jesus. Asia celebrates the Nativity of Christ. Only the self-sufficient Occidental knows it not.

Not that in the Orient we do not have people who ape Western men and things. I have averred before this that the world could never have conceived this ape-theory, which we call evolution, but for the apishness of some of us ADVANCED Orientals. These Orientals with half-imbibed Western ideas celebrate the Nativity of Christ Jesus with as much zeal and fervor as the Occidental Christians do in Europe and America.

A TYPICAL HINDOO FAMILY.

The native transplanted from across the seas.

The native Christian in the Orient celebrates his Christmas much the does same as does the Canadian in Canada. To be more accurate, his ideas and practices of celebrating his Christmas are fashioned largely after the American and European models. No wonder that it is so, when you consider that they are derived from these sources.

The Christmas of the native Christian Oriental is a gala-day celebration. It is his heyday of glitter and gold. The Oriental pageantry and pomp, glory and revel come to the surface and find expression with a sumptuousness that is displayed by and becomes the Oriental alone. The rich imagery of the Oriental runs riot, the fertile brain of the Oriental is given unbridled play, the irrepressible æsthetic nature of the Oriental is allowed to have its freest course. The three combined produce wonderfully splendid spectacles. The spectre of poverty stalks through the entire Orient, but the effect produced by the Oriental brain and brawn at Christmas time does not show any evidence of having suffered through lack of gold.

To the native Christian in Asia, Christmas time is synonymous with house-cleaning. It signifies house-dusting. It means lime-washing the walls. It implies the scrubbing of the floors. It brings about the dusting, airing and sunning of the furniture. It gives the house, the furniture, the foreclosure and the yard a clean, smart appearance.

Christmas time in the Orient means to the native Christian Oriental a change of attire and raiment; also a change in looks. It signifies change of disposition, temperament and nature. It means an honest endeavour to look pleasant and cheerful. It makes people feel that their faces look none the worse for wearing smiles, that it is no sin to put away their crabbishness, even if it were but for a time, and that it does not injure them or the world if they admire and compliment people a little more enthusiastically instead of giving them everlastingly to the devil.

The streets of the large Oriental towns look clean and pleasant to the eye at Christmas time. Genuine effort is lavished to make the window displays in the stores more effective: actuated by purely selfish, sordid motives no doubt, but the world is none the worse for this exhibition of that selfishness and love for dress.

When fifty-one per cent. of men and women who populate the world come to realize the truth of Spencer's statement, that a person can have all the liberty he wants as long as he does not encroach upon that of others, Utopia will be here. But it will be long before that time actually arrives, and in the Orient, as well as the Occident, will exist a great many people who can not have liberty without becoming libertines.

Not unoften, therefore, at Christmas time the native Christian's Oriental home, tastefully decorated and festooned, artistically ornamented and beautified, is turned into the most hellish of hells. The fiend of Excess seems to have wilily and stealthily stolen in, exercised its insidiously ingenious guiles and reduced the inmates of the house to be its slaves, rendered them perfectly bereft of reason and made them positively distasteful and disgusting to themselves, as well as the outside world.

Drunkenness in an Oriental home is out of place—especially at Christmas time. Rioting and reveling in drink cannot but implant a curse in the home. Gluttony has also a very deleterious effect. It is a shame that they even in a small degree be associated with the festivities of the Christmas season. Drink and gluttony are not Oriental vices, and to a thinking Oriental the spectacle of an Oriental family rioting in drink and making a fool of itself by over-indulging in cookies and pastries at Christmas time can not but be revolting.

There is a redeeming feature, however. The arrival of Christmas means a time of revel and joy and bliss to the children. It means gay and gaudy clothes for them. It brings in its train the Christmas tree, dolls and candies—all the things that Santa Claus is credited with bringing.

And, in the mirth and joy of the children at Christmas time, there is nothing but sweet innocence, nothing that will bring death and sting. Their plays and pranks, their fun and frolic, their jollity and revel are all innocent and sweet.

There is yet another redeeming feature.

Of late the Western Civilization has commenced to make encroachments upon the Oriental institutions. Paradoxical as it may appear, but it is none the less true, that neither individuals nor nations can ape the good without assimilating the bad from the other. A few years ago, I was engaged in gauging the knowledge of Indian vernaculars possessed by an average Englishman in India, and to my intense surprise and mortification, I learned that a very large per cent. of his vocabulary consisted of nothing but cuss words. This is one man's opinion though, but I aver that thoughtless and indiscriminate monkeying with the Occidental civilization will not be a blessing to the Oriental.

One of the noblest Oriental institutions that is being ruthlessly swept away by the introduction of Western civilization is the GROUP or FAMILY life. While in the Occident some socialists are making an effort to organize society into groups so that a GROUP TRUST may be formed, in the Orient Western civilization is tending to produce the opposite effect.

But when the Christmas comes in year after year, for a time at least this pernicious tendency of the splitting up of families is checked. There is once again the family reunion. Cousins, aunts and uncles, distant and near relations, come together and enjoy one another's sweet company, share one another's joys and gladden one another's hearts. One's weal becomes the bliss of another. One's happiness becomes the concern of the other. Every one strives to make every other happy. Each endeavors to curb self and make an effort to not only preserve harmony and good-will, but literally transform the home into a heaven.

Be it understood, though, that the number of the native Christians in the Orient is very limited. They are but a moity when compared with the HEATHEN population. And, such is, therefore, the Christmas of a very small minority of the Oriental population.

But it is not only the native Christians alone who participate in the Christmas festivities. Even heathens do.

No matter how much Westernalized an Oriental may become, you can not divorce him from his inherent characteristics of hospitality and charity. That is essentially the reason that educated Orientals, even though not professing Christianity, deem Christmas to be the season of festivity, and in a measure rejoice with their Christian friends, both Oriental and Occidental. They exchange Christmas cards, good wishes and presents, just as much as their Christian friends do.

In fact, in countries like India, Ceylon, Burma, Straits Settlements and Japan, Christmas celebration is fast becoming a "good fashion," and is assuming the form of a social function more and more.

But a very small percentage of either the Oriental or the Occidental Christians in the Orient devote the Christmas week to prayer and worship. In most Oriental countries the tail end of the year is vacation time, and Christians and non-Christians all unite in having a festive and merry Christmas.

From "What Life Means To Me."

There was something in the natural features of the country where I grew up that gave me my conception of life; a broad vista of rolling ground, a babbling brook, and within twenty miles, the Himalayas in their grandeur.

Recollection carries me back to my childhood. While still clad in pinafores I remember making a practice of clambering on to a window-sill of the left of our house. There, perched like a monkey, my hands gripping the window-casings, I would sit by the hour, gazing into the blue distance of the hills.

My earliest recollections are those of rapt contentment in the rolling country and the mountain cliffs, and the music of the brook. For years I derived inspiration from them in this mute manner. Thus my impulses were birthed and nurtured. All my ambitions, aspirations and desires are bound up with the Himalayas, the undulating land and the streamlet.

The Himalayas doubtless had much to do with investing me with an uplook. My optimism and my triumphant attitude were in no small measure attributable to the influence exerted by the Murrie Hills. They helped to form in me an aspiring habit of mind, a longing for the heights. But the Himalayas did more than this for me. I felt more than an aspiration toward high altitudes. I felt an attraction toward the solid rock of eternal verity.

Thanks to those abstracted gazings at the Murrie and Kashmir cliffs, I have never been tempted to wish for a remission of the price for attaining to higher levels. My desire has always been to reach the mountain tops by steady climbing, not by adventitious means.

And while the Himalayas were my aspirations, inspiring me to conscientious and persevering work, the brook's cheery music engendered within me a sunniness of disposition. I have heard the brook forever singing to me that, like herself, I am a child of eternity—that I am not destined to die but to flow on evermore. The brook exhorted me not to hurry.

"For men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever."

And the rolling country that I was so fond of seeing through my attic window did its work. It figured to my mind how I was destined to be tossed; how my passions and appetites, my desires and ambitions, surged within.

Since early boyhood, the desire to travel has been strong within me. I have roamed through Asia and tramped through North America. I do not travel as does the average globe-trotter. I take my own time, arrange my own itinerary. I earn my way as I go. I have only one boss, and that, myself. The desire to know the rest of the earth and all her peoples conducts me on.

Living with representatives of many nations and religions has given me adaptability—adaptability to any conditions and any manners.

Coming in contact with many civilizations has rubbed off the sense of self-importance, the pride of opinion and the impulse to dominate.

All these have combined to make the world friendly and cordial to me.

I started like the stream which used to sing to me in days agone. I started in a humble way. And, like that stream, as I go along I gain in strength and power. Life has given me to form a part of that big stream, called Evolution. Like the brook, my life flows in sunny shallows, and in deep, still pools. It twists and turns.

I started in life as a reformer.

As a reformer, all I succeeded in doing was to erect a barrier between myself and the world.

I started as a hustler.

It took years for me to learn that in my mad chase after things I went at such a furious pace I ran across the thing I sought, but could not stop at the right moment to take possession of it. I passed and missed the things I most wanted to secure.

* * * * * * *

Life means collaboration.

Everything in the universe seems to co-operate with me. It is my effort and impulse to collaborate with all things.

The "Rapid" Tool Company

LIMITED

A PROSPERING COMPANY THAT IS HELPING TO MAKE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH FAMOUS

PETERBOROUGH has cause to feel a sense of pride and gratification in having permanently located in its midst such a solid and progressive manufactory as that of The Rapid Tool Company, Limited. Although only a few years in existence this Company has built up a lucrative trade that extends throughout the Dominion. Their Bits have proved to be of so high grade a quality that, in a very short period of time, they have gained an enviable reputation.

Of course, a good mechanic wants good tools, and good tools must be made of good material. The many superior points of the celebrated "Rapid" Boring Auger Bits are already so well known that all first class dealers and supply houses carry them and invariably they come back for more.

The steel used in the manufacture of these Bits is made expressly for The Rapid Tool Company by leading steel manufacturers.

The machinery used in the manufacture of the "Rapid" Auger Bits is the latest and best that can be obtained. The most expert workmen are employed in each department, as will be evidenced by the very superior workmanship.

The Company has issued a handsome catalogue and price list, showing well executed half-tones of their varied lines, with a full general classification of the very wide range of different bits manufactured. It also shows boxed sets, canvas rolls, cases, and other handy combinations in which they are put up for the convenience of different tradesmen.

Royal Trout Fishing in Canada's Killarney.

Up in the Lake of Bays, where Five-pounders Tow your Boat away —Stronger than Gamy Bass —They have to be Stunned when Hauled in —Deep Water Salmon that are as Sluggish as Cod.

E. A. BRADFORD.

We took our tickets for The Lake of Bays, but had no intention of stopping there. Years enough ago our unsophisticated imaginations might have been fired by the railway literature with picture things something smaller than whales, accompanied by text assuring all the world that the hotels were gorgeous, and that the surrounding waters "teemed" with bass and trout which any one could catch.

Too well we knew by experience that the same dispensation of Providence which makes rivers flow past great cities also provides that fishing shall be bad in proportion to the excellence of the neighboring hotels—for where the hotels are attractive, there tourists abound, and there is almost a fisherman for each fish. We were looking for something less like the civilized Catskills, something more rural than the Adirondacks, and more like the Wild West before it was almost all irrigated and fenced except the National playgrounds, subject to reservation rules enforced by army officers, and that's no joke.

Such spots are easiest to find now in Canada's Killarney, to the east of the 30,000 isles of Georgian Bay and north of Lake Ontario, but just where this year's selection should be made was left to the casual confidence of the "smoker" on the way. Nor was the reliance mistaken.

A fellow-traveler was going to visit a friend who vouched for fishing and good accommodations in the "Huntsville District." This sounds definite enough until you get there and discover that it is as big as all outdoors, with lakes everywhere and the fates of a year's sport depending upon the choice made while the steamer is waiting to haul in its lines. When the clerk asked where we wanted tickets to, we asked him in despair whether he was a fisherman, and, upon his answering that he was, he was told to supply a ticket to the fish. "Deerhurst," he said, and threw the tickets out.

The Simple Life and Good Fishing.

It cannot be found upon any map or time table, but we had no occasion to regret the choice he made for us. We were in search of the simple life and we found it. Across the lake and in the distance a house or two could be seen, but there was nothing like a settlement. There was not even a country store, or a post office, or a road. In fact, there is but a single building at Deerhurst, but it provided clean beds, fare plain but good, no mosquitoes or malaria, and everything was done for sportsmen by a sportsman, whose eighteen-pound "trout" hangs in the hall with the gunshot wound which was necessary before he could be landed. There are horns, too, and stories about them, but this is a letter about fishing, and the beauty of fishing at Deerhurst is that you can do it all yourself. There are guides, of course, and pleasant fellows they were, but after one or two excursions in their company you prefer to do your own fishing, a catch "all by your lonesome" gaining in attractiveness, whatever it loses in number or weight.

Since this is not an attempt to rival "resort" literature, but a plain recital of a personally conducted excursion, the truth is set down that not every man can catch bass at Deerhurst, and not even the best fisherman can always get them. If it were so the sport would become an industry, and fishermen who take no interest in fish out of the water, would abandon them to that class of fishermen who take interest in fish in the water. The fish in the Lake of Bays have moods and appetites after their puzzling and enticing kind. It is this which gives the sport charm like a lottery. It is the perpetual chance that some day the great prize will come to you which kindles hope eternal and encourages the fisherman to look ever forward, forgetting past ill-luck, and forever seeking solace in future possibilities for past errors and misadventures. No true fisherman is ever "down on his luck," and some of the craft there be who have found profit in applying to serious affairs the comfort and consolation of their fishing philosophy.

A Royal Catch.

There was scant cause for philosophy while we were there. Blank days there were, but they were the exception. It was rare that several two-pounders or three-pounders could not be taken before breakfast, and the catch repeated in the forenoon, or in the afternoon's lengthening shadows. And there was one royal day. The air was still and muggy and from the southwest, what there was of it. It was just such a day as country lads are accustomed to say that the fish will bite. They certainly bit that August afternoon. Three boats were fishing in the same bathtub, so to speak; that is, in the same small likely spot.

Now there are traditions of bass weighing over five pounds, but they are rare. The peculiarity of this catch is that it not only included a five-pounder, but four successive fish averaging nearly five pounds, and that none of the other boats had even a bite. Repeatedly the lucky man's boat was towed by his fish, and yet he returned and caught again where those who had not left the spot could not get a strike. The fish were duly photographed, and a record made before the witnesses for the purpose of entry in The Toronto Star's annual competition. All were taken on a single gut and a six-ounce rod in the manner too familiar for recital.

There is no "salmon" fishing at Deerhurst, but it can be had by canoe trips or buggy rides. We went for these "trout" five times, and drew but a single blank. Twice we got the law's limit. They must be trolled for in the deepest water at midsummer, and fishermen who are accustomed to use light tackle even in tidal waters are aghast at the manner of fishing proposed to them. Our guide produced what he called his lucky rig. It was codfish line with fourteen sinkers, each of them an ounce or more. A horsepower windlass would hardly have been more becoming the noble land-locked "salmon," and as it chanced, although that identical rig caught ten fish on those grounds last year, the lucky spoon would not work this year. So we landed and with a worm or two dug with a paddle point caught real trout, the true thing, the speckled brook beauties, such as are a day's boast at home. These we used for bait, impaling them upon an "Archer spinner," a British bait much liked in Canada because it spins with its mouth closed, and open-mouthed fish are shunned rather than swallowed. Thus we got what the Canadian statute calls a "lake trout." And, truth to say, the catch was disappointing.

No Fight in This Lake Trout.

He came in like a codfish, small blame to him, dangling at the end of, say, two hundred feet of hand line, decorated with all those sash weights, and impeded in his breathing as fish are when they come up quickly from so deep. Nor was he any prettier to look at than to catch in such a manner. He lacked the steely sheen of the true salmon, and had the spots without the brilliancy of the real trout, showing damascened sides like a gun barrel or a haddock when he is yet alive, as few people see them in the city.

Trying another day, we rigged in more orthodox fashion, using copper wire, which required no sinkers. A fish line copper wire has the defects of its qualities. If the angle it makes at the rod's tip is at all sharp it will not pay out or come in to the reel handily. Therefore, in order to get a straight draught from the reel, or nearly straight, it is necessary to sit in the canoe facing the guide, and not facing forward, as it is more agreeable both to passenger and paddler. And after all is said and done, the chance of a kink remains. It happened to us at the cost only of the wire on the reel with is atttachments on the business end, including a leader and spoon which could not be placed in Huntsville. But if a kink be avoided copper wire improves with use, growing softer and smoother, and has been known to be used for years.

RABITTS BAY, LAKE OF BAYS DISTRICT. HIGHLANDS OF ONTARIO.

We rigged again another day with a twisted steel wire line, which developed still other faults. It suffered as much in a day's fishing as a linen or silk line will in a year, and became untrustworthy, strands breaking here and there, and throwing out unpleasant little spicules of steel. Also, it developed a tendency to coil, so that it would not run through the guides well. However, it lasted through two days' fishing, which yielded eight fish, four being the legal limit to a single rod.

This fishing was in sister lakes whose fish, according to local lore, do not mingle, although there is water connection between the lakes. Certain it is that the fish in the two lakes run differently, but there is nothing surprising in that, as Canada has almost as many sorts of fish as it has bodies of water, each of them producing differences in markings and tint, even when the individual fish are of the same species. But it is not true that in these two lakes the fish do not mingle. Both sorts were caught in each lake, and one was even marked with trout spots on one side and with the damascening on the other side.

The fish took indifferently the Archer spinner baited with either minnow or perch, or the Otter spoon. Probably they would have appreciated a striped bass troll, but time was too precious to justify experiments.

Some Weigh Thirty Pounds.

In fishing, as in everything else, it is a pretty good rule to follow the customs of the country. We took these fish to weigh eight, five and three pounds, the latter being perhaps the average, and smaller being quite unusual. Indeed, small land-locked salmon are so rare that there is no minimum fixed in the law, as in the case of other game fish. They run to over thirty pounds, and are often taken up to fifteen. They are a surprisingly strong fish, more muscular than a bass, but lacking the bass's pluck and wind and trickiness.

They do not know how to run their noses under a stone, or how to swim flatwise instead of following their noses with the hook in them, nor to leap from the water and fall back upon a tautoned line. Feeling the barb, they give a rush straight away of amazing vigor, then they either give up or swim toward the rod until it almost seems as though they were off the hook, and at the last they give another rush, which is trying to tackle and deftness in management of net and rod. Finally, when even moderate-sized fish are taken into the boat it is necessary to stun them with a blow or they would be all over the boat, or out of it, in their leapings. It is good sport enough, but not like fishing with the fly for the ouaniniche of Lake St. John. Sometimes great quantities are taken, one man not being ashamed to admit to us having caught one hundred and three on the line. The natives net and salt them, and they do so most successfully in the spawning season, thus killing the goose which would lay golden eggs for them indefinitely if they showed more moderation. As it is, the time is near when Canada's remotest streams will have been combed over as thoroughly as the American.

Into the Wilds on a Palace Car.

The waters we visited were either spring-fed or drained from forest-clad hill sides. There were almost no streams, and actually none where fly-fishing was practicable. We heard of fly-fishing in regions familiar to the curb market, in Cobalt, Nipissing and along the French and Maganetawan Rivers. It is seldom necessary to pack into that country. Almost anywhere construction trains will take passengers, even if the regular trains are not taking passengers. And Easterners will ride upon Canadian roads with the same surprise that they discover that travel west of Chicago is in some respects more comfortable than east of it. Far past the country of sawn lumber and barbed wire, many miles beyond split rails and hewn posts, beyond the stump fences built by loggers, and in the country where you look up to the horizon as from the bottom of an enormous bowl, ranging with the eye over countless miles of pathless forest, with never a discoverable trace of human foot or axe, even there the cafe car and the sleeper will take you as quickly and luxuriously as to the Saranac or the White Mountains.

There is a perennial nobleness and even sacredness in work. Were he ever so benighted and forgetful of his high calling, there is always hope in a man who actually and earnestly works.—Carlyle.

The fool worries because he can't have what he would like, and the wise man takes comfort in enjoying the things he has.—Watchman.

Christmas Chimes

Awake! The world is clothed in white,
The bells begin to play,
And holly hangs in every house,
For this is Christmas Day.
Arise, and lift your voices up
To greet the blessed morn,
Sing, all ye children of the earth
The Prince of Heaven is born.

Rejoice, and of your bounty give,
Let strife and discord cease,
Proclaim anew good-will to men,
Announce the reign of peace.
And while a thousand silver chimes
Salute the glorious morn,
Sing, all ye children of the earth,
The Prince of Heaven is born.

—Minna Irving.

The Coming of Christmas

Into our, perhaps, too overcrowded lives comes the glad Christmas-tide, and we stay our hurried march to enjoy for a season its cheer, its happy reunions and delightful mysteries, while over all and permeating all is its spirit of good fellowship and sweet comradeship. What would our lives be without Christmas, filled as it is to the brim with brotherly kindness and sisterly love and happy greetings and meetings?

Tenderly our thoughts travel back through the dim ages to the little town of Bethlehem, when one star-lit night Christmas came to the world through the birth of the Christ-Child.

Oh wondrous gift to man, replete with glorious possibilities and eternal life! Do we remember to thank God the Father as often as we might for this priceless gift to a sorrow-tossed, sin-burdened world?

What would our lives be without Christmas and all it should mean to us? Take Christ out of our lives and each of them would become one long, starless night, unlit by a single ray of hope. And yet there are those for whom He came and lived and suffered and died and rose again, who as yet know naught of Him!

Mother's Influence

"A young army officer lay dying at the close of the American war. He had been much away from home even before the war, and now for four years he had been a soldier in active army service. On many a field of battle he had faced death fearlessly, and in many an hour of privation and hardship he had been dependent on his own strength and resources. What could more have tended to wean a man from reliance on a mother's presence and sustaining care? The soldier's mind was wandering now. It was in the early morning, after a wakeful, restless night. Exciting scenes were evidently before his mind's eye. The enemy was pressing him sorely. He was anxious as to his position. Everything was apparently wrong. Just then the young officer's mother, who had come from the north to watch over him, entered the room where he lay. As the door opened he turned toward it his troubled face, as if expecting a new enemy to confront him. Instantly, as he saw who was there, his countenance changed, the eye softened, the look of anxiety passed away and fear was at an end, and with a deep-drawn sigh of relief he said, in a tone of restful confidence, 'Ah, mother's come! It's all right now!" and the troubled veteran soldier was a soothed child again.

"Soldier, statesman, scholar, divine; every man is a child to his mother to the last, and it is the best that is in a man that keeps him always in this child-likeness toward his loving mother.

"It costs something to be a good mother, but there is no reward which earth can give to be compared with that love which a faithful mother wins and holds from the son of her love."—Selected.

"GOOD MORNING"—BY R. R. SALLOWS.

Determining Education

Are you educated or ignorant?

You may possess a diploma from a high-grade university, and yet be in doubt as to this question, for according to a Chicago University professor it is quite possible to be a college graduate and yet be uneducated.

Here are some questions the professor recently formulated, which will help you to settle the problem. Unless you can answer all of these in the affirmative you may as well step back into the ranks of the uneducated:

Has education given you sympathy for all good causes? Has it made you easier to interest in them? Has it made you public-spirited, so that you look beyond your own dooryard and take interest in a clean city?

Has it made you a brother to the weak?

Have you learned the proper value of money and time?

Have you learned how to make friends and keep them? Do you know how to be a friend yourself?

Can you look an honest man or pure woman straight in the eye?

Do you see anything to live in a little child?

Will a lonely dog follow you in the street?

Can you be high-minded and happy in the drudgeries of life?

Can you think washing dishes and hoeing corn are just as compatible with high thinking as playing the piano or playing golf?

Can you be happy alone?

Are you good for anything to yourself?

Can you look out on the world and see anything but dollars and cents?

Can you look into a mud puddle and see the blue sky reflected? Can you see good in everything?

The Holly and Christmas

Did you ever inquire why we deck our homes with holly on Christmas? The old name for the plant was "ilex." It was regarded as an emblem of peace and good-will. When the Romans sent presents to their friends, they inclosed a sprig of ilex, to show their good-will going with the presents.

When the Christians sent presents to their friends they wrapped up the ilex with them. Now that Jesus came to bring "peace and good-will" to men, and in celebration of His birthday, they began to give gifts to each other, they began to use much ilex.

Then naturally they began to call the ilex "holly," for "holly" comes from the Christian word "holy," being used on a holy day—Christmas.

So the holly and gifts go together, meaning peace. Jesus brings "peace on earth, good-will to men." Shall we help Him to bring it in soon?

A Christmas Assembly Of Cousins

By ALICE LOUISE LEE.

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY ALICE LOUISE LEE.

THE prospect of spending Christmas eve and part of Christmas day at "the hospitable Pines" in Bixby was not especially pleasing to me; but, since cousins of the Welch persuasion are few and far between, I did not feel justified in refusing Cousin Clara's invitation. Besides that, Bixby was only a few miles distant from Mayville, where I expected to put in a more or less painful season Christmas evening.

Therefore I wrote Clara that I'd arrive on the 5:30 train Christmas eve and remain with her until 4 o'clock the following afternoon. In this connection I mentioned neither my destination after 4 o'clock nor any prospective delight there.

Truth to tell, in my thoughts I was leaving that evening call as far as possible in the keeping of Providence, realizing from past experiences that the atmosphere of Mayville had a curiously unnerving effect on me. The only preparation I had made was to secure a Christmas offering in the shape of a very small gold band carrying a handsome diamond and engraved inside with the (to me) musical name "Rey Day."

"But whether it will ever see the rays of day," I said aloud, grimly punning as I stuffed the tiny box into my pocket, "remains to be seen, as she must take with it such a big blunderer as myself. Oh, for a slice of Harold's assurance!" I added, catching up my umbrella and running for the street car.

Harold Welch was my cousin and the "other man in the case." I did not love my cousin, but then we were even there.

"I wonder," I thought as I raced across the platform and sprang on the already moving express, "if Clara has invited Harold?"

Ten minutes later my question was answered in the person of that gentleman himself strolling leisurely down the aisle of the smoker.

"What a deucedly well set up fellow!" said a man behind me to his seat mate. "Looks as if he had walked out of a bandbox, doesn't he?"

Harold's appearance was always of the bandbox type, but I well knew that his actions were not always, and Miss Day—

"Hello, Rob!" he cried, surprised, but not any better pleased than myself at the meeting. "Going down to Clara's?"

I emerged from behind my newspaper long enough to nod. "Yes. Are you?"

He did not reply at once. He was taking my measure, as usual, with an air of quizzical, galling amusement. The cad has a way of making me realize my inconvenient length, the inferiority of my tailor and the cowlick that adorns the right side of my hair. His eyes wandered upward to the rack over the seat and lodged on my high hat, the first I had ever indulged in, while over his face spread a grin which made comments needless.

Then he replied carelessly: "Oh, yes, I shall get around to the Pines on the 10 o'clock train in the morning. Please tell Cousin Clara, will you, and give her my regards? Tonight"—he threw the chill inducing remark at me over his shoulder as he moved away—"I go on to Mayville."

Mayville! The blood pounded at my temples and burned my face. "It's all up with me," was my solemn thought as I searched my pockets for my match case. My fingers encountered the tiny jeweler's box. Ruefully I pressed it—poor useless little trinket—and looked out of the window at the weather.

I could not have looked at anything less calculated to impart consolation. There was a storm on, a driving storm of sleet, rain and snow, with a heavy leaden sky overhead and shoe deep mud underfoot, the outer world, especially that part of it containing Bixby, being an exact counterpart to my feelings.

I had never seen Bixby before, and I think one view would satisfy any reasonable person. It consists of a small unpainted station set down unprotected in the midst of the river flats, tempting all the winds of heaven, and I discovered the moment I had set foot on the platform that none of the winds was resisting temptation. An instant cyclone wound the tails of my long coat firmly around my knees and forced me to hang on to my tall hat with a death grip, all of which gracefully maneuvering Harold was viewing with relish from a window of the rear car.

As the train rushed on down the valley I whirled around and around to liberate my legs from the embrace of my coat tails, at the same time viewing the nearby landscape in search of proper means of locomotion to the Pines. Having my own patent leather shoes, none was in sight.

From the station a road wound back among the foothills garbed in gaunt, sighing pines, which concealed any signs of the hospitality underscored in Clara's note. It was certainly the most unpromising looking landscape ever viewed under the wings of night.

"Well, I'll be hanged!" I ejaculated in exasperation.

"It seems to suit ye better to be blowed," came a voice from the doorway, where I discovered the station factotum shedding the light of his grinning countenance on my gloom.

Just then, beguiled by a treacherous lull in the storm, I removed my anchoring hand from my hat and raised my umbrella, still straining my eyes up the road. "Where in thunder"— I began, but got no further. Down swooped the wind and, with an exultant howl, tore my unanchored hat from my head and tossed it over the river bank, at the same time turning my silk umbrella inside out with an ominous snapping of the slender ribs.

The station agent backed into the room. "Better come inside," he suggested affably, "before your hair gits tired of hangin' on to your head."

"Well, I am in a predicament!" I exclaimed, acting on his advice and looking around the little station in search of my baggage, sent on an earlier train.

"Must have gone on," said the agent, seating himself on one corner of the table which contained the telegraph instruments. "Ain't none been toted in here today. I'll telegraph for it," he added consolingly, "and you'll likely git it back in the course of a couple of days."

In view of the next evening that was indeed the consolation of Job's comforters. "Two days!" I exclaimed, horror stricken. "See here! I've got to have it by tomorrow afternoon."

The agent grinned, taking uncomfortably accurate measure of me. "M-um, I understand," he mused, kicking the table leg. "Girl in the case. Don't know where you'll find any girl in Bixby, except," meditatively, "at the Pines."

Girls at the Pines! Involuntarily my hand sought my mop of wind disheveled hair, seeing which the agent grinned and resumed, "Hired girls they be, but that Betty's a beauty."

"I am a cousin of Mrs. Smith," I began, with dignity. "She wrote me she would meet me at the station."

The agent shook his head. "She can't be in two places at once."

"What do you know about it?" I demanded.

"She went across the river this afternoon to Mayville and hain't got back yet. Roads are awfully heavy. Guess you'll have to hoof it up the hill."

"Something of a foregone conclusion, that is," I returned grimly, shivering as a fresh outbreak of storm shook the station.

Suddenly a sheepish grin overspread the agent's face. He arose and opened a door behind him, speaking without looking back: "See here, now, I'll tog you out to get up there if you'll promise to speak a good word to Betty for me—sort of recommend me, you know. Whenever I see 'er myself my tongue gets into such a darned mixup with my teeth that I can't get a word out."

I looked eagerly over his head into the closet. "Recommend you to Betty? Well, that I will—you can bank on that—if you'll get me out of this hole."

He did his best, but the results were certainly not gratifying to my vanity, the agent running mainly to breadth, while I run to height. His rusty derby encountered the tops of my ears, while his raincoat missed the skirts of my topcoat by a good foot, and his rubber boots, inside of which my trousers were tucked, rubbed up and down on my heels with maddening persistence.

Stuffing my shoes into the raincoat pockets, I grappled with the agent's enormous cotton umbrella, calculated, as he observed with pride, to keep a ten acre lot dry under a cloudburst.

"Now," he directed succinctly from the door, "just follow your nose up the road a spell till you come to a lot of lights. That's the Pines. Go in and hang them boots over the kitchen fire to dry out while you tell Betty that I send a merry Christmas and would be darned glad to send her something more if I dared."

I promised and started out on a road beset by as many difficulties as ever encountered Bunyan's Christian. In that wind my great umbrella acted like the sail to a rudderless ship. It toppled me into a mudhole one moment and tumbled me over a projecting stone the next, the ballasting boots being at no time able to keep in line with my head. Moreover, I discovered presently that the statement concerning the ten acre lot was pure fiction, the umbrella containing as many holes as the agent's conscience.

Also I discovered after a half hour's tramp that the Pines did not contain a "lot of lights." There was only one visible, and that but a faint glow in the rear of the gabled porticoed pile which loomed up before me, shuttered and dark, just as I had proved beyond a doubt that the curious sucking sound which arose at every step came from water inside rather than outside those boots.

"A pretty reception this to give an invited guest," I muttered wrathfully, thinking of Harold, well groomed, dry and comfortable, by this time in Mayville and—perish the thought—taking dinner, it might be, with the Days!

Jerking the gate open with unnecessary vigor, I sought the kitchen by way of the back walk and an invisible wire clothesline. This instrument of mutilation took me on the point of the chin, knocking my teeth shut before I could remove my tongue to a place of safety and, scraping backward violently, came to rest against my Adam's apple. When I had righted myself and made sundry remarks appropriate to the clothesline and soothing to my wounded feelings I stumbled up the back steps and applied my knuckles to the door with a force which evidently startled the inmates of the kitchen.

For an instant silence greeted my demand for a hearing; then a hearty voice with a Hibernian accent arose from within: "And sure, me darlin', ye needn't be afraid to open th' door. Be-dad, with th' hammer I'll attind to his 'case!"

Some one approached the door, and a faint and tremulous voice asked, "W-who is it?"

A blast of snow laden wind whirled up under the cotton umbrella, boxing my numbed ears and plastering a soft application on the nape of my neck.

"I am Mrs. Smith's cousin!" I shouted.

"Arrah he is, is he?" cried the Hibernian voice. "Lave him give th' color of his hair, thin!"

The other voice was uplifted in the strange inquiry, preferred in weak tones, "What is the color of your hair, please?"

Under ordinary circumstances instead of replying to such impertinence I would not have stood upon the order of my going, but with that storm assailing my back and the brim of the derby directing a gentle stream inside my collar I swallowed my ire and answered meekly, "Brownish, verging into a golden red."

"Arrah!" came Bridget's triumphant tones. "He ain't th' wan she's lookin' for, Betty, my dear! Lave him out in th' storm, th' desaver!"

I suspect the wail of the storm was in my voice as I raised it in protest. "I have in my pocket a note from Mrs. Smith which will prove beyond a doubt that I am expected."

Again there was a pause. "That sounds all right, Bridget, and if Mrs. Smith has invited him"—here the remarks were directed at me—"if I let you in will you promise solemnly on—on your honor"—

"Whist me, darlin'," came in a stage whisper, "sure, and it's dootful if he's got inny!"

I strangled a laugh as the other finished bravely—"on your honor that you'll go away quietly if you are not Mrs. Smith's cousin."

"I promise," I replied confidently.

The bolt was slipped back, the door opened, and I, furling my huge umbrella, stepped inside, the mud dripping from my coat and a drop of blood falling from my scraped chin.

I certainly presented a strange appearance, but no stranger than the scene into which I had projected myself. In the middle of the room stood a scowling Bridget, her muscular arms bared to the elbows, a poker in one hand and a long handled hammer in the other. Pedring over her shoulder was Betty, large eyed and trembling, but undeniably worthy of the agent's encomiums on her good looks.

I shut the door, backed up against it and removed the derby from my head respectfully, whereupon Bridget's severe face relaxed, and Betty, venturing from her refuge, demanded my credentials.

"The letter you promised to let us see," she faltered.

Laying the derby on the floor beside the umbrella, I began a prolonged search under the suspicious scrutiny of four sharp eyes. It was nervous work. My garments collectively boast thirty-five pockets, all more or less in habited by divers articles. After a fruitless inspection of twelve I became embarrassed. As I replaced the contents of the twentieth and no means of identification appeared a feeling of guilt stole over me. At the twenty-fifth Bridget flourished her hammer and scowled.

"Arrah, Betty, he's a liar! There ain't hide nor hair of th' letther on him, bedad!"

It was true, as the thirty-fifth pocket proved, but I would not give up.

"You promised"— began Betty, but I temporized, listening to the storm outside.

"If you will kindly allow me to dry my feet in the oven," I begged, an apprehensive eye on the hammer, "I'll go through my pockets again. I'm sure the note is with me."

Bridget, seeing my wholesome respect for her weapons, relented, and presently Betty presented me with a pair of socks, red, but dry, just as I had become aware of another calamity—only one of my shoes remained to me. The other had dropped through the bottomless raincoat pocket somewhere on the road.

Bridget grinned, evidently realizing my general dejection, and without stirring from her position in the middle of the floor kicked off one of her slippers frayed and down at the heel. "Take 'im that, me darlin'. A foine mate it 'ull be to his wan shiny shoe."

I received her contribution submissively and was stooping to put it on when an overloaded pocket seized the opportunity to disgorge two trim boxes, one long, one a tiny cube.

As they rolled over on the floor Betty pounced on them, and at once my character and dark mission stood revealed. "Mis' Smith's spoons," she shrieked, "the new ones that she had marked with her initials last week! Oh, Bridget, however did he break in?"

"The thafe!" cried Bridget.

Now, those six spoons, solid silver, I purchased and had engraved that very morning as a Christmas gift for my ungrateful, unhospitable cousin, but neither Betty nor Bridget would listen to the truth concerning either the spoons or the ring which Betty next uncovered.

"Rey Day," she read in horror stricken tones, while Bridget, ever keeping a restraining eye on me, reiterated, "Oh, th' thafe!" at the top of her voice.

"Now, see here," I began, "listen to reason, will you?" But at that instant Bridget's gaze fell on the umbrella, and my last hope for mercy flickered and went out.

"Betty, me darlin', see th' umbrella," she howled. "It's Misther Cross' sure, and this miserable thafe has made off with it from th' station."

Betty at once fell foul of the umbrella with blushing cheeks, while Bridget turned on me, taking a firmer grip on poker and hammer.

"Now, be gone, ye sphalpine! Ye

"THE LETTER YOU PROMISED TO LET US SEE," SHE FALTERED.

lyin', thavin' scoundrel, show us the bottoms of yer boots directly."

"Alas," I returned without moving, "I have none to show, but I do have a message from this same Mr. Cross, provided he's the station agent, to Miss Betty."

Betty blushed still more deeply, but tossed her head independently. After a moment, however, she glanced over her shoulder and challenged, "I don't believe a word of it."

"As surely as I sit here," I declared solemnly, "he intrusted a message to me and made me promise to deliver it," and then I stopped.

Bridget came a step nearer. Betty bent forward eagerly. "Out with it!" commanded Bridget.

I hunched down comfortably in my chair and spread my hands over the hot stove. "Not one word more until morning," I declared firmly. "In the morning I'll tell you."

Bridget and Betty retired to a corner and consulted, Bridget's face being turned in my direction still. Fragments of the conclusion reached me—"The barn—sleigh robes—till they come home"—

It was Betty who explained the connection between these incoherent remarks, and it was evidently Betty who had persuaded Bridget to harbor me on the premises if I would submit to the conditions—namely, leave the stolen goods with her and Bridget, betake myself to the barn, desist while there from smoking and be quiet until Mrs Smith should return and admit me to the house or not, as she wished.

"If," as Bridget grimly added, "ye ain't legged it mouny a mile away thinkin' of th' prison bars!"

I had given my promise; therefore I submitted and ambled forth in slapping slipper and patent leather shoe, while behind me came Bridget, fully armed, and beside her Betty holding the lantern, which cast my shadow immense and grotesque, with the old derby resting on my ears and the agent's raincoat flapping about me. At the last moment Betty had allowed me the protection of the agent's umbrella, "so long as it is his worst one," she explained to Bridget.

Betty unlocked the barn door and, rolling it back, pointed to a sleigh just inside the door. "There are robes in the sleigh," she said, "so you needn't freeze." Then she came quite close and spoke low, "And I hope you're not a thief and will be here in the morning."

"My mortal frame will certainly be here," I answered solemnly, climbing into the front seat of the sleigh, "but whether it will be in a limber or solidified condition only the morning will reveal."

The door was rolled back again, and I was left in darkness to wrap myself up as best I could in the fur robe, under whose warmth I laughed at the late unpleasantness. Finally I dozed off, with the comforting reflection that no one but Clara would know of my predicament and that I could get outfitted some way on the morrow in time to fulfill my engagement in Mayville.

Alas for the best laid plans o' mice and men! It was 10 o'clock perhaps when I was aroused by a confusion of sounds outside the door—voices, the crunching of wheels and loud laughter.

"Stolen spoons!" I heard in a familiar voice. "This is the richest joke I ever got on to. Now, show up the contents of the other box—the little one."

The little box! My hair arose under the derby. It was Harold's voice, and how in thunder—

Back rolled the door again, and in drove a closed carriage, the side lights blinding me. Following the vehicle came Betty and Bridget, the former tearful, the latter defiant, still lugging her hammer and poker.

"Merry Christmas, Rob!" roared Harold, dismounting from the carriage, immaculate, dry and uncreased. "Behold him, Clara, Bridget's tramp and thief!"

Hugging himself in glee, he proceeded to prance around the sleigh, viewing me on all sides, while the coachman, repressing bursts of unseemly mirth, watched me out of the tail of his eye.

Clara, laughing hysterically and clutching the spoons in one hand, gave me the other, explaining as best she could between her convulsions of merriment: "We stopped at the house, and the girls told us of your plight. Oh, I'm so sorry, but I had to go to Mayville, and there I found Harold and brought him back with"—

The rest was lost on me, for slipping out of the vehicle, something held tightly in her hand, was Rey Day. For one awful moment I prayed the floor to open beneath me, for no man would willingly appear ridiculous before the one woman in the world. But suddenly Rey raised her eyes to mine unsmilingly, but with an expression in them that caused me to dash aside the robe which still hugged me and rise, light hearted, to the occasion and my feet.

Taking off my derby, I made a sweeping bow. "I regret, Cousin Clara and Miss Day, that I can't receive you in the orthodox evening clothes, but you can see for yourselves that such garments as I have on are ample enough to entitle them to be called full dress!"

With that I stood forth to view on the floor. As I turned slowly, flapping Bridget's slipper, mud begrimed and draggled, my brow eclipsed by the agent's hat, everybody was convulsed, even Bridget.

"Arrah, now, Mis' Smith," she cried, "and who would iver take such a lookin' mon to be a cousin of yer own!"

"You did just right, Bridget, not to take him in," gasped Clara. "You see, Rob, I expected Eben would come during my absence, and I told the girls they would know him by his white hair. But I expected to get back with Rey before you came. Eben didn't come, and the girls know better than to admit a strange man after dark since the robberies up the river."

"Especially such a looking villain as that!" cried Harold. "I tell you, Miss Day, Rob didn't look like that on the train. He was got up regardless of cost or his relatives' feelings. But that was before he took to stealing umbrellas and spoons, and, by the way"—he turned abruptly on Rey—"what plunder did Betty hand over to you? Has Rob stolen anything of yours?"

Rey smiled and glanced at me uncertainly, but her fingers did not relax their hold on the little box. Meeting my eyes, her own fell, and the color swept up over her round cheeks.

"Yes," she replied demurely, "I fear he has."

Harold glanced from one to the other of us suspiciously, but just then Clara claimed his attention, while Betty motioned me back among the shadows.

"He was awful anxious to see into the little box," she whispered, "but I looked out that he didn't. I give it right to her." And in the same breath Betty claimed her reward by adding, "Can't you give me the message tonight, sir?"

I certainly could and did. In my exuberance of spirits that station agent got his pay in full then and there for his outfit. My hearty recommendation even overlooked the fact that both boots and umbrella leaked.

When Betty retired, blushing, I found Rey at my elbow, while Clara, at the back of the carriage, began loading packages into Harold's arms.

Without glancing up, Rey held the little box out to me. "It's yours," she whispered. "Take it."

Willfully misunderstanding her I boldly took possession of the hand, box and all. "Thank you—dear—it's a Christmas gift which I value above rubies."

"Oh, no, no!" she faltered. "I didn't mean—I meant the—the r—box."

But she did not withdraw her hand, and Harold, glancing around just then, let a package slip from his arms. It reached the floor with a crash.

"Oh, you careless stupid!" cried Clara. "Your last hope of a Christmas gift is shattered."

"So I see," responded Harold, with unnecessary and grim emphasis.

Daintiness In Clothing Gifts.

In the giving of Christmas gifts there is so much difference in the appearance of the outside daintiness and the ordinary wrapper, says the editor of Madame, that I would suggest to my readers that whenever possible clothe your gifts in a fancy covering. Dainty colored tissue paper tied with baby ribbon in contrasting and harmonizing colors, with a spray of holly tucked in the bow, will speak of the sender's interest. Again large envelopes of flowered crape paper or Japanese napkins tied with tinsel cord and a spray of mistletoe is a novel device for sending gifts. You should do this to the home gifts as well as to those which go to outside friends. It would also be nice to inclose a Christmas card or send with the gift some appropriate and personal quotation. It expresses a special greeting.

WHERE THERE'S NO XMAS.

A Spot In the Middle Pacific Where Dec. 25 Exists Not.

The Christmas hater may be made happy. He can have his wish and "go somewhere where there isn't any Christmas." He will not have to die to do it either, but he will have to be a good sailor in order to fully enjoy his paradise, which is not on earth. It is on water. Let him start on his search from Vancouver, B. C., on Dec. 18 in the direction of the orient. As the days pass and he comes nearer and nearer the 25th of the month he may begin to feel uneasy and think himself the victim of a joke. Even as late as bedtime on Dec. 24 he may feel resentful over what he fears is a wild goose sail. He may fall asleep thinking of the disagreeable things he will do next day just because it will be Christmas, but he will be disappointed, for when he wakes in the morning he will find it the 26th of December. The 25th is not and has not been. It seems to have passed in the night. It is gone completely—but where? An experienced navigator explains the lapse thus:

"In just about the middle of the Pacific ocean is the one hundred and eightieth degree of longitude, and when that imaginary line is reached the westward traveler drops one day out of his calendar for the year. That line crosses the antipodes, or point on the earth's surface which is precisely opposite to Greenwich, England, the place at which by common consent of all nations the counting of time begins. At noonday, when the sun is directly overhead at Greenwich, at other points to the westward the time will be earlier by one hour for each 15 degrees of longitude, so that when 180 degrees is reached it will be midnight.

"Twelve hours have thus been gained, and the other twelve would be added if the journey around the globe were completed. So by universal agreement the 25th of December would be dropped by all navigators reaching the fatal line on the previous day, and travelers would be cheated out of their Christmas at the only place on the earth's surface where such a thing could happen."—Montreal Star.

Wise Little Willie.

"Maxima," said little Willie as he held up a big bundle in the car, "what's in this box?"

"Nothing for you, Willie," said his mother.

"Well, where's my Christmas?"

"Santa Claus will bring that."

"Well, if he gives me anything big like this box I'll know it's you."

BOVRIL

Contains the life-sustaining elements of

BEEF

Beef extracts contain only the flavor and stimulating elements of beef—the nutritive values are lost in the making. Baron Liebig, the inventor of beef extracts, admitted that. He said "It is but a condiment and stimulant, containing no matter capable of sustaining life."

That is where BOVRIL differs from beef extracts.

BOVRIL does contain the nourishment and life-sustaining elements of beef as well as its rich flavor.

BOVRIL gives strength and nourishment to the invalid. With its help you can make left-over scraps into delicious consommes, bouillons and soups with very little trouble.

BOVRIL is the true economist in the home kitchen.

PLAIN TALK FROM THE DOCTOR

A prominent physician, famous for his success in the treatment of kidney and bladder troubles, stated that to the following prescription is due a great deal of his success:

One ounce fluid extract dandelion;
One ounce compound salatone;
Four ounces compound syrup sarsaparilla.

Mix and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

This mixture will, he says, positively cure any diseases arising from weak, clogged or inactive kidneys, and will assist these organs to cleanse the blood of the poisonous waste matter and acids, which if allowed to remain, cause lumbago, lame back, rheumatism and sciatica, and at the same time will restore the kidneys to healthy normal action. The ingredients, which are purely vegetable and entirely harmless, can be procured from any good druggist and mixed at home at very little cost.

This advice will undoubtedly be much appreciated by many readers.

THE DANGER OF LAZINESS

Many men have been accused of laziness who did not deserve the appelation, and a physician of national repute has recently declared that most so-called lazy men are not so in reality, but they are sick. Most of us have at times had to make a very decided effort to overcome a disposition to shirk our work, and have blamed it on the weather, not realizing that there is any real danger in the indisposition for mental or physicial exertion. There is, however, a very real danger, for this symptom is Nature's warning that the system is exhausted, and it is in just this condition that people are an easy prey to the serious diseases, such as typhoid fever, grippe, diphtheria or consumption. The surest way to ward off such consequences is to stimulate the bowls and digestive organs, thus cleansing and rehabilitating the entire system. The most practical manner of accomplishing this is by taking King Palmetto Compound, which is not a secret medicine, but is the most perfect prescription known to medical men. The formula of King Palmetto Compound is printed plainly on the wrapper, and if you are not acquainted with the efficacy of its ingredients, ask any one who is, and you will be assured of its great therapeutic value. Free sample sent. Write to King Palmetto Co. Bridgeburg, Ont. King Palmetto Compound is sold at $1.00 per bottle and is guaranteed by Fate and the Lemon Pie.

By EMILIE LOVETT.

Copyrighted, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

All his life long Dick Hadley had looked forward to the time when, all alone and unmolested, in luxurious ease, with calm oblivion to the world at large, he could sit with undisturbed satisfaction and devour an entire lemon pie.

And now, at the age of twenty-four, athletically broad shouldered and tall, with a face capable of inspiring both trust and respect, a fact which men admired and women loved, he had boarded the fast train at Washington, with its few stops between there and his destination, Laurel, Md., with the long wished for and much thought of treasure in his hand.

Ever and always before had something happened to prevent the realization of the admirable anticipation. Sunny faced reminiscence, with faint fragrance of blossoms, stole over him as back in the past he saw again the old porch of the southern Maryland home and the group of little sisters and brothers around him clamoring for pieces of the pie which his mother had made for him. And after each little ravenous mouth had been filled what remained of the lemon pie? Only the satisfying remembrance of a generous heart.

Fleet footed recollection bounded swiftly before him, portraying the long forgotten day when in an enviable frame of mind he had seated himself on a bench in one of the apparently deserted squares of the city, when a pale and unkempt newsboy in passing paused, eying him in hungry surprise. And that which remained of the lemon pie was the mark in the book of the recording angel of the spirit with which the donor had given to another in greater need than he.

There had been many other and similar interruptions, but the time which stood out beyond and above all others in shadowy eyed memory was the morning several years previous when in passing through a southern town in winter he had purchased the last and only pie in the one and only confectionery store of the place and when he was about to depart there had entered slowly, indeed almost feebly, a girl whose pale, thin face showed promise of blossoming into rare loveliness with good health and proper environment.

Attired in a long, dark skirt, evidently the property of some one else ere it fell to her lot, and with a shawl of green and blue plaid thrown over her fluffy hair, she had crossed to the counter, addressing a few words to the clerk in a low tone.

"A gentleman just bought the last one," the clerk had replied, and Hadley, perceiving the blank expression of speechless disappointment, had silently handed to her his treasure, receiving in return a silver ten cent piece.

Frequently since then, as commercial traveler, he had passed through the same little town in the south, always looking and watching for the girl whom he intuitively knew to be now the one woman in the world for him.

Fate had always been most unkind, and now all of that dream must perforce fall in line with the procession of other impossibilities and fade away among the soft white clouds in the forgetmenot blue of the sky, for Cousin Sophia on dying had just left to Hadley in her will the entire bulk of her riches on condition—and money meant much to young Richard, with his widowed mother and the younger members of the family to be educated for both the social and business duties of life—that he marry Miss Angela Cathaway of Maine, a wealthy creature and an absolute stranger to Hadley, but who was a daughter of Cousin Sophia's first love. If he failed to win her consent the property and money were to go to hospitals and schools in the Philippines. He was now on the way to meet her at a house party and—

"Hyattsville! Hyattsville!" called the conductor, opening wide the door for ascending passengers.

"Why, Dick Hadley!" cordially exclaimed a gracious voice in his ear.

Dick inwardly groaned, remembering the uneaten pie, as he quickly rose and extended his hand.

Beside his friend, Mrs. White, stood a girl of wonderful grace, richly attired with simplicity of elegance in white, her fluffy hair framing a face of rarest beauty. In her large brown eyes were written surprise as they gazed into his own from over the red roses at her throat.

"Miss Cathaway, Mr. Hadley," introduced Mrs. White. "Angela, my dear, this is Dick Hadley, son of my girlhood's dearest friend, and I hope you two will become acquainted while I sit with an old friend farther up the aisle."

"Once upon a time," remarked Miss Cathaway as Hadley seated her next to the window, "while visiting an aunt in the south I became ill, and when convalescing the physician in attendance consented to my earnest request to be permitted to taste a small piece of lemon pie.

"There was none in the house, and my aunt, who strongly opposed the idea of any injudicious eating on my part, hid my clothes. So, usurping one of her skirts and with the cook's plaid shawl over my head"— Angela paused.

"Yes, yes!" said Richard, his splendid eyes alight. "And what then?"

"I feebly walked out of the kitchen door and through the back gate to the confectionery store near by, only to find all the pies sold. Imagine my dismay! The only thing in life I craved—at that time! A gentleman stepped up and offered me his, for which I gave in return a silver dime. It was a lemon pie, deliciously golden, with a golden brown heap frostily arrayed on the top. I have never forgotten the pie. I shall never forget the man," gazing steadily out of the window.

"Would you recognize the fellow?" exclaimed Dick, with pounding heart.

"Yes," replied Angela, with downcast eyes.

"Would you know the dime?"

The girl's eyes flashed indignantly.

"Certainly not," coldly.

Hadley took from his pocket his watch, to the ring of which was attached a small silver coin.

"See how I treasured it all these years of searching for you. And look," he cried in exuberance of spirits, displaying the emblem of bliss from the brown paper bag. "I even go armed with a lemon pie when on a hunt for you. And now that I've found you life seems crowned with"—

"Laurel! Laurel!" shouted the official.

"That conductor is a knowing one," exclaimed Dick.

"Well, have you two become acquainted?" inquired Mrs. White, bearing down upon them, noting with surprise the radiant face of Miss Cathaway. "You naughty creatures, you've been eating pie and never invited me to a taste. We get off here. Come, Angela, my dear, hurry," she called over her shoulder, "and tell Mr. Hadley goodby."

"Never!" said Dick firmly, with determined air. "From you to me there shall be no such word as 'goodby.'"

And to this day Dick Hadley's boyish dream of a time all alone and unmolested in luxurious ease, when in calm oblivion to the world at large he could sit with undisturbed satisfaction and devour an entire lemon pie has never been fulfilled.

RIVAL GHOSTS APPEARED.

Novel Contest With Spiritualists at Toronto.

A contest was recently held at Toronto arising out of the notoriety which has accrued to Dr. and Mrs. Howland, two Spiritualist lecturers, of New York, since their arrest in a police raid on a Spiritualist seance in a Bathurst street house several weeks ago, and for which they are to appear for trial at the Criminal Sessions. At the time of her arrest the lady was clad only in a filmy covering, which, she explained, was furnished by the spirits, and had but a few moment before produced a magnificent bouquet of flowers from nowhere by the same route. These phenomena were held by her followers to be proof of the lady's familiarity with the spirits, but Prof. Bert Walton, a local magician, who denounced the lady as a fraud, undertook to duplicate her tricks.

The contest took place at Massey Hall, and both parties fulfilled their contracts. Prof. Walton, however, did not attempt to produce flowers, and admitted that the lady was too clever for him at that feat.

Both parties performed their tricks in a dark cabinet after rigorous inspection by a committee, and before entering both of them entirely divested themselves of their own clothing and wore clothing borrowed from the committee.

Party feeling ran very high over the selection of the committee, several ladies being challenged by the audience. One lady insisted she was not a Spiritualist but an "investigator." When the cries became more insistent she said she was a "Quakeress," but after being haled down into the audience she walked to the front of the house and relieved her feelings by a brief address on Spiritualism. In the intervals of silence in the uproar which followed the lady was understood to say that if the audience had "a dear, dead mother," they'd be sorry if they couldn't talk to her, and that "if this is Christianity, I'm glad I'm a Spiritualist." Another uproar followed when it was discovered that a lady who had asked to be placed on the committee as the special representative of the professor was a Spiritualist also. The lady denied the charge, but several people testified to having attended meetings in her house.

As someone had previously objected to Prof. Walton wearing boots in the cabinet, that gentleman came on the stage barefooted, a circumstance which drew from one fervid advocate of Spiritualism a personal comment on the professor's pedal extremities in a terminology not unduly exquisite, and was a moment later restrained by a calmer neighbor from carrying into effect a threat to punch the head of a gentleman whom he overheard expressing views on spiritual religion which were not in harmony with his own.

Prof. Walton, who went into the cabinet with his hands and head in a padlocked stock, came out a few moments later attired in gauze and explained how he did it. Mrs. Howland did not use the stocks, but she produced the bouquet of flowers. She did not explain how she did it, but the professor told the audience afterwards that a chemical solution for shrinking flowers figured in the trick. Nobody was proselytized by the performance, and the convictions of everyone were strengthened.

The Message of Peace.

The Christmas season comes with its message of peace to a world torn and rent with many divisions, a world in which there is much strife. This strife is to be allayed and these divisions healed not by any process of statutory enactment, but by that spirit of brotherly love and kindness which takes possession of the human heart at Christmastide. Just so far as that spirit continues regnant in the hearts of men throughout the year will the Christmas season be prolonged and continue to give its blessings to mankind.—Right Rev. David H. Greer, Coadjutor Bishop of New York.

The Ring of the Christmas Dimes.

Give us the joys we've been wantin' long—
Not the joy o' the Christmas chimes,
But something more of a jingling song—
The ring o' the Christmas dimes!

That is the song that we like to sing,
The song o' the stirrin' times,
The song with a ring an' sweep an' swing—
The ring o' the Christmas dimes!

HELPED MANY BRIDES

PARISH CLERK IN ENGLAND WHO ATTENDED 12,500 WEDDINGS.

Yarmouth Official Tells Many Amusing Stories—Bashful Couples Make Many Blunders — Some Oddly Matched Pairs—Fees Paid In Coppers—Widower Makes Venture For Sixth Time—Fainting Bridegrooms.

It is claimed for E. J. Lupson, who this month completes 44 years' service as parish clerk of Great Yarmouth, that during that period he has in his official capacity attended no fewer than over 12,500 weddings — a very large number, even in 44 years. A correspondent also states that he has "given away" more than 1,300 brides—i.e., that more than 10 per cent. of the brides are given away by the clerk. Mr. Lupson has served under six vicars, only two of whom are to-day alive.

In these unique circumstances he has carefully noted many strange or amusing words and deeds. A number of them he embodied in a volume published some time back, entitled "Cupid's Pupils," but he says he has recorded many more.

He tells some good stories of the blunders of couples when giving particulars for the publication of the banns. One young man when asked the name of his sweetheart's father, replied, "He's dead at present." A widow about to make a third matrimonial venture brought a note in which she described herself as "Miss Mary Ann H., widow, aged 61." One woman did not remember the name of her intended husband, and had to go and bring it written on paper.

Much-Married Mother.

Another young lady could not tell her future husband's father's name because "he had had so many fathers," and in explanation added: "He was very young when his father died, and his mother married again and again."

Mr. Lupson has seen the fees paid in coppers and threepenny bits. He also remembers two widowers being married on the same day, each twenty-one years old. Each bride was eighteen. He recalls a young woman who endeavored to secure a withdrawal of the banns so as to obtain the return of the half-crown fee. Finding she could not regain the money she allowed matters to proceed.

A couple on arrival at the church gates had to turn back, as an investigation into their financial resources revealed that the groom had but a few pence, while the pocket of the bride was empty.

Another bride walked to church carrying a box in which was her wedding hat, and with the aid of her bridesmaid completed her toilet in the porch.

A bridegroom was discovered in a pew about to light his pipe to while away the time, while one man was actually found smoking while waiting till a sacramental service was concluded.

Odd pairs Mr. Lupson has seen matched included a young woman of twenty-five to a negro; a poor weak stripling of a man to a bride of six foot three; a clergyman's son to a country laborer's daughter; and a rector of a parish to the daughter of a farm laborer, the bride being forty-two years his junior. English girls he has seen wedded to grooms of the following nationalities: Norwegian, Swedish, French, Dutch, Belgian, and North German.

Some bridegrooms have found themselves almost in a fainting condition, others have been lachrymose, as if attending a burial rather than a marriage. Others have actually been dying. The united ages of the youngest couple totalled 33 years, and of the most ancient, 152. A youth of 26 was married to his third wife, and a young woman of 23 to her third husband. A widower of 56 married for the sixth time, found a bride of seventeen.

HISTORIC COBHAM HALL.

where he was discovered, not dead, but discussing a fine bottle of port wine by his friend, Pickwick, is just outside the park wall. Near by is Gad's Hill, where Dickens made his home, and where Falstaff lay in wait to rob the pilgrims. Cobham Hall contains one of the finest collections of pictures, nearly all of old masters, in England, and the father of the present peer was so afraid of their destruction by fire that, no matter how cold the winter, he would allow no fires in any of the rooms, the entire place remaining unheated, and the cooking being done in an adjacent building. The Cobham Hall estate takes its name from that Lord Cobham who was compromised in the conspiracy of Sir Walter Raleigh against King James I., and was confiscated by that monarch and presented by him to the Stuart Duke of Lennox of the day, passing at the death of the last Stuart Duke of Lennox to his daughter, the Lady Catherine Stuart, and through her to her descendant, the wife of the first Lord Darnley.

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH

CHRISTMAS is not a real Christmas unless there are children. No Christmas present is so good as a present which the whole family can enjoy. No single thing furnishes so much entertainment, amusement and enjoyment to a family, especially where there are children and young folks, as an Edison Phonograph.

It supplies all kinds of amusement at little expense; it keeps you up to date with every kind of music by the purchase of new Records, and it gives you a means of entertaining your friends and neighbors, all of which combined make the home the most delightful spot on earth. A small sum invested in an Edison Phonograph will do this.

Have you seen and heard the new model with the big horn? If not go to the nearest dealer and see it, hear it and buy it. If you cannot do that, write to us for a complete descriptive catalogue.

We Desire Good, Live Dealers to sell Edison Phonographs in every town where we are not now well represented. Dealers having established stores should write at once to The Sailor Man.

An old salt who navigates a bicycle when in port was working a rapid passage the other day when he collided with a lady cyclist. After they had extricated themselves from the wreck the sailor made an apology from which she could gather little except that he was sincerely sorry.

"I'm sure I ought to be scuttled for it, mum," he said rapidly, "but I couldn't get yer signals no more than if we were feelin' through a fog bank. I was blowin' for you to pass to port an' steerin' my course accordin'. Just as I was goin' to dip my pennant an' salute proper your craft refused to obey her rudder an' you struck me for'ard. Afore I could reverse your jibboom fouled my starboard mizzen riggin', your flowin' gown snarled up with my bobstay, blew out yer pneumatic, parted yer toppin' lift an' carried away my jacksaddle down haul. As I listed I tried to jibe, but I capsized, keel up, an' you were flounderin' in the wreckage."

By this time there was an interested audience and the girl was mentally debating whether she should run from a supposed lunatic or ask for an interpreter.

But Jack's headpiece was still in his hand and he was not finished.

"I'm hopin' yer not enough damaged for the hospital," he went on, "but I'd be sunk if I wouldn't be glad to stand yer watch till you righted. This here little craft of yours will be as seaworthy as ever when her upper works is straightened out an' we get wind into her sails again. I'll just tow her down to the dock for repairs."

And she smiled an assent.—Illustrated Bits.

Miss Ackermann's Christmas.

By Mrs. MOSES P. HANDY.

MISS ACKERMANN opened her eyes to the sunshine with a startled feeling of having overslept herself, then closed them again at the sound of the chimes from the church around the corner, for it was Christmas day, the one day, barring Sundays, in the year which she could really and truly call her own. She was that overworked individual, a popular dressmaker, going out by the day, and she sometimes wished, with E. P. Roe's old doctor, that people would send for somebody else sometimes and let her rest. On the last Fourth of July she had been in the country sewing for dear life in order to finish a belated bridal trousseau, and on Thanksgiving she had worked until dark to accommodate a customer who wished to outshine her sisters-in-law at a family gathering at the house of her husband's father, but on Christmas day not even the most exacting customer could ask her services.

And yet—was she glad it was Christmas? The associations which cluster around the season make it a sorrowful one to those who have nothing left of home excepting its memories, and, saving for one brother, Miss Ackermann was alone in the world.

Really, Miss Ackermann told herself, she had no business to be low spirited; she was a very fortunate person; think how many people were starving for lack of work, and all that, she concluded vaguely as she finished her breakfast. The tea, which she made in her room, heating the water on a small gas stove, was excellent. She was finicky about tea, and she felt better after drinking it. Altogether she was in quite a cheerful mood when the little daughter of her landlord came to wish her a merry Christmas and bring an invitation from her mother to eat her Christmas dinner with them. Dinner would be at half past 2. Miss Ackermann thanked them very much and would dine with them with pleasure. Then she gave the little girl the present she had ready for her, a stylish young lady doll dressed in the latest fashion, with coat and hat complete, a gift which made its recipient radiant, and sent her off to exhibit it at once.

The sermon "God's Christmas Gifts," from the text "Wait upon the Lord, and he shall give thee the desire of thy heart," made her homesick again, the desire of her heart seemed so exceedingly far off. Miss Ackermann was not one of those who forget, but as she had tried not to remember. She found her thought straying back ten years to the seaside, to her old home and Jack. Their parents were neighbors. Her father and mother lived in the little fishing town and took boarders in the season. His father was the farmer who supplied them with vegetables and fruit. Jack drove the wagon which brought the daily supply to the cottages. They would have known each other in any case, but the morning interviews over lettuce and strawberries, melons and tomatoes brought them closer together.

Every one approved of their engagement, and the day was set, when a great misfortune happened—her mother and oldest sister were killed in a buggy which they were driving by a train at a railroad crossing. This was bad enough surely, but "troubles hunt in couples," and the blow seemed to affect her father's mind. He became almost childish, took to his bed and would have no one but her wait upon him. To complete the roll of disaster her brother suddenly brought home as his wife a girl whom none of his friends would have chosen, and the old man would not let his daughter-in-law come near him. To tell the truth, she had no desire to help Miss Ackermann in her duties. She had married for a step up and said plainly that she did not mean to slave to please anybody.

"You see how it is, Jack," Miss Ackermann said, with streaming eyes. "I cannot leave father, even for you."

"Bring him to our house with you," replied Jack. "There is plenty of room, and father and mother won't mind."

"No, Jack; thanks ever so much, but that wouldn't do any good. Father wouldn't be satisfied. Besides, he takes up so much of my time that I couldn't do my duty by you." And Jack had to submit with the best grace he could muster.

Unfortunately he consulted the doctor who attended Mr. Ackermann as to the probable duration of the old man's illness.

The doctor assured him that the trouble was chiefly hypochondria and that he might live for years in the same state or might possibly recover as suddenly as he had collapsed. At all events the patient was in no immediate danger.

The inquiry would have done no harm had it not been that the doctor had a talking wife, to whom he told everything, so before long the whole neighborhood was saying that Jack Ralston had been asking how long old man Ackermann could live. Of course the story came to Miss Ackermann's ears, to her intense indignation and still greater grief. Jack could not deny it in toto, and short of positive denial she would listen to no explanation. There was a quarrel, a broken engagement, and Jack Ralston went west, leaving his sweetheart well nigh broken hearted, with only duty to console her, and sometimes duty is the best consolation one can have.

If he had been less impatient there would have been no trouble. Dr. Bland did not understand the effect which a broken heart sometimes produces upon the body. Mr. Ackermann died before the winter was over. Jack Ralston came home as soon as he heard the news, but Miss Ackermann had gone to the city with a cousin of her mother and was obdurate. Her filial affection found satisfaction in refusing to forgive the lover who had desired her father's death. She would not even see him, and so the affair ended.

Well, it was too late now, and she was a fool to be dreaming of it. The sermon was ended, and the music of the organ roused her to the consciousness of things present and to come. She took part with the congregation in the rest of the service and then hurried home to make a hasty toilet for dinner.

There was only a quiet family gathering. The fiance of the oldest daughter, a traveling salesman in the employ of a wholesale house, was the life of the party. He was considered a very bright young man and a good talker. He was at his best today and kept them all amused with stories of his travels, so that Miss Ackermann had only to listen with a semblance of interest.

"By the way, Miss Ackermann," he said presently, "I met an old friend of yours on this last trip. Ralston was the name—J. W. Ralston. It was in Idaho, Boise City. He is doing well in mines out there and is quite chummy with one of my best customers, who has some money in his business. The two were together at my rooms in the hotel, and he saw Min's picture on the bureau. I always carry it around to keep me out of temptation—guardian angel business, you know, Min—and he saw it. You know people say you two look alike, and the likeness comes out strong in that photo. It struck him all of a heap. 'Excuse me,' he said, 'but will you tell me whose picture that is? It looks very much like some one I knew ten years ago.'

"'Certainly,' said I. 'That is my best girl. She is thought very much like a lady who lives in the same house, Miss Ackermann, from New Jersey.' Well, it turned out to be the very same. He asked lots of questions about you, especially whether you were married. I gave you a good character, and I guess you'll be hearing from him before long. Ross says he is a bachelor."

Miss Ackermann controlled herself sufficiently to smile. "Thank you, we were friends and neighbors when I was a girl," she replied, and in a moment more they were all laughing at a comical anecdote which the drummer was telling in his best style. It was no wonder he sold goods.

When the dinner was over the hostess excused herself soon upon the plea of domestic duties, leaving Miss Ackermann with the young people. So knowing herself in the way, she lingered but a few minutes. Back in her room she gave way and took refuge in that last solace of her sex, a good cry. Her overwrought nerves demanded relief and would not be denied.

She was still huddled, a disconsolate heap, on the lounge when there came a tap at the door which she recognized as that of her little friend. She sat up and hurriedly straightened her hair, trusting that in the dim light of the fast falling twilight the child would notice nothing amiss, sharp as she was.

"Come in," she called as the knock was repeated.

"Here's a gentleman to see you," the child said, with the air of a person who confers a favor. "He says he is an old friend, so I brought him right up." Miss Ackermann remembered that, it being Christmas day, the maid would be out and that consequently the little girl would answer the door.

"Thank you," she said, "you may go." Then she found herself face to face with a bronzed and bearded man whose eyes only were familiar.

"Well, Annie," he said in a voice she knew so well, "here I am once more."

She held out both hands with an eager gesture. "Oh, Jack, Jack!" she cried.

A moment more and she was sobbing on his shoulder while his arms held her as though they would never let go.

THE CYGNET FLIES.

Dr. Bell's Airship Has Most Successful Trial.

Dr. Alex. Graham Bell achieved a signal success at Halifax in the successful flight of his first airship, the Cygnet. The event, demonstrating as it does the possibility of the tetrahedral principle applied to flying machines, marks an epoch in the solution of the problem of aerial navigation. The huge contrivance of innumerable silken cells was conveyed to its cradle on board the dismantled schooner specially prepared for the purpose. The schooner was then attached to the steamer Blue Hill by means of a towing line, and the whole proceeded up Bras d'Or Lakes in the teeth of a strong northeaster. Upon the Blue Hill attaining a speed of fifteen miles per hour the signal was given, the cradle tipped, and the Cygnet, exposing immediately her immense area of silken surface, soared gracefully into the air. The flying line connecting the airship and the steamer directed the course of the former, also supplying the motive power necessary to keep it in flight. After a half hour's trial the Cygnet was allowed to descend. It sailed gracefully down at an angle of about twenty-five degrees, and rested on the waters of the lake by means of its three huge floats. It was then fished up and towed back to Beinn Breagh laboratory.

Reindeer For Newfoundland.

A cargo of 300 reindeer purchased by Dr. Wilfrid T. Grenfell is en route from Norway on a special steamer chartered for the purpose. A large supply of moss to feed them on the voyage has been taken aboard, and four Lapland families are being brought over to herd and care for them. The stock includes does, bucks and reindeer trained to travel. It is expected that the steamer will arrive some time in December.

The object of importing these reindeer is three fold. First, they will furnish milk to the inhabitants of Labrador and Newfoundland, who have hitherto depended upon canned milk. This is especially important to the children, who need the fresh, nourishing food.

Secondly, they will replace the dogs for traveling purposes, which is a big saving since the reindeer can feed upon the native moss of the country, while special food has to be prepared for the dogs. Gov. Bond has carefully compared Newfoundland moss with that of Norway, and finds them so similar that there is no danger of the reindeer going without proper food here.

It is hoped in time to increase the stock further by breeding these imported reindeer with the native caribou of Labrador.

Christmas Tree For Cat.

Christmas is the great religious festival when the kind heart finds many ways of ministering to the joy and pleasure of others. The good women of Boston who originated and sustain the Animal Rescue league have hit upon the unique idea of a Christmas tree for the cats that are waiting for homes at that institution. A bush is provided and trimmed with meat and other suitable eatables for such animals, and just before they are turned into the room the members of the Kindness club are admitted to enjoy the antics of the cats.

This club is composed of boys whose ages range from eight to thirteen years and is the outcome of the league's work in a poor section of Boston. They are pledged to do some kind act each day and to protect animals from cruelty. After the cats have demolished the tree and gone to sleep the boys are given refreshments and sent home truly filled with the spirit of Christmas.—New York Mail and Express.

An English Superstition.

The most popular superstition in many parts of England is that every remnant of Christmas decoration must be removed before Candlemas day. Should a sprig of holly or other evergreen be left in any house one of its occupants will die within the year.

BOOTH'S BLOODHOUND.

A Christmas Gift Which the Great Actor Did Not Appreciate.

"I remember a Christmas I spent in Edwin Booth's company many years ago," said the theatrical manager. "He had bought a summer residence at Cos Cob, Conn., the previous summer and invited me up to play Santa Claus and do the chimney act. His property was a fair sized little promontory of land bounded on one side by the Connecticut river, on the other side by Long Island sound, and the New York and New Haven tracks formed the base line. If there is any road affected by tramps it is that same New Haven road, and when I arrived, two or three days before Christmas, there was a line of them waiting their turn at the gate that reminded me of a highly successful advance sale, one tramp near the gate even offering to sell his advanced position for 10 cents. Booth was much worried about the dangerous looking fellows, and it struck me that a dog would be highly appropriate as a gift. I wired to a friend in New York, and the day before Christmas the biggest Siberian hound I ever saw was waiting at the little station for me. Booth was tickled to death, and we managed to chain that dog just inside the main gate near the lodge, and then we shook hands. It was an awful big dog, bigger than a little donkey that arrived on the next train with a gocart as a present to Booth's little daughter Edwina.

"Well, we fixed up the presents that night. I dressed up in fur rugs and traps as Santa Claus and had arranged to drive the donkey into the reception room and distribute the gifts from the well laden gocart.

"The dog was to remain in the little shed we had extemporized for him, but he didn't. He was there on business, and he attended to it promptly. The chain broke like a piece of twine, and I broke for the balcony, which I just managed to reach from the cart. Of course there was a racket, and I got into the window, and by the time we had armed ourselves with antique swords and a Revolutionary musket the noise had subsided sufficiently for us to venture forth.

"The dog was just seen in the moonlight disappearing over the stone wall, hundreds of dollars' worth of presents were scattered in the deep snow, and donkey meat and fur were an inch deep all over the premises."—Buffalo Express.

John's Christmas Cake.

The wife of a Los Angeles physician, active in foreign missionary work of the Methodist church, was asked by the women of the congregation to contribute a large cake to their holiday festival and bazaar. She consented to add her mite to the enterprise and called in her Chinese cook, a converted oriental.

"John," she said, "I am going to send a cake over to the church to be sold, and I want you to bake it. You know all that the missionaries have done for your people in China and how glad you are that they have saved you from darkness. I want you to show your gratitude by making the nicest and biggest cake you can."

The Chinaman got to work, and next morning the cake was sent over to the church. He tied the package up so neatly that the physician's wife did not think it worth while to undo it to look it over. That afternoon she received a telephone message from one of the women in charge of the festival saying there were doubts among the committee whether she would be satisfied to have the cake go into the bazaar in the condition in which it was received.

Much annoyed, the donor hurried over to the church. The cake was large and savory. The icing was marked with colored sugar in elaborate and intricate designs of oriental art. Across the top also in large letters was the inscription:

"From Mrs. Jessop to Jesus."—New York World.

GRIP VICTIMS RELIEVED

PE-RU-NA Is a Reliable Remedy for the After-Effects of Grip, Such as Indigestion, Prostration and Poor Circulation.

Mr. J. A. Goyer, president La Pharmacie Laconiuse, 1089 Berri St., Montreal, Can., writes:

"I can highly recommend your valuable preparation, Peruna, to all those who suffer from the bad after-effects of la grippe.

"Two bottles of Peruna have brought to me a complete cure of that sickness, and it has acted as the best tonic for the system that I have ever experienced."

MR. J. A. GOYER.

La Grippe Leaves Systemic Catarrh.

Judge Horatio J. Goss, Hartwell, Ga., writes:

"Some five or six years ago I had a very severe spell of grip which left me with systemic catarrh.

"A friend advised me to try your Peruna, which I did, and was immediately benefited.

"The third bottle completed the cure."

The Right Medicine.

Mrs. Henrietta A. S. Marsh, 2138 Reservoir St., Los Angeles, Cal., President Woman's Benevolent Ass'n, writes:

"I suffered with la grippe for seven weeks, and nothing I could do or take helped me until I tried Peruna.

"I felt at once that I had at last secured the right medicine and I kept steadily improving. Within three weeks I was fully restored, and I am glad that I gave that truly great remedy a trial I will never be without it again."

In a letter dated August 31, 1904, Mrs. Marsh says: "I have never yet heard the efficacy of Peruna questioned. We still use it."

Pe-ru-na Recommended by Friends.

Mr. N. Beauchamp, 196 rue Notre Dame, Lachine, P. Q., writes:

"I tried the famous remedy, Peruna, which was recommended to me by one of my friends, R. Pilon.

"I have not been without this valuable remedy for seven months, and now I see that I am entirely cured.

"Formerly on lying down I was unable to breathe through my nose and I never passed a day without headache.

"To-day I experience none of these symptoms and this is due to Peruna."

Head and Stomach Were Affected.

Miss Olivine Perreult, 385 Davidson St., Montreal, Can., writes:

"I write you a word to congratulate you on your famous remedy, Peruna. I tried other remedies, but my cold did not get any better, and I feared I was becoming consumptive.

"The condition of my head and stomach was very annoying. I had coughed day and night for three months as the result of a cold which I had contracted from sudden change of temperature.

"My brother advised me to try Peruna and I did so, for he was cured by Peruna. I took it regularly and improved steadily. I have now taken three bottles of it and am completely cured."

PERUNA is a remedy for the after-effects of la grippe.

Nearly every person who has had the grip during the past winter finds himself left with some chronic catarrhal condition more or less intolerable.

It may be a hacking cough, or a tired, all-worn-out feeling.

Sometimes indigestion appears and hangs on in spite of all remedies.

A short course of Peruna removes all these symptoms and puts the patients right again. We have a multitude of testimonials along this line.

Mr. Frank R. Fielder, 213 Pleasant Ave., Montgomery, Ala., formerly principal of Hackleville High School, writes:

"I can truthfully say that Peruna is a splendid remedy for la grippe, and a good tonic for building up the system."

The Following Letter Speaks For Itself

Peterborough, Nov. 1st, 1907.

W. G. MORROW, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $2000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $2000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,
J. R. STRATTON.

KING AS A SPORTSMAN

SOVEREIGN HAS SHOWN SKILL IN MANY GAMES.

Cricket and Football Only Sports in Which He Is Not Proficient—Made Mark as Big Game Shot—Successes on the Turf—Tiger Hunting in Ceylon—Some of His Records.

It is surprising how little is known about the really remarkable sporting record of the sovereign of the British Empire. It is as a sportsman indeed that his subjects love him most. Other people may bow to his qualities as a diplomat, a tactician, a wise ruler, but to the Englishman Edward VII. is first and foremost an excellent sportsman.

Almost the only outdoor games in which the King is not proficient are cricket and football. Although keenly interested in cricket, he never excelled as a player. He and his brothers had a professional coach, who tried to teach them the game when they were boys at Windsor, but though the man labored hard with his eager pupils he never succeeded in accomplishing great results and went away lamenting that he "could make nowt on their Royal Highnesses." Yet, notwithstanding this inability, King Edward, like all the rest of his subjects, studies cricket scores and follows all the big matches. His football experiences are limited to watching such games as those between the army and navy at the Queen's Club. He seriously thought of going out to the Crystal Palace to the cup final between the Australians and the English, but was dissuaded.

As a shot he had always shown wonderful skill and enthusiasm. In Baroda, Ceylon, in addition to buffalo and deer, he brought down an elephant and doffed it of its tail, according to custom. A visit to Nepal introduced him to tiger hunting (he is credited with a bag of half a dozen specimens in one day). His American experiences made him familiar with the sport that the Far Western prairies afford, and on the occasion of his visit to Chillingham Castle thirty-five years ago, by concealing himself in a haycart, his Majesty accomplished the rare feat of laying low a speciman of the celebrated herd of wild cattle for which Lord Tankerville's border seat is famous.

However, in spite of his record as a hunter of big game, it is as a performer in the home coverts that his subjects boast of him. At Sandringham he once brought down fifty birds with fifty-five shots. Even this incident is not recalled with such pride as the notable feat performed years ago when King Edward was the guest of Lord Carnarvon at Highclere Castle. In addition to the then Prince of Wales and his host there were four other excellent shots who in the course of three days brought down 16,800 head of game. As a feat of endurance alone that performance was remarkable, for close upon 18,000 cartridges must have been fired, which gives an average of 1,000 cartridges a man each day. Allowing that the recoil from each cartridge exerted a force of 30 pounds, a simple calculation shows that the King had to withstand a force equivalent to raising forty tons weight one foot, while in addition the task of raising the gun to his shoulder at least 1,500 times would almost equal in three days the force requisite to raising nine tons one foot.

As an ardent and personally interested spectator at races the King is well known, and as a judge of horses he is in the first rank. Many of his entries have won at national and international races. The King himself was once a winning jockey. When stationed at Curragh Camp as Prince of Wales he rode his horse Rupee and easily won a steeplechase.

At golf the King plays an excellent even game and is often to be seen on his links at Balmoral in all sorts of bad weather, which is the test of the true golf lover.

Only the other day his Majesty easily won in a croquet tournament. He is very fond of this game, as of billiards, where his quick eye enables him to make the most remarkably accurate shots. All England knows that the King's great interest in motors and all their improvements has helped the trade in automobiles. As a yachtsman his knowledge has been valuable to many, and his love of the sea has made him take a keen interest in all matters pertaining to boating, the building of boats, etc.

Of course, with increasing years, the King's sportsmanship is less strenuous, and while preserving a great interest in the advancement of all sports he has turned somewhat to quieter things for himself. He has become a pigeon fancier and has a loft at Sandringham where he keeps his birds, the original ancestors of which were given him by the King of the Belgians. Also he spends many hours at bridge. Here he shows his sportsmanship in being an excellent and agreeable loser when necessary, and while a remarkably fine player himself, is always a very uncritical and patient partner for less skilled players.

Use Noise to Cheat.

The doctor employed by an insurance company called to examine the "prospect" which an agent hoped to insure. He was shown into a front room. It was a very noisy room. Electric cars ran past the door, somebody was shoveling coal into the cellars on either side and a horde of boys in the street were howling like fiends.

"Haven't you a quieter place than this?" the doctor asked. "It is impossible for me to examine you properly here. I can't hear your heart. I can't test your breathing. In my younger days I was frequently imposed upon in this way by people with heart disease. They would insist upon the examination taking place where the racket was so tremendous that I couldn't hear myself think, and the consequence was that I passed several galvanized corpses. Understand, I don't accuse you of trying to get the best of me, but experience has taught me wisdom, and now I insist upon making my examination in a quiet place."

NAVY IS IN GOOD SHAPE.

Admiral Fisher Gives Strong Testimony to Britain's Naval Strength.

The feature of the great Guildhall banquet in London was the remarkable testimony to the efficiency of the navy given by Sir John Fisher, the First Sea Lord. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the first Liberal Prime Minister for seventeen years to occupy the post of honor at the banquet, covered in his speech practically the whole ground of foreign affairs, but made no unexpected pronouncement.

Between 600 and 700 guests, great politicians, diplomats, soldiers, sailors and leaders in the world of science and art, were received in the library by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress.

Responding to Alderman and Sheriff Burnett's toast of "The Imperial Forces," Sir John Fisher said:—"I am able to give indisputable proofs as to the strength, efficiency, and sufficiency of the navy. Recently in the North Sea, we had twenty-six of the finest battleships in the world, twenty-five of the finest cruisers, some some of them equal to foreign battleships—(cheers)—and fifty other vessels, under eleven admirals, and all working under a distinguished commander-in-chief under very trying circumstances, and in a very stormy time. I look in vain to see the equal of that large fleet anywhere. (Cheers.) And that is only a fraction of our power. That vast fleet has proved itself nulli secundus, whether with ships, officers or men.

SIR JOHN FISHER.

"The gunnery efficiency of the Fleet has surpassed all records. (Cheers.) It is unparalleled, and I am lost in wonder and admiration at the splendid unity, and spirit, and determination that must have been shown by everybody from top to bottom to obtain these results. My friend (Sheriff Burnett) talks about the two-power standard; a million-power standard is of no use unless you can hit. You must hit first, you must hit hard, and you must keep on hitting. (Cheers.) If these are the proofs, I do not think there is much wrong with the government of the navy. (Cheers.)

"Figs won't grow on thistles—(laughter)—but a gentleman of fine feeling has lately said that the recent Admiralty administration has been attended with the devil's own luck. (Laughter.) That interesting personality's luck is due to one thing, and one thing only. He hesitates at nothing to gain his object, and that is what the Board of Admiralty have done. Our object has been the fighting efficiency of the Fleet the sufficiency of the Fleet, and its instant readiness for war, and we have got it. I say it because no one can have a fuller knowledge than myself about it, and I speak with the fullest sense of responsibility. I turn to all of you, I turn to my countrymen and say:

"Sleep quiet in your beds, and don't be disturbed by these bogey invasions which are periodically resuscitated by all sorts of leagues.

"A magazine editor says in this month's number that an army of one hundred thousand German soldiers had been practically embarked in the Channel Fleet. You might just as well talk of embarking St. Paul's Cathedral in a penny steamer. (Laughter.) I have no doubt that equally serious stories are current in Germany. I have no doubt that there is terror there that the English Fleet will swoop down all of a sudden and gobble up the German Fleet. (Laughter.)

"But these stories are not only silly, they are very mischievous. If Eve hadn't kept on looking at that apple she wouldn't have picked it, and we should not have been bothered with clothes. (Loud laughter.) The day after to-morrow we are going to have a real German invasion, and we will give him a hearty welcome." (Cheers.)

Memorial to Dr. Barnardo.

An imposing memorial is to be erected over the grave of Dr. Barnardo. The work has been entrusted to Mr. George Frampton, R. A., who hopes to have is completed for unveiling on "Founder's Day" next year. By his own special desire Dr. Barnardo was buried in the centre of the green at the model village of Barkingside, Essex, which he created. At present the grave is covered by a plain stone slab. The memorial is to be 15 feet in height. On the summit of the stone pedestal is a bronze group of three figures, a mother and children, symbolizing "Protection." A portrait medallion of Dr. Barnardo is at the side, and at the base three children are seated.

Caid Maclean's Captivity.

The question of Raisuli's residence still blocks the way for negotiations for the release of Caid Sir Harry Maclean. The grant of $60,000 to Raisuli is made conditional on his abiding in Tangier, which he never dared to enter even when he was governor. As a British protege, Raisuli would, in case of misconduct, have to obey the summons of the British authorities, or forego the protection.

Caid Maclean has now been a prisoner for twenty weeks. As an exhibition of impotence, the negotiations are unexampled.

Grain Crop In Ontario.

The Census Department at Ottawa recently issued a bulletin on field crops and live stock of Ontario. The area of cleared and improved land in 1907 is given a 14,123,742, an increase of 900,429 over 1901. The area of land in all crops was 9,197,716, an increase of 567,000 acres. The area on orchard and vineyard was 326,290, an increase of 64,360. Fall wheat in 1907 was 15,546,491, a decrease of about six millions bushels; spring wheat, 2,473,651, a decrease of over 4,000,000. This no doubt is due to the larger and cheaper production of these grains in the northwest.

Oats show a decrease of over four millions; barley a gain of over 5,000,000 bushels; buckwheat of one million; potatoes, a million and a half; corn, one million, and turnips a decrease of nearly fifteen million bushels. There is an increase in all kinds of live stock. In horses the increase is over 77,000; milch cows, ver 133,000; other cattle, 365,000; heep, 63,000; hogs, 519,000, and poultry, nearly four millions.

His Awful Threat.

Mother—Why did you not scream when Hans kissed you? Daughter—He threatened me. Mother—How? Daughter—He said if I did he'd never kiss me again.

HUMAN VITALITY.

Cultivate and Converse Both the Mental and the Physical.

If people realized how precious physical and mental vitality are they would not squander them by foolishness any more readily than they would tap their veins and squander their life blood.

To accomplish great things we must have a strong, vigorous life force, a powerful vitality. If we do not have these everything we do will bear the stamp of weakness. It will crop out in every act. It is the strong vitality that tells in the great struggle of life. It is the reserve power that enables the runner to keep going when others fall exhausted by the way.

It is a great art to learn to accumulate and conserve vitality, to store it away for future emergencies. It is success capital. You may succeed without money, but you cannot succeed without physical and mental capital. It is the strong vitality that wins. The plus force, the physical and mental energies themselves are the things that enable one to surmount difficulties and ride triumphantly over obstacles.

It is a very shortsighted policy to try to crowd the brain beyond its normal capacity, to force a tired mind to do good work, to force it to think when it needs rest or recreation.

Many people work so much that they do not store any reserve power. They use up all the power they generate as they go along. All creative work especially requires a fresh brain, vigorous, spontaneous thought.

I have noticed that people who think they must work every minute, who are always doing something, do not accomplish nearly as much nor produce work of as good a quality as those who labor a great deal less and play a great deal more. In other words, their play is a great producer because it keeps the mind and body in splendid trim for work; it lubricates the faculties, restores balance, keeps the mind fresh, sane and vigorous.

All effective work is a result of concentrated faculties. A tired and exhausted brain cannot focus its ideas with any power. It is not so much a question of will power as a question of vigorous mentality, and that is a child of pure blood; it depends upon a hundred other conditions being just right.—Success Magazine.

What Is the Sargasso Sea?

Columbus did not use the name Sargasso sea. Oviedo, whose "Historia" contained the first general account of the discoveries in America, was the first to apply the Portuguese word sargaco (seaweed) to that part of the ocean in which gulf weed is prevalent. The use of the noun sargasso or sargassum is now practically confined to this species of a large genus of seaweeds characterized by little air bladders, each on its own stalk. The name Sargasso sea is applied only to that part of the Atlantic in which the weed is found in greatest abundance. The sea is roughly elliptical in shape, its great axis almost coinciding with the Tropic of Cancer, while the two foci are near longitude 45 degrees to 70 degrees west. The only land masses in the sea are the Bermuda islands, near which large collections of weed are often seen. The weed drift is thickest between 25 degrees and 32 degrees north latitude and west of 40 degrees west longitude. The Sargasso sea is about one-third as large as the continental United States, but outside this central ellipse are others, larger in size, where the thinly scattered weed moves in the gulf stream or is driven by the prevailing winds.—Cyrus C. Adams in Harper's.

Pinching Mud.

Many people allow themselves to suffer most unnecessarily because of the lack of that helpful philosophy which allows freely for the viewpoint of others. Story, the great American sculptor, whose studio was the delight of all visitors to Rome, was once given an unexpected glimpse down the vista of another man's mind. For hours a compatriot of his, a brilliant man in his own way, had been sitting silently in the studio watching the aproned sculptor modeling in clay. At last he could contain himself no longer, and he electrified his host by blurting out with the most genuine earnestness, "Story, will you tell me whatever induced you to give up the glorious profession of the bar and come here to Rome to pinch up mud for a living?"

But the man of genius, whose creations were already delighting the art world, merely smiled indulgently. He could not explain himself so that his visitor could understand his position, but he could and did appreciate to the full the novel point of view.—Youth's Worm.

Buy Coal In Britain.

A German syndicate has acquired 2,000 acres in the Kentish coal fields, and is arranging to start work at once between Dover and Canterbury.

About twelve months ago some coal mining experts from Westphalia paid a visit to the Dover colliery works, and were very much struck with the similarity of the strata to those in some of the best German coal fields. A second visit was paid to Dover about six months ago, and since that time negotiations have been going on for the acquisition of part of the proved land between Dover and Canterbury.

Experts were sent from Westphalia to make full enquiries on behalf of a syndicate of Berlin bankers and financiers. They returned to Berlin after completing enquiries, which were so satisfactory that a contract for the purchase of 2,000 acres was entered into.

The site selected by the Germans will be the nearest pit to the port of Dover, the area being only about two miles inland.

Among the coal seams proved at Dover is one of very valuable steam coal, to which, it is stated, the Germans attach great importance.

ALL RUN DOWN

Weak---Nervous---Unstrung.

Thousands get run down and become invalids before they realize anything is wrong. By permitting low vitality to develop, the way is paved for fevers, pneumonia and diphtheria. To put off makes it all the harder to get well. The time to repair the system is right now, before the damage gets any worse. The remedy is Ferrozone; it revitalizes, renews, builds up vitality that outlasts old age.

FERROZONE is a genuine invigorator that banishes weakness, and instils surplus force and vigor into every organ of the body. Ferrozone sharpens the appetite, produces rich nutritious blood, and thereby contributes that sense of buoyancy that adds so enormously to one's pleasure and usefulness in life.

For all forms of debility, weakness, lack of blood or nerve tone, sleeplessness, tiredness and exhaustion, there is no medicine so vitalizing and potent as Ferrozone. Even one trial demonstrates its rapidly and certainty of action.

To restore the energy of youth, to get back your vital stamina and reserve force, there is positively no treatment so certain as Ferrozone. You have only to try Ferrozone to know the enormous benefit it invariably brings to all in poor health.

FERROZONE

Miss Dorothy M. Leduc of Chester gives the following convincing evidence of Ferrozone's power:—"My work compels me to rise early in the morning and work ten hours daily as a saleslady. Last Spring I was run down, lost my color, and fell off in weight. I seemed to lack ambition and the life was out of me. A friend recommended Ferrozone, and I took one tablet after meals with wonderful results. Ferrozone brought back my complexion, and has given me new strength and abundance of energy and spirits. I would advise all young ladies to use Ferrozone."

Mrs. H. G. Wilder of Dexter says—"My daughter was not very well last Winter, and lost her strength completely when the Spring came. I gave her Ferrozone, and am glad to say it did wonders. After six boxes were used my daughter was strong, and looked the picture of health."

Gave New Strength

FERROZONE

It makes the weak strong, the sick well, and assures lasting good health.

WARNING—Beware of any substitute for Ferrozone; it alone can cure you. Sold by all druggists and dealers in medicine, only in 50c boxes containing 50 chocolate-coated tablets. By mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

YOU CAN EASILY OPERATE THIS TYPEWRITER YOURSELF

Don't worry your correspondent.

Don't write him anything by hand that takes him time to make out—that may leave him in doubt, that he can't easily read.

And don't fill up legal cap records—or make out accounts or hotel menus in your own hand writing.

Own hand writing.

It looks bad, reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and sometimes ambiguous.

You can write out your letters—make out the bill—fill in an insurance policy—enter your card menus—make out your accounts, or hotel menu—or do any kind of writing you need, on any kind, size or thickness of paper, and spell any way you want to.

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer.

For you can easily learn with a little practice to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly as an expert operator on the Oliver. Because the Oliver is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 50% more durable than any other typewriter, because it has about 50% less wearing points than most other typewriters.

50% easier to write with than those other complicated, intricate machines that require "learning"—technical knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate.

Then machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance policies, or odd-size documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring experts to operate.

You can adjust the Oliver to any reasonable space—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clean.

For the Oliver is the typewriter for the doctor the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant the hotel proprietor—or any man that does his own writing.

Christmas Day in the World's History

THROUGH glancing, even casually, into the records of the years, one finds that Christmas Day has played a prominent part in the world's history.

In very many instances it has not been a part indicating "Peace on earth, good will to men," but marked to an astonishing degree by evil deeds, calamities and wars.

Perhaps it was contemplation of this record that caused the senior Dumas to remark that, at the Christmas season, "Satan and his angels of gloom found work a-plenty."

The Christian faith was only about three centuries old when a vicious and wholesale slaughter of its adherents was made on Christmas Day. Since then strife and bloodshed have marked very many celebrations of the season.

ALTHOUGH a summary of "Christmas in History" begins with a tragedy, there are a number of important historical events connected with the day that have tended to the betterment of the world. It is interesting to trace the development of the season from the earliest years.

303 It was because the Christians of this early period held Christmas as a time of religious celebration that Diocletian, Emperor of Rome, planned his wholesale slaughter of believers on that day. He thought it afforded an excellent opportunity to catch them together in large companies, and murder on a gigantic scale would, therefore, be made easier.

Diocletian had appeared friendly to the Christians in order to entrap them. When great numbers of them had assembled at the Temple of Nicomedia, in Bithynia, and were chanting, praying and holding joyful services in commemoration of the birth of Christ, Diocletian marched his soldiers on the town and set fire to it at all four corners. History states that more than 20,000 persons perished on that dreadful Christmas Day.

306 Christmas Day of 306, however, found the dawn of a happier era for the Christians, for Constantine had ascended the throne. His father was the Sub-Emperor Constantius, and his mother a British woman, the famous Helena of York.

Constantine had been present at the burning of Nicomedia, and he determined that, if ever he came into power, he would make reparation for Diocletian's atrocities by granting the Christians every liberty in their religious rites. From that time until the ninth century Christmas Day passed without especial historic interest.

The Crowning of Charlemagne, A. D. 800

800 On December 25 of this year Charlemagne was crowned Emperor of the Romans, an event the influence of which was felt for a thousand years. In fact, the title was held by succeeding Kings of the Franks, or the Germans, as they were called later, until 1806, when Francis II resigned both titles.

The first Emperor of Germany, after the unification of the German Empire, as a result of the victory of the Germans over the French in the war of 1870, was elected and given ruling power during Christmas week. The King of Prussia was proclaimed Emperor of the new empire by resolutions drawn up by the German Princes in the Galerie des Glaces of the Chateau of Versailles, where they were obliged to spend their Christmas holidays in 1870.

878 Christmas Day has figured conspicuously in English history. That of 878 marked a dark and gloomy period. Some time before King Alfred the Great had set apart twelve days for the celebration of the season, and gave a personal example by a lavish indulgence in feasting and merrymaking.

Alfred should have been preparing for battle during Christmas week of 878, as the Danes were near at hand. While he and his followers were making merry, the Danes stole upon the English army on Christmas Day. As the English were unprepared, they were scattered with great slaughter; thousands were driven into the sea, and the King was compelled to flee into the forest.

961 Perhaps it was this success that led the Danes to adopt the custom of celebrating Christmas. In 961 King Edgar held a royal festival at York at this season. Sir Walter Scott, in "Marmion," refers to the "savage Dane" keeping Christmas.

1016 Like the Germans, the Danes were given rulers on Christmas Day, but were not quite as happy in their choice as the people of the federated empire. In 1016, Canut, or Canute, son of Sweyen, first King over all England, was chosen King over all England for the third time. This Danish King followed his father's teachings for the first few years of his reign. He was guilty of atrocious murders, several of which he committed on Christmas Day, when his subjects were off guard, indulging in the festivities of the season, which he encouraged.

1043 Canute's son, Harold, occupied the throne for a short time, and then, on Christmas Day, 1043, Edward the Confessor was crowned. A number of important events in the reign of Edward were connected with the day. It was on December 28, 1053, at a meeting with his wise men at Gloucester, he ordered that Blegywryd, brother of Gruffydd, the South Welsh King, be executed

An Incident at the Crowning of William the Conqueror at Westminster.

King Edward's last Christmas—that of 1065—was marked by a tragedy, when Earl Tostig, brother of Harold, was foully murdered by traitors in the monarch's court. Edward had not gone to Gloucester that year, as was his custom, to spend the holiday season, but remained in London to push forward plans for the completion of Westminster Cathedral.

1066 When Harold II was chosen to assume the crown, it was felt that his reign would be short, and it was, terminating at the battle of Hastings. On the following Christmas Day William the Conqueror was crowned King, and a stable line of succession for English rulers was founded.

When William was crowned in Westminster, there was a division among the soldiers. One faction, hearing the loud acclaim of the people in the church, chose to believe there was a disturbance within, and shot into the crowd, causing a riot and much bloodshed.

1068 This was a Christmas of bitter mourning for a great number of the English people. King Sweyn, of Denmark, rose in revolt against the Norman King, and William, in a spirit of wild revenge, caused all northern England to be laid to utter waste, that its people might never again rise against him.

The desolation throughout that land, beginning at Yorkshire, was terrible, and on Christmas Day many died of starvation; others killed themselves, and hundreds fled to other lands, while their homes were burning and their fields being devastated.

1087 William Rufus, the next monarch, took occasion to change the nature of the first Christmas of his reign from combined religious and quiet social enjoyment to carousing and merrymaking, without thought of the religious meaning of the time.

He caused to be erected a large and splendidly fitted-up hall at Westminster, which he dedicated to Christmas celebrations of such a nature that the place received the name "Rufus' Roaring Hall." Although it was a rendezvous of royal merrymakers, it soon became a place of questionable character, and for many years was marked by riotous celebrations.

Henry II Placing His Crown on the Altar

1126 Under Henry I, royal Christmas celebrations were again held at Windsor, and once more characterized by a combination of religious and secular rites. On December 25, 1116, Henry called an assembly of his Kingdom for the purpose of declaring his daughter, who was the widowed Empress Matilda, as his legitimate successor. Six years previous to this King Henry had lost his son and heir apparent, Prince William, in a shipwreck. The King received the news while he was preparing a big Christmas celebration to welcome home the young man, and it is said that Henry never smiled again.

1135 Stephen of Blois was crowned at Westminster Abbey during the Christmas festivities of 1135. For nineteen years he fostered wickedness, and his reign was one of unparalleled disorder. Trouble arose between Stephen and the Empress Matilda, who claimed the crown for her son Henry. Stephen waged war against "The Lady of the English," as Matilda was called, and on Christmas Eve, 1142, the Empress fled from the castle where she was in hiding, and where she was threatened with starvation, because Stephen had cut off the source of food supply. On Christmas Day a treaty was drawn up, whereby Stephen was to hold the crown for life, and at his death it should revert to the son of Matilda.

1156 Upon his third Christmas as monarch of the English, Henry II created a decided sensation by taking his crown from his head during the festival of the Nativity and placing it upon the altar when the priests were conducting services. He vowed that he would never wear his crown again, and kept his word.

1170 Peace loving and democratic as Henry was in many things, he could not bear to be opposed. It was at Christmastide, 1170, that he clashed with his Archbishop of Canterbury, Thomas a' Becket.

Anticipating trouble, Becket, who had been out of England, preached on Christmas Day a sermon, the text of which was: "I come to die among you." He then proceeded to excommunicate certain bishops who had incurred his displeasure. The King, hearing this, expressed his anger so forcibly that four of Henry's knights, who were enemies of the archbishop, took this excuse to murder him. They found Becket in Canterbury Cathedral, and, after demanding in vain that he re-establish the bishops whom he had excommunicated, stabbed him to the heart.

1214 It was at a Christmas festival in 1214 that the barons surrounded King John and demanded that he sign the paper which proved to be the foundation of English liberties, the Magna Charta. John held out against their demand for a time, but was finally forced to accede to their demands.

1265 Under Henry III, in 1265, an event of great importance took place on Christmas Day. Henry had sworn to observe the Magna Charta, but, time after time, he broke his oath, until the barons became infuriated, and decided that the rights of the people should be upheld at all costs.

The result was a clash with the crown which caused the establishment of the first English Parliament. It was summoned at Christmastide, 1265, while the King was held a prisoner by Earl Simon.

1281 Christmas of 1281 became historic because of the severity of the winter. Never were such frosts known in England. The Thames was frozen solid, so that skating could be indulged in for a long time; fishes and birds died from cold and want of food; human beings perished from the cold, and everywhere was felt the blight of the black frost. In the breaking up of the ice five of the arches of London Bridge were carried away.

Another fearful Christmas was that of 1564, when a dreadful cold wave held the country in its frozen grip. Thousands died from cold and exposure, and provisions were scarce.

1286 Edward I provided a sensational and gruesome feature for Christmas Day of this year by having the Mayor of London publicly hanged in the morning. Naturally, this threw a gloom over the city for the day.

1326 On Christmas Day in this year the tables were turned on Edward II, although not in such a tragic manner. While indulging in scandalous rioting, he was seized by his indignant subjects, bound hand and foot, and carried off a prisoner to Kenilworth Castle. On the following Christmas Parliament met and deposed him, electing his 14-year-old son Edward to the throne.

Under Edward III the Christmas celebration commenced on All Hallow Eve, October 31, and continued with the day after the Purification, February 2. December 25 and January 1, however, were the big days.

1418 Lord Cobham, who had led the Lollards in their revolt against the throne, was subjected to cruel torture and put to death in St. Giles' Field, London, on Christmas Day, 1418.

1428-9 Christmases of 1428 and 1429 were ushered in and out to martial music, and there was little rejoicing in either France or England, for both countries were passing through the horrors of war. The name of Joan of Arc is linked inseparably with the Christmas seasons of 1429 and 1430, for during the first she was a terror to the English army of Henry VI, and her trial was dragging its weary way when Christmas of 1430 arrived.

It was on Christmas Day, 1440, that Gilles de Retz, of France, the original "Bluebeard," was executed for the murder of six of his wives.

1460 The terrible Battle of Wakefield, in the Wars of the Roses, took place at Christmastide, 1460.

1492 Navidad, Cuba, owes its name to Christmas, for it was on that day in 1492 that Christopher Columbus landed at that place. Because of the day, he called the place Navidad.

Edward II Carried a Prisoner to Kenilworth.

1526 The "Still Christmas" of 1526 was so called because, on account of the plague which was raging through England, Henry III ordered that the court should suppress all Christmas mirth and jollity out of sympathy for the suffering country.

1642 The most astonishing thing connected with Christmas about this time was a plea for the abolishment of the day made by the Puritans. Old John Taylor, the "Water Poet," says in this connection: "All the liberties and harmless sports, the merry gambols, dances and frisols, with which the toiling plowman and laborer once a year were wont to be recreated, and their spirits and hopes revived for a whole twelvemonth, are now extinct and put out of use, in such a fashion as if they had never been.

"This is because of the conduct of the merry lords of bad rule at Westminster. Their madness hath extended itself to the very vegetables; senseless trees, herbs and weeds are in a profane estimation among them—holly, ivy, mistletoe, rosemary and bay are accounted ungodly branches of superstition for your entertainment.

"So far has the revulsion of feeling gone, that now to roast a sirloin of beef, to touch a collop of brawn, to take a pie, to put a plum in the pottage pot, to burn a great candle or to lay one block the more on the fire for your sake, Master Christmas, is enough to make a man be suspected and taken for a Christian, for which he shall be apprehended for committing high Parliament treason and mighty malignancy against the General Council of the Directorian Presbyterian Conventicle."

The Puritans gained such authority that, in 1642, some parish officers were censured and their orders taken from them for permitting ministers to preach on Christmas Day and for allowing them to adorn the church.

On June 3, 1642, the Lords and Common Parliament issued a proclamation whereby it was stated that "the Feast of the Nativity of Christ" should no longer be observed, and that "all scholars, apprentices and other servants" should perform their duties on December 25 the same as on any common day. On December 27 next the town crier went through London by order of the Mayor, proclaiming that "Christmas Day and all other superstitious festivals should be put down, and market kept open on that day."

It was impossible to wipe out the Christmas spirit,

The Puritan Christmas.

which had been implanted in the hearts of men since that first morn of rejoicing, and in a few years the religious and secular celebrations were in full force again

1688 James II, who had taken the crown, was obliged to flee to France for his life, and on Christmas Day, 1688, he landed at Ambleteuse, in Brittany. The flight of James put an end to the struggle between the crown and the people. The throne was offered to William of Orange and his wife, Mary, daughter of James II and granddaughter of Charles I. This affected a reconciliation of the Powers. When, December 28, 1694, Queen Mary died of smallpox a gloom was cast over the Christmas festivities of that year.

Zachary Taylor, at Okeechobee, Fla.

1837 Christmas Days in America have been peculiarly non-history making. It seems to have been an unwritten law of the country that no battles should be fought on that day. There is only one record of this being broken, and that was in 1837, when Zachary Taylor defeated the Indians in the Battle of Okeechobee, Florida.

To be sure, Washington crossed the Delaware on Christmas Day, 1776, as he expected then to catch the Hessians off their guard.

Lincoln and his Cabinet met December 25, 1861, and decided to release, on England's request, Mason and Slidell, who had been captured while on their way to France as representatives of the Confederacy.

On the great Christmas festival of 1868 President Johnson granted full pardon to every one who had taken part in the great conflict against the Union, and so ends the meagre chronology of historic American Christmases.

HAVELOCK CLAIRVOYANT TELLS WHERE BODY OF EDWARD BEAMAN LIES IN OTONABEE

Son of the Unfortunate Man Said To Have Asked Havelock Woman To Use Her Power in Hope Of Finding His Father's Body

SHE WAS NOT CONFIDENT

The men who have been prominent in the search for the body of Edward Beaman while they have given up hope of finding it, were to-day talking of the statements of a clairvoyant who lives in the vicinity of Havelock. According to the report, Beaman's son a young brakesman on the C.P.R., visited this woman who is said to possess exceptional power by the assistance of a magic stone. On other occasions she has been reported instrumental in finding lost bodies and hence the general reputation of her ability in this respect.

Some time ago she says, the authorities took away her best stone and she does not place the same faith in the one she has left. However the men who have been looking for the body say that she told the young man that his father fell off the bridge into the water and is held by two beams some distance from the bridge.

Such is the story but as to the truth of it the finding of the body alone will prove the statements.

Some cases have been recounted where clairvoyants has been known to tell the truth.

ADDITIONAL 500 EDITION OF CHRISTMAS EXAMINER PRINTED AND NOW READY

The success of the Examiner's special Christmas edition, issued on Saturday, was very gratifying. Within an hour of the time the news press ceased work, the entire edition of 3,500 copies was quite exhausted. To supply those who were unable to secure papers, a part of the edition, the art section, containing photogravures of city children, to the number of 500, will be printed, and may be had at the Examiner office to-night, and after.

Given Gauntlets By The Knights

Another Presentation to Mr. William Crowley Before His Departure

Yesterday the Knights of Columbus gathered in their club rooms to do honour to Mr. William Crowley, who is a member of that organization, and who leaves to-day for Edmonton. He was made the recipient of an address and a pair of gauntlets. Mr. Crowley replied, thanking the members for the kindness shown him.

Local Sprinter Wins Out In Foot Race With a Fox

Captures a Real Live Animal in a North Monaghan Field—A Remarkable Stunt

A PROFESSIONAL RUNNER

As cute as a fox—is an old adage that often expresses the character of human beings, but when "as fleet as a fox" is made to refer to any person, most people are from Missouri and want to be shown. A Peterborough youth, however, according to the latest story, last week was the lucky capturer of a fox using nothing but his legs to carry him and a stick to stop his further progress when the fox was caught by the hind legs.

Tom Longboat or Fred Simpson are not in it compared with this youth, who is Mr. W H Irwin an employee of G. Walter Green's factory. Mr. Irwin performed the feat in North Monaghan, where he was assisting in the installation of a pump. Coming home he noticed the fox crossing the farm of Mr. Robert Dobbin and in an instant he was out of the cutter and after the prize he later secured. Despite the weight of a heavy fur overcoat Irwin made much better time than the once fleet footed fox and soon caught him by a hind leg.

The animal turned on his assailant and offered fight, but Mr. Irwin was prepared and struck it with the stick he carried. The fox was carried in a dazed condition to the sleigh and in triumph was brought towards Peterborough. Before arriving here, however, it is stated that the animal was sold for $1.50.

The phenomenal capture has an explanation. Hounds had been after the fox which was almost exhausted when Mr. Irwin caught it by the leg. The performances of the feat nevertheless is a unique one and stands alone in Peterborough county.

Assessment Less By Over $300,000

As a Result of Long Labours by The Court of Revision

The Court of Revision has presented the taxpayers of Peterborough with a substantial Christmas gift, nothing less than a reduction of over $300,000 in the assessment. The report was completed on Friday after more than a month and a half's work on the part of the Court, which began its labours on November 6, and has been holding two meeting almost every week day since that time. It having required about forty meetings to render judgment after the appeals had been heard. The Court has made sweeping reductions in the assessors' figures, very few assessments having been confirmed of the 323 appeals considered. A list of the awards will be published to-morrow.

The Wrong Man Arrested

Caught at Bowmanville, but He Did Not Correspond to Description of Other

A despatch appeared in to-day Toronto Globe from Bowmanville, telling of the arrest of a man who was supposed to have shot the farmer, named Charles Porteous, near Millbrook, last week. A telephone message to the Examiner from Bowmanville to-day, however, contradicts this. Jack Harris, the captured man, does not correspond in many particulars, with the description of the man who committed the murderous assault. Harris is about 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighs 135 lbs., and has a full set of upper teeth. He has not the appearance of a hardened criminal, although he confessed to stealing some goods. He was remanded until to-morrow, when the Bowmanville chief will have made more inquiries.

Struck in Eye By a Limb

Jno. Russell Brought to St. Joseph's Hospital Last Night

John Russell, a lumberman, who was hurt in the woods above Buckhorn, was brought to the city yesterday and last night was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. He was struck by a limb in the left eye, and though not seriously injured he is suffering considerably. He will not lose his eye, from present indications.

McGee Is Willing To Walk

Likely That Match Will be Arranged at Once With Barrie

It is likely a walking match between M. J. Barrie and Wm. McGee will be arranged. Mr. McGee has signified his willingness to meet Mr. Barrie and nothing remains but to complete the arrangements for the contest, which will likely be done at once. There should be no difficulty over the matter as both men are eager for the fray and will get together as soon as possible.

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable, or more gloomy and discouraged, than liver complaint, and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia, and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right, and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

THE PRESBYTERIAN MISSIONS

Address by Rev. Mr. Potter on The Spreading Movement—Some Interesting Figures

OFFERING FOR MISSIONS

At St. Andrew's church yesterday morning Rev. J G Potter gave an interesting survey of the important work being done by the Presbyterian church of Canada in the extensive Home and Foreign Mission Fields under the control of the church. The work embraces efforts in India, China, Korea, Formosa, New Hebrides, Trinidad, British Guiana, Jews in Toronto; Chinese in British Columbia; Indians in the Northwest. The Foreign fields include 148 Missionaries, 21 medical missionaries, 288 native workers of whom 264 are men, 6,000 communicants and 2,500 catechumens, 133 schools with 6,691 scholars. The medical work is a genuine surprise; patients to the number of 36,376 having been treated in the various hospitals, while the visitations and treatments in the dispensaries and homes far exceed this number.

In the Home Mission fields the need is always pressing; for Canada is growing all the time. Last year there were 215,912 new comers as follows:—British, 97,757; of these 15,637 were Scotch and 5,000 Irish; Continental 54,373 and from the United States 63,782.

The Presbyterian church is seeking to do its share in meeting the needs of the stranger, and from truly patriotic and Christian motives the work cannot be held back. Reference was made to the great enthusiasm of the laymen in their missionary movement and Mr. Potter expressed the hope that a similar work would be carried forward here as that so heartily supported in Toronto.

The Christmas offerings in St. Andrews on Dec. 22 and 29 will be devoted to the Forward Movement in Missions.

LARGE GATHERING OF BROTHERHOOD

Social Evening Spent at St. John's—Address by The Bishop

About 100 men gathered in St. John's school room from 5 to 7 o'clock (many of them being out of work men) and sat down to a substantial tea catered by Messrs. Coleman Brothers. The funds were again provided by kindly members of the congregation, thus showing a warm interest in this particular work. Bishop Reeve received a hearty welcome, and gave a most interesting address. After relating some of his adventures and trials, the bishop urged those present to work on and not be discouraged, even if the outlook was dark. He gave the men a motto for the year, "Watch, ye! Quit you like men; be strong."

Mr. D. Hughes Charles presided, and some of the men present gave their opinions on the situation, especially with regard to the conditions of labour. Rev. Canon Davidson spoke encouragingly and said that while much was being done to procure work for men, many cases were known of men who wanted work, but not charity, and it was very hard not to be able to get it for them. Messrs. Jay, R. J. Devey, Lumly, Prettie, Goodacre, Chandler and others gave short addresses, and most of the men attended Evensong in St. John's at 7 p.m.

CHAMPION TIGERS WERE "PHOTOED"

Winners of the League Snapped By Louis Mendel

A group picture was taken on Saturday afternoon of the Tiger basket ball team, at Mendel's studio. They have won the championship of the Basket Ball League and are now the winners of the Cressman Cup. The following are in the group: Sutherland and Wallace, forwards; Stanton, Captain, centre; Loomis and A. Weatherstone, backs, Fred Hall, spare.

The Cressman cup has a prominent place, in the group.

THE SNOW PLOUGH MAN IS TALKED OF North End Residents Claim His Saturday Trip Was Belated

North-end residents are complaining about the inadequate services of the snow plough man On Saturday night it is alleged that the snow plough did not arrive until 11 o'clock at night, and most of those going home after work had to break the roads. Complaints are coming in from other sections also.

THE WEATHER.

By way of variation meteorologically this district has had a heavy fall of snow. Snow began to fall early on Saturday, and towards evening it developed into a genuine blizzard. The heavy snow was accompanied by a strong gale from the east, and for some hours the scene was picturesque, if not pleasing. The snow continued all day Sunday, although not with such severity, and has not yet altogether ceased. The highest temperature yesterday was 28 degrees, lowest 22 degrees; snowfall 13 inches. The glass is now rising and the wind has changed to the north-west, presaging colder weather. No decidedly cold weather is being experienced anywhere in Canada at present. The late storm extended from western Ontario to the seaboard.

THE SPOILS SYSTEM

The Whitney Government made a solemn vow to eliminate politics from its administration, especially in regard to the matter of license enforcement. We see how this promise has been kept—by the conversion of the license department into a preserve for party heelers for whom no other opening offered. The spoils system has been brought to perfection under the Whitney administration; the Government guillotine is kept streaming with the blood of decapitated "Grit" office-holders; neither age, nor sex, nor condition is regarded; they all must go if the heelers demand the place. No public interest is safe from the evil effects of the spoils system. In some offices, the question of fitness does not largely enter; but in some there is urgent need that only merit should be the guide. No official, whatever his party complexion, if he is filling the place satisfactorily, should be displaced, except to be replaced by a better man professionally, not politically. One would think that the sick would be spared exploitation in the interests of the spoils system. But it seems that they are not to be excepted. The Canadian Practitioner and Review, a medical journal, with no politics except the special interests it serves, has the following eloquent paragraph which tells a great deal more than it asserts: "The Government of Ontario is responding nobly to the cry from the medical profession for reform in the asylum service—especially as to appointments. The Grit heads of asylums are getting gradually weeded out, or resigned out, or transferred out. By a singular and happy coincidence, Tory heads are coming in to take the places of the useless Grits. The world moves on, and in the course of time Ontario will have the finest asylum service in the world. Appointments to senior positions will depend on merit alone—the merit of being good working Tories."

MORE LIGHT

The Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto News, moved by Mr. Kemp's attack upon Mr. Pugsley to retell the story of the 1904 elections, mentions, towards the end of his tale, that about the end of October, 1904, "two notes, one for $100,000, the other for $125,000, were discounted by Mr. David Russell. This is interesting, as introducing an item of $125,000, not hitherto disclosed for Mr. Russell, in his letter to the press "denying that he divulged information relating to a note, but not denying the existence of the note," spoke only of $100,000.

The News also finds it useful to recall the history of La Presse purchase, and furnishes the information that when the new owners found the "paper a losing affair," they got out of it at a loss of $200,000, of which "Mr Graham shouldered $87,000 and Mr. Russell $87,000." What happened to the other $26,000, does not appear.

All this information, if it can be shown to possess the essential virtue of truth, is very interesting. The News, which presents it to the public, does not pretend to know just what happened, and adduces the ingenious, if unsatisfying, theory, that there were "two separate campaigns in progress against the Government in Eastern Canada; the official Conservative campaign under Mr. Borden, and the mysterious politico-commercial campaign under Mr. Russell and Mr. Blair, which in some unexplained manner came to grief, and accomplished little, or nothing." Whether they were wholly separated may perhaps be doubted. It is sure that Mr. Graham, for instance, was associated with Mr. Russell in the "politico-commercial campaign," and Mr. Graham also claims that he had Mr. Borden's instructions, written instructions, he says, concerning the plan to be followed for the handling of money in the various centres. The more the story comes out, the more it seems to get "curioser and curioser." On the whole it does seem to have been wise to cover it as much as possible with the mantle of a telegraph code.—Moutreal Herald.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, and the glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

CHRISTMAS GLOBE

The beautiful Christmas Globe is a surprise and not a surprise. It is not surprising, with the past in mind, that the enterprise of the management should take such splendidly elaborate and artistic a medium of expression. It it is not a surprise, it is a satisfaction, to the elder of us especially, to note the great development within the past two or three decades of Canadian typographic and pictoral art as exemplified as set forth in the pictures supplementing the Christmas Globe this year. That upon the Christmas Globe are lavished year after year the highest skill of authors, artists, lithographers and printers, is especially true of the current number. The Christmas Globe is a source of pride to Canadians, because it is an entirely Canadian production, the product of Canadian brains, hands and business enterprise. And claiming the Christmas Globe as Canadian is high praise, for there are no superior publications issued on this continent, and it is easily inter pares when placed alongside the best products of the Mother Land. The letter press is of sterling quality, in both a literary and patriotic sense, and the pictures and photographic reproductions—seven of which are full-page—are splendid works of art. Altogether the Christmas Globe is a gem.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Anchor ice is enough to stop water wheels in Ontario, but it takes frazil to do the trick in Montreal.

The Conservatives in Parliament are painfully anxious to know just how much Hon. Mr. Pugsley knows about the big Conservative corruption fund for the elections of 1904. They will find out enough when the proper time comes.

Sitting in Parliament now, in rancourous idleness on the opposition benches Hon. Mr. Foster must have a saturnine joy in noting Mr. Fielding's efforts to meet maturing debts incurred by Mr. Foster during his reckless regime.

A householder in Montreal, who has not paid his water rates by the first of December, forfeits his right to vote at the municipal elections. If the candidate finds out that he has no vote, he forfeits also his right to share in the distribution of something stronger than water.

It would appear that no Conservative function, can work without the "bar'll," whether it be that vulgarly charged with specie, or its equivalent, or that charged with the effervescing spirit of malt, or that turned by an organ grinder. At a Conservative family meeting in Toronto, an Italian barrel organ, ground by an Italian hand, silenced the persuasive eloquence of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, who was invoking the aid of the faithful in his mayoralty aspirations. The organ ground out the "Lost Chord," and the chord being lost, the avoirdupois doctor couldn't get the faithful "on the string."

THE WHITE PLAGUE

The victims of the plague of tuberculosis have a strong and constant claim upon our sympathy. Many of our boys and girls and young and old are appealing to us. Nay, rather, they are hiding from us. They dare not reveal themselves in workshop, or boarding-house, or in the social circle. The ordinary hospital will not have them, nor even the common jail. This is at once our responsibility and our shame. A whole army of them is beaten back by the giant scourge of the race—tuberculosis, and we, too many of us, are hastening the march of this pale army to their grave. We have become foolishly panicky. There is no need for this extreme. A little education, a little precaution in actual contact, and in other obvious ways, is all that is necessary for personal safety. This should be our first fight in their behalf. A few are doing this, and far more. They are trying to shelter them and care for them particularly through the National Sanitarium Association, Toronto. They are doing well, but they cannot do everything. They are fighting for hundreds, but they cannot fight for thousands. The battle is too strong for them. They do not complain, but they appeal strongly to help. The disease is preventible, and in early stages curable, and specialists calculate that it is possible to stamp it out within a quarter of a century. On the lowest plane of motive here lies an annual saving of many thousands of dollars to the country. Let the Christmas Giver listen—here is one golden opportunity. Do they want to make a happy Christmas for many? Among the thousands swept by the cold hail of the white scourge, they will find beautiful girls and bright boys, and sad-faced little children.—Toronto Star.

MANAGER OF SEPARATOR WORKS DEAD

Mr. A. B. Rabb, Brockville, Has Passed Away—Was Known Here

This morning Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie received a telegram from Mr. N. G. Somervills, of Brockville, stating that Mr. A B Rabb, manager of the Separator Works there, had passed away. The deceased was a warm friend of Mr. Gillespie and was known to many in Peterborough. Mr. Gillespie will attend the funeral in Brockville to-morrow.

TUMORS CONQUERED

SERIOUS OPERATIONS AVOIDED

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the Case of Mrs. Fannie D. Fox.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Tumor.

The growth of a tumor is so sly that frequently its presence is not suspected until it is far advanced.

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by profuse monthly periods, accompanied by unusual pain, from the abdomen through the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation or displacement, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound right away and begin its use.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., will give you her advice if you will write her about yourself. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I take the liberty to congratulate you on the success I have had with your wonderful medicine. Eighteen months ago my periods stopped. Shortly after I felt so badly that I submitted to a thorough examination by a physician and was told that I had a tumor and would have to undergo an operation.

"Soon after I read one of your advertisements and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. After trying five bottles as directed the tumor is entirely gone. I have been examined by a physician and he says I have no signs of a tumor now. It has also brought my periods around once more, and I am entirely well."—Fannie D. Fox, 7 Chesnut Street Bradford, Pa.

SUFFERING FROM EAR TROUBLE

Operation Performed on Dr. Bradd Yesterday

Dr. Bradd has been suffering for some days from an abscess in the middle ear. He was attended by Dr. Young, and yesterday a consultation was held by Doctors Carmichael, King and Young. Dr. Bradd was taken to the Nicholls' Hospital, and Dr. McDonough, an ear specialist, arrived to perform the operation, assisted by Dr. Young. Dr. Carmichael administerred the anaesthetic, and to-day the patient is getting along fairly well.

The Chest Pains of Bronchitis

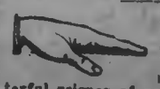
If the cough is dry and hard, if there is pain, soreness and tightness of the chest, if you have difficulty in getting your breath, you have reason to suppose that you have bronchitis. Lest it should become chronic or lead to serious lung trouble, do not delay the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, the most certain cure for bronchitis.

PROPER ORDER OF THE PLANETS

As Described By Rev. Dr. Marsh In His Lecture

Despite the very lucid manner in which Rev. Dr. Marsh described the planet Mars, on Friday night, the reporter got the heavens disarranged, and presented the cart before the horse. The regular astronomical reporter was not able to attend, hence the mistake. The correct order of the planets is as follows: Eros is nearest the Sun, then Mercury, Venus, the Earth, Mars, a great chasm or space then intervenes, and is occupied by minor planets and planetoids, composed of meteoric matter. The planet Jupiter is then located, with Saturn, Uranus and Neptune in the order mentioned.

Palmistry



Madame Lauret Ayres, World Renowned Psychic Your entire life read by the masterful science of palmistry; no cheap tricks, but a plain statement of facts. In the science of reading one's life by the signs of the human hand madame stands the recognized mistress through America. Her wonderful gift of second sight enables her to lift the veil of mystery and reveal to you all important matters of your past, present, and future life. Her prediction of future events is marvellous, and has created a furore everywhere. She has been consulted by thousands well and favourably known in Peterborough. Beware of unscrupulous persons who are travelling and who are copying my advertisements to mislead the public. They are humbugs. I do not use cards or globes, nor go into a trance, but by the art of palmistry and gift of second sight, which is a sixth sense, give truthful advice on all affairs of life. If you are disappointed by the efforts of others, judge not all alike, as madame can convince the most skeptical. This wonderful lady is now located in this city. Was Honoured By His Fellow C. G. E. Employees

Mr. W. T. Crowley Presented With Purse of Gold and Eulogistic Address This Morning—Has Been Most Popular With Fellow Workmen

THERE FOR SIXTEEN YEARS

The C. G. E. gate-house was the scene of an interesting event at noon on Saturday when Mr. W. T. Crowley, foreman of the wire department of the Canadian General Electric Company, who has been connected with that establishment for the past sixteen years and who leaves to-day for Edmonton to take a position with the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, was presented with a purse containing $80 in gold and an eulogistic address by the employees of the company. Mr. Crowley has always been most popular with his fellow employees as well as with his employers, and his departure from the city and the severance of his connections with the institution are greatly regretted.

A large number of the employees were present at the gate-house for the ceremony. Mr. Chas. McIntyre made the presentation, while the following address was read by Mr. W. A. Brundrette:

Mr. William F. Crowley,

After sixteen years' comradeship it is not easy to pick up and break away from the many pleasant friendships that "good fellows" make in such a long period. However, you have decided to join the Westward Ho call and establish yourself in that great and glorious West that has been given us to open up and build up for the glory of one united Canada.

We assure you that though you have made this decision, fully believing that you are bettering yourself, we regret that you are leaving us; as though the old saying is, "there are just as good fish in the sea as ever were caught," we nor you cannot well afford to break lasting friendships. You have the proud distinction of departing from among us without leaving a single enemy behind you.

We have only one kick to make you are perpetuating a grave error, which you have always made, that is you have become such a confirmed old Bachelor that you have joined the Girl-less Telephone Company and are going to a practically girl-less country. We draw your attention to this before you actually leave Peterborough, because there are some mighty nice girls at home.

Again wishing you great prosperity in your new home, also a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to you and yours, we remain

Your old comrades, and friends,
The Employees.

Canadian General Electric Co.

Mr. Crowley briefly replied expressing his regret at leaving the C. G. E., and thanking his friends for their kindness and gift.

Annual Central Smith Entertainment a Success

Big Crowd Attend Dairy Company's Function On Friday Night—Senator Derbyshire's Address

AN ENJOYABLE PROGRAMME

That the annual tea and entertainment of the Central Smith Dairy Association is an event which is looked forward to as one of the best entertainments of the season by the residents of Smith and many of the citizens of Peterborough was again demonstrated Friday evening, the hall being taxed to its utmost.

An excellent supper was served by the ladies of Central Smith, and after ample justice had been done to all the good things with which the tables were laden, the following programme was rendered:

The chair was ably filled by Senator D. Derbyshire, M.P., of Brockville, president of the Eastern Dairymen's Association. Mr. Derbyshire, in opening, congratulated the patrons of Central Smith on the report of the factory for the year, and said he was pleased to be present on the occasion of this annual tea and entertainment. The speaker dwelt on the great necessity of the proper selection and care of the dairy cow to produce profit, and gave many interesting incidents of the results produced from a herd of cows when properly cared for. Mr. Derbyshire also pointed out the great necessity of the storage of ice and its usefulness in the curing of the milk. He also gave many interesting figures regarding the amount of cheese and butter manufactured by the different factories throughout the Province during the past year, and complimented Central Smith as being one of the foremost, both in quality and amount in Eastern Ontario.

The male quartette, consisting of Messrs. Graham, Eastwood, Campbell and McGregor was heard in several well-rendered selections. Their musical sketch entitled "The Dough-faced Quartette" was specially good.

Rev. R. J. Webb of Peterborough and Rev. Mr. Peckover of Otonabee also delivered short and interesting addresses, as well as Mr. D. Hughes Charles and Mr. E. M. Elliott of Peterborough.

The enjoyable evening was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

Kidney Troubles From the Liver

COMPLICATED CASES WHICH LED TO THE DISCOVERY OF THAT GREAT MEDICINE

In this study of kidney disease, Dr. Chase found that fully 90 per cent. of the cases arose as a direct result of liver and bowel disorders, and it was working on this idea that led to the discovery of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Through over-eating, irregular meals, or food that does not agree the liver is deranged, poisonous bile is left in the blood, and the digestive system is upset. Headaches, biliousness, pains in the back and limbs, ill-temper, and general out-of-sort feelings result.

These are among the symptoms of liver complaint, but during such attacks the kidneys are overworked and after a while there is pain and smarting when passing water, the urine is highly coloured and contains deposits, the pains in the back become more severe, you have rheumatic pains it may be, and are gradually falling a victim of Bright's disease of the kidneys.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills were prepared for the express purpose of effecting cure in every stage of such cases. They enliven the liver, regulate the action of the bowels, and invigorate the kidneys.

In this regard they are entirely different to any treatment you ever used, and are successful in complicated cases in which ordinary kidney medicines have little or no effect. There are people in every neighbourhood in Canada ready to certify to this statement.

Mrs. John Shanahan, 319 McDonel street, Peterborough, Ont., states:—"I was troubled with pains in the back, and dropsy, and was subject to fluttering and palpitation of the heart. In order to set my kidneys right I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I also used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food at the same time.

"The combined use of these two preparations has done me a world of good. I used to have rush of blood to the head, dizziness, and headache, but I am thankful to say that all these symptoms have disappeared, and I have been cured by Dr. Chase's remedies."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose; 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.—5.

SOME ADVICE TO THE PARENTS

On Custom of Their Sons Racing Horses On The Public Streets

Strange how young men love to whoop and yell and race horses after dark, regardless of passersby, especially on the Sabbath evening, some will even stop their horses in the middle of the street and obstruct the public highway after the pedestrian has stepped aside to allow of their passing. If the parents of these young men could hear their yells and see how their horses were handled we think they would call a halt to such practice. — Marmora Herald.

LAKEFIELD CEMENT CO'Y EXTENDS

Plant in Montreal Ready for Operations in Two Weeks

The new plant of the Lakefield Portland Cement Company at Pointe aux Trembles, Montreal, will begin operations in about two weeks and will employ about 200 men.

The daily output for the present will be 2,000 barrels. Buildings are however, constructed to house a plant of the capacity of 5,000 barrels a day, and it is the intention of the company to install the additional machines required for the enlarged output at an early date.

TRIALS AND TROUBLES OF MILKMEN

Writer Answers a Letter About the High Price of "Porridge Flavour"

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—On Monday evening while viewing the Daily Examiner I noticed that a "gentleman" as he terms himself, referred to the high price of milk. There still seems to be a spite held against the milkmen for charging seven cents a quart for their milk and this gentleman has gone so far as to publish and try to turn the people against them. He says that the farmer receives four cents per quart for his milk at the barn and of course the milkman pays him. That's all right, but then he says the milkman gets three cents profit, but not if I know it and I ought to, having had two years' experience. I don't think he can put that down any milkman's throat. He doesn't think that a milkman gets up every morning between four and five o'clock, feeds a horse by buying hay at $20 a ton, oats at 55 cents a bush. and drives all day through all kinds of weather, sells about 30 qts. of his milk at six cents, 10 qts. of which he doesn't get anything for and all sorts of abuse. On Sunday the milkman goes along trying to be as light-hearted as possible, while he is besieged upon by hundres of people who can go to church with Easter hats and nice black thorn canes, too nice for the poor hard working milkmen.

Now if that gentleman does some figuring he will plainly see that the hundred quart dairyman—and nearly all the milk vendors in Peterborough are only handling about that quantity, and some less—he will just have about $1.80 per day to keep himself and repair his harness and vehicles. Is that too much? If he thinks there is a fortune in it he is badly mistaken. Just think that many a flight of fifteen steps is climbed to deliver a pint of milk; that means 1 1-2 cents profits. That's "going some," but the writer about the milk business doesn't think of that. Just reckon, old chap, and see where you are. You must have been dreaming on Sunday night, or early Monday morning. He says that he knows of four men going into the milk business in a few months' time. That's not so, for I am a milkman and I know. I wish in conclusion to say that the people of Peterborough ought to rejoice to think that they are getting their porridge flavour so reasonable. Now, if this gentleman has any thing more to say let him come out open-handed and see if I am mistaken.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for so much paper space, I am,

Yours truly,
"MILKMAN."

COUNCIL MEETING ON MONDAY

It is Expected Question of Fixed Assessment Will be Settled

The most interesting matter that will come up at the council meeting to-night is the proposal to ask Mr. Andrew Carnegie for assistance to build a public library, the details of which scheme were outlined at length a day or so ago.

Another important question that will be taken up is that of fixed assessments for the different factories who have applied for that privilege. Last week the representatives of the companies were given an opportunity to state their views and it is expected that to-night the question will be settled one way or another.

GOLF CLUB SUBSCRIBER NOT FAIRLY TREATED

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir, — When I was asked to subscribe stock in the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, to assist it in purchasing the property it now enjoys possession of, I was assured by those soliciting subscriptions that the property would be sure to pay a dividend as the annual fees given would be enough to cover expenses. On these representations I subscribed for stock. Now, I find that the management has taken the interest which properly belongs to me, notwithstanding my annual subscription, to provide an elaborate equipment for those who can take advantage of it, which I cannot. I should like to ask the club if this is right? Is it just, or honest? Can such management be approved? This is the trouble in Peterborough in getting stock subscribed for even the best of purposes. Faith is not kept with subscribers and funds are diverted to purposes not specified at the time subscriptions are received. If I understand it, there is no reason why what should be paid in interest to me and others, should go to other purposes, because somebody has blundered. My dividend, to which I am fairly entitled, would not be much, but it is honestly mine, and I object to business being done in such an improper way. I am entitled to my five per cent. If improvements are desired, let those who are benefited by them, pay for them, and not take the money which, I was assured, would be paid me.

Yours, etc.,
GOLF AMATEUR.

BAD ROADS WERE NO HINDRANCE

To Congregation of Springville Presbyterian Church

There was a good attendance at the Springville Presbyterian church on Sunday at the several services, in spite of the fact that the roads were unusually heavy. In the evening the illustrated service, of which a series is being conducted by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Marsh, was well attended. A special feature was the singing of the choir in solo, duet, and full chorus.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound, or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Canoe-Barge Ordered For Use on Lower St. Lawrence

Peterboro' Canoe Co'y Have Finished an Order For Montreal Firm—An Unusual Shape

WILL CARRY TEN TONS

The Peterborough Canoe Company has just completed a new boat of unusual shape and dimensions, which was ordered by a firm in Montreal, supposedly for use in the lower St. Lawrence.

The boat is forty feet long, has an eight foot beam, and is three feet in depth. It draws 24 inches of water, and is designed to carry at least 10 ton of freight. It has been built on very strong lines, and in the whole work nothing has been overlooked to make it seaworthy, and compact. It is planked with cypress, 7-8 inches in thickness, and about 600 feet of material was used. The frame is of oak, and is designed on the same stout lines that feature the whole work. Three pairs of 15-feet oars will provide the motive power, and two sails are provided.

The unusual shape of the boat is made prominent by the bow and stern. The bow is spoon-shaped, designed to crush thin ice; the stern is known as the transom stern. The keel is made secure by bolts and beams. Four men were engaged in the work on this boat for four weeks and completed it in good time.

The fore-deck is eight feet long, and that at the stern is four feet six inches.

This canoe-barge, or whatever it may be called, is a novel craft, and the design is the idea of the company. Mr. B. O'Dette, has given it close attention and particularly provided for no weak spots when it should be launched.

It has yet to be floored, and will probably be shipped about the first of the New Year.

The company is busily working on many large canoe orders, besides other wood work. They have had to provide 5000 square feet extra in their sheds for the storing of their canoes, and every department has plenty of work ahead.

Change in time commencing on Nov. 25th., the local train which formerly left Peterboro' at 8.00 will leave the C.P.R. depot at 7.56 a.m. until further notice. tf

NOGIE'S CREEK DAM IS COMPLETED

Splendid Structure Which Will Facilitate Lumbering Operations

A fine new dam and timber slide now replaces what was known as Townsend's dam, on Nogay's Creek, down which is floated most of the log out in Galway township. The contract was secured by Mr. R. R. Hall, M. P., for West Peterborough, and the work was carried out under the superintendence of Overseer Clegg, of the Trent Canal staff, Peterborough.

The dam is 54 feet long and 8 feet high, with a 13 foot opening for stop logs. The slide is 57 feet in length, and is built trough shape of sound pine timber.

An excellent job has been made of the new dam which will greatly facilitate the lumbering operations of three Lindsay firms—Rider & Kitchener, Baker Lumber Co., John Carew —and at least one Peterborough firm —the Alfred MacDonald Estate.—Lindsay Post.

BOYS MUST NOT COAST ON SIDEWALK

Citizens Unable to Walk Where Boys Are Coasting—Police Will Watch

The little boys and girls of this city will have to find some other amusement to pass away their time after school hours. As soon as the snow settles on the ground the young boy begins to get his sleigh in shape or make a bobsleigh with his mate, and off they go to some near-by hill to coast. Sometimes the boys use the road but the sidewalk is free of vehicles and therefore give it preference. The result is that after the sleigh has passed down the hill several times the sidewalk becomes so slippery that it is impossible for pedestrians to use it and to get up the hill must take the road.

Several complaints have been pouring into the police department from all parts of the city and the citizens are anxious to have this nuisance stopped and the police are going to stop it.

In future there will be a policeman to look after the hills and the boys who are caught will be taught a severe lesson, and we would advise all little boys and girls who are fond of this exciting sport, to take their sleighs out to the suburbs and use hills out there.

Superstitions on Skin Diseases

Of all superstitious, the most foolish is the idea that when a rash or sore is healed and cured by means of an external remedy, it will "strike in" and do further harm. No reputable physician will give any countenance to such a notion. Skin diseases of every form, and especially eczema, , salt rheum, scald head, etc., are promptly relieved and certainly cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Local Y.M.C.A. Harriers Are Wanted at St. Catharines

Recognized in The West—Y.M.C.A. Committee Meetings To Be Remembered

THE SERVICES YESTERDAY

The meeting at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon for men and older boys was very interesting and helpful. Rev. H. M. Manning spoke on "The Mission of Life" in a strong, earnest address showing that life was a divine mission, and to make the best of that life we must have our souls in close touch with God and our minds ruled by him. Solos by Mr. D. Campbell and Mr. J. Harry Scriver of Toronto were much appreciated and excellently rendered.

The song service at night in the parlour was largely attended and greatly enjoyed. This meeting is growing in favour and will no doubt be even more largely attended in future.

To-night at 6.30 the Intermediate Bible Study Club holds its weekly tea and Bible Study Class. Dr. J. E. Middleton is the leader of the class.

To-morrow night the Intermediates hold a social evening in the rooms down stairs under Mr. C. E. Sisson's supervision. Plans will be discussed for work this winter, and ways and means of making the department more interesting to the employed boys.

The Membership Committee, composed of Messrs. Wm. McLaren, Percy Musgrave, Gordon Carter, H. Cokeu, B A Little, G A Hamlin, R Baker and Rev. Wm. Major, will meet at 8 o'clock to-morrow night, and the Decorating Committee, composed of Messrs. C E Sisson, J S Knapman, H Males, H Cooke and B T Huston, will meet at 7.30 o'clock to-morrow night.

A special invitation has been received by the Association from the secretary of the Martin road race, St. Catharines, to be held on New Year's Day, to have some of our members compete in this event.

CONFIRMATION IN TWO CHURCHES

Eighty-two Persons Admitted to Organic Connection With St. Luke's, St. John's and Lakefield Church

INTERESTING CEREMONIES

St. Luke's church last night was the scene of an impressive ceremony when the rite of confirmation was administered to twenty-five young persons who were admitted into organic connection with that church.

The edifice was filled with an earnest and devout congregation, who entered into the spirit of the ceremony of the laying on of hands. It was performed by Right Rev. Bishop Reeve, assistant to the Archbishop of Toronto. The Rector, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, was assisted in the opening services by Rev. A L Reed, curate, and Mr. H. F. Battersby, of Young's Point. The service was a bright and impressive one, the music being especially for confirmation.

The candidates were presented to His Lordship by the rector, and after they had made their solemn obligation by answering the question put to them by the Bishop. His Lordship addressed them, impressing upon their minds the wisdom of the step they had just taken. They were now renewing their vows made for them in their baptism. He urged upon them the necessity of carrying out in their daily lives the promises made. He hoped they would be strengthened in their good resolution, and the Holy Spirit would enable them to fulfill their obligation. Confirmation was not merely the laying on of the Bishop's hands, but it was the descending of the Holy Ghost, even as it came upon the Apostles at the day of Pentecost. His Lordship referred to the true meaning of the rite. It was not appointed by man's own device, but instituted by the apostles, under instructions from Christ. "It depends upon yourselves," said the Bishop, "whether you will keep your vows. God will help you and through prayer you alone can receive this assistance. Be faithful in your attendance at the Lord's Table and regular at public worship. Try and not make your worship a mere act or form, but be sincere. Remember whom you serve and strive earnestly to glorify him. Fresh trials and adversities will await you, but from strength to strength and from grace to grace advance and each day you will find yourself nearer your heavenly home."

Out-door Exercise

While a hymn was being sung the candidates went forward, and as they knelt before the Bishop His Lordship, placing His hand in turn upon each head said, "Defend, O Lord, this Thy servant with Thy heavenly grace, that he may continue Thine forever; and daily increase in Thy Holy Spirit more and more until he comes unto Thy everlasting kingdom."

After another hymn had been sung His Lordship delivered a forcible and earnest sermon to the congregation, taking for his text the words found in the 8th verse of the 4th chapter of St. Paul's first epistle to Timothy—"For bodily exercise profiteth little, but Godliness is profitable unto all things." "In order that we might accomplish the duties resting upon us in our daily proceedings it is necessary that we exercise Godliness," said the learned preacher. "These are days of games and athletes, and our physical development is largely dependent upon outdoor exercise. The apostle knew of this training when he wrote the text. He was acquainted with the great Grecian games of the early days, and with the athletes of his time. But bodily exercise does not last and only does good for a time. Exercise Godliness and it will follow you into the greater life that comes after death." His Lordship remarked that God made both the body and soul, and development was as necessary for one as for the other. As the body is being sustained by being constantly fed, so is the soul. The soul must be given righteous food. Temptation often assails one; and especially those who have just lately given themselves to Christ, will be affronted by the tempter. "Do not be discouraged. It is a test given to us and intended for our good." In praying, His Lordship warned the congregation against making their devotions lip services. Assume an attitude of lowly reverence, and with faith look to your Saviour, Who alone can help you. Exercise Godliness and there will be a marked change in your features. Your friends will know you belong to Jesus and you will be the means of influencing others in doing that which is right."

Miss Ruth Dawson sang a confirmation hymn while the congregation knelt in prayer.

On Sunday morning next the newly confirmed will receive their first Communion at 8 o'clock.

FIFTY-SEVEN WERE CONFIRMED AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH ON SUNDAY

The Right Reverend Bishop Reeve administered the rite of confirmation in St. John's Church on Sunday morning at 10.30 o'clock. A shortened form of Morning Prayer which opened with the large choir and congregation joining heartily in singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers," was followed by the confirmation service. There were 49 candidates presented by Rev. Canon Davidson, nearly all of whom were adults, and eight from Lakefield, including some of the boys from Rev. A. W. McKenzie's school. Bishop Reeve's address to the candidates was earnest, and in exhorting them to hold fast to prayer and Bible reading, went through the Collect for the Second and Sunday in Advent, and sentence by sentence brought out helpful lessons and advice. He specially spoke on "read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest," as applied to the Holy Scriptures, and warned them that after confirmation, temptation might specially assail them, as the temptation of our blessed Lord came immediately after His baptism. During the offertory Mr. George Chandler sang "Be Thou Faithful Unto Death," from Mendelssohn's St. Paul. Rev. Mr. Seward acted as Bishop's chaplain.

LUMBERMEN'S WAGES COME DOWN

As a Result 30 Men Quit Work And Come To The City

Notice was given some time ago, that the wages in the lumber camps were going to be cut, and this order took effect to-day. Th different lumber companies, who before were paying their men $32 a month, and board, have started to-day to pay from $18 to $26 a month, and board, giving each man what he is worth between these two figures; only the best men get $26, and the majority receive much less.

The lumber companies are to-day watching with great interest the result of the decrease in wages; in in one lumber camp of the Cavendish Lumber Company, called Robinson's camp, ninety men are said to be leaving their work to-day, and a local liveryman has sent back two busses to bring men to the city.

The Examiner called at the office of the Ontario Lumber Company this morning to find out the exact condition of their camps. They said no men had left their camps, and that no men will when they hear the exact condition of the labour situation in this city. The wages paid by Peterborough companies are as high as those paid in any part of Ontario. They said it was better for a man to work for $26 a month than come to the city and be out of work all winter; but these men who are leaving the Cavendish Company expect to get a job with another company, but they may not. There are ten and fifteen men applying here every day for positions and there are also applications from outside points. When these men who are reported to have left the camps come to town they will have from $60 to $100 each, and some will "blow" that in before Christmas. After that you will see them around the different lumbering offices looking for work.

WM. NOGGON IN POLICE COURT

Was Allowed to go on a Charge Of Being Drunk

William Noggon, a swarthy brave from Hiawatha, was arraigned in the Police Court this morning on a charge of being drunk. The Chief had the Indian's name down on the sheet as Knockmedown, but it is likely that Willie did not know his name when he gave it to the Chief. The prisoner looked harmless when he appeared in the court and pleaded guilty, His Worship allowed him to go.

PAIN OVER THE HEART.

FLUTTERING AND PALPITATION

Dangerous Symptoms of a Dangerous Disease.

Heart pains rarely come from a diseased heart—but from an irritated Heart or "Stomach Heart." The cause of the trouble lies with a bad stomach or non-action of the bowels.

If you have pains over the heart, palpitation and fluttering of the heart, pains running down the left side, you know, too, that you have indigestion and that the bowels are not regular. Indigestion and constipation produce gas in the stomach, which bulges out the walls and thus presses upon and irritates the heart.

"Heart-tonics" won't cure because the trouble is not with the heart. "Fruit-a-tives" cure irritated heart—stop palpitation, pain and weak spells—because they act on stomach, liver and kidneys—improve digestion—regulate the bowels—tone up the appetite—and build up the whole system.

"I had a nasty pain over my heart, which alarmed me. I consulted several physicians, but nothing did me any good. After taking 'Fruit-a-tives' I am entirely well." Mrs. A. Sutherland, Taylorville, Ont.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices in which the medicinal action is greatly intensified by the wonderful process of making them. Tonics and internal antiseptics are also added, and the new compound then made into tablets. "Fruit-a-tives" never fail to cure Irritated Heart. Take them on that guarantee. 50c a box; 6 for $2.50. Sent on receipt of price if your druggist does not have them.

DISASTER REPORTED IN WALES

Miners Entombed by Explosion in Colliery at Dinas.

CAUSED BY FIRING A SHOT

Twelve Men Were Below at the Time —Enormous Mass of Rock Fell In —Six Bodies Already Brought Up —Feared All Are Dead—Top of Shaft Blown Out—Most of the Men Were Getting Paid.

London, Dec. 16.—A terrible explosion occurred at the Dinas main colliery in Wales Saturday. Fortunately only 12 men were below the surface at the time, the others having come up to receive their weekly pay. The disaster which caused the accident was brought about by the firing of a shot to signalize the change of shifts. All the headgear of the top of the shaft was blown out and there was a great fall of rock internally. The rescuers are still at work. Six bodies have been found, but it is believed that the death roll will be higher.

$50 OR CANNOT LAND.

Pauper Immigrant Will Be Barred From Canada.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—In order to curb immigration from Great Britain during the winter season and put a further check upon people coming to Canada when there is a probability of work not being forthcoming, agents in England have been instructed to notify intending emigrants that no adult will be allowed to land in Canada between now and the 15th of February unless he has $50 in his pocket. From the latter date to April 1st the amount must be $25.

The only exception is in the case of those who are coming out to friends, and have work provided for them.

SCHOONER ON ROCKS.

British Premier Sees Thrilling Shipwreck at Biarritz.

Paris, Dec. 16.—Gales of hurricane force, which have been raging in France for the past two days, seem to have spent their force in the north and now are central over Spain and the Mediterranean.

The cruiser Isly has been driven ashore at L'Orient, and the three-master Padousa went to pieces on the rocks at Biarritz, directly in front of the hotels, the catastrophe being witness by thousands, including Premier Campbell-Bannerman.

The life-savers were powerless to give aid to the wrecked vessel, and four were drowned.

A large number of fishing craft were lost in the English Channel.

Liner Kildona on Rocks.

Halifax, Dec. 16.—The Thomson liner Kildona ran ashore yesterday morning on the Brazil Rocks, near Cape Sable. The wreck is in a dangerous position. A steamer and schooners are standing by the wreck.

Shah Turns Tyrant.

Teheran, Dec. 16.—Popular agitation against the delay in the execution of soldiers who recently murdered two shopkeepers here reached a climax yesterday in hostile demonstrations on the streets, firing on the Parliament buildings and the resignation of the Cabinet.

The Shah ordered the arrest of the Premier, Nasir el Mulk, and the Minister of the Interior, Sani ed Dowleh, and Alla ed Dowleh, the Governor of Shiraz. Parliament has demanded an explanation of the Shah's action, and is sitting in permanent session until an answer is received.

It is supposed that the Shah is acting under the influence of the reactionaries, as he recently summoned two aged ex-Governors to his palace.

BABY SUFFOCATED IN FIRE.

Mother's Frantic Efforts to Save Her Child at Parry Sound.

Parry Sound, Dec. 16.—At 10.30 Saturday night fire broke out in a frame double house on Gibson street, one-half of which was occupied by the families of Nathanial Smith and Mrs. Weatherup, a widow. An infant of the Smith's was asleep in a back room upstairs and could not be reached by the inmates, the stairs being on fire and sometime having been taken in rescuing the other children. Chief Fireman Logan, at considerable risk, got into the burning compartment and recovered the child, but it was found that it had died of suffocation in the smoke.

The frantic mother was restrained from rushing into the fire. The building was badly gutted, and a number of poor boarders lost their belongings. The house was owned by Peter Weller and was insured.

Three hours later another fire broke out, this time in Parry Harbor, in a building occupied by Mr. Haddad, a jeweler, and Clarke, a barber. The fire gained rapid headway before an alarm was sounded. Haddad, who lived upstairs, had to jump from an upper window to save himself. The fire was confined to the building, which is a complete loss, and nothing of the contents were saved.

The adjoining block, occupied by Mr. Fawcett, a liquor dealer, and the Bank of Toronto was considerably scorched.

INQUEST HAS BEEN ORDERED.

Sudden Death of Ridgetown Man While Driving to Be Probed.

Chatham, Dec. 16.—Crown Attorney H. D. Smith has ordered that an investigation be made into the death of Duncan Johnson of Ridgetown, who was found dead in a buggy after returning from a drive with a friend named Roy Green. Green was unaware that Johnson was dead till they came to their destination. It appears that there were suspicious circumstances surrounding the movements of Johnson and his friends on the night in question, though they are at present unknown, with the exception of the alleged circumstance that Johnson was under the influence of strong drink. The inquest will be held in Ridgetown on Wednesday.

SENTENCED FOR ARSON.

Fire Chief Raymond of Blind River Gets Seven Years.

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 16.—The jury in George Raymond arson case Saturday night returned a verdict of guilty and Judge Anglin imposed a sentence of seven years in Kingston. Upon a charge of forgery Raymond also received seven years, the sentences to run concurrently.

Thomas Ryan, guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of Edward Hines here in the summer, received a light sentence, namely six months in the Soo jail without labor The case is an exceptional one, Ryan being a respected citizen, and the death of Hines being regarded more as an accident than otherwise.

FIVE YEARS FOR KOW.

Set Fire to Barn and Is Sent to Kingston Penitentiary.

Cobourg, Dec. 16.—Judge Benson, senior judge of the County Court, sentenced Thomas Kow, the French-Canadian, who gave Montreal as his home, to five years' imprisonment. Kow pleaded guilty to a charge of setting fire to a barn and strawstack in Hope Township.

The barn, which was the property of Mr. William Harcourt, was burned, together with a large quantity of grain, feed and implements. Kow, it is said, gave as a reason for his act that he was half-starved and wished to go to jail.

Arrested U. S. Convict.

Kingston, Dec. 16.—Henry Fisher, an American convict, was arrested here yesterday. Fisher was sentenced to four years at Auburn, N. Y., and had served two years and a half before he was liberated on parole. A few weeks ago he broke his parole and jumped to Canada. An officer will be here to arrange for extradition.

It is said that New York friends of "Kid" McManus, in the penitentiary here, have settled the Paris bond matter for him, and that he will not be arrested when he is released from prison in February.

Mysterious Disease.

London, Dec. 16.—A mysterious disease which is prevailing in certain parts of England is baffling the local doctors. It was at first thought to be scarlet fever until many of the patients deviated from the normal course of that ailment. It is now suggested that the disease is a form of influenza. It is not markedly infectious, resembling German measles in this respect, but the rash which appears is quite unlike any other, being more of a brick red color.

Barn Burned; Train Derailed.

London, Dec. 16.—The barn of John Kilbourne, a farmer living near the Delaware cheese factory, was burned yesterday morning. All the horses and a number of rigs were saved. The damage is estimated at $300. The building was fairly well insured.

The breaking of an axle caused seven cars on a fast freight to be derailed near Strathroy on Saturday.

ANOTHER BIG SCHOONER IS LOST

"Thomas Lawson" Capsized Off Scilly Islands, Cornwall.

FIFTEEN SAILORS DROWNED

Had Terrible Voyage Across Atlantic —Boats All Washed Away — The Vessel Turned Completely Over In Heavy Sea—Only Three Rescued—"Hinney" Also Wrecked — The Crew Escaped.

Hughton, Scilly Islands, Dec. 16.—After successfully riding out a succession of gales which she encountered all the way across the Atlantic, in which she lost all her lifeboats, the American seven-masted schooner Thomas W. Lawson was capsized in Broad Sound, Scilly Islands, where the captain sought shelter from the fierce storm raging along the English coast Friday night. Of the crew of eighteen, including Pilot Hicks, who boarded the vessel from a life-savers' boat during the night, only three were rescued. These were Capt. G. W. Dow of Melrose, Mass., Edward L. Rowe, the engineer of Wiscasset, Maine, and George Allen of Bradford, England.

The schooner left Philadelphia Nov. 19, for London, with a cargo of oil. She had a hard battle with the seas all the way across, and when she entered the Board Sound, her captain, knowing the dangers of the coast, threw out his anchors. Later, in answer to his signals of distress, the life-savers put out two lifeboats and found the Lawson anchored in a dangerous position off Gunner's Rock. The seas were running high, and the gale was increasing, and the life-savers found that their efforts at rescue were useless. One of the boats returned for a tug, and the other was compelled to put back to shore because of the exhaustion of the men. During their absence the Thomas W. Lawson turned turtle.

Rescued, But May Die.

Allen, one of the rescued men, is not expected to live, while Captain Dow is suffering from a fractured arm. His rescue was effected only through the almost superhuman efforts of the life-savers, and the gallantry of Frederick Hicks, the son of Pilot Hicks, who accompanied them on their second trip in the hope of finding his father.

Late Saturday afternoon, after a long search, Captain Dow and Engineer Rowe were seen alive on the Helwether Rocks, to which they had clung for upwards of fifteen hours, the tremendous waves preventing them making a landing. Young Hicks plunged into the boiling seas and swam ashore, carrying a life-line, by means of which he and the captain hauled back to the boat the engineer, who was practically uninjured. After assisting Captain Dow, Hicks was able to reach the boat unaided, but the effort exhausted him, and the doctors ordered him to remain quiet for a time.

Lashed to the Masts.

Captain Dow told the life-savers that when he found his vessel was doomed, he, the engineer and the pilot lashed themselves to the mizzen rigging. When the masts fell, the captain and the engineer managed to get clear. They jumped to the deck, but were washed overboard, being carried by the currents to the rocks, where they were found. Pilot Hicks, however, seemed to be entangled in the rigging.

Wreck of Edmund P. Hinney.

New York, Dec. 16.—Caught in the storm of wind and snow that swept down from the northeast Saturday, the American bark Edmund P. Hinney, Captain Alfred Anderson, was piled up on the sands of Sandy Hook Beach and battered to pieces by mountainous seas. With great difficulty her crew, half dead from exposure, was rescued by the Sandy Hook and Spermaceti Cove life saving crews after clinging to the hulk for several hours, the last man scarcely having swung off in the breeches buoy, when the broken and battered craft went to pieces and disappeared in the boiling waters. Not another man could have been saved, so suddenly did the bark disintegrate before the gale-driven seas.

Hamilton, Dec. 16.—The Hamilton Radial Co. are asking for an amendment which will permit them to build direct from Brantford to London, Chatham and Windsor, instead of going around by St. Thomas.

WATCH THE STOMACH.

HAVE YOU ANY OF THESE SYMPTOMS?

If you have either variable appetite, a faint gnawing feeling at the pit of the stomach, unsatisfied hunger, a loathing of food, rising and souring of food, a painful load at the pit of the stomach, choking sensations in the throat, headache and dullness of spirits, constipated bowels with alternate diarrhoea, are you gloomy and miserable?

THEN YOU ARE A DYSPEPTIC.

The cure is careful diet, slow eating, thoroughly chewing the food; avoid drinking at meals.

Keep regular habits, shun stimulants, tone the digestive powers and regulate the stomach and bowels with Burdock Blood Bitters. It has cured the worst forms of dyspepsia, even of twenty-five years duration. Mrs. Geo. Parks, Cooper, Ont., was cured; she writes: "I have used Burdock Blood Bitters and find that few medicines can give such great relief in dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was troubled for a number of years with dyspepsia and could get no relief until I tried B.B.B. It helped me right away and I think it a wonderful remedy. I would recommend it to all sufferers from dyspepsia.

W. G. MORROW, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. R. STRATTON.

The O.R.F.U. Decides Not To Hand Over Cup To Peterboro'

Annual Meeting on Saturday Was Not Largely Attended — Drop Kick Amendment Was Adopted By Union

Toronto, Dec. 14. — The 26th annual meeting of the Ontario Rugby Football Union was held this afternoon at the King Edward Hotel, with President James G. Merrick in the chair. Owing to the storm the meeting was slimly attended. W. J. Slee, P. H. Scott, H M. Robinson, E. W. Pyke, Geo. Calvin and Secretary J. B. Hay were the delegates present.

No financial statement was presented, but a deficit was reported, few of the clubs having paid their fees and none of the senior clubs having paid the customary fee for matches. Secretary J. B. Hay read the following report for the executive committee:

Gentlemen, — The season, as you know, has not been a very prosperous one for the O.R.F.U.

The season has not been quite so prosperous as we might have wished, the introduction of the new rules and the formation of the new Inter-Provincial Union, having drawn a number of teams away from your body, but, despite this, we have had a fairly successful year.

The amendment to reduce the drop kick from 4 to 3 points was adopted.

Where tie, semi-final or final games are played the visiting club or clubs will henceforth be allowed 6c. per mile for 10 players before the gate is divided.

The winners last season, were:— Peterborough seniors, Tammany Tigers, intermediate; and Parkdale Canoe Club, juniors. The cup will be awarded the intermediate and junior championships, but on motion of Mr. Merrick the senior cup will remain in the possession of the union, owing to Peterborough having played against Montreal for the Canadian championship.

Dave Hartley May Walk James Graham of Buffalo

Has Received a Challenge From The Other Side — Challenger Calls Himself the Champion Of America

WOULD LIKE A MATCH

Dave Hartley is still receiving challenges by mail from aspirants for the long distance walking honours, and the latest the postman has brought him is from Mr. Jas. A. Graham of Buffalo, who styles himself the "champion of America," and whose letter is given below. It would not of course be possible for the two to meet here during the winter, but Mr. Hartley would not hesitate to go to Buffalo for the race, would not be surprising if the contest is arranged, although nothing is settled yet.

The letter is as follows:

Buffalo, Dec, 14th, '07.

Dear Friend,—

You must excuse me in taking the liberty of writing you, but this is the only way I could reach you. I challenged you through the Toronto papers when you had your race there. Now, I am no boy looking for a little fame, as I am 46 years old myself. My style has been go-as-you-please, but I would just as soon walk. I would like to come to your city and walk, if you think it would pay us. There is a good chance for a good race in Buffalo. I would like to hear from you, if not to walk, at least as a friend.

I remain, yours,
JAS. A. GRAHAM,
Champion of America.
257 14th street,
Buffalo, N.Y.

A WALKING MATCH IS ARRANGED

Billy McGee and W. J. Barrie Will Meet In Contest

Billy McGee, of Peterborough, who it will be remembered a week ago challenged Dave Hartley to a walking match has had his challenge snapped up by M. J. Barrie, also of Peterborough and the arrangements will it is expected be completed in a few days. The match it is understood will be a go as you please contest. Great interest will be taken in the event and both men will have a large number of supporters when the event comes off. They are both in good shape for the struggle.

FIFTY YARD RECORD SMASHED

Fred McGrath Did the Distance Inside Duffy's Distance

Few local people are aware of the fact that Fred McGrath in his first heat in the fifty yards dash at the Y.M.C.A. Harriers' indoor meet, smashed the world's record for that distance. The clever local sprinter ran the first heat in 5 1-5 seconds, according to the timers, both expert clockers, while there can be no doubt as to the accuracy of the distance, as the measurements were made by a capable civil engineer. An American paper has just referred to the fact that Arthur Duffy in running 50 yards in 5 2-5 seconds has established a world's record, but it looks as if the Peterborough boy had beaten him out.

TURF CLUB'S WINTER MEETING

Promises to be a Great Success—Fast Horses are Coming

The Peterborough Turf Club's big winter meet on Jan. 21 and 22 promises to surpass all previous efforts made in this line. There will be more entries than ever before and the fastest horses ever seen in Peterborough will be on hand for the meet. All the best ice horses in Ontario will be here. Peterborough is on the eastern circuit of winter meets and will if things turn out right. He will write Mr. Graham at once, and it therefore catch all the fast ones on their way to the big meet at Ottawa.

On the first day the prizes will be $100 for the 2.35 class and $125 for the 2.18 class, and on the second day $125 for the 2.22 class and $150 for the free-for-all.

Mr. Donald Fraser of the Snowden House for several years secretary of the London Driving Club, and known as a horseman of great ability has been added upon as one of the judges. Mr. Martin Connors, the well known local sportsman will act as starter.

A list of some of the horses that will be here will be published later.

SKATING RACES FOR PETERBORO'

Indoor National Championships to be Decided Here

According to the Toronto News, the indoor Canadian speed skating championships are to be held in Peterborough this year, an announcement that will undoubtedly be received with surprise, as the event has never been held in Peterborough before. The News says:

"The international speed and skating contests will be held in Montreal on February 1st and the indoor national speed championships at Peterborough, Feb. 7th and 8th."

TRAINING FOR XMAS DAY RACE

Hamilton Herald Says That Some Local Harries Will Take Part

The Hamilton Herald in speaking of the ten mile road race on Christmas day says—

But while the dope on Coley and Longboat is being figured out George Adams should not be overlooked. He beat Coley at St. Catharines last Year's, in the ten mile race, and had a good lead on him in the Herald race for the first ten miles. At Montreal last month Adams ran a remarkable race and finished just ten seconds behind Longboat. Jack Tait, the crack ten miler of the Toronto West End Y.M.C.A., is coming for the event, and it is likely that Percy Sellen of the Irish Canadians of Toronto, will be on the job. Fred Simpson, the Peterborough Indian, who ran second in the Herald race, will be a starter, as well as Wilson, the Peterborough boy, who defeated Coley in a five-mile race at the indoor meet at Toronto. Hilton Greene will be in line, and although he has never won a race of any class he is a stayer, and is liable to give the best of them a face especially if the going is heavy. A number of other good runners have forwarded their entries and it should be one of the greatest ten mile races ever run in these parts. The entries close with Billy Carroll at the Opera House cigar store on Friday of next week. The race will be run under the auspices of the Irish Canadian Club, and all players must be registered with the C. A. A. U., of which A. J. Taylor is the local representative."

It has not been definitely decided, but it is not likely that Peterborough will be represented on the 25th.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

On Saturday night the time for the entering of teams in the City Hockey League expired with five teams. They are the High Lifes and Strathconas of Peterborough, Bridgenorth, Lakefield, and Norwood. The latter as well as Bridgenorth are new teams for the league, and as both have some good men they will undoubtedly make things interesting. Norwood is being doped by many to win out this year, but if they do they will have to go some. At the next meeting the schedule will be arranged.

• • • •

The Strathconas have written to Orillia with a view of securing an exhibition game with the team of that town on Christmas night. Orillia has a new rink and has organized a club and the Straths would like very much to open the season there. It is altogether likely that Queen's team will be seen here in the first game of the season as usual. The game will give the public a chance to get a line on the new team.

• • • •

The Peterborough council at its next meeting will discuss the advisability of applying to Andrew Carnegie for a grant towards a public library. It is the intention to ask Mr. Carnegie for $50,000. Peterborough might also ask Andy for a donation towards Hartley's house and lot.—Port Hope Guide.

• • • •

Sylvester Shaughnessy and Harry Naish of the Otonabee Hockey Club are getting into shape by some long distance foot races. Their latest stunt was a race of two miles in which the latter won out in less than 14 minutes.

• • • •

A meeting of the executive of the Crescent Rugby Club is called for this evening at the Y.M.C.A. at 8 o'clock.

• • • •

The R.T.D.C. Snow Shoe Club will meet to-night at the Club House at 7.30 sharp and prepare for a tramp to the tall pines.

• • • •

The Lindsay curlers opened their rink on Friday night of last week when four games were played.

The following are the heavy weight champions since 1892:

1892—Corbett beat Sullivan, 21 rounds.
1894—Corbett beat Mitchell, 3 rounds.
1896—Fitzsimmons beat Maher, 1 round.
1897—Fitzsimmons beat Corbett, 14 rounds.
1899—Jeffries beat Fitzsimmons, 11 rounds.
1899—Jeffries beat Sharkey, 25 rounds.
1902—Jeffries beat Fitzsimmons, 8 rounds.
1903—Jeffries beat Corbett, 10 rounds.
1904—Jeffries beat Munroe, 2 rounds.
1905—Jeffries retired, and gave his title to the winner of the Hart-Root fight, which was Hart—12 rounds.
1906—Burns beat Hart, 20 rounds.
1906—Burns drew with O'Brien, 20 rounds.
1907—Burns beat Squires, 1 round.
1907—Burns beat Moir, 10 rounds.

To Save Boyd's Life.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—Mr. Phalen interviewed Hon. A. B. Aylesworth on Saturday and asked for clemency for Boyd, the slayer of Wandle. He made a strong point of the jury's recommendation to mercy, and Mr. Aylesworth promised to review the evidence.

Unknown Man's Suicide.

Winnipeg, Dec. 16.—An unknown man hanged himself in a vacant stable at the rear of 24 Aberdeen avenue yesterday. The body was found at 6 o'clock. There is nothing on the clothes to identify the victim, who was fairly well dressed.

EDITOR TO BE RE-TRIED.

German Scandal Taken by Von Moltke to Higher Court.

Berlin, Dec. 16.—The efforts of Count Kuno Von Moltke to vindicate himself in the trial which resulted from accusations made by Maxmilian Harden, editor of Die Sukunft, having failed before the minor court, the case will be taken up by the state's attorney before a criminal bench of five judges to-day. Fresh revelations are awaited with tense expectancy by the public, because it is believed that much new testimony will be brought out concerning the so-called camarilla surrounding the Emperor. Prince Philip Zu Eulenberg, Count Von Moltke's divorced wife, Frau Von Elbe, and her son, Lieut. Von Kruze, are among the witnesses who will be called.

It is by no means certain that the judges will allow the testimony to take a range wide enough to elicit political secrets of the court for anything that may touch directly the person of the Emperor.

LETTER OF DOOM.

Geneva "Reds" Pass Death Sentence on Obnoxious Editor.

Geneva, Dec. 16.—The police here have discovered in the postoffice, en route to New York, a notice of the passage of the death sentence on the editor of the New York Russian newspaper, Warheit, by Russian revolutionists. The notice reads as follows:

"The Geneva section of the Union of Russian people at its last assembly took the following decision: The editor of the journal Warheit, Louis Miller, is condemned to death for publishing secret Governmental documents. The prompt execution of this judgment is confided to three specialists of the fighting organization. We hereby inform you this resolution is in conformity with our status."

The secret documents mentioned in the above notification refer to the death of a revolutionist named Schernek.

SENT TO SIBERIA.

Heavy Sentences on Late Russian Deputies For High Treason.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 16.—Sentence was pronounced Saturday upon the Social-Democratic members of the Lower House, whose arrest was the indirect cause of the discolution of the second Douma. The punishment inflicted is unexpectedly heavy. Eight deputies, including Annikin, Annismoff, Duhaparidze and Prince Tzereeli, are condemned to five years' labor in the mines and subsequent deportation to Siberia; nine others, including Batasheff, Biolouseff and Kirtenko, are sent to the mines for four years and then will be deported. Ten deputies are sent into perpetual exile in Siberia. Many other correspondingly heavy sentences were imposed.

200 Bulgarians Slain.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 16.—The Bulgarian Government has sent a note to Russia, in answer to a recent representation made by the Russian Minister at Sofia, with reference to the activity of Bulgarian bands in Macedonia. The note denies that the residents of the principality are participating in these activities and states that Bulgaria reposes entire trust in the powers to introduce adequate reforms in Macedonia. It suggests the employment of a European gendarmerie, the officers of which shall be empowered to supplant the Turks in the administration of the province.

Bulgaria launches a counter complaint against Greek bands composed of Cretans, which, it declares, are carrying on a propaganda with fire and sword. The statistics for the month of October show that 288 persons were murdered.

Church Bell Nuisance.

London, Dec. 16.—To the great satisfaction of distracted workers in the city who have long complained of the constant church bell ringing which occurs almost daily in various churches in accordance with old customs, the society for the betterment of London has prepared a petition asking the Home Secretary for greater power in dealing with street noises and that the police may have authority to prevent unnecessary noises, and furthermore that church bells be placed in the category of nuisances.

Killed by Runaway Horse.

Walkerton, Dec. 16.—At about 11 o'clock Saturday morning the horse hitched to the steam laundry delivery wagon took fright and ran away. John Lenhart, an old man of about 70, was knocked over by the frightened beast and sustained such serious injuries that he died in the hospital six hours later.

CONSIDERABLE HAVOC BY FIRE

Paper Box Factory Entirely Destroyed in Toronto.

LOSS AMOUNTS TO $175,000

Spectacular Blaze on Sunday—Series of Fires in Queen City — Many Buildings Damaged—Planing Mill at Kew Beach Gutted—Firemen Had Tough Work—Householders Had Narrow Escape.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—Fire, which had possession of the whole building and was bursting through the roof before an alarm was sent in, early Sunday morning, totally destroyed the Elliott Paper Box Manufacturing Co., 229 to 235 Richmond street, at a loss estimated at $150,000, covered by insurance up to $121,000.

Surrounding property also suffered to the extent of $16,000.

One hundred and ninety people are thrown out of employment.

The factory was a three-storey building, with a frontage of about 75 feet on Richmond street and the same on Nelson street, to which it extended back. With few partitions, and with most inflammable contents, the building was a roaring furnace. The caretaker of the St. Andrew's Institute, adjoining on Nelson street, was awakened by the glare and saw the flames coming from the windows apparently before an alarm had been sent in.

The water pressure was not as good as it should have been, and one of the big engines on Nelson street was too powerful for the main which should have supplied it, affording a notable instance of the necessity for hastening the completion of the high pressure system which skirts the district.

Deputy Chief Noble, one of the first to arrive, had ordered Queen street section to get clear of the Richmond street wall just three minutes before it crumbled out.

Attention was then directed to the south wall, efforts being combined to save St. Andrew's Institute. This will fell with a roar out into Nelson street thirty minutes after the first one. The heat was so intense that telegraph poles and scaffolding on the south side of Nelson street commenced burning. It was "a perfect hell," as one of the firemen expressed it, while rolling in the snow and in the spray of another jet from a hose which was being used to cool the men and hose. Several lengths of hose were lost by scorching.

With the walls down, the danger to surrounding property began to abate, and attention was directed toward quenching the bed of flame in the factory ruins. The fire was aggravated considerably by a broken three-inch gas main, which had been placed in the factory a short time ago, and which had burst open.

One hundred and ten girls were employed, and some eighty men. A small percentage of the men will be put to work at once in the art department, and as soon as temporary premises are secured, according to David Elliott, the general manager, many of the men employed in the other departments will be back at work.

Planing Mill Gutted.

While the Elliott Box Co. fire was burning itself out, the Williamson Planing Mill and Lumber Yards at No. 133 Woodbine avenue, owned by W. Williamson, were wrapped in flames, the fire starting in the dry kiln at the northeast corner, just before 2 o'clock.

The wind blew the flames clean through the two-storey brick veneer building, and in a short time the building was badly gutted. The fire was not under complete control until 6 a. m. The damage is $16,000.

Other Sunday Fires.

While M. Krystel was absent from his tailoring store, at 859 Yonge street, yesterday afternoon, a fire broke out, causing $200 damage to the building, which is owned by W. Weir, and $1,000 damage to the contents. The blaze started under the counter, and the cause remains a mystery.

About 5 o'clock in the afternoon fire broke out in some bags of charcoal in the works of the Standard Chemical Co., at the foot of John street, doing $1,000 damage. The cause is unknown. The loss is mostly covered by insurance.

Fire In May.

Fire, which broke out in the Hortop Milling Co.'s premises at Dufferin and Florence streets at 7.45 Saturday morning, destroyed 200 tons of hay, baled in G. T. R. cars and in the Hortop building, which was a frame structure.

One car on an adjacent siding was completely destroyed and three others partially burned.

The total loss to building and contents will be about $6,700.

Roasted to Death.

Montreal, Dec. 16.—Edward Nagle, a Montreal workingman, met a horrible death in a conflagration in a boarding-house at the Cedars, Saturday night.

The man was literally roasted alive while he was trying to fight his way through the devouring flames.

Ten of his fellow-workers, who were asleep in the wooden building, were nearly caught.

Valuable Fresco Found.

Rome, Dec. 16.—A fresco of the Madonna and child, which was recently discovered on a wall behind an old wardrobe in a house in the small umbrian village of Acciano, is believed to be the work of Matteo du Gualdo, and is probably one of his latest, as it is dated 1497. The discovery was made by mere chance.

Took Pills and Died.

Montreal, Dec. 16.—Mrs. John W. Littlewood of Lachine died under rather suspicious circumstances yesterday, from, it is believed, the effects of poisoning, and her husband is in a precarious condition. They partook of some quinine pills for a cold, and were shortly afterwards taken violently ill.
